CONGRATULATIONS TO SWEETWATER

Every town, regardless of size, has assets peculiar to it which, if exploited, would make it a better town. The NEWS has received a copy of a 56-page edition of the Sweetwater Reporter which admirably parades some of the assets which make Sweetwater an outstanding city in West Texas. "It's a Privilege to Live in Sweetwater," says the Reporter on the front pages of each section, and one can well believe it as the paper is read.

This writer notes many familiar names in the special edition, including that of M. C. Manroe, president of the Board of City Development. As a former Sweetwater newspaperman, we are able to appreciate the progress which has been made in the 9 years since we left Sweetwater to live in Pampa.

Sweetwater today claims a population of 13,000 or an increase of 150 per cent in 10 years. Twenty years ago Sweetwater, like Pampa, was a very small town. Oil has swept Pampa forward, neck-in-neck with Sweetwater which has above all else a fine location and the best railroad connections in West Texas. Many Centennial visitors will see Sweetwater, the shipping capital.

Oldest of Sweetwater's large industrial concerns is the immense sheet-rock mill of the United States Gypsum company. A newer plant is the Gulf oil refinery. Lake Sweetwater, built to afford an adequate water supply, was voted Trammell.

One of the show places of Sweetwater is the beautiful municipal auditorium, which seats 1,400 persons and houses the city offices, public library, and American Legion post. Sweetwater is the headquarters city of the Buffalo Train Boy Scout council. It is the county seat of Nolan county. It has the lowest death rate in Texas, a fact attributed in part to the work of the county health unit. A city hospital costing $100,000 is under construction.

Out of a meeting called in Sweetwater to work for a West Texas agricultural college grew two great institutions—Texas Technological college and the West Texas chamber of commerce. . . . Sweetwater is coming forward as a football city. Most famous of her gridiron products is Sammy Baugh, all-American. . . . Royster Crane, creator of the comic character, "Wash Tubbs" is a Sweetwater man; the son of Judge and Mrs. R. C. Crane. Judge Crane is one of the leading West Texas historians and a pioneer of pioneers. . . . The late Dorothy Scarborough, novelist, once lived in Sweetwater. . . . Fine cattle and fine horses interest many residents in and near Sweetwater. A municipal airport is one of the best in West Texas. Big hotels easily house big conventions. . . . The Western Union operates a major relay office in Sweetwater. . . . Sweetwater's women's clubs, municipal band, fire department, American Legion, city planning, dial telephone system, public works program, and wholesale houses distinguish the city as a metropolis of a large area.

To Sweetwater, our former home town, to which we for a season devoted our enthusiastic attention, congratulations; and to the Sweetwater Reporter our compliments for a fine edition.—O. E. H.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—On President Roosevelt's desk, among the toy animals, memorandum pads, pencils, and other paraphernalia, visitors have sometimes observed a small brown book.

Both the president and Mrs. Roosevelt have been known to recommend the book to friends. Its purpose is to tell people how to keep the capitalistic machine operating without running into the ditch.

Presumably one is justified in assuming that it at least partly reflects what's going on in Roosevelt's mind as he grapples with the problems of recovery and re-election. Especially since readers of the little brown book now realize that it forecast the president's unexpected proposal to revamp the corporation tax system by taxing undistributed corporation profits.

The book is called "Brass Tacks" and its author is David Cushman Coyle, a consulting engineer of note. Here's what Coyle had to say about corporation surpluses, which now seem so significant:

" . . . there is another type of insurance against hard times that already has been widely used. This is the habit of laying up corporation surplus for the purpose of paying dividends when not currently earned.

"The corporation reserve is the grandfather and president of the Bootstraps Club. Here the fallacious notion that 'money should be made to work' has had the most devastating effects on the business world, and no program for stabilizing business will be really effective until this notion has been swept away.

"The first stage in using surplus earnings to bring on ruin is to deposit them in the bank during the early stages of prosperity. The banker naturally lends the corporation's money to one of its competitors for expansion of capacity, which stimulates business and for a time shows no indications of the inevitable crash. As the bubble grows larger and more iridescent, the corporations turn their surplus funds loose in the call market. This is called preserving a liquid condition. . . .

"Then when the bubble bursts the companies draw out their funds, wrecking the banks or calling loans on speculators as the case may be, and generally deflating everything in sight."

Coyle proposes:

- Genuine old age pensions and other forms of economic security which will diminish the urge for thrift.
- Heavy income and inheritance taxes which would finance that program and tend to keep money in circulation rather than in investment.

Coyle suggests a $50 a month person for 10,000,000 persons over 60, which would cost $6,000,000,000 a year and with the usual turnover, he says, would increase national income 15 or 20 billion dollars in addition to benefits of increased stability.

Today's demand, Coyle says, is "not for capital, nor for labor, but for buyers to carry away the goods." The unemployed must be absorbed in "service" jobs.

Some of Coyle's admirers consider him an economic messiah whose memory will be enshrined long after Dr. Townsend, Earl Browder, and Herbert Hoover are forgotten names.

It is not too early for the new Japanese premier to begin getting on good terms with his brother-in-law.

An Ohio editorial suggests the taxpayers need a battle cry. At that, they might feel the better for just an ordinary cry.

CAPITOL JIGSAW

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL

AUSTIN, Mar. 17. (AP)—Texas has an official state song. The legislature by resolution said so a few years ago.

Yet with thousands present and the occasion very solemn and official, the "Eyes of Texas" was played again and again at climactic points in ceremonies March 6 commemorating the fall of the Alamo.

When Governor James V. Allred arrived, when the Lone Star flag was presented in the final "parade of states" and at other times, the bands played "The Eyes of Texas," the people stood and the military saluted.

The unquestioned popularity of the song is variously explained. The tune is simple and well-known, and the words easy to remember and singularly appropriate, in part, to many occasions.

Moreover, having been "the anthem" of the University of Texas for many years, it has been sung and played by students and ex-students all over the state so that the public generally is familiar with it.

Attorney General William McCraw grinned when asked for comment on the arrest for speeding in San Antonio of Mrs. McCraw.

Newspapers gave the story a big play the morning of the Alamo services—one using type two inches high. Mrs. McCraw was allowed to go on when she promised to mail the cops a check for $6.

"I'll say this," said McCraw. "My wife is a very remarkable woman. For years I couldn't get much attention in the San Antonio papers. Eloquence statements, nothing had any effect.

"But my wife made the headlines three minutes after she hit the edge of town. A remarkable woman!"

Governor Hill McAllister twice in San Antonio thanked the citizens of Texas for the courtesies they showed him during the several days he was in the state.

At ceremonies in front of the Alamo he said the friendship between Tennessee and Texas had been cemented by the joint participation in the Centennial observance and was "destined never to be broken."

"Texas itself has no idea of the greatness of its destiny it will fill in the next 50 years," he said.

BORAH SCRAPS WITH EDITOR OVER LONDON

SENATOR SAYS WICHITA PUBLISHER SHOULD APOLOGIZE

By LEONARD B. SHUBERT Associated Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, March 17. (AP)—Supporters of Al H. Landon, president-elect, today, elated by the knowledge that the Kansas governor is assured of the 21 votes of Oklahoma at the coming republican national convention.

Even as the state's convention adopted the unit rule throwing its full party strength to the Kansan, his name figured in a hot intra-party dispute.

Louis Levand, publisher of the Wichita (Kan.) Beacon, charged Senator Borah today, accused candidate for the republican nomination, with making "baseless insinuations" against Landon.

Borah quickly denied it and told Levand "you owe Gov. Landon an apology for your blundering defense of him when his defense was called for."

The publisher's communication to Borah was based on the latter's charge that "The Standard Oil company" was mixing in Oklahoma's republican politics.

"By insinuation and implication," Levand said, "you have made grave charges against Gov. Al H. Landon of Kansas. Your attack on the Standard Oil company and Oklahoma oil interests only are to be construed as reflecting on the character of one of the country's outstanding republican presidential possibilities."

Levand said Borah had injected "baseless insinuations into a situation which so far has been notable for the absence of vilification and mudslinging."

Denies Levand Charges
The Idahoan replied that he had made no reference "directly or indirectly to Gov. Landon."

"I denounced the Standard Oil company for its activities in trying to secure an uninstructed delegation and for its activities in seeking to control such delegation," he said. Now you claim in doing this I am attacking Gov. Landon. Insofar as my charges go I am prepared to support them."

After this exchange of telegrams Levand wired Borah last night that press associations "incorporating your remarks Saturday night, specifically mentioned Gov. Landon as the target of your attacks."

"In view of the impending republican convention at which efforts were to be made in favor of the unit rule in Gov. Landon's behalf," Levand said, "No other interpretation of your remarks could have been made."

Meanwhile in Oklahoma City, republican leaders continued to decry Borah's charges.

Fish Makes Charges
C. C. Hawk, retiring state republican chairman, declared there was "nothing to" the charge. Lew Wintz, oil man and convention delegate, said the Borah charge was "bunk."

W. G. Skelly, national committeeman, previously said the Borah statement was "not worth answering."

Rep. Fish (R-N Y.) joined Borah's attack on Standard Oil and mentioned both Landon and Skelly by name.

"I am not surprised to hear that Mr. W. G. Skelly of the Skelly Oil company, affiliated with the Standard Oil group and republican national committeeman from Oklahoma, has succeeded in delivering the republican delegates to the national convention at Cleveland to Gov. Landon," said Fish.

Skelly Replies
To this Skelly replied:
"Rep. Fish's statements are not entitled to be dignified by an answer from me. I am only concerned patriotically with our American government."

Oklahoma's six delegates at large were instructed by the convention to vote and work for Landon. Six district delegates already had been elected for Landon. Adoption of the unit rule giving the majority full sway thus assured Landon the 21 votes of Cleveland.

Jafsie Arrives Home From Trip

NEW YORK, Mar. 17. (AP)—Dr. John P. Condon, the "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh case, returned from a vacation cruise today refusing to discuss in any fashion the last-minute efforts being made by Bruno Richard Hauptmann to escape death in the electric chair.

"I have no comment whatever to make about the case," the tall, white-haired educator and social worker said.

The enigmatic "Jafsie" returned to New York on the liner Santa Inez. With him was his daughter, Mrs. Myra Hacker.

"Jafsie's" return came only 24 hours after C. Lloyd Fisher, Hauptmann counsel, announced he would demand a rigorous examination of the Bronx school teacher in the hope it might provide a clue to new evidence, the last chance in saving Hauptmann's life.

Hauptmann is scheduled to die the week of March 30.

EIGHT PERSONS ARE KILLED IN SPANISH RIOTS

WASHINGTON, March 17. (AP)—Hitherto secret diplomatic documents showed today that 16 years ago the United States sought changes in an Anglo-Japanese alliance.

The alliance was consummated between Great Britain and Japan in 1911 for a ten-year period.

The diplomatic correspondence published today by the state department in the course of routine printing of old documents showed that as early as Oct. 2, 1919, the United States was concerned lest the alliance might be extended, on its expiration in 1921, in a form prejudicial to American interests in the far east.
