OVER GRAND CANYON

10 Persons Die In Plane Crash

PEACH SPRINGS, Ariz. (AP) — Former U.S. Commissioner of Education James E. Allen Jr., his wife Florence and eight other persons have died in the crash of a Grand Canyon sightseeing plane, a small charter airline reports.

A helicopter reached the crash scene Sunday and found that the twin-engine Scenic Airways Cessna 402 had gone down in a tree-studded and snow-covered area of 7,000 foot Pine Mountain.

There were no survivors of the crash Saturday about 40 miles north of this community and 60 miles east of the Arizona-Nevada border.

"There were nine passengers," said Mrs. John Siebold, wife of the air taxi service's president. "Two of the passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Allen. There were two other Americans and five foreigners."

The pilot was Wayne Leeth, 47, of Las Vegas, where the 200 mile tourist flight originated Saturday morning. "Leeth has made 600 or 700 trips over the Grand Canyon over the last four or five years," Mrs. Siebold said.

Identities of the other victims were withheld pending recovery of the bodies and notification of relatives.

Allen, 60, a native of Elkins, W. Va., was appointed commissioner of education on Feb. 3, 1969, by President Nixon and fired on June 10, 1970 after criticizing administration policies ranging from school desegregation to the war in Southeast Asia.

Allen had been state education commissioner of New York for 14 years before his appointment. In the past year he was a visiting lecturer at Princeton University's Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs.

Leeth's flight was one of five Scenic Airways planes leaving Las Vegas at about the same time for the 200-mile flight to the canyon.

If the passengers won't be able to see the canyon, the planes turn back, Mrs. Siebold said.

That was the decision Saturday. Four planes returned to Las Vegas.

Pirates Celebration Turns Into Violence; Scores Hurt

World Series Victory Brings Unrest To City

By DAVID S. DILLON and DAVID M. THOMPSON

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A massive World Series victory celebration exploded Sunday night into a rampage of destruction, looting and sex-in-the-streets.

Police reported a dozen rapes — some of them in full view of hundreds who cheered the assailants — displays of public lovemaking, nudity and drinking.

"This isn't a riot. It's a god-damn orgy," a motorcycle policeman said during the disturbance which left the downtown area in shambles.

More than 100 persons were injured and 300 others were arrested in the melee, which erupted after an estimated 100,000 poured into the downtown area.

There was scattered shooting, but only one reported wounding. Hundreds of explosions caused by fireworks often were mistaken for gunshots.

At least 30 stores were looted and 30 or 40 more were damaged. More than a dozen cars were overturned and in some cases burned.

Newsman counted another 20 autos with roofs that had been crushed by the destruction-bent crowds.

The melee ended 10 hours after it began when flying wedges of riot-equipped police, some with dogs, slammed head-on into the crowds and drove them from the downtown section.

The rampage was triggered by the Pittsburgh Pirates' 2-1 victory Sunday over the Baltimore Orioles in baseball's seventh and deciding game of the World Series in Baltimore. It began as a jubilant but non-violent celebration, but quickly turned into a full-blown riot.

The wild celebration created the worst traffic jam in the city's history. At its height, cars were backed up for eight miles on one major freeway into the city and for six miles on another. Police finally sealed the downtown area in an attempt to relieve the tieups, but it was four hours before it had any effect.

At least two police cruisers were commandeered by rioters during the outburst, and police reported that a fire truck was stripped. Several other police cruisers were abandoned after crowds shattered their windows.

One man whose car was demolished was John E. Demko Jr. of Cleveland, Ohio. Demko, accompanied by his wife and two children—one 9 and the other 13—said he became trapped in a crowd that rocked his car and shattered its windows.

"They climbed on the car like a bunch of animals," Demko said. "They tried to turn the car over—they wouldn't even let the kids out. The kids were sitting in the back when they broke the windows."

Finally, Demko said, he and his family fled from the car. All escaped unhurt.

Elsewhere, a crowd tried to overturn two city buses, but settled for breaking their windows. Seven taxis were destroyed.

At least three telephone booths and a corner newsstand were ripped from their foundations and thrown in the streets. And streetlight poles were toppled like goal post uprights after a championship football game.

So wild was the rampage that the Pirates canceled a planned midtown victory parade. And some of the players, apparently unaware of the cancellation, somehow got downtown anyway and were mobbed.

One of those taken to a hospital was Mrs. Joseph Walton, daughter of Pirates Manager Danny Murtaugh. Mrs. Walton, about four months pregnant,

Traffic Crashes Claim 21 Texans Over Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents claimed most of the lives lost in Texas this weekend, with the violent death count highlighted by a three-fatality accident at the Dallas International Motor Speedway.

The Associated Press, which began its count at 6 p.m. Friday and ended it at midnight Sunday, tabulated the speedway accident near Lewisville although it could not be counted against the state's traffic record.

At least 29 persons died violently, 21 of them in traffic. Two were shot, two died in fires, three drowned and one was stabbed.

Heavy rains and floods in South Texas contributed to one drowning and may have played a part in six auto fatalities. Police said Milton Robinson, 24, was shot to death Sunday as he sat on his motorcycle on a Houston street. A woman is being held.

The speedway accident occurred when Art Arfons, world champion drag racer, lost control of his jet-powered craft and veered into a guard rail. Television newsmen Gene Thomas, 30, riding with Arfons to get a feature story, died en route to a hospital. Two employees of the International Hot Rod Association, John Kelsey, 20, of Tyler and Sean Pense, 17, of Farmers Branch, were killed in their trucks as the powerful car hurtled into them as they stood back of the guard rail.

Arfons apparently escaped virtually unscathed. Track officials said he was taken to a hospital for observation, but newsmen later learned he had not been admitted to the emergency room and had flown to his home in Ohio.

GIBSON BURGLARY INVESTIGATED — Gray County Deputy D. L. Day is dusting for fingerprints as both city and county officers investigate the entry at Gibson's Discount Center over the weekend. Initial entry was gained through the vent (upper left) supposedly by a very small person. Thus far loss has been fixed at firearms and binoculars from the sporting goods section. (Staff Photo)

Debate On U.N. Seats For Two Chinas Opens

8 Pampa Youths Suspected Of Smoking 'Pot' Arrested

Eight young people, all Pampa residents, ranging in age from 14 to 19 years were apprehended Sunday night in Central Park or suspicion of smoking marijuana.

City patrolman Brian Stafford, who said in his report he was acting on a tip, took four boys and four girls into custody after confiscating suspected marijuana and paraphernalia.

He stated all were advised of their rights at the police station and all made statements regarding the incident. The juveniles, three girls 14 years old, one 16 and two boys 15 years old, one 16 and two boys 15 years old were released to their parents and referred to the juvenile officer.

The police account said the 18 and 19 year old boy were advised the district attorney might want to question them further.

Gibson's Store Burglarized; Firearms Stolen

A burglar, believed to be quite small or slender, entered Gibson's Discount Center through a vent to trigger a successful burglary of the Pampa business either Saturday or Sunday night.

While investigation was still underway at presstime, Pampa police officers believe the person in the vent admitted an accomplice or accomplices once inside the store. Somehow, the burglar alarm was evidently circumvented in the process.

Known loss at this point in the investigation was a number of pistols and some binoculars. A quick check of other departments indicated nothing had been disturbed except that area of the sporting goods department where the firearms and field glasses were missing.

However, a more detailed check of the camera and radio department was underway to make certain if any loss occurred in that area.

Entry of the store could have come Saturday night after the close of business or Sunday night since it was unoccupied for that period of time.

Pampan Attending Meet In Cleveland

James McCune was in Cleveland, Ohio, today representing Pampa and the Pampa Industrial Foundation at the annual meeting of the National Wire Association of Wire Manufacturers.

McCune is one of six representatives from area cities manning a booth at the convention and seeking to interest industry representatives in locating in the Texas Panhandle.

He is expected to return to Pampa Wednesday night.

Cool Front Pushes Storm Into Pampa

A cold front stormed into the Pampa area last night bringing with it violent weather and thunderstorms with heavy rainfall.

Pampa received one of its heaviest downpours of the year between 11 p.m. and 2 a.m. with total precipitation amounting to 2.34 inches.

The cold front push was preceded by high winds that caused damage in many areas of the Pampa handle.

A tornado reportedly touched down and quickly rose again causing damage on a farm at the intersections of farm roads 293 and 194 about eight miles south of White Deer.

Minor damage also was done by a twister that mowed down on the farm of Glen Mackey near Spearman damaging a front porch at the home.

Most of the Texas Panhandle was under a tornado alert throughout the late night and early morning.

The front was part of a large low frontal system associated with a complex and vigorous winter storm in the Rocky Mountain area.

Temperatures dropped sharply from Sunday afternoon highs. Pampa's low early today was 51 degrees and the mercury was not expected to rise much above the low 70s today.

By early morning a few showers were still falling across the eastern half of the state as a line of numerous thundershowers and gusty winds accompanied the cool air mass.

Most of Texas in the early morning was cloudy and the predawn temperatures ranged from the 50s and 60s behind the front to the 70s elsewhere.

The wild, tumultuous weather struck Sunday night, sending several tornadoes tearing down on the Panhandle-Plains country.

Funnel clouds were reported near Borger, Morton, Amherst and trees were uprooted, outbuildings destroyed, and a porch torn off a house southwest of Spearman.

At one point, the National Weather Service had 39 Texas counties under a tornado watch. Hail also pounded the areas around Borger, Canyon, Phillips and Fritch.

As the storms played havoc with the northwest sections of the state, persons in South Texas were having their troubles.

Streams and rivers rampaged out of their banks Sunday around San Diego, Alice and Corpus Christi. Tornadoes were also reported in those areas.

The Red Cross set up shelters in San Diego and Alice for 1,700 persons evacuated from their homes over the weekend.

At least one man drowned in San Diego as a creek's water ran through the town.

Accident Victims In Fair Condition At Local Hospital

Isaac M. Simpson, 87, was reported in fair condition and his wife, Lillian, 77, was improved at Highland General Hospital following an accident Sunday on Fritch Fortress Road.

The Canadian couple, traveling north, collided with a car driven by Donald E. Tanner, 40, Spearman, at the intersection with Eagle Road. Tanner and his daughter, Belinda, 13, were thrown from their overturned vehicle.

Father and daughter are in High Plains Baptist Hospital where he is listed in serious condition. The daughter's condition is said to be good.

The mishap was investigated by Trooper Gary Ratchiff of the Texas Department of Public Safety.

DEAR READERS: Now Dear Abby has a problem! I received a letter signed "CAUGHT IN A BIND" and never before have I pondered so long over a reply. I asked my husband how he would answer it. First he took one side. Then the other. I found myself doing exactly the same thing.

I shall set down two considered answers. Please send me a postcard indicating which answer you would use if YOU were Dear Abby. You need not sign your name. But please indicate whether you are a male or female.

Thank you, DEAR ABBY: We have an awkward problem at our house. My husband's boss has invited us to a "housewarming party," which my husband feels we must attend. I disagree.

His boss' wife had surgery recently and was found to have inoperable cancer. (The wife doesn't know this.) The boss sent her to Europe (where she came from) to be with her mother while she's "recovering." He told her he'd join her in three months and bring her home. But it's obvious that he's banking on her not lasting that long, because the day after she left he moved his girl friend into their home and they've been living together ever since. (She's a divorcee whose husband got custody of their children, so you know what she's like.)

This unmarried team goes everywhere together, knowing that nobody is going to tell his dying wife what's going on. They have now moved into a deluxe high rise apartment furnished with the European wife's generous dowry, and we are invited to the housewarming.

My husband says if we don't attend it will mean his job, and jobs aren't exactly hanging on trees these days. Am I wrong for refusing to go?

CAUGHT IN A BIND
1. DEAR CAUGHT: Your first consideration is to your husband. If he feels his job depends upon it, close your eyes, hold your nose, and go!

2. DEAR CAUGHT: Tell your husband that he can help "warm" their house if he wants to, but the setup leaves you cold, and you're not going!

(Well, readers, how would DEAR ABBY: A girl friend of mine called me and asked if she could spend Christmas week with me and my family. (She lives 300 miles away.) I had plans of my own but had forgotten about them at the moment, so I said okay.

Two weeks later she called to say how happy she was about coming, and then I explained that I had planned on going away myself that week. Then this "friend" proceeds to tell me her ex-boyfriend was coming home that week and she admitted she still liked him and she wanted to see him. (He lives in my city.) I am hurt to think that she would use me just to see him. Also, she ruined my plans for going away Christmas week.

What is your opinion of this situation. "USED"

DEAR USE: I think you are angry with yourself for lacking the courage to tell this girl you couldn't accommodate her, so you're blaming HER.

DEAR ABBY: I would like to comment on the letter signed "BURNED UP." The writer didn't know why it was necessary to mention in the obituary column that the

Roberto Clemente Caps Pittsburgh Series Win

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
BALTIMORE (AP) —

The Pirates' Roberto Clemente scored a triple slam, gaining three of the major honors in the 1971 World Series. He was the Series' most valuable player, top hitter and most controversial. The goat horns snugly fitted the brows of two of the losing Baltimore Orioles—first baseman Boog Powell, who failed to hit half of his balbous 250 pounds, and shortstop Mark Belanger, who captured the leaky glove award with three errors. High and low spots of the 1971 World Series as seen through one man's blood-shot eyes: Most valuable—Roberto Clemente, Pirates—12 hits, including two home runs and a triple, plus flawless defensive play in right field. "His shadow was always dogging us," said a disgruntled Oriole. Top hitter—Clemente again, hitting in his 14th consecutive World Series game covering an 11-year span, and coming within one hit of tying his records for most hits in a Series. Biggest blooper—Las Vegas odds-makers, who made the Orioles 5-3 favorites before the Series, 13-3 after the first two games. Biggest bust—Boog Powell, 44 inches around the chest but an anemic .111 with his tooth-pick bat. Best pitcher—Steve Blass, Pittsburgh, who stopped the rholes on three hits in the third game and four hits in the seventh. "Good as Clemente was, this was the guy who beat us," said Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver. Oscar for emoting award—Nelson Briles' tears after pithing a two-hitter in the fifth game. "I just had to try," he said. Guttiest guy—Orioles' Frank Robinson whose taring base running won the sixth game despite a painful hamstring muscle and sore Achilles tendon. "My feet may be flat but they're great," he said. Best relief pitching job—Rookie Bruce Kison, who gave up one hit in 6-1-3 innings in relieving Luke Walker for the Pirates in the fourth game. Bravest competitor—Rookie Kison. He set his wedding date on the day of the last game of the Series.

Biggest controversy—Word battle between Clemente and rival right fielder, Frank Robinson, over the merits of real grass and tartan turf. Biggest rhubarb—The potential game-winning home run which went foul by inches in the fourth game Wednesday night. The ump, John Rice, won the bitter argument. Best marksman—Tie between Kison, who pegged three Oriole batters, and Danny Murtaugh, Pirate manager, who hit the clubhouse spittoon 18 of 23 times from 12 feet. Loudest yell—The cry of Dock Ellis, Pittsburgh pitcher, who didn't like the mattresses in his Baltimore hotel room and rapped the Pirates' management as being "cheap skates." Biggest defensive lapse—Mark Belanger, Orioles' shortstop, who made three errors after Manager Weaver said he was better than the Yanks' Phil Rizzuto of the 1940s and 1950s. Sourest grapes—The faithful Baltimore fan who, upon leaving Memorial Stadium, stopped to yell encouragement to the crestfallen Orioles: "Don't worry, you guys, you'll be back, Pittsburgh don't have nothing but air pollution."

'God, We Won The World Series' Is Blass' Comment After Game

By D. BYRON YAKE
Associated Press Sports Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — "I was probably the loneliest guy in the world," said Steve Blass. "Nobody said a word to me before the game and less during it." But the Pittsburgh Pirate right hander, who won the seventh World Series game with a who was hit hard by San Francisco in two playoff games. "I was carried away with the atmosphere of the playoffs," said Blass. "After the Series, I gave some thought to the bad playoffs I had and decided I had to stay within my emotionally." Blass admitted, however, that he was frightened, Moose and with Blass scheduled to pitch Sunday, he said: "I'd be happy if Moose would retire me." But, as things turned out, it was Blass who did the retiring of the Orioles. And he did it in spite of complaints by Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver that he was not properly stepping up on the pitching rubber before each delivery. "He had a legitimate gripe," said Blass. "Murtaugh said it was in the rule book." Blass also got through a touchy situation in the Baltimore eighth, when with none out and runners on first and second, pinchhitter Tom Shopay sacrificed. Blass fielded the bunt, and instead of throwing to third where he had a play, he got the out at first, putting two runs scoring position. A run did score on an infield field grounder. And despite his exuberance, Blass was able to realistically appraise the on-paper reason that the Orioles were favorites in the Series. As his teammates drenched him with champagne, Blass said: "We don't have any spectacular pitchers, only pitchers with a lot of experience. "We have a no-name pitching staff, but I imagine it will have a name now." The heroes of the Pirates' title-clinching game were Blass and Roberto Clemente. But others, perhaps a bit more unsung, share the glory. Utility infielder Jose Pagan who was in a World Series in 1962 with the Giants when they lost in the seventh game, doubled in the Pirates' second run after Willie Stargell singled. His ball sailed over Merv Rettenmund in center and Pagan couldn't understand it. "I know they usually play shallow on me but I hit a home run once in a while." Then there was shortstop Jack Hernandez, who felt he got just revenge by starting every game but one against the Orioles. Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver once had said the Pirates couldn't win with Hernandez. It was Hernandez who fielded Rettenmund's grounder and threw it first for the final out of the Series.

"Give us a bottle of the stuff the Pittsburgh Pirates pour over themselves in the locker room!"

brilliant four-hitter, can't be lonely now. "God, we won the World Series," he tried to say calmly as reporters clamored for his comments after the Pirates' 2-1 victory Sunday. Blass is a witty personality who has the ability to laugh at himself, win or lose. But it was a different Steve Blass who won two World Series' games from the Blass

"I really didn't know how well I would do," he said. "But I disappointed myself. I slept well last night." When the Pirates were two games down in the Series, Blass picked them up with a three-hitter, the first of three straight victories in Three Rivers Stadium. Before the sixth game, when the Pirates had a chance to clinch the title behind Bob

Football Roundup

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Nebraska, Notre Dame and Penn State would all like to be No. 1 in the college football world, but right now the magic number for all three is zero. That's the number of points each team has given up—or hasn't given up—in posting consecutive shutouts and making a strong case for the defense. Top-rated Nebraska buried Kansas 55-0 Saturday, holding the Jayhawks to minus 42 yards in 35 rushing attempts on the heels of a 36-0 whitewash Missouri. Seventh-ranked Notre Dame, which blanked Miami of Florida 17-0 last week, did it to North Carolina 16-0 this time and took over the national lead in scoring defense. The mighty Irish defenders, headed by the awesome front four of Walt Patulski, Mike Kaish, Greg Marx and Fred Swendsen, have yielded only two touchdowns and 16 points in five starts. Penn State, ranked ninth, racked a 31-0 blanking of supposed-to-be tough Syracuse onto a 42-0 blasting of Army a week earlier. Oklahoma tramped sixth-rated Colorado 45-17 to remain unbeaten in Big Eight play along with Nebraska and Oklahoma State, which has lost outside the league. Third-ranked Michigan tramping Illinois 24-0, still claimed as one of the great undefeated in Big Ten play. The others are 10-0-0 Ohio State, a 27-7 win over Indiana, and No. 20 Purdue, which nipped Northwestern 28-20. The Southeastern Conference race headed into the stretch with four teams unbeaten in league play. Alabama, ranked fourth, whipped No. 14 Tennessee 32-15. No. 5 Auburn overtook Georgia Tech 31-14. No. 8 Georgia pasted Vanderbilt 24-0 and Louisiana State's defending champs, ranked 12th, squeaked by Kentucky 17-13. Arkansas moved into the Southwest Conference driver's seat with Joe Ferguson passing for three touchdowns and scoring one as the 16th ranked Razorbacks scaled 110-rated Texas 31-7. Southern Methodist, the SWC's only other unbeaten team, opened league play with a 16-10 decision over Rice. Arizona State, the No. 11 team, had its 21-game winning streak ended 24-18 by nonleague Oregon State but remained atop the Western Athletic Conference. Stanford, No. 15, took a giant step toward a second straight Pacific-8 crown with a 33-18 triumph over Southern Cal. The Indians are the only team which hasn't lost in Pac-8 competition.

Old Men Get Together To Put Together A Win

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The old men got together for another one in Washington while one kid did some masterminding in New Orleans. "The old geezers did it again," Coach George Allen grinned after his undefeated Washington Redskins won their fifth in a row Sunday, a convincing 20-0 whipping of the St. Louis Cardinals. And quarterback Archie Manning, New Orleans, No. 1 draft choice, took advantage of six Dallas turnovers to run for two touchdowns and pass for a third as the Saints upset the Cowboys 24-14. In Sunday's other National Football League games, Baltimore walloped the New York Giants 31-7, the New York Jets toppled Buffalo 28-17, Cleveland nosed out Cincinnati 27-24, Miami crushed New England 41-3, San Francisco beat Chicago 13-0, Detroit dumped Houston 31-7, Los Angeles defeated Atlanta 24-16, Minnesota turned back Green Bay 24-13, Oakland ripped Philadelphia 34-10 and Denver edged San Diego 20-16. The Pittsburgh Steelers take on the Chiefs in Kansas City in Monday night's nationally televised (ABC, 9 p.m., EDT) game. "We keep hearing that the 'old men' are going to fold or that the balloon will bust," Washington quarterback Billy Kilmer said. "We have some thing to prove every week." Kilmer and Charley Harraway each ran for a touchdown and Curt Knight booted two field goals for the "Skins, but the star of the day was line-backer Jack Pardee, who intercepted three passes to thwart the Cardinals. "I guess they feel sorry for an old man," he laughed. The victory boosted Washington's lead in the NFC East to two games over the Cowboys, whose coach, Tom Landry, muttered: "When you give them away, you can't win them. What went wrong? Our kicking, passing running-body was playing." Dallas fumbled the ball away three times and had three passes intercepted. "For the first time this year," Saints Coach J. D. Roberts said, "our special teams started forcing the errors and started making the big plays for us." Manning passed 29 yards to Tony Baker for New Orleans' first touchdown, then scrambled 13 and two yards for two. The Harvester Booster Club will hold a meeting tomorrow night at 7:30 p.m. in the cafeteria at Pampa High School. This week the club will review films of the Pampa Harvesters - Caprock Longhorn game with head coach Robert E. "Swede" Lee. The Harvesters slipped past the Caprock Horns 21 to 19 in a hard fought battle Friday night. This week the Harvesters will be playing host to the Tascosa Rebels. Last year the Harvesters fell to the Amarillo team 18 to 8. But this is the year of revenge.

string quarterback making his first start since 1969, passed for a pair of touchdowns against the winless Bills and Emerson Boozer churned up 116 yards, including a two-yard touchdown, as New York scored more points than it had managed while losing three of four previous games. "I couldn't hear the count so I went with the snap of the ball," said Bo Ecott of the Browns, who went four yards with it into the end zone for his third touchdown of the game with 39 seconds remaining to stun the Bengals. "They beat the living hell out of us," was all shell-shocked Patriots Coach John Mazur could say after Bob Griese fired four touchdown passes, two apiece to Paul Warfield and Howard Twilley, while the Dolphins held New England to just 117 total yards and smothered quarterback Jim Plunkett six times. The 49ers survived a shaky offensive performance to score their first shutout in 10 years. John Brodie's 12-yard pass to Gene Washington provided the game's lone touchdown. Lem Barney raced 28 yards with an interception for a touchdown and Steve Owens rammed over for two more as the Lions overwhelmed the Oilers' defense with 230 yards on the ground. Roman Gabriel sneaked over for a pair of one-yard touchdowns, setting up the second on a 68-yard pass play to Jack Snow in the fourth period, as the Rams rallied to turn back the Falcons. The Vikings remained tied with Detroit for the lead in the NFC's fierce Central Division as Gary Cuozzo threw three touchdown passes to sack the Packers.

KC Chiefs And Pittsburgh Meet Tonight On Television

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs and the Pittsburgh Steelers have one thing in common—both teams need to win tonight's nationally televised game or lose ground in their bids for American Football Conference division titles. The game will be televised by ABC and starts at 9:05 p.m. EDT. The Rookie-studded Steelers are 2-2 in the Central Division and 1½ games behind the front-running Cleveland Browns, 4-1, who defeated the Cincinnati Bengals Sunday 27-24. A Pittsburgh loss would give the Browns a rather commanding advantage. The Chiefs, who turned in a brilliant second half last week to overhaul San Diego 31-10, could run into trouble tonight because of Len Dawson's second elbow. The veteran quarterback insists he will be ready, and Coach Hank Stram says Dawson will start. The last and only time Kansas City faced Pittsburgh, Dawson hit on 19 of 24 passes for 257 yards and three touchdowns and was named offensive player of the week. Kansas City won the 1970 game 31-14. The 1971 version of the Steelers is considerably different, however, although Terry Bradshaw is still around at quarterback. Pittsburgh has 12 rookies.

Rx The Autumn Breeze Turns Leaves To Gold

This beautiful time of year, when plants and trees are starting to change their color reminds us that from nature have come so many of the wonderful medicines that help us to live longer and healthier lives. We always like to recall our study of Advance Botany in Pharmacy School where we learned how these life-giving drugs were extracted from their natural environment.

When a new drug comes on the market for safe use, we of course read all the available literature, and this always details the source of the product. You would be surprised how many drugs in this age of synthetics and technology still are coming from Mother earth. We stock them.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery and charge accounts.

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

A Fight, But Futile

The Alaska pipeline issue appears finally to be inching toward a decision, sort of.

The Interior Department, reportedly reasonably satisfied that, as presently planned, the line can be constructed from Prudhoe Bay on the Arctic North Slope south 780 miles to Port Valdez, east of Anchorage, without doing irreparable damage to the Alaskan landscape and wildlife. A statement of approval could be forthcoming by December.

Anyone looking to the output of the vast North Slope oil fields to begin pumping new vigor into the continental economy would be advised not to hold his breath, however. Before construction, itself a formidable and time-consuming proposition can get under way, a few other details must be cleared up.

Environmentalists have been fighting the pipeline in the courts, with some success. Injunctions now barring issuance of right-of-way permits will require federal action separate from the Interior approval.

Congress has still to act on native claims legislation, the compensating of Indians and Eskimos for the oil lands takeover which has now been made even more complicated by an entirely new and much harder action.

A new suit filed in federal court by the Arctic Slope Native Association, representing the Eskimo population of the area, seeks no less than invalidation of the state of Alaska's ownership, and consequently its bases to oil companies, of the entire North Slope.

Their argument is based on the 1964 Alaska Statehood Act, under which the state was permitted to stake out claim to more than a million acres of the former territory's federally owned lands. The state's choices include the North Slope.

Selling Of A TV Film

Ads placed in "People's World," a national weekly with ultra-left leanings, disclose the controversial film is now available for rental through the San Francisco-based American Documentary Films (ADF). ADF has been characterized by the "Daily World," the official American Communist Party organ, as trying to do through film the same things "Daily World" does with print.

ADF's ad lists "Selling of the Pentagon" as its headline attraction along with such other works as a film on Angela Davis, a "tribute" to Ho Chi Minh and a "documentary" on Black Panther Bobby Seale.

MANION FORUM

Chiseling On The Welfare Food Stamps

By MARILYN MANION
Standing in line at the supermarket checkout counter does not usually afford much food for thought. Observing the lady in front of you and what she has laid in for the week is not exactly inspiring. But there are exceptions.

A few days ago, the man and woman ahead of me in the checkout line had two shopping carts piled high with groceries. One cart was half-filled with steaks and roasts, which may have accounted for the fact that the total bill was eighty dollars. I, I speculated: According to the Department of Agriculture, one can feed a family of four, in moderate style, for forty dollars a week. Perhaps, I mused, this couple had a family of eight — considering the enormous girth of both shoppers — maybe they just ate twice as much as the rest of us.

Suddenly my reverie was interrupted by loud voices. An argument, between the fat man and lady and the checkout clerk. The couple had presented food stamps to pay for their groceries. The clerk reminded them that they must present identification. They refused, in voices that rapidly rose until the woman was actually shouting.

"I don't have to show any identification!" she bellowed, while the clerk frantically rang the bell to summon the manager.

The manager arrived, assured them that identification was indeed required — but let it pass "this time."

I would have not given the matter another thought except for the fact that I had recently read an article in the New York Times Magazine ("Ripping Off, The New Life Style" by Michael Drossin). Among other things, the article described how young radicals go on welfare and receive food stamps. They do not, however, use the stamps. They seal their food instead, and sell or give away the food stamps. From other sources I had heard rumors of a "black market" in food stamps.

A call to my local welfare office brought the information that the government does not require that supermarkets demand identification. However, the welfare man told me, food stamp recipients are informed that stores have the right to demand identification, and they are told to keep such identification on their persons should it be required.

Not very stern policing, if you ask me. — The American Way Features

Quick Quiz

Q — Where do historians believe the game of croquet originated?

A — In France, where it was known as "Paille Moille," and later imported into England as "paille-mall." It was played as early as the 1600s in both countries.

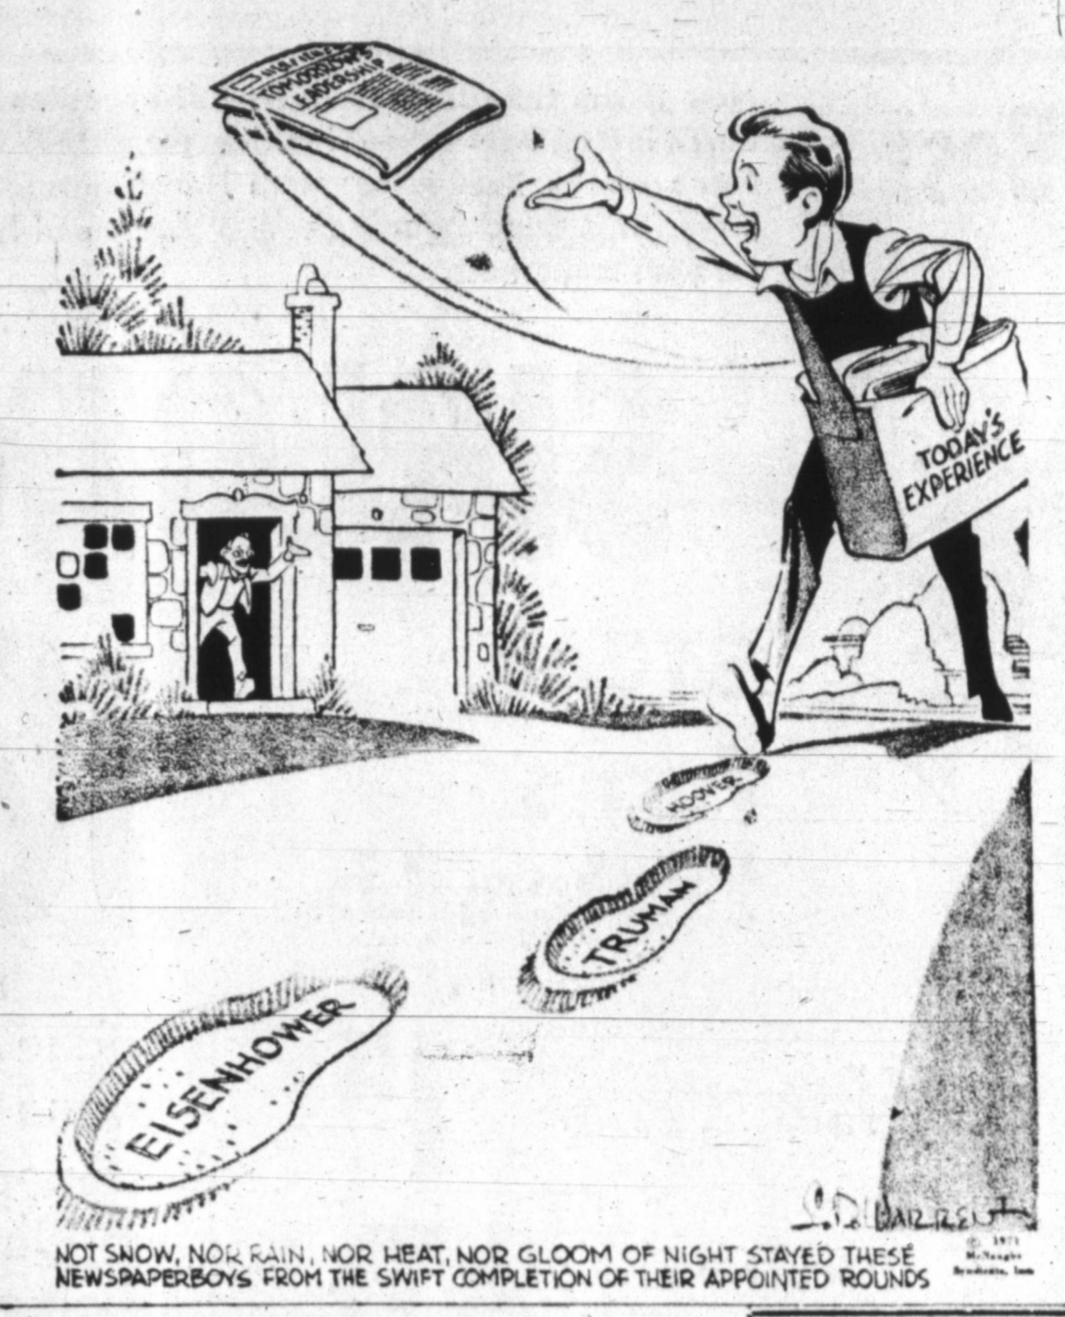

Q — How is Grover Cleveland numerically listed in the roster of U.S. presidents?

A — Since his terms were nonconsecutive he is listed as the 22nd and 24th president.

Burglar's Right To Privacy Issue In Audio Alarm Case

By PAUL HARVEY
I think you'd better sit down for this:

Burglar alarms are big business now. Many companies making many kinds.

One kind connects your business or your house to a "central station" by telephone.

At that central station somebody's on duty around the clock to listen for any unusual noise in your empty house — or business. And if he hears anything he summons police. All right.

The telephone company in Fresno, Calif., is refusing to allow its telephone lines to be used for such purpose. Now hear this carefully because the decision is being challenged.

Pacific Telephone and Telegraph lawyers say that "any audio alarm infringes on the rights to privacy of the burglar."

I was an incredulous as you. I checked and it's true. Sonitrol Security, the Indiana company which manufactures and markets this audio burglar alarm, has installed them in 43 cities, but it's conceivable the upcoming court test could outlaw them everywhere.

In fairness to the telephone company, I suppose their lawyers have seen so much deference to the rights of wrongdoers in recent years that they are hypercautious.

But can you imagine: "An audio alarm infringes on the rights to privacy of the burglar."

In other words, the audio alarm could be used only if the burglar gives his permission.

Well, let the record read that Solitrol attorneys got a stay order until this can be court tested and I expect this time

Clearing House

Got something you would like to get off your chest? That's what the "Clearing House" is for. It has been suggested there should be more letters to the Editor that people should speak their mind. So, in the public interest, write to the Editor and "get it off your chest."

Editor:

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the people of this area for their kind remarks to me after my letter was read in part by the President. I also wish to thank the media for their consideration and politeness.

I consider it a privilege to have been able to encourage citizens to work within the democratic process even though the opportunity itself was startling to me.

In the last week through the Junior Service League I have learned so much about Pampa and its fine citizens that I am pleased the President said I was a resident here.

Favor Byrd Amendment To Break Soviet Hold on U.S. Chrome

WASHINGTON—Sen. Harry Byrd (D-Va.) has just about won his long uphill fight to smash Russia's domination of U.S. imports of metallurgical chrome — essential in the production of jet aircraft, missiles, nuclear submarines and other major weapons.

This column has authoritatively learned that the bipartisan house conferees on the $21 billion military procurement bill, containing Byrd's landmark legislation, strongly favor it.

That means virtual certain approval by the full House, and the end of Soviet control of this country's supply of vital chrome ore.

Sensational charges by two businessmen regarding Russian chrome are credited with having much to do in winning the support of the House conferees for Sen. Byrd's measure.

The incriminating disclosures were made by Fred Kroft, Jr., president, Ferroalloys Division, Union Carbide Corp., and Blair Bolles, vice president, Colt Industries. Testifying at an unreported hearing of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee last June, they revealed:

Tests made by the Crucible Steel Division of Colt Industries produced significant evidence that some chromium ore obtained from Rhodesia actually was of Rhodesian origin.

In order to obtain Soviet ore, Union Carbide has had to take one ton of low grade for every ton of high grade — and pay the same top price for both.

It took three rollcall votes before Sen. Byrd was able to nail down his provision in the giant military procurement bill. It was strenuously fought by the State Department in a curious alliance with Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.) usually a caustic critic of the Department.

Under Byrd's measure, the President "could not prohibit imports of a strategic material from a free country as long as the importation of the same material is permitted from a Communist-dominated country."

That strikes directly at the United Nations' punitive sanctions levied against Rhodesia in 1966.

Under that embargo, the U.S. switched from buying Rhodesian chrome to Russian — to the extent that the latter now constitutes 60 per cent of U.S. imports at a cost of $14 million a year.

Since dominating U.S. chrome purchases, the Soviet has hiked the price from $25 to $72 a ton — 188 per cent.

Incriminating Testimony

When Sen. Byrd, to the stunned dismay of the State Department, won Senate approval of his amendment, the Department hurriedly resorted to two stratagems:

(1) In a still-unexplained manner, Sen. Fulbright, carping dove and Department critic, was somehow induced to take up the Department's cause in battling Byrd; (2) this counterattack took the form of an amendment to Byrd's amendment, empowering the President to decide what should be done about continuing to abide by the UN embargo.

Byrd blasted this circuitous attempt to water down his proposal byardonically deriding Fulbright's blatant inconsistency in seeking to expand Presidential powers direct contrast to his repeated efforts to curb them.

Despite the State Department Fulbright maneuver, Byrd won on the final showdown 44 to 30.

Definitely playing a role that resounding victory, as has in winning the support of the House conferees, is the testimony of businessmen Kroft and Bolles. Highlights of the significant disclosures are:

Kroft: "Our reliance on Rhodesian ore meant that prior to the sanctions we were purchasers of Russian ore. It did not have established trade relations with the Soviet Union in this area. As a result, there has been in the position having to take what we could get. As an example, Union Carbide had to take one ton of run-of-mine Russian ore in order to obtain one ton of highgrade lump ore."

Boiles: "I am appearing present the results of a made last February at laboratory of Crucible, Inc. test concerned samples of chromium ore from several countries, including Rhodesia and Russia. The test was based on the titanium content of ores. A total of five samples were tested."

The data resulting from test show an unexpected similarity in titanium content between Rhodesian ore and Soviet samples. This, in a court, circumstantial evidence. But it certainly suggests possibility that the originated in Rhodesia. This is not the final proof, but does raise a question which should engage the interest of Congress and the executive branch of the government."

"Is the United States taining Rhodesian ore will be aware that it is doing it. So, it is ridiculous that United States continue refrain from import Rhodesian ore directly in time for the government to this fact."

Boiles was sharply questioned on the reliability of the test. Rep. Donald Fraser (D-Mt.) a militant dove and liberal activist.

"Do your experts suggest test you have applied is most reliable available asked Fraser."

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

Dolly was born with a liking for just one type of food: All the other food delights must be learned. If the strategy outlined below is then employed, you can even make some kiddies relish unpleasant natural tastes, such as bitter beer or hot peppers, horse radish, etc. But keep the table atmosphere "sweet."

CASE R-591: Dolly B., aged one year, is a problem. "Dr. Crane," her mother complained, "how can we ever get Dolly to eat some of the foods that are good for her? She turns up her nose at certain items or will even spit them out if her daddy tries to feed her by the spoonful. She likes candy and ice cream but turns her face away when she is offered carrots or spinach. I was also a finicky eater as a child, so has she inherited this?"

TABLE PSYCHOLOGY

At birth, we are devoid of any specific fondness for food, except for sweets.

Sugar offers us a "positive" appeal.

Spinach, carrots, meats and most of the other table viands are "neutral" taste qualities.

But there are even a few actual "negative" foods, such as red peppers, alcohol and bitter items.

So the only way we ever learn to relish the neutral and even the negative food items is by a process called transference.

Since sugar is the original positive taste quality, our other fondnesses must derive from it. Many a mother feels elated when her baby will coo and smile as she approaches the crib. Why?

Because Mamma has become linked with sweet milk!

So Mamma is now an animated lump of sugar!

Thus, the baby's natural delight in sweets has carried over till its mother now belongs in that positive category.

Daddy may soon become catalogued in a similar positive manner because he stands beside Mamma when the baby is nursing, or drinking its sweetened milk from the bottle.

Remember, we must add sugar to the baby's formula, for the milk of human mothers is much sweeter than that of cows.

Ultimately, the baby transfers its fondness from sugar to Mamma; thence to Daddy; plus its older brothers and sisters.

Suppose, we now introduce it to a neutral food like spinach or codliver oil or carrots or meat.

If the baby puckers its mouth and spews out the strange food or spits it all over Daddy's clean shirt, he may grow so angry that he holds the baby and shoves the next spoonful into baby's mouth.
