107 Feared Dead In Plane Crash

By ROBERT H. MOTTRAM
Associated Press Writer
JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — A jetliner carrying 107 persons crashed into a mountain in the Tongass National Forest during a hard rain Saturday, about 20 miles west of Juneau.

An Alaska Airlines spokesman said "there appears to be no chance of survivors." The Coast Guard said a ground party was enroute to the scene at the 2,500-foot level of the Chilkoot Mountains.

"It apparently crashed into a sheer wall of the mountain," said Alaska Airlines vice president Robert Giersdorf.

Giersdorf said the crash occurred about eight minutes before the 727 was due to land at Juneau. The wreckage was spotted by a helicopter pilot, he said.

The Coast Guard said the wreckage of the Alaska Airlines flight 1866 was spotted one mile east of Teardrop Lake at the southern end of the Chilkoot Mountains.

A Coast Guard spokesman in Juneau said the Boeing tri-jet was cleared for a landing at the Juneau Municipal Airport before radio contact was lost. The airport is bordered by sharply rising mountains.

The rescue center said it received numerous conflicting reports. One, from a boat 19 miles northwest of Juneau, reported seeing a 727 flying "very low and fast" about 500 feet above Barlow Cove.

The plane, carrying 100 passengers and seven crewmen, was en route from Anchorage, Alaska, to Seattle, Wash. It had made intermediary stops at Cordova and Yukutat and was scheduled to land at Sitka after Juneau.

Seven Members Of Arizona Family Killed By Gunman

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Seven persons, including four children ranging in age from 10 years to nine months, were shot to death in their modest east-side home late Friday night.

Police Sgt. Lowell Strickland identified the victims as Frank Martin, 18, his wife, Pam, 16, her mother, Novella Bentley, 42, and four other children of Mrs. Bentley—Tinna, 10, Adam, 3, Tracy, 1, and Charlotte, nine months. Mrs. Bentley's daughter, Debbie, 12, was visiting a friend at the time.

Police said they arrived at the small frame house while the shooting was in progress. Officers said they arrested a man as he ran from the house and leaped a fence into an alley.

Strickland said neighbors identified the man to police variously as John Friedman and John Freeman, but the suspect carried no identification papers and refused to talk to police.

Strickland said the suspect was taken to a hospital to be treated for two leg wounds that officers said apparently were self-inflicted. Strickland said the man would be booked on murder charges after treatment at the hospital.

Strickland said all the victims were shot in the head or neck with a .38-caliber weapon. The bodies of the adults were found in the living room while those of the children were in a bedroom. The two youngest children were in cribs while the other two were found in a bed.

The group gave 100 per cent ratings to four potential Democratic presidential candidates.

They are Sens. George S. McGovern of South Dakota, Birch Bayh of Indiana, Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Harold E. Hughes of Iowa.

Booster Club Appeal Sounded For Pampa Harvester Support

By TEX DEWEESE
Sports-minded Bud Hogan, chairman of the Harvester Booster Club publicity committee, issued an appeal today for Pampans to get behind the Pampa Harvesters this year like they've never been behind them before.

He wants to get sports fans out to the Harvester Booster meetings and let the team know they are really behind it.

Congress Going To Study Nixon Tax Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress returns Wednesday to a Washington still rocking from President Nixon's economic shock waves, and will go to work immediately on his tax proposals.

Scrapping the schedule mapped before the August holiday, the House Ways and Means Committee has arranged hearings beginning Wednesday on the President's proposals for restoring the investment credit on equipment purchases by business, repealing the automobile excise tax and speeding up his voting record this year in Congress.

Secretary of the Treasury John B. Conally is on call to open the administration's case, to be followed a day later by George P. Shultz, management and budget director. Their hardest job apparently will be, not to persuade the committee to approve these, but to hold down broadening of the tax relief, especially for individuals.

It's going to be a great year for all sports in Pampa, Hogan says, and there is no better way to make it just that than to really come through with support by attendance at Pampa Harvesters this year like they've never been behind them before.

He wants to get sports fans out to the Harvester Booster meetings and let the team know they are really behind it.

"We go along with Hogan and urge a real start on high school sports support by turning out at the Booster Club meeting Tuesday night.

Here is Hogan's appeal to Pampa sports fans:

"TO ALL SPORTS FANS: 'O.K. people, the time is here now. The 1971-72 Harvester season is starting.

"As a long time observer, I believe the current situation of all sports in Pampa is the best it has ever been.

"The 1971 Harvester football team will probably be the best ever. They have good personnel and good coaching. What else do you need? The football program looks good down through both junior high schools.

"This year's Harvester basketball team should be as great as ever. They have a solid returning starting team, and they are good. The basketball program is in the same kind of shape as football in the junior high schools, real good.

"Our baseball team will probably be the best ever as it has good returning lettermen at all positions and more players coming.

"Track, golf and tennis are looking up.

"The looking ahead is over. It's here!

"We need you to come out and join our Harvester Booster Club right now if you are interested at all in our Pampa High School Sports Program.

"I believe the time has come to where we have got it. If we don't go this year, you can climb off of the coaches, the fans and all of the boys and coaches care. See you Tuesday.

"We meet every Tuesday night at 7:30. Come out and join us and see how much some of the fans and all of the boys and coaches care. See you Tuesday.

Ky's Coup Threat Stirs Up Turmoil In South Vietnam

SAIGON (AP) — Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky's threat to "destroy" President Nguyen Van Thieu has raised the specter of a coup d'etat in Saigon.

Most Western observers, however, doubted that there was coup in the immediate offing.

The most cogent reason was offered by Ky himself at a recent news conference: "People who are planning coups don't talk about them."

Ky's press secretary also issued a denial of the statement originally attributed to "sources close to Vice President Ky."

Ky actually made the remarks to 11 foreign newsmen at a reception at his home Friday night—under the conditions that they could not quote him directly and must attribute the information to "sources close to the vice president."

The denial was apparently issued to forestall Ky's arrest, something he conceded was a real possibility.

"But I will not stand still for Thieu to arrest me," he added.

Thieu did not reply immediately to Ky, but said he would talk with newsmen this week.

Any real chance of a coup depends on Ky's ability to line up sufficient support—or at least to sufficiently erode Thieu's support—among the country's generals.

Ky is generally conceded to have the allegiance of the air force, which he used to command, and the marine corps.

Although he might muster sufficient strength to initiate a coup in which Thieu might be killed—there is no evidence that he has the strength to sustain a coup.

Weapons stolen from Gibson's Discount in Bowie, were recovered in Earl Kerr's wife's residence in Dallas by Montague County officers investigating a May 10 robbery there. Guns taken in that burglary were later recovered also.

Man Killed In Traffic Mishap Near McLean

One man was killed in a car-truck collision at 6:40 p.m. near McLean.

Killed was William Leamon, 32, of Cleveland, Tennessee. He was a passenger of the truck driven by Norvell Strickland, of Tennessee.

The driver of the car was Yasuko Carr, of Kentucky.

Deputy Overpowered By Pair In Cell Here

Gray County's first jail escapes in the 41-year history of the county court house were still at large late Saturday despite tight roadblocks, state city and county alerts and a Department of Public Safety helicopter which was pressed into service shortly after the noon Friday escape of Pampa brothers, Earl E. Kerr, 21 and David A. Kerr, 20.

Deputy and jailer, Buster Collins, 67, veteran law enforcement officer was overpowered by the pair as he returned David to the maximum security cell after escorting the prisoner to a nearby barber shop shortly before noon Friday.

Sheriff Rufe Jordan said Collins was hit by the younger Kerr as he unlocked the cell. Earl Kerr, confined to the cell then rushed the jailer, knocking him to the floor. The pair then fled the top floor jail facility by elevator and escaped the building through a basement door.

Sheriff's officers were alerted some 10-12 minutes later Jordan said, after Collins unlocked the door to the Sheriff's quarters and used the telephone to alert officers downstairs the Kerrs had escaped in the elevator. Jordan rushed to the basement, but the pair had fled through the boiler room door. A quick search of the immediate area failed to reveal the two. Within 20 minutes Sheriff Jordan said, all city and county units were advised and a radio broadcast aired the escaped prisoners' descriptions.

A tight road block was maintained around Pampa for over three hours, but the brothers were still eluding officers yesterday.

Numerous reports have been received by the sheriff's department concerning the pair. Radio messages and telephone calls from as far away as Montague County stated the pair had been seen in the dispatching areas.

The brothers, natives of this area, were scheduled to appear in Grainger McElhan's 31st District Court Friday afternoon to enter pleas in four counts of burglary each.

The escaped prisoners were jailed in May of this year and charged with the Feb. 25, burglary of Pampa Lumber Co.; the Feb. 26, burglary of National Auto Salvage, located west of Pampa on Highway 60 and the March 1, burglary of Gibson's Discount Store where a quantity of guns were stolen. The pair was also charged with the March 12, burglary of I.W. Tinney after a large cache of goods taken in the burglaries was recovered by deputies in an abandoned shack five miles southeast of Pampa on May 9.

Evidence in the shack led to warrants being issued by the sheriff's office. The brothers surrendered to the sheriff and were arraigned on the charges. Bond was set at $5,000 each.

Weapons stolen from Gibson's Discount in Bowie, were recovered in Earl Kerr's wife's residence in Dallas by Montague County officers investigating a May 10 robbery there. Guns taken in that burglary were later recovered also.

Jordan described the brothers as rather large men, Earl is six feet tall and weighs 180 pounds, David is six-foot-one inch tall and weighs 175 pounds.

Bulletins have been sent across the area describing the pair and outlining the jailbreak.

Officers are not overlooking the possibility the Kerrs are still in Pampa the sheriff said. "They went to school here and know a lot of people," he added.

Two other prisoners confined to the maximum security cell made no attempt to escape while Deputy Collins was momentarily stunned, the sheriff said. Collins was able to re-lock the cell before summoning aid.

No other prisoners have escaped the Gray County Jail. Last year a prisoner managed to escape the run-around and hide in a top floor storage area, but readily surrendered when Sheriff Jordan heard noises from the area and investigated.

Two other prisoners also attempted to escape by sliding down elevator cables, and just four weeks ago the Kerr brothers and two other prisoners sawed their way into the ventilating system shaft and attempted to escape.

That attempt was foiled when Mrs. Jordan heard noises from the jail area and alerted the officers who quelled the escape attempt. Welders reinforced and repaired the maximum security cell following the latest escape attempt.

HONOLULU (AP) — Gov. John A. Burns is asking the federal government to take President Nixon's price freeze-off Hawaii's food to help keep supermarket shelves full.

"I have no reason to believe they'll reject the proposal," Burns said as he prepared to dispatch the formal request to the Cost of Living Council this weekend.

"They might not go 100 per cent, but I'm sure they'll be reasonable," the governor added. "I don't think they want to see the people out here faced with going without food."

The governor said food shortages might occur if businessmen are forced to continue absorbing the added costs of flying food in or having it shipped from East Coast ports. Such shipment is necessary due to the West Coast longshore strike.

For example, he said, it costs 80 cents to fly in a five-pound bag of flour which normally sells for 70 cents in grocery stores.

One food wholesaler said he is stuck with 18 vans of non-perishable goods he can't afford to release at the prices of Aug. 15.

"We'd have to takt such a loss, we'd be forced to go out of business," he said.

Sniper Bullets Hike Death Toll In Terror-Ridden North Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Sniper bullets still raked in bloody Belfast Saturday after a night of bombs and bullets that hiked the car's toll of dead to 96 in Northern Ireland's religious-political violence.

A growing specter emerged of Protestant vengeance to combat terrorism by the outlawed Irish Republican Army, fighting to unite Ireland and drive the British out of the north.

In the same district where a sniper bullet killed 17-month-old Angela Gallagher Friday night, snipers attacked a British army patrol in daylight. They failed in daylight. They failed to hit anyone.

The Irish republic, under criticism for giving the terrorists sanctuary, took new steps to seal off the border to block smugglers carrying explosives to backstreet bomb factories in Belfast, Londonderry and Newry in Ulster.

In Dublin, Justice Minister Desmond O'Malley ordered police to clamp down on the gelignite that powers bombs in the streets of Northern Ireland.

The bloodletting Friday night and Saturday cast shadows over the meeting Monday of Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain and his Irish counterpart, Jack Lynch. Deteriorating relations between the two countries already have cut the atmosphere of terror and panic to bring down Northern Ireland's Protestant-based government. They warned the people even going into a pub where British soldiers congregated risked being blown up.

The gunmen want to force Britain to impose direct rule on the embattled province from London. They contend this would open the way for negotiations between Britain and Ireland on reunification of The Irish island, divided by partition 50 years ago.

Their tactics now include daylight bombings of crowded office blocks and key military and economic targets as well as ambushes laid to kill British troops.

In the past two weeks, the IRA has basted the Belfast headquarters of the Northern Ireland Electricity Board, offices of the ruling Unionist party and other buildings, killing a civilian and causing serious casualties, many of them women.

On Saturday, a soldier and three civilians—one of them an infant—were wounded in a bomb raid on a British military camp in Londonderry.

Although the Protestant militants are currently lying low and letting the army shoulder the main brunt of the IRA ofensive, no one in Northern Ireland expects them to remain quiet for ever.

One well-known Protestant gunman, who asked that his name not be revealed, told newsmen: "The IRA must be stupid to think we won't retaliate. The time is not yet ripe, that's all."

The Protestant equivalent of the IRA is the Ulster Volunteer Force, a well-armed, highly organized underground army with a reputed strength of perhaps 4,000.

These militants—pledged to keeping Northern Ireland Protestant and British—are reported under orders to conserve their energies until the Northern Ireland governments seems threatened.

"We've got the guns, you can be sure of that... When the time comes, we will match the rebels bullet for bullet, bomb for bomb," a UVF officer told newsmen.

The association of former "B" Specials, a disbanded Protestant vigilante group armed to put down trouble, met in secret. The 2,500 Protestants asked the provincial government to set up an auxiliary force similar to the "B" Specials, fully armed and under direct provincial government rule.

Association leaders claim they can field 20,000 such part-time vigilantes to fight violence. They also called for a boycott of goods from Ireland.

Dallas Patrolman Sought For Shooting

DALLAS (AP) — A nine-year veteran of the Dallas Police Department was charged with murder Saturday after a 21-year-old airline hostess was fatally wounded in an apartment bedroom.

Officers sought patrolman Felix F. Florio, 32, in the shooting death of Karen DePhillips, a hostess with Braniff International.

A police spokesman said statements from two other persons in Miss DePhillips' apartment at the time of the shooting showed the patrolman and the hostess were alone in the bedroom.

SOLDIER DONATES PAY

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — "Here is my combat pay for a month which was given for helping kill people in Vietnam. Please use it to help people to stop some of the feelings and beliefs of mankind which allow us to kill each other."

The message, and a $6 month's pay to U.S. soldier John P. Watts, came to the First United Methodist Church here. It was forwarded to the denomination's Board of Missions, which in turn gave it to the Martin Luther King Home, an interracial peace project in New York.

JFK Cultural Center To Open Wednesday In Nation's Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — The John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, authorized by Congress as the national cultural center, opens this week with a new work by Leonard Bernstein but without the President's widow.

The formal opening is Wednesday night, but there will be a preview Tuesday night for an audience of members of Congress, the diplomatic corps, and governors.

President and Mrs. Nixon have said they plan to attend the first orchestral concert in the center on Thursday. Friday night will see the premiere of a major new opera, and on Saturday the ballet season will be inaugurated.

President Kennedy's widow, Mrs. Aristotle Onassis, had let it be known several months ago that she planned to attend the official opening, for which she asked Bernstein to compose the featured work, "Mass."

But she announced through her New York press spokesman a week ahead of the opening that she would not attend "because of her own feelings and her own reasons for such an occasion being 'difficult' for her."

Other members of the Kennedy family are expected, including Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, the late President's mother; Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy, widow of the senator; Sen. and Mrs. Edward M. Kennedy; Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Smith—she a sister of the late President.

Edward Durrell Stone, who designed the massive marble structure on the bank of the Potomac River near the Lincoln Memorial will be on hand. He and all other comers, save newsmen and music critics will pay for their seats at prices ranging downward from $100 to $25.

Antal Dorati, music director of the National Symphony Orchestra, pronounced the acoustics excellent after the first rehearsal a few days ago in the 2,760-seat concert hall—fittingly, Beethoven's "Consecration of the House Overture." It will be the opening selection at Thursday night.

And Bernstein has described a triumphal sound in the 2,320-seat opera house, although he was not present for a sneak preview some weeks ago.

Bernstein calls his "Mass" a theater piece for singers, players and dancers; 202 performers and all but 46 orchestra musicians on stage.

It will be played without an intermission, running perhaps an hour and three quarters.

Bernstein said about half the text is taken from the Roman Catholic liturgy and the other half will be new and in the vernacular.

Counting a dress rehearsal Monday night, there will be 11 performances of the "Mass" during the first two weeks of the center's program.

The center's second world premiere, the opera is "Beatrice Cenci" by the Argentine Alberto Ginastera, composer of the widely acclaimed works, "Don Rodrigo" and "Bohmarzo."

The inaugural ballet, to be presented Saturday night, will be a performance by the American Ballet Theater of Duke Ellington's "The River," choreographed by Alvin Ailey.

The program during the first two weeks also will include popular artists or groups: The Fifth Dimension, Merle Haggard, Peggy Lee.

The center was authorized by act of Congress 13 years ago as a national cultural center. Two months after the assassination of President Kennedy, it was renamed for him.

One of the center's three major halls, the Eisenhower Theater, is not completed. It is scheduled to open Oct. 18 with Claire Bloom in "The Doll's House."

The center is situated on 17 acres opposite Theodore Roosevelt Island, a permanent wildlife sanctuary.

A total of 245 thoroughbreds were claimed for $82,054,040 at the 1971 Hollywood Park meeting of 75 days.

Texas High Court To Hold Hearings On Redistricting

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court granted Saturday a request from Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin and set a Thursday hearing on the constitutionality of the 1971 House redistricting plan.

No ruling was announced on a Republican motion to dismiss the state's appeal in the case.

Both Martin's "motion to advance" the case and the TOP request for dismissal were filed with the court late Friday.

Chief Justice Robert W. Calvert told newsmen Aug. 12 the court could render a decision quickly after hearing the case.

"I think I can safely say that once the case is orally argued, we can give them a decision within not more than 10 days or two weeks," Calvert said.

However, it might take longer than that since the GOP has until Sept. 27 to file an answer to a brief presented by Martin Wednesday.

Time Says Wilson Paid For 'Bugging'

NEW YORK (AP) — Time magazine said Saturday Asst. Atty. Gen. Will R. Wilson paid $2,500 in 1967 for the bugging of a bank controlled by one of his law clients. The magazine said the act was not illegal and quoted Wilson as saying he didn't know what the money was intended for.

Wilson, the Nixon administration's top crime-buster, has been under strong pressure from a Texas congressman to resign because of his part involvement with the client, Frank Sharp. Sharp pleaded guilty earlier this year to federal fraud charges and testified before a grand jury probing Texas stock manipulations.

On Aug. 26, Wilson issued a statement in Washington and denied any wrongdoing in connection with Sharp.

Time said Wilson will likely resign as head of the Justice Department's Criminal Division as a result of the disclosure. He joined the department in 1969.

Wilson told a Time correspondent that he had been unaware that the $2,500 he paid for "some construction work" was actually for the installation of electronic eavesdropping devices, the magazine reported.

Time said Wilson did not break any law by paying for buying. It happened in Texas, which has no law against eavesdropping, and occurred before the 1968 federal act making private eavesdropping illegal.

"Nonetheless," said Time, "Wilson did play a part in breaching the security of official investigations."

The magazine said the bugging devices were used against federal and state examiners investigating irregularities at the Sharpstown State Bank, then controlled by Sharp.

Joe Novotny, president of the bank, telephoned Wilson and asked him to pay the $2,500 "construction" bill through his law firm, Time said.

It said Wilson wrote a memo stating: "I received a telephone call from Joe Novotny and he said he had a bill for some construction work that they did not want to run through the books and that he preferred not to tell me why but that it was all right. They wanted me to send them a statement and they would send me $2,500 as a fee and for me to pay the bill. I told him I would."

Wilson told Time he did not question the request from Novotny.

"I trusted those people. As it turned out, I was a patsy," the magazine quoted Wilson.

Rep. Henry B. Gonzales, D-Tex., who has demanded Wilson's resignation, has dismissed Wilson's explanation of his involvement with Sharp as "not even a good dodge."

Wilson credited land investments and inheritances for an increase in his personal wealth from $500,000 in 1963 to $1.3 million in 1968.

Between 1963, when he stepped down as Texas attorney general, and 1970 he borrowed a total of $297,000 from Sharp, Wilson said.

Governor Says He Will Try To Form Anti-Busing Bloc

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith told a Dallas and Fort Worth anti-busing group Saturday he agrees with its position and would try to convey that view to President Nixon.

He also said he would try to organize an anti-busing bloc during the national governors' conference which starts Sept. 12 in San Juan, P.R.

Smith spent an hour with the group in the old Supreme Court room on the third floor of the Capitol.

Four state highway patrolmen including one Negro officer, stood by in the room during the meeting.

"If people did this all over the country, public opinion would force officials to act," Smith said.

"I stand shoulder to shoulder with the same position you have. I think you are right," the governor said at the close of the meeting.

George Hughes, chairman of the Concerned Citizens of Dallas Against Forced School Busing, asked Smith to:

- Direct the state Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin to withhold state funds provided for school transportation if the money is used to bus children out of their neighborhoods to achieve desegregation.
- Direct the Department of Public Safety to enforce a law requiring school buses to be painted yellow with black bumpers—an apparent attempt to prevent the use of city transit buses to carry out a Dallas federal judge's busing order.
- Direct the attorney general to investigate the use of federal funds to bus children and to seek a federal court order prohibiting such expenditures. Hughes said federal law prohibits the spending.

Jack Roberts Jr., a Smith legal aide and son of a federal judge, told the group that Martin had held, in effect, that Smith could not issue orders to state officials and "make it stick."

Smith asked Hughes to put his proposal about painting school buses into writing.

The governor said if he was unable to get an audience with Nixon, "we could ask his assistance in a registered letter."

"You let us know if he is granted an audience—we'd like to know it," said Clay Smothers of Dallas, a Negro Republican and a member of the executive council of Citizens for Neighborhood Schools.

"Busing," said Smothers, "is forced integration without preparation, and that, sir, is frustration."

He suggested that Smith organize Southern governors to confront Nixon on the busing question and to remind the President that an election is coming up next year.

"Of course, that will be done," Smith said.

Prime Minister Gandhi Of India To Visit U.S.

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi plans to make a state visit to the United States in early November, authoritative sources reported today.

The sources, close to the Indian Foreign Ministry, said the exact dates still had not been worked out. But they said the two governments were planning a visit starting toward the end of the first week of November. It would last about five days, the sources said.

Mrs. Gandhi, they added, would fly to Washington sometime after visiting Britain from Oct. 31 to Nov. 3.

She also is due to go to France and West Germany, but it was not known whether she would visit these countries before or after going to the United States.

When the government first announced last month that Mrs. Gandhi might visit the United States this fall, the leftist press began an editorial campaign against the trip.

Doing My Thing

By JANE KADINGO

"Nearly everything outside is beautiful," maintains Frank Huff, avid outdoorsman and camper, who has found the world is a great big interesting place with all sorts of intriguing things to do.

He may be the solitary figure, dressed in khakis, you have seen wandering through the remote fields and hills of the Panhandle, with his canteen slung with his shoulder and his pockets filled with beef jerky.

His wanderings are not limited to this area, though. He has hunted his beloved rocks and anything else of interest he can find throughout Texas and in points as far away as Wyoming.

Lapidary is not his only interest, since he has been fascinated by the unusual and the "old" most of his life. Not just in collecting, either, as he finds out all there is to know about his various items and the history that goes with them.

Lapidary His interest in lapidary stemmed from his interest in arrowheads.

"I joined the Canadian Gem and Mineral Society because I found out they looked for arrowheads," he explained. "I was looking for sites. They didn't tell me they were all cleaned out."

It was at their meetings he saw the work they did with rocks, which started him on one of his most recent hobbies . . . just five years old.

He learned where the best rock-hunting spots were and how to watch for colors, hardness, and beauty through the trial-and-error method.

"I learned you can't grind what won't stay together," he laughed.

And he learned well, as the rock jewelry he fashions is of unparalleled beauty . . . But not for sale.

"Since the Good Lord made rocks, I don't see why a fellow needs to buy a rock," he stated emphatically. "I only build the jewelry for my friends."

His friends, recipients of his rock creations, range to about everywhere he has visited.

"Thank God my house is too small to hold all the friends I have," he declared. "I don't know of any house anywhere that is big enough to hold them all."

The secret to his success lies greatly in his searching remote areas, always with the owner's permission, unknown to other rockhounds.

Several health disabilities are no deterrent to Frank Huff. At any time, he may pack his bedroll, wrapped in a large tarp, and take off to parts unknown . . . sometimes for weeks at a time . . . not only to hunt rocks, but just to wander through the beauty of God's world. And he believes walking is good for him.

"No more rocks than I use, I really need the exercise," he explained.

It was his enthusiasm and desire to share his knowledge with others that led Girl Scout Troop 87 on its lapidary project . . . opening the door to an unknown number of future lapidary enthusiasts.

He has acted as guide and mentor to the troop in rockhunting and fashioning rock jewelry, even providing them with most of the equipment needed.

Guns and Shells

Certainly not limited in interests, rifles, guns, firearms of all kinds were Frank Huff's first interest.

In pointing out that two walls of his home are covered with guns, mostly antique firearms, he said: "Instead of pictures hanging up, I've got guns."

Among his collection are seven muzzle loaders, which is the type of gun that is loaded from the front end.

"The youngest one I built myself," he said. One musket has the year "1861" stamped on it and dates back to the Civil War. It fired the first conical bullet that this country ever used in warfare, Mr. Huff proudly points out.

His collection of antique shells dates back to guns older than he has in his gun collection. His greatest pride is a paper shell made at the Frankfurt Arsenal. These shells, he explains, hold a charge of black powder, three .00 buckshot and one round ball.

"I have a tube filled with black powder shells like those used over at Fort Elliot," he pointed out.

Quite a marksman, Mr. Huff has a Master Rifleman rating and has been a life member of the National Rifle Association since 1951. This interest he shared for many years with the Boy Scouts as a riflery instructor.

But he does not like to kill or hunt or kill even a rattlesnake.

"If a rattlesnake comes up and curls up . . . if he's fair about it and gives me warning . . . I'll just take him off and drop him, and let him go on his way," he stated. All of those things have a place here. I'm not the one to judge whether or not they should stay here just because I'm scared of other people are scared."

Other Things

"There are a lot of other things I know a little about," he commented, adding that he collects coins, but it is not a "real, hard-driven hobby."

He collects bottles, too. He has an old catsup bottle worth $4,000 from a company he "never heard of." And one of his most expensive beverage bottles is a replica of a train engine.

"It's fun to delve into these things," he said, "and find out how things used to be."

Biography

Born in Kinder, Louisiana, he moved here in 1945 with his family, "the year they dropped the atomic bomb on Japan."

The oldest of five, three of his four sisters live in Pampa. They are Suzie, Mrs. Darrell Spoonmore; Billie, Mrs. Robert Bruner; and Lee Bell, Mrs. Bill Langley. His other sister, Louise, Mrs. Hugh Daniels, resides in Lubbock.

He started school in McLean, later moving to Panhandle where he finished high school.

It was his mother who fostered his love for camping.

"Mother was a better outdoorsman than I," he declared. "She taught me how to camp with a minimum of effort and in comfort."

His first camping was at the age of three when the family, then consisting of his parents, himself and Lee Bell, lived in tents on the Perdals River in South Texas, during "the first depression."

It was there they had to learn to waterproof tents, dry them and drive stakes, as their "livelihood and lives depended on them." Cooking was done on a wood stove inside the tent.

The place, near Johnson City, was named Pecan Bottom for the nearly 500 pecan trees that grew there.

"When the crop came in the fall, we only got about two bushels off all those trees," he reminisced.

It was two years later they moved to a farm on Lella Lake, near Clarendon. After collapsing while helping his father in the fields, they discovered he was a diabetic.

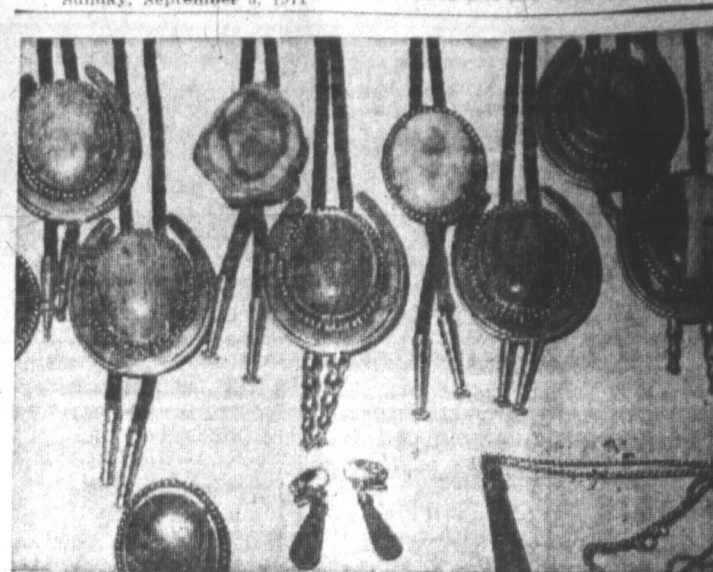

He told of lying in the hospital unconscious for four days before a young doctor asked for a blood test and diagnosed his illness. He was seven years old. He feels he was lucky to survive at that time.

"There is something I've got to do here, but I don't know what it is," he commented.

Perhaps it is to share his joy of living and his love for the beauty of God's creation . . . his wonderful knowledge of so many things . . . of today and "way back when."

HARD AT WORK — Frank Huff of Pampa is shown at his lapidary wheel working on one of the many beautiful pieces of rock jewelry he makes for his friends. He hunts the rocks, polishes and shapes them, and fashions them into beautiful jewelry. Only one of his interests, he collects antique guns and shells, antique and unusual bottles, coins and historical information. (Staff Photo)

Gray County Farmer Endorses Terracing

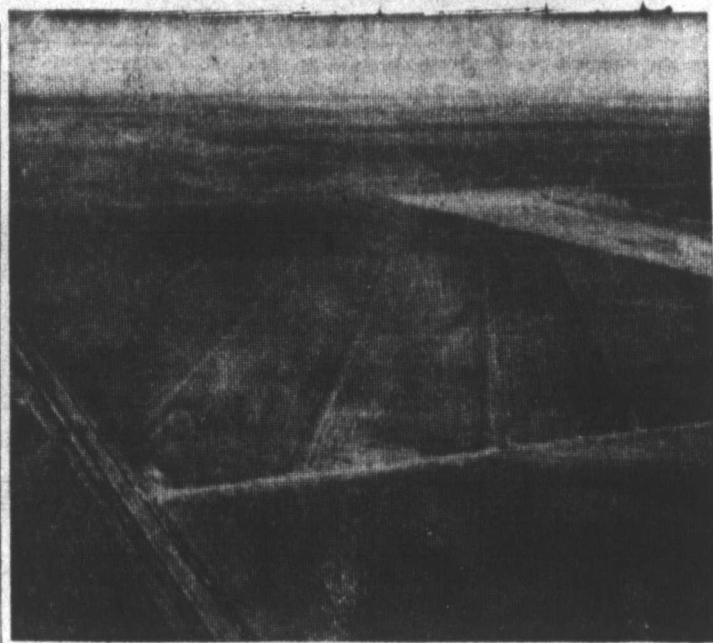

By JOHN W. JACKSON
Soil Conservation Service

"The construction of 21,000 feet of parallel terraces on my farm has been one of the best investments I have made," says Amos Harris, Gray County farmer.

Harris is a member of the Gray County Soil and Water Conservation District. He strongly believes in conserving the soil and water resources for the present and future and to help do this installed probably the first system of parallel terraces in Texas. Harris said, "I noticed that there was some erosion taking place on my farm and decided to terrace it in 1953. I was not interested in the conventional type terrace which curves up or down following the contour of the land creating a bunch of point rows. I wanted my terraces to be the same distance apart which would facilitate farming operations and reduce operational costs and control the erosion. With technical assistance from the Soil Conservation Service, a plan was developed with the terraces parallel and 300 feet apart. Construction was completed early in 1954. I received a 12 inch rain the year after construction. These terraces held this rain preventing erosion and letting the moisture penetrate deeper into the root zone."

Harris' terraces were constructed on 250 acres of pullman clay soil and are level with one end open with the exception of the top terrace which is closed on both ends. The terraces were constructed essentially from the lower side of the terrace ridge with enough cutting and filling of the terrace channel to get a level terrace. This method of construction flattened the slope from one terrace to the next, making it possible to spread the runoff collected above the terrace over a wider area, making more efficient use of the rainfall and helping to prevent waterlogging of the soils.

Harris stated that although 1970 was an extremely dry year, he made 10 1/2 bu. per acre on his wheat and 1600 lbs per acre on his grain sorghum. He stated that his neighbors did not get their grain sorghum up in 1970. Harris fertilizes with 20 to 40 lbs of nitrogen per acre on his grain sorghum but does not fertilize his wheat. His average is 1200 lbs per acre on grain sorghum and 12 bu. per acre on wheat. Before terracing, his wheat average was about 10 bu. per acre but he did not plant any grain sorghum. His neighbors average about 1350 lbs per acre on grain sorghum without terraces. Harris plants his grain sorghum on the lower part of the terrace interval next to the terrace ridge and plants his wheat on the upper part of the interval. Therefore, the grain sorghum normally gets more benefit of the moisture received. Harris states "I had these terraces installed before the drought in the 1950's. They paid for themselves in the 3 or 4 dry years and I have never lost a crop from too much water."

MODERN CONCEPT — The aerial photo of a system of parallel terraces similar to those on Amos Harris' farm located five miles southwest of Pampa.

Harris suggested that one improvement could be made, however, by flattening the interval more between the terraces during construction. Conventional terraces actually are obsolete and are no longer recommended. Cost share assistance can be obtained through the GPCP and REAP programs for construction of parallel terraces.

Panhandle Water

By FELIX W. RYALS

Today's column is a continuation of the California State Water Project. The California Legislature after years of debate and study overwhelmingly reached the unshakable conclusion (Ralph Nader notwithstanding) that the purposes of the project would directly benefit all Californians. The delegation from Texas, Oklahoma, and New Mexico who made the August 22-27 tour of the California State Water Project were in California during the height of the news media publicity on the charges made by Ralph Nader, the self appointed guardian of the people of America. Members of the tour group not only talked with the water authorities, they also talked to the "man on the street" and the "man on the farm." Without exception, the people backed the project. Most of them regard Ralph Nader as another eastern seaboard parasite living off the rest of the country.

The State of California has contracts with 31 local water service agencies which repay construction costs of the Project each year on the basis of 50-year contracts. Many of these contractors have not yet received water supplies, and are paying in advance of delivery to help finance construction. Last year, as an example, the contractors repaid nearly $49 million in construction costs. The power users pay $16,150,000 each year under a 50-year contract which was the basis of a $213 million revenue bond issue in 1968 and 1969.

Construction of all Project facilities necessary to meet water and power delivery requirements through mid 1973 is now 98 percent completed or underway, with only 2 percent of this construction yet to be contracted for. In monetary terms: $1.975 billion in capital costs has already been expended. Of this amount, $983 million worth of construction contracts has already been completed; $593 million in contracts is now under construction; and only $36 million worth in contracts is yet to be let.

The State Water Project is presently serving the water needs of Californians in the Upper Feather River area of the Sierra; in the Oroville and Sacramento Valley area; in the San Francisco Bay area — from Napa to San Jose; and, in the San Joaquin Valley as far south as Bakersfield, where the California Aqueduct is making water deliveries over a route that now extends 280 miles south of the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta.

Project water will be available from the West Branch of the California Aqueduct in Los Angeles County in 1971, and from the East Branch of the California Aqueduct in San Bernardino and Riverside Counties in 1972 and 1973. During the construction period, the Project has also provided flood control protection, recreational lakes, fish and wildlife enhancement, and improved water quality.

For grand champion bull, Judge Totusek selected the junior champion shown by Welcome U Farms, Groom, and Regal Angus Company, Childress. The champion was Ankonian Megaton 12950. Welcome U Farms also led out the heifer calf and reserve grand champion, Welcome U Erica 43.

The top female of the show was the junior champion, Blackcap Beauty of CW, exhibited by Caldwell and Wagner, Harlan, Kansas. The firm also showed the reserve junior champion female, Erica Ellen CW 62; reserve bull calf champ, CW Koranmere 20 and the reserve senior champion bull, CW Koranmere 5.

Six winners of Monmouth Park's $100,000 Sapling went on to be named the 2-year-old champion.

Since our news article last week we have had several telephone calls, both local and long distance, concerning wheat varieties that were good grazers in the Experiment Station test run at Etter and Bushland through the Bushland Experiment Station. I reported only the highlights of the forty-five page reports. I might have left the wrong impression. So I'll give you more complete data regarding how different wheat varieties performed for different years in total forage production. I think it is well to keep in mind the Improved Triumph was a consistently low forage producer. It has consistently been a higher grain yielder. We should keep in mind, however, that over the years there has been no more than a three bushel difference in yields of dryland wheat - top to bottom. Some of the top varieties in grain yield are also top forage producers.

I don't have the exact figure at hand but, I would estimate that an much as fifty per cent of total dryland planted wheat acreage has been Triumph for the last ten years. We now have varieties like Tascosa that performs much better for forage production and is also in the same category as far as grain production is concerned. I would recommend paying attention to both forage and grain production as well as grazing cut-off-date. The cut-off date is much later than we have all been lead to believe. It appears April 10 might give you the highest net return if you own both your cattle and the wheat. You better think this one through if you are leasing your wheat out to the other fellow.

Now here is the four highest yielders where three irrigations were applied in fall of the year 1968-69. Guida, Scout, Tascosa, and Agent Triumph was the lowest producing - almost fifteen hundred less total pounds of air-dry forage. The above are standard wheat varieties. In the same test these sterile wheat varieties exceeded the above in total forage production - DeKalb 9190, DeKalb 9090, Concho cross with Caddo and Agroticum. These are all new sterile varieties that look good.

In the same test Will Barley beat Guida wheat by one thousand pounds. Elban Rye was about on the same level of the top wheats. It fell below Guida wheat by five hundred pounds.

In 1969-70 some newer varieties were included in the test that were not in the test the previous year. Palo Duro ranked at the top, followed by Tascosa and Concho - these were standard wheat varieties. The sterile varieties fell below these standard varieties. In the other small grains, Bonel Rye, Will Barley, Era Barley, and Elaban Rye stood at the top and compared very favorably with the standard wheats. Triticale 6TA208 produced a little more than half of what Bonel Rye or Palo Duro wheat produced.

Results for 1970-71 were much the same. I have ordered some extra copies of the printed research report. I might be able to supply a few extra copies for those requesting them.

Test Marketing Scheduled On New Celanese Feed Grain Preservative

Commercial test marketing of Celanese Chemical Company's new Pampa produced liquid preservative, which protects high-moisture animal feed grains against mold and fungus growth, is scheduled in 12 key farm states starting Sept. 30. Farmland Industries, of Kansas City, will handle distribution of the new product, to be sold under the Celanese trademark ChemStor.

Recently approved by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and registered as a fungicide, ChemStor may be used on corn, sorghum, wheat, oats and barley.

Farmland Industries and local member cooperatives, assisted by Celanese technical representatives, will conduct the market test program in the following states: Texas, Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Colorado, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Oklahoma and Pennsylvania.

Although this year's marketing must be limited to a custom treatment service, Celanese plans to market ChemStor directly to farmers throughout the United States for the 1972 harvest. Robert L. Mitchell, president of Celanese Chemical Co. said.

Mitchell emphasized that ChemStor is more than just a chemical preservative. "Actually, it is a complete mold-control system. It includes special high-volume application and metering equipment designed and developed by Celanese. Also under development are improved low-cost storage systems for handling the high-moisture grains after fungicidal treatment."

Initially, Celanese is directing its mold-control system at grower-feeders for on-farm use. Eventually, however, the company plans to market commercial scale systems capable of handling up to 10,000 bushels per hour.

The new Celanese fungicide has been under development for several years. Research has been centered on the product's effectiveness as a mold and fungus preventative and its nutritive value in animal feeds. This included large scale feeding trials for beef and dairy cattle, hogs and poultry.

ChemStor was first marketed in Canada by Chemcell, Ltd., a Celanese subsidiary, during the 1970 harvest season. Mitchell said the new Celanese fungicide prevents the growth and development of mold spores on newly harvested grain, eliminating oxygen or moisture content as critical factors in the storage of high-moisture grains for animal feeds. "This means the farmer can store grains at highmoisture levels for long periods, without drying or storage in airtight silos."

The Celanese liquid preservative is a mixture of acetic and propionic acids, both produced at the Pampa plant. The company is a major source of supply for both chemicals. Its acetic acid capacity is in excess of one billion pounds annually.

"Both acetic and propionic acids are naturally occurring chemicals in the metabolic cycle, particularly in ruminant animals," Mitchell said. "After they perform their preservative function, these chemicals are completely metabolized by the animal as high energy value nutrients."

Major feeding trials are now under way in the Southwest on 600 beef cattle to determine the full nutrient potential of acetic and propionic acids.

Celanese Chemical Co. produces acetic acid at three plants in Texas: Pampa, Bishop, and Clear Lake. Propionic acid is made here in Pampa. The company's other plants are located at Bay City, Tex., Rock Hill, S.C. and Newark, N.J.

INVISIBLE PRAYERS

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Signs of an "invisible church of prayer" have turned up in Sweden, R. Berndt Gustafson, director of the Religious Sociology Institute, reports. In studying religious trends in the country, he says he placed classified newspaper advertisements a year ago asking readers to send him their prayers. He says he has been overwhelmed with continuing responses, with the prayers reflecting the "highest ideals" and "deepest torments" of men.

FIGHTING HARVESTERS

DALE AMMONS
Sr. 6'2" 188 lb. No. 15
Dale started his first game as quarterback for the Harvesters in the Boyer game of 1969. The Harvesters won the game, 25 to 7. Since that game, he has started 10 times with the Harvesters winning seven of the ten starts. An outstanding punter and safety man, Dale offers the senior leadership and ability necessary at the quarterback position for the 1971 season.

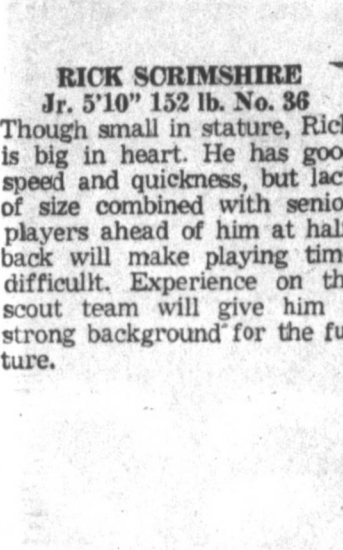

RICK MUSGRAVE
Jr. 5'9" 160 lb. No. 10
A junior this year, Rick proved himself a capable quarterback with the Shockers last season as he led them to six victories in nine starts. His strong final game in spring training established him as the Number two quarterback and enabled Larry Kuntson to be moved to that position. A capable place kicker for extra points and field goals.

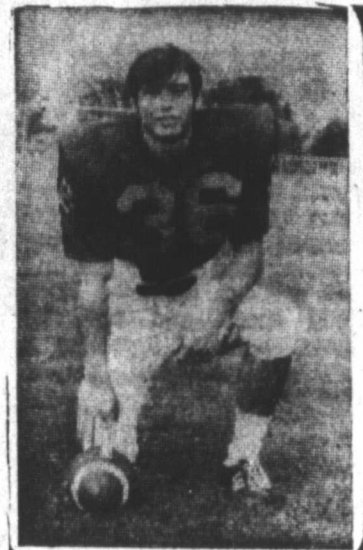

SHANE WHITE
Jr. 5'9" 155 lb. No. 16
Shane is destined for duty as the scout team quarterback this season. This tough and thankless task of running the opponents plays against the number one and two defenses will give much needed experience to him. His contribution to the success of the Harvesters defense will be made on the practice field. One of the many unsung heroes of a successful team.

GARVIN McCARRELL
Sr. 5'9" 178 lbs. No. 45
Garvin has the unusual combination of speed and strength rarely found in halfbacks. A 9.8 sprinter in track, he is also one of the strongest players on the squad. While his speed gives the offense the long run threat, it is his blocking which has placed him in a tentative starting assignment to start the fall drills.

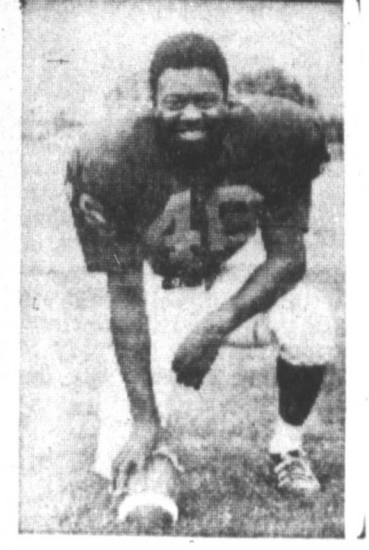

RICK SCRIMSHIRE
Jr. 5'10" 152 lb. No. 36
Though small in stature, Rick is big in heart. He has good speed and quickness, but lack of size combined with senior players ahead of him at halfback will make playing time difficult. Experience on the scout team will give him a strong background for the future.

BOBBY OWEN
Sr. 5'11" 165 No. 21
Moved to halfback from a split end position during spring training, his blocking and running from this position set him in a starting position by the close of spring drills. While he doesn't have sprinters speed, his speed is adequate. A good pass receiver and strong blocker, Bob should need only game experience to become a good back.

RICHARD McCAMBELL
Jr. 5'9" 164 lb. No. 46
Richard played enough to letter as a sophomore last season. Another sprinter with 9.8 speed, he gives depth to the halfback position so needed for class 4.A competition. Currently the starting left safety in the defensive secondary, he also is an outstanding punt receiver.

TOMMY MONTGOMERY
Sr. 5'11" 160 lbs. No. 40
After missing last season, Tommy had a lot of catching up to do in spring training. His most valuable asset could be as a punter if he continues to improve this fall. He gives depth to the halfback position, but probably will not reach his full potential until mid-season.

JODIE JOHNSON
Soph. 5'10" 165 lb. No. 33
A sophomore this year, he appears to have the physical ability and mental toughness to play on the varsity as a back-up man to Roth. Good speed and excellent quickness give him a chance to be an outstanding back with the necessary experience. A linebacker on defense and a good hitter. May play on defense first.

DARRELL NIP
Sr. 6'1" 185 lb. No. 27
Missed his junior year, but had a good spring practice. He will most likely log most of his playing time as a linebacker on defense. Speed is a problem on offense, but he could develop into an excellent blocker to push for playing position on offense. time 22-23lyv22B

JOHNNY ROTH
Sr. 5'9" 165 lb. No. 24
A starter for all 10 games last season at a halfback position, he is the most experienced player in the Harvesters backfield. Without question he is the best blocker of all the backs. With 10.2 speed, he also offers an excellent running threat from the important fullback position in the Wish-bone T formation. A two way player, his spring work and early fall practice at corner back has been as impressive as his offensive play. A very tough and aggressive player.

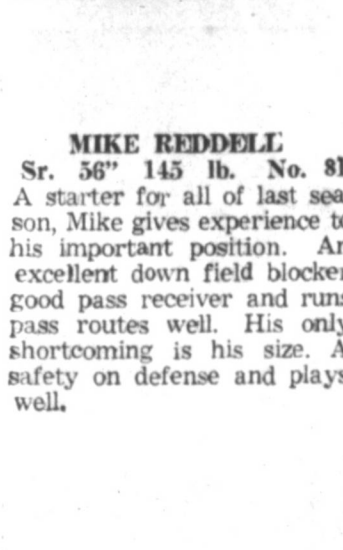

KIM LINDSEY
Jr. 5'9" 169 lb. No. 30
Did a good job as fullback for the Shockers last season. An aggressive player, he needs only to improve his speed to become a good fullback. A good linebacker on defense with a good nose for the ball.

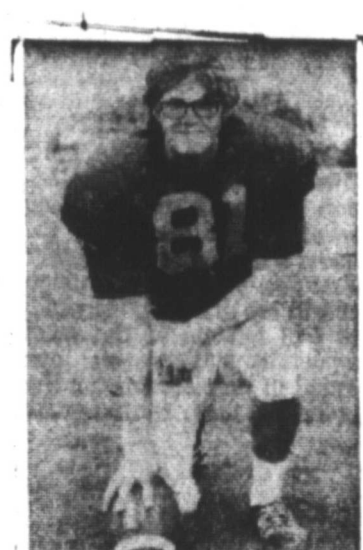

BILLY LEMONS
Jr. 6'3" 225 lb. No. 83
The biggest man on the Harvesters squad, Billy gives the strong blocking ability necessary at tight end. An adequate pass receiver now, he should improve as the season progresses. A starter all last season at defensive tackle, he should be one of the best all the tools to be a great in the state this year. Has one with size, speed and all the tools to be a great

MARC HUDSON
Sr. 6'2" 188 lb. No. 67
Marc missed his entire sophomore season with a broken leg and fell behind in his development. As a junior he saw almost no playing time. However, he has now caught up and his spring practice earned him the number one linebacker position. Has good speed and is very aggressive. He needs more weight to become a truly effective blocker on offense.

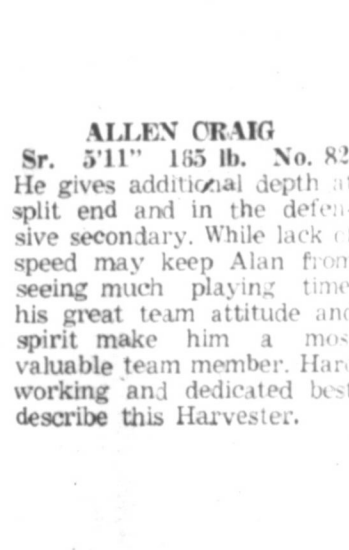

MIKE REDDELL
Sr. 5'6" 145 lb. No. 81
A starter for all of last season, Mike gives experience to his important position. An excellent down field blocker, good pass receiver and runs pass routes well. His only shortcoming is his size. A safety on defense and plays well.

RICK MCGUIRE
Jr. 6' 150 lb. No. 80
Playing his first football since junior high, Rick had an exceptionally good spring training. In the final game, he caught three Ammons passes for over 80 yards and one touchdown. A sprinter in track, he gives the split end position the speed to make man-to-man coverage very dangerous to the defense.

JAMES McCARRELL
Jr. 5'10" 160 lb. No. 85
The third brother to play for the Harvesters in the past three years. James follows the pattern of Duncan and John who preceded him. A quietly determined young man whose attitude and love of the game are beyond question. He will be played with the Shockers a lot this season to get game experience. Will be a player as a senior.

ALLEN CRAIG
Sr. 5'11" 165 lb. No. 82
He gives additional depth at split end and in the defensive secondary. While lack of speed may keep Alan from seeing much playing time, his great team attitude and spirit make him a most valuable team member. Hard working and dedicated best describe this Harvester.

ED TOWNSEND
Jr. 5'11" 205 lbs. No. 71
Ed has the natural ability, size, strength and love of contact to be a truly outstanding lineman. Although not blessed with great speed, he has tremendous quickness in his initial movement. Currently the number one right tackle on offense and starting left tackle on defense. If he continues to improve, he may be the best blocker in the offensive line by the seasons end. Gives 100 per cent effort on each play.

JIM McDOWELL
Sr. 6' 185 lb. No. 77
Jim lettered as a spot player on both offense and defense last season. His work this fall has earned him the number one left tackle position. Inexperience is his big problem, but enthusiasm for the game is his biggest asset. Good speed and great effort make him excellent downfield blocker. A linebacker on defense, where he will also see playing time.

JESSIE HUNNICUTT
Jr. 5'10" 175 lb. No. 74
Fresh off the B-team, Jessie established himself in spring training as a hitter on defense. Currently a number one outside linebacker, it seems that experience is all he needs to be a good one.

LARRY KNUTSON
Sr. 6'1" 175 lb. No. 11
A quarterback the past two years, Larry has moved to tight end to add strength to this position. A great hustler and good hitter on the downfield blocking assignments. Good hands as a pass receiver. He will split time with Lemons on offense and will also divide time with Bobby Owens at cornerback on defense.

HARMON STAUS
Jr. 6'3" 215 lb. No. 70
Big, strong and fast. A young player with a lot of ability. Currently a second team tackle experience and maturity should develop Harmon into an outstanding lineman. Also a second team defensive end develops into a starters left end. How fast this playrole will have a great bearing on the success of the Harvesters, as depth is a serious problem.

RUSSELL LEMMONS
Sr. 6' 177 lbs. No. 72
A senior player who has yet to earn a starting position. One of the best team players on the squad with great attitude and effort. Will give depth at the tackle position we need with the rugged schedule we face. No Harvester has a bigger heart than Russell and none will serve his team better this year.

FIGHTING HARVESTERS

AL FERGUSON
Sr. 6' 185 lb. No. 75
Al was the team's leading tackler-as linebacker in the past season. Moved from the outside to middle linebacker in spring training. Al should be an outstanding defensive player for the Harvesters. Showed great promise of becoming a good blocker in spring training and is currently holding down the number one right guard position. Good speed and strength and loves contact.

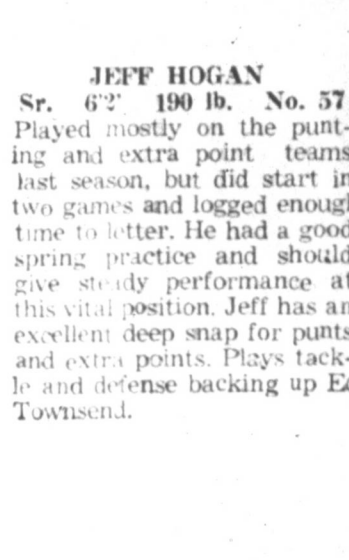

MARVIN ELAM
Jr. 6'1" 190 lb. No. 61
This stocky guard started playing football at Pampa Jr. High in the 9th grade. Though slightly behind in experience he has a lot of natural ability as an offensive lineman. An excellent worker, he needs only time on the practice field to develop into a capable lineman.

LARRY JOHNSON
Jr. 5'10" 180 lb. No. 60
This stocky 180-pounder has the tools to become a good blocker. Young and inexperienced now, he needs only time to develop. He backs up Tibby Rogers on both offense and defense. A hitter with a good future.

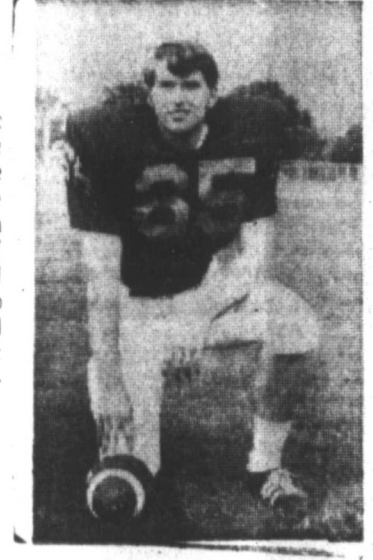

TIBBY ROGERS
Sr. 6'1" 195 lb. No. 78
This player started every game at defensive end last season. A very aggressive and tough player. Tibby promises to be an outstanding defensive end and is All-District material. As an offensive blocker he is improving every day and will be ready by the beginning of district play to go an outstanding job.

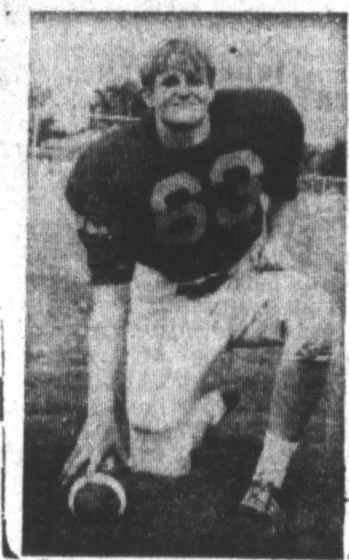

JEFF HOGAN
Sr. 6'2" 190 lb. No. 57
Played mostly on the punting and extra point teams last season, but did start in two games and logged enough time to letter. He had a good spring practice and should give steady performance at this vital position. Jeff has an excellent deep snap for punts and extra points. Plays tackle and defense backing up Ed Townsend.

JIM PEPPER
Jr. 5'9" 180 lb. No. 65
Jim will make a good backup man in the line before the season is over. His start in the fall has been hampered due to the removal of four wisdom teeth after the beginning of practice. This week missed will take several weeks to make up in conditioning and learning. Should be ready to help before district play begins.

GARY JENNINGS
Jr. 6' 180 lbs. No. 63
Another young and inexperienced player with promise. His speed is the biggest problem in becoming a starting player. Very tough on defense, he is backing up veteran Billy Lemons at defensive right tackle.

TERRY BRADDOCK
Sr. 6'1" 187 lb. No. 62
He is locked up in a nip and tuck battle with Al Ferguson for the starting right guard position. After a slow start as a junior, Terry developed rapidly in Spring training and is the starting left end on defense. With good speed and size, he shows signs of becoming a very good football player this year.

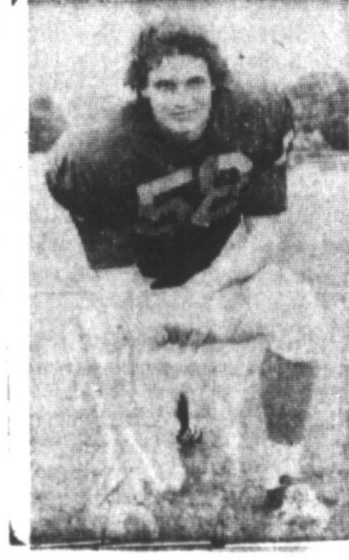

DAVID LANEHART
Jr. 5'10" 170 lb. No. 53
While running as the number three center, David's best play is coming on defense as middle linebacker where he is backing up veteran Al Ferguson. A strong competitor with good football savvy, he should develop into a capable player during the season.

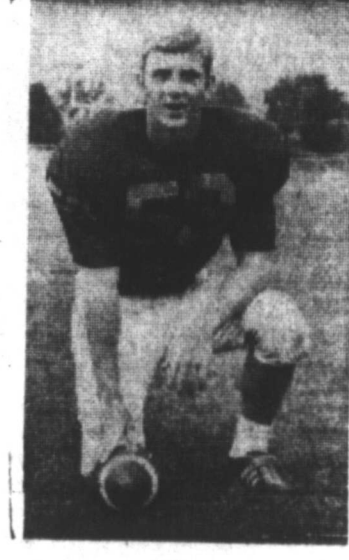

RANDY SPECHT
Jr. 6' 170 lb. No. 55
Playing behind two senior centers and having missed his sophomore season completely point toward a year of seasoning with the scout teams. Good size and speed give Randy an excellent outlook for his senior year.

BRENT BRUINGTON
Jr. 5'10" 165 lb. No. 42
Young and still growing fast, Brent appears to be a year away from varsity play. A good competitor and hard worker, scout team work combined with some play with the Shockers will give the experience needed for the coming year.

RANDY STEPHENS
Sr. 6'1" 175 lb. No. 58
Randy is probably the only center in Texas with the speed to play cornerback on defense. With 10.4 speed in the 100 yard dash he gives the quickness needed to get out on the middle linebackers. This may be the most improved player on the Harvesters squad over the past year. Will play a lot on both offense and defense. A good

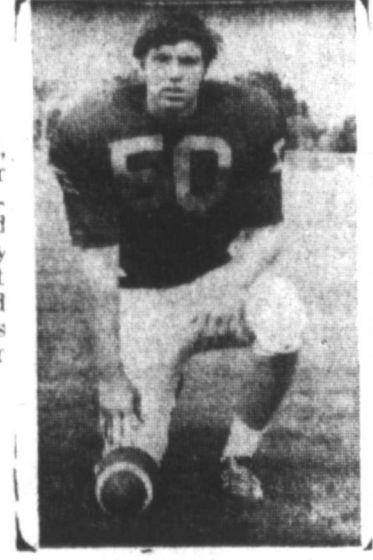

NORMAN WILSNER
Sr. 5'10" 160 lbs. No. 64
This player has the distinction on the squad of being totally dedicated to the team's success and completely unselfish personally. Though he will see little playing time, he will be one of the most important players on our squad in preparation for the game. No team can be great

MELL COCKRELL
Jr. 5'9" 140 lb. No. 86
This boy could well be the best example on the squad of finding a place and way to help the team. Too small to be a regular player, Mel has developed into the best player on the squad at blocking extra points and punts. Very aggressive and tough, he could well earn a letter doing this important job.

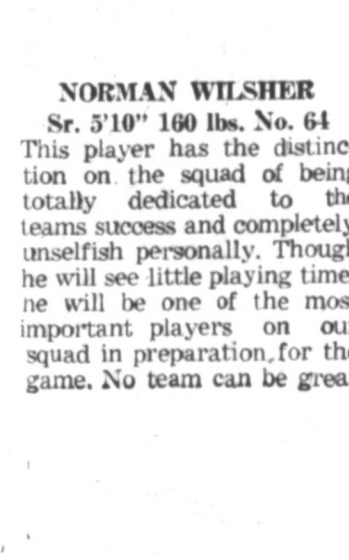

CRAIG WATSON
Jr. 6'1" 180 lb. No. 78
Young and inexperienced, Craig appears to need a year to develop his speed and quickness. He has the size needed by a lineman. A lot of play on the scout team against the number one defense and offense are just what he needs to be ready for a good senior year.

BILL GABLEMAN
Jr. 5'11" 170 lb. No. 76
Currently a regular on the scout teams, Bill has size and height for a lineman, but has not yet developed the quickness necessary. Although he appears to be a year away, he will be very important to the team this year by his practice work.

STEVE MATHIS
Soph. 5'10" 156 lb. No. 25
Though only a sophomore, he has the speed and natural running ability to become an outstanding running back. He needs experience, but could develop into a very good backup man for Garvin McCarrell.

DON GAINS
Jr. 5'10" 160 lb. No. 57
A willing worker, Don needs a years growth and experience to be ready for varsity play. Will get this on the scout teams helping both himself and the team prepare for games.

Top O'Texas Enters Second Round

Moody Leading After First Round Of Play

Going into the second round of the Top O' Texas Invitational Golf Tournament, Lloyd Moody is leading with a score of 65. Moody, the brother of a famous figure in golfing circles, Orville Moody, fired the six-under par round under clear skies and moderate temperatures. Moody finished in eleventh place in last year's Top O' Texas with a three day round of 294.

According to club pro Hart Warren, "I expect the winner of this year's tournament to be a 275 or 270. The weather has been excellent and the course is in real good shape." The defending champion in this year's tourney, John Shepperson is lagging back seven strokes off of Moody's blistering pace. Pampa favorite, Max Hickey is six strokes back with a 71 after the first round of play Saturday.

Harvester Wax Vernon In Lion Stadium, 27-0

By RICKY WRIGHT
 STAFF WRITER

The fighting Harvesters skipped over the Vernon Lions in the Scrimmage game at Vernon Friday Night, with a highly mounted score of 27-0. The Vernon Lions completed only two passes against the alert defensive unit of Pampa. "Pursuit was real good," said Head Coach and Athletic Director Robert E. (Swede) Lee, as at many times during the scrimmage there were as many as 9 players on one tackle.

"Conditioning was good," said coach Lee, "though it was hard to tell since we alternated the first and second squads a quarter at a time, but I don't think anyone was really very tired."

"We haven't had time to study the films yet," said Lee, "but the most glaring mistake was busted offensive plays, we seemed to stop ourselves more than Vernon did. I think part of this could be caused by not having time to show the players all the things in workouts that they will see in the games."

A large number of fumbles were seen on the part of the Harvesters. "But this is correctable," said Lee, "and it will be corrected by next week. One fumble was caused because one back thought we were running another play other than what we were, and he just went to the wrong place. Other fumbles were caused by too much bunching up in the backfield," he went on to add.

"We have more depth in some positions than we thought," said Lee. "Right halfback looks real good with Bob Owen and Richard McCampbell. Also Rick Musgrave did a heck of a job at quarterback, and it is a difficult position," stated coach Lee.

"Steven Mathis looked pretty good considering he is a sophomore," commented Lee. "He played halfback in the ninth grade and ran a lot of long touchdowns, I think he will be a good player for the Harvesters after he learns more about the game, offered Lee.

"Overall, in depth and effort the scrimmage was a pleasant surprise," said Lee.

Scoring was dominated by second squad boys. Though in the second quarter the first touchdown in second quarter was scored from five yards out. "I think we are going to take a hard look at who is first squad and who is second," said Lee.

In the first quarter there was no scoring, though there was some fine drives, such as a 35 yard drive from the 50 to the 15 yard line.

The second quarter held in it two touchdowns for the Harvesters as the second squads of each team faced one another. The first T.D. was run in by sophomore fullback Jody Johnson, followed by the extra point kick made good by Richard McCampbell. The second big score was a 45 yard scamper made by Junior halfback letterman Richard McCampbell. The extra point was again made successful by McCampbell.

The first quarter was scoreless, but the defense held Vernon to a disheartening standstill. In the second play of Harvester possession in the fourth quarter Richard McCampbell charged in for a touchdown from the 25 yard line, but the play was called back because of a clipping penalty against Pampa. The last score of the scrimmage was a pitchout from quarterback Rick Musgrave to halfback Richard McCampbell who darted in from the 12 yard line fixing the score at 27-0.

Outstanding defensive players were: Sophomore Jody Johnson with one unassisted tackle and three assists, Senior Larry Knutson with one unassisted tackle and three assists, Senior Jim McDowell having two unassisted tackles and five assists, Senior Jeff Hogan showing seven assists, Junior David Lanehart with five assists, Junior Staus Harmon also with five assists and Al Ferguson sporting one unassisted tackle and three assists.

Next Friday night the Harvesters will challenge the Hereford Whitefaces in the Harvester Stadium at 8. Be there and support your Pampa Harvesters.

Jack Ewing Ahead In Hartford Open

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. — Jack Ewing shot an early four-under-par 67, then sat back and watched it stand up for the second-round lead in the $110,000 Greater Hartford Open golf tournament Saturday, as weary Lee Trevino shot himself out of contention.

Trevino, back in action for the first time since he was stricken with an emergency appendectomy, could manage only a 74, three over par on the 6,568-yard Wethersfield Country Club course.

That gave Super Mex, who swept the American, Canadian and British Open titles, a 36-hole total of 144—not good enough to make the cut for the final two rounds Sunday and Monday.

"I putted just terrible, just miserable," said Trevino, who didn't have a single birdie. "I'm tired, My legs are tired. But I'm not disappointed in the way I feel."

Denver Broncos Change Looks And Performance

By MIKE RATHET
 Associated Press Sports Writer

CANTON, Ohio. (AP) — In the early days of the American Football League the Denver Broncos were the laughing stock of pro football—and one reason was their vertical striped socks.

When Jack Faulkner took over as coach in 1962, he decided to recast the Broncos' image and began by changing the team's colors from gold and brown to orange, blue and white. He also decided the ridicule-provoking socks had to go.

Billie Jean King Tired Of USLTA's Petty Problems

FORREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Billie Jean King enjoys tennis whether its for money or for her country, but not when politics interferes with play.

And it was because of political wrangling with the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association that she refused to represent the United States in a bid for the Wimbledon Cup against Britain last month.

"I love playing for my country," said the nation's No. 1 women's player, "but the USLTA has taken advantage of me through the years and I want to play without the pettiness and politics going on. There was just too much of that in the Wimbledon Cup."

Mrs. King, 27-year-old former Wimbledon and U.S. Open champion from Long Beach, Calif., commented on her position after a 27-minute 6-1, 6-2 second-round victory over Helen Gourlay of Australia.

Mathers, Dub Braly 5-4 over Chas Cole, Jack Hill 3-2 over C.O. Ward, Bob Cotter 3-2 over Casper Smith, Doyle Henson 7-6 over Siebert Worley, Don Harris-bye.

Cumby Lands 5¾ Lb. Catfish

While fishing Lake McClellan August 13, 1971, Jimmy Ray Cumby, 625 South Gray, caught this 5 lb. 12 oz. Channel Catfish while using worms for bait.

This fish was reported to the Pampa Tent & Awning Co., 317 East Brown St., the official weigh-in station for the Sports Affair in Texas and Oklahoma.

Faulkner, however, didn't just have the equipment man dispose of them, he initiated plans for the Great Sock Barbecue, to be witnessed by some 5,000 fans attending the unique ceremony at the club's practice field.

There, just before the opening of the season, the players trotted around the field holding up their hose. And then, as the crowd applauded, the socks were heaped onto a huge bonfire.

In 1968, when Pro Football's Hall of Fame began seeking moments of the AFL's formative years, the search began for a survivor of that fiery holocaust and one was located through a Denver photographer, Dick Burnell.

The sock now hangs in its singular glory in the Hall of Fame, where it was among the thousands of artifacts of pro football's past and present viewed by President Nixon on his recent tour of the two-building structure built to honor the sport's greats.

The sock. A blanket that once draped Jim Thorpe's shoulders.

An expense account pointing a finger at W. Heffelfinger as the first player every to play for pay. The ice tongs Red Grange used in working his way through college. Jimmy Brown's uniform. Paul Brown's coaching cap. The wristband, with plays written on it, that Tom Matte used when he stepped in as Baltimore's emergency quarterback in 1965.

All these and more—so much more that the jersey Joe Namath wore in the Super Bowl while leading the New York Jets to their stunning upset of the Colts has been shipped off to a storeroom—have taken their honored place at the site of the sport's organized beginning.

For here in Canton, where the founders of the National Football League met in 1920, more than 2,000 people a day take the same tour President Nixon did through the glistening structure with its 52-foot dome suggesting a football reaching to the sky.

Gene Mayfield Is A Realist When It Comes To Football

CANYON, Tex. (AP) — Gene Mayfield, the new coach at West Texas State, is a realist. "We're not kidding ourselves," he said recently. "I think we can be competitive, but to win the Missouri Valley Conference championship will take almost superhuman effort."

Mayfield, who compiled a 166-35 record in the rugged high school ranks in Texas, replaced Joe Kerbel.

Mayfield didn't find the larder totally bare when he arrived on campus from Odessa Permian High School.

In 229-pound sophomore Billy Pritchett, Mayfield has a running back who could turn the Buff's I-formation into a potent attack.

Fullback Rusty Tucker should also gain West Texas some respect on the ground. Opponents won't be able to load up on the Buffalo running game because of quarterback Ed Holwig, a 6-foot-4, 214-pounder who can fog the ball. Holwig hit 87 of 168 passes for 1,097 yards to lead West Texas to a 7-3 record.

West Texas gets its first taste of MVC fire early, meeting rugged Memphis State Sept. 11 on the road.

RECORD CHURCH AID
 GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — A record $17,374,037 in relief funds was channeled to various areas of need last year by the 252 Protestant, Anglican and Orthodox churches in the World Council of Churches, a summary shows.

A candlelight ceremony at 8 p.m. Saturday in the First United Methodist Church of Canadian united in marriage Miss Jo Ann Smith of Canadian and Edwin Theodore Meyer of Estelline.

CEREMONY
 Officiating for the double-ring service was Rev. Howard Quiet, church pastor. Mrs. W.A. Kessie Jr. of Canadian, organist, played selections from "Sound of Music," while the vocalist, Mrs. Erbin Crowell of Canadian sang "Each For The Other," and "The Wedding Benediction."

The couple was married before a brass archway flanked by bouquets of fall flowers, and 15-branched spiral candelabra decorated with fall garlands. Pew markers were candles with talisman bows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Smith of Canadian, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Meyer of Estelline.

THE BRIDE

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of Swiss organza, styled with a princess bodice and an A-line skirt. The bodice was accented with lace medallions highlighted with pearls and crystal beadwork. The long sleeves, coming to petal points over her hands, had open-lace insets running the length of the sleeve. Her capelength train was attached at the back neckline with a large bow.

A three-tiered bow headpiece, accented by lace medallions, with pearl and crystal beadwork, held her waist-length veil of imported silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of

The column will appear in the women's section of Sunday editions when there is material to put in the column. Anyone needing items published in this column may contact Jane Kadingo, women's editor, at 669-2525 before 3 p.m. each Wednesday.

Mrs. Clotilde Thompson of the White Deer Land museum is very much in need of wigs and mannikins for use in the displays at the museum.

She needs, also, any kind of "little, old-fashioned" table for displaying small artifacts. Mrs. Frank Shotwell, executive secretary of the Red Cross, needs some youngsters who will go door-to-door to solicit pocket books to send to servicemen in Vietnam for Christmas.

She needs about 45 of these books. Anyone wishing to donate some may bring them to the Red Cross office in the basement of the City Hall.

Any youngsters willing to assist with this campaign may contact Mrs. Shotwell at the Red Cross office.

talisman roses and pompons, with yellow and brown streamers.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Kay Henard of Samnorwood served as matron of honor. Miss Linda Hubbard of Pampa was maid of honor and Miss Nancy Crabtree of Eolise City, Okla., was bridesmaid.

The matron of honor wore a floor-length dress of coral crepe, designed with a princess bodice. The skirt was styled with an inverted pleat in the back, accented with a large brown velvet bow. Two small bows trimmed the front neckline. The maid of honor and the bridesmaid wore dresses identical to that of the matron of honor, except they were yellow in color.

All three carried burning talisman rose candles with brown streamers. After entering the church, the matron of honor and the maid of honor recited, "Their Wedding Day," written by Mrs. Henard.

Joe Henard of Samnorwood served as best man, while Terry Brooks of Paducah and Sid Weight of Lubbock were groomsmen.

Ushers were Kenneth Smith of Weatherford, brother of the bride; Billy Meyer of Flomot, brother of the bridegroom; and Ted Schwarz of Kerrville.

LONDON (AP) — Lord Longford, 65, was stopped by customs at Heathrow Airport Thursday night for having pornographic magazines in his luggage—but he explained it was all in the interest of research.

The balding earl, who began an anti-pornography campaign in the House of Lords last April, was returning from Copenhagen where he and a British commission conducted a study on the social effects of pornography.

Customs officials allowed him to leave after 10 minutes of explaining his mission. Describing his activities in Copenhagen, Lord Longford said: "I went to two live sex shows and found them utterly evil. I'm glad I left them early. They were ghastly."

DEAR ABBY: I'm going with a 22-year-old fellow. Jeff is real nice, a clean liver and a considerate person. There's only one thing wrong with him. He has almost a babyish attachment to his mother.

If he's going to be out after midnight he always calls her to let her know because he says she worries about him getting hurt in his car.

Jeff will never make a date with me unless he checks with his mother first to be sure she has something to do because she's a widow and he doesn't want her to be alone.

We can never make plans for Sunday afternoon because he reserves that time to take his mother to visit friends and relatives. (She's an invalid.)

Jeff says he wants to marry me, but I'm afraid I will always play second fiddle to his mother. I need your advice.

few months ago) Burton went steady with a girl named Jenny for three years. He broke up with Jenny because he liked me more.

Last weekend I went to the family cabin with Burton and his parents. I had a very nice time except that Burton's parents kept calling me Jenny. It got very embarrassing, but I didn't feel like correcting them, so I just let it go.

I guess it didn't bother Burton, or he didn't feel like correcting them either, because he didn't say anything. What should have been done in a case like that?

DEAR HAVING: Grab him. For a peek of how a man will treat his wife, take notice of the way he treats his mother.

DEAR ABBY: After paying five dollars to see a show at our local auditorium I am still burning. I am allergic to smoke, but have never had to ask anyone to stop smoking on my behalf—until today. The woman in question was a chain smoker, and the smoke from her cigarette kept hitting me right in the face.

At intermission I politely asked her if she could switch her cigarette from her left hand to her right hand to alter the path of the smoke. She replied, "No I can't. I'm left-handed and if the smoke bothers you, you can move!"

Believe me, if I could have found another seat in the five-dollar section I would have moved, but after paying for the seat I didn't feel like moving to the balcony. I was completely nonplussed. Smoking was permitted in all sections of the auditorium for this performance.

What choice has a person who is sensitive to smoke—other than to stay home?

One day last week while sitting around hopefully waiting for the elves to wash dishes, make shoes or do something around here, I found myself engaged in serious conversation with my eldest son and his best friend, Roger.

"Get your feet off my coffee table," I said.

"You display a proprietary attitude," Roger said. "Don't you believe that young adults need a sense of participation in decisions that affect them?"

"Off!" I answered.

They removed their feet from the table, then Roger lifted a crystal apple that belongs on the table and tossed it back and forth through the air.

"Put that down," I said in a proprietary tone. "It's a keepsake and I want you to stop playing ball with it. What's the matter with you, anyway?"

"Perhaps I never had ample opportunity as an infant to develop my tactile sense," he said.

Now I know you're thinking that he was being rude and that perhaps I must anticipate a wave of disturbance within our home environs, disturbances perhaps influenced by the general aura of disobedience surrounding us, based upon the widespread assumption that snide remarks and bad manners will gain a person power and a sense of worth. As a matter of fact, that's exactly what I was thinking.

"Are you looking for a confrontation, or what is around here commonly called an argument?" I asked.

"I was thinking we might discuss my thwarted idealism," he said sullenly.

"There is no conceivable subject we cannot discuss in this house," I assured him. "as long as you don't mess around with the knickknacks."

"I believe you are caught up in the old materialism," Roger said. "Truthfully, is a glass apple more important to you than the pleasure, the relief of tension that it might give to human being?"

"You might put it that way." "And you offer no compromise but want complete capitulation on my part?" "You bet."

Miss Christine Lynn Hunter became the bride of John C. Oxley in a double-ring service at 7:30 p.m. August 27, in the First Assembly of God church. Rev. Jimmy Phillips officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Barger Hunter, 2314 Mary Ellen. Parents of the bridegroom are Mrs. Emmaline Oxley, 918 S. Sumner and Alfred Oxley, 405 Baer.

THE SERVICE

The couple was married before a setting of two large urns of white mums on marble columns and two fifteen-branched gold candelabra. Yellow satin bows marked the pews.

Mike Liney, organist, played "True Love." Mrs. Artie Rohde and Mrs. Jerry Farmer sang "Twelfth of Never."

THE BRIDE

A good way to help settle make-up and avoid a cakey look is to pat a cloth wet with cold water over the face. The cold water removes the excess make-up and gives the face a sheer smooth look.

Given in marriage by her father, with the "her mother and I" avowal, the bride wore a gown of silk organza accented with lace. The bodice was styled with a scoop neckline and long full sleeves ending in a wide band at the wrist. The bodice was trimmed at the neckline, center front and empire waistline with lace and tiny buttons. The floor-length skirt ended in a chapel train.

Her tiered veil of illusion fell from an organza bow, and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses and white daisies accented with pearls.

ATTENDANTS

Miss Susan Hunter, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, while Miss Deanna Kay Oxley, sister of the bridegroom, was the junior bridesmaid. Both wore floor-length gowns of yellow satin, styled with empire waistlines, and carried bouquets of white daisies and baby breath, tied with satin streamers.

Flower girl was Terry Hufstader, who wore a floor-length dress of yellow satin. Ringbearer was Mike Hunter, nephew of the bride. Robert Hunter and Artie Rohde were candlelighters.

Serving as best man was Alfred Oxley Jr., while Kelly Oxley, was groomsman. Both are brothers of the bridegroom.

Ushers were Robert Hunter of Medicine Lodge, Kansas, brother of the bride; and Artie Rhode of Pampa, cousin of the bridegroom.

RECEPTION

For the reception in the church annex, the bride's table was covered with a white net cloth and decorated with yellow candles and the bridal bouquet. The three-tiered wedding cake, decorated with yellow roses, was topped with the traditional bride and bridegroom.

Mrs. Robert Hunter of Medicine Lodge, Kansas, presided at the punch bowl, and Mrs. Jerry Jelnick and Miss Karla Hollis served the cake. Guests were registered by Miss Susan Morgan.

For the wedding trip to Amarillo, the bride wore a yellow knit dress and a corsage of yellow roses. The couple will be at home at 411 Buckler, Pampa.

AFFILIATIONS

POLLY'S POINTERS Grandmother's Pet Peeve Concerns Pickup Trucks

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with pickup trucks that are now a delight to drive as one sits up nice and high and the side and rear vision is good but there is no place to put anything. I wish manufacturers would take note of the business coupes of the '30s and do something similar in the cab so there would be room for a jacket, some dry cleaning or groceries or even a small grandchild. A shelf 18 inches by two feet would be sufficient. Also, a little slab of a bench seat to cover a small storage for flares, pliers, etc. Look at most of the pickups on the road and see how many of them have an owner installed storage box or canopy. This may be fine for the men or even a pantsuited female but for grandmas like me, who cling to knee-length skirts, climbing in and out of the bed of the truck is not always convenient.

Any parent can make a child feel wounded, ignorant, incompetent and ready to leave home. Two of the best words a parent can employ for this purpose are "never" and "always." Parents wanting to master the proper technique should also practice the various facial expressions.

The most often used is the Basic Grimace. (Pull mouth tightly down until cords of neck are taut and nostrils are slightly distended.) Other often-used expressions are the Martyred Mother Look (mouth quivering eyes closed) and the I-Pay-the-Bills Around Here Scowl (face red, eyes bulging, lips set in grim line.)

For unobservant parents or those who are novices in the art of nagging, "always" is the word to be employed when a child makes the same mistake the second time.

You ALWAYS:
Leave coke bottles on the porch.
Interrupt when I'm talking.
Hang on the telephone.
Slam the door.
Leave the door open.
"Never" is the best choice when a child forgets or errs more than two times.

You NEVER:
Are thankful for what we do for you.
Appreciate anything.
Help around here.
Understand we're only trying to help you.
Sit down and talk to us any more.

YOU'RE NO "dummy" if you want a quick easy-to-prepare casserole for your next bridge party.

Rather, you'll be the hostess with the mostest the next time you have the girls over for that monthly bridge get-together.

Ham stroganoff was created especially with this thought in mind! And when an electric Country Kettle automatically cooks this main dish for you, you can enjoy your guests and do justice to your bridge game. To prepare the stroganoff, Preheat the electric Country Kettle at 300°. Sauté 2 pounds precooked ham, cut into strips, and 1 cup minced onion in ¼ cup butter. Sauté until the onion is tender. Stir in two 4-ounce cans whole mushrooms, drained, and two 10½-ounce cans condensed cream of mushroom soup. Reduce heat to 200° and heat for 10 minutes. Blend in 2 cups dairy sour cream. Cook until heated through, for about 5 minutes. Serve immediately in patty shells.

- JUDO LESSONS—All boys 8 years of age and older and girls 12 years of age or older are invited to participate in the new judo classes beginning Sept. 16. At this time a special orientation class will be held. If you have ever wanted to take judo, this is the time to start. The orientation period will begin at 7:00 p.m. in the recreation hall.

Mothers and fathers are invited to participate also.

VOLLEYBALL LEAGUES — The Center will again sponsor the fall volleyball leagues. The leagues organizational meeting will be held on Sept. 2, Thurs. night at 8:00 p.m. All teams interested should have a representative there.

There will be three divisions offered, women, men and mixed. A mixed team consists of 3 women and 3 men on a team and you alternate hitting the ball. Entry fee will be $20 per team per league and is due at the organizational meeting.

WOMEN'S EXERCISE CLASS — The fall exercise class for the women will begin on Sept. 13 this year. At this time the women exercise by a recording and then top this off with a swim. Meeting time is 9:30 on Monday and Fridays during the morning. You may participate in the exercise or the swimming or both. The only qualification you must have is that you be a Center member. Memberships are only $5 for six months or $8 per year.

MEMBERSHIPS — Our method of operation financial wise is through a membership plan. The Center is not tax supported in any way and must sustain its own operation by means of a charge for memberships and use of the facilities. The cost for memberships are very economical and the price has never changed in 10 years.

The Center offers two types of memberships for those interested. The limited membership is our regular memberships for the gym, recreation hall and swimming pool use. This does not allow you use of the new health facilities. This membership for an individual is only $5 for six months or $8 per year. The family plan is only $12 for six months or $20 per year.

The second type of membership is the unlimited plan.

Ten years ago: After a long stalemate over limiting nuclear test, the Soviets said they would resume testing.

Five years ago: French President Charles de Gaulle received a warm welcome on a visit to Cambodia.

One year ago: U.S. Vice President Spiro Agnew wound up a Southeast Asian tour by saying there was no need to return U.S. troops to Cambodia and that more than half of the Communist forces in that country had been eliminated.

One year ago: The United States said it would send arms to Israel to keep a military balance in the Middle East.

This membership gives you the same privileges as the limited, but in addition allow you full use of the new health facilities. The health facility houses the two handball courts, sauna room, and exercise room and equipment. This plan for an individual costs $65 for six months or $118 per year. For a husband-wife combination the cost is only $90 for six months or $160 per year.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Beliefs About Crime

Ever since their profession was given a name, penologists have been confronted with a curious fact: Punishment works best with those who need it least.

A man who shoots his wife's paramour in a blind rage may never have committed a crime before and will never commit another as long as he lives. The same may be true of a man who, panic-stricken by personal debts, succumbs to temptation and embezzles funds from his employer.

Both are sent to prison because society cannot tolerate such violence and dishonesty, and as lessons to potential murderers and embezzlers.

Yet beyond satisfying certain needs of society and possibly of the criminals themselves, "who may feel they have "a debt to pay," of what use is their punishment? Certainly not rehabilitation, for they are as fit to re-enter society on the day of their sentencing as they will be 10 years after it—and perhaps more so.

It is otherwise with the career criminal, the man who has been in and out of trouble since childhood and in and out of reformatories and prisons since he was a teenager. For him—and he is in the vast majority—punishment is a degrading and embittering and hardening experience.

Rarely is the career criminal able to admit his own guilt, or if he does rarely does he accept responsibility for it. It is, as any number of sociologists and psychologists will hasten to assure him, society's fault.

(Strange how society is blamed for the tens of thousands of persons in prison, yet society gets no credit for the tens of millions who have never been and never will be in prison.)

Even rarer is it for this kind of criminal to feel any responsibility for the welfare of his victim or his victim's family, to vow that he will try to make amends for what he may have done.

This should be a part of rehabilitation, yet our laws do not even have any provisions for encouraging the man who wishes to make amends.

Of late, a new dimension has been added to all the other problems of penology—political radicalization.

"Political radicalization" is becoming more common-place in American prisons and the state authorities in charge of prisons are having to become more aware of the concept in dealing with prisoners who see their criminal offenses as strictly political acts," said Race Relations Reporter a week before the shoot-out at San Quentin in which "Soledad Brother" George Jackson was killed.

Jackson, the No. 1 "political prisoner" in America in some eyes, is now the No. 1 political martyr.

Wrote journalist Tad Szulc after an interview with Jackson, shortly before his death:

"The convict-politicizing process obviously meshes with the growing opinion among prisoners and outside radicals, including ideologically motivated lawyers and criminologists, that most crimes committed in the United States, particularly by minorities and poor whites, are essentially 'social and political' in nature. This is so, the argument runs, because such crimes derive from sociological and political conditions in the country."

The same sort of nonsense was taken as an article of faith by the architects of the Communist revolution in Russia.

It is worth noting that not only have millions been imprisoned or liquidated in the U.S.S.R. for political "crimes," but that more than 50 years after the overthrow of czarist oppression, there are proportionately just as many bandits, burglars, rapists, murderers and garden-variety crooks in Russian jails as there ever were.

Crime is not as simple as some people, including criminals, would have us believe.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

President F. D. Roosevelt's evening radio talks to the American nation became known as "fireside chats." The World Almanac recalls that the first was broadcast March 12, 1933. The primary aim of these radio broadcasts was to calm the depression fears of the nation and to gain support for economic measures.

CAPITOL EYE

Assault On Our Privacy In Offing?

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — We haven't done it yet, but we now have the capability of storing a 12-page dossier on every man, woman and child among the 210 million Americans on a single, 4,500-foot reel of magnetic tape. The kinds of electronic sensors dropped by U.S. aircraft over the Ho Chi Minh trail to detect North Vietnamese trucks and other vehicles can be adapted for what might be called "personal tracking."

Some are already being used in individual cases to warn of impending heart attacks. They could as well be employed to track our movements, locate us, measure our emotions and thoughts.

We hear a lot about the perils of wire-tapping. But the potential danger is much greater than most civil libertarians ever discuss. Today we can dispatch computerized information almost instantaneously anywhere in the world. Millions of bits of personal data travel over leased wire circuits. These lines can be tapped and vast storehouses of information placed in unauthorized hands.

These realities and prospects give you some idea how far the invasion of privacy has gone in this country—and how much farther it may go.

A lot of people are stirred up about the matter, even though its dimensions are only dimly perceived. And one man who is laboring hard to put the public glare on the issue is Prof. Arthur Miller of the celebrated University of Michigan Law School at Ann Arbor.

Miller has written an intricately woven book on the subject, "The Assault on Privacy." He observes that we Americans can hardly move about these days without being taped.

File a tax return, apply for government benefits, seek life insurance or a credit card, try for a home mortgage, fly on a commercial airline, stay in a chain hotel, and you most likely will be leaving your electronic tracks in a computer's memory bank somewhere.

We have not reached the point where all our life records are packed onto one long reel of tape. But we seem to be moving that way.

In most cases, our job, financial, credit and perhaps medical histories are on file. Depending on the range of benefit and service we have sought, and the types of jobs we have tried to qualify for, those histories may be incredibly detailed.

What properly worries Professor Miller, for one thing, is this trend toward centralizing all this immense information in just a few key data banks.

Drawn together, this information may provide very complex profiles of tens of millions of Americans. Obviously, highly useful purposes may be served.

But there are severe handicaps. The danger of putting confidential medical information in the wrong hands is clear. Much financial and other personal data may be subject to varying interpretations, depending on who is using it. The Internal Revenue Service has a right to know your income. In the hands of a business firm, however, that figure can be used for a sales approach you may not welcome.

The selling of personal data (even universities do it) has become a very common practice today. Confidences about your personal attitudes given to a job interviewer or some other legitimate interrogator may be used by some company to get at you subtly. One firm compiles data on doctors so drug companies can promote their products on a personal basis. A lender worried about repayment may check on how you spend your money.

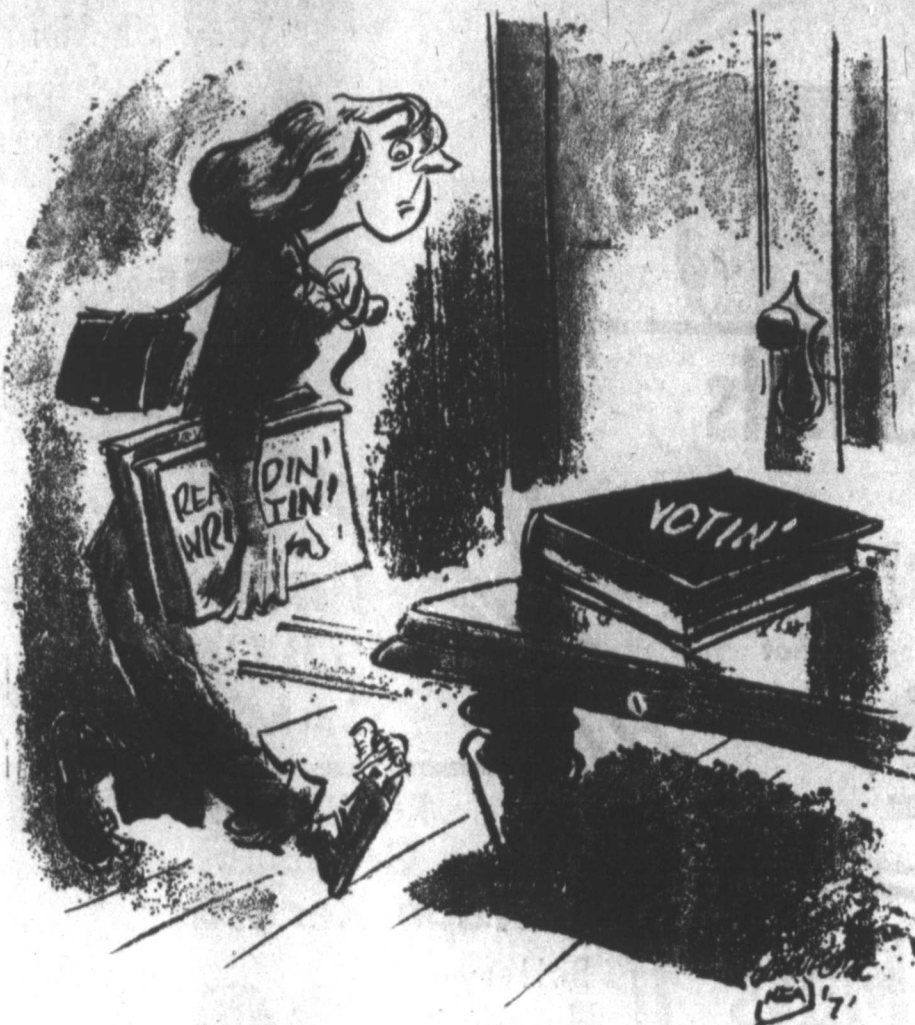

The whole thing is close to "brain-watching." The worst of it, says Miller, is that the people who gather and weigh data make grave errors. They freeze injustice in computer data banks impervious to assault.

Something New on the Curriculum

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Dr. Taggart became an expert Applied Psychologist because of his extra curricular activity. For many clergymen are outstanding in spite of, not because of, their seminary courses! Preaching and teaching are forms of salesmanship, so get hep to modern sales psychology.

CASE R-544: Dr. George S. Taggart combines superb oratorical talent with a keen understanding of H-R ("Human Relations"). He is the pastor of the First Presbyterian Church at Anderson, Indiana. Apropos of a recent column in which I urged seminary students to spend a summer at house-to-house selling, Dr. Taggart says:

"During the depression years of 1930-31-32, I sold magazines for a Chicago firm. During those summers, I made enough to put myself through Princeton Seminary. And even had enough to support myself for a year until I got located in my first church."

"So I heartily agree that every student for the ministry should be sent on the road for a season of door-to-door selling. If they do not make a success of it, then they should not be accepted for the ministry."

Motivation Lab
Sales work offers a superb "motivation laboratory" wherein you learn how to meet and persuade people gracefully. And those functions are requisite for a successful clergyman. Dr. Taggart undoubtedly learned more of the art of getting along with people while he served as a salesman, than he ever obtained from his professors.

I know I did, for I also spent 2 years at house-to-house selling. Many of you express surprise that I, as a physician, can explain medical concepts and surgical procedures in such simple language. That's because I served a rigid internship in selling, door-to-door. Alas, some of my cloistered psychology colleagues attack me for making psychology so simple.

"Tsk, tsk," they shake their heads disapprovingly, "that awful Dr. Crane! He is reducing the prestige of scientific psychology by his use of 2-syllable words!"

That's because they never worked as salesmen! If they had, they'd realize you can't influence people efficiently until you make them understand. And the average person thinks faster in short words than in jawbreaker polysyllables! Which is why the Bible's average word has but 2 syllables. And why advertising copy writers, as well as newspaper reporters, use terse, punchy diction.

Former President Glenn Frank, of the University of Wisconsin, said clergymen and teachers must function as salesmen of ideas. But it is actually harder to sell ideas and services than to merchandise tangible items like automobiles or groceries. So toponch teachers and clergymen really need an extra amount of skill in the field of practical psychology. The longer a graduate student spends in dusty libraries trying to dig out impersonal facts from dusty tomes, the more he loses his rapport with audiences. Which is why divinity students are often poorer speakers after they graduate than before they first entered the seminary! Cloistered laboratories and libraries are introvertive so they do not make you very adept at influencing people!

Despite books, you must get into the water before you can ever swim! So send for my booklet "The New Psychology of Advertising and Selling."

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Pampa Daily News, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Clearing House

Got something you would like to "get off your chest"? That's what the "Clearing House" is for. It has been suggested there should be more letters to the Editor, that people should speak their mind. So, in the public interest, write to the Editor and get it off your chest.

Editor:

The next year will be a great year for changes in the Pampa water system. We would bet a nickel to a doughnut that Pampa Citizens will be paying more for their water.

It just figures that way. The well water is not only much better, but much cheaper. This has always been denied by the fast dealers who brought this calamity onto the City of Pampa, but the "chickens are coming home to roost!"

Government men said a few years ago in public meetings that the water from Lake Meredith will cost at least twenty-five cents per thousand gallons. You can add to that six cents or more for treating the water, and you can add more personnel for handling the filter system.

For the raise we will get in the water rates we will receive water that will be hard to get past your nose, with a solid content of about twenty parts per million gallons. The State of Texas health department advises about five parts per million.

The water is getting progressively worse and this accelerates as more sewage is dumped into Lake Meredith by Amarillo and other sources, more particularly the salt above the lake.

It is noted that the government is giving several thousand dollars for the purpose of studying the salt springs above Lake Meredith. It is always easier to "study" a situation than it is to eliminate it. We let the fast trick dealers get us into this situation and now we have no cause to hope for relief or sympathy. "As we have sown, so shall we reap."

Watch for a water raise—soon. L.P. Fort 129 S. Faulkner

BATTIN' AROUND

The Wholesale Slaughter

By O.R. BATTEN

The entire legal system in this nation is founded on the premise that the accused is innocent until proven guilty — but not so in the court of public opinion, and especially in the emotion-laden fields of environmental protection and consumerism.

Wild charges are made before Congressional committees, in the printed media and on television. The accusers have no scruples that would cause them to show evidence to support their accusations — if they have such evidence. Some statements may even be outright lies, but the more emotion laden they are, the more they seem to be taken as the gospel truth. The accused are immediately assumed to be guilty, without trial, without any opportunity to defend themselves.

A most flagrant case of character assassination is that related to the charges of wholesale slaughter of eagles in Wyoming. First a few dead eagles were found, and then a full-scale search was launched which resulted in the discovery of about 50 eagle carcasses, at least some of which have been killed by poison baits probably set out for coyotes.

After an investigation, those responsible were prosecuted and fined under state law. They had apparently violated no federal law.

Hardly had the furor from that incident died down, than James O. Vogan, a helicopter pilot, was given immunity from prosecution when he testified before Wyoming Senator Gale McGehee's Subcommittee on Environmental Appropriations. He told the committee that sheep ranchers hired him to shoot eagles from helicopters last winter.

The first report this observer heard stated that the 575 eagles had been killed. The second report said it was 600. The third report said 800 eagles, and there it leveled off.

Vogan named names, and even stated that members of the Wyoming Game and Fish Department knew about the shootings.

Perhaps I have an advantage over most of those who are concerned about such things — because I have known quite a number of ranchers in the West. Never have I met one that fitted the picture painted by Vogan. So my first reaction was: "I don't believe it." Subsequent events have strengthened that reaction.

Wyoming Governor Stan Hathaway announced that an investigation in the Game Department revealed no evidence that any of its people knew of the eagle slaughter. "I think it's becoming apparent that there may be exaggeration in Mr. Vogan's statements," Hathaway said. "When you impugn character and reputation without fact, it isn't very good and there's been some of that in this case."

The more I read statements such as those made by Vogan, the more I ask "What are his motives?" In this case, the most obvious motive is to stay out of prison. By throwing the blame for his own actions onto others, perhaps Vogan can avoid prosecution. After all, he flew the helicopter, which involved him in any crimes that were committed just as much as anyone else.

Vogan had not been paid all he thought was coming to him. Does he have a grudge against his employer, whom Vogan claims hired him to shoot eagles? But at least one report said that Vogan told the Senate Committee that his employer ordered him not to shoot eagles. Maybe the rancher is telling the truth when he denies any involvement in Vogan's illicit enterprise.

The investigation in the Wyoming eagle case is still going on. It appears doubtful that there will be any indictments before late this fall. But when a trial is held, the facts brought out may be considerably different than those widely publicized statements attributed to Vogan.

The great eagle caper in Wyoming is only one example of the sport of character assassination that seems to be so popular among the environmentalists and consumer protectionists today. Why are their charges taken so seriously? Where is our sense of fair play?

Whenever we hear statements such as those made by Vogan, it is well to ask: "What does this fellow have to gain by what he is saying? What are his motives?"

Question Box

QUESTION:—As long as you have human sin, how do you expect to have a libertarian society? What do you plan, to let everybody go around doing his thing?

ANSWER:—We plan nothing. We propose to plan nothing, except our own business and life.

The libertarian principle, briefly stated, relates to the use of force between human beings. It states that the only justification for the use of force, whether legal or political, is for the purpose of protection.

On the one hand, the libertarian principle does not let evil run rampant.

On the other hand, the libertarian principle does not permit authority to run rampant.

When evil runs rampant, it becomes authority. When authority runs rampant, it becomes evil.

The Libertarian principle puts a short chain on both. It says to Evil, "Do what you will until you inflict injury on some other person. Then you shall surely pay the penalty." It says to Authority, "You have no summons to interfere in the relations of any person or group of persons until it can be shown there is proximate cause of injury against the consent of one or more."

The libertarian principle does not deal with sin per se. Rather, it deals with the consequences of sin, types of behavior that constitute a trespass by an aggressor upon a victim. It establishes a moral basis and method by which, and only by which, authority may rightfully intervene in a dispute between conflicting parties.

If there were more self-starters around, the boss says he wouldn't have to be such a crank.

Too many cooks may spoil the soup, but it's better than having none show up at all.
