RH Factor May Deafen

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 23 (U)—A clue as to why some children are born deaf or with hearing defects that has been uncovered by the University of Pennsylvania hospital.

The hospital said Monday the RH negative blood factor "can be directly responsible for impaired hearing in the children of parents who have what is known as RH incompatibility."

RH gets its name from the fact it first was discovered in Rhesus monkeys. It is the factor in the blood which refers to a substance found in the red blood cells. About 87 per cent of normal persons have this RH substance in their bloodstreams and they are called "RH positives."

The remaining 13 per cent don't and are "RH negatives."

When an RH negative woman marries a man with RH positive blood, the hospital explained, she often is unable to bear a healthy child.

Her unborn baby's blood can cause her own blood to produce antibodies that may spell death, serious illness or defects for her child.

Such a condition, the hospital explains, is known as RH incompatibility between parents.

The discovery was made through observation of 50 children afflicted with cerebral palsy. Many of the children also had hearing defects and speech disorders.

search in the hospital's audiology section—reporting that without exception the RH blood factor was involved in each of the cerebral palsy-hearing defect cases.

There is promise for relief of children born with such congenital defects, university medical authorities said.

Among methods known by medical science for coping with RH incompatibility is blood transfusion, where the child is given a brand new supply of blood after birth. Another is the use of a butyry substance known as RH haptens which is said to neutralize the antibodies formed when RH positive and RH negative blood types war on each other.

DEPARTMENT PREDICTION

Federal Outlays To Aid Business In '50

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (U)—Business activity will be bolstered by increasingly heavy federal outlays through the first half of 1950, the Commerce Department predicted Tuesday.

In overspending its income by about $5 billion, the government will be adding to income of individuals and corporations and thus stimulating them to re-spend, a department analysis said.

The department's monthly "survey of current business" also saw a spur to business in backlogs of orders for steel, coal and aluminum by business firms whose inventories dwindled during the strikes.

It figured cash outlays of the government—as distinguished from bookkeeping figures in the budget—at $46,500,000,000 in the current fiscal year.

Of that, it said, $27 billion will be spent on goods and services—a higher level than that attained in any time during the past three years.

Since government payrolls—counted as "services"—are running about $10,500,000,000 a year, that indicated outlays on materials will be heavy, and the department noted that the spending pace is quickening.

Most of the impending speed-up in outlays was attributed to "national defense procurement of equipment, materials and supplies," with public works playing the second biggest role.

The department said the federal government not only will be stimulating construction activity directly with its own public works, but also will be inducing others to increase spending for construction.

States, it explained, will be spurred by matching grants-in-aid from the federal government for highway work, etc.

Local housing authorities, able to get advances from the federal government, also "will increase low-rent housing construction toward the end of the fiscal year (next June 30)," it said.

Private homebuilding itself was seen as getting a boost from government purchases of outstanding mortgages so that the mortgage holders may re-lend the money for new housing construction.

The department said the business trend generally continued "moderately upward" in October despite the steel and coal strikes.

India's Princes Draw Huge Privy Purse

NEW DELHI, (U)—The crownless princelings of India numbering about 600 together draw from the Indian exchequer an annual privy purse of $9,600,000.

States Minister Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel appealed to the Constituent Assembly recently to honor the pledges given to the princes for the "bloodless revolution" achieved by the integration of their states within two years of freedom. Patel said that before the integration the princes had been drawing from their respective states' treasuries an aggregate amount of $40,200,000.

The privy purse had been guaranteed only during the lifetime of the princes, Patel said, adding that for subsequent generations it would be considerably less.

Legal Row Over Bell Pension Plan Brewing

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (U)—A legal scrap shaped up Tuesday over action of the Bell System Telephone Co. in boosting their pension plan for workers.

A labor union, the CIO's Communications Workers, protested that the improvements were "not enough" and were put into effect without consulting the union.

The union's president, Joseph A. Beirne, said unfair labor practice charges will be filed with the National Labor Relations Board and a congressional investigation asked. He said the Supreme Court has ruled pensions are a matter for bargaining with unions.

The pension changes boosted the minimum payments from $50 for employees with 20 years' service, or more, to $75 for such employees before age 65 and $100 at 65 or older. The company said many employees will get more than the minimum amount. It said the average pension now is $102.50 including social security payments.

Formerly, half the amount of a worker's government social security benefits was deducted from the amount he received from the company when he reached the 65-year social security eligibility age.

Under the new plan, the whole amount of social security benefit will be taken from some workers' $100 pensions. However, workers entitled to more than the minimum pension will have only half their social security benefit deducted from their company pension.

Prince Faces Trial On Charge Of Robbing Third Texas Bank

WACO, Nov. 22. (AP)—Ollie Otto Prince of Corsicana, already convicted of robbing two banks, faced trial today on a charge he robbed a third.

The 44-year-old used car dealer was convicted yesterday on two counts in the Oct. 5, 1948, robbery of the Malone State Bank. A Dallas federal court jury had found him guilty on March 3 of robbing the Rice, Navarro County, bank of $4,002.

Prince was to go on trial today on a charge that he robbed the First National Bank of Mt. Calm on Nov. 22, 1946.

"The only thing I can say," he told the court yesterday, "is that I am not guilty of robbing these banks and some day I hope we can prove that to the people."

Federal Judge Ben H. Rice then sentenced the heavy-set, florid defendant to 20 years on a charge that he took $15,764 from Guy Mann, vice president of the Malone Bank. Judge Rice sentenced Prince to 15 years on the second count, which charged he entered the bank with intent to rob.

The judge ordered that the sentences be served one after the other—that Prince must serve the total number of years given him.

Court attaches said this meant that Prince must serve the 10 years given him for the Rice bank robbery before beginning his sentences in the Malone case. This would mean 45 years in prison.

The Rice sentence was appealed. Howard Dalley of Dallas, Prince's attorney, said he was not certain the Malone sentence would be appealed.

The federal jury was out less than 20 minutes. It returned its verdict about 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Judge Rice pronounced sentence about 2 o'clock.

The defense asked continuance of the Mt. Calm trial, pleading absence of witnesses. Judge Rice overruled the motion.

In his closing argument, U. S. Dist. Atty. W. H. Moursund emphasized a no-funds check, which he said Prince had given in payment of cattle. He said Prince robbed the bank in order to make the check good.

Mann, an employe of the bank and a customer of the bank identified Prince as the robber. A series of defense witnesses testified they saw Prince in or near Corsicana during the period in which the robbery was committed.

Spain Curbs Old Business Of Smuggling

AP Newsfeatures
TANGIERS — Spanish gunboats are putting a severe crimp in the once-profitable business of smuggling to almost any place in Europe.

Three per cent of the total American export production used to find its way through this international port, according to a local estimate. From here it was smuggled out in the holds of small steamers or pleasure yachts to supply the black markets of Europe and North Africa.

For long it brought huge profits to the agents here who handled the cargoes, found crews and chartered yachts. Then, in recent weeks, the Spanish gunboats started prowling at both exits to the Straits of Gibraltar and challenging suspect craft on sight. Sometimes the cargoes were hastily humped in the sea; sometimes they were impounded and carried off to Spain.

Although technically the Spanish have no right to challenge vessels except when they sail within the three-mile limit of the Spanish coast, the black marketeers complain bitterly that their precious cargoes have often been seized far out at sea, many miles from the Rock of Gibraltar. Such tactics, they say, is driving business elsewhere.

"Marseille is already becoming a stiff competitor," complained one long-faced agent. "Business just isn't what it was."

Not only cigarette smuggling is feeling the enforced recession. Automobiles have been hard hit too.

Just after the war millions were made in smuggling American cars to an auto-hungry Europe. Shipments went mainly to Spain, Portugal, France and Switzerland, but some found their way to Algeria, Central Africa and the Middle East as well.

Then it suddenly got dangerous and quite a few agents were left holding cars which had stopped in the pipeline at Tangiers. Now you can choose between many different makes of cars when you want a makes here.

He was brought Saturday to the hospital, suffering a severe skull fracture, by two men who said he fell from a pick-up truck. They left without identifying themselves.

BIG SPRING HERALD

Large Crowd Attends Annual Play Presented By High School Juniors

Over 1,000 people, mostly students, were present for the annual Big Spring high school Junior class play held Tuesday night at the municipal auditorium. Mrs. Jennell Davis, high school speech instructor, was director of the three-act comedy presentation entitled, "Hollywood, Here I Come" and written by Conrad Seiler.

Plot for the play was a success story, which brought two young people to Hollywood. It portrayed the struggle for recognition by a young girl, her final success and the "lucky break" which gave her boy friend his chance in the movies, too.

On the whole, the play seemed well cast and moved with fair speed and smoothness. The attention of the audience was held and entertainment seemed to prevail. As in most performances of its type, there was a certain amount of prompting and, now and then, close observers could see the cast become too aware of the audience.

Outstanding performances were given by Susan Houser as Cornelia Burke, Barbara Greer as Mrs. Tweedie and Wanda Lou Petty as Jane Mayberry.

Other characters were June Brownrigg as Wilma Hawkins; Marilyn Miller as Dot Hawkins; Jim Hahn as Otis Burkalew; Jack Little as Melvin Sprague; Lindsey Marchbanks as Manny Kaufmann; and Chester Cluck as Ormsby.

W. C. Blankenship, Jr. was stage manager. Bobby Leonard and Robert Ragan were in charge of the heavy props. Ann Brown, Sue Craig and Beth McGinnis did the make-up. Property managers were Johnny Berry, Kitty Roberts and Martha Ann Johnson. Yvonna Cornell and Barbara Dehlinger were in charge of sound effects.

Jo Ann Smith, Thelma Tucker, James Nuckels, Jimmie Bennett,

Lynn George, Larry Evans, Pat Lloyd, Jean Wood and Doris J. Brown directed the advertising. Usherettes were Nona Campbell, Myra Allen, Mildred Sipes, June White, Joanna Hickson, Barbara Sue Wilson, Danella Davidson, Peggy Carter and Anita Forrest.

CREOMULSION for Coughs, Chest Colds, Bronchitis

MISSISSIPPI RAMBLINGS

By Mildred Young

It seems that somebody is playing favorites.

A prominent psychologist has said that women teachers suffer more from sleeplessness than any other vocational group and has advised them to yawn frequently during the day to relax.

He pointed out that the teacher's job demands great physical energy and emotional control. The great demands on teachers, he said, often bring on psychic tension and insomnia. He recommended to teachers that in addition to yawning that they have classrooms decorated in soothing shades of green.

All we have to say is why limit yawning to a teacher? Anyone who works with the public should be given the opportunity to let a yawn escape once in awhile.

Which reminds us, why doesn't someone conduct a course for the public, teaching them how to deal with the business and professional person, instead of so many courses teaching him how to deal with the public. It might, at least, give us a new slant on living.

Bruce Barton, author of such thought provoking books as "The Man Nobody Knows" and "The Book Nobody Knows," tells this story.

In 1928 when the stock market was running wild, he was having dinner with some men in a West-ern city. Most of them, at the moment, were rich.

A phone call took one of them away from the table. He came back laughing.

"That's one for the book," he exclaimed. "Yesterday I had a lunch engagement with a man who said word that he would be a billionaire. So having a few minutes on my hand, I called New York to find out what was doing. The boys down there told me: 'We're giving Gold Dust a ride; we've put you down for 10,000 shares.'"

"Gold dust!" he shouted. "Never heard of it. What's Gold Dust?"

"It's a stock. Don't worry. Let the Gold Dust Twins do your work."

The man laughed louder. "And now they call me from New York to tell me I've made $75,000."

Barton says that at that point, a bell began ringing in the back of his mind. He said he didn't know whether it was the school bell of his childhood or the bell of his father's church, but he got the message. It said: "This can't be right. Any scheme of things under which a man, while doing no work, contributing no benefit, can make $75,000 overnight, is rotten and can't last."

Barton said he went home and proceeded as rapidly as possible to get himself out of debt.

And that's a pretty good thing for all of us to do!

The centerpiece included a carpet of small white chrysanthemums topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom in a crystal rose bowl. The small opening in the top of the bowl was banded and tied with satin ribbons and silver wedding bells. Socialized Medicine Is Theme Of Program

"The subject of socialized medicine is no longer one which concerns itself only with the business of your doctor, but it is actually the business of the individual," said Mrs. Harold Canning in her address to the members of the Spoudasio Fors meeting at the Hotel Settles Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Canning traced the history of socialized medicine from the time it was introduced into Germany about 100 years ago. She pointed out the disastrous results of that system in Germany, Great Britain, France and New Zealand.

She stated that "although there is no direct cost to the patient, it is in reality paid by him through taxation and added costs of living. She said that, "all citizens pay the cost for anyone who are to get the most for their money regardless of whether they need medical care or not."

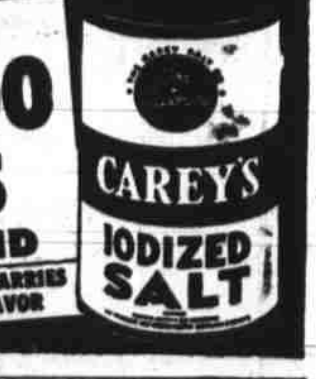

Mrs. Canning pointed out that "government invasion in health insurance or in any other business is like creeping paralysis, as it takes over first Zone operation and then another until the people lose control of everything. In conclusion, she stressed that "now is the time for everyone to sit up and take notice of what is happening and to do something about it before it is too late." She urged all the members to write to their congressmen, representatives and also President Truman in regard to this measure.

Mrs. Canning served as hostess at the meeting.

During the business session, conducted by Mrs. George Vineyard, plans were completed for a Christmas party and dinner to be held Tuesday, December 13, in the Crawford hotel at 1:30 o'clock. Refreshments were served.

Those attending were Mrs. Andy Arcand, Mrs. James Bradley, Mrs. Ray Clark, Mrs. Oliver Coker, Mrs. Tommie Elliott, Mrs. Jimmy Johnson, Mrs. J. F. Neel, Rhoda Miller, Mrs. Stanley Peurifoy, Mrs. P. N. Scherer, Mrs. Dan Simpson, Mrs. Wally Slate, Mrs. George Vineyard and Mrs. Joe Williamson.

Costs Concern Everyone, Even Employees As Well As Employers

The cry for more economy in government may get a little throaty sometimes, but the subject happens not to be confined to businessmen grating at the government. They are concerned about costs in government because they are faced with the same problem in their own businesses.

The volume of business has been large the last few years, and may grow larger in the months ahead; but more volume means nothing if the costs of doing business outpace net operating returns. Costs have been increasing faster than net income, and this fact was underscored when it was announced that bankruptcies for the first three quarters of this year in business and industry numbered 8,000. That is almost twice as many as for the same period last year, and compares with only 3,000 in 1947.

This growing record of failures may be attributed to various causes. For one thing, they affected mostly small operators. For another, a great many new enterprises sprang up after the war that were undercapitalized and in the hands of inexperienced men. But in each and every case, failure was due to inability to achieve a profit. Without profit, there can be no business.

Rising operating costs affect almost every line of business. Beginning January 1, another burden will be placed on businesses employing persons who are covered by social security; the tax goes up then from the present 1 percent to 1 1/2 percent. It is the same increase which will be levied on the covered workers, but it will remain the task of business to meet its part out of profits, and if there are no profits the business will have to fold.

The problem of keeping costs down isn't merely the concern of management; the employees' jobs are at stake. The workers have basically as much to gain in maintaining a profitable operation as the employers. It sometimes seems to us that management isn't as diligent in pressing his fact home upon the workers as it might be.

Future Of College Clarified In Vote; It Carries A Challenge

Voters of Howard county have given the green light to the Howard County Junior College for the construction of a permanent home.

With assurances of a modern half-million dollar plant in the offing, the question about the future of the institution is clarified. It is an accepted part of the educational system; it is being put on a basis to serve the youth for years to come.

In a sense, the vote comes as commendation for the accomplishments in three and a half years of work. In that time, people had seen what the college was and could do. The board, administration and faculty can take a measure of satisfaction in this thought.

In a larger sense, however, the outcome confronts those in responsible positions with a real challenge. The community is furnishing the equipment and the implements for a vigorous and productive program of training. It has every right to expect that the good start in this direction be maintained and expanded.

When completed, the institution should be one to which the people can point with pride. It would be even better if they make larger use of the facilities, for the junior college is a people's college—one for adults as well as for youth. Wide-spread patronage in this field can double the value on the investment and enrich community life in the process.

Professional Football Is Far Cry From The College Game

NEW YORK (AP) — COULD UNDEFEATED Notre Dame knock off one of the top professional football teams?

Impressed by the record of 36 games without a loss run up by the Ramblers, a number of writers have opined that the fighting Irish could best many play-for-pay teams. And some even have crawled clear out on the limb and proclaimed that Notre Dame and could outscore the best pro eleven.

I am no fonder of tanned pork than the average man, but if Frank Leahy's boys in green can whip the Cleveland Browns I'll be glad to eat—without benefit of gravy—the football they do it with. And that is one proposition I don't mind siding with a proposition.

IN THEIR CLASSES BOTH TEAMS play nearly perfect football, but they aren't in the same class. Frank Leahy can employ the discipline of the old college try—if his boys don't play their hearts out, they're yanked. But Coach Paul Brown of Cleveland, just as much as perfectionist as Leahy, has the added discipline of the dollar. His men know if they don't win they won't eat next year—at least not with the Browns.

His team doesn't merely do most things well. It does everything well. There is a specialist for every job, paid well to do it right. And the job is done right.

The simple truth is that by halftime the Browns would have torn the Notre Dame line to splinters and smothered its backs so often they would have a feeling they were playing in elderdown quilts.

AND MEANWHILE CLEVELAND would have passed or linebucked the dazed Ramblers silly.

Against the powerful Yankees last Sunday the Cleveland quarterback, Otto Graham, a shv 195-pound lad who likes to play the violin, completed 19 of 34 passes for 382 yards. He had thrown 69 consecutive passes in five games before one was intercepted. Mac Speedie, an end, caught 11 Graham-flung passes for 228 yards, a conference record.

Yes, Notre Dame is mighty—but it would be mighty foolish ever to trot out on a gridiron with a pro team like the Cleveland Browns. For professional football separates the men from the boys, and there is no way for the boys to bridge the gap.

Ohio's Vote-Getters Afraid To Run Against Big, Bad Wolf Taft

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21—The Democratic-Labor alliance that hopes to beat Sen. Robert A. Taft in Ohio next year is not doing very well.

It lost in its effort to keep Ohioans using the kind of election ballot that encourages straight-party-line voting. Its leading vote getters like Gov. Frank J. Lausche continue to advertise that they are afraid of the big, bad wolf, Senator Taft, and will wait until an easier mark, Sen. John W. Bricker, comes up for reelection.

draft of Murray Lincoln, the Farm Co-operative leader, is under way. It is asserted that Lincoln will go if he is assured that he will have no opposition in the primary.

Labor leaders want Washington to help them placate the minor state officials who have, they say, scared off Lincoln by insisting that they will be candidates. They profess to be hopeful that this will be arranged so that they can get Lincoln's candidacy off the ground and stop the talk about Taft's inevitability.

All this makes for a Taft trend and creates considerable concern in important places in the capital. Each week a trial balloon is hopefully inflated, by weeks end however it is down. Mayor Disalle of Toledo was the latest. His labor friends extolled his considerable merits as a campaigner; the working politicians expressed doubt that the old-liners in the state organization who want to run would step aside for such a newcomer.

The result is that a serious new attempt to get one and all to join in a

The Ohio problems of the Democrats constitute a tribute to the personality of one man, Taft. Elsewhere the Republicans are on the defensive.

In a coast-to-coast tour during which he made six major speeches, National Chairman Guy Gabrielson, has been candidly telling his party it must work a never before. As they scan the Gabrielson solution—a return to the vigorous G.O.P. campaign in 1946—Democrats are not too frightened.

They respond that the Republicans will not get back their best campaign issue that year—OPA. It also is recalled that those were the days when President Truman was listening to the advice of others and did not get into the campaign himself. In fact a Truman offer to go on the road was turned down by the politicians that year and his leadership was minimized as much as possible.

Sen. McCarran Not Entitled To Speak For All America In Talk With Franco

WASHINGTON — Sen. Pat McCarran of Nevada, No. 1 enemy of Europe's homeless refugees, has now set himself up as chief volunteer public relations counsel to Europe's No. 1 Fascist dictator.

On his latest junket abroad, supposedly to "investigate the current refugee situation," McCarran gave Spain's Francisco Franco some shrewdly cynical advice on how to make friends and influence people. In the the Senator from Nevada assured his attentive host that "with a little smart handling at his end, Spain can be right back in the front parlor by this time next year."

McCarran happens to represent a state containing less than one-tenth of one per cent of the U. S. population, and most Nevadans are not the slightest bit interested in Franco. Nevertheless, McCarran did not hesitate to speak for all the American people.

"The overwhelming majority of the American people," he said, "are convinced that your country has been given a raw deal. It's just a question now of pounding the point home and getting enough pressure put on enough congressmen to whip the State Department plinks."

A "healthy bloc of senators," McCarran added, are prepared to advocate, early in the next congressional session, that the United States sponsor Spain's admission to specialized agencies in the United Nations. "They are also prepared to put the heat on a few of our European charity patients so that you can get invited into that western union club of theirs," McCarran said.

"However," McCarran warned Franco, "don't let your pride keep you from blowing your own horn, good and loud. You've got to keep telling everybody that Spain deserves a place on the anti-Communist team. Don't bother about anything else, or answer any other criticisms; just keep hitting that one line, and you'll make the grade."

Francisco, whose background hasn't given him much experience in molding public opinion, must have been grateful for these tips. For less than a week later, Franco followed McCarran's suggestions closely in an exclusive interview with a U. S. correspondent.

Radio Madrid, on its short-wave broadcasts to the Americas, has also begun to bear down heavily on "Spain's contributions to the struggle of western civilization against Russian Communist barbarism." High point of these propaganda blocks is the cryptic declaration: "If it hadn't been for Spain, England would now probably be the only free nation in Western Europe."

other nearly everyone on the staff has been bedridden with the same disease; at least three have died during the past decade—victims of their own research.

For such risks, these doctors are paid a modest government salary ranging from $4,500 to $10,000, though they could earn far more in private practice. They don't work for the glory either, since their discoveries are kept anonymous by the Public Health Service. Yet their selfless research goes on.

The doctor in charge of polio research, for example, is Dr. Charles Armstrong who spent eight months in bed and nearly died from typhus, or rabbit fever, and also came down with dengue fever, parrot fever, Q fever and encephalitis on other assignments. He is now searching desperately for a serum that will prevent polio, a feat which would be given as an inoculation against polio. He has finally traced the coxsa virus, which causes a mild disease sometimes mistaken for polio, to sucking mice.

NO CURE FOR COLDS — Another important research task force, under Dr. Leon Atlas, is exploring the common cold. He has already isolated the rhinovirus which causes colds, has proven this by dropping the virus into the nostrils of volunteers from the District of Columbia jail. However, Dr. Atlas has also discovered there are many types of colds—caused by other viruses, allergies and mild diseases that do not get past the preliminary, stuffed-up-nose stage.

Dr. Atlas still hasn't discovered a serum or drug to prevent colds. In fact, he warns against using any drugs, including the anti-histaminic drugs which have been ballyhooed in full-page ads as a cold cure.

"As yet," he cautions, "there are no adequate and convincing studies that demonstrate unequivocally that any drug or combination of drugs will prevent or influence the cause, severity or duration of colds."

Two other researchers, Dr. Charles Shepard and Dr. Robert Hubner, have made encouraging progress in the fight against Q fever—and as usual, caught Q fever in the process. They traced this fever to the milk of infected dairy cows, particularly in the Los Angeles area. However, they still haven't located the actual virus that causes the disease.

Dr. Hubner also solved an epidemic of rickettsial pox that cropped up in a New York City apartment district. Hubner's experiments showed the disease was carried by house mice and transmitted by mites, so by eradicating down on the mice, the epidemic was checked.

Eleanor Powell Trying For Hollywood Comeback

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 23 (AP)—Happy sounds of tapping feet are again coming from the Eleanor Powell mansion, long a landmark at MGM studios.

The boards are once more groaning under the onslaught of the long-stemmed tapster. Miss Powell has returned to the studio where she once reigned as a musical queen. She was away seven years, during most of which she was merely Mrs. Glenn Ford.

Thus begins another chapter in the career of the Springfield, Mass., dancer who has traveled from ballet to be-bop.

"I studied ballet for 13 years," she recalled. "To be ballet was everything. But then I tried out on Broadway before such producers as George White, Flo Ziegfeld and Earl Carroll. "Very nice," they said, "but can she tap?"

"So I invested $35 in 10 tap lessons. Those were the only lessons I've ever had and I've been tapping ever since."

After starring in many Broadway shows, she came to Hollywood in 1935 and repeated her success in films. After several years of hits, she found herself in a rut.

She left MGM in 1942. She did one outside film, "Sensations of 1945," but it turned out not to be. Marrying film newcomer Glenn Ford, she put away her tap shoes for an apron. Little Peter Ford completed the family scene.

One night the Fords were out socially with the Joe Pasternaks when the producer suggested a film return for Eleanor. She laughed it off and forgot about it. But Pasternak persisted. He conquered her fear of returning to the old haunts and signed her to appear in "Duchess of Idaho."

"It's just a brief appearance in the picture," she said, "but it's handled very well. Van Johnson introduces me at a night club. Then he looks right at the movie audience and says, 'would you like to see Eleanor Powell dance again?'"

The audience's reaction to that will determine whether or not I do any more pictures."

Winter's Approach Is Viewed With Alarm By Married Man

In addressing myself to today's subject, I do not feel that I am violating any domestic secrets. The affliction appears to be universal with all the fairer sex. At least, all my intimate acquaintances confide that they also are plagued by a pair of frigid feet attached to their better-halves.

There is scarcely a man who has experienced conjugal bliss but who also has gasped in frozen astonishment and amazement upon the application of two unbelievably cold feet to the calves of his legs. There have been reports of a man screaming in pained surprise when a pair of concealed icicles have juttred from the snug ball on the other side of the bed and landed in the small of his back.

Being a bit rusty on my anatomical lessons and the ins and outs of the circulatory system, I am at loss to explain the psychic quality possessed by women's feet. As though drawn by a magnet, they have a way of penetrating immediately to the one unprotected and warmest spot. For example, if the man's feet are a bit chilly, too, the mate's frigid feet never seek out an even match. Automatically they are jabbed into that spot of warm hide made bare by a creeping pajamas leg.

Still another problem attends this phenomenon. Ice, placed in warm water, will melt until an even temperature is reached. A woman's feet keep on being cold, no matter how long they apply the torture to an enduring spouse.

What causes this cross which must be borne in secret silence? One of my colleagues suggests that blood vessels do not extend to the lower extremities of the female. This theory has merit, but I doubt its validity. I have two theories of my own. One is that the cold foot was an unmentioned punishment heaped upon Adam through Eve in the basement from the Garden of Eden. The other is that stylists of women's shoes and hosiery are in the same category as those who design the remainder of a woman's wardrobe. This is to say that they fall into one of two classes—either women or silly bachelors.

As a result, women are eager to buy paper thin shoes, sans toes and sometimes minus heels, too. Hosiery continues its race for super-sheerness. It is now impossible to look straight at a pair over three seconds without precipitating a runner. Obviously, such material can't contribute to retaining heat. As a consequence, after a day of constant freezing, the foot is as chery as a tray of ice cubes at bedtime.

The situation is not without its brighter side. I have found one useful purpose served by the ordeal: Long ago I have ceased putting stock in weather records, time-honored predictions by amateur prophets on the seasons. I've even stopped paying attention to the mosquitoes in spring. When those feet warm up, I know spring is here to stay and not a moment before. Conversely, it makes no difference if the chrysalis is not budding and trees cling to every leaf, when I sense that chilly nocturnal greeting in the autumn, I know that winter cannot be far behind.—JOE PICKLE

Marshal Monty Wasn't Easy To Find In Libyan Desert

IT'S SEVEN YEARS AGO, BARRING A few days, that America's distinguished British guest, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, gave me the toughest chase I ever experienced in rounding up a subject for an interview—not that he was trying to avoid me, but it just happened that way.

This was in the Libyan Desert in December of '42, just before the crucial battle of El Aghelia between Monty's Eighth Army and the Germans under the famous Marshal Rommel. The British general was moving his headquarters for the great show-down, and he personally was hopping from place to place so fast that the British press unit to which I was attached never could catch up with him.

FINALLY MY COLLEAGUES THREW up their hands, drove me an armored car with a military driver and said: "Go find Monty yourself!" A couple of days later we finally ran to earth the man whom Supreme Allied Commander General of the Army Eisenhower has described as "one of the great soldiers of the war... a figure who will live always, not only in British but in world history."

The general was in his caravan—a little "headquarters" office-on-wheels which could be got under way in a few moments. When I knocked he gave me a cherry

"come in—I'm glad to see you," and grinned when I told him about my long chase.

The first moment of an interview with a stranger often is the most important, for it is in this brief instant that the interviewer sizes up his subject. I find that in my notes of the interview I recorded this first impression:

"THERE BURNS IN HIS GREY EYES the unmistakable flame of the crusader. If he were not a great general he would be in some other field of leadership and it would involve idealism, if I've sized up my man rightly."

There would seem to be nothing in subsequent developments to change that viewpoint. Associated with that thought is the fact that he is intensely religious, and in a manner of speaking fought with the Bible in his hand.

"I was particularly touched by one letter from a Sunday School teacher in Atlantic City" the marshal said. "He wrote to say that the boys of his classes were praying that I might have strength in the coming battle."

"And don't these messages help you?" I asked. "Don't they strengthen your morale?"

He nodded, and there was moisture in his eyes.

The Nation Today—By James Marlow

Where Would Some Big Shots Be Without Ghost-Writing?

WASHINGTON, D. C. — CRRRRRRRNCCH. Justice Jackson brings up the question of ghost-writers again.

Here was the Supreme Court droning through a batch of dull Monday cases.

It reached one about a lawyer accused of having had a hand in writing a magazine piece which bore another man's name but was in support of the lawyer's client.

Suddenly Justice Jackson, who's been around a long time in Washington where you hear a lot about ghost writers, teed off:

"Ghost writing has debased the intellectual currency in circulation here (Washington) and is a type of counterfeiting which invites no defense."

But, anyway, the spade work on the speech was usually done by the ghost whose names were never mentioned.

COME TO THINK OF IT, IT WOULD seem odd if Mr. Truman got up to make a speech and, to avoid the "counterfeiting" label put on ghostly work by Justice Jackson, made his speech this way:

"My fellow Americans: The speech I'm about to deliver has been put together by Joe Jones, a file clerk in the labor Department, Charley Ross, my secretary, Charley Murphy, one of my aides, Clark Clifford, one of my aides, and Mrs. Truman, who suggested some changes when I read the speech to her last night."

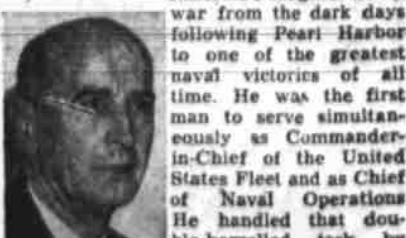

"Paragraphs 2, 7, 10, 22, and 37 were put together entirely by Jones, Ross and Murphy are responsible for Paragraphs 11 to 21. Clifford re-wrote Ross and Murphy in 14 other paragraphs, and I re-wrote Clifford in 20 others, 16 of which were in the suggestion of Mrs. Truman."

OTHER GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS have ghosts, or at least who they help. So do many businessmen. If you asked them why they didn't do the whole job themselves, they'd probably say:

"I can't possibly make all the speeches I'm called upon to make and write them all myself and still get my other work done. So long as the speech represents what I think it's best to do it with the help of a ghost."

Today's Birthday

ERNEST J. KING, born Nov. 23, 1878, in Lorain, Ohio, the son of a railroad master mechanic. Admiral King bossed America's toughest naval war from the dark days following Pearl Harbor to one of the greatest naval victories of all time. He was the first man to serve simultaneously as Commander-in-Chief of the United States Fleet and as Chief of Naval Operations. He handled that double-barreled task by delegating authority to subordinates and trusting them. King, who tried to run away to sea when he was only seven, was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1901. He fought his first war for Uncle Sam as a midshipman in the Spanish American War.

C-99 DESIGNED
New Air Transport Would Carry 400

FORT WORTH, Nov. 23. (AP)—The company that builds the mighty B-36 bomber said today it has designed a transport that could carry 100,000 pounds or 400 armed men from the east coast to western Europe without straining a rivet.

Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp. said it has submitted its production design to the Air Force. The huge transport would be called the C-99. It could haul bigger loads in both size and weight than any other aircraft now made or known to be planned.

Convair delivered an XC-99 (X stands for experimental) to the Air Force earlier this year. But its production model of the C-99 would differ from the XC-99 in five important ways:

1. It would have engines of greater horsepower; 2. Easier loading through nose and tail doors; 3. More usable cargo space, increased 57 per cent in area; 4. Pressurized crew compartment and upper deck; 5. B-36 type flight deck, including bubble canopy, to afford the pilot greater vision.

The company estimated that 70 per cent of the C-99 parts would be common to the B-36 also. Like the B-36, the C-99 would be equipped with six pusher-type engines and four-wheel or "roller skate" type landing gears. It would have the same 230-foot wingspan as the B-36 but its double-decked fuselage would be longer and much larger.

The XC-99 last April carried 100,000 pounds of simulated cargo on a test flight—the heaviest load ever taken aloft by an airplane.

Installation of the more powerful engines and improved fuel consumption should enable the C-99 production model to carry a 100,000-pound payload nearly 2,000 nautical miles farther than the XC-99 can

Knife And Fork Club Organization Set Friday Here

Organization of the Knife and Fork club has been set for a luncheon at the Settles hotel Friday noon.

E. M. Avery, representing the Knife and Fork International, will be on hand to assist in organizational details. Those attending will be guests of the International.

Selection of a board of directors and the election of officers, including a president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, are on the agenda.

Other items include a discussion of basic policies for the club, the naming of the house, reception, by-laws, membership committees as well as a committee on the inaugural committee.

Avery said that if details can be completed by Dec. 16, and there are no conflicting engagements, Dr. Gerald Wendt, celebrated scientist, can be secured for the inaugural speaker.

Dr. Wendt is editor of Science Illustrated, is author of the pocket book, "The Atomic Age Begins," and holds several degrees in science. He likes to separate the scientific wheat from the chaff that sometimes clutters up popular mediums.

Response to the initial invitations have been gratifying, said Avery.

The Knife and Fork club ordinarily convenes about seven times a year to hear speakers of national renown. These speakers are available through service of the International and in keeping with the desires of the local chapters.

Examining Trial
TEXARKANA, Nov. 23. (AP)—Examining trial was to be held today for Carl Maddox, 47, charged with murder of a Louisiana oil field worker. He is accused of the fatal shooting of John Collins Sheppard, 26, of Mira, La., at Maddox's cafe early Sunday.

Commerce Dept. Blocks Strategic Goods Shipments

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (AP)—Over a three-month period, the Commerce Department says, it blocked efforts by Communist-controlled nations to ship some $3 million worth of strategic goods out of this country.

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer reported that yesterday in a report to President Truman and Congress on export control activities from July through September.

Sawyer didn't amplify the statement, but other officials said attempts were made to evade U. S. regulations by first shipping the strategic goods to non-Communist nations, then re-shiping them to members of the Soviet bloc in eastern Europe.

The Commerce Department said it prevented this plan from working by halting certain shipments apparently destined for such places as Italy, France, Belgium, The Netherlands, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, India and Egypt.

The materials included chemicals used for making explosives, certain electrical machinery, rubber products, aviation gasoline and other critical products.

The United States has banned shipments of strategic items to Soviet nations since March, 1948 on grounds that such goods might increase Russia's ability to wage war.

Montgomery Meets With Defense Chiefs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. (AP)—If we fall there, military strength by itself will not pull us through." Asked "how do we stand in these matters?" Montgomery replied: "Not well, I fear."

Montgomery had his first session with American military leaders yesterday at a Pentagon tea party. He is visiting this country informally as guest of the English speaking union. He will address that organization in New York Nov. 29, and will return to England Dec. 2.

Western Europe's top military man scheduled meetings with U. S. defense chiefs today after opening his visit here with a promise of a "real good" battle if non-Communist Europe ever is attacked.

An address before the national war college was the major item on today's schedule for Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery of Great Britain, following conferences with Gen. Omar Bradley, Gen. J. Lawton Collins, and Secretary of Defense Johnson.

Bradley is chairman of the joint chiefs of staff and Collins is chief of staff for the army.

Montgomery, defense chairman for Europe's Western Union-Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg—spoke yesterday before the National Press Club.

The hero of the battle of North Africa declared that if any nation attacks the Western Union "we'll have a real good party and kill a lot of people."

Peace, he said, depends mainly on the West's success in its effort to rebuild its military strength. But he added: "The key to the whole matter in every nation lies in internal harmony and economic well-being."

Shivers Shocks Texas Medical Men With Banquet Remarks

DALLAS, Nov. 23. (AP)—Gov. Allan Shivers listened politely last night while a banquet speaker told him how badly Southwestern Medical School would need money. Thanks for the warning, said the governor, but—

Texas has war orphans, seniles and epileptics who need money, too. And there's no lobby working for them.

He told the cream of Texas' medical men that socialized medicine might get them if they don't plant some doctors and nurses in rural areas.

That was not exactly what the governor had been expected to say. The Dallas Citizens Council gave the swank cocktail party and dinner. Some 250 guests were there.

besides Shivers and 60 members of the Legislature, which accepted Southwestern Medical Foundation's offer last summer and made its school a branch of the University of Texas.

George L. MacGregor, president of the citizens council and master of ceremonies, told the crowd that all this was a "visible expression of gratitude to you in government and medicine" for establishing the branch in Dallas.

The house of delegates of the Medical Assn. of Texas had recommended that Dallas—and southwestern—be chosen over Temple and San Antonio as the site for the branch. The university board of regents and the Legislature took the advice.

It was Dudley K. Woodward, Jr., chairman of the regents, who said the new Dallas school will need money for buildings, to make it the "best constructed medical school in the country."

Observance Of Pink Worm Quarantine Urged Upon Farmer

Farmers in this area have been asked to observe State and Federal pink bollworm quarantine restrictions by L. F. Curt, in charge of the Division of Pink Bollworm control for the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine.

Both Federal and State quarantine authorize movement of seed cotton for ginning only from lightly infested areas into similarly regulated counties with similar conditions of infestation or to designated gins located in free area immediately adjacent to the regulated areas. Curt pointed out in a memorandum to G. W. Chown, director of the Big Spring office of the Bureau of Entomology.

Any other movement of seed cotton may be made only under permit from quarantine officials, Curt said.

The quarantined counties of northwest Texas, eastern New Mexico, and southwestern Oklahoma are grouped according to intensity of infestation found by inspections this season. Movement of seed cotton is prohibited from the more heavily infested to the more lightly infested groups of counties.

The most heavily infested group in this area includes Lea County, New Mexico, and Gaines, Dawson, Borden, Andrews, Martin, Howard Ector, Midland and Glasscock counties in Texas, Chown said.

Cotton produced in these counties may be ginned at any gin located within the boundaries of the group, but may not be carried outside for processing, the entomologist declared.

Manila Government Forces Seek To Force Rebels Into Battle

MANILA, Nov. 23. (AP)—President Elpidio Quirino said today army and constabulary forces hoped to corner Batangas rebels for an all-out fight.

He said many had been killed and wounded on both sides in the battle which started 60 miles south of Manila last night. He termed the situation serious.

The president, who won the Nov. 8 election to succeed himself, blamed the battle indirectly on enemies of his liberal party.

He said leaders of "some people who were about to be arrested for murder" of Batangas liberal party leader, Mayor Roman Perez, were responsible. Perez was killed on election day.

Previously Hukbalahaps, armed peasants, were blamed directly for the battle. Some 600 or more engaged constabulary and army troops.

Batangas province is the home of Dr. Jose P. Laurel, puppet president of the Philippines during the Japanese occupation and runner-up in the election. Laurel has not yet conceded defeat.

At a news conference Quirino said: "I don't know if these people merely were trying to escape arrest or whether they have a more serious purpose. If it is the latter it represents an organized effort to upset the government of the Philippines."

The President said he had instructed government officials to determine who was behind continued rumors of possible armed rebellion and systematic attempts to arouse hatred and distrust of the government since the election.

He added they will be prosecuted if they are detected.

Three Potter County Prisoners Still At Large In Jail Break

AMARILLO, Nov. 23. (AP)—Four of the quartet stuck a butcher knife in his back and said "Let us out and you won't get hurt."

He did.

The county jail is on the top floor of the four-story Potter County Courthouse. Officers said Hoskins had been made a trusty and was operating the jail elevator. No other details of the break were revealed immediately.

The State Highway Patrol threw up roadblocks throughout the area, and all available officers were called on duty. Taxi drivers were alerted in case the escapees should seek that means of transportation. Officers said they did not believe the men to be armed, except for the butcher knife, which was not found.

No other details of the break were revealed.
