around the bride's waist; Kathy Gallman, the bride; Heidi Kolb, bridesmaid, who guides the hand-clasp of the bride and bridegroom; Jim Bowen, the Bridegroom; and Randy Sims, father of the bride, who places a hand on the shoulder of his prospective son-in-law. (Staff Photo)

Solons Authorize Loan Repayment

The Gray County Commissioners Court met for the regular mid-month session at 10 a.m. Wednesday and authorized repayment of the $50,000 loan negotiated Oct. 1. Interest amounted to $227.77 for the borrowing period.

The loan had been necessary to meet operating expenses of the county until tax monies began to come in sufficient to meet the need. The county auditor advised the panel at their Nov. 1 meeting that receipts were ample to afford to retire the sum.

Payment of $6,675.33 was authorized for cost estimate for airport construction to E.D. Baker Corp. by engineers.

In other routine business bills approved by the auditor were paid, the county treasurer's report was approved as was the welfare report for October. This welfare report totalled $1,254.10 in aid to 34 families plus $127.93 in immunization supplies.

The panel then adjourned until the next regular session Dec. 1.

Capacity Crowd Is Expected

Reservations for the Food and Fiber Abundance Week luncheon Monday noon in Coronado Inn were reported going well today.

Courty Judge Don Cain, chairman for the week's observance, said a capacity crowd is expected.

Reagan Brown, rural sociologist, Texas A&M University Extension Service, will be the kick-off speaker at the luncheon in the Coronado Starlight Room.

Week is the week just before Thanksgiving when special emphasis is being placed statewide on the blessings of the Abundance of Food and Natural Fibers that come from the farms and ranches of Texas.

A local Speaker's Bureau will provide a program at each of the service clubs on the theme of Food and Fiber Abundance Week.

Youth Faces Charges

Following a lead on a car theft case Pampa police officers elicited statements from two Pampa youths concerning the recent burglary of B.M. Baker school.

Orville Wayne Chapman, 17, denied any connection with the stolen vehicle but admitted to breaking into the local school according to the police reports. He also admitted to several burglaries in Amarillo. He will be charged with the burglary of Baker school.

His confessed companion in the school break-in, a juvenile, will be turned over to juvenile authorities for prosecution in the incident.

In a separate incident another Pampa youth was taken into custody Thursday night near Purviance Clinic for possession of a number of pills. Charges are pending a laboratory test of the capsules.

Pampans To Attend C-C Meet

Three representatives of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce will join with those from 132 West Texas counties at the mid-year meeting of WTCC directors and chamber officials next Thursday and Friday in San Angelo.

Harold Barrett and James McCoy, Pampa directors on the board, and Chamber manager E. O. Wedgeworth will represent Pampa.

Registration for the two-day meet will start at noon Thursday.

Committee meetings and a banquet will highlight the Thursday session and A.L. Scott of Fort Worth, WTCC president, will preside at the mid-year board meeting which will convene Friday morning.

The conference will end with a noon luncheon on Friday. The luncheon address will be given by U.S. Rep. O.C. Fisher who will discuss President Nixon's new price and wage freeze and new economic policies as they affect West Texas and the nation.

Musical Theater Pleases

By LOUISE RICHARDSON
 A near capacity audience attended the Dorothy Warenskjold's Musical Theater in Pampa Junior High last night.

Concert-goers were delighted with Miss Warenskjold and her ensemble's presentation of the cavalcade of vocal music from the mid-19th century to today—melodies one never tires of hearing sung.

The ensemble was composed of young American artists whom Miss Warenskjold selected as singers with exceptional musicality. Performing last evening were Maria-Dolores Ferracioli, Soprano; Adrienne Leonetti, mezzo-soprano; Charles Whitesolf, Vincent Pirillo, tenors; Thomas Jepperson, John McLaughlin, baritones, and D. Edwin Bender and Eugene Brundage, bass-baritones. Raymond McPeeters was the able accompanist and piano arranger.

The concert scenario version of Gounod's opera Faust was performed with stylized props and piano. Simplicity was the keynote. The aria "Avant de quitter ces lieux" sung by Thomas Jepperson was outstanding as was the aria, "Je ris de me voir si belle" (the Jewel Song) performed by Miss Warenskjold.

The men's ensemble sound was well-balanced and most effective, especially in soft passages.

After intermission, the lighter portion of the program pleased the audience. From minstrel, through operetta and musical—comedy.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

The Service Professions

Two-thirds of American workers are employed in performing services for others. Only one worker in three produces durable "hard" goods or non-durable "soft" goods. The percentages were reversed in 1900.

Nearly half (44 per cent) of consumer spending is now spent for services, not including the taxed income which goes mainly for services. All state and local government expenditures are services, producing no real goods.

What's happening to the "service professions" is a question asked by Garner Ted Armstrong in his article "Service with a Sneer" (PLAIN TRUTH, August). Armstrong takes a look at big city hotels, restaurants, cleaning establishments, cabs, custodial services and bus lines, where a subtle new pattern is becoming obvious. Surly, disgruntled waiters; irritated, short-tempered clerks; careless impersonal people struggle with jobs that have become tootally boring and monotonous. It is symptomatic of what's happening to us: we are learning not to care.

Services represent the major job market for the future. Although our educational system has trained people for specialization, it has ignored the training of human relations, or how to serve. The very term "serving class" rankles those who serve, because service connotes for them low prestige.

H. Wentworth Eldridge, editor of Taming Megapolis, writes that "there are not going to be any new and shining cities without new and shining people in some as yet not entirely clear reciprocal relationship."

The American ideal of service with a smile is worth bringing back. To do so, we shall need "new" people with a change of attitude towards serving, "shining" people with happy faces and clean clothes.

That's The Way, Abbie

Unfortunately, we cannot report the outcome. But a remarkable private "trial" was conducted in Greenwich Village last month when a tribunal of three men agreed to hear an authorship dispute between Yippie leader Abbie Hoffman and self-styled "revolutionary" Thomas King Forcade. Hoffman was accused of stealing some of Forcade's labors in writing "Steal This Book," Hoffman's anti-establishment best seller which instructs its readers on ways to thrive without working. Forcade claimed he edited the book but said he wasn't paid by Hoffman. What makes all of this interesting rather than pathetically amusing is that, while Hoffman would most certainly put Americans under the heel of more government, he chose the most non-governmental of all recourses to settle his own legal problems. He and Forcade agreed to private trial before three mutually acceptable referees.

Expenses had to have been minimal. No lawyers or judges were involved, no years-long delay in the courts, and a verdict was reached that each man was morally bound to accept. Wittingly or not, Hoffman stole a page from the libertarians.

Kind Word For Leland

We read with sadness this week the story out of Kinston, Mass. about Leland, the dwarf parrot who got so lonely he plucked himself naked.

"The sage of the 3-inch-high naked parrot," a news service reported, "began earlier this month as owner Donald Hunt watched in dismay as Leland began plucking out his feathers."

After the first press reports were published, suggestions were received from across the nation, ranging from mineral drops on Leland's tail to a soft pine pacifier. None worked until a second dwarf parrot—a seductively feathered bird named Luella—was brought into the Hunt home.

"She's kind of quiet and shy," says Hunt. She doesn't say too much, but she kind of mothers over him."

During a week in which Americans were bopped over the head with more glum news than normal—the United Nation's perfidy, the shrinking dollar, a sagging stock market and festive meetings of U.S. political leaders with the likes of Mao and Tito—it warms the heart to see a nation worry for a poor, featherless, lonely, three-inch-high parrot named Leland.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Did anyone ever tell you you look just like Alexei Kosygin?"

Inside Washington

See Committee Approval of Powell, Rehnquist
By ROBERTS. ALLEN

WASHINGTON —The two Supreme Court nominees—Asst. Attorney General William Rehnquist and Virginia attorney Lewis Powell—will be decisively recommended for confirmation by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The likely bipartisan vote of approval will be 11 to 5. That was the line-up in an authoritative canvass of the members of this key committee—9 Democrats, 7 Republicans.

This private count showed that all of the seven Republicans and four of the nine Democrats favor the two appointees. The opposition consists entirely of the five liberal Democratic committee members—Sens. Philip Hart (Mich.), Edward Kennedy (Mass.), Birch Bayh (Ind.), Quentin Burdick (N.D.) and John Tunney (Cal.).

Of this group, none have had legal experience of note or consequence. Several haven't practiced at all. Their opposition is based on partisan and ideological grounds.

Secret strategy of the opposition is to concentrate their fire chiefly against Rehnquist—on the theory that if he can be defeated it will be easier to eliminate Powell, former head of the prestigious American Bar Association. Rehnquist will be assailed as racially biased, partial to bugging and use of other stern police measures.

To compile "evidence" against the two appointees, Sens. Kennedy and Bayh have enlisted the aid of civil rights activists, blacks and ultra-liberal members of certain law schools—foremost among them Harvard and Yale.

Rehnquist, who has been making courtesy calls on Senators, including known opponents, has had the unusual experience of being told by Democrats to stand pat.

One influential Democrat advised him: "I have examined your personal and legal record, and found it wholly satisfactory. Don't be unduly disturbed by the outcries so far made against you. I found no substance in them, and I would say they were motivated for grandstanding purposes. So hold firm, and I have no doubt you will be confirmed."

Sens. Kennedy and Bayh may find themselves hit with statements they made in opposing two previous Supreme Court appointees if they assail Rehnquist and Powell on ideological grounds. Administration forces have a big arsenal of their quotes to throw at them.

Last-Ditch Fight
Any move to revive the Senate-killed foreign aid program will be met head-on with a powerful bipartisan filibuster.

That was decided at an unannounced meeting of leaders of the coalition that staged the dramatic surprise upset. Although only a small

Your Health

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Would you be so kind and tell me if a doctor takes a blood test would it show up asthma or not? I am 48 years old, single and I worked at this place one-and-a-half weeks. They fired me because they told me I had asthma. It is a mild form.

I can work 12 or 14 hours a day. I use very little medicine as I hate to take pills. I never lose time from work. Please let me know.

Dear Reader—It takes more than a blood test to diagnose asthma. Usually, the patient's history is important or "wheezing" sounds in the lungs may be heard during examination or in long-standing cases some changes in the lungs may be observed by X-ray.

Your problem brings up an interesting and neglected point. There is so much concern about minorities and their job opportunity and very little concern about the "right to work" for many people with a vast number of medical problems. All should have the right to achieve their maximum potential and make their maximum contribution to our society.

There are hundreds of people shelved because they have had a heart attack—yet many people go on after such an event to new heights in their career. Lyndon Johnson is a classical example. After his heart attack during his Senate days he became vice-president and president. President Eisenhower was another example. There are countless more.

The person afflicted with epilepsy is discriminated against, in marriage, driving a car or in job opportunity. A drunk can drive but not a person with epilepsy.

There is a great unspoken ambivalence in our society about sickness. While there is concern on one level there is downright hostility and discrimination on other levels.

Having a sense of belonging and accomplishment is part of one's mental health. A job is more than just the money it generates.

In a time when there are too many people who are content to do nothing to contribute to their society your letter is refreshing. I would hope that you and other people who are barred from a "right to work" because of unfortunate medical problems will sometime soon be given the proper consideration you deserve from our society. That means opportunity, not a hand out.

Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., in care of The Pampa Daily News. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

It's a cruel hoax to talk about the work ethic when there are no jobs.

What Meany Meany Means

George Meany and some of the other labor bosses have been making a lot of noise lately intended to have their union members believe that the federal government ought to freeze profits along with everything else connected with the economic crisis tormenting the country.

Mr. Meany surely knows better than that, of course. The man is no economic illiterate, so it is reasonable to conclude that he is merely engaging in a bit of political demagoguery. He desires to impress his union members, so he is employing that old technique of making profit sound like a dirty word.

Mr. Meany had better take care. While he himself is no dummy, he should bear in mind that the political arena is filled with functional illiterates when it comes to economics. Moreover, the woods are full of potential candidates who will do and say anything to win an election.

Let us suppose, however, that Mr. Meany's current demand for a freeze on profits were, in fact, to be put into effect. Who would suffer? Any high school economics student will quickly recognize that Mr. Meany's own union members and all other Americans, would be affected adversely.

It is fair to assume that Mr. Meany does not desire that the current wage freeze be continued indefinitely. Mr. Nixon, as a matter of fact, has pledged that it will not be. So, Mr. Meany will contend that all who pay dues to him are deserving—will be expecting an increase in pay.

But if profits were to be frozen, as Mr. Meany advocates, where does he propose that the extra money come from? Moreover, Mr. Meany has not been concerned about companies losing money, but it's time that he gave some thought to it. After all, almost every company's greatest expense item is the money it pays in salaries to its employees.

Sooner or later, there will be a proposal, and it may be made to prevail, that if a company's profits are to have a ceiling imposed by law, there should be a law protecting the company against losses. We happen to disagree with that philosophy absolutely—both as to the ceiling on profits and the protection against losses. But in the kind of controlled economy which Mr. Meany perhaps unwittingly advocates, there would be both the ceiling and the floor—or, worse still, the government will take over the operation of business and industry entirely.

Mr. Meany has been demanding an increasingly higher share of profits—at the expense, of course, of stockholders whose dividends on their investments are reduced accordingly. These stockholders include millions of middle-income and even low-income Americans, many of whom are elderly and retired.

They vote, too! And they may well decide to vote for candidates who promise to require labor unions to participate in the losses of companies as well as profits. What then for Mr. Meany?

Let us ponder an example. Last year, American Airlines lost $45 million. Its total operating expenses for the year came to $1,180,000,000—$540 million of which went for salaries to the airline's employees. The company could, however, have wiped out its $45 million loss by the simple device of an across-the-board pay cut of less than nine per cent. Would Mr. Meany favor a law requiring unions to accept a pay cut under such circumstances? Or does Mr. Meany wish to think only in terms of a one-way street?

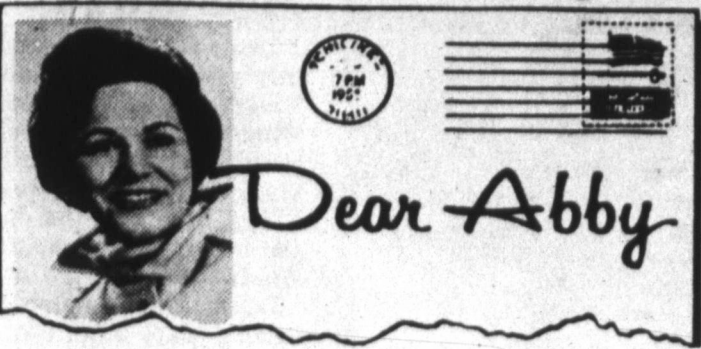

It is that one-way street—the unyielding stream of demands by labor union leaders—that has done so much to create the existing inflation crisis in America. The cost of American production has been going steadily upwards; productivity has lagged far behind. And that is the stuff inflation is made of.

Then, too, there is the matter of taxes. Mr. Meany advocates all manner of federal government is already a major partner in every corporation—the government claims roughly half of every dollar earned by most corporations. So if Mr. Meany's advocacy of a ceiling on profits were actually to come into being, how does he propose that the government replace the money it will fail to collect in taxes?

Mr. Meany is simply talking through his hat. He couldn't mean what he says—unless, of course, he yearns for a completely socialistic country. And since that would mean dictatorship, one must assume that Mr. Meany does not desire that for the workers he professes to represent. If he does, he's a poor representative!

Speak out
 on political issues

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my husband's family. We get along for the most part, but when it comes to politics and related social issues, we disagree violently. In order to keep every get-together from erupting into a noisy battle, I just keep my mouth shut.

However, my children are now old enough to understand the talk and I don't like some of the statements made by my husband's family to go unchallenged. Yet I know they are the kind of people with whom one cannot have an intelligent discussion. All they know how to do is yell and argue.

They [my husband's people] always initiate these political discussions, and to keep the peace, I say nothing. How in the world can I keep quiet without destroying my children's belief in my ideals? BUTTONEED LIP

DEAR LIP: A good noisy battle involving politics and related social issues is much healthier for children than the choked off silence you're maintaining in the interest of peace and quiet. Speak up! Silence implies agreement.

DEAR ABBY: I am divorced and have four children. I've been dating Harold for two years and we plan on marrying.

Here is my question: Harold contends that if we take my children out to eat, or for entertainment, I should pay for the children until we are married.

My argument is that since we do this only occasionally, it is not too much to expect Harold to treat them.

Harold is not stingy. He says it is "accepted etiquette" when dating a divorced woman with children.

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Harold may not be "stingy"—but he's no big spender either. My friend Amy Vanderbilt [who is the last word on "accepted etiquette"] says that when a divorcee and her children are invited out, the "host" picks up the tab for ALL the guests. [P. S. If you plan to marry Harold, establish all the financial ground rules in advance or prepare for some rough money fights!]

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old housewife and the mother of two. I have bronchial asthma and can't tolerate smoke, so I put a large "No Smoking" sign up in my home.

When I absolutely must go where people are smoking, I have to take medication in order to breathe, and when I come home I need a clean atmosphere to recuperate in.

My sister was married last year. She and her husband have visited us only once, and have honored my no smoking sign.

My problem is her husband. He told my sister that he will not visit us if he has to go outside to smoke.

My sister means the world to me and I want to see her once in a while, yet I can't allow her husband, or anyone else to smoke in my house because it's not worth getting sick over. Thank you for your help in this matter.

ALL CHOKED UP IN ILLINOIS

DEAR CHOKED UP: I understand your problem, but think you should explain your affliction to all who enter your home, instead of posting signs. I cannot imagine anyone being so childish and stubborn as to refuse to visit you if he has to go outside to smoke. If you want to see your sister, the alternatives are obvious. Either go visit her when her husband isn't there and smoking up a storm. Or tell her to visit you without him.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SAFETY FIRST": You can't demand that she get on the pill, but you can offer to pay for them.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Varietas Given Program
 On International Affairs

Mrs. Lee Harrah was hostess to the Varietas Study Club Tuesday with Mrs. L.B. Penick, president, in charge.

Preceding the day's assigned program, Miss Anna Pierce presented a talk entitled, "Before You Call the Meeting to Order." She discussed the things that any group should do prior to holding a meeting.

She said, "Among these are certain rules suggested by Paul Harvey, which include the following: allow time for the various time zones through which a speaker may be flying; assign one host person to every guest; pre-test the public address system; don't flash glaring lights at the speaker; have easy access to the stage; try to protect the speaker from contact with colds and other contagious illnesses; make introductions short and concise; and when the speech is finished, be sure that someone takes charge and closes the meeting."

The day's study topic was "International Affairs," which carried the caption, "No man is so perfect that he cannot learn something from his neighbor." Mrs. Sherman White introduced the speaker.

Mrs. Cecil Dalton used the topic, "The Lesser Problems and Accomplishments of the United Nations Assembly." She stated that the charter members included 51 nations and that now there are 151 members.

She listed the various problems that have plagued the U.N. through the years and how the difficulties have been resolved. She mentioned the accomplishments of the organization, such as the halting of some small wars, the negotiations that have sometimes been successful, the worldwide good that has been brought about, and the hopes for the future of the U.N.

She presented a chart showing the various divisions of the U.N. and gave the function of each.

She closed with quotations from Alan Shepard Jr., who is a U.S. delegate to the U.N., telling her audience that he said recently, "Many members of the U.N. are anti-American. Yet we hear only complimentary things about our space program. Many people don't realize the positive impact of this endeavor."

Following the talk, Mrs. Penick presented a paper, prepared by Mrs. W.E. Abernathy, concerning the scholarships given by club women to deserving students.

She said, "There are two kinds of these scholarships: (1) the sustaining scholarship, which remains the same and supports itself, and (2) the continuing scholarship, to which club women contribute money each year."

The club members brought gifts to be sent to the Wichita Falls Hospital in time for Christmas.

Those attending the meeting were Mrs. W.A. Bohot, W.H. Burden, F.A. Cary, Cecil Dalton, Price Dossier, Clyde Ellis, N.B. Ellis, S.C. Evans, J.E. Gibson, Lee Harrah, J.E. Kirchner, Otis Nace, L.B. Penick, J.R. Spearman, and Sherman White; and Miss Anna Pierce.

Your
 Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, NOV. 13
 Your birthday today: Proving your capability of carrying responsibility is urgent. Formulate your own tests, make the effort this year rather than await initiative from outside and a more difficult path to follow. Today's natives are tenacious, generally care neither for rules nor for willfully breaking rules.

Artes [March 21-April 19]: Cooperation should be available for any reasonable endeavor today. Get busy and get your week-end started.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Make the rounds, gather the latest news—collect accounts receivable, recover loaned possessions.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: It's a question of how far you can pursue routine before provoking reactions. Let some riddles remain riddles.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Take the initiative, present your ideas firmly, and with enough of a head start to get cooperation.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Be willing to work and to start very early. Some things can't be delegated—you only lose time and good will try to get somebody else to do them.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Romantic and sentimental reasons form the basis for much of your doings, whatever your surface reasons may be.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Pursuit of romance runs a subtle, complex course; too quick or too slow a response may be critical.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: What happens in this fairly placid day's round is some gently imposed commitment to do quite a range of routine over rather a long future period.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Your questions mean no more than the answers you can dig out for yourself—nor any less. Be cagey about sharing views.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: If a detail gets past you, it turns out to be the only one noticed—and shortly. Be attentive and diligent.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Coincidence or something like it plays a larger role in your progress. Be prepared to stake more on your intuitive visions of what may be.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: A passing moment of panic or crisis forces at least a sketchy review of your situation and staying power.

Plan Repairs Ahead For Holiday Season

By VIVIAN BROWN
Associated Press
Newsfeature Writer

It is that time of year when women look around the house and moan. There are so many things to do before the holidays, the winter social season, and how to find the time to plan.

"Our problem is a badly cracked wall in the room we use for entertaining," says one homemaker. "I covered the wall, which is next to a doorway, with a heavy fabric, but the big bulge shows up more than ever." Brick is too expensive, but she wondered how fake brick would look. Or is there another solution, she asks.

Many people keep fiddling with small areas trying to cover bumps, cracks and other blemishes with a variety of wall coverings, but many times a replastering job is the best solution, and it might be the least expensive.

Plastic bricks are very interesting and look very much like real brick. Some have a used look, and one company touts a product as being heat resistant, fire retardant, scratch resistant, colorfast, washable and non-porous which will not absorb grease or dirt. You put the grey or black mortar on the wall with a trowel or putty knife and also spread it on the brick which is then pressed into position. Grouting is formed by the mortar left on the wall.

But even if this brick is put on a wall, you cannot escape smoothing the wall. The ridge must be leveled and filled in if anything over it is to look good.

Another woman found a cache of old paint that her husband overbought and had in their garage. Why do paint dealers let you buy too much paint? Her husband claims that in every instance he was

A Lovelier You Who Wears Gloves

WHO WEARS GLOVES WHEN?

Most anyone can muster up a pair of gloves to wear on a freezing cold day. The rest of the time gloves have become a scarce item. Somehow they fell off the fashion wagon when pants and put-ons chimed aboard.

Well, here's news for you. Gloves are back, the handsome classics to wear with fall's classic clothes. Natural pigskins, neutral and dark leathers, white and creamy suedes are much in favor. Because of long sleeves, short and wrist-lengths are in demand. But longer gloves await only the party season.

There's more to selecting gloves than matching them up in color and style to a costume. It's a point you might miss, particularly if you've gone along with the gloveless crowd in the recent past.

Becomingness to your hands enters into a choice. For example, French seams greatly minimize large hands. Every hand appears more shapely in a well-fitted glove, when its fingers are exactly as long as your own and no stress occurs across the back of your hand.

But, sometimes, a good effect is lost in the wearing. The proper way is to smooth on the fingers so that the seams are die-straight. The arm of a glove should be drawn upward like a stocking and then crushed a bit over the wrist.

About removing gloves the "musts" are when eating, told by a dealer that he would need the amount of paint he bought.

If dealers are given the exact dimensions of the wall, they can give you a pretty good estimate of the quantity of paint needed. But you can't say that you are going to do eight walls and your staircase, and use terms like "very big" and "very small" to describe a job. A more accurate gauge is to establish the square feet of the area to be painted.

Paint experts suggest that this guide be used: Multiply the length of the wall by the height to get the square foot area of the wall. Add the areas of all walls to be painted. You need not make deductions for windows or doors.

When you give this figure to the paint dealer he can divide the number of square feet to be painted by the number of square feet in the gallon of the particular kind of paint you choose. It's a formula that may also be used in estimating the amount of covering needed for floors and ceilings.

One word of caution—it is usually better to buy a little extra paint. If you run out, it might be difficult to match it exactly. Then too, you might decide to paint a few accessories in a room to match the walls.

Another homemaker dreads the thought of entertaining because the living room in her new home looks so small now that she has furniture in it. It has been painted so she doesn't know how to make it look larger than it is.

Many decorators are using mirrors to make rooms look larger. Be sure mirrors are right for the room. The mirrors look particularly good in rooms with lattice and lots of plants, but they also show up well in rooms with dark walls.

One decorator doesn't use mirrors that face doorway areas. It can be annoying to see yourself each time you walk into a room, he points out. He likes to see a sofa against a mirror to get a back-to-back sofa effect.

Mirror tiles are very popular and these are being installed by do-it-yourselfers. If a full-size mirror is to be used in a room, it is better to have it professionally installed.

And, if you want a worry-free household during the holidays, be sure you are not facing the season with a balky septic tank system. If the tank needs cleaning, now is the time to do it. With the added activity of the holidays on the dishwasher, disposal unit and washing machine, small septic tanks may cause a back-up. Many tanks were installed before new appliances were put into the house, and some are not large enough to be efficient.

Prayer Defeat Seen as Open Door

AUSTIN—Defeat of the prayer amendment to the Constitution should open the door to serious and productive attempts to teach about religion in the public schools, the Rev. Congressman Robert F. Drinan told participants in the Texas Consultation on Religion and Education Monday night.

The Consultation, sponsored by the Texas Conference of Churches and 13 other organizations and institutions in the state, is a meeting of educators, students, clergymen and lay leaders who are seeking ways to bring the study of religions into public school curriculums.

Rev. Drinan, a Roman Catholic priest and Democratic Congressman from Massachusetts, led the successful floor fight against the so-called "non-denominational prayer amendment" Monday afternoon in Congress. He then flew to Austin to address the Consultation on Religion and Education at the Joe C. Thompson Conference Center on the campus of the University of Texas.

As a former teacher of law and dean of the Boston College Law School and a Jesuit priest, Rev. Drinan has devoted his life to religion, education and the law.

"A school that denies any time to religion is not a good school," he said Monday. "This is not because of the benefits to religion but because of the benefits to the children." Religious influences upon culture are a necessary part of man's education, he added.

Saying that he was highly gratified by the defeat of the prayer amendment, Rev. Drinan urged backers of the amendment to seek new and productive ways to meet their legitimate desire of "providing an ethical dimension to the education of their children in compulsory schools."

"The people who want prayer in the schools are sincere," Rev. Drinan said. "But I don't think any type of 'non-denominational' or 'voluntary' prayer will do what they ask."

The prayer amendment defeated in the House of Representatives was originally worded to say: "Nothing in this Constitution shall abridge the right of persons lawfully assembled.

Immortality Of Man—God Is Lesson

Man has a divine right to be free of sin and sickness.

This basic tenet of the Christian Science faith is brought out in the lesson-sermon for Sunday at Christian Science church services. The study is entitled "Mortals and Immortals."

"Immortal man was—and is—God's image or idea... even the infinite expression of finite Mind and immortal man is coexistent and coeternal with that Mind." Thus reads a citation from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy. This will be read as a part of Sunday's study.

The call to action this Eddy passage sounds is also included in the Bible readings: "Fight the good fight of faith; lay hold on eternal life whereunto thou art also called and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses."

The local First Church of Christ Scientist is located at 901 N. Frost.

YOUNGSTERS ENTHRALLED—That is the story everywhere "Spireno" goes because Mrs. Marilyn Hogue holds elementary age children's attention with her multi-talented presentation of inspirational teachings. She numbers among her accomplishments that of professional ventriloquist. She is the wife of Richard Hogue, young minister who heads the "Spiritual Revolution Now" team coming to Central Baptist Church.

President Of Baylor Very Ill

DALLAS (AP)—Baylor University President Abner McCall was undergoing tests and observation at Baylor Medical Center here today as an outgrowth of an operation last week.

An aide, Tom Turner, said the university educator was brought here from Hillcrest Hospital at Waco Wednesday. He said McCall may be required to undergo additional surgery.

Dr. McCall, 57, had his gall bladder and appendix removed early last week but apparently did not recover as quickly as doctors had hoped.

Turner said McCall was "transferred for treatment of complications arising after gall bladder surgery. It is possible that further surgery may be indicated."

Turner said McCall's condition was termed stable.

McCall, though a lawyer by profession, has long been active in Baptist leadership. He was elevated from head of Baylor's law school to the presidency in 1958.

BIG SUNDAY SCHOOLS
WHEATON, Ill. (AP)—Four years ago, when the inter-denominational magazine, Christian Life, began reporting which churches in America had the biggest Sunday school enrollment each year, only 12 churches had weekly attendance of more than 2,000. But in 1971, the number had grown to 24 churches, the magazine reports.

SPYING ON CHURCH
SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP)—Two Methodist Church leaders in Rhodesia, Rev. Thomas Curtis and Rev. Michael Appleyard, say that the government's security police pay African informers to attend church services and report back on any criticism of the government by preachers.

OPPOSES FAR OUT
JOHANNESBURG, So. Africa (AP)—The Anglican Bishop of Johannesburg, the Right Rev. Leslie Stradling, dislikes the increasing use of far out services. He says it is "hopefully called liturgical experimentation, but often looks more like liturgical chaos." "I trust we are not moving into the English custom of every rector making his own decision about the shape of the service."

Witnesses Announced Assembly

Lyman Pinard, presiding minister of the Pampa congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, announced at a recent meeting that their next semi-annual ministerial assembly will be held December 10, 11 and 12 at Woodward, Okla.

Delegates from Pampa are making plans to attend the assembly in conjunction with more than 800 persons from 15 surrounding congregations in Western Oklahoma and the Texas and Oklahoma Panhandles.

The purpose of the three-day assembly is to provide instruction and give advice on how to more effectively carry out the preaching work of Jehovah's Witnesses.

This is seen from the theme carried by the assembly "Keep on Doing It More Fully," based on 1 Thessalonians 4:1, 10.

The Bible-based lecture, "Can You Live Forever—Will You?", to be delivered by Mr. E. R. Drandt, district supervisor for Jehovah's Witnesses, Dec. 12, will serve as the climax for the gathering. All sessions will be open to the public.

SALUTE TO JESUS

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Although it's not in church tradition to cheer and whistle at the mention of the name, Jesus Christ, modern youth are increasingly doing just that.

An example was the recent Lutheran Youth Congress, sponsored here by Lutheran Youth Alive, an independent, inter-Lutheran movement.

Specialists To Study Attendance Variations

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
 AP Religion Writer
 NEW YORK (AP) — While the Sunday morning flock is getting thinner in many churches, it's still big in others and getting bigger. Why? Is it the area? The preaching? The program? What?

The question intrigued evangelism specialists of the United Presbyterian Board of National Missions and they decided to try to find out.

To do so, they picked 19 congregations around the country that are flourishing, in membership and activities, in contrast to the general sag in church growth, and made detailed studies of what they're doing and how.

Although widely differing in size and environment, both urban and rural, and broadly distributed geographically from Florida to Minnesota to Texas, they were found to share "remarkable similarities."

Most of them operate "conglomerate style," providing programs for many types of persons, old and young, married and single, says the Rev. George T. Peters, head of the evangelism division that made the study.

Few are highly structured or run in a tightly organized fashion but exhibited wide flexibility, spontaneity and variety in activities, and study found. More than half, for instance, offer both contemporary and traditional worship services.

Worship was found to be the primary focus of their life, but surprisingly none of the 19 was led by an unusually charismatic minister. The preaching was sound and respected, but the pastor served more as "enabler" than the "sole guiding light," the report says.

It says that congregational outlooks on modern problems differed little, whether in city or country.

Contrary to expectations of the experts, "adult education received only minimal attention from these churches," notes the Rev. Robert S. McFarlane Jr., associate divisional chairman and one of the fact-finders.

Yet, puzzlingly, their theological stance was varied, and couldn't be classified in any particular category. Nevertheless, they displayed a common strand of cheerful confidence about their faith.

AMARILLO BOULEVARD MINISTER AND FRIEND—Shelby C. Knox, right, has been giving his Christian witness the length of Amarillo Boulevard, particularly in the bars leaving behind a growing respected reputation and an increasing number of converts. As this picture shows, his approach is friendly and masculine.

Baptist Men To Hear Of Ministry In Bars

Members and guests of the Palo Duro Association of Baptist Men will hear Shelby C. Knox at a barbecue supper at 7 p.m. Monday.

The Amarillo layman has garnered a quick reputation and an impressive number of converts from his ministry chiefly in the bars along Amarillo Boulevard in addition to those who have professed faith in Christ there "have been many rededicated their lives and return to their families — often mending a broken home."

Knox has a first hand knowledge of the life these men given over to drinking are experiencing. Such an appetite has caused him to lose money from a weekly pay check to a fortune earned in Alaska. His drinking career started at age 9.

Billy Graham Lauds Group

WASHINGTON D.C. — Evangelist Billy Graham said in a recent article carried in "Christianity Today" that the Jesus movement "by and large is a genuine movement of the spirit of God that is affecting nearly every denomination and every social and educational stream and is causing discussion from the editorial rooms of the New York Times to the dining room of the White House."

Graham said this highly encouraging development comes at a time when thousands of young Americans are involved permissive sex, drugs and violence on a scale that "stagger the imagination."

Noting that, as with all movements, there are extremes, dangers and pitfalls, Graham said he has studied the movement and came up with a number of "commendable features."

Here are some of them: 1) The movement, thus far, centers in the person of Jesus Christ. 2) It is based on the Bible. 3) It demands a personal experience with Jesus. 4) It puts a renewed emphasis on the Holy Spirit. 5) In it young people have found a cure for drug addiction. 6) It is pushing churches to update and provide for greater involvement of members. 7) It stresses Christian discipleship almost to a "new puritanism." 8) It offers evidence of social responsibility. 9) It has evangelistic zeal and 10) It emphasizes anew the second coming of Jesus Christ.

Graham noted some outstanding public figures who have been converted in the movement. He told of an ex-Black Panther, who has memorized most of the New Testament, and he cites the recent conversion of Christopher Pike, son of the controversial late Episcopal bishop. Young Pike gave his testimony at Graham's Northern California crusade this past summer where, affirms Graham, "70 per cent of the audience every night was under twenty-five, and we had the greatest response to the Gospel I have ever witnessed in my years of evangelizing in the United States."

The evangelist also tells of a long briefing by "a man who is perhaps the nation's foremost drug expert" and quotes him as saying there is "absolutely no cure for a person who is hooked on hard drugs except a religious conversion."

Admitting that he does not know what the ultimate impact of the movement will be or even whether it will last, Graham nevertheless hints that he believes it may be the "grand finale" revival the Bible predicts will occur "just before the Lord returns."

REFUGEES INCREASE
 NEW YORK (AP) — In the last six years, the total number of refugees in the world has more than doubled, climbing from 7,900,309 in 1964 to 17,318,320 in 1970, Church World Service reports.

The Weekly Message of Inspiration

St. Paul's United Methodist Church

Rev. J.W. Rosenburg

WHEN GOD NEEDS A MAN
 J.W. ROSENBERG
 St. Paul United Methodist Church

In the story of the creation found in the second chapter of Genesis there are two phrases that have struck me as having something to say to us today. The first of the phrases is, "—and there was no man —", and the second is, "—God created a man—." God looked upon what he had already created, saw the need for a man, and out of what he already had created he made a man. I think we need only to follow this idea through history to get a message from it. In the very beginning God needed a man to tend and preserve and bring to its full possibilities all else that he had created. And when he had created man in his own image and breathed the breath of life into that man he had set in motion that which was to bring the earth, and for that matter, the universe, from its primitive state to what we like to think of as its present improved state.

But what we must remember is, that God has found it necessary to find a man over and over again to keep in motion what he had started. A few illustrations will suffice. There was a time when God was terribly displeased with men, so much so that he repented he had made man in the beginning. But there was a man by the name of Noah into whose hands God placed the destiny of the human race. He called Noah to a rather unusual undertaking, that of building an ark to float upon water where there was no water. Noah responded, the ark was built, and the will of God was carried out. When another crisis had to be met, God called out a man by the name of Abraham and sent him on a journey that really seemed to have no destination. It was no easy thing that Abraham did, but he was the man when God needed a man. Again there was a need and God went to a very humble man we have come to know as Moses and called him to what seemed to the man Moses a very foolish as well as impossible task, but "there was no man" so God found a man and filled him with wisdom and strength and sent him to do what was needed.

Need more be said? God is constantly needing men and he is just as constantly finding them. The thing you and I need to be concerned about is, if God needs us and finds us, will we fulfill that need that God has of us? Let us not fear that God will not make us able to perform what he calls us to do.

Harvesters Tackle Amarillo Tonight

JERRY LUCAS, left, and Dean Meminger are two newcomers to the New York Knicks whose contributions were expected to make the 1969-70 NBA champions a threat for the title again this season. Both Lucas, obtained in a trade with the Golden State Warriors, and Meminger, No. 1 draft choice, began the season slowly, however, as the Knicks got off to a stumbling start.

College Roundup

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Undefeated Nebraska is headed for a Thanksgiving Day showdown with Oklahoma and even the revamped passing attack of Kansas State will be hard pressed to halt the momentum of the rampaging Cornhuskers.

Top-ranked Nebraska, 9-0, unbeaten in 28 starts, Saturday battles Kansas State, a team that has displayed tremendous improvement since switching to a pro-type aerial attack engineered by junior quarterback Dennis Morrison.

Morrison posted a humiliating performance in his first three games, and connected only 16 times in 47 tosses for 177 yards.

Kansas State Coach Vince Gibson then shifted to the pro offense with two wide receivers and dropback passing. Morrison has since fired 67 completions on 124 passes for 864 yards and two victories in the last two contests.

"Morrison is a leader now," appraised Gibson. "He's confident, he's got poise and he can scramble. There's no telling how good he's going to be."

Morrison will be throwing against Nebraska's fearsome pass rush and rigid defensive secondary, which has surrendered only 92.6 yards passing per game.

Nebraska quarterback Jerry Tagge will be firing against a Wildcat defense which has been socked for

Strong Bid By America For Honors

By RICKEY WRIGHT Staff Writer

The title of district championship stands to be fought for tonight as the Pampa Harvesters will trek

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, with the vision of a blond-headed owl, plunked a five-foot birdie putt in near darkness to keep the favored United States team close while the guest hackers from Romania and Libya simply faded into the Florida sunset.

Nicklaus was topping off a four-under-par 68 Thursday to capture the individual lead in the 19th World Cup Golf Championships while he and partner Lee Trevino clung within three shots of the front-running South Africans.

Trevino struggled to a 75 on the treacherous 7,096-yard East Course, giving the Yanks an aggregate of one-under-par 143 and a second place knot with New Zealand's Bob Charles, 71, and John Lister, 72. South Africa's Gary Player battled a virus to carve out a 69. Johannesburg pal Harold Henning had 71 for a four-under-par total of 140.

Of course, the poor Romanians and Libyans didn't have a full shot at the opening-day glory. Darkness stopped them after 17 holes as the snail's pace play caused each foursome to spend more than six hours on the course.

It was just as well. Dumitru Muneanu had just taken 10 on the par five 17th hole and already had 95 strokes for the agonizing day. His countryman, Pavel Tomita, had 85 with one hole to play.

That put the Romanians at 44 over par, some 48 shots behind South Africa's leaders—and they weren't even through. Their playing partners from Libya, Hosain Abdu Elmola and Muftah Salem, were 26 over par at the time.

over to Amarillo and try to hold their lead in district play. The mighty Harvesters will pit their skills against the Amarillo High Golden Sandstorm on the Sandie desert.

The Sandies feature a powerful defense and are looking for the district championship also. They can only get it if all the leading teams fall during their last game of district play to be played tonight and tomorrow night.

Leader of the Sandie offense will be led by Johnny Warren quarterback who has started 29 varsity games, beginning as a sophomore. "experience wise he is a lot like Lazono," commented head coach Swede Lee.

Sears Woods will be leading the running attack for the Sandies and Swede comments. "He is an extremely strong and quick runner though he stands only 5'-8".

Aaron Gilbreath holds the speed on the Sandie squad. Lee said, "Gilbreath is a strong runner but is substituted frequently."

Amarillo's defense hasn't been consistent during the previous part of the season as Swede stated, "They played real good against Borger and Caprock, but were not so good against Palo Duro and Tascosa."

Rick Fenlaw is the defensive leader from the middle linebacker position. Sears Woods likes to get in on the defensive action.

"Good players help make good teams, but good teams result from a group of players who work for the same goal with no personal recognition in mind," said Lee.

The Harvesters are in pretty good shape for the game with the exception of Steve Mathis. Mathis' ankle is giving him more trouble and according to coach Lee he will see no action.

This doesn't put much strain on the Harvesters as they will still remain two deep in dependable players as Bobby Owen and Chuck Reeves are both ready for action in the backing up of Garvin McCarrell and Richard McCampbell.

High rushing averages are marked for the whole Harvester backfield. Richard McCampbell is leading the district in rushing with Dale Ammons following in second. The rest of the backs are knee high in averages also.

"I think we have some mighty impressive backs," said Swede.

Alvin Ferguson is the player to watch on defense as he has chalked 190 tackles and assists out of the nine games played in the season.

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

Hiram's parishioners are protesting! For he is a gutteral or ventriloquist type of speaker! Thus, he keeps a stiff upper lip and speaks deep in his throat. Instead, project your words against the far wall as if you were blowing bubble gum balls! Practice with "lugubrious" before your mirror!

CASE S-517: Hiran J., aged 36, is a dedicated clergyman. "But, Dr. Crane," some of his parishioners protested, "we have difficulty understanding what he says when he is in the pulpit."

"And it isn't because he uses jawbreaker words. Besides, his voice is good, but he speaks deep in his throat."

"So could you please warn other clergymen of this fault?"

Gutteral Clergymen Orientals are routinely guilty of this gutteral type of speech.

It is also similar to the vocalizing by ventriloquists. For they deliberately try to keep their lips immobile while their "dummy" seems to do the talking.

At our Northwestern University School of Speech and in other college speech departments, we stress use of the lips in speech.

Remember, it isn't the use of the vocal cords that distinguish man's utterance from that of howling wolves or lowing cattle.

No siree! It is the manipulation of the lips and tongue to vary those basic sounds that come from our vocal cords.

So teach your children to articulate precisely with their lips! Look at your reflection in the mirror and then utter words that combine voice and lip cooperation, such as:

Lugubriously; mellifluously; mama, papa, superfluously.

Some of the European nations also are guilty of too much nasal speech, as in the French pronunciation of "Binet" or the German "Goethe."

Remember, the more lip movements you employ in your public speaking, the easier it will be for the audience to hear you!

For we all tend to rely somewhat on lipreading, even if we are not totally deaf.

But next to facile lip movements, you should also be sure you employ enough loudness (volume) to carry your words to the rear rows.

Alas, most amateur speakers are accustomed to hearing their own voice in a small office or 12 x 15 room in their home.

Thus, when they get into a large auditorium or even a modest sized church sanctuary and then double the sound of their voice, they think they are shouting.

It would be shouting in their office or living room. But in that large auditorium, it still sounds much as a whisper after the first 6 rows.

So combine precise lip movements... even exaggerated for a while till this becomes habitual, with adequate loudness.

For, unless you can be easily heard and understood, the content of your talk is worthless.

But then concoct an interesting address, following Christ's "parable" formula, wherein you link together human interest cases from real life to document your "text" and advance it steadily to its climax.

Tactfully name a few members of the audience as you employ them in a complimentary rammer to illustrate some of your points.

For further hints, send for my booklet "Public Speaking Psychology," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. George W. Crane, Hopkins Bldg., Mellott, Indiana 47958, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

To make decorative and sturdy bookcovers for schoolbooks, use your old flannel-backed tablecloths. They are both easy to make and to wipe clean.

Is Planned

CANYON—A West Texas Jesus Rally will be held on the West Texas State University campus March 13, 14, and 15 under the leadership of the Baptist Student Union.

In preparation for the rally, the Rev. Carlos McLeod, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Plainview, will speak at a Spiritual - High Night Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the BSU. A Spiritual - High Night will be held every Tuesday until the rally next spring, according to Mike Jeter, enlistment chairman for the BSU.

The Rev. Barry Wood, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Beverly Hills, Calif., will be the evangelist for the rally. It will be held in the Buffalo Fieldhouse. Area churches are encouraged to help sponsor the rally.

Get Set, an evangelism clinic, was sponsored by the BSU on Nov. 1-5. It explained how to prepare students for the rally. Bill Webb, BSU director, led the clinic.

To Hold Meeting

The Pampa Board of Realtors will hold its annual meeting at 12 noon Dec. 7 in Coronado Inn.

The nominating committee has submitted the following slate of officers for 1972:

President, Verl Hagaman; vice president, Bobbie Nisbett; secretary-treasurer, Norma Shackelford, and director, 3-year term, Francis Threatt.

In 1927, Joseph Stalin became the dictator of the Soviet Union as Leon Trotsky was expelled from the Communist party.
