Hanoi Accepts Return Of POWs

Senate Likely To Remove 2-Cent Gas Tax Increase

AUSTIN (UPI)—A quick vote of approval is expected today in the Senate to shove off a troublesome 2-cent-per-gallon increase on gasoline taxes. The Senate State Affairs Committee approved the bill in but put off a floor vote until today to give senators a chance to read it.

Smith threatened to veto the $904 million tax increase proposal on ground it would raise more money than he thinks is necessary to run the state for a special meeting Thursday, almost certainly would have forced a special summer session on budget matters.

The House and Senate have taken swift action to doctor the bill since then.

The net effect of the tax repeal will be to leave state taxes on gasoline exactly the way it is now — 5 cents per gallon.

Smith has indicated he will sign the tax bill without the gasoline tax hike.

With removal of the gasoline tax hike, the overall tax bill will amount to $622 million.

Still in the main tax bill are a .75-per-cent hike in the general sales tax, 1-per-cent increase in automobile sales taxes, a $1.70-per-barrel hike in beer taxes, a $1.25-per-$1,000 valuation corporate franchise tax increase, and 3-cent-per-pack jump in cigarette taxes.

Smith bowed his neck earlier this week when he got the $904 million tax bill and insisted that it be cut.

"We can get along without it," the governor said of the proposed gasoline tax increase.

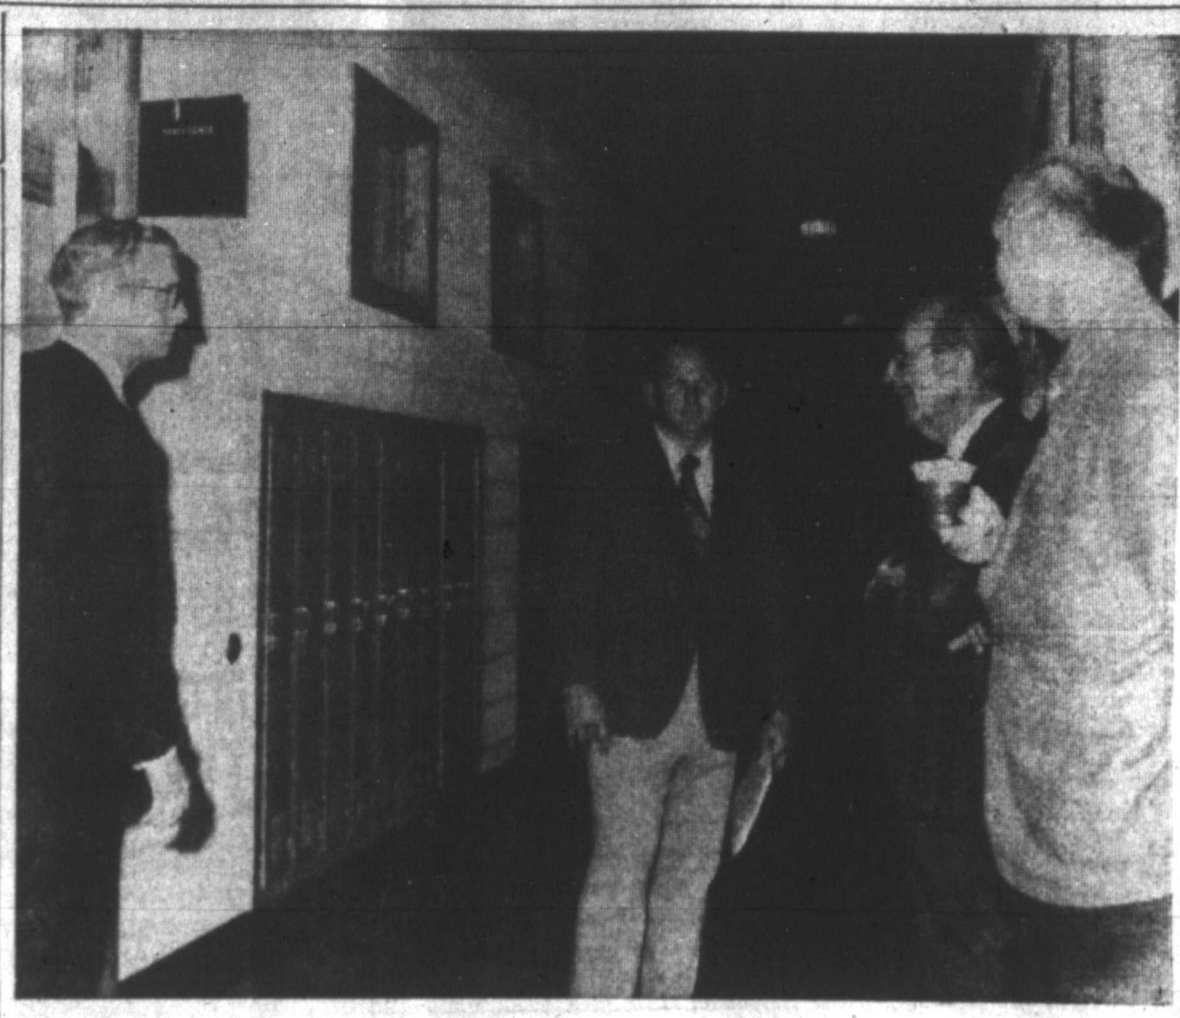

"If you have any excess at the end of the year, you can always — and I mean always — find a project to use it on.

For the sake of economy and the plight of the taxpayer, I say we can do without that tax."

With the compromise on new taxes worked out, the way also was clear for House and Senate conferees to begin work on their various versions of the state budget bill.

Additional new revenue is expected from a pending tax bill on mixed drinks and liquor taxes, expected to raise about $82 million, and a $400 per semester increase on college tuition for out-of-state students.

These increases and the pared down tax bill will make nearly $700 million in new revenue available for the 1972-73 biennium. This was nearly the amount needed to take care of the Senate's $6.9 billion appropriations bill, which was larger than the bill passed by the House.

INVITED "OUT" — This was the scene late yesterday afternoon as Bob Carmichael, school board vice president, left, opened the door to inform Tex DeWeese, editor of The News, and Jim Hughes, general manager of KGRO, the board had decided to continue in executive session for discussion of the current school athletic department controversy. Athletic Director Swede Lee, center, appeared before the board for nearly two hours. He had asked that the meeting be open to the News Media. With his back to the camera is Marvin Bowman, assistant high school principal. (Staff Photo)

Bunker Hails Action As Encouraging Sign

TOKYO (UPI) — North Vietnam agreed today to accept the return June 4 of 570 ailing prisoners of war held in South Vietnam, the largest group of Vietnamese prisoners ever returned.

The acceptance, broadcast in English on Hanoi Radio and monitored here, was in reply to an offer made at the Paris talks April 23 by South Vietnam's chief peace negotiator, Pham Dang Lam, to return the sick and wounded prisoners to the north.

North Vietnam always has refused to acknowledge that it has soldiers fighting in the South and referred to them in the broadcast as "Vietnamese illegally arrested in South Vietnam whom they (the Saigon government) called North Vietnamese prisoners of war."

Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. Ambassador to South Vietnam, immediately hailed the impending return as "an encouraging sign."

In a brief statement issued in Saigon, Bunker said "I consider this an encouraging sign and I hope it will be the first step leading to the release of American and allied prisoners' held by North Vietnam."

The South Vietnamese government had no immediate comment on the return, but it was expected that they would accept North Vietnam's terms for the release which are similar to those agreed upon in the past.

South Vietnamese Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam, whose department traditionally handles the mechanics of POW releases, was reported en route back to Saigon from consultations in the United States and Europe.

Russia Calls For Talks On Europe Troop Cut

BILISI, Georgia, USSR (UPI)—Soviet Communist Party Chairman Leonid I. Brezhnev called on the western powers today to begin negotiations with the Soviet Union on reducing troops and armaments in central Europe.

Brezhnev, in this birthplace of Josef Stalin for celebrations marking the 50th anniversary of Georgia's admittance to the Soviet Union, chided western leaders for hesitating in starting such talks.

He did not specifically mention the United States which is embroiled in arguments in Washington over a proposal by Mike Mansfield, the Senate majority leader, to halve American strength in western Europe.

Brezhnev spoke of western leaders and said:

"Their spokesmen ask: 'Whose armed forces—foreign or national—are to be reduced?'

Brezhnev said such questions reminded him of "a person who tries to judge the flavor of a wine by its appearance and without tasting it."

"If anything is not clear to somebody we are ready to make it clear," he said.

13 Black Panthers Acquitted By Jury

NEW YORK (UPI)—A jury of eight whites and four blacks, in a surprisingly swift decision Thursday, acquitted 13 Black Panthers charged with conspiracy to blow up police stations, department stores and attempting to murder two patrolmen.

The panel took only 30 minutes to bring in a verdict of "not guilty" on all charges against the defendants who had been on trial for eight months—the longest trial in New York State history.

Squeals of jubilation were mixed with tears as jury foreman James Fox, a black musician, replied "not guilty" to each of the total of 156 counts brought against the defendants—two women and 11 men.

The women, Mrs. Afreni Shakur, who is eight months pregnant, and Joan Bird, cried as the foreman intoned the verdicts in reply to the charges read by the court clerk.

A number of spectators in the courtroom screamed approval at the verdicts and in the corridors outside the courtroom afterward there was a general tableau of kissing, hugging, laughter and exultation among defendants, attorneys, relatives, friends and onlookers.

The other defendants were Lamumba Shakur, Carl E. Squire, Robert Collier, Walter Johnson, William E. King Jr., Curtis Powell, Lee Roper, Ali Bey Haysan, Alex McKiver, Michael Tabor and Richard Moore.

Tabor and Moore were not in court when the verdicts were announced. They fled to Algeria last February while free on $150,000 bail each and still face bail-jumping charges.

Five of the defendants—Squire, Shakur, King, Hassan and Collier remain in custody as a result of charges against them, some stemming from the riots at the Long Island City House of Detention last year.

Jury foreman Fox said later the state's case was too "nebulous."

His opinion was concurred in by juror Jim Butters, a white elementary school teacher.

"Everybody was for acquittal," Butters said.

Board Confident Athletic Ruckus Will End With Positive Solution

By TEX DEWEESE

Pampa's five school board members spent five hours behind closed doors yesterday delving into the ruckus between the athletic director of Pampa schools and the high school's head basketball coach.

When it was all over, James F. Malone, school superintendent, announced the board had authorized him to make this statement:

"The matter has had thorough and careful consideration by the board. The board is confident that a positive solution will be the result."

Malone said that was the only authorized statement about yesterday's meeting, but indicated there would be later developments.

The session, which started at 3:30 p.m. and ran until 8:30 p.m., was the outcome of a formal charge made earlier in the week by Athletic Director Swede Lee that Robert McPherson, the head basketball coach, had violated athletic department policies and interscholastic League rules.

As a result of the alleged violations, Lee recommended that McPherson be relieved of his high school coaching duties and be reassigned to a junior high school coaching job.

Superintendent Malone later ruled Lee did not have the authority to reassign McPherson and announced that the high school coach would remain in his present post.

Lee asked for a hearing before the school board. The request was granted and that was the occasion for yesterday's meeting. Lee had also requested the meeting be open to news media.

The first item on the agenda yesterday was to decide whether the newsmen would be allowed to sit in on the meeting. When the session was called to order, two newsmen and several other persons were asked to leave the conference room while the news coverage issue was discussed among the five board members.

The newsmen, representing The Pampa News and Radio Station KGRO, waited outside in a hallway of Carver Center, along with High School Principal Cameron Marsh, Assistant Principal Marvin Bowman, Superintendent Malone, Athletic Director Lee and Coach McPherson.

In about 15 minutes, Dr. Malone was called inside, and two or three minutes later, Bob Carmichael, board vice president, opened the conference room door and announced the meeting would be "an executive session" as previously announced. No formal vote was taken on the issue. The newsmen left. The others remained.

When issuing the board's 25-word statement on the five-hour session, the school superintendent said Athletic Director Lee was the only one to appear before the board. Coach McPherson was not called. It is understood the entire proceedings centered around interpretation of the athletic director's contract as to whether he had contractual authority to reassign McPherson to a lesser job than high school basketball coach.

When the meeting was adjourned, the athletic department donnybrook stood just about in the same situation as when it started with the possible exception of detailed instructions from Dr. Malone to Lee and McPherson as to what their specific jobs would be and a warning as to what would happen if there should be any violation of either school policies or interscholastic League rules.

Dr. Malone said much of the first hour of the five-hour meeting was taken up with discussion of another unrelated personnel matter.

"Lee was the only person called," Malone said, "and the whole issue dealt with contract interpretation."

Rogers Firmly Against Legislation To Limit President's War Power

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Secretary of State William P. Rogers vigorously opposed today legislation that would require a president to obtain Congressional consent before committing troops to overseas combat.

He said it would narrow the president's constitutional powers and seriously limit his ability to conduct foreign policy.

Rogers stood adamant against proposals by Sens. John Stennis, D-Miss., and Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., to limit any future intervention in an overseas conflict to 30 days without approval of Congress.

Rogers said the best way for Congress and the chief executive to deal with the problem was to cooperate with each other in matters of war and peace rather than seeking to force shackles based on the assumption of divergent perspectives.

Rogers read a 41-page statement brief to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which is holding hearings on war powers legislation.

Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., served notice that if the administration tried to thwart the Congressional drive for a share of foreign policy authority, Congress might be driven into "the kind of overbearing Congressional role which resulted in the rejection of the League of Nations in 1919."

Fulbright charged that the administration based on its actions in Cambodia and Laos during the past year—"believes itself to be at liberty to initiate war at will and, in so doing, to ignore not only the constitution but also the explicit will of the senate."

But Rogers argued that the framers of the constitution envisioned perpetual cooperation between Congress and the president on foreign policy.

"In the absence of such cooperation," he said, "no legislation which seeks to define constitutional powers more rigidly can be effective, Conversely, given such cooperation, such legislation is unnecessary."

Rogers said there was "a clear need in terms of national survival" to preserve the president's power to act in emergency situations.

He contended that it would have been impossible for President John F. Kennedy to have carried out the delicate diplomatic negotiations with the Soviets during the Cuban missile crisis of 1963 "if there had been a full-scale Congressional debate prior to his deciding on a course of military and diplomatic action."

He contended that restricting the president's authority to deploy forces abroad without Congressional consent in a situation "short of hostilities," constituted "a serious Constitutional issue of interference with the president's authority under the constitution as commander-in-chief."

It would "deprive the president of a valuable instrument of diplomacy which is used most often to calm a crisis rather than inflame it," he told the senators.

The committee heard three witnesses testify Thursday on whether the administration should be compelled to set a precise date for a total withdrawal from Vietnam.

President Authorizes Expansion Of Cloud Seeding Project In Texas

WASHINGTON—The office of Emergency Preparedness has advised Rep. Bob Price of Pampa that President Nixon has authorized the expansion of an experimental cloud seeding program in an effort to bring relief to drought-stricken areas of Texas.

The Department of the Interior has been conducting an experimental program at San Angelo, Texas, for several years and the President has authorized the emergency outfitting of two air force planes to increase program activity and hopefully draw some rains.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness, the Department of Interior, The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the Department of Defense are all cooperating in the program.

Officials warn that cloud seeding to produce rain is still an experimental project and past activities have produced no extreme amount of precipitation. It has not been finally determined where the two Air Force planes will concentrate their activities.

Price has been notified by President Nixon that he has released $15 million from budgetary reserves for direct loans to rural electric cooperatives during the next month and a half. Price said his efforts to obtain release of these funds have extended over several months, and added that he would be working with the Rural Electrification Administration to see that as many area projects as possible are funded.

Arab Leaders Pledge Support For Egypt's Sadat

CAIRO (UPI)—Government leaders or their deputies from Libya, Syria and the Sudan flew unexpectedly to Cairo today to pledge their solidarity with President Anwar Sadat in Egypt's current cabinet crisis.

Sadat Thursday accepted the resignations of six cabinet ministers and three high policymakers in the biggest governmental shakeup since the death of President Gamal Abdel Nasser last Sept. 28.

The shakeup was foreshadowed by Sadat's dismissal two weeks ago of Vice President Aty Sabry.

Though Sabry was considered the most pro-Soviet figure in the Egyptian hierarchy, the immediate cause for his dismissal was his opposition to the signing April 17 of a loose federation linking Egypt with Syria and Libya and, eventually, the Sudan.

County Will Reopen Discussion On Redistricting Issue June 1

By ALETHA DAVIS

Redistricting, an issue vetoed by Gray County Commissioners in November, 1969, will be reopened for discussion when the court convenes June 1 at 10 a.m., according to an agenda announcement made when commissioners met yesterday.

This is an issue which affects the county as a whole, and County Judge Don Cain stated in the court's meeting yesterday that he would like to hear residents' feelings on the subject. The meeting June 1, as are all regular sessions of the commission, is open to the public.

The consensus of Gray County in relation to considered moves in Austin to redistrict the State was adopted by the court.

The endorsement states that Gray County Commissioners' Court asks that the Congressional reapportionment currently being considered by the Texas Legislature retain the economic and political unity of the Texas Panhandle counties insofar as is possible under the U.S. Supreme Court one-man-one vote ruling.

The notice will be directed to Ben Barnes, Lt. Governor; Gus Mutschler, House Speaker; Delwin Jones, Chairman of the House Committee; J. P. Word, chairman of Senate Committee, Senator Max Sherman, and Representative Phil Cates, at yesterday's meeting. Commissioners also approved the treasurer's report which totaled $81,551.08 in expenditures by the county. This included withdrawals from the Road and Bridge Fund, General and

Heath's Party Suffers Losses In Local Elections

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Edward Heath's governing Conservative Party suffered stinging losses in local government elections today in what was widely interpreted as a protest vote against soaring unemployment and inflation.

In their first major popularity test since winning power in June, the Conservatives were ousted from control of 17 of London's 32 metropolitan boroughs, according to incomplete returns.

They also were swept from power in local governments in Manchester, Hull, Doncaster, Warrington and many other big industrial cities.

The voting was for City Councils in London and 350 other cities and towns in England and Wales. Voting was held in Scotland last week.

With all but 3 of 374 contests decided, the Labor Party scored net gains of 2,029 Council seats and the Conservatives suffered 1,843 net losses.

The Labor Party's gains more than wiped out the 1,500 Council seats it lost in a Conservative landslide in 1968.

The election was fought largely on national issues and political experts generally interpreted the big Labor Party gains as a protest vote against high prices and unemployment that recently topped the 300,000 mark.

Safety Car Derby Will Revolutionize Auto Industry

(First in a Series)
By MURRAY OLDERMAN
NEW YORK (NEA)—In an aircraft plant out on Long Island and at an engineering laboratory in southern California, four cars are being built that will revolutionize the automobile industry in America. Two are due for Christmas delivery, two a month later.

THE FAIRCHILD HILLER version of the Experimental Safety Vehicle (above, in an artist's conception) and the American Machine and Foundry Company's version are both scheduled for testing—and destruction—around the end of the year. Two prototypes of each version are being built, at an average cost of $1,946,875 per car.

The cost is exactly $1,946,875 per car. Each is destined for total destruction. But from this crash (sic) program, sponsored by the Department of Transportation and financed by you, the taxpayer, will come the car of the near future (1975) which will: Let you walk away from a collisions up to 10 miles an hour. Give you no repair bills for collisions up to 10 miles and hour. Let you absorb a side impact with minimal risk at 30 miles an hour. Keep you alive after a rollover at 70 miles an hour. These are not armored tanks. These are practical, stylized automobiles being built by 1) the American Machine and Foundry Company at its Advanced Systems Laboratory in Santa Barbara and 2) the Fairchild Hiller Corporation at its Republic Aviation plant in Farmingdale, Long Island.

Vehicle Safety Act was passed in 1966, creating what is now the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, the government agency has had the power to tell General Motors and Ford and Chrysler what's good for the country when it comes to building a safer automobile.

In April, 1970, the NHTSA entertained bids for the construction of an Experimental Safety Vehicle (ESV). Fairchild Hiller was awarded a contract of $4,547,500 to build two. AMF was granted $3,240,000, also to build two. (A General Motors token bid of $1 also put that company in the program as an automotive industry representative, but it has a later delivery date.)

Why did AMF come in with a bid that was substantially lower by some $1.2 million? "We eat light lunches, I guess," says Alan Roth, director of its Advanced Systems Laboratory, glibly. "My board members asked me the same question. Actually, we structured a program that would meet the requirements of the proposal." (And, actually, Fairchild Hiller, with its huge aviation plant, has a much higher overhead.)

The AMF-Fairchild Hiller competition to produce the Experimental Safety Vehicle is an industrial race in the classic sense. In their over-all corporate pictures, the money isn't important. At Fairchild Hiller, for instance, the safety car program totaled 1.6 per cent of annual corporate revenue. At AMF, it's a half of one per cent.

Midi-Mini Ha-Ha Wave Gives Way To Ho-Hum

NEW YORK (UPI)—The midi-mini ha-ha wave of American fashion is giving way to the ho-hum era for fall and winter. Jerry Silverman's collection designed by Shannon Rodgers and Adele Simpson's new line, shown in New York Thursday, firmed up a trend to no-nonsense, no gிக்க clothes. "Not knowing what to do, buy long or short, or Bulgarian bride, or rich hippie costume, dresses of American women haven't bought much," Silverman said. "They have empty closets and we're going to fill them with ladylike clothes—because that's what surveys indicate they want."

add the jewelry), black and navy suits and costumes, many of the latter with cabin boy or bolero jackets. Accents came via brightly printed blouses, many bow-tied at the neck. Many times in both collections a cape was part of the outfit. And always, the daytime street look included gloves and some kind of head covering—turban, big hat with scarf. With the trend to ladylike dresses comes the call for a return to underpinnings. Most of the dresses followed contours of the anatomy and even waistslines were defined, sometimes loosely so with a sash. For evening in both collections satin, crepe and velvet were favored fabrics in theater suits, dinner dresses and great occasion dresses.

But engineering prsetige is on the line. To the winner, to be determined after the Department of Transportation tests the safety cars and destroys them in the process, will go a contract to build 12 more cars at an estimated $3 million. From these will come the following predicted changes in the American automobile: 1. Hydraulic bumpers which will reduce the crash load of a car. 2. Better door systems to reduce side impacts. 3. Improved, fireproof gas tanks. 4. Better rear vision systems provided by a rooftop periscope. 5. Better emission control (the safety cars already meet the 1973 emission requirements). 6. Improved braking and steering systems. 7. A passive restraint system, such as an air bag which inflates in case of collision. "We will show," says Roth, who's in charge of the AMF cars, "that a vehicle can not only be attractive but can be optimized in terms of safety." In other words, you're guaranteed to walk away from it alive.

Boeing Co. Says It Might Cost $1 Billion To Restart SST Work

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The head of the Boeing Co. said today it might cost up to $1 billion for his firm to restart work on the supersonic transport (SST) program which was given a new lease on life by the House Wednesday.

Boeing's chairman, William Allen, told a news conference: "I know it is a shocking figure but in this business you just don't turn it on and off like a spigot."

But we have to face up to reality," Scott stopped short of flatly predicting the Senate would go along with the House in reviving the SST.

COLUMBUS, Ohio—Student Paul Owen, of Case Western Reserve University, describing some of the evidence allegedly proving that a paint company had been pumping waste into the Cuyahoga River: "We were out (in a rowboat) for four days and at the end that time the boat had a six-inch stripe all the way around it."

The company shut down production on two prototype planes after the House and Senate voted seven weeks ago against providing further funds. But in a surprise development, the House Wednesday approved an administration-backed move which would allow the program to proceed.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said Thursday he thought the House action might swing a handful of former Senate opponents of the project to the administration's side.

BOSTON—Lobsterboat owner Joseph Gaziano, describing alleged harassment of his fishing vessels by Russian boats in waters off New England: "About 20 Russian boats steamed in formation across all 19 of our lines. They took traps, lines—everything that was in their nets—aboard their boats..."

Senators and House members are getting louder by the year. But without some basic reforms in the whole property tax system, they're not likely to do much good.

These taxes have been rising steeply. In some communities, they've gone up as much as 500 per cent over the past 20 years.

BRUSSELS—A jubilant British official following negotiations opening the way for Britain to join the European Economic Community by Jan. 1, 1973: "We are now definitely in."

At his Washington news conference, Allen said that the added costs going to $1 billion would come from renegotiating contracts and putting back together the SST production team.

That means a man who bought a house in 1950 is now having to pay up to five times as much in annual property taxes as he figured on. That kind of thing wrecks family budgets.

SEAN LEMASS DIES
DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI)—Sean Lemass, prime minister of the Republic of Ireland from 1959 to 1967, died at his home early today, his family reported. He was 71.

He also said he did not expect his firm would be able to get as favorable subcontracts as it had earlier and that added to the total would be costs of inflation and money spent for increased wages and overhead.

Survey Shows Favoritism—A careful survey of 14 major U.S. cities by Martin A. Larson and C. Stanley Lowell indicates that about one-third of all the real estate in the United States is now getting a free ride—at the expense of the people who do pay taxes.

For Lemass, the Kennedy visit was "the highlight of my career."

Allen emphasized however that he was not downgrading the SST.

There's little hope of that happening, because about 70 per cent of the tax-exempt property belongs to various echelons of government. Of the remaining 30 per cent, from one-third to one-half belongs to religious institutions. The rest is divided among a wide variety of public service institutions such as hospitals, schools and museums; individuals who fall into categories which local lawmakers have deemed deserving of special tax treatment, such as veterans and the aged; and business firms which are offered tax exemptions as bait to get them to locate plants in a community.

At his Washington news conference, Allen said that the added costs going to $1 billion would come from renegotiating contracts and putting back together the SST production team.

But there are two ways in which property taxes could be made less burdensome on the average family without any reduction in the gross revenue intake of local governments.

Although sweeping abolition of tax-exempt status is not in the cards, alert citizens can demand that local governments become a lot more selective in granting it.

U.S. GNP Rose In First Quarter

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Commerce Department issued reports Thursday showing upward trends in the gross national product and corporate profits and Secretary Maurice Stans declared the economy "is well launched on a major business expansion."

The reports showed that the gross national product—the total output of goods and services—rose more in the first quarter of this year than previously estimated and that business profits rebounded upward from a 1970 fourth quarter decline.

The developments, Stans said in a statement was "solid confirmation of the strong resurgence of the U.S. economy."

Other signs also "point to vigorous economic growth in the second quarter," he declared.

Stans added that a number of factors "clearly point the way to a rapidly expanding economy in the months ahead (and) show clearly that the economy is well launched on a major business expansion."

"One of the most important is retail sales, which have risen substantially for four consecutive months," he said. "Furthermore preliminary data indicates that the uptrend continued through April and into early May."

Speculators Cause Money Crisis

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (U.P.I.)—Everything you always wanted to know about the international monetary crisis (and I was afraid you would never ask):

Q. Is an international monetary crisis good or bad?
A. On balance, good. If international monetary crises didn't occur naturally every few months, they probably would have been invented because they fill a great need.

Q. What need is that?
A. The need to get your mind off of problems you can understand and spend some time worrying about something that is totally incomprehensible.

Q. How is that helpful?
A. It lifts your morale. After a few days of an international monetary crisis you begin to appreciate the Vietnam War the Arab-Israeli impasse and other straightforward disasters.

Q. Does anyone know what caused the latest crisis?
A. Yes. The crisis was caused by French speculators taking American dollars out of Swiss banks and trading them in for German marks.

Q. How about the famous "Gnomes of Zurich"—weren't they partly to blame?
A. No. The "Gnomes of Zurich" have a new manager and are now playing rock concerts in Rio de Janeiro.

Q. Why did West Germany decide to float the mark?
A. Floating the mark was the only way the West Germans could avoid becoming submerged in watered currency.

Learn to Swim
Q. Was this a permanent move?

A. No. Some day the mark will stop floating and learn to swim.
Q. How does one go about floating a mark?

A. Through inflation. The mark is inflated until its displacement value becomes lighter than the surrounding economy, at which point it floats.
Q. Did West Germany act alone in this matter?

A. No. It was joined by a floating guilder in the Netherlands and a floating kidney in England.

Q. Is it true that Britain tried to sink the mark?
A. You must be thinking of a movie called "Sink the Bismarck," the Bismarck no longer is used as a medium of exchange.

Q. Will the floating mark adversely affect anyone in the United States?
A. Not if you drive a Volkswagen.

QUAKE CONFAB

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Office of Emergency Preparedness has announced that seismologists, scientists, engineers and disaster experts have been invited to an international conference on earthquake hazards, to be held May 20 to 25 in San Francisco.

A spokesman said the Soviet Union was invited to send a representative, but will not. Nationalist China will be represented, but Mainland China was not invited.

PLANE CRASHES

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI)—A Guatemalan DC3 airliner with 35 persons aboard crashed into a hill Tuesday while trying to make an emergency landing, killing five persons and injuring 18 others, aviation authorities said today.

Officials said the injured included an American identified as Charles Childress, hometown unknown. Four other Americans were on the flight. Their identities and conditions were not known.

Rep. Bob Price To Present Prize To Area Man

Congressman Bob Price was scheduled to present the Small Business Administration's "Small Businessman of the Year" Award for the State of Texas to Charles Vignal, owner and operator of Canadian Millwork, Inc., in Canadian at ceremonies in the Canadian City Hall at 3 p.m. today.

Vignal entered into partnership in the wood molding and cabinet business in 1960, and with the assistance of the Small Business Administration, has developed it into a very successful corporation. Canadian Millwork, Inc., is employing 42 full time workers, providing salaries in the amount of $163,402 for 1970 and is the largest employer in the city of Canadian (pop. 2,400); this is an increase from five employees and a much smaller payroll.

The fact that Canadian is located on the main line of the Santa Fe Railroad system, plus the available labor supply, once kept Vignal from moving the business to what many thought would be a better location.

Nation Has 10 Black Generals

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Army, which in early World War II was the first service to promote a Negro to general, announced today the appointment of three black colonels to the rank of brigadier general.

Their nomination, approved by President Nixon, raises to 10 the number of blacks who have attained the rank of general or admiral or have been nominated for that rank in all of the

CUNARD SUES

LONDON (UPI)—The Cunard shipping line is suing for $4.8 million the Glasgow shipyard which built the line's Queen Elizabeth II, claiming late delivery, industry sources said today.

In the suit, sources said, Cunard contends a three-month-late delivery of the luxury liner by the Upper Clyde Shipbuilders, lost Cunard revenue, prestige and goodwill.

In Glasgow, a spokesman for the shipyard confirmed the report and said if Cunard pressed its claim it probably would bankrupt the firm.

services, the National Guard and the reserves. Several of the ten have retired.

The three nominated today were Col. Roscoe C. Cartwright, 51, of Kansas City; Col. Oliver W. Dillard, 44, of Margaret, Ala.; and Col. James F. Hamlet, 49, of Alliance, Ohio. Their promotions are subject to usually routine Senate confirmation.

Cartwright is now stationed at the Pentagon in the office of the assistant Army chief of staff for force development. Dillard is a senior province adviser in Vietnam, where he has been stationed since mid-1969. Hamlet is commander of the 11th Aviation Group, 1st Cavalry Division, in Vietnam.

Drouth Spreads From Southwestern U.S. Into Mexico; Starved Cattle Die By Hundreds

By DONALD P. MYERS
United Press International
Clouds the color of oil prowled over Thrall, Tex., on Sept. 9, 1921, and in 18 hours it rained three feet.

That is the most rainfall in recorded U.S. history. And those 28.0 inches are more than the average town in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico gets in a year.

Fifty years later, where once there was a deluge there now is drought, one of the worst this century in the Southwest.

It has turned cattle against deer in a fight for survival over Texas range grass. It has turned lush New Mexico forests of ponderosa pine tinder dry to be destroyed by fire. It has dried Oklahoma streams and clogged homes in town and country with dust.

"We've had dry years before, but I don't recall any drought as prolonged as this," said Ted Waldhouser Sr., for 30 years the owner of a livestock feeding company at Clovis, N.M.

"We'd better get some rain or the consumer is going to be paying a lot more for groceries." The drought, in its eighth month, has cut the 1971 Texas wheat crop by almost 50 per cent, the U.S. Agriculture Department said, with an estimated $40 million loss to state farmers and for that crop alone.

It is the same economic story for cattlemen in New Mexico, potato growers in Colorado, cotton and wheat men in Oklahoma and vegetable and fruit farmers in the Rio Grande Valley of South Texas.

Mountain ski resorts in New Mexico and Colorado closed early this year because there was not enough snow.

"We needed a barrelful of rain and all we've got is a bucketful," said Don Bynum of the Texas Agriculture Extension Service in Denton, Tex.

Lake Houston, the main supply for the nation's sixth largest city, this week had 84 days of water left for use at the usual rate. Rationing has been proposed.

The drought has spread from the southwestern United States into Mexico. Thirsty and starved cattle have dropped dead by the hundreds. Other cattle in both countries have been sold thin.

"Normally we'd be selling in August or September but we're selling now," said Edinburg, Tex., rancher Dewey Smith.

Some of these calves are weighing 225 to 300 pounds and normally ranchers hold them until they weigh 450 to 500 pounds and that's on account of the drought.

Prices Will Tell

All this means housewives may be paying more this summer and fall and next spring for beef, bread, oranges, apples and other grocery items.

"If we don't get a real, real good rain, I look for a shortage of fed cattle out of feedlots next fall and spring," said Waldhouser. "That can't help but affect the consumer. It's the law of supply and demand and that's the way the cards are laying right now."

The governors of New Mexico, Texas and Oklahoma, all Democrats, joined to criticize President Nixon and his Republican administration for showing "calloused disregard of the plight of farmers and ranchers" hit by the drought.

"Although Nixon and his friends are playing political football with the drought, the people of Texas will not be fooled," said Texas Gov. Preston Smith. "We prefer our football to involve 22 men and a pigskin on a patch of AstroTurf."

Wants Declaration

"The federal government, for whatever reason — political or otherwise — is not doing enough. We are not satisfied and will not be satisfied until the President issues a disaster declaration," the Texas governor said.

Across many pastures this spring there can be heard the subdued roar of butane torches, like a jet engine idling. The torches are used to burn the spines off prickly pear, a pea green cactus the shape of a dog's ear.

Ranchers burn the sharp needles off the cactus, which is 90 per cent water, and feed it in clumps to their cattle because feed and rangeland is scarce.

Credit to Pear

"Those pears have saved more cows in Texas than anything else," said Dewey Smith, the Edinburg, Tex., rancher. "They've been burning off the stickers for several months but it's getting so dry now that even the prickly pear dries up."

Rodney Hughes, an Olustee, Okla., farmer and rancher, said he planted 4,000 acres in wheat last winter and will harvest only 50 acres—a loss of 99 per cent because of the drought. He said his rangeland supported 3,200 head of cattle last year but was able to handle only 500 head this year.

"In my instance, we're talking about a guaranteed loss of about $80,800," Hughes said. "We need at least 10 inches of rain, and that has to be a slow, soaking rain to do any good now."

Weather across most of Texas has been violent this spring and has done as much harm as good. Tornadoes ripped through Hereford and Waxahachie. Half the size of grapefruit bombed Brownsville. Another hailstorm caused $6 million damage in one day in San Antonio.

Pray for Rain

The folks in McCook, Tex., held a church service to pray for rain in the Polish farming settlement.

"We sure could use a lot of water," said Mrs. Ben Kotzur, wife of a McCook farmer and rancher. "The rain just passed us all up."

John White, Texas commissioner of agriculture, said, "the drought is getting progressively worse across the state, even with the rain we have had. The folks that have gotten rain are grateful but it's too spotty and in some cases too late."

"The drought has extended itself deep into the North Texas and south-central Texas planting season," White said. "The harvest of this season's barley and wheat crops is virtually lost. The crop situation in the drought centered counties is critical."

Helped Southern Colorado

Clinton Jeffers, Colorado agriculture commissioner, said rain the past week improved crop conditions in southern Colorado, but there were parts of the state in critical need of rain.

Jeffers said recent rains in northern Colorado have turned the soil to mud and thus delayed planting of sugar beets and corn.

Fires have destroyed 27,000 acres of dry forestland in New Mexico and Arizona this month. The drought also has affected

Pollution In Air, Water, Even Food Cause Complexion Problems For Metropolitans

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—Ecology has come to the skin game.

It turns out that our skins too can be victims of pollution in the air and water, even from some of the foods we eat.

We have this from Christine Valmy, a handsome brunette of 47, who for 22 years has been studying and treating skins, first in her native Bucharest and since 1961 in the United States.

"You'll hear a woman remark, 'But my grandmother had such wonderful skin,'" said Miss Valmy. "In grandma's day, there were more of the natural foods for us... like sun-ripened tomatoes for instance. The water she drank or used on her face was purer... the air was cleaner."

"Why today I can walk from my apartment to my office (about eight blocks) and my face is already gritty when I arrive."

Miss Valmy, whose list of credentials is a long one, considers the skin as much a part of the body's healthy functioning as internal organs. Like them, it needs oxygen to feed the cells. She refers to the skin as our "DMZ," the body cover to protect us, tell us when it's too hot or too cold, throw off toxins.

Some of our skin problems come from hard-to-control environment, others from things a woman easily could prevent.

Such as over-tanning. "I call some skins the Florida ones," she said. "Leathery... lines... all moisture gone." She contends that once the natural water content of skin cells is gone, it's not replaceable.

What of the millions who spend on creams and other potions to keep their skins young? Here's where Miss Valmy is at odds with many in the cosmetics industry. She argues that slathering the skin constantly with creams makes the glands lazy; They should have to work to secrete natural oils.

"I suggest that a dab of cream about the size of a pea is enough for face and neck," she said.

Christine Valmy is not a soap and water advocate but "I discovered early that my clients like to use them. So I tell them how."

Choose the mildest soap you can find—the less foam, the less the detergent drying content." Cleanse the skin thoroughly with cream and remove. Then apply soap just as you would a cream. Don't scrub. Then rinse, rinse, rinse, she said, to remove the last of the alkaline-based soap.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Tell me honestly how a guy can concentrate in a classroom when right across from him sits a pretty girl in a see-through blouse.

When I should be concentrating in my studies, I find my mind slipping off on an entirely different subject. Don't get me wrong, Abby. I have nothing against girls looking sexy, but there's a time and place for everything, and I'm in college to prepare for my future.

DISTRACTED
DEAR DISTRACTED: Maybe she's in college to prepare for her future. Sublimate and concentrate!

DEAR ABBY: My husband is due home from Vietnam in two months. Already he has planned for us to go on a second honeymoon the day after he gets home!

We have a child just seven months old. My husband has never seen the baby, except in pictures, so I can't understand why he wants to leave so soon without getting acquainted with his son.

I think we should leave on a later date, or else take the baby with us, but my husband already has informed me that he wants me to get a baby-sitter (either my mother or his) because he wants to go away with me alone. I know he loves me, Abby, but doesn't he love his son, too? What is your advice!

Sorority Presents 6 Talent Awards For MD Show

Kappa Alpha Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International awarded first, second and third place honors to Pampa students participating in the Muscular Dystrophy talent show recently.

First place winner was Pat Jernigan as singer and guitarist, with Billy Ray Woodward, pianist and singer, winning second and Sharon Bruce, singer, third in the senior division.

Junior division winners were Nancy Lloyd, first for her acrobatic ballet, Rhonda Dennis, second for baton twirling and Dana Kent, third for an acrobatic dance.

Rick Powers was master of ceremonies with Mrs. Calvin Lacy as show director. Stage and lighting arrangements were made by Pampa High School drama department.

DEAR WIFE: Of course he loves his son, but that's not the kind of love he has missed for so long. Line up a baby sitter and be ready to go on that second honeymoon when your husband wants to go. Give him a first class welcome home, with no arguments.

DEAR ABBY: May I use your column to help all those kids who have dropped out of high school and wish they hadn't?

If you are a dropout and now regret it, you don't have to settle for the lowest paying job all your life, and be referred to as "uneducated." And you don't have to go back to high school for two or three years to get your diploma, either.

Every state in this country offers a high school diploma by examination. The exam is called "General Education Development" test. It is offered to everyone, and is even accepted for college entrance!

Abby, this may not be news to you, but it was news to me, and I'm sure there are thousands, maybe millions of people who have never heard of it. I learned of it through a friend after kicking myself for five years for having dropped out of high school. Exactly two months after I heard about G.E.D., I had my high school diploma in my hand. Then I passed my college entrance exams and went on to college.

I shall be eternally grateful to the person who told me about G.E.D., and I'm sure your readers will be grateful to you if you pass on this information to them.

MARCIA

DEAR MARCIA: Count me among those who had never heard of G.E.D. I checked it out and what you say is absolutely correct. Thank you for writing. Anyone interested in getting a high school diploma may call my high school in his community and obtain the necessary information. Or write to: General Education Development Testing Service of the American Council on Education, 1 Dupont Circle, Washington, D.C. 20036.

Woman Organizes Economic Council

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI)—Alice Tepper two years ago gave up a job that paid $12,000 a year for one that paid nothing and now pays $100 a week. Miss Tepper is executive director of the Council on Economic Priorities (CEP), an organization she founded as a result of designing an investment portfolio for a synagogue in Boston.

At the time Miss Tepper, a Wellesley graduate, was a securities analyst for a Boston firm. The synagogue wanted a portfolio containing securities of companies not producing war-related goods.

"The client was so pleased that ads were placed telling about the availability of such a portfolio," Miss Tepper said.

Little or No Salary
The 600 responses which followed led Miss Tepper to begin her new organization, with headquarters in Washington, D.C. The staff of 12 includes economists, security analysts and other professionals—half receiving nosalary and the other half receiving modest pay.

They report on corporations in four issue areas: Minority hiring practices, pollution control efforts, military products, and the social and political implications of corporation investments overseas.

The reports already have rocked some boats, says the native of Rumson, N.J. She said a couple of weeks after the publication of "Paper Profits: Pollution in the Pulp and Paper Industry" a major paper company hiked its pollution control budget to $70 million from $35 million.

"We hope to create a whole new profession of social research to do social responsibility audits on corporations," Miss Tepper said. The CEP has a branch office in New York City and soon will open another in San Francisco.

Female Ralph Nader
She has been called "the female Ralph Nader" but says her organization operates a little differently. For example, Miss Tepper has a listed telephone number. Nader does not, she said.

The broad interest generated by CEP is evident from the variety among subscribers to the reports.

"Mobil Oil Company, Chase Manhattan Bank, the U.S. Civil Service Commission, the Library of Congress and many federal agencies get our reports," Miss Tepper said.

She credits the success to the fact that people want to know who pollutes the air, who makes rocket fuses and who doesn't give minorities equal recognition.

INSTANT FACELIFT is temporary, but it gives Toni Tucci, a grandmother who admits to being more than 50, the youthful appearance necessary for her work as a photographer's model. Using special adhesive tape attached to elastic bands, loose skin is pulled up smoothly. A wig then covers bands.

CALORIES AND FOOD ENERGY

A calorie is a unit of heat, or energy. The amount of energy value in any food is expressed in calories. Energy from food is necessary for everyone in order to stay alive.

We use energy when we breathe, when the heart pumps blood - when we move or walk. The more vigorous the exercise, the more energy from food is used. If you eat more food than you need in relation to the exercise you get, you will store the excess calories in your body as fat.

Thus the meaning of a calorie is really quite simple. But as we've said in other columns, calories must be accompanied by other key nutrients that your body needs if your meals are to be complete.

Calorie Availability
Calories are available from protein, carbohydrates, or fat. But we really only want to use carbohydrates or fat for energy. Protein is too precious, too needed for basic body building and repair. And we need minerals and vitamins as well.

So the expression has sprung up "Choose your calories by the company they keep." I think this is wonderfully simple and direct as a means of teaching good nutrition.

Just as our lives are influenced by the people we associate with, so is our health affected by the foods we choose to eat.

The calories in milk, for example, keep company with protein, calcium, riboflavin and many other nutrients. The calories in meat and eggs keep company mainly with protein, iron and thiamin.

Food Guides
Practical food guides based on the four food groups follow this principle. They emphasize that the kinds of foods that can be depended upon to supply the largest amounts of nutrients in addition to calories. Then more food to satisfy energy needs can come from any source.

Added fats and sweets, common in the American diet, are the usual source of satisfying energy needs beyond the essential nutrients. But nutritionists remind us that individuals vary. For instance, since women generally eat less food than men, women may need to choose additional foods from the four food groups to ensure ample protein, calcium, iron and B-vitamins in their diet. This also applies to elderly people and others who should limit food intake to control weight.

Clever Cover-Up Comes In Crochet

By JUDY LOVE

Summer fun and games are right around the corner, and right now is the time to start the action. Crochet is the name of this game for warmer weather fun. The prize is one of the most unusual pseudo-sweater toppers I've seen.

Call it a mini-cloak, a clever kind of sleeveless jacket or simply one of the smartest figure-flatterers you ever put on to add a touch of warmth.

You crochet this fashion-right sporter on Size G hook, using two 4-oz. packages of Bear Brand or Fleischer's yarn. One size fits everyone; the finished measurements before shaping are 16 inches across the front or back. The wide self-belt, crocheted with its own buttonhole, is fastened 14 inches from the bottom. You can adjust the fit by snugging the belt or button placement, of course.

The front panel of this clever half-cloak features a lovely open pattern that's easy to work from the good, clear instructions I have for you. There's a textured front paneling pattern, open work, then a repeat of the panel pattern. The V-neckline and sleeveless sides all are finished in an easy se edging.

Wear this versatile crocheted cover-up with casual clothes, slip it over shorts, pants, shirts and skirts, or even add a cozy touch to a dress by topping it with this novel and becoming conversation-maker.

Instructions to crochet this one-size semi-sweater are available from your local newspaper. Be the first in your set to sport one. Simply send

KNIT KNACKS

DEAR JUDY—One time you mentioned something about knitted garments or items you crochet having a custom-made look. I follow your directions carefully, but somehow they often lack what I call a really finished look. Can you help?

Thanks Mrs. C.E.E.,
Fontana, Kan.

DEAR MRS. C.: Let's review just what you mean by following directions. Are you positive, for instance, that your stitch gauge is absolutely correct? This is basic to every knit or crochet pattern, and I can't emphasize it enough.

If you are, you're more than halfway home. The final step for a truly custom look is the steaming or blocking of finished garments. Here's what I recommend: with wrong side out, lay your garments on pressing board, pin to measurements given.

Then steam lightly with a moderately hot iron over a damp cloth. Never let the iron rest on any one spot. Turn, pin the other side down, and steam that side. Then let it stay there until completely dry. Finally, steam all seams and edges.

Your garment will look like a million dollars!

THE HOSPITABLE FAR EAST

NEW YORK (ED) — At 600 miles an hour, the Far East is closer than most people think. Jet travel has made the journey easier and faster, and ever year more and more people are seeking answers to the mysteries of the Orient.

Throughout the Orient, but especially in cities like Tokyo, visitors find a skillful blending of the new with the traditional. Modern buildings face ancient pagodas and traditional Japanese art graces many contemporary facades. The function of Japanese art is, and has always been, to enhance life through aesthetic enjoyment.

The challenge of artistic enhancement is carried over into interior decorating as can be seen in such buildings as the Hotel Okura in Tokyo. In addition to the special Japanese hospitality and charm, the Okura Tokyo is a literal museum of Japanese art, both ancient and modern. The Hotel Okura Amsterdam (to be completed in August, 1971) will also be decorated with several murals and paintings, bringing the art of the Orient to Europe. This 23-story building will be located in the heart of Amsterdam and promises to cement a major link between Asia and Europe when it is completed.

As indigenous as its art, Japan is also noted for its cuisine, and at the Hotel Okura, visitors may sample everything from tempura and sushi (served at special food "bars") to gourmet Chinese foods in the Tokka-Lin Room. For those who want to enjoy the cuisines of other nations, the Hotel Okura also has the French Orchid

Elegant and charming, the Hotel Okura, Tokyo (top left) has been noted for its hospitality. The delights of the Orient have been artfully mixed to blend with the Occidental world. A 17th century screen (top right) is only one of the many examples of Japanese art in the Hotel Okura Museum. This particular scene illustrates a Japanese literary classic, "Tale of the Genji."

The charm of the Far East will become a part of Europe when the Hotel Okura Amsterdam opens in August, 1971. The 23-story structure will be decorated with authentic Japanese murals and wall paintings and will have both indoor and outdoor Japanese gardens. The hospitality of the East will gracefully add to the charm of the Netherlands.

Room, an American dining and Chinese dining areas, a room, and a Continental Room. The age of internationalism where visitors may try delicacies from around the world. The becoming a number one vacation spot for tourists and business travelers. Where there is a variety of restaurants, else can the East meet the West including authentic Japanese so gracefully?

Affluence Raises Budget For Tasteful Wall Decor

CHICAGO (NFS) —The desire for more tasteful, luxurious surroundings is inspiring Americans to spend a record amount of money in decorating their homes, according to interior design consultant Mary Ann Willis.

In explaining recent changes in family spending patterns, Miss Willis noted that in 1964, she suggested budgeting about $22 to be spent over a 10-year period on wall decor for the average home.

Today, with a greater variety of wall accessories available to match growing family affluence, she predicts that some families may spend closer to $1,000 and possibly more.

"While it's still possible to do a good wall decorating job with a limited budget, the fact is that more families want to do more with their walls, and are willing to spend more for accessories that weren't available until now," Miss Willis said.

This trend is clearly reflected in the more elaborate designs introduced each year by such companies as Arabesque of Traverse City, Mich., whom she serves as decorating consultant.

Generally speaking, today's homemaker is buying fewer items for some rooms than she would have five years ago, according to Miss Willis. But the pieces she chooses are likely to be larger in size. So they naturally cost more.

"In 1964, for instance, the homemaker in search of a good plate glass mirror with an attractive frame for her entrance usually planned on paying around $35," the consultant recalled.

"In 1971, the average expenditure for a hall mirror is closer to $60, and some go to $100 or more for heavily ornamented period styles."

The woman who admired a pair of $15 or $20 candle sconces a few years back may now prefer a massive multi-arm sconce — and think little of spending from $40 to over $100 to get the effect she wants for a dining room wall, according to Miss Willis.

And then there are additional rooms to be considered in arriving at a total budget. The 1964 estimate included wall decor for the typical reception foyer, living room, dining room, bedroom area hallway, three bedrooms, and a family room.

The budget also takes into account the kitchen, bathrooms, and powder room, which have emerged as real showplaces in many homes and apartments.

Soap Drippings Serve Two Purposes
By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY— I surely enjoy your helpful and informative column. I am answering Dorothy who worries about her messy soap dish. I keep a sponge under each bar of soap at a sink. The sponge catches drippings from the soap as well as holding a free supply of soap for washing the bowl or sink, to say nothing of handwashing hose, etc. Do try this method as I have used it for years.

DEAR POLLY—To save having so many glasses to wash and still not get them mixed up, we put a bit of masking tape, in different colors, on the glasses the children use during one day. The tape comes off easily before they are washed.

U.N. Gets Pushier

Some people are growing alarmed at what looks like increased reaching for power by the United Nations. They may be justified.

In a case submitted to the World Court, Secretary-General U Thant of United Nations argues that the United Nations has the power of a super parliament.

The case pertains to South Africa's administration of Namibia (the UN's name for Southwest Africa). Should the World Court uphold U Thant's argument, this could be serious for all residents of all states, large and small.

Under this concept, appropriate majority decisions by the General Assembly could prescribe or dictate a socialistic policy for the United States, or as Ruthven E. Libby of Copley News Service suggests, a capitalistic one for the USSR.

The economically underdeveloped countries, which are far in the majority in the General Assembly, could impose international obligations on the developed countries to pay an annual contribution to development aid. They could exact an obligation from the developed countries to pay maximum prices for raw products from the underdeveloped countries while prescribing minimum prices for manufactured goods from developed countries.

Majority decisions of the General Assembly could prohibit state religions, whether Christian, Hindu or Moslem, or any other. If the General Assembly desired it, it could provide that the Pope, as head of the Vatican state, may be a non-Catholic.

The United States could have its policy on ethnic groups dictated for it.

The General Assembly, in short, could act as a kind of court of law. By the simple process of a majority vote, the Assembly could make findings of fact, and of law binding in such a way as not to be questioned by the World Court or anyone else.

U Thant's arguments are based on a "doctrine of implied powers." These implied powers include:

1. Transfer of supervisory powers from the League of Nations to the General Assembly.

2. The power of the General Assembly to adopt resolutions outside of procedural and budget matters which bind nonconsenting states.

3. A power of the General Assembly to make binding of terminations on questions of fact or law or both.

4. A power on the part of the Security Council to adopt resolutions (outside of procedural and budgetary matters), which bind nonconsenting states, despite the fact that the matter does not fall under Chapter VII of the UN Charter which deals with threat to the peace.

5. A power in the General Assembly and the Security Council to do in combination what is beyond the powers of each acting separately.

U Thant cites no specific provisions in the UN Charter to sustain his case. He simply states his position as though it were a dogma of the world of 1971.

While the case in point deals with the Republic of South Africa the idea is evidently to make the rules for all. What is ruled as law in one case, is taken to be law in all cases.

It has long been suspected that the apparatus of the United Nations could be used to impose a world totalitarian regime on its members. The South Africa case demonstrates how this can be done.

Tenure Is Trembling

Entrenched educationists no doubt hope that they ignore it, it will go away. But, by any informed analysis, that is wishful thinking. The reference is to the growing disenchantment with tax supported, government controlled schools, colleges and universities. And, like the broadbased opposition to the military draft and the war in Vietnam, the growing opposition to the horrible expense, incompetence, and arrogance of the so-called public school system crosses party lines and ideological boundaries. What was once regarded as an un-touchable "sacred cow" is no longer either un-touchable or sacred.

Latest indication of the spreading resentment is the state of criticism being directed at the entrenched institution of tenure for teachers and professors. "Are incompetents being protected?" it is being asked; not only by plundered tax payers, but even by some teachers and professors themselves.

"It's a touchy subject," noted an article in a recent issue of the Wall Street Journal, but the word "is that some departments of City University of New York have more teachers than students." Entitled, "Tenure for Teachers Is Beginning to Crumble," the article conceded that officials, thus far, have not released any statistics, but quoted the schools deputy chancellor, Seymour C. Hyman, as admitting that, "we're stuck with large faculties in some departments with practically no students."

The imbalance resulted, the article explained, from a university decision years ago to drop most required courses for freshmen and sophomores, a decision which all but eliminated enrollments in some modern-language classes and a few other big departments. The next step, obviously, was to reduce the number of professors and thus cut overhead but, then and there, the Journal article noted, the university ran into a roadblock: "The university's hands are tied because of tenure, the centuries-old practice of granting lifetime employment to college professors."

Nor is City University the only school afflicted with the built-in cost-increasing tenure problem. A like situation prevails in other universities across the country, the article said, and "for these and other reasons, tenure, long one of academia's most cherished traditions, is suddenly under attack from many quarters."

With salaries accounting for from 60 to 80 per cent of the cost of running a university, Leo Kornfeld, a New York educational and management consultant, was quoted in the Journal article as saying, "Unlike business... a university can't realize cost savings just by lopping off a department, no matter how outmoded or unneeded it becomes."

In addition, attesting to the fact that opposition to tenure is coming from both outside and inside the entrenched bureaucracy, Vernon R. Alden, who was president of Ohio University for seven years, was quoted as asserting that "tenure is antiquated" in a speech he made opposing the system; while other critics are assailing the practice, the Journal said, as a "relief of the past, an unnecessary obstacle to overdue academic reforms, and a system that is unfair to all concerned — taxpayers, professors, and students alike. They see tenure inflating college costs and lowering quality by causing undue turnover in the beginning, untenured faculty ranks while providing lifelong job security for incompetents in the top echelons."

"I'm quite sure we haven't seen the last of this; there's growing dissatisfaction with the whole idea of tenure," William L. Storey, assistant director of California's Coordinating Council for Higher Education, was quoted as saying. The University of Utah faculty senate last year, "labeled tenure a 'continuing source of aggravation in the relationships between the university and the citizens of Utah,' and named a committee to take fresh and

Question Box

QUESTION: Where does the U.S. Supreme Court stand on the question of unbacked, unredeemable paper currency as legal tender for all public debts, such as U.S. bonds (which is also currency)?

ANSWER: The question is a matter of history and a matter of law. For the Supreme Court has stood at various places at various times, and portions of the old opinions recording the attitude of the court are cited as bases for directly opposite opinions in later years.

The story of the modern stand of the court begins shortly after the turn of the century. It seems that a Chinese merchant by the name of Ling Su Fan was living in the Philippines. He found that the Filipino silver peso was worth 9 per cent more than its face value on the Hong Kong money market. He started shipping out silver coins, and was arrested. The case went to the Supreme Court of the U.S. which had jurisdiction at that time.

The court stated that, if local coinage was demanded by the general interest of the islands, legislation to keep such coinage in the islands was not a violation of a private right.

In 1935, the Supreme Court cited the Ling Su Fan case as grounds for decisions relating to a different metal (gold) in a different situation under a historically different law. These have become known as the Gold Clause Cases.

In describing the earlier case, the Supreme Court of 1935 rephrased the ruling to make it appear to cover gold as well as silver. And it said of coinage in general, "their quality as legal tender is attributed by the law, aside from their bullion value."

Referring to litigants who were fighting over contracts payable in gold coin, contracts made prior to Congressional resolutions that outlawed gold coin, the 1935 court opined "contracts may create rights of property, but when contracts deal with a subject matter which lies within the control of the Congress, they have a congenital infirmity. Parties cannot remove their transactions from the reach of dominant constitutional power by making contracts about them."

In a nutshell, this means that a contract that was valid when made may become invalid if Congress changes its mind.

The gist of the matter seems to be that, by means of the U.S. Constitution, the politicians induced people to believe that Congress has the power to coin money, and regulate the value thereof. In regulating the value of such coin, Congress effectively declared the worth to be zero; that is, equivalent to a piece of paper that had been printed on. In 1935, the court then held, "The harshness of such legislation, or the hardship it may cause, afforded no reason for considering it to be unconstitutional."

Since the U.S. Supreme Court today is even more extreme than its 1935 counterpart, we do not anticipate it will alter the 36-year-old opinion that debts are payable with paper dollars.

Quick Quiz

Q—How many Japanese war planes took part in the attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941?

A—The bombing involved 353 Japanese war planes.

Q—When did the first trip through the Northwest Passage take place?

A—The first navigation by a single ship was completed by Norwegian explorer Roald Amundsen's Gjoa in 1906.

Q—What is an estimated number of millionaires in the United States?

A—Financial analysts believe there are 200,000 to 300,000 millionaires in this country.

Q—What is an objective look at the entire relationship of tenure, the Journal said.

And, concluded Mr. Kornfeld, "For anyone who has guts enough to try to do something about tenure, the time is now. The labor-market for academics has really dried up, and it's going to remain a buyer's market for a while because college enrollments are either going to remain stable or fall off during the next few years."

THE WORRY CLINIC

Some College Presidents Too Chicken On Sex Rules

Listen to Harry's gripe. Then decide if the taxpayers should be forced to act as accessories to such sexual affairs. Our college sociology departments are often at fault for the campus rioting but some of the presidents are also too "chicken" to employ "horse sense" enforcement measures.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE, CASE Q 553: Harry S. aged 42, operates a chain motel.

"Dr. Crane," he protested, "I have a real gripe against the colleges."

"For they now let coeds entertain boys in their bedrooms and vice versa. Yet we managers of motels and hotels diligently try to obey the laws which prevent such things in our establishments. So why should state universities and other colleges be permitted to cooperate with the pornography boys and smut peddlers in this manner?"

"For what parent would send their daughter's bedroom to his daughter's bedroom so she could entertain him there?"

You readers will probably say the colleges are thus engaging in unfair competition with tax-paying hotels and motels.

For the colleges pay no taxes. Yet they are promoting promiscuity on a widespread scale.

Hotels and motels at least try to restrict bedroom "affairs" to married couples.

They don't always succeed there, but they at least make an attempt.

Meanwhile, the colleges are accessories to illicit sexual affairs.

And I'm not joking. Their percentage of coeds who admit sexual experience by the time they have finished college has now jumped to 50 percent.

And that 50 percent refers to those who "admit" it.

Many reticent coeds still hesitate to confess to such illicit sexual episodes, even on so-called anonymous questionnaires.

Girls, beware, for some of these questionnaires may have secret code numbers thereon so the originators of the questionnaires can pinpoint which girls would then be "easy marks" on dates!

"But, Dr. Crane," many sophisticates will exclaim, "if the girls don't permit extra sexual privileges in their own bedrooms, they'll do it in an automobile, won't they?"

Possibly true. But the taxpayers who support the state universities, plus the generous "free enterprise" donors who finance the private colleges, certainly have a right to protest.

For they furnish such money to help train youth in ways to avoid the mistakes of mankind in more-primitive society.

And illicit affairs do NOT predispose to happier marriage or greater freedom from venereal infection and unwed pregnancy!

So the taxpayers are justified in a widespread demand for a complete housecleaning at the college and university level!

This should include not only the surveillance of dormitories but even the content of the curriculum.

H. L. Hunt Writes

NORTH KOREAN ACTIVITY

Two incidents involving North Korean communists that appeared rather minor were reported recently. They certainly didn't disturb the power balance of the world but they showed that communism — North Korean brand — is still active against the security of other nations. Mexico authorities discovered that terrorists who were active there had been trained in North Korea. In Ceylon, the North Korean ambassador was expelled for supporting rebel groups.

These North Korean Reds who were caught are probably just a fraction of the subversive agents sent abroad to promote evolution.

But North Korea is only one base for training of agents. Thousands of others are educated in murder and sabotage and anarchy in Russia, Red China, East European countries, Cuba and North Vietnam.

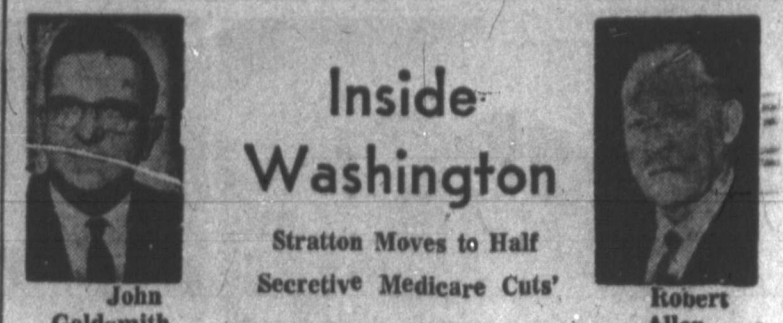

One of these bases would have been eliminated had the genius of Gen. Douglas MacArthur been allowed to prevail. A man who hated communism and believed in victory for his country, MacArthur had soundly thrashed the armies of communist North Korea and would have pursued them to their doom had he been allowed to cross the Yalu River, but his superiors denied him his victory and settled for a compromise. The menace of North Korea remains.

We have paid, and will continue to pay heavily for the Washington decision that ended MacArthur's brilliant career.

Stratton Moves to Half Secretive Medicare Cuts

WASHINGTON — Provisions designed to prevent the covert slashing of Medicare refunds to millions of needy beneficiaries will be included in the Social Security legislation being drafted by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The key committee is doing this at the behest of Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y., who has been vigorously crusading for this reform.

As disclosed in this column the twice-decorated World War II Navy veteran and former mayor of Schenectady, N.Y., discovered some months ago that the Social Security Administration was paying only about 50 per cent of the cost of doctors' bills instead of the 80 per cent required by the Medicare law.

The Social Security Administration instituted this practice without announcement last fall. Stratton uncovered it and demanded an explanation from HEW Secretary Elliot Richardson. After a long delay, Stratton finally got an answer from Richardson that enclosed handwritten notes of the Social Security Administrator Robert Ball admitting the secret policy of cutting Medicare refunds.

Ball justified it on the ground of soaring Medicare expenditures. Stratton, caustically denouncing both the steep reduction and the secrecy surround it, declared this was "economizing at the expense of elder citizens least able to bear the brunt of it."

To force the Social Security Administration to halt the practice and prevent its repetition, the veteran legislator drafted a four-point bill which he submitted to Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee. The latter assured Stratton his measure would be considered in the framing of the Social Security revisions being formulated.

Stratton's bill would do the following:

(1) Rescind the secret administrative action taken last year and restore the 86 percent figure for determining "reasonable" doctors' costs. (2) Require that "reasonable" charges should not be computed on figures more than six months old. (3) Make it mandatory that the basis of determining "reasonable" charges be publicly announced so that patients and doctors will know where they stand. (4) Give Congress veto power over any changes in the schedule of "reasonable" charges, upward or downward, which the Social Security Administration may propose in the future.

WHY NEEDED — In a detailed memorandum explaining these provisions, Rep. Stratton told Chairman Mills they are urgently needed for the following reasons:

"Millions of Social Security beneficiaries are being denied the Medicare refunds they expected and have every right to expect. They feel, and quite rightly so, that they are being cheated. The plain fact is that by secretly reducing Medicare refunds, those least able to bear the brunt of that are being asked to absorb the full burden of inflation."

Stratton stressed the underhandedness of the Social Security Administration's conduct in the matter.

"These unwarranted, and in my opinion, wholly unauthorized cuts," he said, "came about without any prior notice to the patients or the doctors, and in a manner which had all the earmarks of deliberate secrecy and concealment. The changes were accomplished through a remarkable example of administrative legerdemain."

"The key to Medicare payments is the 'reasonable' charge for such services in any locality. Until the middle of 1971, these charges were based pretty much on fees charged by a wide majority, 83 per cent, to be exact of the medical profession. But sometime in the middle of 1970, the Social Security Administration, without prior notice to anyone, suddenly determined that 'reasonable' charges should be those being charged in 1966 rather than in 1970, thus making the first drastic rollback in what would henceforth be paid on Medicare doctors' bills."

This secret axing of refunds was followed by another covert change that still further reduced payments to beneficiaries.

"Sometime in the fall of 1970," Stratton told Mills, "the Social Security Administration went another step further and substituted the 75th percentile for the 83 percentile, which had been followed prior to that time in determining 'reasonable' charges. Their excuse is that the pending 1970 Social Security amendments, which were supported by both houses of Congress even though the bill was not finally enacted into law contained a 75 per cent provision."

"The consequence was still another sizable cut in what the government would pay as compared with what the Medicare patients could reasonably expect them to pay, and, once again, the change was made without any public announcement or any private notice, either to Medicare enrollees or to doctors."

The results of all this, Stratton pointed out, "has been chaos and confusion." He and other members of Congress have received hundreds of complaints and protests from all parts of the country.

The Manion Forum

By MARILYN MANION

GENOCIDE IS NOT THE ANSWER

Middle America has been the favorite target of the pundits for a tiresome length of time, but the New York Times has hit the target at a new low. In a recent editorial, the Times took vehement objection to President Nixon's statement on abortion. The President said he could not square abortion on demand with "my personal belief in the sanctity of human life of the yet unborn."

Nixon, quoth the Times, "has reason to be aware that the nationwide conservative revolt against the cost of welfare is centered on the tens of thousands of children born out of wedlock in welfare homes. To deny mothers in these homes the same freedom of choice as wealthier women on whether to have children or not have them is an act of inhumanity and social irresponsibility."

(The implication is, of course, that wealthy women can afford illegal abortions, while the poor can only murder their offspring if the procedure is free of charge and easily available.)

It is true indeed that there is a "nationwide conservative revolt against the cost of welfare." But conservatives do not believe in eliminating the welfare problem by the wholesale slaughter of potential recipients. As for "freedom of choice," not every rich mother-to-be runs over to the nearest abortionist. And the poor have the same "choice as the wealthy — about nine months prior to the arrival of the unwanted child. Speaking of "social irresponsibility," it seems to us that the height of it is reached in a welfare system that has nurtured a whole subculture of people who apparently believe that they can conceive and conceive and conceive and that somebody else will bear the responsibility for their actions, by either killing or supporting the offspring.

"Once upon a time," writes Governor Ronald Reagan, "if there was no welfare program, there would be a mother and children and a lot of interested people tracking down this guy for abandoning his family. But now, automatically, the next morning when she knows he's gone, the mother can come in and get on this welfare program, and many times get as much as he was earning, so no effort is made to find him. This is what's happening to break up families. The father says, 'I can leave and someone else can take care of the family.'"

The tired American taxpayer does not believe abortion is the answer to the welfare mess. The only answer is best summed up by the word "responsibility" — in the decision to conceive a child in the first place, and in caring for him after birth. The taxpayers can't take over the responsibility of the first, and they are tired of being overburdened with the second.

Methodists Have New Conference Format This Year

For the first time in the history of Texas Methodism delegates to the church's highest body, the General Conference, will be elected from merged Annual Conferences that were previously all black or all white.

Last June the eight United Methodist Annual Conferences in the state, two all black and six all white, merged into six new Annual Conferences.

These six church bodies will begin their annual meetings next week with the major agenda item of electing delegates to the General Conference meeting at Atlanta in 1972. The sessions continue through the second week in June.

The 183rd General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of the U.S.A. begins Monday, May 17 in Rochester, N. Y. and will continue through May 26.

The Elder-Deacon Calling, scheduled for Wednesday night May 19, will not begin with supper at Furr's cafeteria, as in the past. Instead, the Elders and Deacons will meet in the West Room of the Church at 7 p.m. on Wednesday evening.

There will be a Senior Appreciation All Church Picnic on Sunday evening at 5 p.m. in Central Park. The tickets are available at the Church Office, $1 for adults and 50 cent for children. The congregation is urged to attend and honor the graduating Seniors.

I Timothy 6:11-12.
"But thou, O man of God, flee these things; and follow after righteousness, Godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness. Fight the good fight of faith! How can one follow after spiritual love and Godliness and still be a fighter? Paul was writing to Timothy - to be a fighting soldier... not just a soldier, but a 'FIGHTING' soldier. A Christian must fight to maintain love, righteousness, patience, meekness, Godliness, etc.

Some soldiers are mere book soldiers. They can quote every regulation in the book. They know exactly what to do - if they ever encounter real action. Others have seen action and returned bitter, hardened and calloused.

Oh, that we could fight a good fight! - that we could fight and maintain our first love, our first victory, our first new-found joy!

There is a way. Jesus said "When I was naked, ye clothed me." "When I was in prison, ye visited me."

In another Scripture, Jesus spoke of a certain man who got on the wrong road and fell among thieves. The thieves robbed the man and left him for dead!

Jesus said that man was ignored by the "Church Goers" of His Day. I think Church is for the stricken as well as for the strong. At times, we do become involved with just such people, though. To deal with them demands time, love, understanding and even money.

When shall the Lord satisfy thee? When shall He guide us? When will we be fighting the good fight of faith?

Only when we deal out our soul to those that are hungry to hear the Word that we harbor in our hearts!

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The widening gap between stock yields and bond yields is being viewed with some concern by the Fraser Management Associates. If the expected economic improvement fails to materialize, the company said, bond-stock relationships would bring a "halt" to the bull market. "Meanwhile, a business cycle expansion based on growing consumer purchases, increased inventory demand, and a gradual upturn in capital goods spending will improve earnings and dividends sufficiently to continue the preference for stocks over bonds," Fraser said. "The market continues on the high side relative to current earnings," Spear and Staff, Inc. believes. But, Spear said, investors "have not over-anticipated the degree of economic improvement which should materialize in coming months." Interim swings notwithstanding, the firm expect the averages will continue to edge up broadly over the year. The only surprising thing about the recent drop, the Alexander Hamilton Institute says is "that it wasn't steeper in view of the heady gains in the past few months." The Institute says consolidation phases are "necessary" in bull markets and advises "stock positions should be increased on dips." "It is readily apparent from technical evidence that the market most likely is in the area of a peak," according to Harris, Upham & Co. However the company said the severity of a decline depends on the broadness of the top and it sees "no indications of severe" distribution. "Thus, at this stage, a pullback of only minor proportions is looked for," the firm says. CHANGE SYSTEM WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Justice Department has asked Congress to approve legislation that would change the system under which U.S. Marshals are now appointed by the President with the approval of the Senate. The legislation would provide that the Attorney General would make all such appointments, and the Marshals would be career civil service employees. The department said the move would take the jobs out of the political patronage system.

Epaminondas Argyriou Speaks With Tennis Ball

By JOHN D. THOMPSON
OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI)—Epaminondas Argyriou may not speak the most eloquent English, but he has a terrific way of letting his tennis racket speak for him.

Argyriou, known as "Nondas" among his acquaintances, is a tall, dark, good looking young man from Athens, Greece, who has established a 22-2 match record in his freshman year at Oklahoma City University.

His record is particularly sensational because before Argyriou came to the United States he had played almost all his tennis on a clay court, which is much slower than the speedy hard-surfaced courts used here.

"I must admit it was rather difficult when I first started," Argyriou said, "but I have been able to adapt my game pretty well to the whole thing."

Argyriou, 26, served as a sergeant in the Greek Air Force before beginning his collegiate career. He comes by his tennis abilities naturally, for his father, John, is a tennis pro in Athens.

When asked how tall he is, Argyriou smiled and said, "if I tried to tell you as Americans do, in feet and inches, it would be difficult, but let's say I'm one meter, 84 centimeters tall."

That makes him about 6 feet, 1 inch tall to Americans.

The OCU tennis team has just finished the best season in the school's history by posting a 21-3 record, and Argyriou feels all his wins have been big ones. But he points toward a victory in competition with one of his teammates, to help set up the team lineup for the following match, as one of his most memorable victories.

"I beat Karl Coombes, of our team, and he is a very good player," Argyriou said. "In fact, before coming to OCU he was the No. 1 junior player in Australia."

Argyriou's popularity on campus is shown by his election as president of the International Students Association.

A language complication arose, however, because the secretary of the club was Somborn Lertbanaphong, from Bangkok, Thailand.

"You can imagine the problems we had," Argyriou said with a grin. "His Siamese accent and my Greek accent in English made for quite a conversation."

Argyriou is known for his Grecian temper, but shrugs it off by saying, "it's just a release when you are in a match. Once I blow my top, I feel better."

In one match this year, one of Argyriou's shots was called out of bounds, but he thought it was in. He raced to the net, with his teammates holding their breath in anticipation of a major conflict.

But the Greek stopped short, drew a deep breath and proclaimed loudly: "OCU and I give this to you as a gift. Only this one, no more."

The tension was broken.

Canonero II's More Than One Time Long Shot

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—Canonero II's trainer pronounced the Kentucky Derby winner ready today to prove he is more than a one-race horse when he goes to the post in Saturday's running of the $189,900 Preakness Stakes at Pimlico.

The colt's victory at Churchill Downs still was regarded as a "fluke" by many rival trainers and stories of fever and coughing have circulated throughout the backstretch all week long.

Trainer Juan Arias, and the entire retinue at Pimlico with the horse, merely shrug this off as an unfounded rumor and an exaggeration of a problem the colt had with two baby teeth last weekend. The caps were removed, the fever subsided and the colt attacked his feed with vengeance.

"Rain or shine, muddy or fast, he's ready, as good as he was for the Kentucky Derby," Arias claimed.

That makes him about 6 feet, 1 inch tall to Americans.

WILL ENTER FINALS
TAIPEI (UPI)—Dallas Aces assured themselves of a place in the finals of the Bermuda Bowl World Bridge Tournament Thursday by defeating France 89-34 international match points (20-0 victory points). The defending champions have gained a total of 203 VPs while France has totaled 185 and almost assured of second position.

Donohue Sitting On Indy 500 Pole Spot

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI)—Mark Donohue is all but sitting on the pole position for the Indianapolis 500-Mile Auto Race, but he still has to go out Saturday and duplicate his speed feats for the record book.

Today is the last practice session before Saturday's first round of qualifications, and although there's been a technical change in the rules, the pole position—inside front row of the starting lineup—in all likelihood still will go to the fastest first-day qualifier.

Donohue, Media, Pa., ended all doubts that the 180 miles per hour barrier had been broken when he turned a lap at 180.977 MPH Thursday during practice. This was one caught on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's electronic timer.

His crew Wednesday timed him at 180.2 while others had him at 179.6, but his quick lap of that day was not checked by the Speedway's electronic equipment. Thus, there were doubts among some that the 180 barrier had been topped.

But it's all unofficial anyway. The only speeds for the record books are those chalked up in qualifications and the race itself.

Donohue turned only three laps

Thursday, just before the track closed. His first was in the 178 bracket, then came the 180 lap, and he closed with a 179 clocking around the 2½-mile oval.

His top speed is nearly five miles an hour quicker than his nearest challenger, Peter Revson of New York City, who turned in a 176.1 MPH clocking Thursday.

Near-ideal weather conditions were forecast for the first weekend of qualifications. Under the new rules, each of the 70 cars entered for the May 29 chase will have a chance to qualify for the pole. But if the car is not ready when its turn comes, it loses its guaranteed spot at the premier starting position.

Thus, since the forecast is favorable, there's little chance adverse weather will delay awarding the pole until Sunday.

In all, 45 cars were on the course for practice Thursday.

In addition to Donohue and Revson, Mike Mosley of Brownsburg, Ind., and three-time race winner A.J. Foyt of Houston, Tex., improved their speeds among the 16 drivers who have been over 170 MPH this month. Mosley reached 175.850, and Foyt hit 174.859.

Hogan's Knee Causes A Change In Future Plans

HOUSTON (UPI)—Two little boys skipped school to watch him, a young woman came because, to her, he was a "legendary phenomena," and an old man came to see him before it was too late.

When he took a 9 on the par 3 fourth hole, the old man turned to a friend and said, "I guess we were too late."

The man they came to watch was Ben Hogan, a golfing legend plagued by a gimpy left knee in recent years, but who still has the combative spirit to try the pros on their million-dollar tour every now and then.

This week's $125,000 Houston Champions International, with the flat terrain kindly to the old man's knee, was one of those times he decided to play.

He hit a couple of bad shots on each of the first two holes and got two bogeys. He parred No. 3, and then came the fourth—a 228-yarder whose fairways follows a deep ravine around to the left to an acre-size green.

The duffers hit down the fairway, but the pros knock it across the ravine at the pin. Hogan did it four times easily last year, but Thursday he tried four times and the first three shots went into the ravine.

He hit the first one fat, a mistake, but then he made a bigger mistake.

"I went down in the ditch to look at it," Hogan said after withdrawing on the 12th hole because his knee was hurting again. "I might have hurt it then (in the ditch). I shouldn't have gone down, but I thought I might be able to play it. But it was an easier shot from the tee."

He hit the next two tee shots thin and finally put the fourth shot on the green. He had to borrow balls from Ray Floyd and George Archer for the last two shots.

Things didn't get any better. When he reached No. 12 eleven over par, he quit.

"My damn knee started bothering me and I couldn't play," Hogan said. "It's a big disappointment to me. I hate to play and quit. It burns me up."

Hogan, 58, said it was not the worst hole of his 38-year career. The worst was an 11 on a par 3 in the third round of the Jacksonville Open in 1946.

He was tied for the lead on a rainy day when his tee shot bounced off the green into a lake he didn't even know was there. He tried to hit it out twice, but both times it rolled back down the bank and into the water.

"By then the water was so muddy, I couldn't see the ball so I took a drop on the other side of the lake," Hogan recalled. "I dropped it in a clump of grass and couldn't hit it good and the first shot went into the lake."

He finally hit the green the next shot and two-putted. He finished with an 81 or 82, he couldn't remember which, but he said it was the worst round of his career.

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

3—Checking Your Grip
Does your grip come loose at the top of your backswing? If so, you should take quick steps to repair it. Nothing can lead to erratic play quicker than a faulty grip at the top. If you have to regrip the club even somewhat starting your downswing, your timing and swing plane probably will be wrecked.

The first thing to do is have a pro look at your hands and the grips on the handles of your clubs, to see if they correspond. If you have big hands and a thin grip, that could be your problem right there. There will be too much looseness in your grip. A player with small hands and a thick grip will have difficulties, too. A pro can tell you in five minutes if your hands fit your clubs.

The second thing to check is your grip itself. I'm not going to put you to sleep with a lot of conversation about the way the "V's" formed by your thumbs and index fingers ought to point, because there's too much more to it than that, and a pro who has the chance to study you knows how you should hold the club for best results.

It's been said that your game is no better than your grip. And it may well be true.

Drought

trees of a different kind in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas.

Blooms Very Erratic
"The blooms are very erratic this year," said Howard Kutzenberger, who farms more than 100 acres of citrus trees near Harlingen, Tex. "I've never seen a bloom like this year. It blooms, then it blooms again and it's still blooming. It seems like the trees are off balance."
The drought-caused dust storms in West Texas remind Mrs. Robert E. Key, a retired Lubbock school teacher, of the "Dust Bowl" days of four decades ago.
"The dust creates a real problem in keeping the house clean. It is also hard on people with hay fever and asthma," she said. "We haven't even tried to open the windows this spring. I remember back in the '30s when we actually used a shovel to get the dirt out of the house. But it isn't that bad now."

Disaster For All
John J. Chappell, farm agent in Chaves County, N.M., said if the drought continues much longer, it would bring "disaster to everybody."
"We're going to need about 24 hours of rain, not a 30-minute downpour," he said. "Our rainfall average so far is low. Normally, by the end of May, we should have received 3.41 inches. So far we've accumulated just .78 of an inch."

"Everyone's been holding on," said Dewey Smith, the Edinburg, Tex., rancher. "You see, we usually get a rain down here in May, the latter part of May, and everybody's just hoping and waiting for us to get those May rains.

"If we don't, we're going to be in real bad shape."

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM

In the English language Ceylon Daily Mirror a recent editorial gained significance because it was cleared by government censors. "A foothold through temporary military aid could tempt the donor to attempt a foothold, if not a permanent stranglehold," the editorial said without naming names.

It was of further significance that the same newspaper also published prominently an article from an Italian weekly discussing "the dangers of Russian penetration into the Indian Ocean."

Ceylon lying off the tip of India in the Indian Ocean, is outside the main stream of international events and is no more used to worldwide notice than she is to the insurrection among her educated youth currently threatening the Ceylonese government.

Presumably the leftwing government of Mrs. Srimavo Bandaranaike will survive the insurrection which is cast in a mold even farther to the left, but not without changes.

At the outset of the outbreak by the "Che-Guevarists" in April, Mrs. Bandaranaike sent out a general appeal for arms to help put it down.

India, Pakistan and Britain were among the non-Communist nations to respond directly. The United States supplied helicopters indirectly but held up on other requested aid pending Pentagon "study" of surplus weapons.

Most generous of all was the Soviet Union, which sent five MIG17 fighters and a MIG15 trainer along with technicians and crews to train Ceylonese pilots. Other aid came from East Germany and Yugoslavia.

While the aid extended the Bandaranaike government has been international in character. While the aid extended the Bandaranaike government has been international in character, it is the extent of the Soviet effort that now causes concern.
