AT CELANESE PLANT

Environment Control Projects Under Way

By TEX DEWEESE
News Staff Writer

"There is no mystery about how to protect our environment — it just takes money, hard work and people who care."

That's the opinion of John Fritsch, manager of the Celanese Chemical Co. Pampa plant, who told The News yesterday that Celanese will spend whatever is needed to meet, and exceed, the anti-pollution requirements of Texas and the U.S. Government in order to protect the air, water and soil of the community.

Fritsch outlined the environmental control projects scheduled for completion at the Celanese Pampa plant this year as well as the methods his staff is using to inform employees of the fact that environmental maintenance is a 24-hour-a-day job. The overall program is under the direction of the plant's environmental maintenance coordinator, Cliff DeRose, a chemical engineer who is a graduate of the University of New Mexico.

"It is Celanese corporate policy that we consider protection of air, water and soil as community obligations which are part of the cost of doing business," Fritsch said. "In our existing facilities, our technical department continues to make design changes to reduce plant waste. And all new plant facilities will include pollution control equipment needed for adequate disposal of wastes."

Fritsch said a major objective of the Pampa Celanese plant's 1971 environmental maintenance program is to reduce odors which may occasionally become objectionable to its neighbors. Several odor control projects have been initiated in recent months; some are in the process design stage, others are being installed, and still others are being reviewed by Celanese management for approval of funds.

One such project is a vent recovery and disposal system for the plant's methyl ethyl ketone production unit. This system will collect all major vents from the MEK unit and dispose of all excess vapor in process furnaces. "Another major odor control project involves the use of a vent disposal system in the plant's heavy acids and lower acrylate units," Fritsch said. "All the major vents will be collected and burned, using two flares. Not only do these flares provide complete combustion of the waste gases, but steam injection into the flares also permits smokeless burning."

Other odor control projects planned for 1971 include the reduction of control room odors through the use of specially treated air conditioner filters; the development of a waste water treatment process to reduce odors from the plant's solar evaporation ponds; and the purchase of an analytical instrument which indicates the amount of methane hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide in samples of ambient air and stationary sources.

In addition to these projects, Fritsch said the Celanese plant's five-year environmental maintenance plan included other projects and equipment which will reduce or eliminate specific plant odors, effluent and noise problems.

"Several of the environmental control systems at the Celanese Pampa plant date back to 1962, when it was constructed," Fritsch said. "Others were installed as needed for adequate disposal of wastes."

The plant is in compliance with all Texas and Federal air and water regulations but, as Fritsch pointed out, "Celanese tries to surpass these requirements in order to protect its position as a good corporate neighbor."

Systems that have been in use for many years at the local plant include drainage ditches for the collection and removal of process waste water and rain water (all of which is contained on Celanese property). Solar evaporation ponds are used for disposal of this waste water.

Bag filters are used for the removal of particulates from certain process vents, thus keeping them out of the atmosphere. Vent scrubbers are used to remove pollutants and their accompanying odors from the atmosphere.

More recently installed pollution control equipment at the Pampa plant include an odor abatement incinerator which reduces the plant's more pungent smells and a smokeless flare which burns vapors emitted from the ketone unit, thus eliminating offensive odors.

Two years ago, Celanese installed incinerators which completely destroy the plant's solid and liquid waste material. These incinerators eliminate open pit burning. Pampa's solid incinerator was the first such equipment to become operational in the entire U.S. chemical industry, Fritsch said. The unit reaches a temperature as high as 2,800 degrees F., almost 1,000 degrees F. above that of standard equipment. It uses two chambers, one for vaporization, the other for actual combustion.

Solid waste is heated by overhead gas burners until the combustibles evaporate. The vaporized combustibles are then passed to the second chamber where another burner completes the combustion.

The plant's daily collection of about three tons of solid wastes from petrochemical operations is incinerated, along with some 2,500 pounds per day of plant refuse such as trash, paper and scrap lumber. The unit's low level of ash — less than 5 per cent — makes it necessary to clean but the ashes from the incinerator only once every two or three weeks. A dumptruck carts away the ashes for burial, except for some which is used as roadbed material on the plant's secondary roads.

"Pollution control projects and equipment — no matter how extensive or expensive — are effective only when they are properly used and understood," Fritsch said. "That is why we have set up an awareness program to keep our employees well informed concerning environmental problems, solutions, and governmental regulations."

Last fall, Pampa plant employees participated in a series of environmental maintenance awareness programs — running weekly from Oct. 13, through Dec. 1 — which covered existing control facilities and equipment at the plant, types of pollution (air, water, solids, thermal); state and Federal regulations; and action plans in each area. # Kidnapers Threaten To Kill 4 GIs If Ransom Not Paid

CONCERT RENEWAL TIME — Members of the Pampa Community Concert Association will have all of next week to renew memberships for the 1971-72 concert season. Shown here are Mrs. E. L. Green Jr., seated, checking campaign packets and discussing arrangements for Sunday afternoon's workers tea with Mrs. M. McDaniel, area membership chairman, and Joe D. Cree, as association president. ## Concert Membership Drive Opens Sunday

The annual campaign for renewal memberships in the Pampa Community Concert Association's 1971-72 season will kick off at a tea for membership drive workers Sunday afternoon.

The affair will be from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday in the home of Mrs. Raymond Harrah, 2201 Charles. Mrs. Harrah is drive chairman and will be assisted by Dick Stowers, assistant drive chairman, according to Joe Cree, association president.

More than 100 campaign workers will receive instruction packets and begin contacting current members for membership renewals.

Concern association dues will be the same as in the past, $10 for adult memberships and $5 for students.

Renewal week will run through next Saturday. Association workers will meet at a campaign dinner at 7 p.m. Monday, March 15, in the Coronado Inn Starlight Room.

where they will be addressed by Mrs. Marguerite Maddox, New York representative of Columbia Artists through which concert numbers are booked for Pampa.

Three stellar attractions already have been engaged for the season opening next fall. They are Ferrante and Teicher, nationally-known two-piano team; the Stockholm University Chorus; and Dorothy Wrenskjold's Musical Theater. A fourth attraction for the 1971-72 season will be booked following the close of this year's membership drive.

At conclusion of the campaign dinner on March 15, the association membership roll will be opened to the public on a first come, first served basis for current memberships that are not renewed this week. The campaign will end Saturday, March 20.

The present concert season will wind up Friday, March 26. (See CONCERT, Page 2)

Jury Summons General To Testify About Brass Activities At My Lai

FT. BENNING, Ga. (UPI)—The Calley court-martial jury wants to hear from Maj. Gen. Samuel W. Koster just what the Army higher brass was doing at My Lai and why he personally countermanded a brigade order to check out whether civilians were killed there.

The six-officer panel—five of them Vietnam veterans—can give Lt. William L. Calley Jr. death if it finds him guilty as charged of premeditated murder of 102 Vietnamese civilians. It also can reduce the charge to manslaughter.

Unlike civilian juries, it can request its own witnesses. During the last two days it has been a take-charge jury. It not only has asked the questions that have produced telling and revealing testimony, it also has requested that officers be called right up the chain from platoon-leader Calley to division commander Koster.

Calley was in the infantry sweep of the My Lai hamlet, long a Communist military stronghold but devoid of armed enemy that March 16, 1968, morning. He has testified he got his orders to slaughter everything living in My Lai from his boss, Capt. Ernest L. Medina, company commander of the three assault platoons.

Medina was in a task force of the American division that Koster commanded before he was transferred to West Point as superintendent of the U.S. Military Academy. Koster resigned at West Point last March 17 when he and 13 other officers were charged with trying to cover up civilian slaugter.

The charges have been dropped against all of these except Col. Oran K. Henderson, commander of the task force brigade, who will stand court-martial.

U.S. Jets Blast Red Sites With New Heavy Bombs

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. military sources said today the United States was using 15,000-pound blockbuster bombs in Laos to blast out instant landing zones for helicopter-borne South Vietnamese closing in on Sempone, a Ho Chi Minh Trail road junction and missile site.

The blockbusters, biggest conventional bombs in the U.S. arsenal, were parachuted from the rear doors of C130 Hercules planes and fused to explode several feet above the ground. The bomb's sideways blast creates a landing area the size of a football field for helicopters.

Military spokesmen said 2,000 South Vietnamese infantrymen were within three miles of Sempone and could see the city that has been virtually destroyed by U.S. bombing attacks. Sempone, 27 miles inside Laos, was announced as a major objective of the drive across the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

On Thursday, the U.S. Defense Department disclosed that the North Vietnamese had moved surface-to-air (SAM) missiles into the Sempone area for attacks on American planes—first known Communist use of the missiles outside North Vietnam.

Military sources said the 7½ ton blockbuster bombs, only one of which can be carried aboard a C130, were dropped several days before the South Vietnamese resumed their push into Laos Thursday in the first forward movement in weeks.

The bomb has been used in South Vietnam but today's was the first disclosure of their use in Laos.

Turkish Students Fire On Police, Troops Hunting For Abductors

ANKARA (UPI)—Five thousand Turkish troops and police battled 1,000 armed students for four hours on a university campus today in a search for the kidnapers of four U.S. servicemen. Violence swept the Turkish capital.

At least one student died in the fighting at Middle East Technical University (METU), Turkish officials said. They said about 15 students, one soldier and one Turkish army lieutenant were injured.

Witnesses said the students shouted, "Damn American imperialism!" and fired at the soldiers from windows.

Army commando units moved into Ankara from nearby garrisons to reinforce security in the capital, a police spokesman said.

Political sources said martial law might be imposed. The kidnapers of the U.S. airmen extended by 12 hours their deadline for payment of $400,000 ransom. They said they would kill the captives if it was not paid.

A chain reaction of violence spread elsewhere in Turkey. In Istanbul five men robbed a bank and escaped.

Security officials reported snipers firing at police sentries in Ankara, in one case from a speeding car.

A witness said there was heavy fighting between the troops and students.

"Students fired on the troops and commandos from countless windows," the witness said. "The commandos crawled on the ground to get close to the buildings in the light of dawn."

The students shouted "Independent Turkey!" as they fought the troops and police, who arrived in 51 military trucks and 30 police buses. When the fighting ended, police began a building-by-building search for the Americans and their captors.

"We don't know yet whether the kidnapers and their hostages are hiding on the campus but a search will soon show," a police spokesman said.

Students threw up barricades and handed out guns when security officials rejected an appeal by Professor Erdal Inonu, university rector and son of former President Ismet Inonu, that police not make the search.

Security officials said the campus long has been a stronghold of leftwing students and undergraduate militance.

Police said they believed the kidnapers, who identified themselves as members of the "Turkish People's Liberation Army," may have hidden on the campus.

The battle broke out at 4 a.m. and, three hours later, gunfire was heard in downtown Ankara.

Nixon: Laos Drive Insures Withdrawal

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon said Thursday night the invasion of Laos has proved the South Vietnamese army can "hack it" and insured continued withdrawal of U.S. troops. He said his goal remained to get all Americans out of Vietnam "as soon as we can."

During a sometimes emotional defense of his Indochina policies at a televised news conference, Nixon also declared the United States has considered no plan to support a South Vietnamese invasion of North Vietnam.

"None has been considered and none is under consideration," Nixon said. But the President said he did not rule out the use of air power "against military complexes on the borders of North Vietnam" if he concluded actions of the Hanoi regime endangered withdrawing American forces.

Truck Traffic Slowed
Asked about statements by South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu about a possible attack into North Vietnam, Nixon said he would not speculate on what position Thieu might take in the future "in order to defend himself—the right of self defense—in view of the fact that he is being attacked."

Nixon contended the three-week-old South Vietnamese thrust into the Ho Chi Minh trail complex in southern Laos, backed by U.S. air power, has "seriously damaged" North Vietnamese military capabilities. He quoted Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, U.S. commander in Vietnam, that the drive already had cut Communist truck traffic by 55 per cent on the trail.

While there was "hard fighting ahead," Nixon said, the decrease in traffic meant "that those trucks that do not go south will not carry the arms and the men that will be killing Americans."

Combat Units Compared
Nixon said that during the current operations the South Vietnamese "on the ground by themselves" had taken on the best units the North Vietnamese could put into the field.

"General Abrams tells me that in both Laos and Cambodia his evaluation after three weeks of fighting is that, to use his terms, 'The South Vietnamese by themselves can hack it' and they can give a better account of themselves even than the North Vietnamese units."

While the operation has been in progress, Nixon said, American troop strength in the war zone has fallen by 10,000 men. "Our Vietnamization program is a success and can continue on schedule and we trust even ahead of schedule assuming that there is more progress in Laos," Nixon said.

The United States is scheduled to cut its forces in South Vietnam to 284,000 men by May 1. Nixon said he intended to make an announcement about further American troops withdrawals in April. Asked about the possibility 50,000 to 100,000 U.S. troops might remain in Vietnam at the time of the 1972 election, Nixon declined to speculate about the numbers.

"As long as there are American POWs in North Vietnam, we will have to maintain a residual force in South Vietnam," Nixon said. "That is the least that we can negotiate for. As far as our goal is concerned, our goal is to get all Americans out of Vietnam as soon as we can—by negotiation if possible."

FOR URBAN DEVELOPMENT

President Unveils Details Of Revenue Sharing Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon unveiled today details of his revenue sharing plan for urban development—a $2 billion a year program spread over 247 metropolitan areas but focusing chiefly on decaying big cities.

The plan would give city halls almost total authority to decide how to spend federal money. It also would eliminate as identifiable categories most of the urban aid programs originated in Democratic administrations of Harry S. Truman, John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson.

In a report to Congress, Nixon said: "Federal grant-in-aid programs for urban development have simply not achieved the purposes for which they were established."

Nixon said the bulk of the money—$1.6 billion in the first full year—would be distributed among urban areas with a city or cities of 50,000 population surrounded by identifiable suburbs.

"Most of America's population lives in standard metropolitan areas, but Nixon said the formula would insure that most of the money "would be channeled into the cities which need it most."

Prime Minister Trudeau Married

VANCOUVER, B.C. (UPI)—Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau married a pretty brunette nearly 30 years his junior Thursday in a surprise wedding. The couple left immediately on a skiing honeymoon.

Trudeau, 51, a bachelor with an eye for pretty girls and a reputation as an indefatigable swinger, married Margaret Sinclair, 22, the daughter of James Sinclair, a prominent businessman, former Minister of Fisheries and a longtime leader in the Liberal party Trudeau now heads.

The announcement of the marriage came as a surprise to most Canadians. "He was here at 1 o'clock for the cabinet meeting," Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier said in Ottawa.

House-Passed Package Faces Senate Objection

enue-raising measure next week, but indicated it will probably take longer for Senate action on taxes.

Barnes said he intends to "have some idea about how much money is needed" before deciding how to raise it.

The tax bill cleared by a 100-49 vote in the House Thursday will raise $492 by increasing the sales tax rate to 4 per cent, hiking the tax on auto sales and hotel occupancy to 4 per cent, levying a 10 per cent tax on admissions to professional sporting events, amusement parks and dance halls, imposing a 5 per cent per gallon tax on jet aviation fuel, taxing mudshell dredged of the Texas coast by up to 60 cents a cubic yard, and raising the corporate franchise tax rate by 50 cents per $1,000 value.

The House sponsor, Rep. Ben Atwell, D-Dallas, contending business will wind up paying about one-third of the new tax load.

But senators saw it differently. "The House bill is all one-sided. It places all the burden on consumers and students," Sen.

to minimize and, eventually, eliminate sources of potential trouble.

DeRose, the plant's EM coordinator, said, "Environmental maintenance is a 24-hour-a-day job, just like safety. Over the years since the Pampa plant started operation, we are proud of our employees' acceptance of their responsibility to 'Think Safety' and of the fact that they now regard protection of the environment as equally important."

Status of Ft. Worthers Might Not Be Changed MINERAL WELLS, Tex. (UPI) — The chairman of a civic committee says there is reason to hope the Army might change its mind about closing Ft. Worthers.

Marshall Hamilton said Thursday he talked to Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., who indicated the decision to reduce the base to caretaker status "will be appealed to the highest executive level. And we would hope that this erroneous decision will be reversed."

Ft. Worthers has been used to train U. S. and South Vietnamese helicopter pilots for Indochina. The Army said it will move this training center to Ft. Rucker, Ala., by June of next year.

"We regret the unfortunate decision of the Army to close Ft. Worthers, being of the opinion that there is no factual basis for any substantial savings in the defense budget by transferring the Ft. Worthers operation to Ft. Rucker, Ala.," Hamilton said.

Ft. Worthers has a monthly payroll of $5.5 million but does not play as large an economic role as in past years when American involvement in Vietnam was greater.

The Army said 506 civilians will be fired because of the closing, "regular attrition" will take care of 185 jobs and 125 persons will be left as "caretaker" personnel to prevent the base from becoming delapidated. Ft. Worthers will remain in this reduced status to handle any mobilization requirements of the military.

Judge Rules Congressman Dowdy Of Texas Presently Unfit For Trial

BALTIMORE (UPI)—A federal judge has ordered Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., to have a medical examination at Bethesda Naval Hospital and has reset the congressman's trial for May 1.

Dowdy was supposed to stand trial on bribery and conspiracy charges later this month. But U.S. District Judge Roszel C. Thomsen said Thursday Dowdy was not fit to stand trial at this time.

A Baltimore grand jury indicted Dowdy on a charge of receiving a $25,000 bribe and then lying about it to the grand jury. The panel said Dowdy allegedly received the bribe on Sept. 22, 1953, at the Atlanta airport "for services rendered and to be rendered by John Dowdy" in connection with a Justice Department investigation of Monarch Construction Company.

"I am absolutely not guilty of any wrongdoing or of violating any laws of the United States," Dowdy said upon his indictment.

Since the indictment, Dowdy has been in and out of hospitals in Beaumont, Jasper and Athens. He said a truck ran over him when he was 9 or 10 years old and hurt his spine. The injury got worse in recent years, he said, and was operated on last September. When he returned home from the operation he contracted pneumonia and was readmitted.

Still Only Four Seek Election In City Contests

Secretary Romney Optimistic About 1971 Housing Construction

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Housing construction in 1971 may surpass all previous records and start the nation on its way to fulfilling a 24-year-old commitment to provide a decent home for every American.

Secretary George Romney of Housing and Urban Development said in a recent speech that private housing starts might reach 2.3 million this year, eclipsing the record 1.95 million established in 1951.

Other predictions are not so optimistic, but Romney — through various housing subsidy plans administered by HUD and through his control over FHA interest rates — appears to be in as good a position as any to make his own forecast come true.

As housing construction rises from last year's 1.45 million units, the cost of borrowing money for home purchases is going down. The FHA and VA interest ceiling was reduced Jan. 12 to 7½ per cent, a full percentage point below the 8½ per cent rate that prevailed for most of 1969 and 1970.

In addition, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board said the nationwide average interest rate on conventional new home mortgages was 8.37 per cent last December, down from 8.43 per cent in November and well below the record 8.52 per cent established last August.

Big gainer

Housing was the big loser in 1969 and early 1970 when the government attempted to check inflation by keeping money tight.

March Is Good Time To File Tax Returns

DALLAS—Refund checks are less likely to be delayed when tax returns are filed early, Ellis Campbell, Jr., district director of Internal Revenue for North Texas, said today.

Campbell urged taxpayers to send their returns in now if they have not already done so. It will help taxpayers get their refunds sooner and reduce government processing costs by enabling the IRS to spread workloads more evenly.

Campbell advised taxpayers to use the pre-addressed name label that came with their Form 1040 to expedite processing. Returns should be sent directly to the Service Center in the envelope provided.

Prairie View A&M To Reopen Monday

PRAIRIE VIEW, Tex. (UPI)—Prairie View A&M president Dr. A. I. Thomas said today the university closed last week because of burnings and looting and classes will resume Monday morning.

The school was closed Saturday because of disturbances caused by what Thomas called "a small band of agitators."

Two persons have been charged and are in jail in connection with the incident. Their bonds have been set at $100,000, an amount their lawyers have called ridiculous.

"We are pleased to be able to re-open the school so quickly," Dr. Thomas said. "This action is a tribute to our faculty and staff who have worked so relentlessly to restore an atmosphere conducive to learning and teaching as well as the vast majority of our students who have indicated their prime interest is obtaining the quality education for which the college is noted."

Thomas said the students would be re-admitted if they signed an agreement which calls on them to support the "goals and rules and regulations of the college."

Designers Create Top Knot Fashions

NEW YORK (Sp1)—When the New York designers did their thing for Spring Collections this month, they stopped thinking length, tuned into mood and topped it all with wigs.

Wigs and their wizardry, in fact, headed up a big new trend. Blondes became brunettes, redheads became blondes, and instant hair change became a dictum. Short curly hair suddenly flowed down to the shoulders. Long hair tucked under a bouncy shag. Braids neatly topped the status-pull. A girl must have a myriad of looks. The new headline news: if the color or style of your dress doesn't suit your hair, change it. Your hair, that is.

To photograph the news, several eminent fashion editors went flying down to Bermuda, where sea and sky are permanently blue. The sponsor, sent the newest hairpieces along with the fashion paraphernalia. The first wig to comb in any direction has a skin-like part. Another has a patented built-in dome for a high in the crown. The new low style with its bouncy top and long shaggy nape that can be combed in four styles. A side part wig promises to be a main event in Spring fashion, along with a center part and long straight hair.

If William Shakespeare found

Bermuda the still vex't Bermoothes he should match words with the fashion editors. They'd come for blue skies under which to file their Spring stories and faced the tail of a hurricane, rumor of a riot, non-delivery of clothes, overwoked models and photographers.

Bermuda magic, however, reappeared, and the sun came out, the clothes came in, and news of Spring '71 was immortalized on film.

Soft, sensuous chiffons, crepe de chine and matte jerseys defined the body when faced with the gentle breezes of Horseshoe Bay. Wild prints were a favorite like the vibrant matte jersey pants pictured against the Natural Arch. Border prints are on the move and a paisley wool chalis travel coat promises to be a season favorite. Tucking, smocking and pleats add shape to the body and two-piece shirt dress smocked with nail heads is a contemporary standout. A slit crepe midi gave full view of the legs when touched by the winds of Bermuda's Coral Beach.

And on top of all, even after a dip in the incredible blue of the bay, were the Dynel wigs. This season, a woman without several wigs is just not experimenting. And after all, what is fashion but experiment — with taste?

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine told me something that has upset me terribly. She wouldn't tell me who had told her, so there is nothing I can do about it. I suppose that is why I am so upset.

She said she had heard that my husband and I were splitting up. Abby, my husband has had to travel more lately for his business and I can't go with him, but we certainly have never been happier, and this splitting up "rumor" couldn't have shocked me more.

I know there is nothing you can do about it, Abby. I just had to tell somebody how heartsick I am. How does a person go about proving something is a lie?

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: 'One shouldn't have to. But be aware that a real friend would not bring you gossip or any hurtful "sorry-I-can't-tell-you-who-told-me" tales. Since you are helpless to do anything about gossip (real or possibly dreamed up by the one who told you she had "heard" it), disregard it. A word of consolation: Carriers of such tales are usually jealous and miserable and take pleasure in chipping away at the happiness of others.

DEAR ABBY: Once again I've had an argument about this business of children sleeping over at the homes of friends. The ages of mine are 13 and 16.

I always have wanted my children in their own beds at night, and for that reason I seem to be waging a constant battle with my children, and worse yet with the mothers of their friends.

Am I such an oddball to think that I am right?

MRS. J.R.

DEAR MRS. J.R.: You're no oddball. Most mothers prefer to have their children in their own beds at night. But the sleeping over experience is a part of growing up. It's an exciting, maturing adventure for all kids, and it's fun. So don't deprive yours of it after you've checked out everything and are satisfied that there is nothing to worry about.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the mother who wanted to know how much to charge her son room and board when he came home from Vietnam sent cold shivers up my spine.

Tell that mother that she should get down on her hands and knees and thank God for sending her son home to her.

Our son went to Vietnam, too. We never charged him room and board before he went, and we wouldn't have charged him anything when he came back. Unfortunately, we didn't have to make that decision because he came home in a sealed casket.

A MOTHER: Kingsport, Tenn.

DEAR ABBY: About the husband who complained because his wife looked like a slob in the morning and her sister (who stayed with them) always came to the breakfast well-groomed, sweet-smelling and cheerful. (The sister had to go to an office job.) The husband said he had started to make comparisons and wondered if maybe he didn't marry the wrong sister. He also said his wife didn't have to work. Did he mean he provided his wife with a cook and housekeeper?

I have a suggestion for the wife. Stay in bed all morning. Then your husband won't have to look at you.

Man's true nature will be explored at Christian Science services Sunday. Scriptural selections in the Lesson-Sermon on "Man" include this verse from the first chapter of Genesis: "God created man in His own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them." A citation to be read from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy states: "Jesus taught but one God, one Spirit, who makes man in the image and likeness of Himself, — of Spirit, not of matter. Man reflects infinite Truth, Life, and Love. The nature of man, thus understood, includes all that is implied by the terms 'image' and 'likeness' as used in Scripture."

Sunday School and Bible classes meet at 9:45 a.m. The "Youth Service," originally scheduled for February 21 but postponed because of the Blizzard of '71, has been rescheduled for Sunday, March 7 at 7 p.m. Members of the Junior and Senior Lutheran Youth Fellowship will present two dialogues on "The AWOLs of Life," and "Forgiveness" during the service. The guitarists, who will play for the Service are: John Lyle, Jr. and Charles Jones, counselors, and Brent Erlington, a member of the Senior LYF. The public is cordially invited to attend the

CHRIST AND OUR MISSION

Acts 1:8 "Ye shall be witnesses unto me... to the uttermost part of the earth."

The first thing we notice about our text is that we are to be witnesses. Our failure as Christians is too often right here. Christianity to too many of us is salvation from sin and nothing more. Our sins are forgiven, now the pearly gates will swing open for us. I think Jesus is saying to the disciples here, "School is over, now to work."

The second thing we notice is that we are to be witnesses unto Christ. We have been redeemed from our sins and sinfulness and are basking in the love of God. We have ignored the injunction of Christ to be witnesses to others concerning this redemption and this love. We cannot be Christian and selfish at the same time and to fail to tell others is to be selfish.

The third thing we notice is that we are to be witnesses unto me... to the uttermost part of the earth. Jerusalem, that was easy, perhaps, but Judea, Samaria, the ends of the earth, I can almost hear the echo of their reply down through two thousand years. That is, if they were anything like the average church member of today, I can hear them saying, "Now wait just one minute. This is going too far. This is putting too high a price on discipleship." A very great majority of our people can't even spend more than an hour a week just sitting in church. They can't go to Sunday School or Evening Worship or an occasional week-day or night meeting, and as for spending an evening visiting in the interest of Christianity, oh, no.

You shall be witnesses to Christ without reservation.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE
Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capability. The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

A Distorted VISTA

Dr. Thomas Johnson, the biology professor at Mary Washington College in Virginia who always has something exhilarating to say about what happens when humans are free, writes to us with some pertinent observations about how those well-motivated government programs—namely, Peace Corps, Job Corps, VISTA, etc.—entrap idealistic young people in a kind of statist delirium.

His letter comes at a time when Selective Service is studying recommendations that conscientious objectors be automatically considered for labor in one of these other programs. Of course, the SS is only "studying" these proposals; and the administration, should it act with some feeling for the seemingly-forgotten right of a man to his life, may in fact scotch the whole insane notion.

Still, this is of little comfort; the mere fact that the proposal is being entertained is enough to give one the shudders. And the draft—already existent—is a flagrant enough violation of freedom. What is particularly perplexing about all this is that a very fundamental mistake has been made (the draft, with its inestimable tragic consequences) and some of the powers-that-be expect to remedy the situation by once more violating personal freedom.

It could be argued that channeling COs into other national services is a rightful egalitarian move, since as long as we have the draft, no one should escape. This overlooks the fact that one young man might be legally escaping conscription for another reason—a lucky lottery number. Should he be slotted into, say, VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America), at the behest of some bureaucrat, and taken out of a more productive pursuit? Not on your, or his, life! Only a resentful, pathetic, precisely this problem:

Coercion, as The News repeatedly has stated, should never be considered as a tonic for coercion. Here then is Dr.

Higher Debt Ceiling Again

The almost annual foolishness in Congress of raising the debt ceiling is under way. President Nixon asked for a $40 billion increase in the admitted national debt ceiling, both "permanent" and "temporary." The so-called permanent ceiling now is $380 billion, and the "temporary" ceiling is $395 billion, which is scheduled to expire July 1 unless a new ceiling is approved. Naturally, it will be authorized. Otherwise the members of Congress could not continue spending more than the national government takes in as taxes. And even the strongest critics of President Nixon's programs will not want to have it said that they are violating the law by spending money illegally.

They may stretch the Constitution into an unrecognizable shape by voting handouts to business, industry, farmers, indigents, and the world, but they must continue the fiction of a debt ceiling.

So Mr. Nixon will get his new debt "ceiling" which will last until it is about to be breached. Then there'll be a new "limit" established.

Of course, the present $395

Johnson, eloquent as ever, on precisely this problem:

"It is good people who are presently lending their full support to a host of government programs which may have virtuous ends, but which involve the application of force as a means to these ends. The inevitable result of such action is the progressive enslavement of mankind."

"There are many idealists today, particularly among the young, who hope to bring about radical changes which are needed in order to alleviate the suffering and ignorance which exists in all areas of the world. These well-meaning individuals, acting on limited information and consideration of facts, and often emotionally immature, are 'taken in' by the sugary appeals of professional politicians who wish to gain power, win votes, or simply appear to be virtuous humanitarians."

Dr. Johnson goes on to list VISTA et al. as chief among those "sugary appeals." Why are these programs so dangerous? Because, writes Dr. Johnson, of ignorance of economics—"a subject which many 'humanitarians' consider obnoxious"—and a false, and therefore inhumane, sense of charity.

"A government cannot be a charitable organization for it produces nothing with which to be charitable. Everything a government gives out must first be taken from the citizens and much of what is taken is never returned."

"VISTA, the Peace Corps, and other government programs are helping to hasten the destruction of freedom in the United States by spreading the acceptance of the idea that the government has a right to operate ventures of this nature. As each new program is introduced, those who support such programs usually out of a misguided sense of charity, lend their assistance to the establishment of additional programs which can only lead to increased taxation resulting in further destruction of individual rights."

billion ceiling actually is fictitious. The late Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia, father of the present Virginia senator, about 20 years ago said if all future spending obligations of the national government were combined the total would surpass a trillion dollars. That's 2½ times the present admitted national debt and three times what it was then. His estimate included obligations for Social Security, military and civil service pensions and other commitments for future spending. Tax Foundation, Inc., says there are a total of 831 separate "trust funds," upon which the national government draws to finance its spending activities. But the obligation to pay is still there, and taxes will have to be collected in order to pay when the payments come due.

If an insurance company or a bank were to operate the way the national government does, it would be closed down quickly. But the government overseers have no one to oversee them and force them to obey the same rules that other individuals and organizations must abide by.

Welfare Cut Urged By Business

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN
NASHVILLE, TENN. — Rejection of the "guaranteed annual wage" idea in any form and drastic reduction in spending on welfare programs that "unfairly burden productive, taxpaying citizens" were urged today by the Southern States Industrial Council.

The SSIC, representing 3,000 leading business and industrial firms, employing over 3 million people throughout the country, took a strong position against President Nixon's "Family Assistance Plan" and any increase in welfare spending in its 1971 Program for the Nation. The Council's Program was recommended to Congress for appropriate action.

Other reforms in social welfare programs urged by the long established business organization included the elimination of federal food stamp programs which, it said, are being used to "create a permanent drone class in America" and are used to subsidize strikers; and an end to the Neighborhood Legal Services Program. The SSIC also said the Office of Economic Opportunity has disbursed vast sums of public money without significant benefit to the public, and that therefore the OEO should be terminated.

In presenting its Program for the Nation, the Southern States Industrial Council said it envies the good society in the United States as responsible, self-reliant society with a strong national consciousness. It urged all Americans to "strive to strengthen America's free capitalist society" and resist existing pressure to move in the direction of a socialist society.

The SSIC voiced support for the President's Vietnamization program. It called for the pioneering of new defense systems to fully protect the American people in the next two decades and for rebuilding of the U.S. Navy and merchant marine.

The much maligned military-industrial complex, the Council said, "means a strong industrial base, with skilled military and industrial professionals working together to provide adequate defense for the United States in an age of Communist aggression."

Other recommendations for needed action in the SSIC Program for the Nation included: Prohibit labor unions from using union funds to support political candidates so that the same standards which apply to business also apply to unions. Adopt a strong national interest position with respect to submerged land adjacent to the U.S. and its territories, thereby protecting America's legitimate interests and rights in petroleum and mineral-rich zones.

Enact equitable laws for the abatement of pollution but protect the legitimate operations of industry and not allow the anti-pollution effort to become a crusade against industrialization as such.

Promote trade with all free, anti-communist nations and end the illogical ban on trade with Rhodesia.

Put an end to the use of schools as sociological laboratories.

Maintain tax exemptions of independent, schools as a means of promoting quality education.

Bar payment of salaries to militant teachers who engage in political strikes at public educational institutions.

A U.N. team of observers was at once dispatched to Conakry where it was wined and dined for several days. It then returned to the headquarters in New York and, as was expected, accused Portugal.

The special mission's report was based on the "confessions" of seven men who claimed to be members of Portugal's armed forces. The mission provided no other evidence to substantiate its charge of Portuguese complicity in the invasion.

Meanwhile, the Catholic Archbishop of Guinea was sentenced to life imprisonment because he refused to go on Radio Conakry to corroborate Sekou Toure's version of the raid.

But the supposedly impartial U.N. Security Council, despite Western objections, "strongly condemned" the Portuguese and demanded from them full compensation for the damage to life and property.

Portugal, in turn, "strongly

STRAIGHT TALK:

Real Threat To Toure's Terrorist Rule Is Internal

By LEON DENNEN
Foreign News Analyst
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

(NEA)—Foreign newsmen are barred from the West African "republic" of Guinea where President Sekou Toure is exterminating opponents of his Marxist-Leninist dictatorship.

Like the genocide practiced by the Arab regime in the Sudan against that country's southern tribes, this is another case of blacks killing blacks. And outside observers could only be an embarrassment to Toure and his Russian advisers.

Nevertheless some information on the massacre in Guinea is reaching the United Nations. According to eyewitness reports, bodies suspended from a bridge over the main street of Conakry, Guinea's capital, were black and not white.

The foreign minister for the African state of Mali, who went to Guinea to "see for himself," said that he saw no Portuguese or any other white mercenaries, "dead or alive."

This is important to stress because of the biased and misleading account by a "special" United Nations Mission that investigated Portugal's alleged "invasion" of Guinea in November.

Its report on the tragedy in Guinea is another sordid episode in the history of the United Nations. It explains, among other things, why the United States and Britain finally decided to resign from the U.N.'s extremist and Russian-dominated "anticolonial committee."

When Conakry was invaded by Guinean dissidents in November Sekou Toure claimed that Portugal—a favorite whipping boy for the anticolonialists—was the spearhead of the rebellion. He demanded a U.N. fact-finding mission and Secretary General Thant was quick to oblige him.

A U.N. team of observers was at once dispatched to Conakry where it was wined and dined for several days. It then returned to the headquarters in New York and, as was expected, accused Portugal.

The special mission's report was based on the "confessions" of seven men who claimed to be members of Portugal's armed forces. The mission provided no other evidence to substantiate its charge of Portuguese complicity in the invasion.

Meanwhile, the Catholic Archbishop of Guinea was sentenced to life imprisonment because he refused to go on Radio Conakry to corroborate Sekou Toure's version of the raid.

But the supposedly impartial U.N. Security Council, despite Western objections, "strongly condemned" the Portuguese and demanded from them full compensation for the damage to life and property.

Portugal, in turn, "strongly rejected" the Security Council's resolution.

Now some non-African members of the special mission are beginning to wonder if their sympathies were misplaced. They realize belatedly that the real threat to Toure's terrorist rule is internal.

Suppression of liberties, corruption and poverty had disaffected large numbers of Guineans. At least a half million have left their country and most are implacably hostile to the dictator in Conakry.

Like his friends Kwame Nkrumah and Modibo Keita—the disposed dictators of Ghana and Mali—Toure believes in revolutionary terror.

"The traitors will be sacrificed to keep the revolution alive," he warned. Radio Conakry urged the people to organize rejoicing and revolutionary marches to celebrate the "victory over colonialism" which the mass hangings symbolized.

Clearing House

Got something you would like to "get off your chest"? That's what the "Clearing House" is for. It has been suggested there should be more letters to the Editor that people should speak their mind. So, in the public interest, let it off your chest.

Editor: It is a good feeling to know that I have an invention that should make me rich. Some stock may have to be sold, so the public will have to be in on it.

First, I thought it should be called the "No Arthritis" Milk Carton. Now the innocent looking half-gallon milk carton can be opened in a jiffy by any one of the wrestling Funk family of Amarillo. Other average citizens are practically helpless.

This includes not only those with arthritis in the hands, but us weaklings who haven't developed ourselves.

Now, they have come out with a couple of half-gallon milk cartons fastened together with two finger holes at the connecting strip. Most anyone with a good hack saw, a pair of bolt cutters, or even a good pair of tin snips can separate the two cartons, then you are back to your original problem, opening the carton.

Then, there is the one-gallon economy size carton. That one is really the "killer whale" of milk cartons. It looks innocent enough, but you remove it from the refrigerator and it is as slick as an eel. It slips from the hands, and plop, it hits the floor, and that is when the "milk hits the fan." A few soiled bath towels and old newspapers will work the milk off the floor down to mop size.

Now, for some answers. I want a container made from glass, with a neck to it and a round piece of cardboard in that neck. In the cardboard we could put a little "tab" that

Black Panther Hoax

(Chicago Tribune) Fourteen months after the Black Panther Party stirred up a case of national hysteria with their claim that police had killed 28 Panthers in a genocidal conspiracy to exterminate the militant revolutionaries, the New Yorker magazine has published what Tribune readers have known from the start—that the claim was so much hogwash.

There never was a conspiracy. Nor was there ever any figure like 28 killed by police. It existed only in the head of the Panther counsel, Charles R. Garry, and the gullible news media which kept repeating the unsubstantiated claim. At the most, 10 Panthers have been killed by police. In every instance the encounter was an accident, resulted from a regular police investigation, or came through a Panther ambush. The Panthers, however, have killed at least six policemen.

Tribune readers first read the truth about the Panthers' claim of a police conspiracy to "destroy and commit genocide upon members of the Black Panther Party" on Dec. 19, 1969, in a survey of all Black Panther deaths conducted by Tribune reporter Ronald Koziol.

Koziol's investigation was prompted by the emotionalism kicked up by the wide acceptance of Garry's claim. The Panther lawyer spoke out after two Illinois Black Panther leaders, Fred Hampton and Mark Clark, were shot to death Dec. 4, 1969, in an ill-conceived raid by state's attorney's police on their West Side Chicago apartment.

Koziol began with a list of 19 names (not 28 as Garry claimed) furnished by Black Panther headquarters. They were supposed to have been "murdered" by police. His investigation, as did the subsequent New Yorker story by Edward Jap Epstein, quickly disclosed that police were not involved in any way in at least nine.

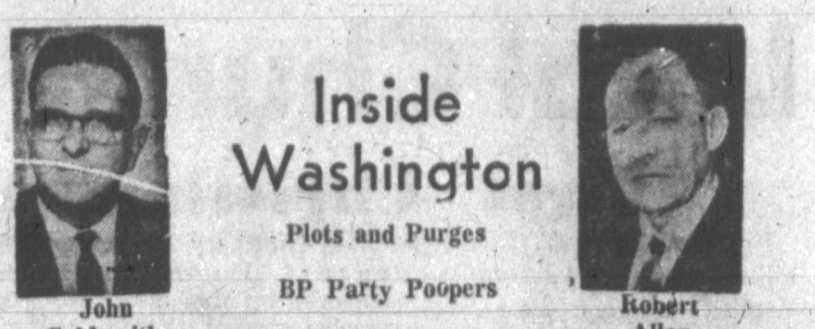

These "murders" included four Panthers killed in a shoot-out with a rival black militant gang, one informer slain by other Panthers, one killed by his wife, three shot by their friends, and one shot with a pistol found a year later in a raid on a Black Panther headquarters.

In his magazine article, reporter Epstein was disturbed that many of the liberal publications, such as the New York Times and the Washington Post, were so uncritical of Garry's unsubstantiated claim and accepted it as fact.

a mere fingernail could raise, then pull out the little disc, and pour the milk out. The little cardboard could then be re-inserted, without threat of loss of life or limb.

When do we start? No time like now. Just pool our money and build us a factory, there surely must be a hundred million customers waiting to buy.

L. P. Fort
111 S. Hobart

John Goldsmith
WASHINGTON—New bloodshed and a fierce internal convulsion are brewing in the upper ranks of the violence-wracked Black Panther Party (BPP).

That's the inside BPP word for the rash of expulsions of leaders by supreme commander Huey Newton — currently residing in a lavishly furnished luxury apartment while out on $50,000 bail in a case involving the slaying of an Oakland, Calif., policeman.

According to these sources Newton is obsessed with extreme fear of being assassinated and is dictatorially wielding the ax to get rid of "potentially dangerous" rivals.

Listed as foremost among them is Marxist-revolutionary Eldridge Cleaver, fugitive minister of information, residing in communist-ruled Algeria.

EPP insiders are attributing to Cleaver and his clique the view that Newton has "outlived his usefulness," and that his "elimination" is necessary to avert the party's disintegration and disappearance.

Existence of this suspected "foreign" plot is taken with utmost seriousness by jittery Newton and his armed henchmen.

Graphically indicative of that is the imperious pronouncement issued by Newton after abruptly expelling Elmer ("Geronimo") Pratt, his wife and other leaders. Pratt and Newton had been very close; so much so that Pratt was named Newton's deputy minister of defense.

But in the party's official paper, "The Black Panther," Newton excoriated Pratt as an agent of the Central Intelligence Agency, and ordered members to have no relations with him and the others, as follows:

"Any BPP members who attempt to aid them or communicate with them in any form or manner shall be considered part of their conspiracy to undermine and destroy the Black Panther Party. This plot is a disgraceful, counter-revolutionary, piggish and dog-like thing."

Other leaders recently booted out by Newton are Michael ("Cot") Tabor, his wife Connie Matthews Tabor, Richard ("Dhruba") Moore, and Eddie ("Jamal") Joseph, until her expulsion Mrs. Tabor, a Jamaican national, had been Newton's apparent devoted personal secretary and companion.

THREATENING AX—Red-hot question in inner BPP circles is who is next!

Opinion is strong that others are slated to be purged — "unless Huey is stopped."

On his part, that is exactly what he appears to be bent on averting by ruthlessly wielding the ax. Outcome of this deadly race is anyone's guess. Both sides are steeped in violence, and are playing for keeps.

Privately and publicly, Newton is taking no chances. He is surrounded by heavily armed guards at all times. His expensive apartment is a virtual fortress, with bullet-proof doors and windows. At his $2,500 lectures on the college circuit, drastic "security" precautions are enforced. Everyone is searched, must be seated ten minutes before he appears, and no one is allowed to leave until he has departed.

Credited as strongly influencing the rash of expulsions is Elaine Brown, deputy minister of information and high in Newton's small inner group.

She has pronounced revolutionary and Marxist views and ties. Last summer she was the Black Panther representative on a so-called "U.S. Peoples' Anti-Imperialistic Delegation" that toured Arab and Iron Curtain countries. Most of the group were white radicals. Robert Scheer, editor of Ramparts magazine, acted as spokesman.

Cleaver was in the party, but let the white revolutionaries hold the limelight.

Much dissension prevails between Newton and Cleaver—BPP insiders say favors the purged leaders. This is fully known to Newton, Elaine Brown and other inner henchmen.

After her first-hand contacts with Cleaver, Brown is said to be vigorously counseling Newton against "hostile foreign influences," and urging they be "rooted out, lock, stock and barrel before they get us."

UNCERTAIN FUTURE — The controversial Peace Corps celebrated its tenth anniversary on Monday (March 1), but its prospects for surviving another decade are decidedly dim.

With the new congressional session barely getting underway, the administration already is on blunt notice by powerful House leaders that strenuous efforts will be made to scuttle the Corps — on which $90 million is being spent this fiscal year.

Foremost among these potent opponents are Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., chairman of the Appropriations Subcommittee that handles the agency's budget, and H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, member of the Foreign Affairs Committee and a militant economy champion.

In a big splash of publicity hand-outs, including a biography of Director Joseph Blatchford, who is hailed as the "youngest agency head in the Nixon Administration," it is claimed the "Peace Corps now has volunteers in more countries than ever before in its history."

Nothing is said, of course, about the countries which have booted out Peace Corps units.

But Passman, Gross and other bipartisan critics are completely unimpressed. They are caustically assailing the program as an extravagance and waste, and making it clear they are going to do their utmost to do away with it. Says Passman:

"As far as I am concerned, the Peace Corps can be abolished as one of the worst agencies in Washington. If ever there was an unnecessary program that should be discarded it is the Peace Corps. It is unquestionably one of the worst agencies ever created by the Federal government."

"Nine nations for various reasons have kicked it out. Leaders of one nation said, 'Get out; you are corrupting our youth.' I say the sooner we get rid of this waste and extravagance, the better it will be for our country."

Rep. Gross indignantly notes that "One-third of the Peace Corps' budget goes for administrative expenses. That's downright unconscionable."

Since the Corps' establishment in early 1961 by the Kennedy Administration, more than $1 billion has been voted it. Since 1966, the number of volunteers has steadily declined.

At present, there are slightly more than 9,000 volunteers and trainees. Last year to offset the decline families were enrolled, with 78 now serving overseas or in training.

Question Box

QUESTION: Suppose someone came to you and offered to do a small job of work for a small amount of money — labor or domestic work — but on one condition: you must pay cash and make no record of it. The reason is probably that this person is drawing welfare or unemployment insurance. If he doesn't have to declare this, isn't this illegal and immoral? Shouldn't all employers pay by check to discourage this kind of swindle?

ANSWER: Regardless of the reason, it is only good business to make such payments by check or to get a receipt. If one does not have a receipt or cancelled check, he can readily be put in a position of having to pay twice. If an individual wanted to be dishonest, and he could prove he did the work, he could force payment again, if the employer had no record of payment.

There could be many reasons why a person would make such an offer to work only on condition there be no record kept of payment. The questioner cited one — welfare or unemployment pay. The worker might be seeking to avoid payment of taxes; he might be attempting to avoid alimony or support payments, or there could be other reasons.

But, for one's own protection, one should have some sort of record of payment.

Veterans, Servicemen May Have Loan Guaranty Privileges Restored

Veterans and servicemen who have used their GI home loan guaranty and, through no fault of their own, are forced to sell their homes for reasons of health, employment, condemnation proceedings of Federal, state or local government, or other compelling reasons may have their guaranty privileges restored according to Jack Coker, Director of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Waco.

He noted that it must first be released from liability on the original loan before entitlement can be restored — usually by paying off the guaranteed loan in full.

Direct loans must be paid off in full before entitlement can be restored, Coker pointed out. He said VA also will restore eligibility if the property was destroyed by fire or other natural hazards, as well as for certain other compelling reasons which were no fault of the veteran or serviceman.

Some of the reasons for which property may be disposed of and entitlement restored by VA include:

(1) Limited space in the veteran or serviceman's home, if a doctor certifies it is a health hazard, but an increase in the size of his family is not in itself sufficient grounds for restoration of entitlement.

(2) Loss of employment through a reduction-in-force, or curtailment of activities in the occupation where he is employed — if suitable employment is obtained in another locality.

(3) Transfer of employment from one locality to another by the veteran's employer.

(4) Voluntary change of employment to another locality offering the veteran more income and opportunity for advancement — provided satisfactory evidence is furnished VA.

(5) Retirement of a veteran, or transfer of a serviceman by his military department while he is still on active duty.

THE FOOD STAMP MESS

WASHINGTON, D.C. — While a clique of power-hungry liberal senators believe that promotion of the food stamp program is smart politics, many citizens are becoming increasingly angry at the dropouts who are living off welfare.

Food stamps were designed for the hard-core poor. But hippies and commune residents are finding out that the food stamps are a good way to beat the system.

In the last year, the number of recipients of food stamps jumped from 3.6 million to 9.2 million. The food stamp program has increased in cost from $248 million in 1969 to a projected $2 billion next summer.

Two senators — George McGovern of South Dakota and Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina — have been leaders in the campaign to expand food stamp distribution. Figures for South Dakota aren't available.

In South Carolina, the number of recipients of food stamps has soared in two years from 118,000 to almost 270,000.

South Carolina newspapers already are publishing letters from irate subscribers who tell of welfare recipients loading up on goodies. In time, the politicians who push the food stamp program will feel the sting of public anger.

In Tompkins County, N.Y., for example, 210 of the 960 stamp recipients are listed as "students."

Citizens who object to the food stamp program aren't hard-hearted individuals. They recognize the need for aiding the destitute. But they don't regard food stamp programs as appropriate assistance, for these programs unquestionably lead to abuses.

Sending food stamps through the mail is like sending money through the mail. One can be sure that stamps will be sent to persons who shouldn't receive them. Experience tells us that the stamps will go to people in graveyards. Names of recipients won't be taken off the distribution list though they have moved away or died.

Moreover, the food stamp program perpetuates the situation in which an elderly grandmother cares for 10 or more children in a rural shack, though she is incapable of caring for them. Usually, the parents of such children have abandoned their youngsters, moved to a big city, and left the burden on their original home communities.

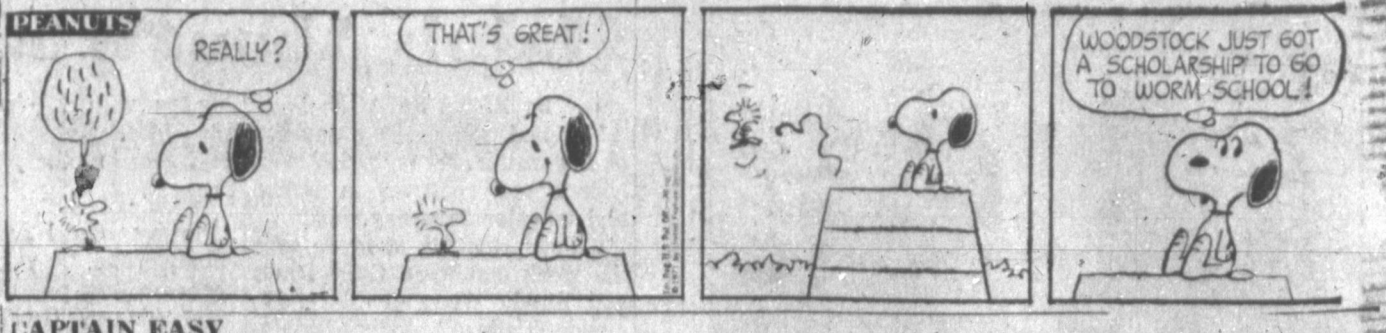

Instead of perpetuating this system, the public has an interest in moving children out of such situations and into foster homes.

Strong parental responsibility laws also are needed to prevent the flight of parents and to compel them to provide child support.

As for the hippies living on food stamps, that is an utterly intolerable situation. No program should be continued that in effect subsidizes socially irresponsible "street people."

In summary, the high cost and hurtful effects of the food stamp distribution underline the need to scrap this mistaken program.

McPherson Named 3A AAA Coach Of The Year

Top O' Texas Invitational Meet To Get Underway Saturday A.M.

The First Top O' Texas Invitational Track Meet will be held on Randy Matson Track starting tomorrow morning at 9:30 a.m. Dedication ceremonies will start prior to the finals at 2:00 p.m. with Randy Matson as the guest of the Pampa High School track team.

Pampa has several hopefuls entered in the meet in Lewis Davis, winner of the district shot-put competition last year and Garvin McCarrell in the sprints and the sprint and mile relay team have turned in good practice this year.

Mike Reddell whose best time of the year so far is 2:02.8 will be entered in the 800 and Terry Riddle is shooting for top honors in the 440 with his best time this year being 52.7.

Seven teams are entered in the meet, the first held on the new surfaced track in Harvester Stadium and include: Amarillo High School, Borger, Canyon, Hereford, Wichita Falls Rider, Perryton and Pampa.

Be sure and attend the meet as Pampa has produced Olympic medal and world record holder Randy Matson from their past track teams. This year should be no exception as all of the boys have been working hard preparing for the first Top O' Texas Invitational Track Meet.

Muhammad Relishes Idea Being Underdog To Frazier

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—It's okay with Muhammad Ali if people say he'll lose Monday night to Joe Frazier. He certainly doesn't believe it, and he relishes his role as underdog.

"Making me the underdog was the best thing anybody could have done for me," Ali said at his training headquarters Thursday.

"When I hear all those predictions about Frazier, the great Frazier, dangerous Frazier, young Frazier and me being older and not as sharp—that just makes me want to work harder," the ex-champ went on.

"Before I can go, I gotta have pressure on me, I gotta have something to make me go. 'And this is beautiful, all these people sayin', 'Can he do it? Is he gonna be the old Ali?' I feel the pressure. I feel it buildin' up."

Among those who have picked Frazier over Ali in the Monday night heavyweight championship fight at New York's Madison Square Garden are Joe Louis, Jack Dempsey and Archie Moore—and the odds-makers, who so far have made Frazier the slight favorite.

"They're gonna be shocked at how easy he is to hit," says Ali. "I just looked at films of his fight with Jimmy Ellis. You know, Ellis was hitting him a lot in the first three rounds, hitting with hooks and jabs and all kinds of punches.

"And I know I'm faster than Ellis."

Ali says he'll win. Right now, he says, he's "a voice in the wilderness."

"But when it's over, they'll be looking in wonder and amazement at me and they'll be sayin', 'There he goes. He's still champ. He did it. There goes the king.'"

JVILLE INJURIES

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI)—Vaughan Wedeking and Greg Nelson, two members of the University of Jacksonville basketball team, have been sidelined with ankle injuries and are expected to miss the NCAA subregional game with Western Kentucky March 13.

Four Harvesters On All-District

Losing the big one has dimmed the Harvesters spirits for a little while as the Bi-District tilt against Plainview ended in a near replay of their first three encounters with a 59 to 49 final. The Harvesters lost the game mainly due to lack of height and turnovers.

The loss gives the Harvesters a 19 win, 14 loss record for their 1970-71 season plus the 3-AAAA title. Pampa's new coach Robert McPherson, was named the 3-AAAA Coach of the Year and four of the Harvesters made All-District teams.

Mike Edgar, the high scoring Harvester for the season used his 6'5" frame to bring in 16 points in last night's game and a berth on the All-District first team.

Two more Harvesters, both juniors made the second team Richard Bunton and Marsh Gambin while Gary Haynes, another junior made honorable mention. Player of the year went to Robert Graham of Caprock who led the district in scoring.

In the Bi-District tilt the Plainview Bulldogs jumped an early lead on a basket by Charles Bassett who ended the game with 24 points. Donnie Cain tied the score at 2-2 with 5:21 remaining but a foul called on Bunton gave the Bulldogs the lead that would remain the rest of the evening.

The Pampa squad looked as if someone had capped the baskets shooting only 35 percent for the evening and the "coldest part of the game was in the first half.

Plainview left the court after the first period with a 15-7 advantage. Willie Carreathers opened the scoring in the second period of play increasing the Plainview lead to ten points 44 seconds into the quarter.

Pampa narrowed the Bulldogs lead to six points three times before the half but couldn't pull closer. The Bulldogs led 25 to 16 at intermission. In the third period of play the Harvesters were still having difficulty getting to the backboards controlled most of the evening by Bassett and Buckner.

Mike Jordan entered the game at the half and sparked the Harvesters to within three points of the "Dogs" with assistance from Gambin and Cain. Jordan had been on the bench the first half of play in an effort by the Pampa coaches to equalize the height advantage of Plainview.

It looked as if the Harvesters might be able to come back as the end of the third period they trailed only by six with Plainview 38-Pampa 32.

The floor remained cold for the Harvesters as Plainview scored on baskets by Curtis Thompson and Buckner to pull to a ten point advantage after 45 seconds into the fourth quarter.

Bassett was the star of the game with his 24 points and has moves like a rattlesnake in a red ant bed. He can twist, turn and jump more like a cat catching mice than a tornado busting buildings. Bassett plowed the Harvester defense all evening long making both lay-ups and long shots, many times recovering his own rebounds for the two point play.

Buckner another Bulldogs stand-out looks much like a bulldozer rolling over eggs. He has the height and strength to move into the ball and the ability to score after he gets it.

The remainder of the tilt was Plainview's with the Harvesters never posing a real threat as time ran out.

Bassett controlled the final minutes of the game scoring 9 of his 24 points.

The Bulldogs will move on to the regional tournament held in Moody Coliseum in Abilene this week-end where they will meet El Paso Bel Air who has a 25-8 season. Last night's victory gives the Bulldogs a 32 and 2 season, a Plainview school record.

The Harvesters will have a tough team next year as there will be only two seniors lost. Mike Jordan and Micky Sims. Jordan scored five points and Sims six in the bi-district game.

Both men are strong players centering most of their attention to the defensive end of play. "Sims and Jordan are both 100 per centers," according to coach Robert McPherson.

"Cain kept his head better than anyone on the floor. We missed a lot of shots that we usually make and this shook the team. You could really tell that we were juniors in that first quarter of play.

"In addition to our returning juniors next year we will have a fine bunch of sophomores. They had a 22-7 season this year and were playing against mostly juniors.

"Next year we shouldn't have as many problems about turnovers and mental mistakes like we did this year. We will be good but we will have to work at winning," McPherson stated in a telephone interview.

"I think Plainview will be hurt having to play tomorrow after playing last night. They had to get up early this morning and leave for Abilene and their practice time at the coliseum is at 2 p.m.," he continued.

Congratulations Harvesters from the Pampa Daily News on your best season in the past three years.

Drugs Hurt Performance, Twins Physician Says In New Report

By BOB FOWLER

ST. PAUL, Minn. (NEA)—What athletes don't realize is that drugs often don't help. In fact, they may keep a player from performing as he should, according to Minnesota Twins team physician, Dr. Harvey O'Phelan. "Batters swing before the ball reaches the plate because their timing and coordination are thrown off by the drugs.

"A pitcher feels so good, he believes he can throw the ball past anyone. But he has the same arm, the same ability, and he can't understand why he gets hit so easily when he has such great stuff."

"Drugs may give the athlete energy, but they don't help him perform."

Amphetamines are dangerous in that they are more potent than players believe. "Popping a greenie" seems to be a major league joke around batting cages, but if that pill is next dissolved in water and injected into a vein, its results are the same as that of "speed."

The danger is that a player may not start feeling "right" soon enough by taking the pill orally," O'Phelan said. "The step is injection."

There is a drug problem in sports. Many prefer to ignore it or minimize it. This was done, for example, when Jim Bouton's book, "Ball Four," reported a widespread use of "greenies" by major league baseball players. The Baseball Establishment said Bouton either exaggerated or lied.

Recently, however, Bowie Kuhn, commissioner of baseball, has acknowledged the problem and, along with doctors from the American and National League clubs, planned a program of drug education for players.

A player may take an amphetamine or other drug to ward off fatigue from long plane flights and long doubleheaders, increase stamina and endurance, or just to raise his spirits.

What the player does not realize, according to O'Phelan, is that the player has not in fact helped himself and probably won't play his "normal" game due to the pill.

That's why movies of the hazards of drug use will be shown to players this spring.

"We want to show the movie to the young players, especially those at the minor league level," said one doctor.

"Many of these players are from underprivileged areas, or foreign countries, where drugs are easy to obtain and in some cases are a way of life."

These men, he continued, then influence other youths on the team who haven't had such exposure.

The warning by baseball physicians has awakened the baseball establishment to the possible dangers of drugs. And, as one physician put it, "If we don't attack this now, and the drug problem continues to grow, some day soon we will be confronted with the sport's greatest scandal."

(Bob Fowler is a sportswriter for the St. Paul Pioneer-Press.)

FIGHTERS' ANALYSIS

NEW YORK (UPI)—The American Broadcasting Company said Thursday that a special half-hour program Saturday (6:30 pm EST) will feature Joe Frazier and Muhammad Ali analyzing each other's recent fights from film clips of the bouts. Frazier and Ali meet for the heavyweight title Monday night.

Hiroshi Kobayashi Wins Hard Way In Title Fight

TOKYO (UPI)—Hiroshi Kobayashi of Japan made his seven the hard way in continuing to reign as the World Boxing Association's junior light-weight champion.

Kobayashi gained the title by beating countryman Yoshiaki Numata in December, 1967, and successfully defended the crown for the sixth time Thursday night by scoring a 15-round decision over Ricardo Arredondo of Mexico.

The champion, giving away a height and reach advantage, to Arredondo, took command in the seventh round to gain a unanimous decision from the three Japanese ring officials.

Kobayashi weighed 129½ to Arredondo's 128½.

Television In Review

By RICK DUBROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—In CBS-TV's tentative schedule-making for its new fall lineup, here are some of the certainties:
 —The network will not have as strong a rural image as it does now. It recognizes the urban flow and the new concentration of buying power in terms of age and geographic groups. But it is not going overboard.
 —Spokesmen say "Lassie" will not return, nor will "Men at Law," a reworked version of "The Storefront Lawyers." And the reruns of Jackie Gleason's "The Honeymooners" will certainly be gone too.
 —Glenn Ford will star in a new one-hour series, "Cade's County," as a contemporary sheriff in the Southwest.
 —Dick Van Dyke will headline a new half-hour situation comedy, portraying the host of a local television variety-talk show in Arizona, with Hope Lange as his wife.

 —The returning CBS series will include "Gunsmoke," "Here's Lucy," the Doris Day and Carol Burnett programs, "Hawaii Five-O," the Glen Campbell show, "Medical Center," "Mannix," "Family Affair," "My Three Sons," "Mission: Impossible," the Mary Tyler Moore comedy and the Thursday and Friday night movies.
 At this point, CBS says it is still working on its schedule, but if estimates by competitors and advertising agency sources hold up, the network would cancel from one-third to one-half of its prime time shows.
 NBC, in its planned lineup for the fall, has cancelled one-half of its current prime time series. Part of the reason for this massive cutting at the networks is the ruling by the Federal Communications Commission reducing their schedules to three hours of programming each night starting this autumn.

 In addition to "Lassie," "Men at Law" and "The Honeymooners," the CBS series mentioned prominently as cancellations targets include "The Beverly Hillbillies," "Green Acres," "Mayberry R. F. D.," "To Rome with Love," "Hogan Heroes," "Arnie" and the Andy Griffith and Jim Nabors shows.
 As a return prospect, Ed Sullivan is considered a long-shot; he is not on the tentative CBS schedules being leaked around the industry.

IN TEXAS DURING '71

Southwestern Bell Co. Will Spend $460 Million To Improve Services

Southwestern Bell will spend a record $460 million in Texas during 1971 to keep ahead of demand for telephone services.

The company's expansion program, despite a general economic slowdown last year, is $66 million more than the amount spent for new plant and equipment in 1970 according to H.D. Schodde, the company's vice president for Texas.

Schodde said the company's 1970 Texas operations showed continued growth, which he termed "very good," although the rate of that growth slipped somewhat from 1969 operations. He pointed out that the company added nearly 300,000 phones to its network in Texas during 1970, bringing the total of Southwestern Bell phones in service in the state to more than 5 million. He said another 300,000 are expected to be added during 1971.

Schodde also noted that customers in Texas used their phones more in 1970 than ever before. As an example, he pointed out that the number of completed long distance calls on the average business day increased by nearly 75,000, to total of more than 850,000 in 1970, to total of more than 850,000 in the state.

Southwestern Bell remained one of the state's largest employers, recording a net gain of 2,000 employees during 1970, which brought the company's Texas work force to just under 35,000. Payroll to these employees jumped nearly $40 million to about $273 million annually.

"Considering the general economic conditions that prevailed in 1970, we feel that our growth during the year, while less than in 1969, was very good," Schodde said.

By the end of 1971, Schodde noted, Southwestern Bell will complete a three-year period in which it will have spent over a billion dollars for construction in Texas.

"This money has been used to provide service to new customers, to introduce new services, and to maintain and improve the quality of existing service," he said.

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—I have in my files a moldering clipping that contains a timely excerpt from a 1969 issue of Psychic magazine.

It reported that the Air Force was considering development of extrasensory perception as a back-up communication system for astronauts in event of radio failure while they are millions of miles from Earth en route to other planets.

As far as I know, nothing ever came of that project. I hope, however, that the Air Force has not abandoned the idea entirely.

ESP—Fall Safe? For, in view of what happened during the recent false alert sent out by the NORAD system, it appears that ESP may be our best chance of getting some advance warning of a nuclear attack.

Many of the radio and television stations that were supposed to go off the air during an alert failed to do so, either because they didn't see the NORAD message or didn't believe it.

Although the system has since been changed to prevent any more alerts from being transmitted accidentally, there always is a chance that something might go wrong.

Hence the need to augment the system with ESP.

Heads In The Sand Suppose, for example, an employe of a radio station looks at the Teletype machine and sees a report that another country's missiles have been launched in the direction of the United States.

As he reads that bulletin he also would be receiving telepathic vibrations sent out by NORAD's ESP control center in a secret bomb-proof cave in the Rocky Mountains.

"I have a feeling this is the real thing," he would say. "Guess I had better take the station off the air."

The ESP back-up also would be a blessing to those of us who barely watch television or listen to radio, particularly during the morning hours when the false alert came over the wires.

As soon as the telepathic waves reached us, we would experience an extrasensory impulse to turn on the set, then receiving the warning in time to drive to the beach and stick our heads in the sand.

By RAYMOND LAHR WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic leaders are anxious to give a buildup to their enlarged bloc of Democratic governors and enlist the governors to help rebuild the party.

And the governors, as in past years, are saying they would like a greater voice in running Democratic party affairs.

Instead of congressional leaders, 13 new Democratic governors will be the guests of honor at the $500-a-plate fund-raising dinner to be held here April 21.

Seven more governors have been invited to join the Democratic Policy Council, which holds its next meeting March 24. As created two years ago, the committee had four governors as members. They retain their seats, although three now are former governors who were not candidates in 1970.

Conference to Meet The Democratic Governors' Conference hopes to reactivate itself at a meeting, still to be set, with national party Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien.

That conference adopted a set of rules three years ago, including one that provided that it should meet at least once a year separate from the National Governors' Conference. It has not met since except for brief sessions during meetings of the national conference.

Managers of both political parties have long regarded governorships as foundation stones of party organization, although their importance was discounted by the White House after Republican losses in 1970.

But those Republican losses, which meant Democratic gains, were the best news ready by Democrats after the 1970 election. There was a net Democratic pickup of 11 governorships, lifting their total from 18 to 29 in just one election.

During the past two decades, a gradual increase in the number of governorships held by a party has preceded a shift in control of the White House. Governorships Fall The Democratic share of governorships fell to 18 in 1962 when the GOP elected Dwight D. Eisenhower to the presidency. The Republicans held only 16 after the Democrats elected John F. Kennedy to the White House in 1960.

Republicans rebounded in the 1960's to hold 32 before their setbacks last November. They held 26 of the 50 when President Nixon was elected in 1968.

Democratic professionals believe, or at least hope, that the election of a new breed of Southern Democratic governors indicates a shift away from racial polarization and a chance for their 1972 presidential candidate to make a better showing in the South.

In 1968, Democratic nominee Hubert H. Humphrey carried none of the 11 Dixie states except Texas. It is generally assumed that Nixon would have beaten him in Texas if George C. Wallace had not been on the ballot.

In the 10 other Southern states, Nixon carried five and Wallace five.

PAT ON FASHIONS

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Mrs. Richard Nixon has her doubts about "hot pants," the new fashion rage.

The First Lady said Tuesday she saw some women wearing "hot pants" in New York last weekend.

"They shouldn't have been," she said, gesturing to show the breadth of beam on some of the women.

Mrs. Nixon said she went to New York to buy spring and Easter clothes but did not "look at any hot pants."

"You've got to be young and playing tennis" to wear them, she said.

Foreign News

By PHIL NEWSOM UPI Foreign News Analyst

The Russians are paying plenty for their Latin American foothold in Cuba. In Moscow, at the end of February, the Soviets and the Cubans signed their annual trade agreement in ceremonies at which Mikhail Kuzmin, a first deputy minister of Soviet foreign trade, said that 1971 would see an increase of 100 million rubles ($110 million) in the value of Russians goods sent to Cuba.

Soviet aid has been keeping the Cuban economy afloat for the last 10 years, and the Cubans now are estimated to owe the Russians more than $3 billion exclusive of military aid. With the Cuban economy going deeper into the hole each year, the Russians can have but little hope of ever being repaid.

And the logical question is how long will the Russians continue a policy which seems to be one of ever-diminishing returns.

In a nuclear war between the United States and the Soviet Union, Cuba's value to the Russians would be dubious.

But, since Latin America is regarded by many as the next great area of cold war conflict between the United States and the Soviet Union, its peacetime value or its value in case of conventional warfare is enormous.

It gives the Russians a friendly port where no other exists.

It can provide the Soviet navy with food and facilities for shore leave and repairs.

It could interfere with shipping through the Panama Canal and threaten the canal itself. It also could pose a threat to shipping moving out of the mouth of the Mississippi River.

Further, it has the prestige value of providing the Russians a haven in waters heretofore exclusively American.

As for the Cuban people themselves, even Fidel Castro admits the immediate future is not bright.

Rationing which began in 1962 has become even tighter. Cigars and cigarettes were put on the rationing list last year for the first time.

For Cuba's ills, Castro has the diagnosis but not the cure.

Places Blame In speeches he has blamed the country's plight first of all on high absenteeism and low labor productivity.

In a speech last July, he declared:

"... Neither this nation's economy, nor that of any other nation can tolerate the corrosive, demoralizing and disruptive actions of 400,000 shirkers."

Such a figure would represent 20 per cent of Cuba's labor force.

At another time, he said: "...Productivity has been practically forgotten, and the lack of it is a bottomless pit that can swallow all of the country's human resources."
