'A Farewell To Arms' Opens At R & R Ritz Theatre Today

Laurel Came From England With Chaplin

Luckiest Day Was When He Met Hardy, Declares Comedian

Some twenty-odd years ago a transatlantic cableboat docked in New York with fourteen emigrant clowns from England.

They were known as the London comedians and had arrived to seek their fortune in a new country. One of them was waving his hand to the skyline, "America," he shouted. "I have come to conquer you."

Stan Laurel couldn't help but laugh at this melodramatic boast. For Charlie Chaplin was making the prophetic utterance. What has happened to Chaplin has been duplicated by his fellow-passenger, Laurel, but it took him twenty years to succeed. At times he almost gave up hope. Everything he did was discouraging.

It was Chaplin who persuaded his boy friend to try motion pictures. They had staged a reunion in a Los Angeles theater where Laurel was working. For eight years Stan Laurel was an obscure figure in pictures. "The luckiest

Helen Hayes And Gary Cooper Play Feature Roles In Picturization Of Ernest Hemingway's Brilliant Novel

Wheeler And Woolsey Show At The Queen

'Hold 'Em Jail' Features Pair Of All-American Half Wits

The thought of a prison football team is funny enough to begin with. But when it is carried out to the extreme in absurd equations, when the entire prison is given a collegiate atmosphere with bands, cheering sections and an enthusiastic alumni gulf quint and original methods of obtaining new gridiron talent, the basic idea easily becomes a laugh riot.

Just how funny the whole non-sensical whim can be demonstrated by the RKO-radio picture, "Hold 'Em Jail," now at the R and R Queen theater, with Bert Wheeler, Robert Woolsey, Edna May Oliver and Roscoe Ates in the leading roles.

The vehicle is the happiest selection possible for Wheeler and Woolsey. The picture is delightful nonsense which makes it an ideal for the comics' unique style of fun-making.

There never was and never will be a prison like Bidmore penitentiary, which is where Wheeler and Woolsey land when they boast of their imaginary football prowess in a tough dive where the "scouts" for Bidmore are looking for talent.

Also, there never was a warden like Edgar Kennedy, who had a sister like Edna May Oliver, who had a niece like pretty Betty Grable, who supplies that necessary "love interest" in collaboration with Wheeler.

Wheeler is presented as the "world's greatest athlete, the man who invented athlete's foot."

The stuttering Roscoe Ates is the Bidmore quarterback who heartlessly accepts a parole at a critical moment of the "big game" and nearly wrecks Bidmore's chances for the "Penitentiary Conference day in my life was when I met Oliver Hardy," says Laurel. "I realized that the large southerner was my essential counterpart."

Since that meeting Laurel and Hardy have made more than forty comedies. They have worked hard to become popular favorites. Their latest Hal Rosch-M-G-M comedy is "Scram," which comes to the Ritz Theater beginning today.

The motion picture, in its entire history, has seldom produced a love story of such tenderness and such heroic beauty as the film version of Ernest Hemingway's great novel, "A Farewell to Arms," which, with Helen Hayes and Gary Cooper in the leading roles, opens a three-day showing at the R and R Ritz Theater today.

Made by the two men responsible for "Seventh Heaven," Frank Borzage and Menjamin Glazer, the film has adapted the quality of that other tender love story to the more epic proportions of the Hemingway story. The result is a deeply human heart-tugging film, which translates the simple, timeless story of the love of Catherine Barkley, and Frederic Henry into terms of transcendent beauty.

Helen Hayes brings the whole of her rich gift for acting to the role of Catherine, emphasizing the tenderness and simplicity of the young British nurse. Catherine was real and brave and beautiful as Hemingway conceived her; she is all of that and more as Helen Hayes interprets her. Every moment that Miss Hayes is on the screen is a moment of great poignancy and dramatic vitality.

Nor is Gary Cooper in any way unworthy of the big role of Lieutenant Henry. He rises to its every requirement, and in an intelligent and understanding performance, creates a character that will not be soon forgotten. It is by far the best job Cooper has ever done. The film follows the Hemingway novel with remarkable fidelity.

Championship.

The action and dialogue of "Hold 'Em Jail" races through the field of slapstick. By the time the play is built up to the scene of the big game one should reasonably be all steamed up over Bidmore's chances on the gridiron, although there never was a football game played that even remotely resembled this one.

Wheeler and Woolsey win for Bidmore but not until they have resorted to every device of the alert gag writers' minds.

Besides the antics of Wheeler and Woolsey and Miss Oliver and Ates, Edgar Kennedy bids for plenty of howls as the futile and apologetic warden, Warren Hymer as a dumb cluck convict and Paul Hurst coach are also in the fun contest.

Many famous all-American football stars appear in the lineup of the prison team, but whether they can be recognized made up as "tough mugs" is another matter.

Powell Plays Opposite Kay In Ritz Film

'One Way Passage' Brings Sophisticated Pair Together

Every steamer that puts out from a port fronting on any one of the seven seas is freighted with unguessed, untold dramas. No stranger or more fascinating drama has ever been laid on an ocean line. It is safe to say, than the one which transpires during the scenes of "One Way Passage," which comes next Wednesday and Thursday to

Against the stark background of war in the Alps is played out the story of the American lieutenant in the Italian ambulance corps and the English war nurse whose love proved greater than war or duty or anything in the past or future of either of them. Their first meeting, their stolen moments in the hospital where Frederic is taken after a shell explodes in a dugout, their farewell in the bizarre hotel room when Frederic has to return to the front, Catherine's departure for Switzerland when she realizes that she is going to have a child, Frederic's desertion of the army in order to be with her, and the tortured fight between birth and death in the Swiss hospital—all this from the book has been duplicated in the film, and duplicated with infinite taste and dramatic power.

Here, in short, is the picturization of a great love story told in the finest language of the films. It is not to be missed!

Opening in Hong Kong, on the eve of the vessel's departure, the action carries the audience across the Pacific, stopping en route at Hawaii for a day and moving restlessly to its climax as the Golden Gate is passed.

To obtain the maximum degree of realism for these steamship scenes, Warner Bros. chartered an ocean liner complete with officers and crew and turned it into a "floating studio" for six days. On the big steamer, in its engine room and its salons, while the steamer cruised the high seas under the command of the picture's director, the most important sequences in "One Way Passage" were produced. They have the authentic feeling, the undertone of reality, that drama, made under such conditions, is bound to have.

"One Way Passage" is the second co-starring vehicle for William Powell and Kay Francis to be made at the Warner-First National studios, and is the sixth production in which these two favorites have been teamed.

Alina MacMahon and Frank McHugh, although a pair of steamship crooks, are afforded most sympathetic comedy roles which they handle to perfection. Warren Hymer, in the role of a strong-arm American detective, gives an outstanding performance. Other members of the cast are Herbert Mundin in the role of steward; Frederick Burton as the doctor in personal attendance on Joan Ames, and Douglas Gerrard as a monocled English nobleman who takes Alina MacMahon, as "The Countess," at her face value.

Tay Garnett is the director of "One Way Passage," the screen play of which is by Robert Lord, adaptation and dialogue by Joseph Jackson and "Ibion Mizner, authors of many outstanding successes.

Play Filmed In Desert Locale

Zane Grey's 'Heritage Of The Desert' Scheduled R And R Queen

A strip of desert territory on the border line between Utah and Arizona, penetrated by hardly a score of persons in the past twenty years, came to life again when the movie troupe filming Zane Grey's "Heritage of the Desert," action romance of the west, which comes to the Queen Theater Wednesday and Thursday with a cast headed by Randolph Scott, Sally Bane and J. Farrell MacDonald, chose it as the locale for outdoor sequences.

Nearest railroad station was at Cedar City, Utah, but many miles of mountain and desert separated this city from the location. A crew of workers solved the problem by constructing temporary roads thru mountains, and building wooden roadways across the desert sands, to make possible the transportation of camera, sound equipment and props by auto and trucks.

Headquarters of the troupe was established at the foot of a mountain, where a small stream guaranteed a continuous water supply. Tents were erected to shelter players, technicians and equipment during filming. Shelters of a more permanent nature were built to house generators which produced current for sound and lighting equipment.

The location, which blossomed forth for the production of the movie, has rested in quiet obscurity in the battle between a group of honest ranchmen and a group of unprincipled cattle rustlers, and so distinguishes himself that he wins himself a prominent spot in the hearts of the ranchmen in general and the daughter of the ranch in particular.

The picture made there follows the original Zane Grey novel closely. It tells the story of a young surveyor who becomes involved in the battle between a group of honest ranchmen and a group of unprincipled cattle rustlers, and so distinguishes himself that he wins himself a prominent spot in the hearts of the ranchmen in general and the daughter of the ranch in particular.

More Support For Schools Favored Here

Teachers Of County Hear Address By Forsan Superintendent

Leland L. Martin, Forsan superintendent, Friday prefaced a plea for additional financial support for Texas schools with a graphic picture of conditions confronting this state's educational system in an address at the afternoon session of the Howard County Educational Association.

Explaining the financial and social benefits derived by the child from a sound educational system, he pointed briefly to the political and social gains such a system would bring the nation. Martin declared schools were getting much less money than institutions solely dependent on education.

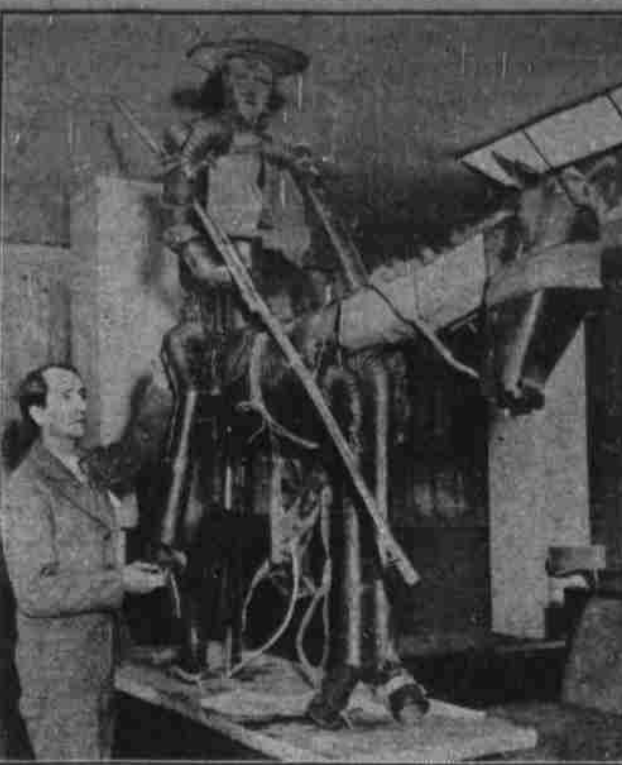

Condition of Texas educational system was best described by the speaker in matters of rank. In the number of children reached by schools, Texas ranks fourth; thirty-second in holding pupils; thirty-sixth in material environment such as buildings and equipment; thirty-fifth in literacy; thirty-seventh in quality of teaching (which is based strictly on salaries paid); thirty-second in state apportionment per capita. One-third Thirty-three to 34 per cent of tax money goes for education, said Martin. During times of economic stress certain retrenchments are being made, most of which he averred are unwise. He bemoaned salary slashing as the only method of retrenching some schools followed. A committee composed of Ben U. Comalander, Coahoma school head, Edward Simpson, R-Bar principal, J. W. Toombs, Knott principal, and Mrs. Pauline C. Brigham, county superintendent, drew up a petition addressed to the state representative and state senator of this district asking that additional revenue be raised through taxation of natural resources and on bonds and notes. Each of eighty teachers attending signed the document. Several rural trustees had signed the petition Saturday. Mrs. Brigham made it plain that it was not to be signed by school people alone, but by the citizenry.

History Class Professor J. F. McDonald, head of the Texas Tech extension service, was successful in organizing a class to study the history of the great plains, a course which will count on graduate as well as undergraduate work. Prof. Holden will hold two classes here every other week. Additional members will probably be enrolled in the class.

At the opening of the afternoon session the Coahoma glee club, composed of children of the fourth, fifth, and sixth grades, entertained the teachers for one hour. The club

CUSTOMS AGENTS DIFFER ON ART

Pieces of stove pipe, battered tin dippers, old tin cans, shovels and old inner tubes do not—in the opinion of New York customs officials—compose a work of art so last year "El Picador" by Jose de Creff, Spanish artist, was barred unless $600 duty was paid. Recently Senor de Creff sent "El Picador" to Baltimore and an agent took it over in its crate. "Hmnn," he mused, "old pipe." It was an anxious moment for the artist but he produced a picture of his work. "Very good," said the agent. And so "El Picador" entered America as a work of art and was sent to New York, assembled and placed on exhibition. (Associated Press Dispatch)

Postmaster Goes To Midland When Mail Not Put Off Here

Postmaster H. L. Bohannon staged a 1933 version of a ride of the Pony Express Saturday when a railway mail clerk failed to put off first class and registered mail from Texas and Pacific train No. 7, which arrived at 7:10 a. m.

The postmaster got in touch with A. E. Pistole, division superintendent of the T & P, who notified the train crew. Bohannon went to Midland and got the mail, returning here in time for it to be distributed late in the morning. Otherwise banks and other concerns which receive valuable registered mail daily would have had to wait until Monday for delivery.

bonds held for over two years are in all cases treated in the same manner under the Revenue Act of 1932 as in the prior act. It is necessary, under the Revenue Act of 1932, for all taxpayers regardless of the size of their net income, to keep a record of their transactions in stocks and bonds so that they may determine how long such securities have been held on the date of sale. This is necessary to determine the amount of loss allowable, because stocks and bonds held for less than two years are subject to the special limitations.

During the past ten days our appliance experts have adjusted approximately 860 gas appliances in 215 Big Spring homes. These 215 housewives no longer are in doubt about gas waste and proper combustion in their cook stoves and heating units. They know now that they are paying only for the gas used in cooking and in heating their homes. They know they are not paying for any waste. If you have not had your appliances adjusted call 839 tomorrow. Our experts will be available for this work for only a few days more. There is no charge, of course.

During the cold weather be sure that your house is properly ventilated. If your appliances have not been adjusted they may be throwing off carbon monoxide, a very dangerous gas that will cause headaches, eyes to water and if in large enough quantities even serious illness or death.

down by the Capona gang. While he possesses a doctor's degree from the University of Michigan, he is serving as trustee of the University of Chicago, one of America's greatest educational institutions, and finds time to serve on the board of Rosenwald Industrial Museum.

Apparently his appearance does not deceive him, because of his activity in Chicago club life. Here he appears pleasant, and unworried as one would not suspect of a person with such business interests. In Chicago there's the Yacht Club, University Club, Evanston Country Club, Mid-Day Club, and others to which he might turn for rest and diversion.

Old Question Asked how conditions appear to him in his tour of the country he smiled. The smile broadened and he chuckled: "You know, that's what everybody wants to know. It's just a question which one asks first, so the other can get out of it."

He said that it was the overbuilding that has retarded other advances today. "It's the same way in Chicago. Buildings, buildings everywhere. Big office buildings. Are their offices filling up? No. More and more of them are becoming vacant. It's going to take a while for the tide to change, and for the offices to fill. After that, there'll be more building," he explained.

While not definitely committing himself, Mr. Avery indicated he believes the bottom has been reached and that business soon will be on a visible upturn.

"We're beginning to walk a little bit," he laughed, explaining that business for some time hardly has been able to crawl.

Worries Not Over He made himself clear, however, that, in his opinion, all of business worries had not ended. Others must fall by the wayside, he said, using the old example of a "clean slate" to say that many businesses must start over again, if they are ever able to do that.

This year, 1933, he indicated, has better prospects than the past year, but qualified the idea with a declaration that it will be a trying time for those concerns suffering from the same trouble as the municipalities and practically every line of business—having overbuilt their capacities during the "good years" of 1927, 1928 and 1929.

COMBUSTION

"As a general rule, the percentage of CO2 for the most efficient combustion practice is 15 per cent for solid and liquid fuels, and ten per cent for natural gas. Under perfect combustion natural gas will produce over 12 per cent CO2, but this is impracticable because some excess air is needed so that every particle of carbon will get a sufficient amount of oxygen.

Regulating Ratio "Thus it is seen that by regulating the ratio of air to fuel and making tests for CO2 in the flue gases it is possible to arrive at the most efficiency combustion ratio accurately and quickly. "Another factor covered by a combustion test, and one which should not be emphasized too highly, is stack temperature; the temperature of the gases leaving the furnace or boiler. The stack temperature varies directly with the draft through the furnace and is an indication of the amount of heat that is being lost up the stack or chimney as the case may be. Draft and stack temperature are often neglected by the average person but the losses from this source can amount to as much as 40 per cent of the fuel fired, dependent on the stack temperature and the amount of CO2 present in the flue gases. High stack temperature means either an excess of air drawn into the furnace, heated to a high temperature and lost out stack, or it means that the burned gases are being taken through the furnace or boiler at too high a rate to permit an efficient transfer of heat to the boiler or furnace heating surface. A high stack temperature means heat lost out the stack which does not perform any useful work.

"Combustion testing is the modern and scientific aid to higher boiler efficiency and lower fuel costs. It supplants the look-at-the-fire, feel-the-draft type of boiler regulation. The results of a combustion test are valuable only in so far as they are taken advantage of by the fireman along the lines pointed out by the combustion engineer. Combustion efficiency means lower fuel costs to the consumer and a satisfied customer for the company supplying the fuel. Combustion engineering is here. Boiler appliance salesmen of the larger companies are good combustion engineers and the high fuel savings that they usually accomplish are not so much due to the merits inherent in that appliance itself as in improved combustion and efficiency of the equipment already available. You can burn a lot of fuel and make a little steam, or you can burn a little fuel and make a lot of steam. True economy does not come from using sparingly but from using well."

WHIRLIGIG

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) That is because the burden or reparations has been relaxed. These reports belie what you get from Europe in the regular news channels to a certain degree. They may be important in shaping future American policy because of the close contact Mr. Davis has with Mr. Roosevelt.

They will be interesting to consider when the next debt payments fall due in June.

Defense

The Tydings-George Bill for a new National council of defense will not pass unless needed. It would call for the council for "stability and welfare" with the purpose of promoting such things as the five day week and Share-the-Work in industry. Its wartime policy would be stripped but its publicity influence would be tremendous.

There is no indication that Mr. Roosevelt has passed on the Bill and no action will be taken until he does. If the public reaction to it is good it may become part of the New Deal.

Leader

Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee is being taken up by the big boys. It's certain that Mr. Roosevelt has high regard for him. He is close to Col. House. That explains why he was called into the New York conference of legislative leaders with Roosevelt.

Hull has made a profound study of the tariff. He can not content with other Democratic leaders in speaking on the floor, but he will take a strong part in shaping policy behind the scenes.

Notes

Some American sources are lending encouragement to the reports that Debutchi will return to Japan in the spring. They say he returned this time largely to pack up. There can be no denial of the Japanese claim that Chinese irregulars were getting encouragement and money from Peiping in their campaign to harass the Japs in Manchuria. That is the official Japanese excuse for the new campaign. The reason Edge, Hill, Mellon et al were named on the committee to raise the Republican campaign deficit is that they will go a shorter distance to get the $200,000 than anyone else. It all depends on how far away are the pockets in their pants.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin Bonds—Circles interested in Treasury bonds get the dope that the new administration will make earnest efforts to do some long term financing as maturities come up. Local bankers admit the soundness of the principle but are not to keen about its effect on their investment policies. It may compel them to snap out of their short term fixation. Perhaps that is one of the main ideas.

New York is following closely the South Dakota experiment in direct financing. South Dakota's per capita indebtedness is about as high as any state in the union but authorities are having surprising success in selling baby bonds to their own citizens. If it continues to work other states may follow the example, which might cut seriously into the influence of financial middleman.

Banks

The local federal reserve bank intends to hang on to its holdings of government, regardless of what other districts may think or do. It started selling, even on a small scale, member banks would snap up the offerings to help solve the problem of what to do with their excess reserves. The Federal Reserve is especially insistent on not giving them that kind of help. Banking authorities are agreed that there is little danger of a re-current wave of bank failures in 1933. But it is still true that arbitrary security valuations permitted by the Treasury are a big help to balance sheets and it is also true that liquidity arrived at through huge holdings of governments is only liquidity as long as not many want to cash in on them.

Prices

The impression is growing in responsible quarters that we must choose between a continued low level of commodity prices and deliberate revaluation of the dollar. Informed opinion here is pretty unanimous that the best thing we can do is to accept the current price level as likely to prevail for a long time and make necessary readjustments accordingly.

Technocracy

It is reported that Professor Rautenstrauch of Columbia is a wee little sorry that he was so hospitable to the Technocrats. He took some spitted off-the-record razzing from his colleagues at the convention of the Association for the Advancement of Science. His defense of his guests was not as vigorous as it might have been.

Employment

A post-holiday survey of New York City Department stores discloses that not only the extra help for the rush days was promptly laid off but also 20 per cent to 25 per cent of the "regular" force.

Savings Banks

Recent mergers among New York savings banks are merely forerunners of several large-size amalgamations in the very near future according to one of the trustees of an institution concerned. The East River Savings Bank in New York will absorb two more banks shortly which will bring the number of their acquisitions to four. Mergers are also planned in Chicago, Atlanta and Cincinnati.

Women Golfers Of City To Resume Play

After weeks of comparative inactivity, the Women's Golf Association will resume play Saturday on the Country Club links. Following luncheon competing women will be divided into flights on the basis of scores already turned in. A putting contest will be held afterward.

Prizes will be awarded to winners of the flights, and also to winners in the putting contest. The flights are listed below: First flight—Mrs. E. Theron Hicks, H. A. Astell, Ralph Rix, Noel Lawson, E. C. Ellington, and Miss Dorothy Ellington.

Second flight—Miss J. L. Rush, P. H. Liberty, Jack Lilla, G. H. Lyward, E. V. Spence and J. T. Dillard.

Third flight—Miss Jimmie Mason, Eck Lovelace, G. T. Hall, V. L. Latson, Carl Blomsheld, Martha Edwards.

Fourth flight—Miss Ben Carter, A. E. Chester, C. L. Browning, Roy Carter and Joe K. ykendall. Members of the sports committee have requested that all women wishing to compete Saturday turn in their latest scores so handicaps may be given.

Motors

The motor industry is banking heavily on truck replacements to give them a boost in 1933. The oil industry has about 90,000 trucks in service and has done virtually no replacement buying for three years. Sixty per cent of the trucks in service are now officially obsolete.

Bankers have approved plans for quick marketing of an auto which lacks all gear shifts. Through automatic transmission the clutch is dispensed with. It is rated as a marked improvement on the heretofore automatic clutch. There's strong backing.

We have faith in Big Spring People

Then spend your money with CONFIDENCE For some one, every day, the biggest news is not on the front page. It's not even in the news columns. There may be an earthquake in Italy or a revolution in Central America. There may be a hot election campaign or a million-dollar fire or a metropolitan crime wave. But for Jim Jones, who has decided to buy a new sedan, and for Mrs. Thompson, who needs some school-dresses for little Mary Lou, the BIG news of the day is in the advertisements. Even the doings of Congress and the big-league baseball results pale into insignificance beside the news of something you really want. The advertising columns bring you, each day, sound information about quality, style and price. They announce new products and new developments that save time, trouble or expense for millions of people. They point out healthful habits of eating, sleeping, exercising. Consistently advertised goods are safe goods to buy. Behind them stand the manufacturer and the merchant, guaranteeing their uniform quality. Read the advertisements before you buy.

Baptist Tabernacle
Fourth and Benton
Services conducted at the Baptist Tabernacle through the past week by the pastor have been well attended and will continue this week, the pastor, Rev. H. C. Goodman, announced. Sunday morning he will preach on "The Remedy For All Ills Including the Depression." Sunday evening the pastor will be a series of sermons on the "Parables" in the thirteenth chapter of "Matthew." The first one will be preached tonight. The subject will be "The Sower." "On the interpretation of these parables depends our stand for or against divine verbal inspiration of the scriptures," declared Mr. Goodman. "You are invited to hear these seven sermons to be given the next seven Sunday evenings," said the pastor. The tabernacle is made comfortable by four large stoves even in the most inclement weather. Mr. Goodman was to speak this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Prairie View Baptist church on behalf of prohibition.
