IF RUSSIANS SINCERE

Arms Talks May Show Results In Four Months

WASHINGTON (UPI)—White House officials said today the breakthrough in the Soviet-American attempt to agree on limiting nuclear weapons should produce speeded-up arms talks in about four months—if Moscow is sincere.

If all goes well, they add, it may be possible for the Strategic Arms Limitation (SALT) talks to reach—by the end of this year—one agreement limiting defensive antiballistic missile (ABM) systems on both countries, and another agreement limiting some of each nation's offensive, or attack, weapons.

President Nixon, in a three-minute television broadcast Thursday, said the White House and the Kremlin had reached a major agreement on the talks which could break a deadlock that has existed during the last year.

But terms of the agreement remained a diplomatic mystery since officials would not elaborate on the joint statement.

The statement said simply: "The governments of the United States and the Soviet Union, after reviewing the course of their talks on the limitations of strategic armaments, have agreed to concentrate this year on working out an agreement for the limitation of the deployment of antiballistic missile systems. They have also agreed that together with the concluding of an agreement to limit antiballistic missile systems, they will agree on certain measures with respect to the limitation of offensive strategic weapons."

White House officials left the impression that the agreement represented a significant concession by the Soviet Union. In the current phase of the SALT talks the Soviets have insisted on reaching an agreement first on limiting defense missile systems—such as the ABM—while the United States had insisted on reaching an agreement on both defensive and offensive missile systems.

The Soviet side, therefore, appeared to have swung around to the American viewpoint. But the official statement also said that during the current year both sides would concentrate on working out an agreement limiting only the ABM systems of both countries. This is what the Soviets have been after.

There was an obvious ambiguity in the joint Soviet-American statement which permitted it to be interpreted in several ways without actually revealing its true substance.

Gerard C. Smith, the top U.S. arms negotiator, was expected to return to Vienna today to wind up the current phase of the talks. His departure has already been delayed several times and it was still not certain he would definitely take off.

Smith returned to Washington May 7 to confer with Nixon. The Soviet-American understanding reportedly was reached about May 10.

Chile Has Controlled Largest Copper Mine

KEEPING WATCH for possible Israeli air strikes, Egyptian soldiers man a sandbagged outpost at an unidentified point.

U.S. Has 49 Per Cent Of Investment In Firm

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI)—The government of Socialist President Salvador Allende announced Thursday it had taken control of the world's largest copper mine, the "El Teniente." An official announcement said the move was due to "irregularities" in production.

The "El Teniente" is controlled by a society of Chilean corporations that own 51 per cent, and the Kennecott Corporation in the United States, which owns 49 per cent.

Kennecott has handled administration of the mine under an agreement with the government of former President Eduardo Frei.

Cost Of Living Rose 0.3 in April

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The cost of living to Americans rose 0.3 per cent in April, equalling the sharpest one-month advance this year, the Labor Department reported today.

Higher prices for food and clothing were largely blamed.

While the rise in the consumer price index was the biggest since a similar increase in January, it was well below the pace of 1970 when the nation was in the grips of the worst inflation since the Korean War.

Food prices increased by 0.9 per cent last month. If the advance continued at that rate for a full year, the annual food increase would be almost 12 per cent, meaning that a typical food item costing $1 last month would cost $1.12 by next spring.

The cost of clothing increased 0.4 per cent last month, led by a jump of 0.8 per cent in men's and boys' apparel. Women's and girls' clothing increased 0.3 per cent.

The government's gauge of consumer prices stood in April at 120.2 per cent of the 1967 average, up from 119.8 per cent in March. That meant it cost $12.02 to buy the same goods and services that $10 bought in 1967.

The April index was 4.3 per cent above April, 1970, representing the smallest over-the-year change since the August, 1967, to August, 1968.

The announcement from Minister of Mines Orlando Cantuarias said intervention would be handled by the State Copper Corporation, which supervises the digging and production operations of copper in Chile.

Since Allende was elected last November, the government has been taking over copper operations under legislation he pushed through congress.

Allende became the Western World's first freely elected Marxist president in November. He had promised in his campaign to nationalize foreign interests in Chile and has been pushing his program since then.

The Chilean Senate liberalized and sent to the Chamber of Deputies May 12 Allende's proposed constitutional amendment that would permit him to nationalize the holdings of the three U.S. copper companies in Chile—Kennecott, Anaconda and Cerro.

The two houses of congress are expected to meet within the next two months for a final vote on the amendment. Meanwhile, the government has been negotiating with the U.S. firms on indemnity.

The outcome of the bargaining could influence relations between Washington and Santiago, which have been cool but correct since Allende's election.

West Powers Have 4-Point Plan For Troop Pullout From Europe

LONDON (UPI)—Western powers have formulated a four-point plan for a balanced East-West troop withdrawal from NATO and Warsaw Pact nations in Central Europe, diplomatic sources said today.

The plan could form the basis for exploratory talks with the Soviet Union if the Kremlin is serious in its pronouncements about reducing its forces in Europe, they said. Both Soviet Communist Party Chief Leonid I. Brezhnev and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin have called for troop withdrawals, but have not outlined specific ideas.

The plan, worked out in the framework of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and first aired at the ministerial meeting in Rome last summer, contained these four major points:

—Reductions of both NATO and Warsaw Pact forces should be compatible with vital security interests and should not operate to the military disadvantage of either side.

—Differences arising from geographical and other considerations must be taken into account and should be based on reciprocity and phased and balanced as to their scope and timing.

—Reductions should include both foreign troops stationed in various nations, such as U.S. troops in Europe and Soviet forces in Eastern Europe, in addition to local forces and their weapon systems in areas concerned.

—There must be adequate verification and controls of the reductions.

The Soviet Union has some 31 divisions in Central Europe, including 20 in East Germany, four in Hungary, five in Czechoslovakia and two in Poland. This is in addition to the scores of Soviet divisions in European Russia and the 80 to 100 divisions the East European nations have.

Diplomatic sources said just what the Soviets have in mind so far as troop reductions must be carefully explored, but the suggestion should not be ignored.

They said the four-point plan from which to proceed, although alternatives could be considered.

Mideast Situation Strains Again As Both Sides Stiffen Positions

By United Press International

The Middle East situation tightened up again today, and authoritative diplomatic sources in Cairo said Egypt has shelved, at least temporarily, a plan to send a high ranking envoy to Washington for talks on the prospects of an agreement with Israel on reopening the Suez Canal.

Both sides appeared to be sequel to the recent Middle East tour of Secretary of State William P. Rogers and the visit to Cairo by his assistant, Joseph J. Sisco, following Rogers' talks with Israeli leaders, the sources said.

Foreign Minister Mahmoud stiffening their positions, and Israeli Deputy Yigal Allon said

Thursday night Egypt might have done so because of "overoptimism in Washington," an apparent reference to the optimistic statements Rogers made on his return.

Sisco returned to Cairo with Israel's canal proposals and had five hours of talks with President Anwar Sadat and Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad. It was agreed then that Egypt would send a high-ranking diplomat, either Riad or Premier Mahmoud Fawzi, to Washington with Egypt's reply.

Instead, the Egyptian reply was handed over to Donald Bergus, chief of the American diplomatic mission in Cairo, less than an hour after Sadat told the national assembly about it in a 10-minute speech on foreign and domestic policies.

Sadat has demanded:

That a partial Israeli withdrawal should be the first stage of a total pullback from Egyptian territory under a specific timetable.

That the principle of Egyptian troops crossing the canal into the Israeli-held Sinai was not negotiable.

That the cease-fire should be limited.

Allon said of the speech, "One could not take seriously the conditions for an agreement on the reopening of the Suez Canal President Sadat has set

County Receives Report On Water From Mississippi

Permission already has been granted to import water from the Mississippi River into Texas and the Texas Panhandle area for four months out of the year. Tom Williams of Lubbock, representative of Texas Water, Inc., told members of Gray County Water, Inc., at their annual meeting last night in the Court House Annex.

Williams added that a possibility exists water could be imported from the Mississippi for six months of the year. This would be during the wet season there and require storage facilities for use in the dry season here.

The following officers of Gray County Water, Inc., were elected last night:

Russell McConnell, president; John Spearman, vice president; and James McCoy, secretary treasurer.

Holdover directors are: Artie Saylor, Jack Imel, Gordon Lyons, Rex McKay, Clyde Magee and Fred Vanderburg.

Israeli Diplomat Kidnaped By Turks Said Still Alive

ISTANBUL (UPI)—Turkish Premier Nihat Erim said today Israeli Consul-General Ephraim Elrom, kidnaped from his apartment Monday, is still alive.

"We, too, are anxious over the fate of this Israeli diplomat," the head of government told newsmen. "But we received information last night he is alive."

Erim made his statement in Ankara. He gave no details.

Police and troop searches across the country still turned up no trace of the 59-year-old policeman-turned-diplomat, who played a major role in the capture and trial of Nazi war criminal Adolf Eichmann a decade ago.

Elrom was abducted Monday by five gunmen. His captors announced he would be executed Thursday unless the government freed all "revolutionary guerrillas" from jail.

The 5 p.m. deadline set by the leftwing self-styled Turkish People's Liberation Army came and went—with no indication of Elrom's fate.

The government responded by declaring it would not bargain with "holligans" and arresting hundreds of suspected leftwing sympathizers.

Result Of Phone Contract Talk Awaited In Pampa

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. workers in Pampa are awaiting the outcome of contract talks between Communication workers of America and American Telephone and Telegraph management now in progress in St. Louis.

Union officials here said if electrical workers in the system agree to strike, union members of the telephone company will honor picket lines expected to go up at the local office Monday by workers of Western Electric Co., Amarillo.

Western Electric is responsible for manufacturing and installing telephone company equipment.

Local telephone employees are almost 100 percent membership with Communications of America Local 6128, and according to the union steward, H.B. Ballard, workers here will honor Western Electric picket lines.

There are no Western Electric employees working out of the Pampa office. Employees are dispatched from the Amarillo branch to work here.

It is understood the possible walk-out would slow down phone service for the area, necessitating the use of supervisory personnel at key posts.

Ballard said the negotiators are asking for wage and pension benefits, vacation leave improvements and better working hours.

The walk-out would affect telephone service on a nationwide basis, according to a union spokesman.

Lovell Jr. Leaves Astronaut Corps

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—James A. Lovell Jr., who spent more time in space than any other astronaut, is leaving the Astronaut Corps to devote his full time developing scientific experiments for future American space flights.

Lovell was named Thursday as the Deputy Director of the Science and Applications Directorate at the Manned Spacecraft Center. The announcement was made by Anthony J. Calio, director of Science and Applications.

"Jim Lovell's background in hardware development, flight testing and mission operations will be of great value to us as we near the peak of our activities in both the Apollo and Skylab programs," Calio said.

"We are especially interested in applying his abilities to the remaining three Apollo missions where we hope to attain maximum scientific return."

Lovell, 43, flew two Apollo missions. He was the module pilot on the six-day trip of Apollo 8, man's first trip to the moon, in December of 1968. He also commanded the ill-fated Apollo 13 mission in which an explosion during flight caused the mission to be scrubbed.

He also took part in Gemini 7, the longest space flight in history lasting 330 hours and 35 minutes in December, 1965. His other space trip was on the four-day Gemini 12 mission in November, 1966.

Lovell has spent 29 days, 19 hours, four minutes and 54 seconds in space, longer than any other astronaut.

Smith Signs Into Law Bill Repealing Two-Cent Tax Increase On Gasoline

AUSTIN (UPI)—Gov. Preston Smith today signed into law a bill to repeal a 24-hour-old 2 cent per gallon tax increase on gasoline that actually never went into effect.

The result of the signature by Smith was to keep Texans from having to pay a 40 per cent increase in the state tax on gasoline beginning July 1.

The gasoline tax hike was part of a $904 million tax package passed by the legislature to finance state spending for the next two years. But Smith balked at the hogeness of the bill and threatened to veto the entire package unless it was trimmed down.

Disliked Gasoline Tax

The governor's major complaint was about the gasoline tax, so the legislature knuckled under and passed another bill repealing the fuel tax hike.

"The signing of this bill is a more pleasant tax than yesterday's signing of the major tax bill," Smith commented today, he quietly signed the omnibus tax package Thursday then left for Houston without any public announcement of that act.

Smith said today his mail was running 10 to one in favor of repealing the gasoline tax. He criticized suggestions that the higher tax package would have created a reserve for the second year of the biennium for use to support increasing welfare costs.

Woman Revives From 'Death'

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI)—A woman pronounced dead of a heart attack at Memorial Hospital was found still alive an hour later when she began gasping for breath at a mortuary.

The woman, Herkeline Roseberry, 69, was in critical condition but showing "some improvement" Thursday.

Embalmer John Savino of Forest Lawn Memorial-Park in nearby Cypress said he was removing the sheets from the body of the woman Tuesday when she began coughing.

"We were stunned," he said. "She did look like she had passed away. Her mouth was open and her eyes were open and fixed."

Mrs. Roseberry, who has a history of heart trouble, suffered the attack at her home earlier in the day. She was taken to Memorial Hospital where she was examined by an intern and a staff physician.

They said blood was flecked around her mouth and her pupils were wide and fixed. After testing her heart beat, pulse and breathing they pronounced her dead.

She was taken to the mortuary where Savino discovered an hour later she was still alive. She was returned to the hospital.

Some physicians have speculated in similar cases that the jolts of a moving vehicle might cause fibrillation or some sort of an internal heart massage which could revive the patient.

Dollar Plunges To Lowest Rate Against Marks

BONN (UPI)—The U.S. dollar plunged to a new low on the West German money market today.

Brokers on the Frankfurt exchange fixed the dollar at 3.5030 marks. This was the dollar's lowest rate since the West German government floated the mark May 10 and the lowest rate against marks since September, 1949.

The previous lowest dollar median rate of the current crisis was 3.5250 on May 10, the day money markets re-opened after the West German Bundesbank (Central Bank) stopped supporting the dollar. The official rate before that was 3.66 marks.

A market spokesman said the new low rate emerged despite the fact the Bundesbank still has made no move to start selling its board of unwanted dollars at a guideline rate.

West German Economics and Finance Minister Karl Schiller hopes to get the dollar down to a level at which speculators and business firms who poured billions of dollars into Germany in the weeks preceding the crisis will start withdrawing their dollars again.

Banking sources said Schiller sought to have the Bundesbank intervene in the market to lower the rate when he conferred with the bank's central council Tuesday.

The sources said it appeared the marking down of the dollar today reflected dealers' expectations of Bundesbank intervention shortly.

PERSONALITY SPOTLIGHT

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat

By United Press International
When Anwar Sadat was a young man, he recalled once in an autobiographical sketch, "I went home to my village and used to look at the sky and watch the stars. I thought of stealing two of them to decorate my uniform and become an army officer."
Sadat got his two stars—and more. He became president of Egypt.
An intense, impulsive and deeply religious man, Sadat first caught the world's attention in July of 1952 as the young colonel who announced that a group of army officers had seized power in Egypt and was demanding the abdication of King Farouk.
Sadat now 53, was largely forgotten in the 18 years that shadowed, slipping into the shadow of President Luarnal Abdel Nasser, the man with whom he had collaborated in Farouk's ouster.
He came into the limelight again when Nasser died last September. The national assembly unanimously approved his nomination to the presidency on Oct. 7 and eight days later the people approved the choice in a national plebiscite.

Sadat rarely goes out socially. Twice married, he has a daughter by his first wife and six children by his second wife, who is half English.
Friends say Sadat is well versed in the Koran, the sacred scriptures of Islam. They say also that he has a touch of the poet, quoting often from classical Islamic poetry, and has a reputation among senior officers as a humorist and story teller.
His activities against the British, who had established a protectorate over Egypt in 1914, got him court-martialed in 1942 for contacts with two Nazis who had tried to establish an espionage network in Cairo.
The enemy today, in Sadat's eyes, is Israel, which claimed parts of Egyptian territory in the June, 1967, war.

Even so, Sadat has amazed most western observers by making concessions toward peace with Israel that Nasser, who overshadowed him for so long, either could not or would not make.
This prompted one American diplomat, recalling the death in office of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the unexpected dynamism of the man who succeeded him, to call Sadat "an Egyptian Harry Truman."
OLDEST MAN
MOSCOW (UPI)—Becoming the oldest man in the world is largely a matter of hard work and lemonade, according to the man who claims that record.
Shirali Mismilov celebrated his 168th birthday in Bazzavi, Azerbaijan, Wednesday by doing a day's work and toasting his health in lemonade, the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

Rep. Bob Price Elected President Of 90th Club

Congressman Bob Price of Pampa has been elected president of the 90th Club, an organization composed of Republican members of the U.S. House of Representatives who were first elected to the 90th Congress in 1966. The club meets frequently to discuss proposed legislation and reach policy decisions.
The members also meet with the President and other administration officials to advise them of the views of their constituents. The 47 congressmen which comprise the club represent a decisive block when voting together on key issues in the House.
"I am honored to have been selected by my colleagues for this position. It will mean additional work but believe that it will also give me greater opportunities to express views of the people of the Panhandle in the highest circles of government," Price said.

The Panhandle representative served two terms as vice president of the 90th Club and as the club's representative on the Republican policy committee. He succeeds Wiley Mayne of Iowa as president.
Price is the Senior Texas Republican in the House of Representatives and serves as the state's representative on the Republican committee on committees.
TE L AVIV—Israeli Deputy Premier Yigal Allon on Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's statement that for the Suez Canal to be reopened, Egyptian troops must be allowed across it after Israel withdraws.
"Sadat's speech proves the Egyptian government has toughened its stance. I hope this development was not prompted by over-optimism in Washington."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stock prices might have reached the point where they have fairly well discounted near-term as well as intermediate term improvement, Harris, Upham & Co. says. The market's trend from this point on is unlikely to mirror the degree of ascent of the last six months, it observes.
Individual investors are not back in the market yet and odd-lot trading is still heavily weighted toward the sell side, according to Putnam Management Co. The firm sees in this a confirmation that the bull market has not yet reached a peak.
The market has suffered sufficient technical damage in recent sessions to move it into a more mature phase where profits will be more difficult to come by, E. F. Hutton says. Over the very near term, a trading rally appears close at hand, but any bounce would be only for very nimble traders, it says.

Woman Executive Describes Career

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI)—Jane Trahey sat in her chartreuse and white executive suite and said luck had nothing to do with her making it to the top in a field dominated by males.

The whirlwind with words is president of her own advertising agency—Trahey-Wolf. She founded it.

Her quick wit, her facile mind and hard work helped her climb up the success ladder. The emphasis is on "hard work."

It took plenty of that for Miss Trahey to succeed when she made the big break, going to work for herself instead of someone else.

Miss Trahey, recently named Advertising Woman of the Year, thinks the best way a girl can succeed in any field is to go into business for herself. Less discrimination on account of sex that way.

She's Living Proof

She is one proof that's how to "make it" in the advertising business, a field with an exceptionally high corporate mortality rate. "And a field," Miss Trahey says, "where women always are paid less than a man for doing the same or better work."

Her shop bills $7 million a year, which makes it medium-sized. It's one of five shops, as the agencies are called, run by women who own them in New York. The other females who have made it are Jo Foxworth, Mary Wells, Lois Wyse and Jackie Brandwyne.

Miss Trahey, Chicago's gift to the world of communication (her father was a fireman), writes best-selling novels that are translated into films. Her "Life with Mother Superior" became "The Trouble with Angels" and starred Ros Russell and Haley Mills.

She also has a play in the works—"Ring Around The Bath-tub," headed for Broadway—in the fall, Miss Trahey thinks.

"It's a family comedy," Miss Trahey said. "I say it has a 'Grrrr' rating—meaning it's safe for all the family, including the dog."

Some Campaigns

Campaigns she originated and has been lauded for include one for Dynel ("It's Not Fake Anything") and one for Black-glama, black mink. The latter shows women who have become legends—in full page ads. Each wearing a black mink coat.

Miss Trahey isn't sure she would be the success she is today if she had married somewhere along the line. "It would depend on what kind of person I married," she said. "I have a lot of drive and bore fast. Besides, it's hard to run a business and raise a family."

She believes Women's Lib is necessary and that the movement at times must do outrageous things to get attention. She confines her direct support to helping get free legal advice for women who feel they're discriminated against on the job because of their sex.

The average modern bride will furnish and furnish her home at least four times in the next 30 years.

PAMPA DAILY NEWS Friday, May 21, 1971 PAMPA, TEXAS 6500 YEAR

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Concerning women who display hairy legs and underarms, you asked for volunteers from Italy, so here is one:

I am a male American medical student at the University of Rome. When I first arrived here, I was amazed to see hairy legs and bushy underarms on Italian women of all ages. According to an Italian bachelor friend of mine, Italian men don't mind the hair at all. He said that a "defuzzed" woman would have the same effect on him as a woman without eyebrows would have on me!

In a country where people are so preoccupied with romance, it is hard to resign oneself to the daily confrontation with "B.O." on the bus. How an Italian can be romantically interested in a woman who has a jungle of hair under her arms, and no deodorant, is a mystery to me.

My one consolation is that I will one day return to the States where the women and Mr. Gillette have had a tremendous rapport for decades. In the meantime, I'll confine my female companionship to Americans or other foreigners.

FRED IN ROME

DEAR FRED: You have been conditioned by your American background. Would you believe that some European women are turned on by men who smell of perspiration? And some men prefer their women the same way. I'll bet there is more perfume sold in Europe than soap!

DEAR ABBY: I am a young girl but old enough to have a boy friend. I live in Arkansas and my boy friend lives in Glendale, Calif. (He used to live in Arkansas.) Well, every Summer my boy friend comes to Arkansas to visit his grandmother. Last Summer he came here and his grandmother made him cut his hair, so he wrote and told me he wasn't coming this summer because his grandmother told him unless he planned on getting his hair cut first, not to come.

Abby, I begged him to come anyway. Last I heard was he wasn't coming. He says he loves me but it looked like he loves his hair more. He wears it down to his shoulders.

How can I get him to come to Arkansas even if he has to get a haircut?

ARKANSAS GIRL

DEAR GIRL: The fight for long hair is one that nearly every long-haired male needs desperately to win. It's not the hair he wants to preserve, it's his right to wear his hair the way he wants to. I'm afraid you're fighting a losing battle.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about "J," the divorcee in Lincoln Park, N.J., who complained because the men there took her to dinner, a movie, and then expected sex.

You said, "Try the men in southern New Jersey. They are much more civilized and domesticated, I'm told."

Would you believe they are worse? I am also divorced and have gone out with men in their late thirties and early forties. The men in South Jersey take you to dinner, skip the movies and expect sex. This goes for men in Pennsylvania, also, as I border Philadelphia. In fact, this is also true of men in Bucks County and Montgomery County, Pa.

I'd say stick with the North Jersey men. At least you get to see a movie a few times a year. All decent men are married, and only half the married men are decent.

"J" FROM CINNAMINSON, N.J.

POLLY'S POINTERS Woman Requests Ways To Mend Rubber Gloves

By POLLY CRAMER

By POLLY CRAMER
Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY — I have a supply of rubber gloves that have acquired a little hole in each. To save expense, does anyone know if thin patches can be bought for these gloves? I find car patching is too heavy to hold.

MRS. R. P. B.
DEAR POLLY — Shirley could shorten her crocheted dress as I did mine. I sewed across the desired length several times on the sewing machine and then cut the excess off just below the stitching. Button hole stitch over the edge or crochet over it. Mine turned out fine.

MRS. F.M.
DEAR POLLY — Shirley could shorten her crocheted dress by threading narrow ribbons, vertically, at intervals around the bottom and then pull them up evenly to the desired length. Tie a small bow at the top of the ribbon and the dress will look as if it was made that way. She could coordinate the colors or have them contrast. Should it be desired, the ribbons could be removed later to make the dress longer.

ELEANOR
DEAR POLLY — Mrs. B. B. could shorten her heavy knit dress that would be too bulky with a hem turned up by marking the proper length with chalk and then zig-zag stitching over this line twice by machine. Cut off the excess and use the same color yarn to crochet an edge around the bottom over the stitching. A contrasting color could be used and then the same edge added around the sleeves and neck of the dress. Mine turned out real nice and I could lengthen it again by adding more rows of crochet around the bottom.

One of the Scriptural verses is from Psalms: "In the multitude of my thoughts within me thy comforts delight my soul."

A related passage to be read from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy states: "Unless the harmony and immortality of man are becoming more apparent, we are not gaining the true idea of God; and the body will reflect that governs it, whether it be Truth or error, understanding or belief, Spirit or matter. Therefore 'acquaint now thyself with Him and be at peace.'"

GOD THE FATHER

TEXT: "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." Gen. 1:1 "As the hart panteth after the water brooks, so panteth my soul after thee, O God. My soul thirsteth for God, for the living God: when shall I come and appear before God." Psa. 42:1-2

On June 24, 1893 Fridtjof Nansen, a Norwegian scientist and explorer set sail in a specially built ship, "The Fram", from Christiania, Norway. The object of him and his eleven man crew was to explore the Arctic wastelands. The trip resulted in Nansen and one man coming within 225 miles of the Pole and, later it resulted in the great explorer receiving the Professorship of Zoology at the University of Christiania.

This was before the days of fast communication and the greatest worry of Nansen and his family was the fact that there were no means by which they could communicate with each other. Finally the plan was devised that Nansen would carry along some carrier pigeons, which had been reared in the attic of the Nansen home, in Christiania. Months went by with no word. The family was worried; more months went by. At last there came the day when the pigeons returned to their home, with the brief message from the husband and father. They had flown over 1,000 miles of trackless ice, 2,000 miles of uncharted water and with unerring instinct came to the casement of the window from whence they had been taken months before.

What? Who? guides the wings of the carrier pigeon? We do not have all of the answers, but we can know that the same good Father who cares for the sparrow has placed the homing instinct within the pigeon. Just as surely as the fact that there is a mysterious "pull" that directs the path of this bird there is a mysterious tug at the heartstrings of a human being — a "pull" that unites us with the divine.

Our text says, "In the beginning God..." God ought to be in the beginning — in the beginning of everything. He ought to be in the beginning of every home; of every baby's life; of every work that is undertaken. Man can be and does his best only when he is allowing himself to be conscious of the pull of the Almighty.

Perhaps there is no better place in the scriptures to find a definition of the great and lofty One than from the fifteenth chapter of the Roman letter. Here we find Him described as: "The God of Patience—" "Now the God of patience and consolation grant you to be likened one toward another according to Christ Jesus;" Romans 15:5. How true it is that this virtue, so lacking in most of our lives, is one of the things which describes our God the best.

He is patient of movement (II Pet. 3:8) An old adage says, "The mills of the gods grind slowly, but they grind exceedingly fine." It is certainly true that the mills of the great Jehovah grind slowly. Man is anxious; man is hurried. God is not anxious, He is not to be hurried.

He is patient towards man. God has never dealt with man from the standpoint of justice. Mercy has always been His method. Sodom and Gomorrah are examples of His patience. (II Pet. 3:9).

Inside Washington

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor
WASHINGTON (UPI)

America's cities and states are in a financial bind and desperately need some kind of help from their rich Uncle Sam.

Nearly everyone in Washington seems to agree on that. But there are sharp differences on how the federal government should come to the aid of states and cities.

President Nixon wants to distribute $5 billion in federal money among the 50 states, with strings attached beyond a requirement that part of it be passed along to local governments. He calls this program "general revenue sharing."

Nixon's program has very little chance of getting through Congress. The legislation would have to originate in the House Ways and Means Committee. And both the committee chairman, Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., and its ranking Republican, Rep. John W. Byrnes, Wis., have come out against the Nixon proposal. They say it's a bad idea because:

1. It would increase the already heavy reliance of states and cities on federal support, and thereby destroy the autonomy which the framers of the Constitution intended them to have; and
2. It would relieve state and city politicians of the burden of deciding whether a proposed benefit would be worth the additional taxes required to finance it. That could lead to fiscal irresponsibility.

Seeking a substitute for the Nixon proposal, lawmakers have recently displayed a growing interest in the possibility of using tax credits as a device for giving states and cities a larger share of the total revenue extracted from the public.

The tax credit plan takes account of the fact that all levels of government are squeezing blood from the same turnip—the much-belabored taxpayer. Upwards of 25 per cent of his income already is being taken by government, and he is getting more than a mite rebellious.

House Accepts Senate Plan To Terminate SST Program

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House members trying to revive the supersonic transport (SST) project against growing Senate opposition gave up without a vote and without a fight Thursday and declared the futuristic jetliner dead for good.

In announcing that the House would accept the Senate plan to terminate the $1 billion project before a prototype of the 1,800-mile-an-hour jetliner ever left the ground, Chairman George H. Mahon, D-Tex., of the House Appropriations Committee said the project is "dead and cannot be reasonably revived."

But even before Mahon made his announcement, both sides had agreed the government plan to subsidize development of the superjet was lost when Boeing Co., the developer, estimated that it would take $500 million to $1 billion in extra funds to restart the project after it was halted in March by Congress.

Mahon, manager of the $7 billion catch-all money bill to which the SST was attached, said House conferees would agree to the Senate decision, reached late Wednesday night, to cancel the project.

Both houses voted in March to end government participation in the project. Last week, in a surprise move, the House voted to convert $85.3 million originally sought to terminate SST contracts into a subsidy to reopen the project.

The Senate Finance Committee endorsed the House action, but the full Senate voted 58 to 37 Wednesday night to end the program by increasing the close-out fund to $155.8 million, including $58 million to reimburse airlines which had advanced research money to Boeing.

SST opponents in both houses, supported by environmentalists, argued that the SST threatened widespread air and noise pollution and that it was not needed by commercial airlines. Also, they said, government subsidies could be better spent for other things.

Proponents said it was foolish to spend $1 billion on the project and not go ahead with plans to produce two prototypes. Moreover, they argued, by abandoning the project the U.S. aircraft industry would lose the world SST market.

PACERS GET CROSSWHITE

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Tom Crosswhite, a ninth-round draft choice from the University of Dayton, was signed Thursday to the Indiana Pacers of the American Basketball Association. Crosswhite, a 6-7 forward, averaged 18.4 points a game in his senior year at Dayton.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The phrase "the shot heard 'round the world" was written by Ralph Waldo Emerson in his "Concord Hymn" (1836). The essay was written to dedicate the monument at Concord Bridge, where in 1775 "the embattled farmers" stood and fired on British soldiers, The World Almanac recalls.

CONSIDERING the currency crisis and his running problems with Communist neighbors to the East, Chancellor Willy Brandt's job would appear to be no laughing matter. The West German leader was caught in a happy mood, if fleeting, at a London gathering honoring the 150th birthday of the British newspaper, The Guardian.

Sadat Asks U.S. To Force Israel To Withdraw From Egypt's Land

CAIRO (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat said Thursday the United States must "force" Israel to withdraw from occupied Egyptian territory if it wants peace in the Middle East. He said the Egyptian army is anxious to resume the war with Israel.

Addressing a cheering parliament, Sadat presented tough terms to the United States for a reopening of the Suez Canal, and then outlined a constitution that would provide a liberal new life style for Egyptians.

Sadat issued a decree dismantling the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only political party which was the focus of coup moves against him last week. He said the moves were aimed at creating anarchy in Egypt, but his opponents "fell like autumn leaves."

The president also announced he would not serve a second term of office after his current term ends in about 5½ years.

Sadat said Egyptian troops must cross to the east bank of the Suez Canal and stressed that clearance of the waterway must form part of an overall Middle East settlement.

Otherwise, he said, "it would be better to fill it with sand."

Sadat's terms were handed Thursday to the head of the U.S. diplomatic section in Cairo, Donald Bergus, in the form of a reply to proposals for reopening the canal, closed since the June, 1967, Arab-Israeli war.

"We ask America to define its position," Sadat told parliament. "Enough of memoranda exchanges. This is a matter of war or peace."

Sadat said he told U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers during his recent visit that "I do not accept their talk of persuading Israel or pressuring Israel. I told him I am officially asking President Nixon to force Israel (to withdraw from occupied territory) ... that is if they want peace."

The Egyptian president also rejected an indefinite cease-fire as long as Israeli troops occupy Arab land. He said the Egyptian army was anxious to resume the war with Israel and warned, "I can hardly hold them back."

(In Tel Aviv, Israeli political sources described Sadat's speech as "tough" but said it still indicated he wants the Suez Canal reopened—under his own terms.)

(Israel opposes Sadat's conditions. It has said no Egyptian troops should cross the canal, that there must be an unlimited cease fire and that the agreement would be separate from an overall settlement providing for a complete Israeli withdrawal.)

Sadat said the constitution would extend the scope of social security to protect aging citizens and he promised that a quarter of Egypt's earnings from new oil finds would go to social security.

Sadat said that in the future no official must hold two jobs at a time and there must be "continuous new blood" in official life.

"I start with myself and announce I will not renew my term" as president, he said.

Hollywood Reports

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Al Martino, who plays the role of singer Johnny Fontane in "The Godfather," says pressure is being applied to him to drop out of the picture.

Earlier this year Vic Damone left the role, explaining he thought the characterization wasn't in the best interest of Italian-Americans.

"That's a copout," Martino said. "I think pressure was applied to Damone and it wasn't because of the Italian Defamation League."

Martino, too, has had telephone calls advising him it would be best all around if he eschewed the part of a singer who is controlled by the Mafia. Not that hoods with bulges in their coat pockets have paid him visits, but he has received the word nonetheless.

"I'm playing the role no matter who or what applies the pressure," Martino said. "I'm not afraid of anyone in or out of Hollywood. I've wanted this part ever since I read the book, and I want no trouble."

There was much speculation that the character of Johnny Fontane in Mario Puzo's novel was patterned after the foremost American entertainer of Italian heritage.

Martino said, "The character could be the story of a lot of singers. I had managerial problems when I first came along and had a hit record."

"The book was written so close to the things that were printed in the press about Frank Sinatra that a lot of people thought he was supposed to be Johnny Fontane."

REMEMBER THIS

If you work for a man, in Heaven's name, WORK for him. If he pays you wages which supply you bread and butter, work for him; speak well of him; stand by him and stand by the institution he represents. If put to a pinch, an ounce of loyalty is worth a pound of cleverness. If you must vilify, condemn and eternally disparage... resign your position, and when you are outside, damn to your heart's content, but as long as you are a part of the institution, do not condemn it. If you do that, you are loosening the tendrils that are holding you to the institution, and at the first high wind that comes along, you will be uprooted and blown away, and probably will never know the reason why. — Elbert Hubbard

Youth Gouges Out Eyeballs With Fingers

BALTIMORE (UPI)—The son of a prominent Massachusetts Republican gouged out his eyeball with his fingers Thursday in a jail cell while under the influence of a powerful animal tranquilizer, police said.

Charles Innis Jr., 25, whose father is general counsel to the Massachusetts House of Representatives, had taken the animal tranquilizer Wednesday night, police said.

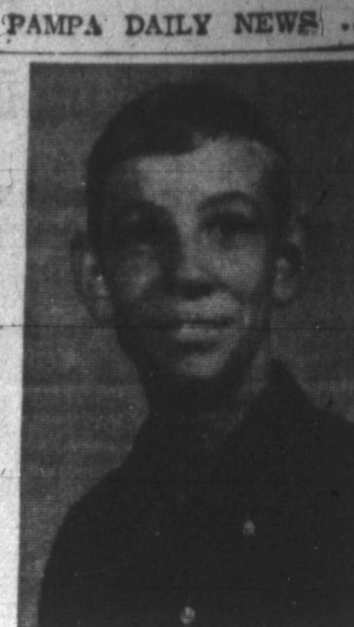

They said Innis was arrested a short time later while walking nude through an alley near the apartment where he lived. Police said the potent tranquilizer was often sold by drug dealers as a synthetic form of marijuana called THC. Doctors at Maryland General Hospital said Innis would be totally blind as a result of the self gouging.

Police said Innis had been arrested previously, most recently last Friday night and was freed during the weekend. Police said when they entered his apartment Friday he swallowed a quantity of what they believed to be some type of drug.

Charles Innis Sr. is a former Massachusetts state senator. Police said young Innis had lived here for some time and worked as a motorcycle mechanic.

Britain's Census Flap

The census caused a mild flap in Britain, just as a similar count did here in the United States one year earlier.

Loyal law-abiding Americans will wonder why any normal person would object to the government's knowing how many people live within its jurisdiction. The objections, therefore, should be spelled out. They fall into three categories. They are: 1. Some people don't want to be bothered with forms and regard the census as snooping that poses a threat to their liberty; 2. Some believe the American census violates the Constitution and is therefore illegal; 3. Some object to the census on religious grounds.

Complaints on the first, or libertarian grounds, is that the census data falls into the hands of government planners who thereby have a statistical basis from which to launch projects that raise taxes and interfere with livelihoods. In England, according to United Press International, some subjects even burned the forms to indicate their unwillingness to comply. In North Ireland, Roman Catholic priests advised their parishioners to burn the forms. Objectors on legal grounds cite the fact that the U.S. Constitution does not once mention the word census. Article I, Section 2 provides only for a simple enumeration for the purpose of apportioning representatives in Congress and the determination of direct taxes. The 1970 U.S. census went beyond a constitutional enumeration in that it inquired into the resident's property and his living conditions.

As many who received their 1970 census forms by mail will recall, the cover letter from the Secretary of Commerce specified that the information was to be used for commercial purposes. The census more closely resembled a market survey than an enumeration, objectors say.

Some months after the U.S. census was completed, congressman asserted that the Commerce Department had wrongfully implied that answers to all questions were mandatory, when in fact some answers were optional. This raises a statutory, as well as a constitutional question.

Objector on religious ground point to passages in the Scripture which indicate that a national census is a national offense. The passages are II Samuel 24 and I Chronicles 21, wherein King David was called to account because he insisted on numbering his subjects. The latter states, "Satan stood up against Israel, and provoked David to number Israel." Earlier Moses had been permitted to take a limited headcount of the fighting men over 20 years of age and of the priestly Levite tribe of those over one month. But David's census, taken contrary to the advice of his chief aide, was accounted an act of pride. The chief aide neglected to count two tribes. In the end, David admitted he was morally wrong in pushing for a census.

Protests against the census span the ocean and span the centuries. They cannot be taken as passing discontent.

No Goose Equals No Eggs

Both politicians and union bosses are big in the promise department. Both promise to aid the working man with their interventionist policies. But how well do they deliver?

A classic case in point with respect to claims made by union bosses is that of Bertram Powers, head of the printers' union that struck New York City newspapers a few years ago. Powers had boasted that, even if some of the newspapers folded, there would always be work for printers. Now, after having been instrumental in the destruction of several of New York's biggest and oldest papers, Powers "admits," according to an item in the April 20 Wall Street Journal, "that hundreds of his men are jobless."

Nor should this really be surprising. The only way the working man, or anyone else for that matter, can be aided in the long run is by increased production of the goods and services people need and want. With more being produced, there is more to distribute. And, with more being produced and distributed, there are more and more people employed; thus earning the buying power to purchase that which is being produced and distributed. Neither politicians nor union bosses contribute beneficially to this production — distribution — employment process.

To the contrary, when the promises of politicians and union bosses are closely examined, it will be seen that their only stock in trade is force. The politicians impose taxes and regulations. The union bosses, aided by preferential laws and the threat of strikes and other forms of violence, impose unearned wage increases, featherbedding, and other uneconomic practices. All of these political and union interventions add to the costs of producing and distributing goods and services.

And, when these costs rise to the point where the industry or business can no longer pass them along to the consuming public in the form of increased prices for goods and services, the industry or business simply folds. Result: Production of goods and services fall off, their distribution, naturally, falls off, too, and jobs are destroyed. Working men, instead of being aided, are harmed.

One would think that even union boss Powers might be on the verge of getting the point.

Boondoggled Research

When political government becomes involved in affairs of human action, the result is usually a failure. A case in point is the report of the U.S. government's cancer crusade by Willard Edwards of the Chicago Tribune Service.

Being against cancer is good politics. After all, nobody that we know of is in favor of the deadly ailment, and nearly everyone has lost loved ones tragically because of cancer. So it was good politics when Congress launched a "crusade to conquer cancer," just as other high-sounding campaigns have been good politics; the War on Poverty, and the anti-crime crusade are only two examples of the failure of voting tax money to solve human problems.

Mr. Edwards points out that Congress has delayed in appropriating funds and the National Cancer Institute has been unable to properly plan its research. But when the funds were voted, there were new delays. One of the reasons was the duplicating work of rival agencies.

Mr. Edwards says reform of congressional and bureaucratic processes is essential to the conquest of cancer. The big reform we suggest is get the political agencies out of such fields entirely. The only things we can see that government cancer agencies — national, state, and local — have done are to interfere with private research and to build further the conflicting bureaucracies.

Question Box

QUESTION: What can I rightfully do about a neighbor who parks his camper in his driveway in such a way that it constitutes a hazard when I back out of my driveway?

ANSWER: You have indicated that you already have talked to your neighbor about this visual obstruction, and that he refuses to change his practice.

We have here an instance of a particular type of social problem. The difficulty originates on one property and is physically confined to the limits of that property. Yet it affects another property in a perceptible and significant manner.

Moreover, the question originates from a person who has a libertarian conviction, and he desires to find a way in probable liabilities would be, even the visual obstruction became a proximate cause to an accident.

From a practical standpoint, the libertarian viewpoint does not promise a solution to all irritants in life. Unlike Utopianistic notions such as Marxism, libertarianism does not look forward to any social paradise on earth. As long as you live in the vicinity of people, you will have people's problems. There is no substitute for a soft word or a kindly attitude.

Which can protect his rights without giving offense to his neighbor. In what manner may he eliminate the hazard without interfering with his neighbor's right to park his camper?

The questioner's difficulty, it seems to us, is not so much philosophical as technical. The hazard is not different than if the obstruction were caused by some natural mode, like a big rock or a curve in the road. That is to say, the questioner has no convenient remedy available, so he must adjust his own conduct to accommodate the unadaptable nuisance.

His method of adjustment might take the form of nailing a mirror to his garage door in a manner by which he can glimpse traffic conditions on the opposite side of his neighbor's camper, or it might take the form of being extra careful when he backs out. Other than that, he might rightfully talk to his car insurance agent.

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

No Wind In His Eyes!

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

William presents one of the worst threats to our Republic. Be sure you understand why our private foundations should never be forced to turn over their function to Uncle Sam. For when everybody must look to "Big Brother" for handouts and favors, voting can be coerced and freedom dies! Beware!

CASE Q-559: William C., aged 42, is a tax lawyer of note.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I believe the government is soon going to rescind the tax exemption of probably 9 family foundations out of every 10."

"Sparked by the hostility of former Senator Gore, an attempt is being made to stop private philanthropy."

"The many millions now being channeled into college gifts of libraries and research funds, or to hospitals and other broad educational projects, will then be confiscated by Uncle Sam."

"In this manner, American citizens will be forced to look to 'Big Brother' for future aids to charitable and educational projects."

"And that will be tragic! For when private foundations finance social, religious and educational goals, no coercion is then wielded over them on election day to make them vote for the party in power!"

"This attempt to eliminate private foundations, though most laymen haven't realized it thus far, is just another step toward 'Big Brother's Socialism.'"

"Our Founding Fathers didn't want us to be serfs of the state! They disliked having a slowly citizens kowtow to government for handouts."

"But the government has already placed everybody over 65 in its pocket!"

"That is because Uncle Sam operates Social Security funds instead of letting private insurance companies handle them."

"Astute political scientists, like editor Jameson Campaigne, Sr., have shown that if private insurance firms took care of the monthly deductions from your pay checks, then you would be eligible for nearly double the amount after you retire at 65!"

"Meanwhile, those firms would be PAYING taxes, like the rest of us."

"Uncle Sam pays no taxes on anything! Furthermore, Uncle Sam could not coerce votes by the veiled threat of tearing up Social Security checks."

"That's a form of psychological blackmail that was used very effectively on older voters in 1964 by LBJ's TV campaign."

"For TV showed Social Security checks being ripped apart, with the implication that such would be the result if Goldwater won."

"Remember, good laws and good government are never partisan! No party has a 'corner' on justice, probity, patriotism and honor.

Only crooked dealing becomes a partisan political device to coerce voters on election day.

And it is an axiom of Applied Psychology that the less you permit government to run your lives, the more freedom you will enjoy.

"The power to tax," said Chief Justice John Marshall, "is the power to destroy."

And Woodrow Wilson aptly stated the proper American motto:

"All any American should desire is a free field and no favors."

So you literate (reading) Americans need to expose the devious attempts to rob us of freedom, even as regards private foundations.

This is a non-partisan issue. So send for my booklet, 'How to Save Our Republic.'

Get it into all your high schools so the new leadership of this wonderful country will stop the mad trend toward Statism and dictatorship.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Pampa News, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

2-PARTY SYSTEM VITAL SAFEGUARD

The future of our Republic, if we are to avoid anarchy or dictatorship, is best safeguarded under a two-party system. The two-party system is best established and maintained at the grass roots. If each county in the U.S. builds a strong two-party system, that will insure a strong two-party system in each of the 50 states. That is the only way to assure a strong two-party system for our Republic.

A study of the history of governments should convince anyone that only the two-party system affords both stability and constructive progress. One-party governments, such as in the communist nations and the national socialist states of Hitler, Mussolini, Peron, etc., offer their citizens no opportunity for peaceful change and never permit opposition to the dictatorial individual or clique in power.

Any system which encourages third and fourth parties invites instability. If three, four or more parties, with splintered interests and splintered solutions, contend for election, the result is chaos like France goes through every few years.

There is almost never a majority view and seldom a solution to any problem. The resulting instability leads to anarchy unless a strong-man rule is imposed to restore order, as in France under De Gaulle. Or communists get control by a minority vote of 30 per cent, as in Chile.

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb

Some Vitamins Can Poison

Dear Dr. Lamb—I never knew that a person could take an overdose of vitamin A and get vitamin A poisoning until I read a doctor's column on this. I took 5,000-unit vitamin A capsules for about three years, sometimes one or two capsules a day. Then I took 25,000-unit capsules steady for about two years. According to a doctor's column taking 25,000 units of vitamin A regularly for several months could cause vitamin A poisoning.

Many prisoners were NOT poisoning and I stopped taking them. He said the symptoms would be pains in the bones and joints, loss of appetite, falling out of hair, all symptoms which have in addition to my joint pains, I have tightening of my skin. Could all of my problems be caused by taking too much vitamin A or is it the scleroderma?

Dear Reader—If a little is good more may not be better. There is such a thing as vitamin A toxicity. More often it occurs in children and the symptoms disappear when the vitamin A is stopped. The symptoms are about as you describe for chronic toxicity.

The daily requirement is only 5,000 units and of course you can take a great deal more than that, but excessively large doses should be avoided. A massive intake of vitamin A can cause acute poisoning, including nausea, vomiting, headache and near coma. This can come from eating polar bear liver which contains two million units in four ounces. But I doubt you will be eating much polar bear liver.

Many people have asked about the danger of getting too much iron or vitamins and if vitamins from health food stores are better. The real place for vitamins is for people who have a poor diet or some illness preventing the normal utilization of food. Occasionally supplemental iron is indicated, particularly in menstruating women. Most people who eat right will not get any additional benefit from popping down a handful of magic vitamins. I don't fuss too much about it because many people are on substandard diets and most vitamins won't do any harm taken in any reasonable amounts. The exceptions are vitamins A and vitamin D. These in excess can be harmful, since the excess amount can be stored in the body. Vitamin E, the current vitamin fad, may not help anyone who eats right but it won't cause any harm either.

Not only are vitamins plentiful in an adequate diet but many of our modern foods are enriched.

Many of the health foods are fads. Their vitamins are not better than those in drugstores or supermarkets. The latter are usually the cheapest. The FDA regulates labeling of such products and they all must meet the standards given on their labels. The big difference is the price.

Inside Washington

Defector's Statement

Raises POW Doubts

John Goldsmith

Robert Allen

WASHINGTON — Statements made last week by a top-level defector from North Vietnam are being carefully studied here with great interest and not a little concern.

Dr. Dang Tan, a physician and former official in the North Vietnamese Communist party, defected to the South in September 1969. He commented publicly at a news conference called in Saigon by the government of South Vietnam.

A prepared statement, read by the 42-year-old defector, included disclosures which disturb the officials here who have been concerned with the fate of U.S. prisoners of war held by Hanoi — not to mention the POW families. Dr. Tan confirmed the generally held view that the U.S. prisoners are receiving barbaric treatment in North Vietnam.

Tan spoke of U.S. prisoners paraded through the streets, subjected to "brutal interrogation methods" and exploited by their North Vietnamese captors for propaganda purposes. All that jibed with the accounts of the handful of prisoners who have returned to the United States from prison camps in North Vietnam.

Viewed as even more disquieting was Dr. Tan's assertion that all prisoners of the French Indochina war have not been released by Hanoi "even to the present day." He suggested that 300 of them are still being held.

Dr. Tan predicted that North Vietnam will not release all the U.S. prisoners of war "now or in the future."

SOME SKEPTICAL — SOME FORCED — Dr. Tan said he saw some of the prisoners from the war with the French, which ended in 1954 as recently as 1965 when they were being used as road and maintenance workers.

He is quoted as saying: "Many prisoners were NOT repatriated. Some married Vietnamese and did not want to go home. Some volunteered to stay and study our communist system. Others were asked to stay."

"They were asked, yes, but some were forced to stay." Some officials here speculate that Dr. Tan may have been speaking about foreign legionnaires and other expatriates who fought with the French in Indochina. Some of them are known to have remained in North Vietnam, but none of the veterans of French service were thought to have been forcibly detained.

If that portion of Dr. Tan's statement is correct it adds new dimensions to the already complex problem of war prisoners. Even if it is to be assumed that all French citizens were repatriated, and that all U.S. prisoners would be returned, it suggests a serious problem with respect to those who have fought beside the U.S. — especially Koreans, Laotians, Cambodians and, of course, South Vietnamese.

Moreover, in view of continuing uncertainties with respect to what prisoners are actually being held by the Communists, POW families may find it hard to take on faith the idea that all U.S. POWs will be returned if, in fact, some prisoners of the previous war are still being held.

I recent weeks, some of the POW families have been warning to the idea of announcing a U.S. withdrawal date keyed to the release of U.S. prisoners. Dr. Tan's statement, if true, could cool that sentiment in a hurry.

SOME SKEPTICAL — It must be quickly noted that some officials here are openly skeptical about Dr. Tan's disclosures.

The skeptics do not doubt that some POWs from the war with the French are still in North Vietnam. They say (as Dr. Tan said in his new conference) that some expatriates remained in North Vietnam voluntarily.

The French, the skeptics add, have never claimed that any residue of their Indochina force, of whatever extraction and pedigree, was detained in North Vietnam — and they do not say so now.

Finally, the skeptics note that Dr. Tan's defection, in Pleiku Province in South Vietnam's central highlands, occurred nearly two years ago. They suggest that he has been intensively questioned over that period by South Vietnamese intelligence and by U.S. agents as well.

Under those circumstances, the skeptics ask whether Dr. Tan's story could not have been checked out and supported with further information if it is now to be accepted as fact.

They suggest that Dr. Tan's frightening comments, made 20 months after his defection and at a time when the POW problem has become a central point in U.S. withdrawal policy, may have embroidered the truth.

The State Department, according to informed sources here, has been asked to explore Dr. Tan's statement with the French and through other international channels.

Even Sigmund Freud Gets Good Shower Of Brickbats

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—It is not only the political, military and business establishment that are being attacked these days.

No idols are sacred, it seems. This reporter was at recent discussions among psychiatrists in which Sigmund Freud, the "father" of psychoanalysis, came in for an unusually thorough drubbing.

Now it is not strange for one body of modern psychiatrists to disagree with Freud's theories. But this was more.

It was suggested that some of the basic techniques and theories of psychiatry itself had been seriously and unhappily warped by Freud's own deep personality problems which he had foisted onto this branch of medicine.

And that subconsciously he had brought in certain invalid concepts because of his own femininity, his unduly great emotional linkage with his mother, his lack of a strong male image (father), his strong personal feelings of guilt, self-doubts, indecision and passivity.

Freud, it was said, was so mixed up that at one period in his life, after falling in love at a distance, he renounced the opposite sex for 10 years.

Throughout his life, it was said, Freud had a passion for masculine women. He picked a strong-willed woman for a mate and, when differences existed between them, she regularly stood up to him and "in all major issues she proved to be the stronger."

He was plagued by fears of an early end to his life. As a young boy he had fantasies of wielding power over men.

He wished desperately to remain attached to his mother, but at the same time he feared her, though he was her favorite.

It was suggested that it was Freud's own indecisiveness that caused him to promulgate a method of psychoanalysis which sometimes goes on interminably with no end in sight.

It was argued that his particular neuroses as noted above led to these Freudian precepts — the death instinct, biologic insexuality, that women are incompressible, that sadistic drive motivates physicians, that one cannot deal with the relatives of mental patients.

In the vernacular, Freud was almost literally described as a crazy mixed-up kid who injected his own neuroses into the warp and woof of psychoanalysis and psychiatry.

As one psychiatrist put it: "It seems likely that had Freud been born into a different family constellation and had not remained so tied to his mother, psychoanalytic theory and practice of today might be considerably different and, I suggest, further advanced."

U.S. Quietly Withdraws:
Japan has quietly take over all air defenses of the Japanese islands, and U.S. Air Force combat units have withdrawn to Okinawa and South Korea. The last seven U.S. Phantom bombers in Japan were withdrawn May 13 and relocated on Okinawa, the only Japanese territory still occupied by U.S. forces. The United States continues to keep about 30,800 military men in Japan, including 13,500 in the Air Force, but most of them are assigned to supply and logistic duties. Japan's air, ground and sea defenses are in the hands of Japan's home guard defense forces, a volunteer militia of 259,000.

Rude Awakenings:
Gaulist government insiders say the easing of the French position on Britain's Common Market entry was the direct result of French irritation over West Germany's decision to let the Deutschmark float free on world money markets and the sudden, rude awakening to the fact that the Deutschmark now dominates the six-nation community. "If we don't let the British in fast, said one high Elysee Palace official, "to balance out West Germany's weight we will soon wind up in the Deutschmark monetary zone." Agreement is expected soon diplomatic relations, Austria and China on establishment of diplomatic relations. Austria has formally proposed relations in quiet ambassadorial-level talks in Bucharest. Few complications, therefore, expected.

Painted into a Corner:
The Nationalist Chinese government has placed itself in an awkward situation over the "two China" issue. Government leaders from President Chiang Kai-shek on down repeatedly have stated the nation's opposition to any "two China" concept. But none will come out and say they will withdraw from the United Nations if Communist China is admitted. A case in point: Foreign Minister Chow Shu-kaia, only a month after taking office, was furious over a report saying China would quit the U.N. to avoid recognition of a "two China" policy. But he would not deny it because to do so would weaken the Chinese position.

Paris vs. Tripoli:
Relations between France and Libya have cooled considerably since the left-leaning Tripoli regime a few days ago threw its support behind Algeria in the latter's tussle with France over nationalization of Algerian oil. The question now is whether Libya will refuse to deliver to France the oil she no longer gets from Algeria and, if she does, will France go ahead with delivery of the 110 Mirage jet fighters ordered by Libya.

FOR ATTEMPTED HIJACKING

Soviet Court Convicts Nine Jews

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Lenin-grad court convicted nine Jewish men Thursday and sentenced them to terms ranging from one to 10 years in prison camps for their roles in an attempted airplane hijacking and anti-Soviet agitation, the Soviet news agency Tass said.

The defendants can appeal the sentences, which were ordered carried out under a "strick regime"—the medium degree of three types of prison camp sentences which pertains to the kind of labor performed, mail and visiting privileges and other conditions of life.

The sentences fulfilled the demands of the prosecution almost exactly. The three-man "collegium," combining the functions of judge and jury, handed down its verdict after a day of deliberation in the 10-day trial.

In Jerusalem, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban charged the sentences were "a complete distortion of justice and truth."

"Basically, the defendants were not being tried for the hate of the Soviet Union but for the love of Israel," Eban said. "There was nothing in their hearts, no intention whatsoever, to hurt the administration or the regime of the Soviet Union."

(Absorption Minister Nathan Peled, charged with responsibility for immigrants to Israel, termed the sentences "illegal.")

The sentencing ended round two in the prosecution of more than 30 Soviet Jews arrested last June when police broke up an attempt by 12 persons to hijack an airliner, presumably to Sweden as a first step toward emigration to Israel.

The original 12 were tried last December and January and were sentenced up to 15 years. Two persons originally were sentenced to death but after a worldwide uproar over the penalty the sentence was reduced to 15 years.

In Leningrad, Hillel Butman was sentenced to 10 years in prison camp and Mikhail Korenblit to seven years. Both were charged with treason. The Soviets said they helped finance and plot the attempted hijacking.

The other sentences were: Five years for Lassa Kaminsky and Lev Yagman, four for Vladimir Mogilever, three for Viktor Boguslavsky, Solomon Dreizner and Lev Korenblit and one for Viktor Shilbans. The trial was barred to Western newsmen. Tass has been providing the only official information on the trial.

VE FRIDAY HOROSCOPE SATURDAY, MAY 21 Your Birthday - Saturday - Spiritual enrichment comes your way all through the year ahead, so that even the dullest routines take on a different quality. Your habits and chores take on of your daily living as you transform views and values from inner growth. Saturday's natives are usually self-starters with original ideas.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Leave unpleasant topics alone; stay in good humor for a fairly easy day. News may go unspoken, unnoticed. Be alert and diligent.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your good fortune also brings relief to somebody else. Seek no selfish advantage; there's enough of everything for all.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Expect contradictory comment from unliking people; leave them behind off the beaten path. Rely on experience and proven skills rather than opportunity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You can put on a good show but try not to lead yourself off the beaten path. Rely on experience and proven skills rather than opportunity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Declare a holiday - or, if you can't take off, see what a holiday even in your routine becomes when viewed in humorous light.

YRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You receive an assurance by an expedient for the moment. Change things around to remove causes for recurrence - the liberation is worth seeking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The more youthful your spirit time brightens is this curious, deceptively smooth day. Great energy is asleep under surface calm, available on subtle triggering.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Studies, both past and present, can be applied advantageously. Strive for more accurate details.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Don't hold back tactful criticism. Few will hear it in the spirit intended anyway. Care in exposing your own activity to general view is important.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Blushy objects and ideas come to ready use or get completely lost, according to how you direct your energy and how realistic the goals.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Give your deeper unconscious mind a chance to digest recent experience. It won't rest as does your intellect when you sleep.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Old habits family customs fall or are forgotten in the swift rush of emotional experience. If you can avoid action, be thankful and relax.

LIKE FATHER... COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—State Rep. Howard A. Knight, R-Fremont, is all for lowering the voting age to 18. "My son, Christopher, who is 19, is very capable of going to the polls and making an analytical decision about who to vote for as his state representative," Knight said Wednesday, to the laughter of his colleagues.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

No two snow crystals have ever been discovered with exactly the same size, pattern and number of water molecules. In 1885, Wilson A. Bentley of Jericho, Vt., pioneered photography of snow crystals. The World Almanac recalls. About 3,000 photos were published in 1931 by Bentley and William Humphreys in "Snow Crystals." This book popularized interest in the subject through its exquisite pictures of snowflakes. Copyright © 1970, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Secret Of Winning Is Beating Others

By JOE CORNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

It's an old baseball axiom that the secret of winning a pennant is to break even with your contenders and beat the also-rans consistently but Eddie Kasko has different feelings.

"Those old sayings don't mean a thing," said Kasko after his Boston Red Sox prepped for tonight's important series opener against the Baltimore Orioles with a 5-2 victory over the New York Yankees. "I just don't want to come out any worse than I go in. All I want to do is win more games than they do, that's all. I don't care when or where we do it or who we beat to do it."

The victory, the fourth in a row for the Red Sox, left them three games ahead of Baltimore in the American League Eastern Division race. The Orioles were rained out Thursday night after leading Washington 1-0 in the third.

Elsewhere in the AL, Oakland ripped Milwaukee 7-3, California edged Minnesota 1-0 and Detroit beat Cleveland 5-3 in 11 innings.

In the National League, Philadelphia nipped New York 1-0. San Francisco outlasted Chicago 8-8. Cincinnati edged Pittsburgh 5-4. St. Louis downed Los Angeles 7-5. San Diego topped Houston 4-2 and Montreal defeated Atlanta 4-3 in 14 innings.

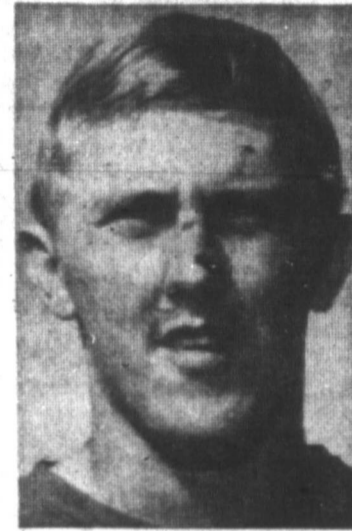

Rico Petrocelli and George Scott hit two run homers and Bob Bolin turned in a strong relief performance as the Red Sox beat New York. Reggie Smith walked in the first and scored on Carl Yastrzemski's double and Petrocelli, with nine RBIs in his last five games, hit a home run, his fifth.

Yastrzemski, who was 3-for-4, singled in the eighth and Scott followed with his home run.

Jim Lonborg (1-0) will oppose Dave McNally (6-2) of the Orioles in tonight's opener of a four-game series.

"We'll take what we can get," said Kasko. "The margin of our lead doesn't interest me at all at this stage of the season. If this was September, I'd worry about it. Of course we'd like to do better than split the series but at this stage, I guess we'll settle for that."

Dave Duncan and Mike Epstein homered to highlight a 13-hit attack as Oakland beat Milwaukee to stretch its Western Division lead to 6 1/2 games.

Back In Training After Accident

Dick Henley, a 1968 graduate of Pampa High School will be back in training next fall at Northwestern State College in Alva, Okla.

Henley met with an accident two years ago which has prevented his participation in sports. He will be a senior this coming year and will be limited to baseball in his sporting activities.

The '72 Northwestern graduate will keep training and expects a full recovery.

Green And Gold Game Success Shows Pampa A Polished Team

By STEPHEN OHLANDER

The Green and Gold football team played last night's gold game at Harvester Stadium was a costar success according to head coach R. E. "Swede" Lee.

The gold won the game to 7 with both quarterbacks, Rick Musgrave and Dale Ammons playing a real tough ball game.

The Green team with Dale Ammons at the helm scored the first touchdown but failed to maintain their lead. Gold's first touchdown came on a pass completion from Musgrave to Billy Lemmons with six seconds gone in the fourth quarter.

There are many bright spots in Pampa's future in District 3-AAAA football. Al Ferguson in line backer position kept pressure on during last night's game and gave a good account of himself.

Garvin McCarroll and Tibby Rogers made several outstanding plays. All in all the game was played centered around defense. Neither team dominated the game and started running up a high score.

Mike Reddell played a rough game not giving way to several hard tackles and blocks. Ed Townsend was playing a tough game as well as a ball game.

The crowd turnout was better than some of the home fans are used to last year. The program will do nothing but build a player eager program as a player eager program with someone cheering in on.

The players Thursday night didn't retreat from a hard tackle or blistering block. It gave what they had and a few had surprises for the coaches.

In the Junior Varsity scrimmage Toddy Black and Tony Frogge manned the quarterback spots and both did what was expected of them.

Steve Mathis, an upcoming sophomore, played some hard hitting ball as did David Nipp and Joe Curtis.

But stand-out member on the junior green and gold was Jack King. King repeatedly gained yardage for his team where no one else could find a hole.

Chuck Reves played a good game showing some fine broken field running.

Pampa's football future is bright, perhaps brighter now than ever before and using a play on words: What was green in now polishing into pure gold.

WTSU Tennis Squad Among NCAA Entries

CANYON — West Texas State University tennis team, thanks to its entry in the Missouri Valley conference tournament two weeks ago, will be among the entries in the National Collegiate Athletic Association Tennis Tournament June 14-19 at South Bend, Indiana.

The Buffaloes of coach David Kent captured the MVC crown pointing to 13 second place.

Kent will take four players to the tournament: senior Leo Estopore, junior Paul Tobin and Mike Bolton, freshman John Phillips.

Each of the near 100 teams entered in the NCAA tournament will be allowed to enter a four man group. There will be no separate divisions — only one singles tournament and one doubles tournament.

Estopore completed a 22-7 record this Spring in singles. Tobin and Bolton had 24-5 marks, while Phillips had a 28-3 standard. Estopore played doubles with Bolton while Phillips and Tobin team for doubles. Both doubles teams had 22-3 season marks.

The Buffaloes had a 23-3 team record in dual matches against other teams this season.

John Mayberry Called Up By Houston Astros

HOUSTON (UPI)—First baseman John Mayberry, who is hitting more than .300 with seven homers and 20 runs batted in for the Oklahoma City 89ers, was called up by the Houston Astros Thursday.

Larry Howard, a third string catcher who is hitting .000 in four games, was sent to Oklahoma City.

Homero Blancas Runs Texas Golf Berserk

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Homero Blancas, a product of the University of Houston golf factory, makes a run at the big money every now and then during the year, but when he gets to Texas he goes berserk.

Blancas made a run at the Byron Nelson Golf Classic in Dallas two weeks ago, was a contender last week at Houston and Thursday went out and fired a three-under-par 67 to tie for the first round lead of the $125,000 Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament with Canadian George Knudson.

That twosome had a one-stroke lead over lesser lights Bert Greene, Fred Marti and Jack Montgomery.

Another stroke back at one-under-par 69 were five players including amateur sensation Ben Crenshaw, a Freshman at the University of Texas who finished seventh last week at Houston.

The others clipping par were former Colonial winner Dave Stockton, Jerry Heard, Bert Yancey and Chuck Courtney.

Tarleton State College Names WT Coach To Head Basketball Program

CANYON — Lonnie Nichols, assistant basketball coach at West Texas State University, has been hired as head basketball coach at Tarleton State College in Stephenville, Tex.

Nichols, who was the freshman coach at West Texas for two years, will assume his new post July 15.

West Texas State head coach Dennis Walling has not named a replacement for Nichols.

The 28-year-old Nichols graduated from Byers High School in 1960. He played for Walling at Decatur Baptist Junior College for two years and played two years at Midwestern University.

After graduation from Midwestern, Nichols coached Byers High School to 28-5 and 27-7 records in two years. His Dallas Cedar Hill team had a 13-14 mark the year before he moved to West Texas.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The issue of U.S. troop strength in Europe raised in the Senate this week likely will remain a subject of congressional debate for months to come.

Many lawmakers obviously feel the Nixon administration is not moving fast enough toward Europeanization of the European defense program and will continue to press for stepped-up withdrawal of American forces.

To help clarify my own thinking on the matter, I submitted a series of questions to Dr. Henry Kissinger, well-known lecturer on foreign affairs and taxidermy. Here is his assessment of the situation:

Q. What will be the outcome of the moves in Congress to reduce the number of U.S. troops in Europe?

A. The most immediate outcome will be an increase in the number of congressmen going to Europe to investigate the need for American troops.

Q. Suppose all American troops in Europe were withdrawn? Would that bring a halt to the congressional trips?

A. No. In that event, congressmen would fly to Europe to investigate the need for American troops in Europe.

Q. At what level do you feel the American force in Europe should be maintained?

A. I feel there should be at least as many U.S. troops as there are U.S. congressmen in Europe.

Q. What are the chances of bringing about a troop reduction through negotiations with the Soviet Union?

A. Very Poor. The Soviets fear West Germany would use the withdrawal of American troops as an excuse to rearm. Consequently, they will not agree to anything that might cause America to pull out.

Q. Are you saying there is nothing to be gained from troop strength negotiations?

A. Not unless we can talk the Russians into paying half the cost of keeping our troops in Europe.

Q. Apart from pleasing the Russians, what other reason do we have for a 300,000-man force in Europe? Are they needed to operate the vast missile system the Pentagon has established?

A. No. Our NATO allies are capable of operating the missile system. American troops are needed to operate the post exchange system.

Q. Why do we need a post exchange system in Europe?

A. At the rate our trade deficit is growing, it won't be long before the post exchanges are the only places in Europe where American goods are sold.

Computer May Answer Financial Problems For Students

NEW YORK (UPI)—Many students in the process of graduating from high school and their families are scrounging around today for money to pay college expenses looming ahead.

For some June graduates the computer may have an answer, or partial answer, to that financial problem.

Have you lived on an Indian reservation for at least six weeks? Or, is your last name Murphy, Anderson or Leavenworth?

If so you may be eligible for part or full financial aid, details of which can be found in the computer data bank maintained by Scholarship Search, a New York company. Banks around the country are signing up with this company as a public service gesture and also to ease the pressure for low interest college loans in a time of tight money.

Millions of dollars in scholarships, grants and loans are available each year through various private and government organizations. Yet many scholarships go unused because students and their counselors do not know they exist since some are awarded on the basis of where you live, ethnic origins, vocational preferences, social or religious affiliations and the like.

Two years ago three young New York men—Steve Schlessinger, Leonard Sauson and Charles Beaghan—decided to program a computer to ferret out scholarship information. Six months ago they went to David North & Associates, Inc., a management consultant firm in New York, to see how to set broad base for the operation.

David North suggested banks. Since May 1, 35 banks with more than 600 branches a round the country have signed up with the service. Seventy other applications are pending and 400 are expected to be in the scholarship research business by mid-summer. American Fletcher National Bank of Indianapolis had 2,000 applications in the first 10 days, according to North. The Western Pennsylvania National Bank of Pittsburgh ran out of application forms just handling its own employees.

The applicant goes to a bank with such a service and fills out a five page questionnaire. He gets back a computerized printout suggesting scholarship or other college financial aid for which he may be eligible and details on how, when and where to apply for it. For a fee of $20 each applicant receives a minimum of 10 "leads" to financial aid. No charge is made if the computer fails to provide at least 10 scholarship or grant items.

Grants ranging from $100 to full tuition, board and room are in this data bank. Donors include unions, fraternal organizations, foundations, local, state and federal agencies, military auxiliary organizations, industrial groups, corporations and educational institutions.

Financial need is not a deterrent in qualifying.

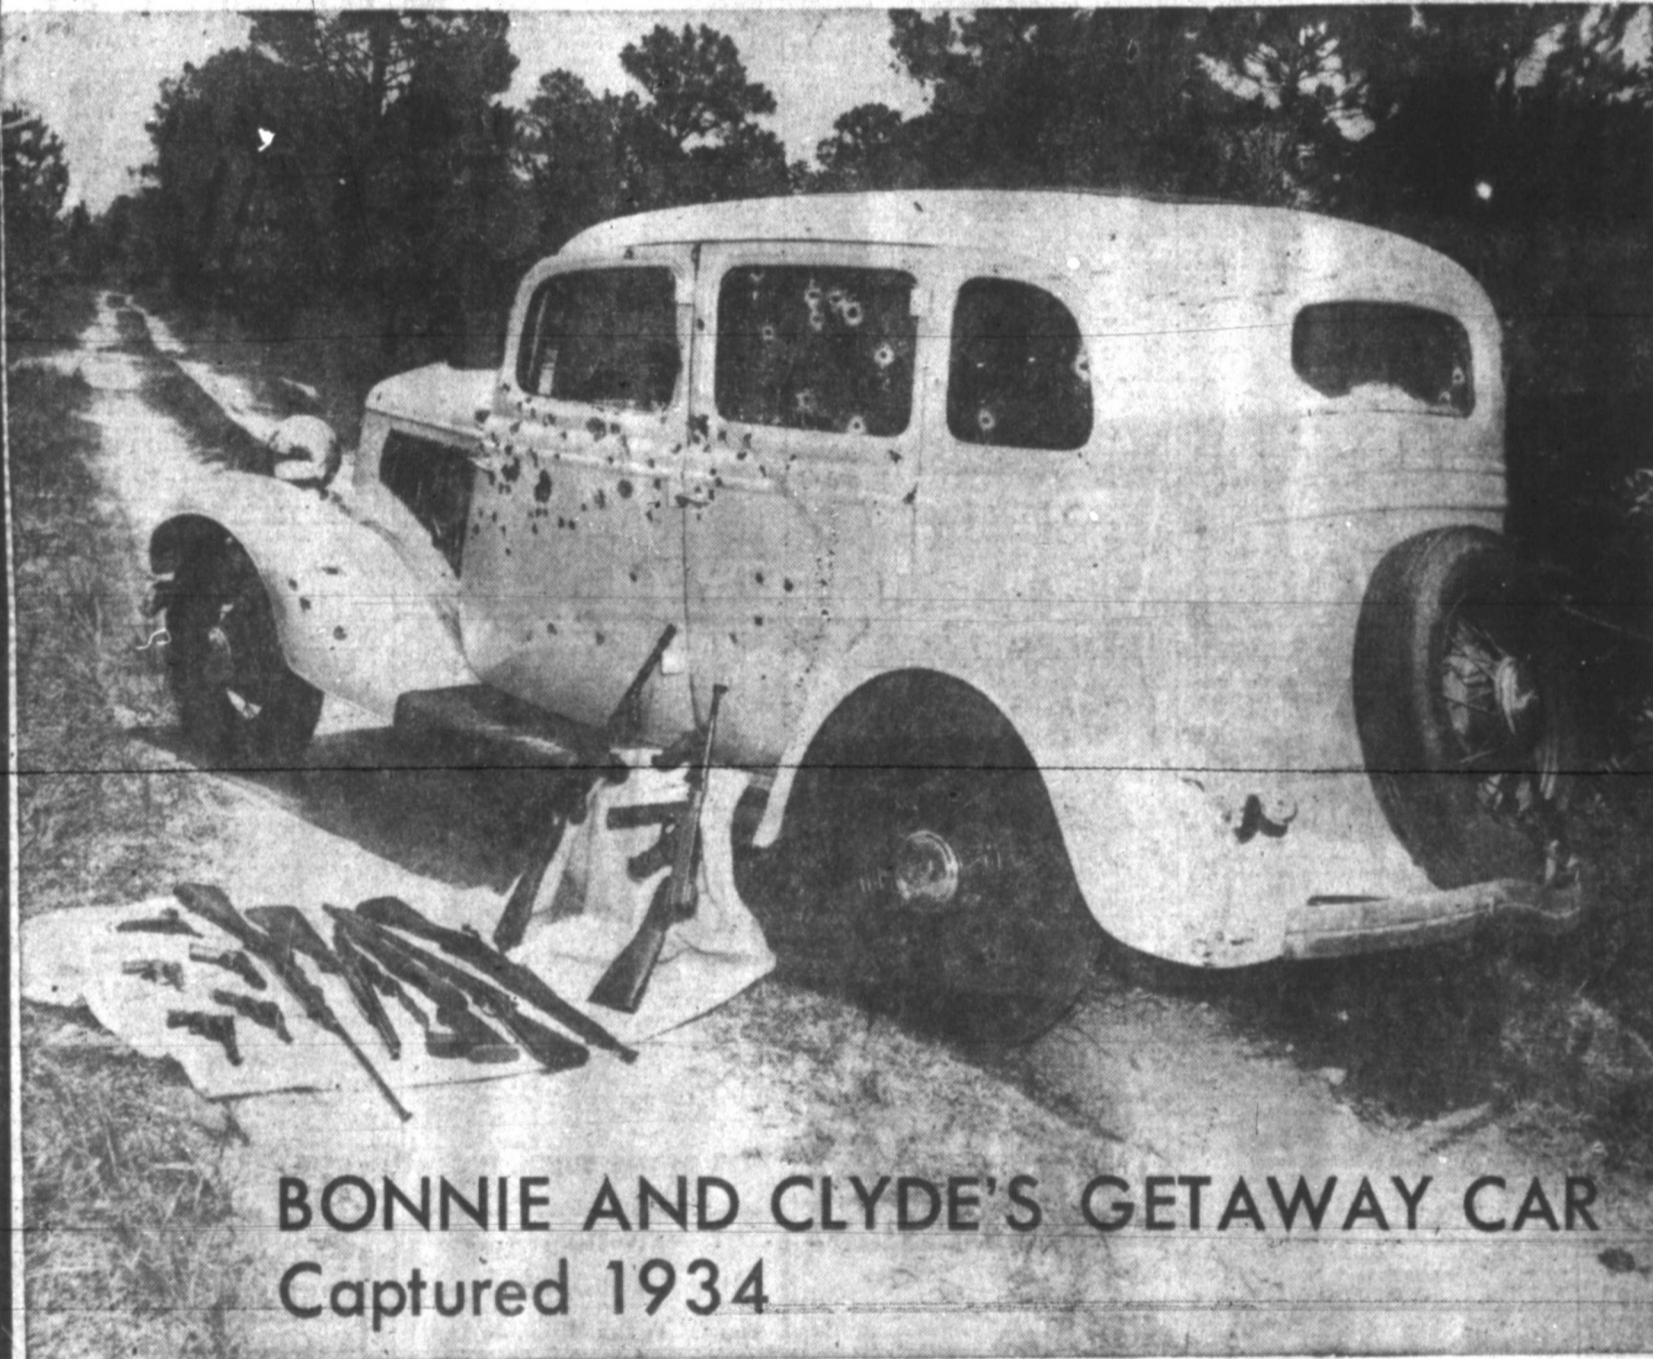

For example, an American Indian living in New York state and desiring a career in agriculture can apply to Cornell University for a tuition grant. Any student with the surname "Leavenworth" can apply to Yale for a $900 annual tuition grant thanks to a fund established by a Yale graduate interested in perpetuating his family name.
