Saigon Proposes Truce, Reunification Elections

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government today proposed a cease-fire and the reunification elections with North Vietnam that President Ngo Dinh Diem refused to hold 16 years ago.

The peace initiative was Saigon's answer to the seven-point proposal by the Viet Cong July 1 and came amid speculation that President Nixon and the Red Chinese would try to work out a Vietnam settlement during Nixon's visit to Peking.

Saigon's new proposal was contained in a communique issued by the South Vietnamese Foreign minister to mark the 17th anniversary of the 1954 Geneva Agreements that ended the French war in Indochina, divided Vietnam at the 17th parallel and provided for reunification elections. The South Vietnamese government, which refused to sign the agreements, observes the anniversary as National Grief Day.

The communique today called for "reunification of the two zones by means of general elections in both North and South Vietnam under international supervision."

"While waiting for reunification," the communique said, "the two sides can meet to explore the development of relationship between the two zones."

"Pending the reunification of the country, which would take some time to materialize, at least the two zones should be able to coexist peacefully, to promote welfare and happiness for all the people."

The South Vietnamese government "solemnly requests the North Vietnamese authorities to end their negative attitude and start immediately serious negotiations without any preconditions so that an agreement on a total cease-fire can be reached," the communique said.

"In a more serene atmosphere, when the guns stop firing, the two sides will discuss the modalities of general elections under international supervision in both zones in order to realize the reunification of the country."

The closest Nixon has come to announcing a flat-out end to U.S. involvement in the war was his April 7 press conference statement: "In my campaign for the presidency, I pledged to end American involvement in this war. I am keeping that pledge. You should hold me accountable if I fail . . ."

Meanwhile, Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California, who says he will challenge Nixon in next year's Republican primaries, said the President's visit to Peking could have a salutary effect on the Paris peace talks only if the Nixon administration drops its insistence on preserving the Thieu-Ky government in South Vietnam.

"I think if the President will abandon that . . . negotiating position that we can settle the Vietnam war within 30 to 60 days," McCloskey said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Another potential candidate for the White House, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., told a Tampa, Fla., news conference he hopes communications with China will lead to a cease-fire in Vietnam and that Peking will be brought into the arms-limitation talks.

Sen. Scott Predicts There Will Be No Combat GIs In Viet By May, 1972

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott says the timing of President Nixon's visit to China indicates the United States will have no combat troops in Vietnam by May 1, 1972.

Going a step further, the Pennsylvania senator said Nixon's announcement he will visit Peking by next May implies possibly there would be no U.S. forces at all in Vietnam by that time, "except those necessary to carry out such agreements as, hopefully, have been made."

"Do you think it is feasible that an American president can go to China while there are any troops left in South Vietnam?" Scott was asked Sunday on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

"I think that he could go if the reason for keeping some troops in South Vietnam is coupled with the prisoner-of-war issue at that time."

Scott said—as he often has—that he thinks Nixon has set a withdrawal plan but not a firm date for total U.S. pullout from Vietnam.

Under Nixon's announced withdrawal plan all but 184,000 of the U.S. contingent in Vietnam is due out by Dec. 1. The President's next timetable is expected to be announced in mid-November and could involve all the remaining force.

The closest Nixon has come to announcing a flat-out end to U.S. involvement in the war was his April 7 press conference statement: "In my campaign for the presidency, I pledged to end American involvement in this war. I am keeping that pledge. You should hold me accountable if I fail . . ."

Meanwhile, Rep. Paul N. McCloskey of California, who says he will challenge Nixon in next year's Republican primaries, said the President's visit to Peking could have a salutary effect on the Paris peace talks only if the Nixon administration drops its insistence on preserving the Thieu-Ky government in South Vietnam.

"I think if the President will abandon that . . . negotiating position that we can settle the Vietnam war within 30 to 60 days," McCloskey said on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Another potential candidate for the White House, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., told a Tampa, Fla., news conference he hopes communications with China will lead to a cease-fire in Vietnam and that Peking will be brought into the arms-limitation talks.

Order Will Be Issued In 5 Affected States

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A meeting here Sunday of federal officials, state veterinarians and other animal health leaders from Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, New Mexico and Louisiana resulted in the formulation of an emergency program and new guidelines for fighting a rare horse disease.

The five state veterinarians all announced that they will order mandatory vaccinations of all horses in their respective states. And Dr. R. E. Omohundro, who will head the regional emergency headquarters that will coordinate efforts in the five states, announced that the whole area will be quarantined, instead of just in Texas as in the past week.

Thousands of horses have died in Latin America and South Texas from the disease, Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis. Horses contracting the disease are thought to have less than an even chance of surviving. Humans are also susceptible, but the disease is rarely fatal to man.

The regional office, which was to open today in Houston, will be financed by federal funds authorized Friday by U. S. Department of Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin when he declared the VEE epidemic a national emergency.

Omohundro said the office will coordinate immunization of all horses in the five-state area, mosquito abatement, disease diagnosis and the maintenance of quarantines.

He said 1.8 million doses of the experimental horse vaccine will be available by the end of the week for the approximately 1.5 million horses in the five states.

Dr. Norman Meyer, an assistant coordinator of the Houston office, said, however, that distribution can be hampered by a complicated mixing process and the need to use the vaccine within 12 hours after it is mixed.

Omohundro, who is also the assistant director of the animal health division of the USDA, said Air Force and commercial planes were to begin today spraying five-to-30-mile strips from Brownsville, Tex., to Cameron Parish, La. to try to kill mosquitoes believed to be the main carriers of the disease.

Authorities say there is no vaccine for humans. Health officials said 43 persons were being treated Sunday for VEE symptoms in two South Texas counties.

Dr. L. H. Sibley, state veterinarian of Texas, said cases of the disease have been found as far north and east as the Houston area. No one at the meeting would predict how far or whether the disease would spread further.

The other state veterinarians at the meeting were Dr. Frank Wheeler of Louisiana, Dr. J.H. Brashear of Oklahoma, Dr. R. M. Thomas of Arkansas and Dr. J. H. Hopson of New Mexico. All five said they would require mandatory vaccination of all horses within the next two weeks.

So far 820 horses have died in Texas of the sleeping sickness, said Dr. Jack Pitcher, assistant veterinarian in charge of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's animal health division in Austin.

Another 1,070 horses are reported ill, he said.

Sibley said the VEE vaccine will be given free to the public and administered by veterinarians who will be paid $4 a shot by the USDA.

IN TOP O' TEXAS AREA

Veterinarians Awaiting Vaccine; Over 900 Horses Listed For Shots

Pampa veterinarians were still waiting for VEE vaccine to arrive in the city shortly before noon today.

Dr. T. J. Worrell and Dr. M.V. Horne reported this morning that more serum for the rare strain of sleeping sickness spreading in Texas would arrive in Amarillo between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. today.

Dr. Kenneth Royse said early today he had about 900 horses listed for vaccination, noting one vet could administer about 500 doses per day if it was possible to have the animals halted and in one location.

The present situation requires veterinarians to travel to the farm or ranch, and only 100 doses are being dispensed to each veterinarian at one time.

Dr. Royse said that once the flow of serum starts coming into Pampa, he felt horses could be vaccinated in three or four days, and certainly by the end of the week.

Department of Public Safety officers and Gray County Sheriff's officers are under orders to stop all horses being transported by truck or trailer, turning them back to the point of origin.

Dr. Royse further stated, "We're on top of this thing in this area, and I feel we can vaccinate and stay ahead of the problem."

Officials said 2,500 doses of the serum arrived in Amarillo Saturday and had been dispensed by early yesterday afternoon from the Amarillo Air Terminal pickup center.

Representative Tom Christian, Claude, in a letter to Clifford Hardin, secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture Friday recorded his concern of what he listed as laxity of the Department's handling of preventive measures to combat the disease. Christian's letter pointed out activities of a delegation which attempted to alert the USDA of the threat of VEE in October, 1970.

He also pointed out strict quarantine measures recently taken by the USDA which prevent horses to be moved in the state, played a definite hardship on ranchers who need the animals to work cattle. Christian asked that the quarantine measures be lifted for ranchers who need to move their horses within a 25-mile radius in the Panhandle.

Christian also suggested Panhandle distribution points other than Amarillo due to the short life span of the serum, pointing out it was a two-hour drive for many veterinarians to obtain vaccine. Christian said he proposed distribution points located so no veterinarian would be more than one hour from a supply of serum.

Largest Quantity Of Heroin Seized In Dallas History

DALLAS (AP) — The largest seizure of heroin in the history of Dallas was made this week-end.

About the same time Temple authorities seized that area's biggest haul of narcotics.

Seizures of "H" or "horse," as heroin is called, and other narcotics arrests have become so commonplace they do not make the big splash in the newspapers as they once did.

But now it's getting so widespread, it's hard to ignore it.

The problem was had in the 1930s before many of today's junkies were born. However, since the beginning of World War II, it has grown in monstrous proportions.

Heroin and morphine first came into Texas from the El Paso area, brought to Dallas and other distributing points in fast cars, their wooden-spoked wheels filled with dope.

From Dallas, it was taken by U.S. 75 on the railroads to Houston area. No one at the meeting

School Trustees To Review Lists Of Personnel

Pampa School Board will announce new teacher recommendations for the Fall term and review other personnel changes in the regular board meeting at 7:30 p.m. today at Carver Educational Services Center.

Agenda items include discussion of teacher in-district transfers, employment of 21 new teachers, and resignations of six teachers.

Other agenda items for discussion are an athletic department bus, bids on band instruments, gasoline, milk, bread and electric typewriters.

Other reports are expected on stadium seats, tennis court and vocational building improvements, and cafeteria operations.

Trustees have also set Aug. 16 for the next regular session and Aug. 24 for a talk session on the school budget. The open public budget hearing is slated for 7:30 p.m. Aug. 30.

Foreign Envoys Meet With Rogers On Nixon's Journey

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign envoys queued up to see Secretary of State William P. Rogers today for clues to how President Nixon's Peking trip may affect their countries.

Most concerned were Asian ambassadors from nations whose defenses are linked to the United States.

"Just what is the meaning of 'old friend'?" asked one Asian diplomat privately as he waited his turn on Rogers' overflowing appointments schedule.

Nixon used the term in his brief trip announcement Thursday, trying especially to reassure America's allies on the Communist mainland rim from South Korea to Thailand.

"Our action in seeking a new relationship with the People's Republic of China will not be at the expense of our old friends," Nixon said.

But the Asian allies want to know more as they assess how heavily they want to lean in the future on Washington commitments stemming from cold-war days when Peking was rated here as a militant threat to its non-Communist neighbors.

Nixon's journey is widely seen in Asian eyes as U.S. recognition of Red China as a big power, even though establishment of formal Washington-Peking diplomatic relations is still some time off.

Nationalist China's ambassador, James C.H. Shen, already has lodged a stiff protest with the State Department. He was among the half dozen or more Asians on Rogers' visitors' list.

Agnew Not Informed In Advance Of Nixon's Planned Peking Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon gave Vice President Spiro T. Agnew no advance word of his plan to visit Communist China, says an informed White House source.

Agnew, according to the informant, was excluded from all advance planning and knew nothing of Nixon's dramatic move until Thursday night when the President publicly announced his intentions.

This may account for Agnew's refusal to comment when first contacted by newsmen about the announcement. The vice president was in Africa at the time on one of the final legs of a month-long around-the-world trip which took him away from the councils of government during final negotiations on an agreement for Nixon to visit Peking.

Agnew is known to have displeased the White House earlier this year when he described the visit of an American table-tennis team to Peking as a disaster for the United States and a propaganda victory for Red China.

Nixon set up separate meetings today with bipartisan leaders of Congress and Cabinet members to report on his diplomatic approaches to mainland China.

Returning Sunday night from a 12-day stay in California, the President was greeted by some 300 people at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., including representatives of the Cabinet and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The White House said the welcome was spontaneous.

With Nixon were Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, the presidential aide who secretly visited Peking July 9-11 to nail down a preliminary agreement with Premier Chou En-lai for Nixon's planned visit.

During the flight from California, Kissinger suggested to a small group of newsmen aboard Air Force One that the Nixon trip might well occur next spring.

While saying no date is fixed, he cautioned that necessary detailed negotiations in preparation for the journey could hardly be completed early in the fall. And he noted that, as he put it, the winter weather in China is brutal.

DALLAS (AP) — Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes should be thoroughly investigated along with other state officials in the stock fraud scandal, state Rep. Curtis Graves says.

"Barnes shouldn't be left out of this stock fraud investigation," he said. "If the speaker Gus Mutscher, the governor (Preston Smith), and the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee (Rep. Bill Feally of Paducah) are involved, someone on the Senate side likely is," Graves said.

The black legislator from Houston was in Dallas Saturday to speak before the Dallas County Democrats Progressive Voters League.

The House special committee's investigation is designed to mislead the public into believing that a probe is underway in the scandal involving National Bankers Life Insurance Co. in Dallas and the Sharpstown State Bank in Houston, he said.

"How can Mutscher's hand-picked, vest pocket friends who voted against investigation all session truly investigate the Speaker?" Graves asked.

Graves also branded the committee's "confidential questionnaire" sent to all 150 House members as the "worst way an investigation can be handled."

"I will not answer it," Graves said. "They are asking us to dis-

Billie Sol Estes' Homecoming 'Overwhelmed'

ABILENE, Tex. (AP)—"Overwhelmed" was the word to describe the Billie Sol Estes' homecoming this past weekend.

"He's just overwhelmed with it all," said Patsy Estes, his wife, about the Saturday reception on their 25th wedding anniversary.

About 600 friends and well-wishers turned out at the Estes home in Abilene six days after Estes was released from the La Tuna Federal Correction Institution near El Paso.

WTA Executive Calls For Halt Of Lumbering

WENTON, Tex. (AP) — The Big Thicket will be a "biological desert" in five years unless unrestricted lumbering is halted, a new president of the Big Thicket Association says.

Pete Gunter said that the first thing his organization wants to do is to form a coalition of conservationists who can agree on the size and location for a national park.

Legislation for the park to be sited in the Southeast Texas wilderness has been stalled because legislators cannot come to a common plan on how big the park should be.

Rail And Union Officials Trade Charges Over Work-Rule Changes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Railroad and union officials have traded charges over work-rule changes that threaten to prolong a four-day-old selected walkout against two major rail lines.

The exchange between John P. Hiltz, Chairman of the National Railway Labor Conference, and Charles Luna, president of the United Transportation Union, came Sunday as talks aimed at settling the strike broke off without any signs of progress.

U.S. District Judge Supports Austin School Desegregation Plan

AUSTIN (AP) — U. S. District Judge Jack Roberts decided today in favor of a desegregation plan proposed by the Austin School District and rejected proposals by the federal government that would require extensive cross-town busing.

The school district and Department of Health, Education and Welfare previously agreed on a plan for desegregating the senior high schools but failed to negotiate a common plan for junior high and elementary schools.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Austin School District failed to reach full agreement on a desegregation plan after consultations ordered by Roberts. Instead, they filed separate position papers July 16.

Roberts ordered negotiations following a trial that ended June 21, asking each side to work toward a plan "minimizing busing."

The federal agency and the school district agreed on a senior high school plan, which calls for closing predominantly black Anderson High in East Austin in 1971, with reassignment of all black pupils to schools not identifiable as black schools.

They could not agree on a plan for elementary and junior high schools. School Supt. Jack Davidson said the government plan exaggerated rather than minimized busing and gave no consideration to the Mexican-Americans, which he said the school district's plan did.

In its suit, the government asked Roberts to approve an extensive busing plan designed to give each school the same racial and ethnic mix as the city at large—64.6 per cent Anglo, 20.4 per cent Mexican-American and 15.1 per cent black. There are 54,930 pupils in the district.

On June 28, when the judge ordered each side to sit down and work toward a common plan, he noted that the Supreme Court's decision in a Charlotte, N.C., case earlier this year made it clear that busing was a tool he could use. He called busing "by far the most pressing issue in this case."

ton and such way points as Corsicana and Fairfield and Buffalo.

In those days, mostly the criminal element was using or pushing the "hard stuff."

But now the problem has mushroomed:

—Cases filed in Dallas involving so-called "hard" drugs soared by a startling, tragic 662 per cent between January 1966 and December 1970. Smaller places report similar increases.

—An estimated 1,200 hard-addicts now live in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, police say. Dallas police have arrest records on more than 40 of these and are sure there are "plenty more we don't know about yet."

A boy just out of high school called the figures ridiculous. He believed there were that many addicts in Dallas high schools.

—Of the 75,000 hard-core addicts in the United States, by U.S. Bureau of Narcotics figures, more than one out of seven—or 11,500—live in Texas. Some police officers say the figures are very conservative.

Charles Kardimos, regional director of the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs says:

"The amount of hard drugs being seized in Texas is startling and frightening. And apparently the situation is going to get much worse before it gets any better."

Police say Dallas is a major way station on an underground route over which heroin travels from the Mexican border towns to Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis and New York.

The couriers, many of them women, turn their heroin cargo over to a wholesaler once they arrive in Dallas. He cuts it to about 5 per cent of its original strength with milk sugar. A shot of heroin that cost one dollar in 1937 now retails on the street and in the dives for $10. It takes up to six "fixes" daily for an addict, most of whom steal to finance their habit.

The price can be higher at times. It's seldom if ever lower.

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Congratulations for the excellent advice you gave to "Help me, help my mother in Houston," concerning wearing a hearing aid.

There are some 20 million people in this country with hearing problems. Most of them could and should wear aids.

Some say, "I'll wait until I need one." If you have even a slight problem, you need one now! It is important to first have your hearing checked by a doctor to see if your loss is one that can be corrected. Many people wait until it is too late to help what might have been a simple medical problem in the beginning. If nothing can be done to help your loss, and if the tests show an aid can help you, then by all means get one.

The woman who feels that wearing an aid will attract attention to the hearing loss, fools only herself, and is usually a pain in the neck to everyone she comes in contact with. There are a dozen ways of letting others know one can't hear. Turning the head to one side, cupping a hand behind the ear, asking people to speak up or repeat things, asking for special seating arrangements in restaurants or other public places, etc. Everyone knows you have a problem, and everyone wonders why you don't do something about it.

Most importantly, people look at our eyes or our mouth when they talk to us, not our ears. Unless of course we make them aware of the fact that we do not hear well. Then they will surely look to see if we have done anything about our problem.

I have worn hearing aids for years so I know the problems of vanity, despair, adjustment, irritation, . . . the list goes on and on. But I do not try to hide my aids, and interestingly enough, most people do not notice I wear one and sometimes two, . . . even on TV. A dear friend opened my eyes about wearing an aid. Many years ago she told me I was being very selfish by making others cope with what was my problem alone. She was right. I had to do something about my hearing, not expect my family and friends to speak louder than was comfortable for them, or repeat things I had missed, turn the TV up very loud, etc.

If you suspect you have a problem, do something about it. See an audiologist or a doctor or even a reputable hearing aid dealer. Be sure to get all the necessary tests. No reputable dealer will sell you an aid or even try to without first making sure there is no way to correct your loss, and that an aid will really help you. And he'll put it in writing, if he is honest.

Thank you, Abby. Keep saying the words so others can hear.

Sincerely,
NANETTE FABRAY

DEAR ABBY: I am sick and tired of being told that hard of hearing people who refuse to wear a hearing aid are selfish. Abby, I happen to be deaf, and there is no hearing aid in the world that can help me. I have had surgery, too, and many of the world's finest doctors have confirmed the fact that I am totally deaf and nothing can be done to restore any part of my hearing.

I ask you to please print this, in all fairness to others who share my helplessness. We are not selfish. . . We are

BEYOND HELP

DEAR ABBY: Approximately 20 million people belong to an organization called the "HOH (Hard of Hearing)." Simple communication — as easy as breathing to others is a constant frustrating experience to the HOH.

If the general public will practice four basic rules with those who have a hearing problem, we would be eternally grateful:

(1) Get his attention. (2) Face to face visiting. (3) Good enunciation, rather than shouting. (4) Avoid long-winded detailed stories . . . even about your grandchildren.

Respectfully,

Retirement Success Requires Security

As the ranks of older citizens continue to multiply — there are about 60 per cent more Americans aged 65 and over today than 20 years ago — they are becoming a power in the country's economic marketplace.

While the income of a great many older citizens leaves them well short of affluence, collectively the income of the almost 20 million American 65 years or over reached an impressive estimated $63 billion in 1970. Some of its main sources are Social Security, veterans' payments, employee pension plans, and life insurance benefits.

Unsurprisingly, the sheer size of this fast-increasing market has provided an irresistible target for a growing number of marketers. Unfortunately, however, they include a number of unscrupulous operators.

Retired individuals, for example, are often bombarded with brochures for "retirement havens" of doubtful value or sure cures for chronic ailments. Others are frequently besieged through mail solicitations with "easy" ways to make "extra money" at home, to supplement their regular income.

With his income sharply curtailed in retirement, the Institute of Life Insurance suggests, the older citizen might want to apply several hard-nosed guidelines to check out the validity of the operator's claims.

For example, before signing any contracts, or agreements, or putting down a deposit, his initial move should be to check the legitimacy and reliability of the mail advertiser. Contact the local Postal Inspector for one, or the Legal Aid Society. Other good resources are the local Chamber of Commerce and the Better Business Bureau. If there is a Department of Consumer Affairs in the community — by all means contact them.

When approached with an agreement or a contract "ready" for your signature — keep in mind the following:

Never sign your name under empty spaces, no matter what kind of verbal assurances are made to you by the salesman. Don't get rushed into signing anything. Read carefully and understand everything you sign. Show the document to a lawyer, if possible or at least to a knowledgeable relative or a friend.

CUTE BUT COSTLY

Youngest Consumers Cost Parents Money

If you had any doubts that consumers are born, not made, consider that newly-born infant can set his parents back about $1,600 just by arriving on the scene. And, this is before he even settles in to do some serious toddling and starts to comparison-shop tricycles.

That $1,600 total is based on costs in one large eastern city. It includes expenditures beginning with obstetrical care right on through to the infant's first week's stay at home, reports the Health Insurance Institute.

Here is how some of the figures stacked up the last time baby expenditures were tallied up by one weary parent:

Hospital costs came out to $509. This included $420 for daily room charges for six days; $75 for delivery room and $114 in nursery charges.

Medical costs were: $275, including the $250 fee for the obstetrician and $25 for pediatric care.

The baby's wardrobe plus nursery items — running the gamut from fitted crib sheets, a baby carriage, a vaporizer, and vitamins, to the first week's diaper service, and birth announcements — came out to $476.

Mother's maternity garb, including dresses as well as underthings came out to $177. Miscellaneous items made up the balance of the $1,600.

Fortunately, for the new consumer's tab-paying parents, however, there are ways by which the total bill for hospital and medical costs can be brought down considerably — through health insurance. Private coverage or a group plan where the father or mother works may pay $150 to $350 or more toward hospital and medical costs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jeane M. Holm is the first woman general in the Air Force. The 50-year-old director of Women in the Air Force since 1965 received the silver stars of a brigadier general during a Pentagon ceremony Friday. Gen. Holm's selection for promotion was announced in January. She began her military career with the Army in World War II, returned to her home in Portland Ore. after the war, and was recalled to service in 1948 during the Berlin airlift. A year later she transferred to the Air Force where she has held staff positions in plans, programming, manpower and personnel.

LONDON (AP) — Martha Mitchell has changed her mind about Communists. "I think we now have become almost one world," the attorney general's wife told newsmen Friday, in announcing her approval of President Nixon's plans to visit Communist China. "There is no reason to have these little wars, with the weapons we have today. Consequently, I think we should all try to get together and be brothers and sisters, Communists or non-Communists." Explaining, in view of anti-Communist remarks she has made in the past, he said, "I have changed drastically on my feelings. I have changed my mind completely."

Ali Knocked Down By Sparring Mate

HOUSTON (AP) — Muhammad Ali, who hit the canvas three times in training Sunday, will not be sparring today in preparation for his July 26 fight here with Jimmy Ellis.

Ellis, who took Saturday and Sunday off, will be back in the ring for more training.

Ali went a round-and-a-half Sunday with sparring partner Eddie Brooks and went down once in the first round and twice in the second before the training was stopped.

Brooks has put Ali down now five times in training, but some observers say that perhaps Ali is just trying to hypo "the gate a little bit and has not really been knocked down.

African Runners Humble United States In Meet

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — African distance runners, who shocked the world in the ruffled air of Mexico City in the 1968 Olympics, proved they could do as well near sea level over the weekend at the Pan-Africa-U.S.A. track meet.

Led by established stars like Kenyans Ben Jipcho and Kipchoge Keino, and buoyed by newcomer Mirus Ifer of Ethiopia, the Africans humbled the United States' best in every race from 800 to 10,000 meters.

However, American teams won both the men's and women's team competition.

The men displayed strength in the field events and sprints, posting a 111-78 victory over the 14-nation Pan Africa team and the women turned back a team of world stars 79-53.

The only American breakthrough in the distance events came in the 5,000 meters, and it was inconclusive because of a freak error. Ifer, with a substantial lead, miscounted the laps and stopped with one to go, thinking the race was over. Oregon's Steve Prefontaine passed him by and went on to win.

Ifer came back on Saturday to nip Florida's Frank Shorter in the 10,000 meters. Keino had no competition in the 1500 meters. Jipcho won handily in the 3,000 meter steeplechase and 20-year-old Robert Duke ran around a box in the backstretch to take the 800.

Soccer Star Pele Finally Retires

RIO DEL JANEIRO (AP) — With a tear-stained face and the tribute of 238,000 fans ringing in his ears, the man considered the world's greatest soccer player twirled his famed No. 10 jersey above his head Sunday and retired from Brazil's national team.

Pele, the Black Pearl who posted 1,066 career goals, was choked with emotion as he told newsmen he decided to retire after his 110th game to give his nation a chance to develop younger players.

"It is all too overwhelming," he said, half sobbing, about his farewell. "I had tried to imagine what this would be like, but it surpassed anything I could think of."

But he has not left soccer forever—he still plans to play with Santos, his professional team.

Pele played the first half of Brazil's match against Yugoslavia and then sat out the last half as his former teammates erased a 1-0 deficit for a 2-2 tie.

Throughout the first half, Pele's teammates tried to maneuver him into scoring position but the tenacity of the Yugoslav defense blocked his efforts to notch one final goal.

Mobbed with admirers at the intermission, Pele jogged around Maracana Stadium to the strains of "Para Frente Brazil" (Forward Brazil) and "Obrigado Pele" (Thank You Pele). The two songs have become symbolic of Brazilian soccer superiority since Brazil garnered the World Cup last year.

Hundreds of spectators wept openly and shouted for Pele not

Namath On Time For First Time

By EARL GERHEIM

Associated Press Sports Writer

Quarterback Joe Namath was late the last two years he checked into the New York Jets' training camp. He was on time Sunday, saying his crippled knees felt fine but complained the wrist he broke last year was not fully healed.

Two years ago he was late for camp because of an embargo with National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle over Namath's connection with the Bachelors III nightclub.

Last year he was tardy due to "personal problems."

Sporting his usual mod hairstyle, Broadway Joe said he would have to fashion a proper mental attitude about the ailing wrist that sidelined him for the last 10 games of 1970.

Namath said he was fearful the occasional pain may hamper his throwing motion, but added: "When you're out there throwing in a game, there are so many things on your mind you don't think of it."

Namath suited up for a brisk 20-minute workout and rifled several passes without difficulty after he and 22 other veterans arrived at the Jets' training site at Hofstra University in Hempstead, N.Y.

Meanwhile, Cleveland Browns coach Nick Skorich was concerned about developing a winning attitude among his returning veterans. He told the players he was dissatisfied with last year's 7-7 record and said he wanted back on the victory side of the ledger.

Pro Football Will Start In Less Than Two Weeks

KERRVILLE, Tex. (AP) — The Houston Oilers, faced with their opening football game at Canton, Ohio, less than two weeks away, start hitting even harder today.

The Oilers will play the Los Angeles Rams July 31 at Canton in the annual football Hall of Fame game.

Los Angeles Rams coach Tommy Prothro gave his charges Sunday morning off but announced the team will return to two-a-day workouts Monday. clash with the Panhandle Okie representatives from Guymon, Hooker, Tyrone, and Goodwell. The fifth team in the tourney, from the North Plains League, is composed of players from Sanford, Fritch, and Sunnett.

They will see action tomorrow against the Pampa-Okie victory at 6:30. The losers of tonight's contests will meet at 9:00 tomorrow.

Pampa's teams of the past several years have been strong contenders for District honors. Manager Bob Johnson and Coaches Jim Tucker and Leon Peeler are confident that this year's team can continue the pattern and represent District I in the West Texas State Tournament in Dumas.

Admission per night is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children, which will entitle fans to see two ballgames each of the first three nights and one game per night on Thursday, Friday, and possibly Saturday. Since the State meet is in Dumas this year, proceeds will go to meet tournament expenses and to help finance Optimist Club baseball in Pampa.

Western Open Title Goes To Crampton

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Bruce Crampton, 35-year-old Australian, is a philosophical golfer who believes if you are destined to win a tournament, you will do it, no matter what.

He was in four traps, missed seven fairways with his tee shots and was among trees about as much as a lumberjack Sunday—but he won the Western Open Golf Championship and its $30,000 award. A closing 34-37-71 for a five-under-par 279 did it.

The slightly-built but sturdy Aussie, who forsook his parents' wishes that he become a tennis player like himself, now has won 10 tournaments since coming to these shores in 1957 and has passed a half million dollars in winnings.

The Western, however, was his first victory since taking the $50,000 jackpot in the Westchester Open a year ago. His best finish previously this season was third in the recent Milwaukee Open.

In the next month and a half, Crampton will have shots at a pair of $50,000 winning plums.

He defends his title in the $250,000 Westchester—richest tourney in the world—this week. And by winning the Western, he qualified for the World Series of Golf in Akron in September, playing for the $50,000 first prize against Lee Trevino, the U.S., Canadian and British Open king; Jack Nicklaus, the PGA champ, and Charles Coody, the Masters winner.

"I'm all excited about this victory and will get a lot of calls from friends here and abroad," said Crampton. "When this phase passes, then I'll be ready mentally to take on Westchester."

"As for winning it again—I just don't know. But Super Mex kept winning and maybe Super Kangaroo can, too."

Crampton referred to Trevino and his fantastic victory streak in the last month. Trevino cooled off at Olympia Fields, however, closing with a 70 for 291 and a share of 32nd place.

He won $870 and gave his caddy $200.

Bobby Nichols skidded to a 39 on the front side and came back strongly before bogeying the 17th to close with 35 for a 73 and total 281 for second place. It was worth $17,100.

Young Jerry Heard and Tommy Aaron, each with 71, shared third place with 282 and collected $8,850. Dick Lotz, who made an eagle on the second hole and then flew apart, wound up with 75 for 283 and fifth place worth $6,150.

SHAVING STROKES

by Frank Beard

14-The Punch Putt

Many of the touring pros use a putting stroke vastly different from yours — and from mine for that matter. I've always liked a smooth, flowing stroke. These other fellows prefer what I would call a punch stroke.

Watch the putting strokes the next time there's a tournament on television, and see what I mean. Billy Casper is the most notable example. He makes the putter just after it hits the ball, instead of following through. I think it might be a good method for the average amateur player. Think for a minute of a putt as a scaled-down swing. If you wanted to hit a 3-iron out of the trees to the green, and you had only a narrow alley, you'd punch the ball. You have a stronger chance of hitting the ball on line.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

NEVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Problems Of Brotherhood

The basic problems of mankind are theological. They revolved around two questions (One is, Am I my brother's keeper? The other is, Who is my brother?

The socialists propose an answer to those questions. They say, "Yes, I am my brother's keeper." Then they add, "Every man is my brother." With that they proceed to figure out bigger and better ways to keep all those people.

Frankly, some individuals do not like to be kept. And some are a bit choosy with whom they want to be brothers. So that is how the conflict starts. The real question is, which point of view is correct?

One clear point at the outset is that no one can prove he is or ought to be his brother's keeper. The word "keeper" has a bad sound. One keeps sheep, one keeps bees, in the past one kept slaves. Cain, the first man born into the world, was also the first to ask the question, "Am I my brother's keeper?" The common supposition was that he anticipated a "yes" answer. How in fact, was the question answered? The question was ignored. Careful reading of the Scripture will show that a "no" answer is an even more plausible anticipation than an affirmative reply.

On the question of "Who is my brother?" the weight of the theological evidence is clearly and consistently against the socialist. The socialists who were going strong at the time of the French Revolution may have had a basis in "dogmatism" for their slogan "fraternity," they had none whatever in Scripture.

In the Old Testament, the brotherhood was comprised of those who were bound to Israel by blood or by faith. Such were admonished to deal kindly with neighbors or even strangers, but these were not to be accepted as brothers. In the New Testament, Jesus spoke of individuals in five classes. These were (a) brothers, (b) friends, (c) strangers, (d) enemies, (e) children of the devil. Clearly all of these could not be lumped together in the world fraternity dreamed of by socialist theorists.

An intelligent study of this country's two historical faiths would be the worst thing that could happen to socialism. It was interesting to note that the evangelist Billy Graham recently commented that the notion of a "commonly-accepted" all-to-common of the universal brotherhood of man is a mistaken idea.

One Sign Of Decline

Something about professionalism sticks in the craw.

Doctors didn't get into trouble with lawmakers until they became too professional to make house calls.

Lawmen could cure riots when they were not legally required to be "not less than 35" tall and when they dressed like people instead of storm-troopers.

"Registered" was a word closely associated with Herefords, not nurses.

There is talk of professionalism in the newspaper business. If that means impartiality and better spelling, okay. But if it means adherence to some set of man-made ethics that induces a scribe not to call the strikes on his trade, we pass.

What is there about professionalism that makes it appealing to some occupations? Does professionalism mean doing a job better, or does it mean that a blunder likes to get mixed in a group so he can hide his mistakes?

Typically, professionals hang a certificate on the wall to prove they are educated. If a man is really educated, why does he have to show a piece of paper before others can tell it?

Wouldn't we all be closer to reality if each claimed his own merit only and quit trying to make some group merit rub off?

Professionalism is a sign of the decline of competence. It happens when a man stops saying "Look what I did" and starts saying "Look what I joined." It is a time when men invent rules to live up to because they can't live up to the ones that already are.

Clogged Memories

If your problem is a poor memory, the trouble may actually be that you remember too much.

"Efficient remembering is clearly related to efficient forgetting," explain Prof. Robert A. Bjork, a University of Michigan psychologist. "The mind must set aside information it no longer needs to prevent it from interfering with new information."

"Good forgetting is a good thing," says Bjork, who has tested over 600 individuals as part of a study of memory processes. He overhears a conversation of a passerby on the street or notices the price of a shirt in a store window. Somehow the brain sorts out such images from those it needs to remember.

Once we can specify the processes by which the mind sets aside information it no longer needs, he predicts, we will better understand how needed information is remembered.

And maybe even discover the answer to the question: What is it that a husband forgets his wedding anniversary in order to remember?

Ten Most Segregated Cities

Suppose you were asked to name the ten most segregated cities in the United States, based on official surveys in the files of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Would you say Jackson, Miss. Or Little Rock, Ark.? Well, how about Birmingham or Atlanta—or even Raleigh or Durham?

No. None of these. The most segregated city in the United States is Chicago—and the federal government knows it. But does the government send its bureaucrats and its lawyers to Chicago? No, indeed. They send them South.

Incidentally according to American Way columnist Jesse Helms, the ten most segregated cities in the country are, in order of degree: Chicago, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Dallas, St. Louis, Cleveland, Detroit, Baltimore, Houston and Philadelphia. Number Eleven is Teddy Kennedy's stomping ground—Boston And so on.

Just thought you'd be interested.

Question Box

QUESTION:—How can you be free in modern society? I depend on other people for so many of my daily needs, how can I possibly be independent in my decisions?

ANSWER:—Independence and freedom are two terms often used interchangeably, but they do not refer to the same thing.

The definition of freedom that Freedom Newspapers accepts and uses because of its validity and its usefulness is the definition of Andrew J. Galambos that "freedom is that society condition in which every individual has 100 per cent control of his own property."

And we also use Mr. Galambos' definition of property which is that "property consists of an individual's life and all non-procreative derivatives of his life"—that is, his life, his ideas, his thoughts, his actions, and all material goods he produces.

With this definition of freedom then, we can differentiate between freedom and independence.

The man who lives away off by himself must, because of his remoteness from other men, supply his own needs. He is independent from other men. He is his own cobbler, weaver, cook, herder, butcher, cook, carpenter, physician, tailor, etc.

But because he has to do all these things for himself, his time is divided among many tasks. He is forever running from one to the other, doing that which is most pressing, not necessarily what is most efficient. As a result, he barely manufactures enough to survive on. He does have full control of his own property, so he is both independent and free.

When he moves into the society of others, such a man finds that he can profit by exchanging those things that he produces more efficiently for other items that he previously had to make. Dividing his time among fewer projects, he gets more done, produces more, and in that way has more to trade with.

He becomes more independent of natural conditions, but now he has become dependent upon his neighbors. But so long as he retains control of his property, as property is defined, he remains free.

The problem is how can he deal with his neighbors and retain control of his property?

The answer is that he should deal with them on voluntary terms. He should make willing exchanges with any individual or combination he chooses where both parties profit by the exchange and both have full control of all their property, including that newly acquired in the exchange.

He should not involve himself in any forceful situation. We mean by that he should not try to get a law passed forcing others to buy his goods or preventing them from buying other goods, or to establish set prices. As soon as he does that he is attempting to control the property of others and is violating freedom.

It is not harmful to be dependent upon others, for others are also dependent upon you and you both can therefore make profitable exchanges. But it is harmful to attempt to control the property of another, to violate freedom.

As Galambos points out in his courses, you can measure the degree of freedom you have by measuring the control you have of your own property—as property is defined.

It is in the marketplace that men solve the problem of being dependent upon each other yet remaining free.

Ludwig Von Mises, the economist, described the marketplace in these terms: "What impels every man to the utmost exertion in the service of his fellowmen and curbs arbitrary and malice is, in the market, not compulsion and coercion on the part of gendarmes, hangmen, and penal courts, it is self-interest. The member of a contractual society is free because he serves others only in serving himself."

But when Alice invited her in-laws to dinner during the first month of her marriage, Alice's husband inadvertently remarked that the meat needed some salt. Alice took this as a personal affront to her cooking ability! But it merely triggered her basic "second fiddle" resentment.

Her mother-in-law had casually commented that when Alice had babies, she could use the high chair and baby bed that Alice's mate had employed when he was an infant. Two years then passed and Alice never got pregnant. So Alice developed the gnawing dread that she was below par as woman.

The Leaning Tower of Asia

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Alice was like that fiddler in Hades, as described below. For she developed an insane jealousy of her mother-in-law, and for no logical reason. Alas, emotional "complexes" don't depend on logic. Imaginary sexual inferiority made Biblical Rachel a nagging wife and sterile Sarah even tried to kill jealousy of her mother-in-law, her husband's paramour!

CASE R-513: Alice G., aged 26, was likely to end in divorce. "Dr. Crane," her husband and she is a beautiful girl glumly admitted, "I love Alice But I never realized how jealous she could be! And the chief object of her insane jealousy is my mother.

My mother is tactful and hasn't intruded herself in our home or our business affairs even as much as the average mother-in-law. But Alice us at our wedding!

to boss her around. She hates my mother so much, she has even thrown out the linens and other wedding gifts Mother gave. She imagines my mother is trying "Now she insists that I give up my good job with an insurance firm and move 1,000 miles away, just so my mother can't even see us on holidays.

"Dr. Crane, is something wrong with Alice's mind? Is she psychotic?"

"Hell hath no music," runs an old adage, "like that of a woman playing second fiddle! Jealous folk secretly feel they are playing second fiddle. And that is doubly true of Alice!

Yet her husband is definitely not a mamma's boy and he doesn't cater to his mother as much as he really should. For he knows Alice is insanely jealous and thus has tried to reduce to a minimum any contacts with both of his parents.

"But, Dr. Crane," you may logically inquire, "then why should Alice feel inferior to her mother-in-law? For isn't she beautiful?"

In a nutshell, here's a digested explanation of Alice's abnormal attitude toward her mother-in-law:

Alice grew up as a spoiled, "only" child with a greedy desire to monopolize the spotlight at all social gatherings and dominate them. And her tactful mother-in-law hadn't even interfered with Alice's grandstanding!

But when Alice invited her in-laws to dinner during the first month of her marriage, Alice's husband inadvertently remarked that the meat needed some salt. Alice took this as a personal affront to her cooking ability! But it merely triggered her basic "second fiddle" resentment.

This apparent sterility often makes wives doubly jealous!

Even Biblical Jacob thus angrily turned on his wife Rachel during her nagging—lack of a baby and said:

"Am I in God's stead, who hath withheld from thee the fruit of the womb?"

Sarah was also so jealous of Hagar, her handmaid, that she forced Abraham to send her and her baby into the desert to die. Weeping Hannah likewise nagged her husband because she, too, was childless and thus doubly jealous of Elkanah's first wife.

H. L. Hunt Writes

THE OTHER SIDE

Many members of the journalistic fraternity, dovish Congressmen and the left wing section of the country read the Pentagon Papers with prejudiced eyes and place eternal blame on Republic USA for our involvement in Indochina, either not seeing the other side or just ignoring it. This is not so with U. S. News & World Report which sets forth "the story the 'leaks' don't tell." It is a rather old story but it has the weight of truth behind it.

Ho Chi Minh, supported by China and Russia, set out to take over all of Indochina through a campaign of terror, subversion and murder. Washington feared success on the part of Hanoi and our officialdom saw the aggression as one segment of a world-wide communist attempt to dominate and control. Ho had used the weapons this nation gave him in World War II to fight the French. With the end of the Korean war, China was able to step up its aid to North Korea and this turned the tide at Dienbienhu. Now North Vietnam was ready to wipe out the government at Saigon, thus opening the door to Indochina to the communists. It was then that U. S. intervention began, albeit at the time on a small scale. In 1961 the all-out guerrilla attack began on South Vietnam.

Our intervention stopped, or perhaps delayed, the communist takeover of Southeast Asia. But the military was prevented from winning the war through vacillation of civilian leaders and now we are in the camouflaged retreat. So violence and aggression remain trademarks of Vietnam and the communists are still the instigators. A major point made by U. S. News & World Report should be remembered. When all of the Pentagon Papers are disclosed they will show that five successive U. S. administrations failed to mount the full military power of which they were capable.

Your Health

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb

Roughage Needed For Healthy Diet

Dear Dr. Lamb — You had in your column that too much refined food without cellulose or roughage may be associated with constipation and an increased amount of cancer of the colon and rectum. You said nutrients are often extracted from natural food sources and sugar is a classic example.

What foods contain cellulose and what low residue foods should we avoid?

Dear Reader — Sugar is an example of a refined (low residue) food which contains no water and is all calories. It also contains no vitamins or minerals of consequence. In the process of extracting sugar from cane or beets only the calories are extracted for food, leaving behind the fibrous cellulose and minerals. The same is true of white flour but many of the essential nutrients like the vitamin B group are added to the flour to make it "enriched." Cake flour, by the way, is not rich in vitamins.

Certain fats like pure lard have no measurable minerals or vitamins. Thus foods made from these products, such as pies, cakes, cookies, desserts and candies, contain a lot of calories for a small amount of food, or are low residue foods.

Vegetables contain a lot of fiber or cellulose and a lot of water, thus they contain few calories for their volume and have a large residue — which contributes to better bowel function (unless you have a digestive disorder that prevents you from eating them). Many lean meats also fall in this category. Lean round steak with all the visible fat removed contains a lot of water which helps digestive function and provides bulk.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Today a man over the radio, advertising Blue Cross and Blue Shield insurance said that many victims would die from strokes during the year. He gave some large figure. He gave several symptoms of stroke and stated that many could be saved from death if they had treatment in time. What are the main causes and the treatment that can be helpful?

Dear Reader — He was probably talking about strokes caused by disease of the blood vessels in the brain. This is the common type. It is right behind heart attacks as a cause of death. The disease is the same. In the case of strokes the arteries to the brain develop fatty deposits in their walls, eventually causing a clot or similar process that blocks the blood flow to part of the brain to cause brain damage or a stroke. In heart attacks it is an artery to the heart muscle that is involved.

In both instances a lot can be done to prevent such attacks. Avoid obesity, exercise properly and eliminate bad habits such as smoking cigarettes. In both cases once an attack occurs the most dangerous period is at the onset, therefore the earlier medical attention can be gotten the better.

Inside Washington

WASHINGTON — Rep. "Pete" McCluskey seems to be playing all sides to the middle in his adroitly fanfared "dump Nixon" jihad.

On one hand, his operations are being masterminded and financed by ultra-liberal Democrats; New Lefters and millionaire doves; and on the other, the California Republican is assiduously endeavoring to retain the goodwill and support of leaders of his party.

Top machinator of McCluskey's anti-Nixon drive is former Rep. Allard Lowenstein, D-N. Y., originator and spearhead of the "dump Johnson" movement who was dumped himself by a Republican last year. Now head of the New Left-controlled Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), Lowenstein, in the hope of staging a political comeback, has his ambitious eye on either mayor of New York City or governor of New York State.

Meanwhile, finessing in the background, he is pulling the wires and raising funds for McCluskey's crusade.

On the surface, McCluskey is functioning with a small and lackluster staff — several local friendly newsmen, a former secretary in his law office, a broker friend and a one-time military buddy who is a registered Democrat. Behind the scenes, it is Lowenstein who is calling the turns and running the show.

Under his bustling plans, the "heavy sugar" needed for McCluskey's presidential primary races in New Hampshire, Florida, Wisconsin, Oregon, California, and possibly several other states, is to come from millionaire New Lefters and doves who financed former Sen. Eugene McCarthy when he carried the "dump Johnson" banner in 1968. They include: Jack Dyfus Jr., of the mutual fund by that name, who contributed around $50,000; Martin Peretz, on the Harvard faculty, whose wife is a Singer sewing machine heiress, who put up $100,000; Stewart Mott Jr., whose father is the largest General Motors stockholder, whose open-handed donations amounted to well over $200,000; Alan Miller, Boca Raton, Fla., financier, $120,000; and Ellsworth Carrington, Wall Street broker, $110,000.

Already recorded as giving $10,000 is Norton Simon, millionaire California industrialist and art patron. Also Robert Meyerhoff, $5,000; Sam Rubin, $1,500; Martin Fife, $3,000.

GOP SPIEL — While this is going on backstage McCluskey, also sub rosa, is making a big play for Republicans for sympathetic understanding and tolerance. His latest effort is a personal letter to GOP congressional and state leaders.

In this single-spaced, two-page "brief" he stresses two points: "That his sole purpose seeking to 'dump Nixon' is to preserve and strengthen the Republican party; he is not asking for nor expects to get the support of GOP 'office holders' or leaders.

"It is perfectly understandable to me that you should be loyal to the party leadership, including the President," says McCluskey, "until such time as the voters may make their decision [in the state primaries] on the issue."

Actually, this letter is far more significant for what it doesn't say than his standard argument as to why he is challenging the President.

For example: McCluskey carefully says nothing about what he will do in the event the President is renominated; whether McCluskey will support him or bolt the ticket, or what. Similarly, he is dead silent about whether he will seek reelection to Congress, and if so, whether he will do so as a Republican, Democrat or what.

He is vehemently under fire in his own district. Local and state GOP leaders are publicly denouncing him and organizing to "dump him."

Last week, Rep. Charles Gubser, whose district immediately adjoins McCluskey's, scathingly denounced him at a meeting of the directors of the influential California Republican Assembly in Burlingame, a GOP stronghold in McCluskey's district.

Bluntly characterizing McCluskey's statements about Laos as "simply not true," Gubser declared: "Anyone who makes such allegations is serving the purpose of the radical New Left. McCarthyism has become McCluskeyism. Immunity from criticism is not the right of any public official. But it is the obligation of those who criticize to be fair, factual and truthful. Neo-McCarthyism, now McCluskeyism, only serves the cause of the New Left."

Arguing for the project are 20 southwestern utilities in there is no other source for 36 million kilowatts of electricity urgently to be needed by the expanding cities of Phoenix, Tucson, Las Vegas, San Diego, Los Angeles.

Yet these areas have available proved reserves of underground steam heat adequate to generate more than enough electricity without pollution, yet these geothermal power sources remain largely undeveloped while industry, with government sanction, continues to despoil more land with strip mines to get more coal to create more pollution. A coalition of environmental organizations and Indians from the immediately affected reservation are protesting. The Native American Rights Fund, Environmental Defense Fund, National Wildlife Federation such have asked Interior Secretary Rogers Morton to hold off until we know the "whole price" we are paying for this increasing electricity.

The Senate Interior and Insular Affairs Committee is holding hearings, considering alternatives.

Pampa Youth District Winner In Optimist Club's Competition

DAN HOOD

Dan Hood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hood, was honored recently as the July district winner in the Optimist Club's Young Texan competition. Hood was presented his recognition at the July Optimist Club meeting with George Massie presiding. Hood is the Pampa club's June nominee for the contest and the June Zone winner and is in the state competition. Hood, a Pampa High School graduate, was selected for inclusion in Who's Who Among American High School Students for 1970-71. He also was among Who's Who in the PHS foreign language department, and made a straight A honor roll every six weeks and semester in high school. He graduated with honors, earning honor points in English, history, plane geometry, physics and trigonometry. As valedictorian of the graduating class, he made the highest average since 1941. He received a one-year, non-renewable $1,000 National Merit Scholarship, and received the Opportunity Award Scholarship from Texas A&M of $1,000 per year, renewable for four years. His valedictory address will be read before the U.S. House of Representatives by Congressman Bob Price and entered in the congressional record. He was named best citizen in 1971, was vice president of the senior class, student council parliamentarian, member of the Key Club, and nominated for senior class favorite. He plans to attend Texas A&M University as a physics major. Hood also attended the National Conference of Fellowship of Christian Athletes at Estes Park, Colo., and was a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes for two years. He was elected basketball captain his freshman year, played shocker, basketball his sophomore and junior years and handled pregame introductions at home basketball games his senior year because a knee injury in football prevented participation in active sports. He was selected for Who's Who in Texas High School Football in 1970. He played high school baseball three years and was selected to the All-District 3-AAAA second team.

One Of Philippine Tribes Found Still Leading Stone Age Way Of Life

EDITORS NOTE: A primitive tribe that was recently found in the Philippines, where they have lived a Stone Age way of life, has been shown the helicopters, guns and radios of the 20th century. An Associated Press reporter spent two days with them this week and brought out this report.

By JOHN NANCE
Associated Press Writer

TASADAY FOREST, Philippines (AP)—The gentle people of this rain-forest have in five weeks hurtled through thousands of years of history to face dangers they never have known.

Logging roads ominously approach their secluded world and less primitive tribes burn nearby hillsides to clear space for farming. But most disturbing to the tribe right now is that they have left their forest universe for the first time and contacted the 20th century. They scarcely can conceive of alternatives to their Stone Age way of life in the dark tropical forests of the southern Philippines' Mindanao Island. It all is so startling—"like lightning," one told a translator. "What they want, and what we can do for them, are the major questions," said Manuel Elizalde Jr., the government official who on June 7 first contacted these 24 people who wear G-strings and call themselves the Tasaday. Elizalde, head of the government's Presidential Arm on National Minorities—Panamin—is considered a god by the Tasaday who refer to his helicopter as the "giant bird." Elizalde and Dr. Robert B. Fox, head of Panamin's research division and chief anthropologist for the Philippines' National Museum, say the tribe is in imminent danger from the loggers and brush-burning tribes. Panamin has asked the government to make the Tasaday's forest a reserve, forbidden to loggers, hunters, miners and farmers. The agency also is alarmed about the serious damage that could be done the shy people by too rapid and too much exposure to modernity. "One simple bolo knife thrusts a whole new technological factor into their existence," Fox said. "Some of the complexity of the situation may be seen in an interview conducted this week with 14 of the Tasaday—through an interpreter—squatting in a bamboo hut in a clearing beside their forest. The main respondent was a young man named Ayam, who did not know his age in years but appeared to be about 20. He said he was unmarried and that both his parents and a brother had died. The language of the Tasaday has strong vowel sounds with a rhythmic flow incorporating simple staccato words like kum-dum and bingbang. The Tasaday explained that the tribe had never left the forest before because they didn't know that it was possible; that they had never heard of fighting and had known no unfriendly people; that the only other group they had known disappeared some years before, apparently killed by an epidemic disease. They said that thunder—"the big word"—was fearsome and that the most beautiful thing in wild roots like yams—"the deeper you dig, the better the fruit," that they had never seen the moon until coming to the clearing; that they had seen the sun, "but did not know who owned it," that they knew the forest was owned by a man who had told their ancestors in a dream to call themselves Tasaday, after a mountain. They said that snakes frightened them and that they had been terrified and amazed when about five years ago, they were discovered by a hunter from a tribe outside the forest—"we didn't know any other people"—and that the man had led in Elizalde; that Elizalde was Diwata, a god their ancestors had said would come someday to help them; and that after a woman and a man became mo... s they stayed together as long as they lived. Earlier interviews had disclosed that Ayam was worried because he had no woman and there was none available in the Tasaday group, which included six families with 13 children (nine boys) and had no leader.

Matters of mutual concern such as food gathering were decided in an open meeting. Ayam was asked if the Tasaday talked about the strangers among themselves. Ayam said yes and hesitantly went on: "We wonder... we want to ask where do you get all those things you carry and what are their names? Where do you come from?" Ayam said they would like to see the place of Diwata, "if Diwata permits and it would be safe."
