Ellsberg Surrenders To Authorities

OFF CALIFORNIA COAST

Plane Crashes Into Sea, Killing 10 And 6 Missing

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A chartered DC3 airliner carrying 23 Californians, 19 of them real estate salesmen, crashed into rocky coastal waters during takeoff. The Coast Guard said seven persons survived.

Ten bodies were recovered after the Sunday night crash about 50 miles south of here. High winds and rough seas with four-foot waves hampered the search for the six missing persons, the Coast Guard reported.

The twin-engine plane, chartered by the Shelter Cove Co. of Los Angeles, was carrying 19 company salesmen, an unidentified woman and the pilot.

co-pilot and stewardess, who were returning home after a weekend at the Shelter Cove land development-resort. The flight was headed for the Los Angeles area with a stop en route at San Jose, airport spokesmen said.

The survivors included the stewardess and six salesmen, the Coast Guard said.

The plane clipped the roof of a sewage treatment building below the bluff at the north end of the runway and hurtled toward the ocean, striking a rock about 50 yards offshore.

The rocks and high seas prevented small boats from getting to the plane wreckage. But Tom Wallace, 21, of Redway, used a surfboard to help two of the survivors to safety, Mrs. Machi said.

Dave Zebo, Humboldt County aviation director, said the aircraft appeared to dip on takeoff before hitting the sewage plant roof about 10 feet below the runway, then shot off a low bluff to the ocean.

Some 30 local fishing boats converged for the rescue work, until Coast Guard aircraft and the 82-foot cutter Point Ledge arrived from Fort Bragg, 75 miles south of here. A large spotlight truck on shore illuminated the area for divers and boat crews.

TEXAS GOVERNOR Preston Smith signs a proclamation designating July 4-10 as Safe Boating Week in Texas. Discussing the problems of safety afloat with the Texas chief executive are Lloyd F. Palmer, General Manager, Texas Safety Association, George Cook, Director, Water Safety Services, Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife, and Wade N. Geraghty, Commander, Austin Power Squadron. In the proclamation Governor Smith said "the increased use of our waterways has caused an increasing water safety problem, and the ever increasing use of these facilities makes it imperative that all boatmen observe the basic rules of boating safety."

Ex-Defense Employee Admits Leak Of Story

BOSTON (AP) — Dr. Daniel Ellsberg surrendered to federal authorities today and told about 150 persons that he provided the New York Times with secret Pentagon papers and said "I am prepared for all consequences."

Ellsberg had been sought unsuccessfully by the FBI during the weekend. He surrendered as had been promised Saturday by his attorneys.

Ellsberg, 40, a former Pentagon researcher and now a research associate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, was named as the source of Pentagon papers used as the basis of articles in the New York Times on the origins of the Vietnam war.

He and his wife had been missing from their Cambridge home since a former New York Times newsman said on a radio talk show June 16 that Ellsberg was the Times source of the papers.

Ellsberg talked by telephone to friends since then and appeared on the Walter Cronkite CBS television news show. It was not revealed where the show was filmed and Ellsberg did not say whether he had supplied the documents to the Times.

The warrant for Ellsberg was issued late Friday night in Los Angeles where a grand jury investigated the leak of the documents.

Ellsberg was not charged with giving the papers to the Times, and the newspaper has not disclosed the source.

Ellsberg is charged in federal warrants with unauthorized possession of top secret documents and failure to return them.

Ellsberg told a group of cheering well-wishers outside of Boston's federal court building that in the fall of 1969 he presented the Senate Foreign Relations Committee "information contained in the so-called Pentagon papers."

Arm-in-arm with his wife and carrying a briefcase, Ellsberg said "after 9,000 more Americans had died, I could not only regret that I had not at that same time released that information to the American public."

"I have done so now. I took the action on my own initiative. I felt as an American citizen as a responsible citizen I could no longer cooperate with concealing this information from the American people. I am prepared for all consequences."

FIRST QUARTER

One-Cent Sales Tax Brings In $74,086

A check for $74,086.53 covering Pampa's one-cent sales tax receipts for the first three months of 1971 went into the city's general fund today.

The check, from the state comptroller's office in Austin, is $11,164.16 more than the sales tax receipts for the first quarter of 1970.

City Secretary S.M. Chittenden said the increase was due to the fact the first quarter this year included accounts receivable from November and December 1970 sales. This was not true of the first quarter receipts for 1970 because the tax did not become effective until Jan. 1, 1970 and did not list accounts receivable from late 1969.

Total sales tax receipts for last year totaled $303,475.10. Listed by quarters, the 1970 payments were: First quarter, $62,922.37; second, $76,332.28; third, $77,788.69 and fourth, $86,431.76.

Chittenden pointed out Pampa's Canadian River water payments, which increase $5,000 annually every year, will total $315,700 this year.

That figure, the city secretary said, is above and beyond operation and maintenance costs charged by the Canadian River Municipal Water Authority and operation of the local water filtration plant.

U.S. Supreme Court Spares Muhammad

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Muhammad Ali's decision to refuse induction into the Army had caused him to live for four years with the threat of going to jail, a fate which was spared him by a U.S. Supreme Court decision today. But it was a fate he had prepared himself accept.

"If I was going to jail for stealing or hitting somebody, that would be bad," he said in an interview, "but when you're standing up for your beliefs, it's not bad—it is honorable."

His decision to resist induction, he said, had been bound up in what he felt to be his life's purpose, and because of this he felt at peace with himself, ready to accept its consequences.

"Whatever it takes to accomplish this purpose—getting shot, going to prison—I'm just doing my purpose," the ex-heavyweight champion explained.

He made preparations for the possibility of leaving his family.

"They're straight. All this is owned," he said, in the interview which was held recently in his $200,000 terra cotta-colored stucco house in suburban Philadelphia. "There's money in the bank for the next 10 years... they don't have nothing to worry about."

The "couple of hundred thousand dollars" he spent fighting his June 20, 1967 conviction evasion meant little to him, he said.

In other actions today, the court:

—Failed to rule on Pentagon papers case, involving the New York Times and the Washington Post, but extended its term in order to decide it. The term was to have ended today.

—Agreed to rule on the constitutionality of the death penalty.

—UL program of construction grants to church-affiliated colleges. It struck down Pennsylvania and Rhode Island assistance programs, however, on grounds they involve excessive entanglement between church and state.

What does he feel his life's purpose to be?

"Everything in life has a purpose. Trees have a purpose—the grass, the flowers, the buzzards, the pigs, horses, the moon, the sun—everything's got a purpose. A man has a purpose, no matter how big, how small, and it's the knowing of that purpose that enables every soul to fulfill itself.

"Q Wise man is he who knows his life's purpose. My purpose when I was 12 years old was to be a great black man in America, to stand up with sports, to be one who married his own woman—stayed with his own, and plus, be on top of the world, which has never been done before."

Waiting for the final decision on his conviction, especially during the 3½-year layoff from professional boxing that resulted from it, changed his life, he said. He said he had learned to appreciate the little things in life.

U.S. Withdraws From Europe 2 Air Squadrons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States quietly withdrew two Air Force squadrons from Europe last year although top U.S. officials were pledging to maintain and improve American strength there.

This was learned after a senior American commander testified before the House Appropriations Committee "just last year additional Air Force squadrons were added to the dual-based list."

Under the dual-basing concept, certain Army and Air Force units stationed in the United States are committed specifically to NATO defense and are rotated to Europe periodically for maneuvers.

Most such units were brought back to his country in a program started in 1964 as a way of reducing the balance-of-payments deficit.

The bulk of these dual-based forces, including two Army infantry brigades and four jet fighter squadrons, were pulled back to the United States in 1968 to the accompaniment of a major announcement from the Pentagon.

By contrast, the Air Force acknowledged, withdrawal last year of an RF4C reconnaissance squadron was announced only locally at Shaw Air Force Base, S.C., and return of a C130 tactical airlift squadron was not announced at all.

Court Reverses Death Sentences Of 35 Persons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today reversed the death sentences of 35 persons, including the electric chair sentence of Richard F. Speck, who was convicted of murdering eight nurses in Chicago in 1966.

Speck was sentenced to death after a jury in Peoria, Ill., convicted him of killing the nurses, one by one, in their South Side Chicago apartment.

In reversing the death penalty, the court cited its 1968 decision holding that persons opposed to the death penalty could not be excluded automatically from juries in capital cases. It also cited two other precedents in reversing one bloc of 20 death cases including Speck's.

Relying on the jury provision known as the Witherspoon case, and various other cases, the court reversed a total of 35 death cases and remanded them to lower courts for further proceedings.

Senate's End-War Plan Faces House Rejection

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's nine-month Indochina war deadline faced near-certain rejection in the House today, dooming replacement of the nation's draft law before it expires Wednesday night.

Rep. Charles W. Whalen Jr., R-Ohio, pressed for a vote, expected today, on accepting the war deadline tacked onto the draft bill by a 57-42 Senate vote—but neither backers nor foes expected House approval.

"We've plowed this field again and again," said House Armed Services Chairman F. Edward Hebert, D-La. "And those (end-the-war) proposals have been defeated every time."

The House-Senate compromise conference which also is expected to knock out the nine-month war-end policy statement.

But Senate antiwar forces have vowed to filibuster any such compromise and prevent extension of the draft until they have a mandate to President Nixon on getting out of the war.

The present draft law expires at 12:01 a.m. Thursday, leaving lawmakers grant time for passing a replacement.

But the Pentagon has announced a 16,000-man call for July and August, saying it could be filled if necessary with deferred men who now are coming back into the draft pool.

The Senate-approved amendment proposed by Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield would call for immediate negotiation of a cease-fire with Hanoi, followed by negotiation of a phased U.S. troop withdrawal in return for release of American prisoners, culminating nine months after enactment of the draft bill.

The House two weeks ago shouted down by voice vote a similar proposal—U.S. withdrawal by April 30 provided a cease-fire and release of U.S. prisoners could be arranged by them—along with six other end-the-war amendments.

The nearest any came to winning was the Nedzi-Whalen amendment for a Dec. 31 U.S. pullout. This was defeated 254 to 158.

The 158 was the highest antiwar vote ever in the House, topping 133 votes on a losing procedural effort last summer to accept the Senate's Cooper-Church amendment against use of U.S. ground troops in Cambodia.

Supreme Court Puts Off Ruling On Story

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Supreme Court put off today a ruling on whether the New York Times and the Washington Post can resume publication of secret Pentagon papers on Vietnam and the man accused of leaking the papers to the press surrendered to federal authorities.

The high court heard arguments on the case over the weekend and sat today for what was to have been the last session until the fall term. The court announced no ruling on the Pentagon papers case, but Chief Justice Warren E. Burger announced the justices would continue sitting to hand down further orders.

At about the same time in Boston, Dr. Daniel Ellsberg surrendered to federal authorities and told about 150 persons that he provided the Times with the papers.

"I am prepared for all consequences," said Ellsberg, whose attorneys had said Saturday their client would surrender on Monday.

Ellsberg, a former Pentagon researcher now a research associate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, had been sought unsuccessfully by the FBI since Friday on a warrant accusing him of unauthorized possession of top secret documents and failure to return them.

At issue in the court case is the government's contention that publication of excerpts of the study will endanger national security. The Times and Post contend freedom of the press is threatened by the government's effort to prevent publication of the articles based on the study outlining U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Reds Attack Allied Base Below DMZ

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese gunners again bombarded allied firebases below the demilitarized zone today as reinforced South Vietnamese and American units swept the jungles.

The U.S. Command said more than 20 rockets slammed into Charlie 2, an American base three miles below the DMZ, and there were "light" casualties, including some men killed.

Three South Vietnamese bases also were hit, but the Saigon Command reported no casualties. Five 100-pound rockets hit Charlie 2, and Alpha 1, east of Charlie 2, and three more rockets landed in Camp Carroll, a regimental headquarters in the mountains to the West.

Sporadic shellfire also was directed at American and South Vietnamese troops hunting enemy mortar and rocket sites around Fire Base Fuller, four miles below the DMZ. But a South Vietnamese spokesman, Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, said: "The intensity is very low now."

Fuller was abandoned last Wednesday night after heavy shelling destroyed 80 per cent of its bunkers and fortifications. A company of about 120 South Vietnamese infantrymen reoccupied the hilltop outpost late Sunday, but Hien indicated they went back temporarily to provide protection for other troops hunting the enemy in the area.

Baker Co. Bid For Airport Project OK'd

E. D. Baker Co., Borger, was awarded the Perry Leffers Airport construction bid this morning by Gray County Commissioners Court.

The company submitted a bid in the amount of $79,961 which will resurface, strengthen and rebuild a cross-wind runway at the facility northwest of Pampa.

The court approved the bid mix surface treatment recommended by the county surveyor, consulting engineer Gene Barber, in awarding the bid.

A pre-construction meeting was planned for this afternoon by the engineer and construction company officials.

WATCH THAT TAIL! — A skunk on the trail of a burrowing mouse can often get excited to the point of an unpleasant smell. But that doesn't seem to bother this skunk's owner, Tommy Wright, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wright, 2200 Lynn. Why Tommy would choose Brute (the skunk) for a pet is unknown but he says he enjoys Brute's company MOST of the time. (Staff Photo)

Violent Weekend Toll In Texas Stands At 22

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Violent deaths in Texas over the last weekend of June occurred at a slower rate than usual as law enforcement officers prepare for the July 4th holiday next weekend.
The Associated Press began its regular tabulation of weekend violent deaths at 6 p.m. Friday and continued the grim count until midnight Sunday.
By midnight Sunday, the death toll stood at 22 dead with 9 persons killed in traffic while four others drowned. Shootings claimed the lives of five persons.
Here is how some died over the weekend:
Peggy Scott, 30, a carnival worker from Milford, Tex., was thrown from a panel truck and crushed to death as it overturned south of Dallas on Interstate 35 early Sunday.
A car hit a parked tru from behind, police reported, and the crash killed Elizabeth Johnson, 61, of San Antonio on the Alamo city's east side early Sunday.
Patrolman A. R. Ortiz said Isidro Martinez, 15, was shot and killed on a San Antonio street Saturday night after he threatened two officers with a knife and a broken bottle. Ortiz said the youth threatened him and turned on patrolman Richard Cretini, who fired after young Martinez ignored an order to halt.
An Austin woman, Sharon Thomas, 33, was stabbed to death Saturday night at her home.
Dims C. Quintana, 57, was found shot to death outside a Dallas bar late Saturday.
Donnie L. Crawford, 29 of Carthage was killed early Sunday when her car was in collision with two other cars near Longview on Texas 149.
George L. Willamen, 24, of San Antonio was killed on U.S. 181 near there in a one-car accident early Sunday.
A one-car accident near Shelbyville in East Texas early Sunday killed Billy R. Lister, 18, of Shelbyville.
A car struck and killed Bryan Mills, 3, on Fort Worth's south side Sunday evening.
An unidentified man drowned late Sunday in Lake Grapevine. The body was recovered on the east side of the lake.
Carla Sue Arana, 7, daughter of S. Sgt. and Mrs. Carl Arana of San Antonio, drowned during a family outing at Lake Dunlap, southeast of New Braunfels.
John Turner, 76, of Houston died Sunday of injuries suffered in a three-car accident there the day before. He was riding with a sister, Bessie B. Ray, 59, who was reported in critical condition as a result of the accident.
An argument at a Houston lounge ended with Edmund W. Cloutier, 31, of Houston dead from a pistol shot Saturday night, police said. Officers charged Carrol V. Comstock, 47, with murder.

Local Red Cross Sponsors Adult Swimming Class

An adult swimming class, sponsored by the American Red Cross will begin at 6 p.m. today at the city pool, according to Mrs. Libby Shotwell, executive secretary of Gray County Chapter.
The classes will be divided into beginner, advanced beginner and intermediate groups.
Instructors for the classes, to be conducted Monday through Friday for two weeks, will be Jack Hilton, Everett Gray, Barry George and Jackie Stevens.
All non-swimming adults are urged to register for the series. Registration fee is $1 per person.

LBJ Ignores Questions About Viet War Story

ODESSA, Tex. (AP)—Former President Lyndon B. Johnson had nothing to say about the Pentagon's controversial Vietnam papers and he declined to talk with newsmen during a brief talk Sunday.
He appeared at Odessa's Library of the Presidents, to which he donated four books and promised more during a brief talk.
Mrs. Johnson accompanied him here and dedicated the library collection, which is in the privately financed Ector County Presidential Museum.
Her husband said he presented the volumes "as my part of giving something back to West Texas; that has been so good to me, something that might be used by future presidents."
"I am going to come back every year that I can, bringing a few more books and money for the Presidential Museum."
Johnson gave the library a volume titled "The Johnson Years," which is a collection of articles dealing with his administration; others titled "Mrs. LBJ" and "A More Beautiful America," and one about the proceedings in 1964 at the Democratic national convention.

A graduate of Pampa High School, Porter served in the U.S. Navy Air Corps as a captain during World War II. He is a member of the Central Baptist Church and is a licensed ham radio operator.

Accused Slayers Of Three Deputies Face Trial Today

BELTON, Tex. (AP) — Two Dallas men faced a murder trial today in a case that erupted on the bank of the Trinity River and left three deputy sheriffs dead.
Testimony was expected to get under way early with Dallas Dist. Atty. Henry Wade taking a direct part in the prosecution. Wade has not personally headed the prosecution staff in a courtroom since the trial of Jack Ruby for murdering Lee Harvey Oswald, President Kennedy's alleged assassin.
The defendants in the case, Rene Guzman and Leonardo Lopez, are on trial on charges that they murdered Ellis County Deputy A. J. Robertson of Waxahatchie.
The state is seeking the death penalty.
Also killed on the river bank in Dallas last Feb. 15 were Dallas deputies Samuel G. Infante and W. D. Reese.
Another deputy was wounded. Still another fled unhurt and gave the alarm.

Pampa Man Beaten At Home In Undetermined Condition

William J. Ludlum, 59, Pampa, remained in Veterans Hospital in undetermined condition this forenoon.
Ludlum, the victim of a suspected beating was found Saturday afternoon unconscious in the family home 2121 N. Banks by his wife.
Mrs. Ludlum told officers she had been away on a three-week vacation and found her husband in the floor when she arrived home about 2 p.m.
Ludlum reportedly talked with his son Friday at 11 p.m. and told him at that time he would meet Mrs. Ludlum at the Amarillo Airport Saturday.
He failed to meet his wife and she obtained transportation to Pampa with a relative.
Police said Ludlum had sustained injuries to his head and face.
A car in the driveway, unknown to Mrs. Ludlum, was identified as a vehicle owned by Cooper Motor Co. in Borger. Cooper officials told police Ludlum had left his car at the Borger lot, and was testing the car.
Investigation into the incident is being continued.

10,000 KILLED ANNUALLY

NTSB Calls On Government To Protect Walkers' Safety
WASHINGTON (AP) — With the nation's annual pedestrian death toll nearing 10,000, the National Transportation Safety Board today called on the federal government to put more emphasis on walkers' safety.
The board said results of a study conducted within the Department of Transportation showed little being done to improve pedestrian safety.
"Efforts directed specifically to pedestrian safety vary between one-eighteenth and one-nineteenth of the effort that would be in proportion to pedestrian fatalities," the board said.
Of all the persons killed in highway accidents during the period, 18 per cent were pedestrians.
Although several agencies within DOT are involved in pedestrian safety, no office or individual is responsible for their coordination, the study said.
"The absence of any organized national pedestrian interest groups and the absence of authorized programs which seek to expand facilities for pedestrian traffic or to improve the efficiency of pedestrian movement are serious drawbacks to pedestrian safety," it stated.
The report cited the "almost total lack of facilities for pedestrian traffic on and across the interstate highway system."
During the 1967-1969 period there were 29,000 pedestrian deaths, 72 per cent more than the combined total of all aviation, marine, railroad and grade-crossing fatalities, the board said.

Many Hospitals Let Mom Stay With Child

The presence of a parent can often do more to help a child recuperate than anything else. Realizing this, a great many hospitals have radically changed their visiting hours and overnight stay policies for the parents of a hospitalized child. Knowing the temperament and emotional reactions of your children you should inquire about this before planning any admission to the hospital.
We hope it never becomes necessary but if you do have to plan an overnight stay with one of your children, we can make up a small kit of night-time essentials to help you to be more comfortable.
"This is Children's Month"
YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service and charge accounts.

Huber Corporation Relocates Hercules Shop In Borger Plant

The Hercules Machine Department of the J.M. Huber Corporation has moved from Tulsa, Okla., and has begun operations in a new 20,000 square-foot plant and office facility at Borger. The relocation was completed June 15.

The move resulted from an Urban Renewal Program in Tulsa which made it necessary to relocate the Hercules operation. Selection of the Texas location was influenced by the advantages of consolidating Hercules with Huber's Equipment Division's operations at Borger.

The Hercules Tool Company was founded in 1924 and acquired by Huber in 1965. Through the years, Hercules became widely recognized as a manufacturer of quality oil field equipment essential to the production of oil. These products include stuffing boxes, tubing and casing heads, tees, casing and tubing supports, tubing hangers, and related equipment. Variations of most of these products are made for special requirements and use.

Joe F. Rives is vice president of Huber's Equipment Division and headquarters at Borger. F.L. Carson is manager of Huber's consolidated Borger operations. Besides its Hercules products, Huber also manufactures paraffin scrapers, rod rotators, polished rod clamps, polished rod lubricators, and similar equipment for multiple-completed oil wells at its Borger plant.

Another acquisition of Huber's Equipment Division, the Yale Machine Department in Houston, manufactures a complete line of unions and pipeline closures for the petroleum and pipeline industries. The Equipment Division also operates smaller shops in Oklahoma City, Casper, Wyo., and Wooster, Ohio. A Canadian licensee has shops in Edmonton, Alberta, and Esplan, Saskatchewan.

Sales Manager E.V. Garrett directs sales of all of Huber's Equipment Division's products.

Radio and Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Hal Kanter is a comedy specialist who makes a very handsome living creating just about the most warm, lovable and wholesome folks we've ever met on television. His most recent was that gorgeous R. N. "Julia." Next season it will be an absent-minded professor, played by James Stewart.

Now Hal Kanter has created a novel, called "Snake in the Glass," about a bunch of Hollywood-Madison Avenue types who are anything but warm and lovable. Since the rewards of novel-writing usually do not compare with those obtained by producing popular television series, it must be regarded as a labor of love or frustration.

The contrast between Kanter's TV characters and the novel's aggressive venal or frightened people who are connected with a TV comedy show is marked. But it is the high content of four-letter words and explicit scenes that make it a bit of a shocker, mostly because Kanter's style is usually so gentle and chaste. The newly minted author, in New York to launch and plug the book, explained:

"I've always wanted to write a book. Film is okay but it comes in cans and what can you do with a can? But a book is right there. It's printed. Best of all, a book is not dependent on actors; it is your own—all these other things are collaborative efforts."

Kanter, in a lull, started the novel about four years ago "but one day I went to a Roy Wilkins luncheon—and right home to write a pilot for 'Julia.'"

Even after he became furiously busy with the NBC series—producer and occasionally directing and writing episodes over three seasons—he would occasionally pound out a chapter of the book.

"It was sort of a spiritual cathartic after writing Corey Baker and Earl J. Waggoner dialogue," said Kanter, referring to the two lovable, warm little boys he created for the series.

Mexico's President Determined To Fulfill His Campaign Promises

By ELOY O. Aguilar
MEXICO CITY (AP) — When President Luis Echeverria was on his electoral campaign one of his collaborators said: "After we win we are going to change things. We are going to change the party, and we are going to change the system."

Echeverria is still determined to do it, but it is now apparent that it is not going to be an easy task, although the dent seems to have won the first battle.

The war is not over. But Echeverria seems to have gained many allies including some former critics of the government and the party and leftist leaders who are willing to give him some time to prove his liberal credentials.

The struggle involves the whole Mexican political system, a system center around the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI).

The party has ruled this country since the close of the 1910 revolution. It has become an organization—more than an ideological front—in which bankers, businessmen, labor leaders and political heirs of the revolutionary heroes mix without apparent conflict of interest.

The party and the government have become almost one entity. Candidates to electoral posts are appointed by party officials in a secretive fashion that has become a way of life in Mexican politics.

It is a system in which even so-called organized opposition is party subsidized by the ruling party through the government's many agencies dealing with everything from newsprint to advertising.

The student disturbances of 1968, crushed by the administration of President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz at the cost of many lives, were seen by some party officials as warnings that the party must become more flexible and more responsive to the larger sectors of the population.

Former President Emilio Portes Gil, also a former president of the party, said this week that the party "committed many errors—sales of candidacies, violations of the vote and imposition of candidates."

"The party must open its door to youth," he added, "and become more democratic."

Echeverria tried to accomplish this urging open selection of candidates, bringing a wave of youth into the administration and encouraging criticism.

Through Echeverria's direct intervention, a student conflict in Monterrey was solved to the students' satisfaction with repeal of the university's organic law and the resignation of the state governor and the university rector.

"University autonomy and freedom of the press are two of our most important freedoms," Echeverria said recently.

Shortly after he took office Echeverria announced new tax laws, told industrialists to improve productivity and forget government protective measures. He pushed through Congress a new agrarian reform law and in his weekly trips to the provinces encouraged Mexicans to "speak out" and criticize.

Of course many interests have been affected by Echeverria's programs and government style," a source close to the president said in an interview. "Draw your own conclusions. The better he looks the worse previous administrations look."

The informant added that many prominent men from the administration of President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz are in Echeverria's government and others have plenty of influence in party circles.

Like all family quarrels, those in the party are kept in the innermost circles, but the recent incident when a group of well trained armed youths attacked an antigovernment demonstration gave room to a variety of speculations.

Echeverria, say close collaborators, had given orders that the students be allowed to demonstrate.

Monday, June 28, 1971

Today In History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Today is Monday, June 28, the 179th day of 1971. There are 186 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1914, the heir to the throne of Austria-Hungary, Archduke Francis Ferdinand, was assassinated at Sarajevo, Bosnia. It was the spark that set off World War I.

On this date: In 1778, the Revolutionary War Battle of Monmouth, N.J., was fought. A heroine's role was played by Molly Pitcher.

In 1838, Britain's Queen Victoria was crowned.

In 1919, the Versailles Treaty was signed in France after World War I.

In 1941, in World War II, guerrilla warfare against the Nazis began in Yugoslavia.

In 1944, a Republican National Convention in Chicago nominated New York Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for president.

In 1945, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced the reconquest of Luzon in the Philippines during the Pacific war.

Ten years ago: President John F. Kennedy announced that a special committee of scientists had been named to assess whether the Soviet Union was conducting secret atomic tests.

Five years ago: A junta in Argentina ousted President Arturo Illia. Lt. Gen. Juan Carlos Onganía took over as provisional president.

One year ago: Britain rushed more troops to Northern Ireland to try to halt fighting between Roman Catholic and Protestant factions.

Wall Street Chatter

By DAVID BURKE
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Except for its sharp drop Monday, the stock market spent most of the past week drifting aimlessly. Investors are confused, uncertain, and leary at this point.

said Monte Gordon, analyst with Bache & Co.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange was sluggish all week, and on Friday, dropped to the second-lowest level of the year. All told, 66.3 million shares were traded during the week, compared with 68.4 million shares the previous week.

Most market indices declined.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell 12.28 to 876.65.

The Associated Press 60-stock average fell 3.1 to 314.1. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index slipped 0.98 to 97.99.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks fell 0.53 to 54.10.

Of the 1,819 stocks traded on the Big Board, 586 advanced and 1,060 declined. There were 31 new highs for the year and 297 new lows.

Gulf Oil was most-active on the Big Board, losing to 31½ on 876,500 shares. Much of this activity occurred Friday, when a 549,300 share block changed hands at 31¼, off ¼.

A smashing summertime dress to crochet. Brilliant floral motifs you work quickly blossom everywhere on this open-worked warm weather winner.

Crochet Summer time Knit Floral Motifs

By JUDY LOVE
Summertime — when the living is easy, and everything is lovely, bright and fun. For example, how about this brilliant little summer-right dress to crochet?

Here's a glorious young fun-timer you can crochet in short order on a No. 1-0 (zero) hook. The body of this clever cooler is an easy open-mesh pattern, worked in a solid rose shade using 16 or 18 balls of Knit-Cro Sheen, the number of balls of yarn depending on the size you're making.

Part of the freshness and fashion beauty of this simple-to-crochet summer-timer is the explosion of colorful medallions all over the little dress. These are a series of red, flamingo, purple, watermelon and tango motifs. Each dress boasts a bright profusion of 24 or 27 motifs in each color — truly a brilliant collection of crocheted charm and prettiness.

You start working the motifs first: At the center, with 2 strands of one color held together, ch 5. Join with sl to form ring. Then you work 2 rnds for each motif. It goes easily and quickly, simply by following the clear directions.

Your bright little medallion motifs form the scalloped hemline, the set-in waistline, and the handsomely flared long sleeves. The flattering, softly scooped neckline is another triumph of colorful crochet work: Joined motifs are sewn over the neckband, with the top halves of the motifs extending free. The look is young, unusual and so becoming.

Directions for this open mesh-work dress to crochet are available for sizes 6 to 12. So get out your crochet hook, and send for the easy-to-follow instructions. Send 50 cents to Stitches 'n' Time, c/o Pampa Daily News, Radio City Station, Box 503, New York, N.Y. 10021. Ask for Stitches 'n' Time leaflet S318. Include your name, address and zip code.

KNIT KNACKS
DEAR JUDY — How do you recommend getting rid of ends of yarn that have been joined in the middle of a row? Thanks.

Mrs. J.M., Fort Myers, Fla.
DEAR MRS. J.M. — Here's a good way that both novice and old-time knitters use to darn in ends:

Thread a sharp needle with one strand of your yarn; on the wrong side of your work sew a row up through the knitting for about 1 inch, just catching the top of each loop. Do not go in and out the stitches from one side of your work to the other.

Then sew a row down in the same manner and cut off the end of the yarn.

Now, keep right on knitting.
Best, Judy

POLLY'S POINTERS Woman Suggests Way To Fold Fitted Sheet

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I am answering Mary who wanted to know how to make knots between beads when they are strung. Buy the proper type of string from a jeweler. (Polly's note—Mrs. F. S. suggests using nylon fishing line.) Tie a knot near the end of the string and be sure to allow enough excess for the clasp. Push a bead on the string, push it against the knot and then tie an ordinary knot close to the bead but do not pull it tight. Insert a large pin in the loose knot. Pull knot against the bead, remove the pin from the knot and pull it tight. Place the next bead against this knot and keep repeating the process.

Thanks for the reminder, Mrs. C.D. Fitted sheets are even more widely used now than when the following was first published.
—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—For years I have folded fitted sheets the following way and they look as neat on the shelf as the straight ones. The directions originally came from the Cannon Homemaking Service: "Start with the sheet inside out, held the long way. Place a hand in each of the upper corners. Bring fingers in corners together. Turn left corner right side out and fit over right corner. Now you have one corner over the other as a tailor folds a coat shoulder to shoulder. Smooth out sheet's edges. Now fit the second set of corners one into another. Repeat the same action, turning left doubled corner inside out and fitting over right doubled corner. All four corners are now neatly nestled into one corner of four thicknesses. Smooth all edges and place sheets on a flat surface. Flatten pocket corner. Sheet is ready to fold neatly into any desired size to fit in your linen closet."
—ALICE

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—Often I have to remove patches that have been ironed on the knees of school pants. The patch comes off but a lot of the glue remains on the pants. There must be an easier way to remove this than having to pick and scrape a bit at a time.
—MRS. J.M.

DEAR POLLY—I cut this Pointer out of the paper several years ago. To me, it is the best Pointer you have ever published and I am sure some of the younger homemakers would be delighted to have it, so do them

Eastern Star Order Announces Officers

Square and Compasses by Pamela Baldas.

The chapter room was decorated to carry out the Worthy Matron's theme. The sun was displayed in the East to effect the rays of the sun projecting to the open Holy Bible. The Star Point Stations were covered with white satin and each held arrangements of flowers and tapers, of appropriate colors. In the West was a basket of Spring flowers.

Other officers installed were Mrs. David Rife, associate matron; David Rife, associate patron; Mrs. James Washington, secretary; Mrs. Bill Willis, treasurer; Mrs. Lelah Dusapin, conductress; Mrs. Sue McFall, associate conductress; Hugh Shotwell, chaplain; Mrs. Wayne Sims, marshal; Mrs. Truman Altaway, organist; Mrs. Hugh Shotwell, Adah; Mrs. Reid Brooks, Ruth; Mrs. Paul Esther; Mrs. Marie Goodnight; Martha; Mrs. F. T. Coffee, Electa; Mrs. Addie Cain, warder and James Washington, sentinel.

Mrs. M. Q. Wilson presided as installing officer. Others assisting in the installation were Mrs. Bill Willis, installing marshal; Mrs. A. P. Coombes, installing chaplain; Mrs. G.K. Reading, installing secretary and Mrs. C. J. McNaughton, installing organist.

Preceding the installation the candles were lighted by Jan Stubblefield and Marsha Foster; the Holy Bible was presented by Joveda Bunch and the

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Euren

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "STAMP WIDOW" she's lucky. Unlike sports widows who wonder if their husbands really went to the game, or TV widows whose husbands ignore them for hours on end, stamp widows always know where their husbands are. And there isn't a stamp collector alive who doesn't like to talk about his hobby. Even to his wife. Ticket stubs and programs from sports events only add to the nation's pollution, but a stamp collection is like money in the bank. Think of the legacy the stamp collector's wife will have, if she outlives him.

ISRAEL I. BICK: BEVERLY HILLS
DEAR MR. BICK: And what if she doesn't outlive him? She's given the best years of her life to a man whose biggest thrill is finding a 1923 airmail stamp with the airplane upside down. And his second wife winds up with a valuable stamp collection.

DEAR ABBY: I could have written that letter from "STAMP WIDOW." My husband is an avid stamp collector and we had the biggest laugh over it. My Montie doesn't drink, smoke or chase women. His home is the most important thing in his life — after his stamps, of course.
LORRAINE RUMSOWER: LOWDEN, IA

DEAR ABBY: You told "STAMP WIDOW" she was lucky because her husband had the one hobby she could "lick." Shame on you, Abby. Anyone who collects stamps knows that to lick a stamp is blasphemy. Stamp collectors use stamp hinges or protective mounts.
ED SUSMAN: HARTFORD TIMES

DEAR ED: Okay, I'll take a good "licking" with a Scott catalog.

DEAR ABBY: Stamp Widow doesn't know how lucky she is. My husband is a stamp collector and I have to go to all the stamp shows and auctions with him. And I'm the "soaker off" from envelopes and cards that friends give him. Yes, my house is a mess with stamps drying off all over. But I'm lucky. He could be in a tavern, gambling, instead of in his stamp corner.

I've gone to work with stamp hinges clinging to my clothes, inside my shoes, and you don't ask where else. For Christmas, birthdays, Father's Day, what does my man want? Stamps, or supplies for his albums.
LILLIAN

DEAR ABBY: Words cannot adequately express my appreciation for the wholesome hobby of stamp collecting. My husband was forced to retire before 60 so he turned to his stamp collection, added to it, bought and sold stamps and found a fascinating hobby that required no physical effort.

We exposed our children to stamps early. As they brought in the mail they would announce, "Betsy Ross Flag!" Or "another Mr. Lincoln!" They learned history through observing stamps. To this day I never throw away a canceled stamp. I-cut, soak and dry. And they're saved for my grandchildren.
STAMP WIDOW: MPLS.

The Kitchen Returns to Nature

Most people tend to neglect the decorative potential their kitchen has to offer. Because the kitchen is really the most utilitarian room in the house, beauty is often forsaken for practicality. Yet, with just a little decorative inspiration and the addition of a few simple, colorful accessories even the most mundane kitchen can be turned into a cheerful center for food preparation and a bevy of other family activities.

To spruce up a tired kitchen, what could be more fitting than a host of inexpensive, practical accessories garnered from nature? Although there are multitudes of handsome decorative items on the market designed just for kitchen use, you needn't spend a king's ransom to find the proper decorative touches. There's an endless array of decorative potential right on your cabinet shelves, just waiting to be discovered.

Pasta, a staple in every woman's kitchen, needn't be hidden behind closet doors. Instead, why not fill clear glass jars or even milk bottles with spaghetti or macaroni and display them right out on counter tops. Cereal grains, rice, sugar, salt, pepper and flour will all keep better too, in these inexpensive canisters. Strings of onions, garlic, and peppers can be hung on kitchen walls to add bright spots of color with a natural flavor. Small pots of homegrown spices perk up window sills while an old roasting pan or casserole can be turned into a hardy planter for green or flowering plants.

A maple or pecan butcher block table or counter top, so current for today, lends a contemporary, "natural" look to any style kitchen, and makes a convenient cutting surface, too. And an oak table adds just the right rustic look to an old-fashioned kitchen, or a stark, contemporary one as well.

If you're planning a new kitchen for your home, remember that hardwood cabinets add rich warmth and cheer to even the driest, driest area. In addition, they'll help to underscore the latest decorating theme—decorating with the best Mother Nature has to offer. (NIP Features)

A GAS outdoor grill gives food a tangy outdoor flavor without the time and bother of charcoal fire. Char-broiled flavor comes from the smoke of meat juices dripping on hot briquets. Charcoal itself provides no flavor.

Permanent ceramic briquets in the gas grill reach cooking heat in a few minutes, and there is no long wait to start cooking. The heat is regulated manually so there is no need to move a grill up or down.

Britain's Great Debate On Europe Common Market Turns Out To Be Big Yawn

By TOM CULLEN
LONDON (NEA)—A visitor would never suspect that Britain is teetering on the edge of joining the European Common Market, billed as the most momentous event since the barons forced King John to sign the Magna Carta at Runnymede.

No fanfare of trumpets nor roll of drums heralds the final negotiations on terms for Britain's entry into the European community. Instead, the nation's eyes are focused on the cricket matches being played by English and Pakistan teams, the British equivalent of baseball's World Series.

Racing at Ascot, the boat races at Henley-on-Thames and tennis at Wimbledon will provide other diversions.

The Great Debate on the Common Market has turned out to be the Big Yawn.

Prime Minister Edward Heath is largely to blame for the public apathy on the Common Market issue, owing to his failure to enlighten the nation on the progress of the Brussels negotiations.

Also, Heath too often has allowed the public debate to degenerate into a haggle over Commonwealth sugar, New Zealand butter and cheese and the reserve role of sterling, rather than stressing the contribution Britain can make to European peace and unity.

As a result nearly two-thirds of the nation is firmly opposed to Britain joining the Six, according to public opinion polls. "Heath has been more successful in persuading President Pompidou to change his mind on British entry than he has in carrying his own countrymen with him on the issue," one of Heath's critics says.

Opposition to the Six cuts right across party political lines, though rather more Labor party supporters than Conservatives are against British entry.

Although the opposition stems largely from the belief that Common Market membership will lead to a spectacular rise in living costs, one encounters a variety of irrational fears in talking to Britons.

"What will happen to our queen if Britain joins?" I was asked by one British matron, who was clearly worried about the future of the monarchy. When I pointed out that two of the six members of the E. E. C., Holland and Belgium, likewise have monarchies, the matron's reply was, "Maybe the queen won't be affected but how about Prince Charles when he comes to the throne? What future is there for him in a United States of Europe?"

At the other end of the social scale one finds trade unionists who are worried that Britain will be flooded with cheap labor. It is useless to point out that workers in Common

POMP AND CEREMONY greeted Prime Minister Heath, right, on his arrival at Paris' Elysee Palace for talks with French President Georges Pompidou which apparently cleared the diplomatic road to British Common Market membership. But there are still a few obstacles at home, such as public opposition and parliamentary forebodings.

Market countries enjoy, on an average, higher wages, longer vacations and less unemployment than Britain.

on our socialized medicine." France's President Pompidou made countless enemies here when he insisted, in a recent television interview, that French should remain the working language of the Six. His reason: "English is the language not only of the United Kingdom but also of the United States. If Europe wishes to become herself she must be distinct from the United States."

Is "the language of Shakespeare, Chaucer and Milton" to be sacrificed to the building of a new Europe? James Callaghan, the No. 2 Labor party leader, cried in a recent speech.

The truth is that though they may be carried screaming and kicking into the Common Market, the British people are not European-minded. For them the old prejudice that "the wogs begin at Calais" still holds.

Only the Dutch emerged with a clean bill of health in a recent survey of British opinion about Continentals. The French and Italians were rated as dirty, dishonest and "too interested in sex." The Germans are hard-working, it was grudgingly admitted, but Britons regard them with suspicion as being intolerant and still prone to violence.

The two out of three Britons who are opposed to British entry into the Common Market are likely to remain a silent majority, for the British constitution provides no outlet for their opposition.

There is no likelihood of a general election being called on the Common Market issue, nor is there any provision for the holding of a national referendum. (Norway, Denmark and the Irish Republic, which have also applied for E.E.C. membership, are all planning plebiscites on the issue.)

In refusing to hold either a referendum or a general election on British entry, Prime Minister Heath told the House of Commons recently: "I have always made it plain that it is Parliament's responsibility to decide this issue, as indeed it is Parliament's responsibility to decide every other point of international relations."

In so declaring, Heath exposed the real weakness of parliamentary democracy in the opinion of many observers. The British system provides no machinery for consulting the electorate between elections other than through the 600-odd men and women who make up the House of Commons.

"Parliament is supposed to give a lead to the nation," declares one of Heath's supporters, in defense of the British system. "If we had held a referendum on capital punishment we never would have abolished the death penalty for murder."

Similarly, if parliamentarians had consulted the public they would never have legalized abortion, a reform which is now giving the government one of its biggest headaches.

A warning about the shortcomings of the British system comes from The Guardian, one of Britain's most influential newspapers. Democracy based on the ballot-box is now under severe attack, The Guardian points out in an editorial.

"Each generation of young people now needs to be convinced... that representative government works better than the dictatorship of the proletariat... or even the anarchy."

"To take a decision on entry into Europe — by any criterion one of the great decisions in British history — without giving Members of Parliament the fullest opportunity to consult the people would arouse the deeper cynicism about our institutions."

JEANE DIXON Your Horoscope

TUESDAY, JUNE 25: A season begins of improving material prosperity, according to how you pursue novel ideas for increasing the market value of what you produce. Change of job and entry into new fields of study are normal for the upcoming year or two. Tuesday's natives aren't always tactful, but appreciate diplomacy in their physical courage is greater than their emotional susceptibility.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Give thought to your health and its protection, personal habits and how to improve your chances. Regular work keeps you as busy as you care to be.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): You express thoughts previously kept to yourself, particularly about family affairs. It is just as well, provided you accept correction of misunderstandings, hear other sides of the story.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Whenever you have earned something extra or something of yours should be returned, go get it. Where a relationship has been strained as to being any imposition, tactfully draw some line.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Self-improvement is the keyword today, and many people encourage and facilitate your endeavor.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Settle for cash wherever deals can be closed. Where you have something to sell, present your sales talk in full confidence. Rewards come from long-past, perhaps forgotten actions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Early hours mark a high tide in your affairs this month, but turn away from material concerns at the first opportunity. Adjust to a somewhat changing situation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Tuesday's placid surface is no more than that. Get into it a bit and find out the hidden meanings of conditions around you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Theories reveal their faults in experience and application. Keep track of what happens and what seems to be the main case, without jumping to conclusions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): In all moods, keep in mind that your merits and the value of your efforts are self-evident, needing no salesmanship.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Whatever has been going on unnoticed in your family or among relatives may come to general attention. Expect some dislocation of plans while you cope with what changes in full confidence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Take time out for reliving bright memories, refreshing old acquaintances. And, along with it, belated understanding of an old puzzle.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Suddenly you find yourself alone in spirit if not in reality. Come to terms within yourself, see the skills and storage in your resources, leave the corrective actions for later.

New Laws Affect Area Sportsmen

AUSTIN — A House Resolution authorizing the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department to move its headquarters to the new McKinney Falls State Park near Austin highlighted legislative activity affecting the department during the 62nd Legislature's regular session.

The resolution, signed by Gov. Preston Smith authorizes the move and directs the State Building Commission to provide assistance.

The McKinney Falls site, which is not yet open to the public, is a 632-acre tract located seven miles from the State Capitol and just southwest of Bergstrom Air Force Base.

Legislation already signed into law ranged from establishment of a white-winged dove stamp fee to issuance of falconer's permits and authorization of the Parks and Wildlife Commission to allow hunting on certain state parks and other Department property in accordance with sound biological management practices and other considerations.

Listed below are the basic provisions of House Bills signed into law, followed by provisions of the Senate Bills:

HOUSE BILLS
1. H. B. 211: Repeals several Acts relating to the taking of oysters and provides (a) for an oyster dredge license for boats other than bay shrimp boats and bay shrimp boats (b) fee for Commercial Dredge License $5 and limits size to 14 inches in width; oysters taken with sport dredge may not be sold, (c) provides no closed season on oysters in waters of Laguna Madre south of Port Mansfield Channel, and sets season, except by permit from the Parks and Wildlife Department, from May 1 to Oct. 31, (d) oysters may be taken only from sunrise to sunset, (e) Parks and Wildlife Commission may close any oyster waters after two week notice and posting, (f) limits one boat to 50 barrels of oysters, (g) limits one boat to one dredge, (h) limits one boat to one dredge, (i) limits one boat to one dredge, (j) limits one boat to one dredge, (k) limits one boat to one dredge, (l) limits one boat to one dredge, (m) limits one boat to one dredge, (n) limits one boat to one dredge, (o) limits one boat to one dredge, (p) limits one boat to one dredge, (q) limits one boat to one dredge, (r) limits one boat to one dredge, (s) limits one boat to one dredge, (t) limits one boat to one dredge, (u) limits one boat to one dredge, (v) limits one boat to one dredge, (w) limits one boat to one dredge, (x) limits one boat to one dredge, (y) limits one boat to one dredge, (z) limits one boat to one dredge.

2. H. B. 277: Prohibits hunting from any type of aircraft and provides that game animals and non-game birds may be hunted from an automobile on private properties, effective in 90 days.

3. H. B. 278: The 22 caliber jetgun and rocket gun added to firearms using 22 caliber rim fire ammunition as prohibited weapons in taking deer, elk, antelope, wild animal sheep and wild desert bighorn sheep, effective in 90 days.

15. H. B. 474: Provides that any person who takes a white-winged dove stamp, fee $5 and stamp signed by county clerk, shall be used for management and protection of white-winged doves and one-half of the funds may only be used for the acquisition of white-winged habitat in the state, effective immediately.

16. H. B. 475: Special archery season in Kinble County for deer season, effective in 90 days.

17. H. B. 476: Provides for approval of hunting areas by the Robert County Commission, effective immediately.

18. H. B. 477: Relating to the repeal of provisions of the Parks and Wildlife Commission, effective immediately.

19. H. B. 478: Calling devices may not be used to attract fish in Liberty, Washita, Jasper, Nevada, Tarrant and counties except by permit from the Parks and Wildlife Department, effective immediately.

20. H. B. 479: Provides that any person who takes a white-winged dove stamp, fee $5 and stamp signed by county clerk, shall be used for management and protection of white-winged doves and one-half of the funds may only be used for the acquisition of white-winged habitat in the state, effective immediately.

21. H. B. 480: Provides that any person who takes a white-winged dove stamp, fee $5 and stamp signed by county clerk, shall be used for management and protection of white-winged doves and one-half of the funds may only be used for the acquisition of white-winged habitat in the state, effective immediately.

22. H. B. 481: Provides that any person who takes a white-winged dove stamp, fee $5 and stamp signed by county clerk, shall be used for management and protection of white-winged doves and one-half of the funds may only be used for the acquisition of white-winged habitat in the state, effective immediately.

23. H. B. 482: Provides that any person who takes a white-winged dove stamp, fee $5 and stamp signed by county clerk, shall be used for management and protection of white-winged doves and one-half of the funds may only be used for the acquisition of white-winged habitat in the state, effective immediately.

24. H. B. 483: Provides that any person who takes a white-winged dove stamp, fee $5 and stamp signed by county clerk, shall be used for management and protection of white-winged doves and one-half of the funds may only be used for the acquisition of white-winged habitat in the state, effective immediately.

Two World Marks Fall In AAU Track Meet

By KEN DONEY Associated Press Sports Writer

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Two world records had already been claimed when three-time collegiate mile champion Marty Liquori took aim on the Amateur Athletic Union's national title.

It was raining, but that didn't bother Liquori, the Villanova star running for the New York Athletic Club.

"Unfortunately, the rain makes you a little tight, but it doesn't bother you that much," he said. Four of my fastest times have either been in the rain or right after, so I don't mind."

Liquori, who finished third in last year's AAU meet, had his way this time, winning in 3:58.5.

American Legion Rebels Pound Perryton, 13 to 4

The American Legion Rebels under the three-hit pitching of Jeff Hogan defeated the Perryton Legion team 13 to 4 Sunday afternoon in Optimist Park. Bonner was the losing pitcher giving up 10 hits, walking five and striking out 6. Hogan gave up 3 hits, struck out 13 and walked six.

The only extra base hits of the game came from Pampa's Mike Reddell in the first inning with a double and Dan Hood's triple in the third.

The Rebels have three games slated in the next week meeting Dumas in Dumas Wednesday, Perryton in Perryton Friday and Borger comes to Pampa for a 3:30 p.m. Sunday game. Borger has been the only team to drop the Rebels so far this season.

Safe Boating Quiz. What should a small craft skipper do when he finds himself caught in a really rough sea? A. He should (1) head into the waves at an angle (2) reduce speed, have passengers sit close to the centerline on the bottom of the boat, and head for shore; (3) use a sea anchor to keep the bow pointed into the waves if the motor fails. No skipper should ever leave the dock without proven life jackets or flotation gear for everyone aboard, say the boat safety experts.

Miracle Of Myrdal

When Libertarians point out that the legal plunder of welfareism must inevitably lead to economic and social chaos, Socialists tend to scoff. But, when Gunnar Myrdal, architect of the welfare state in Sweden, whose ideas contributed much to our own plunge into socialism, says essentially the same thing, perhaps advocates of the welfare state can be induced to bend an ear.

Myrdal, according to Sterling G. Slappey, Senior Editor of "Nation's Business," who interviewed the Swedish Socialist recently and reported the results in that publication's April issue, is having some second thoughts about government goodies and how they're consumed.

Greediness tends to grow in the welfare state, Professor Myrdal candidly conceded. "Everyone wants the road in front of his home paved," he said. "People want more nurseries, more hospitals, more and more of everything. Yet, at the same time people are demanding more benefits," and "are angry" when they have to line up to receive them, he continued, "they are complaining about high taxes. The people must realize they can't get something for nothing."

The Swedish professor's critical reexamination of socialism in Sweden, said Slappey, came on the heels of the recent widespread strike in that country in which "tens of thousands of Swedes — professionals, including judges, doctors and teachers; various white collar workers; including municipal employees; and railwaymen — went on strike" for higher wages and other government provided benefits.

And, as greediness tends to increase in people under socialism, Myrdal told Slappey, so does arrogance in officialdom. Recalling how bureaucrats tried to tell his uncle in Delecarlia (a central Swedish province) "where to put the doors in his house" after the uncle got a state loan for construction, the Swedish professor pointed out that "bureaucrats think they know more about what a citizen wants than the citizen himself does."

Skyrocketing costs throughout Sweden's entire economy, noted Slappey, are one of Myrdal's chief worries. "As welfare benefits have expanded and taxes have gone steadily higher," the Nation's Business

Editor said, "the Swedes have been beset by fearful inflation... after years of constantly cheapening money, Sweden has become a very expensive country to live in or visit." And, "inflation is upsetting to everyone," Myrdal was quoted as saying, "It's hell for every society."

Likening the situation in Sweden to that in the United States, the Socialist Professor said, "You're already more of a welfare state than some Americans realize." Politicians and political parties in the U.S. and Sweden alike, he said, "compete in offering more and bigger welfare benefits," and "to make matters worse," people in a welfare state, "forgetting that the state has nothing which it does not first take, 'look upon the state as an employer.'"

Asked by Editor Slappey for his suggestions as to the way out of Sweden's socialistic dilemma, Myrdal said: "We would encourage private savings, more private home building and ownership, more holding of stock in companies. This," he noted, "would leave more money in the hands of the people who earn it," and then continued: "Sweden possibly cannot afford some of the social programs it has. We know full well there are many people who cannot afford the new, low-cost housing we're building for them. Too much of their income already goes to the state for welfare. Something is wrong and we must reconcile the money we pay to house these low-income people with the money we must pay workers to put up the houses."

Having seen that socialism has all but wrecked his native Sweden, and admitting to having deep "reservations about the American guaranteed income plan" (the welfare situation in the United States "is scandalous," the Swedish professor was quoted by Slappey as saying, "it must be changed"), one would think that Myrdal's recommendations to this country for "a way out of the swamp of socialism would parallel those voiced for his own country. But, unfortunately, that was not the case.

Quizzed in this respect, Myrdal, according to Slappey, said that "America (meaning our governmental bureaucracy) should clear out poverty pockets, and bring people up from 'slum-mindedness,' by spending an extra trillion dollars in the next decade."

All of which goes to show that Gunnar Myrdal's re-education is not yet complete and the extent of double-think in which the Socialist mind permits itself to indulge.

Dubious Distinction

A rock formation in Meramac Caverns near Stanton, Mo., has for years been known as "Mother-in-law's Tongue" because of its resemblance to a huge human tongue. The formation has just been renamed "Martha Mitchell's Tongue" in honor of the loquacious wife of the U.S. attorney general.

Mount Rushmore, it ain't, but fame is fame.

The Stuff Of Heroes

Howard Franks, 65-year-old businessman from Darien, Conn., was a passenger on an airliner that had stopped in Chicago. As other passengers were boarding, Mr. Franks saw a small, gaunt man grab a stewardess around the neck, put a pistol to her head, and pull her into the galley of the plane. Some of the passengers dashed off the plane. Others dodged behind the seats. Mr. Franks, on the other hand, went to the rescue of the young woman. The gunman killed him with two shots. It is a thin line that divides foolishness from courage. Regardless of which side of the line Mr. Franks' endeavor lies on, his example reminds us that there are men — a few men — who seem not to care whether they live or die as long as they are doing what they believe their duty to be. Of such a stamp are heroes. Of such a stamp was Howard Franks, businessman.

Sensing The News

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

EXAMPLE OF ARROGANCE

While the public is well aware that many network commentators editorialize the news in order to push their left-liberal point of view, the involvement of a handful of giant newspapers in political activism seems to be, less well-understood. The action of The New York Times in publishing stolen government documents, however, may serve to deepen the public's understanding of this political activism.

Whatever the final judicial determination of the case involving the Times, it is clear that the principal press voice of American liberalism has displayed unprecedented arrogance in determining that it will be the final arbiter of what is good for the American people to know. The stolen Pentagon study on the Vietnam War was a secret government paper intended solely for use inside the government.

The American people have a right to know about their government's operations in many areas, but there is no unlimited, absolute right to know about every government decision. Every free country has some type of official secrets act. Certain vital information must be kept secret in order to protect national security and to allow for confidential discussions with other governments. The U.S. Congress long ago recognized this and enacted laws to provide for security classifications of public papers.

The Times chose to ignore the security classification of the Vietnam report. In so doing, it set a dangerous precedent. The action is an invitation to every disgruntled or politically-motivated federal employee to illegally distribute secret government documents to favored newsmen — or perhaps to foreign governments. No citizen has a right to make that kind of unilateral decision. The Congress has reserved that right to the Executive Branch of our government. That's the only procedure compatible with national security.

The American people should recall the Rosenberg case in the early 1950s. Ethel and Julius Rosenberg had access to U.S. atomic secrets. They decided that these secrets should be passed to a foreign country, namely the Soviet Union. They were arrested, convicted and executed as spies. Fortunately the Vietnam study is not in the same category as atomic secrets. But there's the same factor of individual rejection of the law and arrogance in illegal disclosure of material with a secret classification.

Many newsmen, in the course of their work, learn of secret material or secret projects. In the past, responsible journalists exercised self-censorship. They were respectful of the national interest and didn't attempt to impose their judgment on a matter reserved for legally constituted authorities. But the action of the New York Times is a threat to the policy of restraint and responsibility. It encourages irresponsible people to "leak" secret documents and irresponsible journalists to ignore the needs of national security. Such irresponsibility is a threat to a free press in that it encourages official censorship of many activities that should be open to public scrutiny.

Nowadays, some elements in the media are so determined to force U.S. withdrawal from Asia — so determined to downgrade the military and weaken the defense establishment — that they are willing to do almost anything. The vast majority of weekly and daily newspapers are highly responsible. But a handful of media giants in the Washington and New York areas has rejected the goal of journalistic objectivity in handling the news. These giants have transformed their outlets into propaganda organs that treat the news as opportunities for political action. In so doing, they do a profound disservice to responsible journalists everywhere and expose the country to danger.

A Horror Movie—Come To Life?

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Marie and Jerry need to read the Bible story of Amnon and Tamar. For 50 percent of teenage weddings in 5 years end in the divorce court! And the first reason for such marital disasters is explained below. Amnon was so charmed by Tamar that he took to his bed, lovesick. Notice what happened when she visited him in his bedroom.

CASE Q-591: Maria D., aged 17, is infatuated. "Dr. Crane," she exulted, "I am in love with a wonderful boy named Jerry. And we want to get married at once! However, my parents think I should go on to college for a year or two."

"But why should we wait? For we are madly in love and can't bear to be away from each other. So what's wrong with getting married early? Jerry has a job at a gas station and makes lots of money."

Esau And Amnon
All teen-agers should take a few lessons from the Bible. Therein you will find that Esau was so smitten by the delicious aroma of his brother Jacob's cooking, that he acted foolishly. Instead of looking ahead, he let his stomach rule his brain! For Jacob had refused to give him his cooked beans unless Esau would sign away his inheritance. So Esau stupidly traded his birthright for a mess of pottage!

Marie and Jerry must face the grim facts of life, which show that 50 percent of all teenage marriages end in divorce by the 5th wedding anniversary!! And there are several very good reasons for that tragic fact.

First of all, many youthful love affairs are primarily based on mere physical magnetism or sexual appeal. Read your Bible again (II Samuel, Chapter 15) and see what happened to the torrid romance of Amnon and Tamar.

Amnon was so infatuated by the beautiful Princess Tamar that the even took to his bed in his lovesick state. He felt he couldn't live without Tamar. So he consulted his shrewd cousin Jonadab, who urged him to stay in bed, while Jonadab informed King David of Amnon's illness. Then, when David visited Amnon, Amnon was to ask that Tamar be assigned to him as his private nurse.

All went well until Tamar baked some cakes and Amnon insisted that she feed them to him in his bedroom. Meanwhile, Amnon had ordered all the servants out of the house. Then he sprang out of bed and started to assault Tamar. She pleaded and begged, but he was stronger so he ravished her.

Now notice how fast his supposed love turned sour, for the Bible says: "Then Amnon hated her exceedingly; so that the hatred wherewith he hated her was greater than the love wherewith he had loved her; and Amnon said into her, Arise, be gone." But Tamar didn't want to parade her humiliation on the streets so she refused to leave. Amnon then ordered his servants to put her out of the house and even bolt the door! Observe how quickly Amnon's love infatuation was proved to be just a sexual fascination for Tamar. Alas, this confusion of true love with physical attraction, is what causes many of these teen-age marriages to turn cold, even in one night. For in true love, Maria would be most interested in the future happiness of Jerry and vice versa.

But a man who has no trade nor professional training, is NOT going to be very happy in marriage, for the bill collectors will hound him till he begins to snarl at his wife as she nags him because of his low income.

Send for my "Tests for Sweethearts," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents, and wait to marry till you are at least 20!

Write to Dr. Crane in care of The Pampa News, Hopkins Bldg., Melott, Indiana 47658.

H. L. Hunt Writes

WEST POINT DEFECTOR
First Lt. John R. Vequist made some remarkable statements in Stockholm, Sweden, recently. The lieutenant, who is absent without leave from the U.S. Army, said he could not "go along with the idea of killing people who had not done any harm to American citizens." Vequist, who arrived in Sweden on May 16 and asked for political asylum, also declared: "I feel that war should be waged only when a country has to defend itself directly."

Military officials cannot remember of a West Point graduate who deserted or went AWOL. Of what sort of stuff is Vequist made? Traditionally, the U.S. Military Academy has turned out a large share of the professionals of Army Officer Corps. Our men with aspirations to become Army leaders go there after highly competitive examinations and they attain an education at the expense of the nation, which is happy to pay the tuition but expects leadership in return.

It is not the prerogative of the soldier, be he a raw recruit in the ranks of chief of staff, to determine upon whom we shall wage war. That is the constitutional function of elected civilian officials. Vequist's case suggests that something has happened to us internally. Surely it is not national rot.

The Plain at West Point has always been symbolic of a democratic process that guaranteed our military preparedness. One soldier who led us to great victories never forgot that Plain, for it instilled in him the greatness of leadership. Many years ago a song rolled across that Plain. "Old soldiers never die, they just fade away." General of the Army Douglas MacArthur continued to hear it until he faded away.

Question Box

QUESTION: Does anyone ever really get something for nothing? If not, how can a society expect to have "free" schooling for all its children?

ANSWER: Many times a person consumes what he has not earned. This gives an impression that he has received some value without expending any energy. Such a conclusion is perfectly accurate as far as it goes, but the picture is not complete at this stage. The further truth is that somebody DID expend energy to produce what the other person ate, drank, wore or otherwise used. Not all consumption by non-earners is evil. Some is innocent. Another part is even constructive.

People often go to "open houses" to eat and drink at another person's expense. Most persons attend parties occasionally where they partake food and beverage that they did not pay anything for. A son or daughter inherits the father's wealth to which they may or may not have contributed. All this can be, and usually is, perfectly legitimate.

If so, the question then arises as to when consumption by non-earners is NOT moral. One obvious answer is theft. This is when a person takes something that does not belong to him and does not have the consent of the owner to do so. Theft can be either individual or collective. It is individual when done by one person. It is collective when done by a group.

Collective theft may be either authorized or unauthorized. It is unauthorized when committed by a group that claims no sanction of law, as by a gang. It is authorized when committed by an institution that asserts the form of law, claiming that its superior power constitutes a moral right to take belongings against the consent of the owner, an act that would clearly be immoral for an individual. This is why The News consistently asserts that taxation is immoral; that is, an owner is relieved of his property against his consent. Method may vary, but the substance is the same. Theft — whether individual or collective, whether authorized or unauthorized — is always paid for, irrespective of any impression to the contrary. That which is paid for, obviously, is not free. It therefore follows that free schooling is an impossibility.

UN PETITION — The continuing controversy over prisoner release, as a part of a U.S. withdrawal schedule, has also upstaged other efforts made on behalf of the prisoners. There is, for example, the unusual petition filed in the United Nations earlier this month by Mrs. Wilmer N. Grubb, of Colonial Heights, Virginia.

Mrs. Grubb's husband, flying an unarmed reconnaissance plane, was shot down over Quang Binh Province in Vietnam on Jan. 26, 1966. The New China News Agency reported the capture of a downed U.S.

Humanity To POW's Mail
Slackens — One Family's Plea

WASHINGTON — Release of U.S. prisoners has developed into a pivotal issue in the nation's disengagement from Vietnam, but the controversy is viewed as a mixed blessing by some POW families.

When POW families joined to form the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, the idea was to bring concerted public pressure to bear and thus improve the lot of the prisoners. Looking for course, to their eventual release. The initial emphasis was on securing the treatment guaranteed by the Geneva convention.

While no one believes the effort was wholly successful, some gains were noted. Using the volume of incoming POW mail as an index (since that is a factor which can be measured) the situation did improve. The flow of mail swelled from a trickle to a point where one of the peacemaker groups, which make Hanoi's deliveries, boasted that it had cleared 3,500 letters in an 18-month period.

Now President Nixon and his aides have made it clear that release of the prisoners is a sine qua non for any final U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam. The prisoner issue has been extensively discussed at the stalemate peace talks in Paris, but the mail has been dropping off again.

According to information compiled here the volume of POW mail has dwindled to about a quarter of the high point which was reached several months ago when the campaign for better treatment of POWs was at its height and the POW families were united behind it.

Recently, of course, the united family has started to fragment. Some POW families have joined with peace groups in urging an immediate withdrawal geared to a Hanoi promise of POW release. The concerted pressure has been removed and, if the mail is any index, any gains in the treatment of POWs have been eroded.

Next President Of U.S.

By PAUL HARVEY
The next President of the United States will be... Rarely in recent history has it been more fun to speculate as to who'll be our next President because so many want to be.

I suspect that a lot of middleweights are aspiring to the heavyweight championship just from having watched Mr. Nixon come from behind four years ago. They figure if he could anybody can. Of course, not everybody can.

Historically, our country prefers to move governors into the presidency because, theoretically, they have more of the necessary administrative experience.

Yet Mr. Nixon, with experience only as a member of Congress and as Viet President — defeated as a candidate for governor — sought and got the White House.

So now we have Sens. Hughes and Bayh and and Muskie and McGovern and Proxmire and Jackson and Kennedy all hopeful. And, of course, Humphrey. And none of the others wants to help Humphrey until each has tested his own potential. One day last January, during lunch in the House dining room, Congressman Jim Burks said, "Look at all those senators with their Madison Avenue images trying to sound like Presidents; why don't we tout somebody from the House half of Congress?" And so they did. "Tongue in cheek, at first, a handful of colleagues began to talk up Congressman Wilbur Mills for President. Each day a dditional House members endorsed Mills if only because it flattered the powerful chairman of their Ways and Means Committee.

Now dozens of the 254 Democrats in the House are supporting for President a man who could walk down most any main street in America unrecognized.

His most ardent supporters concede that Wilbur Mills is the darkest of the horses in the race, but so was Richard Nixon in 1967.

You understand that most incumbent politicians like to get the m.s.i.v.e. mentioned for President if only to enhance their prestige with their home-state voters. Few go so far as to establish organizations and solicit financial support for their candidacies. Yet Democrats, staggered by two assassinations, a President scratched and a candidate defeated, are suffering from a dearth of proved leadership. It's a wide, open race for the Democratic nomination among a field of unspectacular contenders.

Muskie got away from the post fast, is lagging in the backstretch. With a year to go it's much too early to speculate intelligently, but watch the party pros — still lying low — and you know they are hoping for a sprinter to move out front in the stretch — but they're putting their show money on Hubert Humphrey.

Last Week In Business

By LINDA RUBEY AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The fight against inflation received a setback last week with the news consumer prices rose sharply in May.

The Labor Department reported that consumer prices rose in May twice as fast as in the first four months of this year. The rise was .6 per cent after adjusting for normal seasonal factors. By contrast the seasonally adjusted increase for the period between January and April was only .3 per cent.

But administration spokesmen still maintained that inflation was being brought under control.

Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans said the "important fact to recognize is that the rate on inflation has now come within controllable boundaries, and this has been achieved without a major dislocation in the nation's economy."

Other administration officials said that occasional "upward surges" in the cost of living on a month-to-month basis had to be expected.

The important thing to look for, they contended, was the six-to-12 month trend which they said indicated a "downward thrust."

In addition to the discouraging consumer price results the wholesale price index has also performed poorly in the last three months and the rate of unemployment continues to remain around 6 per cent, analysts noted.

A member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers told Congress this week the outcome of the recent international monetary crisis had been favorable and that the U.S. balance-of-payments situation was not "as bad as many believe."

Hendrik S. Houthakker said developments here and abroad—including the upward revaluations of several European currencies—"are moving in the direction of correcting" the deficit in the U.S. balance of payments.

A former high government official proposed that the U.S. offer for the first time to negotiate the special role of the dollar in the international monetary system.

C. Fred Bergsten, who until this month was the economic specialist on the National Security Council staff in the White House, suggested plans to change and diminish but not abolish the special "reserve currency" role of the dollar.

He said the present system was still workable and the U.S. balance of payments is not in a drastic state. But he added the system is creating potentially dangerous political frictions because of the special place of the dollar.

The Nixon administration said it was helping a Senate subcommittee draft a new bill that would expand the proposal for rescuing Lockheed Aircraft Corp. from bankruptcy by making it possible to save other companies that get into similar financial troubles.

The proposal would authorize the government to guarantee loans up to a total of $2 billion to businesses whose financial collapse would seriously affect the national economy.

An original bill to authorize loan guarantees of up to $250 million to Lockheed met with difficulties in Senate committee hearings. Bankers have said tentatively they would lend the company that amount of money provided the government guaranteed repayment.

Lockheed's crisis was touched off when Britain's Rolls-Royce, Ltd. went into receivership. Rolls-Royce is making the engine for Lockheed's L1011 Tristar Airbus, a 400 passenger intermediate-range jet.

Lockheed's chairman, Daniel J. Haughton, said the company will run out of money in August. In addition, Lockheed's contract with Rolls-Royce expires Aug. 8.

Over 27 Classes Of U.S. Products Processed In More Than 30 Nations

By Associated Press
Some congressmen have introduced bills to repeal Item 807, and the U.S. Tariff Commission has scrutinized the provision closely in an exhaustive but little-publicized study completed last year.

That study showed, among other things, that no less than 27 classes of products, ranging from gloves and hearing aids to small airplanes and earthmoving machinery are being processed in more than 30 countries under the Item 807 arrangement.

It disclosed that the Caribbean islands are increasingly popular sites, but Item 807 work also is done on a large scale in Canada, England, Japan, France and Italy.

The Tariff Commission found that Mexican workers were being paid generally less than one-fourth as much as the hourly average pay of U.S. workers doing the same job—53 cents on electronic products for example, compared with $2.31 in the U.S.

Any attempt to repeal Item 807 is certain to encounter strong opposition from the American business community, and from foreign countries who benefit from it.

In Mexico, for example, the program Item 807 is the basis for a special program called PRONAF, or Program Nacional Fronterizo. Besides the border strip, the entire state of Baja California is a PRONAF area, and more than 100 American plants are located there, just across the California border.

The threat to PRONAF raised by the AFL-CIO attacks, the Tariff Commission probe, and the repeal bills prompted a meeting in San Diego last winter of U.S. and Mexican government officials, corporation representatives and spokesmen from hundreds of U.S. border city small businesses that would suffer if PRONAF were knocked out.

The zone, its supporters argue, makes it possible for American companies to compete with imports from Japan, Germany and England.

The Tariff Commission made some further uncomfortable findings about Item 807, including these crucial ones:

—If the same operations were being performed in the United States, with labor cost per item accordingly higher, American companies might lose much of the business altogether.

—The products would continue to be supplied from abroad with fewer or no U.S. components.

—"The net effect of repeal would be a further $150 to $200 million deterioration in the U.S. balance of trade."

—As compared with an estimated 121,000 foreign workers assembling Item 807 goods, there are 37,000 American workers employed either in making the U.S. materials to be assembled or in processing the imports.

—"Accordingly," the commission concluded, "repeal would result in only a modest number of jobs returned to the United States, which likely would be more than offset by the loss of jobs among workers now producing components for export and those who further process the imported products."

That's the dilemma facing America's policymakers, or rather, one of the dilemmas.

BONHAM, Tex. (AP) — Philip M. Treadway, 17, of Windom, Tex., was thrown from a car and killed 7½ miles southeast of here on Farm Road 271 Friday night, state police reported.

Officers said the driver, Ronald Rogers, 16, of Bailey, Tex., also was hurled from the vehicle but escaped serious injury. The vehicle ran off the road and a curve and flipped into a creek bed.

Reform Will Make Postal Service Nonpolitical And Self-Sustaining

WASHINGTON (AP) — Appealing for "the patience and the support of the American public," Postmaster General Winton M. Blount says an efficient, reliable mail service is five years and perhaps another rate increase away.

But Blount, who this Thursday steps down from the Nixon cabinet to head the new U.S. Postal Service, says the break from the old Post Office Department's 200 years of tradition is "a very exciting thing to contemplate."

When full and final implementation of the postal reform legislation that Blount made his cause celebre comes Thursday it will, in theory, make the Postal Service independent, nonpolitical, self-sustaining, and efficient.

Of the latter assignment, Blount said in an Associated Press interview, "We'll have improvements coming along day by day, month by month, year by year."

Questions and answers from the interview:

Q. You've often said that you're not going to turn 200 years of tradition around overnight through postal reform.

What short term improvements do you see?

A. As you know, we announced the air mail standards about a month ago, and they're being put into effect now and they're coming along very well. This is the first time the Postal Service has stuck its neck out and said what our customers can expect us to do.

We expect to have these standards for several classes of mail, all the classes of mail, and then our customers cannot only judge us, but our own people can know what they're expected to do, and I think that this in turn is going to itself bring about better service.

One of the great things, I think, about the Postal Service that our customers want, and that is reliability. They want to know what they can expect and then they want to get that.

Q. At what point do you foresee the Postal Service living up to the promise of speedy, efficient service contained in the postal reform legislation?

A. We're in the process now of changing to an entirely different type of management, one that is production oriented, and it's going to take time to bring about these improvements because every place you look in the Postal Service we're faced with a fantastic gap.

Five years from now I don't have any question that we'll have a nationwide utility that's operated efficiently and economically and reliably called the U.S. Postal Service.

Q. You've just put in temporary postage rate increases and are asking the Postal Rate Commission to grant permanent increases of $1.45 billion a year. Do you expect further increases?

A. There's no question... that we can bring about $1 billion to $2 billion-a-year savings in the operation of the Postal Service as it is presently run.

On the other hand, once we bring about those savings, there's also no question... that we live in a society in which we'll have generally increasing costs.

Q. Can you say, with any certainty, when future rate increases might come?

A. I don't think so. We now have the freedom in doing all we can to put in cost-saving techniques to absorb some of our cost increases, and this is the kind of thing you work with day by day.

Q. Negotiations between the Postal Service and the postal unions have resumed, but there has been talk of another strike. How do you assess the collective-bargaining situation now?

A. What we are trying to do is build a relationship between those representing the employees and the management that will yield long-term results. I continue to maintain every optimism that these talks will work out and we will be able to reach such an agreement.

Q. There's been considerable speculation that you might run for the Senate in Alabama next year. Have you made a decision?

A. I have a full time job running the Postal Service. I've noticed with some interest the speculation regarding the fact that I might run for the Senate, but I've got my hands full right now.

Q. Have you ruled out the possibility?

A. I really wouldn't have a definitive comment at this time because I haven't made a decision about it at all.
