

Skyjacker Vanishes After Bailing Out Of Jet With $200,000

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A hijacker who apparently knew precisely what he wanted to do and how to do it has vanished after bailing out of a commandeered jet airliner with $200,000.

The pilot of the Northwest Airlines Boeing 727 said he believed the hijacker "took leave of us" in the Woodland, Wash., area 25 miles north of here as the plane flew low and slow from Seattle to Reno, Nev., en route to the man's demanded destination, Mexico.

Helicopters and airplanes crisscrossed over the brushy and timbered foothills of the Cascade Mountains most of Thursday before the weather closed in. The hunt resumes today.

Authorities held out little hope, however, that the hijacker would be found soon.

"He's probably long gone," a Clark County, Wash., sheriff's deputy said.

It was the first time an aircraft hijacker had used a parachute to make his escape and it was the largest sum of money an air pirate had ever escaped with in the United States.

Described as a tall, slim man in his mid 40s, the hijacker took control of the three-engine jetliner Wednesday as it flew from Portland to Seattle on the last leg of a flight originating in Washington, D.C.

He told a stewardess he had a bomb and that he wanted to go to Mexico. He also demanded four parachutes and $200,000.

The FBI said he had used the name D. B. Cooper when he boarded the plane in Portland.

"That's the name he used when he bought his ticket," an FBI agent said. "But he's probably no more D. B. Cooper than I am."

When the parachutes and the cash were delivered to him at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport, he allowed the 36 other passengers and two stewardesses to disembark. The pilot, Capt William Scott, and three other crew members were ordered to remain aboard.

Airborne for a refueling at Reno, the hijacker ordered Scott to fly no higher than 10,000 feet, with flaps and landing gear down to keep the airliner's speed at about 200 miles per hour.

He also directed that the rear exit door of the 727 be left open, with the stairs extended as they would be in taking on or discharging passengers on the ground.

And somewhere between Seattle and Reno he departed. Also gone were the $200,000 and two of the four parachutes he had been given.

Scott said during the flight that indicator lights in the cockpit showed the rear stairwell was being operated.

Airline and Boeing officials explained that the low flight would permit the aircraft to fly with the rear door open without cabin pressurization.

"It would be a very safe drop," Boeing's John Wheeler said of a parachute jump from the rear door. "He'd be away from the flaps and other engines and go straight down."

The 727 is one of the few commercial aircraft models with an exit at its extreme rear, under the tail.

Two of the 'chutes delivered to the hijacker were military types and two were sport parachutes.

The military 'chutes normally operate with a static line which rips them open almost immediately after the jumper leaves his aircraft. The sports 'chutes permit a free fall until the jumper himself decides to release them.

Officials said three Air Force planes trailed the 727 after it left Seattle, but they refused to say whether a parachute was seen. They did say that a man using a sports parachute in a free fall could easily have been missed.

Officials refused to say what type of parachutes were found in the plane after it landed at Reno.

The hijacker confined Scott, flight officers William Rataczak and H. E. Anderson and stewardess Tina Mucklow in the cockpit after the 727 reached flight altitude on leaving Seattle.

He remained alone in the passenger compartment, where the temperature dropped to 7 degrees below zero with the rear entry door open.

His last communication with the crew came shortly after 8 p.m. Wednesday and he is believed to have bailed out of the aircraft at about 8:13 p.m., the FBI said.

That would have been 36 minutes after liftoff at Seattle.

The Clark County sheriff's office said that if the hijacker had indeed bailed out at 8:13 p.m. he would have landed between the two hamlets of View and Ariel, Wash.

The four crew members were flown to their homes in the Minneapolis area and were ordered to make no public statements until a debriefing session with the FBI and Federal Aviation Administration officials.

In Seattle, Earl Cossey of Seattle Sky Sports said he had packed all four parachutes delivered to the hijacker, including the two military chutes provided by officials at McChord Air Force Base, near Tacoma, Wash.

Rahway Prison Uprising Quelled; Hostages Freed

RAHWAY, N.J. (AP) — Officials are again in control of Rahway State Prison after reaching a peaceful agreement with 500 rebellious inmates who held two wings of the maximum security prison for 24 hours.

The prisoners released their remaining five hostages on Thanksgiving night in return for a promise of no reprisals against them. They also were permitted to air their grievances to three newsmen who entered the prison.

Officials pledged full negotiations on the grievances.

A team of eight attorneys headed by State Public Defender Stanley C. Van Ness planned to meet with prisoners this morning.

Under the agreement, the inmates were returned to their cells as fellow prisoners watched to ensure against possible reprisals.

The prisoners' demands included better medical care, better food, prompt parole hearings and an end to alleged racism by white officers.

Gov. William T. Cahill, who sought the release of the hostages without bloodshed, told newsmen, "I can't relate Attica to this situation. Each man that is confronted with the situation has to make the best decision under the circumstances."

In September, 43 persons died when armed troopers and corrections officers broke up a rebellion at Attica State Prison in upstate New York with gunfire and tear gas.

The Rahway hostages included U. Samuel Vukcevic, the prison superintendent. He was treated at Rahway Hospital for cuts, apparently caused by stab wounds, and injuries to the pelvis and spine.

Prisoners contended that Vukcevic, 43, was stabbed by a prison guard who pulled a switchblade knife when fighting began Wednesday night. The prisoners released a statement purportedly signed by the superintendent in which he said the inmates did not harm him and sought medical attention for him.

Two of the guards held hostage were hospitalized with injuries that included a possible fractured arm to one. Authorities said the injuries were not serious.

The prisoners originally took seven men hostage. One was released Wednesday, one Thursday afternoon, a third before newsmen were permitted to enter the prison, and the remaining four just before the meeting with newsmen ended.

188 Persons Die During Holiday

The nation's Thanksgiving traffic death toll reached 188 today.

Snow, drizzle or fog plagued motorists in scattered areas of the nation's midsection, but skies cleared in the Northeast following Thursday's traffic-snarling snowstorm.

The count of traffic deaths began at 6 p.m. local time Wednesday and will end at midnight Sunday.

The unwall, X-shaped prison houses 1,143 inmates, 75 per cent of them black, in its four wings. The rebellious prisoners seized control of two wings after a movie in the prison auditorium.

Vukcevic, 43, was taken to Rahway Hospital, where officials said he was being treated for lacerations of the back apparently from stab wounds and injuries of the pelvis and spine.

Snow Hits Northeast, Motorists

The day after Thanksgiving is leftover turkey, happiness for Nebraska fans and memories of driving snow for thousands of Easterners whose day was disrupted by the season's first major storm.

From New England south along the Eastern Seaboard as far as Virginia, Thanksgiving activities in many areas were curtailed by a major snowstorm that ploughed up the coast.

Thousands of cars were stranded by snowfalls of up to 20 inches on Interstate routes in New York, Maryland and Pennsylvania.

Two hundred persons who planned to have Thanksgiving dinner on Nantucket Island were left on the mainland when wind-whipped, 8-foot seas halted steamer ship service.

New York City escaped the snow but rain and wind gusts grounded 11 giant balloons that were to have been in Macy's 45th annual Thanksgiving parade.

Despite the weather, bands played, dancers danced and majorettes from as far away as Texas and Georgia smiled bravely through strings of wet hair. It all looked great seen on television from a warm living room chair.

In the afternoon many of those same sets were tuned to the Nebraska-Oklahoma football clash that lived up to its billing as a college classic.

Nebraska won, 35-31, making the No. 1-ranked Cornhusker fans happy.

acting prison physician, said the warden had suffered a stab wound but appeared to be in good condition.

Some of the freed inmates also were said to have been injured and at least two were hospitalized with injuries including a possible fractured arm and back injuries.

Inmates told newsmen inside the prison that the warden had been injured by a prison guard who pulled a switchblade knife during the Wednesday night fighting. The prisoners released a statement they said was signed by the warden saying he was not harmed by the inmates and that they had sought medical aid for him.

Public Defender Stanley Van Ness said a team of eight attorneys would enter the prison Friday morning to talk with inmates seeking legal aid. He said prisoners would be fed and given medical attention during the night, and would be searched for weapons.

The agreement reached between the inmates and a special investigating team provided for the release of the hostages after the prisoners presented a list of 14 demands ranging from better medical care, improved food, more prompt parole hearings and an end to alleged racism by prison officers.

One prisoner, Clifton Brandon, said the rioting in the auditorium intensified when Vukcevic tried to take "a tough guy attitude" to restore order. Early Thursday, a state police spokesman told an Associated Press newsmen that about 50 helmeted state police armed with shotguns were prepared to break up the riot and regain control by force.

Police later denied that there was ever any decision to storm the two wings.

Assemblyman George Richardson, a black Democrat from nearby Essex County, said, however, that power at the prison was cut off in preparation for an attack but was later restored.

Fires, apparently fueled by mattresses and other debris, burned on and off during the day in the two captured wings.

Justice Dept. To Seek Ruling Against Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Acting on an order from President Nixon's Justice Department plans to seek a court injunction today to force 45,000 striking East and Gulf Coast longshoremen back to work for an 80-day cooling-off period.

In a letter Thursday from the Western White House in San Clemente, Calif., Nixon ordered Atty. Gen. John Mitchell to seek an injunction against the 57-day strike under provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

"The necessary papers are being prepared," a Justice Department spokesman said following the White House announcement. "The civil division undoubtedly expected something like this. We will be ready to move tomorrow (Friday)."

Nixon acted after a special board of inquiry, reconvened at his request, reported there was little chance of a quick settlement between the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) and shipping industry representatives.

ILA headquarters spokesmen were not available for comment, but Ralph Massey, president of the South Atlantic and Gulf Coast ILA district expressed disappointment at the decision.

"It just postpones the thing for 80 days," Massey said.

Nixon invoked the Taft-Hartley Act Oct. 4 to end a three-month strike by the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union on the West Coast.

The board of inquiry, which worked through the night Wednesday to assess the situation, concluded that the East and Gulf Coast negotiations had broken down over two "very sticky issues"—minimum pension guarantees and welfare contributions.

In addition to the longshoremen, the strike has idled 30,000 other union dock workers from Maine to Texas since Oct. 1.

Two Local Boys Hurt By Home-Made Device

"Luck" is a relative thing for two Pampa boys—Randy L. Greer, 8 and Keith Stone, 9. Injured in the blast of a home-made "firecracker" Thursday, both reportedly escaped damage to their eyes but it will be a three-day wait to see if they will need skin grafts.

The boys, sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Greer, 1105 Darby and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Stone, 2205 Christy, got a powder horn filled with black powder from the Stone's garage, according to the report of the investigating Pampa police officer, Roy E. Denman. They took the powder horn into an alley, poured some into a baby food jar, rolled some paper for a fuse, stuck it in the jar and lit it.

When the device failed to go off, the boys added more powder to the jar, made another paper fuse and lighted it throwing the match into the jar. Those who heard the explosion said it sounded as though a chain of firecrackers went off.

The boys were taken to Highland General Hospital initially for treatment then were transferred to High Plains Baptist Hospital at Amarillo for surgery.

The latest report on their condition said apparently their vision was in no danger but that they might require grafts for facial burns suffered in the accident.

Students Air Views On Touchy Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — A survey of high school student leaders indicates the young people are substituting booze for pot, like Democrats and think mom and pop are on target with discipline.

As for premarital sexual experience, it was maybe yes, maybe no, with 35 per cent of the respondents saying absolutely no, 15 per cent ducking the question and 50 per cent saying yes under a variety of conditions.

The survey, conducted for the Merit Publishing Co., Northfield, Ill., consisted of 23,000 replies from students in 18,000 of the nation's 23,000 public, private and parochial high schools. The publishing company said that the replies were not a reflection of today's average student but of the "opinions of student leaders and high achievers."

Ninety-six per cent of the students surveyed go on to college and nearly 96 per cent have better than a B-grade average.

Landing on the moon, the 18-year-old vote and the attack on pollution were three things students were proud of, and their top priorities included ending the Southeast Asian war, eliminating pollution and the continuing war on poverty.

Politically, 76 per cent of the young leaders said they believed political change could be brought about within the established system.

In several sample ballots, putting President Nixon against Senators Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., George McGovern, D-S.D., and Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, the President beat only Humphrey 44 per cent to 38 per cent. Muskie scored highest over the President 57 per cent to 28 per cent.

Although well over 90 per cent said they had never used the hard drugs and 76 per cent had not used marijuana, 76 per cent said all the drugs were readily available.

Alcohol gets more attention from this student segment, the survey showed. Only 34 per cent of the students said they never drank beer, 26 per cent hadn't tried wine and 39 per cent had shunned hard liquor. Usage of all three ranged from once or twice to daily, although there were no daily hard liquor drinkers.

Parents generally got passing grades.

Do parents understand your generation's problems? Thirtyone per cent said always and 51 per cent said at least half the time. Nearly half said communication lines were open all the time with their parents and 36 per cent said at least half the time.

Only three per cent failed to answer the question on home discipline. The vote went this way: about right, 80 per cent; too lenient, 5 per cent and too strict, 12 per cent.

Miss Teenage America To Be Held In Dallas

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Girls from over 50 cities begin arriving here today for the 11th annual Miss Teenage America contest.

The girls will be vying for college scholarships and other awards in the event that will be climaxed Dec. 3 by a live telecast from Tarrant County convention center.

The Labor party central committee then resolved to back the government's refusal to commit itself to troop withdrawal from any occupied Arab land, and it reaffirmed Israel's readiness for unconditional negotiations for peace.

Activist, Peace Groups Holding Meet In Dallas

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Liberals and liberal-radicals from across the nation kicked off a four-day National Coalition Convention in Dallas Thursday with the election of five presiding officers.

Those elected by the delegates included: Finley Campbell, senior presiding officer, an Indiana Peace and Freedom Party leader from Crawfordville, Ind., and four members of the Peace and Freedom Party from California—Marge Buckley of Free Venice, Gayle Justice of San Jose, Martin Carnoy of Mineral Park and Michael T. Schon of Pasadena.

Convention press officer Charles McMillen said the delegates' reception in Dallas has been "astounding."

The police have called us a number of times today asking if everything is going all right, and offering their help," McMillen said.

About 750 delegates from across the nation gathered for the group's strategy for next year's election campaigns and possibly to select a presidential candidate.

Represented at the convention are delegates from the New Reform Party, the District of Columbia Statehood Party, the South Carolina United Citizens Party, the New World Party of Illinois and Wisconsin, the Vermont Liberty Union, the Kentucky Peoples Party, the Independent New Mexico Party, the Michigan Human Rights Party and delegates from the New Party and the Peace and Freedom Party.

Convention Chairwoman Donna Branch of Tucson, Ariz., opened the meeting after a welcoming speech by the Rev. Peter Johnson of the Dallas chapter of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

Johnson brought greetings from the Rev. Ralph Abernathy, who succeeded Martin Luther King as head of the SCLC, and from Jesse Jackson, head of the SCLC-affiliated Breadbasket group in Chicago.

Dr. Benjamin Spock of New York, chairman of a fund raising committee, reported his group had gathered $10,000.

Other noted liberals among the delegates included Sharon Simpson of Long Beach, Calif., Marcus Raskin of Washington, D.C., and Gore Vidal, prominent novelist and activist.

A decision was expected Saturday on nomination of a presidential ticket.

A convention leader predicted the platform would include a stand against busing and open housing. The leader said, however, that if such stands were taken they would not be a "George Wallace thing" but a philosophy of allowing individuals to improve their conditions through their own resources which could be enlarged with a guaranteed minimum income.

23 Texans Die In Violence During Holiday

Violence took an early toll of lives over the Thanksgiving holidays, with traffic accidents and shootings leading the list.

The Associated Press began its tabulation at 6 p.m. Wednesday and continues it until midnight Sunday.

By early today, the death count reached 13, with seven dying in auto mishaps. Five have been shot to death and a fire claimed one life.

Early Friday a blaze swept through a one-story brick residence near McKinney on Texas 5 and burned a man beyond recognition. Fire Marshall E. L. Taylor said the dead man was the lone occupant in the house and believed the fire started in the kitchen.

Miss Bernice Wrightsil, 27, died Thursday night of a wound in the chest following a shooting in Dallas, police said.

Two Houston policemen shot Daniel Moreno, 27, to death Thursday in front of a Houston church where they alleged he had been annoying children. Police said Moreno fired at them with what turned out to be an airgun.

Mrs. Azelle Butler Turner, 42, of Greenville was killed early Thursday when she was struck by an automobile as she stood by her car on Interstate 30 and FM-36 southeast of the Hunt County seat.

David Buell, 19, of Houston was fatally shot Thursday in what officers called a hunting accident. The mishap occurred in northern Harris County.

A car struck and killed Verna Jones, 75, of Vernon as she was crossing a street Wednesday night in Vernon. Salvatore Patti, 52, of Denison died early Thursday when his car and a freight train collided in Denison.

A shooting at a Fort Worth tavern shortly before midnight Wednesday took the life of Johnnie Baldres Ruiz, 41, of Fort Worth. Witnesses said Ruiz and a friend entered a tavern and a patron shot him, then shot Ruiz several times while he lay on the floor.

Jennifer Johnson, 8, of Fort Worth was fatally shot Thursday when a 25-caliber pistol discharged while one of her brothers was playing with it. Her father, T. Sgt. James Johnson, is stationed at Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth.

Ann Elizabeth Connor, 15, and Jeffrey Todd, 16, both of Houston, killed in two car collisions about 11 p.m. Wednesday on Houston Freeway. Four others injured. Ernest J. Brackenbush, 20, of Houston, was killed early Thursday when his car collided with a parked trailer in Houston.

The privately funded $7.5 million hospital is located in the Palm Desert area, about 120 miles east of Los Angeles, where Eisenhower often came for winter golfing vacations.

Bob Hope—comedian, golfer, friend of the late president, and a prime mover in the hospital fund raising project—is master of ceremonies for Saturday's 11 a.m. dedication.

The President's widow, Mamie Eisenhower, will be among the participants. Nixon is the main speaker.

The guest includes such celebrities as Vice President Agnew, Gen. Omar Bradley, Gov. Ronald Reagan and Hollywood stars who frequent the resort area.

The white concrete general hospital building was designed by architect Edward Durell Stone. He also was the architect of the new Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, where the late president is memorialized with the Eisenhower Theater.

National Cemeteries Run Short Of Space

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only about 9,000 of the more than 55,500 Vietnam war dead have been buried in national cemeteries.

Army officials say this is because most families of war dead prefer to bury them in hometown cemeteries, with the government defraying much of the cost.

Although national cemeteries are gradually running out of space, there still is room for the Vietnam dead. There were more than 244,000 unfilled gravesites as of the end of September.

Still, there are an estimated 28.5 million surviving veterans of this country's wars and peace time service. All who were discharged honorably are technically eligible for a final resting place in a national cemetery, as are their wives, husbands and minor children who might die.

But most of these veterans will have to be buried in private cemeteries, where part of the expense is borne by the government under allowances totaling up to $500.

While the nation's veteran population has grown because of the Korean and Vietnam wars, the government hasn't authorized a new national cemetery in more than 20 years.

As a result, 48 of the 98 national cemeteries run by the Army and the Interior Department have been virtually closed and another six will be filled up within five years. More than 1.2 million gravesites are occupied.

The Army said it has no estimate when all the unfilled grave spaces will be gone. But the record showing more than 113,000 burials since 1966 suggests it may take only another 10 years.

What then? Congressmen have filed between 30 and 40 bills calling for expansion of the national cemetery system, which grew out of the Civil War.

But these bills appear to have little chance, according to a key staff specialist on the House Veterans Committee. He told a reporter, "We can't build cemeteries in everybody's backyard."

WILLIAM JACOBS Funeral services were to be held at 2 p.m. today in the Richardson Funeral Home Chapel, Shamrock, for William K. Jacobs, 45, of Shamrock who was dead on arrival at 2 p.m. Wednesday at Shamrock Hospital.

He had been a Shamrock resident since 1969 where he operated a service station. He was a World War II veteran.

Texas Weather A weak front loomed over the western part of Texas early today and, combined with a southerly circulation caused considerable cloudiness over the east and northeast portions of the state.

Some light drizzle and fog was found along the coast and as far inland as Austin and San Antonio. Some light rain also fell in the Brownsville area.

West of the front, skies were clear and early morning temperatures ranged from the upper 30s in the Panhandle to a 70 in Brownsville.

Castro Believes World Ripe 'For Left-Wing Revolution'

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Fidel Castro says the world political situation has become highly favorable for left-wing revolution. But he seeks takeover by force only as a last resort.

"The United States has reached a low point in its international prestige," Castro told members of left-wing Chilean parties Thursday night in Santiago's Municipal Theater.

The Cuban prime minister has been in Chile for more than two weeks—his first trip to another Latin American country since 1959, the year he came to power.

At the time of the Cuban revolution the world balance between socialism and imperialism was about even, Castro said, demonstrating with his hands.

"Now it's like this," he continued, raising one hand higher. "It has changed in favor of revolutionary movements."

Hoarse and tired after a heavy schedule of appearances, Castro termed the election of Marxist-Socialist Salvador Allende as president of Chile "a really unique achievement in history."

There never was any contradiction between achieving socialism through free elections and by doing so through Cuban-style armed conquest, Castro said.

4 Texans Die In Plane Crash

GARDEN CITY, Kan. (AP)—Wreckage of a light plane en route from Fort Worth, Tex., to Montana was found Thursday. Searchers found four Texans dead and a fifth critically injured at the scene on a farm near here.

The victims were Michael F. Klos, 28, the pilot, his wife, May, 24, and their daughter Pam, 5, all of Grapevine, Tex., and Klos' sister-in-law, Mrs. Edith Klos, 27, of Fort Worth.

The pilot's brother, Larry C. Klos, 24, of Fort Worth, was in Garden City hospital with head, leg and shoulder injuries.

The plane crashed late Wednesday when its right wing touched the ground, according to state police. The lone survivor was thrown from the craft.

Search efforts were hampered by overcast skies and heavy fog.

Church Damaged

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Authorities today were examining debris for clues to explosions that extensively damaged two black houses of worship in Rochester's inner city Thursday.

Police said the two blasts occurred three minutes apart, the first one hitting a small brick and frame building known as Muhammad's Mosque of Islam, the second at the Mt. Vernon Baptist Church less than 100 yards away.

BETTY CANARY

By BETTY CANARY
 I am not a nervous type, but I dislike taking a bath while a bird watches me. There is just something about having a parakeet sitting on the edge of the tub, clenching his feet and staring at you with his beady little eyes.

Not that I was surprised at having a bird in the bathroom today. I merely asked my daughter, "Why is your parakeet in the upstairs bathroom, dear?" And she gave me a logical answer. "Because I needed the hamster cage for my new mice."

"Don't tell me," I smiled serenely. "Let me guess! The hamster is in the bird cage?"
 "No, the hamster is in the cardboard box in the garage. As soon as I sell the baby mice, I'm buying him a new cage."

"O.K.," I whimpered. "Where are the gerbils?"
 "I could hardly leave them in the box. I needed it for the hamster!"

"Where!" I screamed.
 "In the utility tub — I used the racks from the grill over the top."
 "I don't mean to be selfish," I said sternly, "but you promised I could have the utility tubs back just as soon as you found a place for the turtles."

"That reminds me," she said. "If everybody will cooperate and not use the downstairs bathtub for a day or two, I'll have something figured out for the guppies."
 "I understand," I said. "The turtles are in the aquarium."

I am not a nervous type. I am calm. I am serene. I don't even mind living in Zoo's Who. All I want out of life is one empty bathroom.

Well, there is one other thing I want. I'd like a bird cage without a boa constrictor living in it.

Sausage Saves "Drop-In Panic"

Excellent insurance for providing for holiday drop-in guests is an ample supply of ready-to-serve smoked sausage products such as salami. Sliced, cubed or cut in julienne-style strips, salami is ideal for quick sandwiches or snacks. It can also be combined with many convenience pasta or rice products to produce a hot and hearty luncheon or supper casserole.

Jeans Still Rate High

Invented over a century ago for miners to wear while panning for gold during the California rush, jeans are one of the all-time fashion hits, reports Becky Dunlap, Extension clothing specialist at Texas A&M University.

Jeans today are worn by youth around the world, Miss Bradshaw notes. In fact, according to a current merchandising survey, jeans sales in the U.S. account for 20-72 percent of all pants sales, depending on the type of store involved.

Teenagers who comprise the biggest market for jeans, are demanding the pants infabrics besides denim. In addition to denim, current best sellers are velvet, crushed velvet and corduroy. Available in a wide range of colors and styles, jeans are worn around-the-clock and for every occasion.

They feel expensive clothes may enforce social constraints, Miss Bradshaw explained. For example, in some clothes, the wearer must be careful where he sits or leans, thus restricting movement.

Family Living Costs Told

For an urban U.S. family of four living on an intermediate budget, it cost an estimated $10,664 in Spring, 1970 reports Bonnid Fowler, Extension home management specialist. For a family of four on a lower budget, the cost was $6,960, compared to $15,511 for a family living on a higher budget.

These figures, based on Bureau of Labor statistics, are for an urban family of four with two children, a boy aged 13 and a girl 8, in which the homemaker is not employed.

Living costs very widely among various regions and cities, continues Mrs. Fowler. For example, the costs are generally lower in small cities and in southern parts of the United States. In nonmetropolitan areas of the south, living costs for the urban family of four on an intermediate budget averaged $9,862. The national average was $10,664.

According to the estimates, the family spent approximately 23 percent of their income for food, 23.4 percent on housing and 10.7 percent on clothing and personal care. Transportation accounted for 8.6 percent, while 5.3 percent went for medical care, and 18 percent was spent on taxes. All other spending, including gifts and contributions, occupational expenses and life insurance, totaled 11 percent.

Frozen Forecast
 A food and marketing expert recently predicted that in next 5 to 10 years less and less meat will be purchased in fresh form. Purchasing of pre-frozen, and perhaps even dehydrated, meats may become the order of the day at both retail and institutional market levels.

THE NUTCRACKER—The Amarillo Ballet Theater will present its third annual production of "The Nutcracker" at 8:15 p.m. Monday in the Amarillo Civic Center Auditorium. Three area dancers who will appear in the production are Dalton Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Stewart of White Deer and Pampa; Kris Richardson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Richardson of Pampa; and Brenda Crocker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Crocker of Pampa.

Nice Conversation Piece Is Made of Candle Bits

By POLLY CRAMER
 DEAR POLLY — I am answering B.H. who works for a florist and wonders what they can do with an accumulation of tall white candles left from weddings. After my sister's wedding, the florist melted all their leftover candles and made one big one which he presented to the couple to use as an anniversary candle.

Also, we keep some candles in a cupboard to use during an occasional electric failure.

GAIL
 DEAR POLLY — Seventeen years ago I started what I call a "Romance Candle." It is now a solid wax candle holder and was made from hundreds of slightly burned candles. Mine is a real conversation piece. It is over two feet tall, nine inches in diameter and is on a 12-inch aluminum tray. One candle, sometimes two or three, has been burned on it nearly every night for the 17 years.

To make one, cover a small bottle with melted candle drippings, place on metal tray, top with a candle. As it burns it will make beautiful drippings down the sides and eventually will build up into a large candle holder. When candle burns down, remove the short wick before placing another candle on top. Mine weighs about 20 pounds.

KAY

 DEAR POLLY — B.H. wanted to know what her florist shop could do with wedding ceremony candles that had only been burned for a short time. Why not donate them to the church in which the wedding was held? In our church the same candles are used for several Sundays. Also they might be given to the Girl Scouts or some other organization that would like to melt them to make decorative Christmas candles. My husband uses candle wax as a lubricant for wood screws.

Grandparents should let youth learn his lesson

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: When our son reached his 18th birthday, he announced that he was his own boss and could do as he pleased. He started skipping school, lying and staying out all night.

We tried to talk to him, but it did no good. After six months of this, we told him to either abide by our rules or find another place to sleep, which is all he ever came home for anyway.

He promptly packed up and left. Since then he has quit school, wrecked his car, bummed around and picked up odd jobs here and there.

Recently, my parents who live right next door, have been providing our son with food, shelter, and pocket money. Their door is left open all night, and if he doesn't come home, no questions are asked. We know they love him, and think they are helping him. We love him, too, but feel they are hurting him. Can we demand that they withdraw their help?

DEAR PARENTS: You can't demand anything, but you surely can explain to your parents that in their eagerness to "help" the boy, they are depriving him of a learning experience he desperately needs if he is ever to face life, meet its challenges, and be a man.

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a "kissing bug." He has to kiss me hello, goodbye, good morning, good night. You name it, he has a kiss for it, no matter where we are.

Last Friday I was in the beauty shop getting a permanent and my husband stopped in to leave me some money, and before he left he put his face in the shampoo bowl to kiss me goodbye! I felt so foolish. Even on street corners if we are going our separate ways for an hour, he has to kiss me goodbye.

What makes a man want to kiss so much? He can't possibly get anything out of those little token pecks. Or can he?

DEAR KISSED: Are you bragging or complaining? A kiss is a statement. It says, "I like you" or "I love you." It's a physical expression of approval or affection. The time to write a Dear Abby letter is when he STOPS kissing you.

DEAR ABBY: At a wedding reception, my husband and I were dancing together when this lady, a total stranger, came on the dance floor and tapped ME on the shoulder, indicating that she wanted to dance with my husband.

My husband was quite surprised, but he took his arms from around me and proceeded to dance with HER, leaving me stranded on the dance floor. Not knowing which way to turn, I then went to sit with friends.

I felt very humiliated to think that I was cast aside for a complete stranger. My husband had never seen that lady before!

When we discussed it at home later my husband said he couldn't understand why I was so upset. He said he danced with her to avoid making a scene on the dance floor.

Abby, what do you think should have been done in that situation? Wasn't that woman entirely out of line?

LEFT STANDING

DEAR LEFT: The woman was indeed out of line. But oftentimes when an unexpected situation arises, we are so astonished we act on the impulse, which is probably what your husband did. I doubt the situation will arise again.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ROCKY MARRIAGE IN S. F.": No, I don't think agreeing to "swing" will help. It's not a means to an end, it's the beginning of the end.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Couple Hosts Get-Together Of Relatives

A pre-Thanksgiving dinner, a family get-together, was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. John Killian, 522 N. Starkweather. Thirty-nine sisters, brothers, children, nieces, nephews, and grandchildren attended the event.

Children attending were the couple's three daughters and their families, who were Mr. and Mrs. O.D. Burba, Becky Betty, Richard and Robert of Wellington; Mr. and Mrs. James Silcott, Patrick and Bruce, of Pampa; and Dr. and Mrs. Mitchel Jones, David, Sam, Adam and Mollie, of Amarillo.

Another daughter and her family, Mr. and Mrs. John Williams, John Tom and Kathy, of Burkburnett, and a son and his family, Mr. and Mrs. James Killian, two sons and two daughters of Irving, were unable to attend.

Other relatives attending were Mr. and Mrs. Wade Nay of Longview; and Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Mount and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Duckworth, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Morley and children, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Daniels and five children, and Mr. and Mrs. James Silcott Jr., all of Amarillo.

DRESS UP TOTS — Holiday time is for children and they like to be as dressed up as the grownups for the festivities. Here are two ways to approach the situation. Top and pants by Nannekins in bright red double knit, left, is teamed with a giraffe shoulder bag and chain. Knit flare pants match fabric of bag and top trim. Pretty two-piece dress in Dacron and cotton by Nannette, right, has quilted vest embroidered in green stitching. White flocked bodice is attached to skirt.

Campaign Of Airline Runs Into Turbulence

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — National Airlines "Fly me...I'm Barbara" campaign has run into some more turbulence.

This time, it's not Women's Lib. "The gay libs in New York began complaining because we hadn't named any planes for boys," Walt Robshaw, a National spokesman, said Friday.

Robshaw, who has his hands full right now with "Barbara," isn't eager to have the big jets called back for rechristening.

Robshaw said he didn't know how the Gay Lib complaint was lodged.

"I'm not sure specifically whether it was by letter or what," he said. "I got the word from New York, verbally. It came right on top of Women's Lib."

Women's Liberation took National to federal court here complaining the "fly me" campaign was suggestive and exploited women. But a judge turned down the plea.

Perhaps to prove it wasn't a male chauvinist outfit, National had new "fly me" buttons printed for employees.

"Fly me, I'm Bruce," or George, or Clyde, they beckoned.

Robshaw said the whole thing started with National trying to play it straight. But gimmicky.

"We wanted to select the most popular names of girls," he said. "So we asked our computer to feed out the first names which occurred most frequently among our 3,000 to 4,000 female employees."

"That's how we got Barbara and about 60 other names."

By now, he said, "each of National's planes has one of our girls' names painted on its nose."

No name appears more than once.

The idea is if you've flown one, you haven't flown them all, he said.

Make Turkey Leftovers Exciting Planned-Overs

It's turkey time again. And after holiday feasting, there are always turkey leftovers.

But those leftovers can be frozen and used later when the family is again ready for a turkey treat, says Karen Kreipke, Extension foods and nutrition specialist at Texas A&M University.

Leftover turkey can be taken off the bones, used in combination dishes and frozen for later use. To prevent vegetables and other ingredients in these dishes from becoming too soft or having a warmed-over taste when reheated, slightly undercook the initial product, advises Miss Kreipke.

Another way to assure a better final product is to cool food dishes immediately after cooking, she continues. Cooling stops the cooking process and helps preserve the natural food flavor, color and texture. To cool, set the uncovered pan of food in iced or very cold water, changing the water as often as necessary to keep it cool. Unbreakable pans may be placed directly on ice.

"Avoid placing a very hot dish directly in the refrigerator," says the specialist. "This may cause other refrigerated foods to warm up and spoil."

Foods to be baked after freezing may be frozen directly in ovenproof containers. To do this, line the casserole dish with heavy aluminum foil, then freeze the food. When frozen, remove the aluminum foil "package" containing the food. This frees the casserole for other uses while the food is stored. And since the frozen food will be in the shape of the casserole, simply remove the foil and replace the food in the casserole when ready for reheating or cooking.

Several methods can be used for thawing frozen foods, reminds Miss Kreipke. Thawing time will depend on the package size as well as the method used.

One technique is to place the package on a plate or pan in the refrigerator.

Or, place the frozen item on a counter at room temperature. Thawing at room temperature requires less time, but the food must be checked more often than when defrosted in the refrigerator, she adds.

And if the package is truly moisture proof, the food may be placed in a bowl of cold water or under cool running tap water.

"For best results with all defrosting methods, leave the food in its freezer packaging during the thawing period. Foods should also be cooked as soon as possible," the specialist recommends.

Remember bacteria are not killed by freezing—their growth is only stopped. Most food bacteria are killed at temperatures above 160 degrees F. and will not grow well at temperatures below 40 degrees F. Bacteria found in food grow best between 60 and 115 degrees F. Avoid this temperature range by keeping hot foods hot and cold foods cold.

During preparation, keep the food and any equipment touching the food clean.

As a final suggestion, Miss Kreipke says a stuffed turkey, either a raw or cooked bird, should never be frozen. Stuffing prevents the penetration of heat and cold.

"With a little planning, you can enjoy your special holiday turkey meal, then have interesting turkey dishes throughout the following weeks," she says.

St. Mark's Plans Anniversary Day

Rev. Monroe Woods Jr.

Minister, Radio Host In Series

The Rev. E. Dale Franks, Albuquerque, N.M., co-host of the syndicated radio program "Sounds of the Gospel," will begin a series of meetings at 7 p.m. Sunday at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, 1200 S. Sumner.

Rev. Franks will speak each evening except Monday and Saturday with a special invitation to the public, according to the pastor, Rev. Gene Allen.

Rev. Allen noted that the visiting preacher's ministry had taken him throughout much of the United States with music always an integral part of that ministry. He has made concert and stage appearances and radio and television broadcasts. Many of his concerts have been slanted toward young people presented in high school and college campuses. He has had a record album recently released.

When he was master of ceremonies for the regular evening broadcast of "Inspirational Night songs" on a Houston radio station, he hosted many well-known personalities in the gospel music field introducing their latest records to his audience. A considerable portion of his ministry has been devoted to working with troubled young people. For a time he was educational director for Dallas Teen Challenge, a program that specialized in the rehabilitation of drug addicts and helping young people in trouble. It is from the wealth of this background that Rev. Franks will speak during the services this coming week at Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, the pastor, Rev. Allen assured.

St. Mark Christian Methodist Episcopal Church is 39 years old.

Sunday at 3 p.m. the minister, Rev. Monroe Wood Jr., the present congregation, Ted Dotts of the United Methodist Church, Pampa District and a host of visiting guests and friends will observe the anniversary.

The sermon by Dotts will highlight the services that begin with the prelude by Mrs. G. Russey. A part of the program will be special musical selections by guest choirs in addition to the regular song service.

Guest churches scheduled to participate are Carter Chapel CME, Amarillo; Henderson Chapel CME, Clarendon; Progressive Baptist Church, Open Door Church of God in Christ, First United Methodist Church, Macedonia Baptist Church and Oklahoma Street Church of Christ, all Pampa congregations.

The Rev. Wood promises that good singing and good preaching will be plentiful.

Refreshments will be served in the fellowship hall of the church at the close of the special afternoon services marking the anniversary.

The church was started in 1932 in the declining days of Pampa's oil boom. Despite the lean years that followed for everyone, the church has grown in size and the reach of its ministry to the community. In addition to the pastor, Rev. Wood, other officers of the church are Norris S. Curry, presiding bishop and Wade E. Patterson, presiding elder. The church is located at 408 Elm St.

Overcoming Oppression Is Facing It

Oppression in any form needs to be faced up to and overcome.

This is a theme to be discussed at Christian Science church services Sunday in a Bible Lesson-Sermon entitled "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Mesmerism and Hypnotism Denounced."

"Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good," one of the Scriptural texts states.

A spiritual solution to oppression is indicated in these words of Mary Baker Eddy in "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures."

"A few immortal sentences, breathing the omnipotence of divine justice, have been potent to break despotic fetters and abolish the whipping-post and slave market."

MISS EDNA DEAKINS, MOTHER OF 26 — And she wanted it that way! Here she is shown with one of the children ranging from a few weeks to 18 years she has taken, treated, fed and educated in her 14 years as an independent agent in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Miracles Aid Mother Raising 26 Children

SAO PAULO, Brazil — Miss Edna Deakins, 57, wanted to be a missionary and she wanted to work with children. Someone told her Brazil was a good place to do it — so she came here 14 years ago with less than $100 and "deep faith in the Lord."

Today she is "mother" to 26 children ranging in age from a few weeks to 18 years — white, black and oriental. When they came to Miss Deakins they were dirty, diseased, half-starved and often near death. Today they are bright-eyed, clean, healthy and vigorous.

"We don't call this an orphanage," says Miss Deakins. "We call it home." Her home has no permanent organized support from any group or organization. She runs it singlehandedly finding financial backing and support where she can.

She does not put her children up for adoption. When she takes them she keeps them for her children.

A native of Southern California, Miss Deakins gave up a secretarial job there in the early 1950s to go to Europe to work as a missionary. In Catholic Portugal she was barred from working among children because of her religion.

She went to England but to work again as a secretary. At the end of five years she came to Brazil. Soon after her arrival in Sao Paulo, she heard of a six-months old baby who needed a home. That was the beginning. That boy, Sergio, now 15, still lives with her.

The family has recently moved into a large roomy house donated by the Dutch church. Now, she accepts only those children who are truly hardship cases — children who are abandoned at birth or whose parents are dead and there is no place for them to go.

"Most of them come to me sick," she says. "They have been neglected to the point where they are ill with malnutrition and worms."

She nurses them back to good health and makes sure that each gets the finest education possible. This poses the most often asked question — How does she manage without a steady income to raise the children and faced with constant problems most families face only rarely?

"We have had one miracle after another," is her explanation. She illustrates this with the story of the approaching birthday of one of the younger children who had her heart set on a birthday cake — a true luxury in Miss Deakins family. Rations were low and there was no money to buy a cake or even the ingredients.

At this point one of the many American women who frequently look in on the home walked in. "Edna," she said, "I had meant to bring you a package of food but at the last minute I looked in the pantry and the only thing I could find was this. She had a box of cake mix."

Even Navy Works To Save Old Tomes

PATMOS, Greece — Historians both secular and ecclesiastical are agreed this small island in the Aegean Sea was the place of exile for John the Apostle — St. John the Divine to some divisions of Christianity — where he authored the Revelation, the last book of the New Testament.

Since then some 16,000 books and documents relating to Greece's Christian past have found their way here with the 900-year old Monastery of St. John the Evangelist as the repository. These are showing the ravages of time and climate to the alarm of many, bringing about a concerted effort on the part of persons and organizations both in America and in Greece.

One person, Mrs. Lloyd H. Smith, Houston, is credited with the existence of the "Patmos Monastery Library Project" and much of the work it has accomplished. Mrs. Smith visited the monastery two years ago while on a cruise in the Aegean and immediately took a keen interest in the library and a concern for its many rotting volumes.

Upon her return to the states, she contacted a number of scholars and initiated a fund-raising campaign for a $200,000 project aimed at both saving and cataloging the literary treasures of the island.

Presently involved in the project are the Center for Byzantine Research of Athens, the Patmos Preservation Trust, The Institute for Antiquity and Christianity of the Claremont (Calif.) University Center — and the U.S. Sixth Fleet.

These have undertaken to catalogue, index, microfilm and study the collection of some 2,900 handwritten or printed books and 13,000 other documents in the monastery library.

A room has already been erected in a special section of the library and fitted with shelves and stands. The Sixth Fleet, donating an air conditioning unit for the room, will transport it to the monastery site by helicopter there is no other available means of transporting such a bulky object to the island.

The library has been inventoried only twice — once in 1109 and again in the early part of the last century. Ranging in age from the Eighth to the Nineteenth century, the books and manuscripts are principally, though not exclusively, religious in content — including biblical texts, patriotic writings, canon law books and hagiographical or ascetic works.

Linkletter On Special Radio Hour

ST. LOUIS, Mo. — "On Your Doorstep," a special Lutheran Hour broadcast concerning drug misuse, and featuring an interview with Lutheran Hour Speaker Dr. Oswald Hoffmann and Art Linkletter, will be carried by more than 2,200 radio stations in the United States and Canada Sunday.

In addition to the regular Lutheran Hour network of 1,100 stations, approximately 1,100 other stations have agreed to carry a special version of the program as a public service to their listeners.

Linkletter, president of the National Coordinating Council on Drug Abuse and Education and Information in the United States, has called the drug problem a worldwide one, "a problem which cuts across all lines—economic, educational, geographical and religious." He added, "It is on our doorstep, no matter who we are or where we live."

Linkletter is involved with the Linkletter-Appleton Plan, a program for community involvement attacking the drug problems. The plan is sponsored by the Aid Association for Lutherans of Appleton, Wis.

Protestant Clergymen Satisfied But Feel They Are Underpaid

By GEORGE W. CORNELL, AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Most Protestant clergymen, particularly in the older categories, are satisfied in their profession. But they feel they're underpaid. And many are chaffing under parish pressures.

As in the Roman Catholic priesthood, an increasing number of them seem to be opting out.

These are among the findings of a variety of studies, surveys and symposiums conducted recently in an effort to gauge the mood and problems in the ministry.

Garrett Theological Seminary, a United Methodist institution in Evanston, Ill., made a survey of 4,472 alumni and found that most clergymen enjoy their work and have a sense of accomplishment about it.

But this attitude prevails more among older clergy than among the young.

Seventy per cent of those graduated in 1930s are "highly satisfied" in their work, while only 55 per cent of the graduates of the 1960s feel that way about it.

However, another survey of 4,984 clergymen in 21 denominations, made by the Society for the Advancement of Continuing Education for Ministers, found that 88 per cent of the total feel they are underpaid.

The median annual income for those polled was $8,037, including housing and other allowances.

Although they have to spend nearly as many years of study preparing for their profession as doctors or lawyers, they earn less than a third as much on the average.

Nevertheless, only 9 per cent of them said they were "dissatisfied with being in the ministry."

On the other hand, recent studies indicate the exodus from the ministry is increasing, both among Protestants and Roman Catholics.

The Rev. Dr. E.A. Vordery, of Atlanta, Ga., told a meeting of Southern Baptist home missions leaders in Ridgecrest, N.C., that estimates put the total leaving as high as 10,000 pastors and priests each year.

Among them are some of the best clergymen, he said, adding that common reasons for their departures include inadequate salaries, the general apathy of congregations and unreasonable pressures and expectations placed on them.

Many go into depression, he said, under pressures from denominational administrators, divergent expectations of members for making the church prosper and because of the inability to satisfy the often conflicting demands.

In the Roman Catholic Church, its bishops consider the loss of priests from their vocations as the most urgent problem in the Church, according to a survey by Gallagher Report, an authoritative business publication.

It found that 83 per cent of 31 bishops questioned regard the shrinkage of priestly vocations as the Church's No. 1 problem.

SOUTH PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Hank Mann, believed to be the last survivor of Mack Sennette's original Keystone Kops, has died here at the age of 84.

Entering motion pictures in 1912, Mann played one of the bumbling, bowler-hatted policemen in numerous movies and made occasional character actor appearances as late as 1960.

He died Thursday at the Braewood Convalescent Hospital. Funeral services were not announced and will be private.

He is survived by his widow, Dolly.

Mormon Colonists Moved Into Mexico Seeking Freedom To Be Polygamous

EDITOR'S NOTE: In 1885 Mormon settlers crossed into northern Mexico in a pilgrimage to avoid prosecution under the United States new polygamy laws. Others followed, and by 1912 about 4,000 Anglos had constructed eight colonies that looked much like U.S. communities. Today, only two colonies remain: Colonia Juarez and Dublin. The combined Anglo population is down to about 600.

By THOMAS FENTON, Written For The Associated Press

COLONIA JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Nelle Hatch sat in the parlor of her Midwest style home on a maple-lined street, in the foothills of Mexico's northern Sierra Madres.

The Mormon colony's oldest resident waited patiently for her daughter, Ernestine, to change a hearing aid battery. When it was in place, the 84-year-old Mrs. Hatch smiled, turned and said, "I suppose you want to hear about George Romney of Michigan? But his family left the area in 1912. Only some cousins are here now."

"The others who come here," she said, "always seem interested in polygamy. But that stopped here in 1905."

Mrs. Hatch has lived in Colonia Juarez since 1891. She recalls sessions at the water turn, when water was so precious that even dishwater was used on crops.

By the turn of the century the colonies were prospering. A few years later, Mrs. Hatch saw them almost destroyed during the Mexican revolution. In 1912, after being threatened repeatedly, all but a few of the colonists left for the United States.

Mrs. Hatch said she had returned to the colony less than a month later with a group. She found buildings occupied or destroyed, and telephone and power lines dangling where supports had been cut for firewood.

"It took years for us to get back on our feet again," said Mrs. Hatch, "but even then,

DALLAS (AP) — A training project to help state agencies develop programs for rehabilitating welfare recipients has been undertaken by the School of Allied Health Professions at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School.

The approach, according to Dr. Donald A. Pool, is to get state rehabilitation and state welfare agencies to work together.

"There are basic kinds of things done to develop coordination of services between vocational rehabilitation and welfare agencies with the ultimate goal of getting the welfare recipient back to work," he said. Dr. Pool is chairman of the rehabilitation science department in the health professions school.

One conference on the project has been held, involving heads of these agencies in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, in addition to personnel from regional offices of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Population Profile

America's population profile is increasingly that of young, married, affluent suburbanites who are mostly on the move, following job and other economic opportunities from one section of the country to another. Median age today, according to the most recent census, is 28 meaning that every other person in the U.S. is under the age of 28. However, the largest income earning group still consists of people between the ages of 35 and 64. Largest group in total numbers is comprised of those under 15.

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Police have begun issuing 50,000 special traffic summonses—wishing motorists "a most joyous and rewarding holiday season."

The summonses look like an ordinary parking ticket, but the reverse side contains a message surrounded by a green holly border. They will be given to motorists who leave their cars unlocked or valuable articles inside.

"Lock your car, pocket the keys," urges each summons, which explains larcenies of and from automobiles increase during the holiday season.

The special tickets are not used as a penalty, just a reminder.

More Mouths to Feed

The 1970 human population figure is expected to reach the 3.6 billion point. With the world having a 2 per cent increase rate every 3 years in population, we are adding 1 million people every five days 70-75 million people each year. To feed that many more people, agriculture must continue to utilize the tools and weapons of production efficiency: machinery, vehicles, fertilizers and chemicals.

Supers Score 3/4 of Sales

In 1970, small stores representing 66 per cent of all grocery stores accounted for 12 per cent of the sales. Sixteen per cent of all grocery stores were "superettes" and they accounted for 13 per cent of the sales. On the other hand, supermarkets, representing only 18 per cent of all grocery stores, took in 75 per cent of the sales.

Millions More Needed

Strong demand for meat products is expected throughout the rest of this decade. By 1980, capita consumption of beef is expected to increase 17 pounds, pushing the total figure to 130 pounds of beef per person. This anticipated increase will require an additional 11 to 12 million more head of cattle.

There will also be an expanded market for hogs in order to keep up with the expected U.S. population figure of 250 million. Current projections indicate a need for 100 to 150 million head of hogs by 1980.

Associated Press Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — John Ford can bring out in actors as many curves and bends as we have in federal highways. Gov. Ronald Reagan said at a gala salute to the well-known movie director.

After 140 films as a director, Ford made an appearance as an actor Tuesday night and his performance was applauded by a stellar audience.

Among those saluting him were two veteran actors who have worked for Ford—John Wayne and James Stewart—and one who hasn't—Reagan.

"One of my great regrets is that I was never directed by John Ford," said Reagan, who officiated at the showing of "Directed By John Ford." The film is a documentary directed by Peter Bogdanovich, the hottest new director around because of the movie "The Last Picture Show." The Ford film, which has appeared at the New York and San Francisco film festivals, was sponsored by the American Film Institute.

The 76-year-old Ford, considered by most critics the greatest director in American films and the only one to win four Academy Awards, rarely appears in public, especially since he broke his hip last year. But Ford, a retired Navy admiral, came to the showing, walking with the aid of a cane.

He seemed touched by the tributes. But he was as cantankerous as ever when asked about the film.

Many U.N. Diplomats Want World Body To Be Removed From N.Y.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A growing number of U.N. diplomats say they have just about had it with New York City and are hinting at a move.

They want no more of sniper shootings, protest demonstrations, sugar in gas tanks, rude policemen and other woes common to the city.

A delegate from Ceylon, Christopher W. Pintosaid U.N. delegates are subject to "an extraordinary form of censorship" in New York.

"It tells them: 'Let your views meet with the approval of all shades of the city's opinion or suffer at the hands of the particular group you have offended.'"

"New York is supposed to be a swinging, permissive city," said Pinto, "but where is this permissiveness when it comes to giving expression to the views of the countries represented here?"

Behind the complaints is the hint of a threat to move the world organization to another country.

The threat is nothing new, but it is being said now by more delegates and in louder voices. Representatives of countries as different as Spain and Mongolia are demanding that the U.S. government do something to improve the diplomatic lot.

The Soviet Union, a leading target of some of New York's less hospitable elements, is making a bargaining point of recent reports that the city receives large financial benefits from the U.N. presence.

The Russians, angered by a sniper attack on their mission last month, had the question of security added to the agenda of the General Assembly.

Consideration of the item in the assembly's legal committee has unleashed a torrent of speeches on the injustices of New York.

Besides the robberies, burglaries, flag rippings and demonstrations, delegates complain that New York policemen are not properly instructed on how to treat foreign diplomats.

Many also think the confusing division of authority in the United States is nonsense. It forces diplomats to deal with City Hall and the police and fire departments while they think the federal government, through the U.S. mission here, should take care of all matters pertaining to U.N. delegates.

U.S. Ambassador George Bush told the delegates that he hopes for congressional action on a State Department proposal to extend federal protection to foreign U.N. diplomats and officials. The New York Police Department now has that responsibility.

But to the Russians the answer is clear: The United States doesn't need more laws, just more enforcement.

They were infuriated by the recent release on bail of a youth held in connection with the sniper attack on the Soviet mission. They say it was another example of the policy of U.S. authorities to "turn a blind eye" to such acts.

Many delegates also would like "high Washington officials," who they did not name, to stop criticizing the United Nations. And they want American news media to tone down coverage of criminals and radical groups.

Both the officials and the press, it is contended, encourage unruly people to act against foreign diplomats.

Instead, say the delegates, politicians should say nice things about the United Nations, and the press, radio and television should launch an education campaign to change American attitudes.

Only a few countries—mostly Western—have avoided heavy criticism of the United States in the debate.

After decades of disuse, theater organs are enjoying a modest comeback.

Pampa To Play Host To Fort Worth Team

The Hustling Harvesters will be hosting a tall Fort Worth Arlington Heights Yellow Jacket team tomorrow afternoon and night in Harvester Fieldhouse.

The games will start at 4:30 with the sophomore teams followed by a 6 p.m. Shocker encounter. The main gate feature between the battling Pampa Harvesters and the Yellow Jackets will tip off at 8 p.m.

The Harvesters are sporting a perfect 2 and 0 season after defeating Breckenridge 201 to 69 and drubbing South Garland 55 to 54.

The Harvesters are picked for the District 3-AAAA crown in pre-season polls and are showing their strength with Donnie Cain and Mike Edgar the big Guns.

Richard Bunton, having trouble in the Fort Worth area with foul trouble is expected to put on a fine show for Pampa fans tomorrow night.

Edgar led the Harvesters with 22 points against Breckenridge and Cain dumped in 16 against South Garland to give the Pampans their perfect season.

In tomorrow nights games the Harvesters are favored to win but needless to say Fort Worth is a Basketball City. The duel promises to be a fast moving game with a brilliant show of speed by the Harvesters on their fast break.

According to Harvesters, Cain and Marsh Gambin, "Our break is better than the South Garland score indicated."

Sullivan Given Heisman Award

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — "Congratulations Pat Sullivan."

Those words were strung up on a theater marquee in this small campus town, and though the students were away for Thanksgiving holidays, the theater's tributes seemed to catch the prevailing mood. Auburn had become Heisman Trophy Town after the Tigers' senior quarterback, Patrick Joseph Sullivan, was awarded the 1971 crown Thursday night.

Sullivan had been sequestered in a town motel to await the announcement, which came from the Downtown Athletic Club of New York City during halftime ceremonies of the nationally televised Georgia-Georgia Tech game.

The 21-year-old native of Birmingham, Ala. said he was dazed when he heard his name called, but that he was in better shape when Head Coach Ralph "Shug" Jordan drove over to the motel to pay him a compliment.

"He was just real happy," Sullivan said of his coach, who is in his 21st year at the helm of the Sugar Bowl-bound Tigers.

Jordan, for the most part, turned the spotlight over to the quarterback who has guided Auburn to 26 victories in 31 games over the past three years. But he did say: "Speaking for the staff and the team, we're extremely proud of Pat Sullivan's winning the Heisman trophy."

"We think he deserved it because he's had three outstanding and consistent years. The Downtown Athletic Club of New York City has done him a great honor. They certainly picked a most deserving winner in Pat Sullivan."

Sullivan was also paid a complimentary call by his friend, Johnny Musso, whose unbeaten Alabama team collides with the undefeated Tigers in Birmingham Saturday.

Bucks Vs. New Deal In Regional Tilt

The White Deer Bucks, behind the coaching of J.T. Hill and staff will fall behind the impressive quarterbacking abilities of Ricky Hoskins tomorrow night at Dick Bivens Stadium in Amarillo in an attempt to capture their Regional Title.

The Bucks slaughtered Memphis last week to advance to the 7:30 p.m. game tomorrow night. The Lions, added their Bi-District crown to a string of wins after upsetting Vega with penetrations in a 7-7 battle last Friday night.

Coach Hill has confidence in the Bucks and when asked about New Deal stated, "Overall I would have to truthfully say that the Lions aren't as strong as the Memphis team. We will have to keep our guard up but our plans this year are for the State Crown."

Rick Hoskins is suffering from bruised finger but this should not make a difference in his own bruising attack.

The Bucks are rated number two in state, just a few points behind number one, Sonora. Last year Petersburg caught the Bucks off guard to end their bid for the State Crown but players and coaches agree this is the year for the Bucks.

COOL HAND HOSKINS — A handoff for more yardage is just one of the attacks used by the mighty Bucks from White Deer High School in their bid for the State Crown. The Bucks face New Deal 7:30 p.m. in Dick Bivens Stadium for the Regional Title Saturday night. (Staff Photo)

Dallas Cowboys Leading Redskins

ASSOCIATED PRESS Sports Writer

The Dallas Cowboys have tightened their grasp on the National Conference East lead and, by doing so, have thrown the West into an even wider three-way scramble.

The Cowboys beat Los Angeles 28-21 in one of Thursday's National Football League games—Detroit topped Kansas City 32-21 in the other—to open a one-game edge over Washington in the NFC East.

That also sent the Rams skidding back into a virtual deadlock with San Francisco in the West—and Atlanta is only half a game behind the frontrunners.

The 49ers can take sole possession of first with a victory over the New York Jets Sunday and the Falcons can stay in the race by turning back Minnesota.

Sunday's other games have Washington at Philadelphia, St. Louis at the New York Giants, New Orleans against Green Bay at Milwaukee, New England at Buffalo, San Diego at Cincinnati, Denver at Pittsburgh, Cleveland at Houston and Baltimore at Oakland. On Monday night, Chicago visits Miami.

"I feel sore but happy," Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach said after scrambling for 33 yards and passing for 176 more. "We won it and it was a big win."

"I wasn't anxious to run a lot, though," he said. "I wasn't looking for any holes to run through." His 11-yard fourthquarter scamper set up Duane Thomas game-winning fiveyard touchdown run.

Staubach also rifled touchdown passes of 51 yards to Bob Hayes and 21 to Lance Alworth and Isaac Thomas steamed 89 yards with a kickoff return for the Cowboys' other scores.

Roman Gabriel, the Rams' quarterback who struck for touchdown passes of 33 yards to Bob Klein and two yards to Pat Curran, passed for 234 yards but suffered an injury. "It's my normal artificial turf knee," he sighed. "I'm three-for-three on it—two hurt knees and a concussion."

The Rams held a 14-7 lead heading toward halftime but, instead of increasing it, they blew it when a fake field goal backfired.

"I've hit that play a million times in practice," said holder Jerry Rhome, who overthrew an open receiver. On the next play Staubach unleashed his scoring bomb to Hayes.

The Lions, clinging to hopes of catching Minnesota in the NFC Central Division, moved within a game of the Vikings while dealing Kansas City a big setback as the Chiefs fell a full game back of Oakland in the American Conference West.

But despite the loss, Chiefs Coach Hank Stram said, "We're still in good shape for the playoffs." Ed Podolak scored all three Kansas City touchdowns on runs of 2, 5 and 6 yards.

But the Chiefs couldn't shut down Lions quarterback Greg Landry, who passed for 225 yards, including touchdowns of five yards to Charlie Sanders and 17 to Earl McCullough. Steve Owens, who led all rushers with 79 yards.

Nixon Calls Coaches Of Oklahoma And Red

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Winning Coach Bob Devaney and loser Chuck Fairbanks both received telephone calls from President Nixon Thursday after top-ranked Nebraska's 35-31 victory over second-ranked Oklahoma.

The calls were about 20 minutes apart. The President failed to make connections on his initial attempt to reach each coach, and Devaney and Fairbanks had to return the call from a pay station.

Nixon asked Devaney about the exciting game, and the Nebraska coach replied, "Yes, sir, they sold a lot of popcorn today. Nobody left."

Nixon also asked about Nebraska's Jan. 1 Orange Bowl game with Alabama.

"Alabama is a fine team, but I don't think our boys are looking past Hawaii next week," Devaney returned.

Fairbanks, dejected when he heard about Nixon's call, smiled when the connection was finally made.

"We did play well."

Pirates To Battle Newcastle

The Lefors Pirates sporting a 7-3 record and a big homecoming win over Groom will be meeting Newcastle tonight in Lefors at 7:30 p.m. in a joust for the Bi-District title.

The Pirates are favored in their run to the state crown with a powerpacked backfield and an explosive defense.

Tailback Mike Robbins is leading the Pirate attack with over a 1,000 yards rushing to his credit going into tonight's game.

The offensive duties are managed by quarterback David White. White can throw the ball well and has the good habit of breaking loose for the big running play.

One of White's best targets in the Pirates aerial attack is Lonnie Sims. Sims has snagged 45 of White's missiles. White has hit for a total of 78 of 120 attempts this season.

Whites 65 percent aerial attack coupled with a strong defense should crumble Newcastle's best.

Georgia Dogs Romps Past Georgia Tech

ATLANTA (AP) — Sophomore Jimmy Poulos plunged over from the one-yard line with 14 seconds remaining as Georgia stormed to a 28-24 comeback football victory over Georgia Tech Thursday night in a nationally televised battle of bowl-bound teams.

Sophomore quarterback Andy Johnson hit on four passes for 49 yards and scampered 22 yards on a keeper to move the Bulldogs 65 yards in the final 1:35 of the game for the winning touchdown.

Texas Blasts Aggies, 34-14

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Texas' 34-14 Thanksgiving Day victory over the Texas Aggies gave the horns an unprecedented fourth straight Southwest Conference football championship but it marked the end of an era for the Aggies.

Several hours after the Longhorns had rolled over A&M, the A&M board of directors announced that Athletic Director and head football coach Gene Stallings would be relieved of all his responsibilities effective Dec. 1.

Marvin Tate, associate athletic director, was named acting athletic director.

A committee consisting of representatives of the athletic council, administration and board of directors will be formed to begin a search for a Stallings' successor," the terse statement said.

The brief statement ended a seven-year tenure for Stallings, during which he compiled a 27-45-1 record and took the Aggies to the Southwest Conference championship in 1967 and a 20-16 Cotton Bowl victory over Alabama. It was the Aggies' only winning season under Stallings.

It also ended rumors that had circulated since the Aggies lost five of their first six games before catching fire for four straight victories prior to Thursday's loss to the 12th ranked Longhorns.

Stallings, who replaced Hank Foldsberg in 1964, spoke confidently prior to a meeting in the home of A&M President Jack Williams Thursday that he would continue as the Aggie coach.

"I've got another year on my contract," Stallings said. "I've got an oral contract. It's man-to-man agreement. I've never signed a contract since I've been here."

"Right after we won the conference championship I went to President (Earl) Rudder and suggested a written contract," Stallings said. "He told me I didn't need one. He told me I could coach at Texas A&M as long as I wanted to."

President Williams became the A&M president following the death of Rudder in the spring of 1970.

Stallings said he would not be available following the meeting with Williams. He said if the news was bad, he wanted time to think about a statement.

As for the game, it was a case of the Aggies returning to their old habits of making the mistakes that had cost them five losses in the opening six games. During their four-game winning streak, the Aggies had played almost errorless football, committing only three turnovers.

But that all changed Thursday. The Aggies lost the ball three times on interceptions and twice on fumbles and the opportunist Longhorns capitalized on enough errors to make it a runaway in the first half.

Texas got its first quarter touchdown after Hugh McElroy fumbled a Texas punt and Willie Zapalac recovered for the Longhorns. Halfback Jim Bartelsen barreled over from the one six plays later.

Texas scored three times in the second quarter with quarterback Donnie Wigginton going over from the one each time for both of his scores and fullback Dennis Ladd running one yard for the other.

Ladd's touchdown was set up by the first of two pass interceptions by Longhorn defensive back Alan Lowry.

Lowry intercepted again in the third quarter and the Longhorns capitalized with Bertelsen's second touchdown, this one for eight yards.

The Aggies finally got on the scoreboard in the third quarter when Joe Mac King hit Billie Joe Polasek on a 15-yard touchdown pass. In the fourth quarter, Aggie tailback Mark Green ran over from two yards out to cap a 60-yard drive in nine plays.

"Texas always seems to get the breaks," Green said. "Of course, they took advantage of our mistakes too."

Cornhuskers Outrush Oklahoma

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Nebraska beat Oklahoma ... at its own game.

Not only did the Cornhuskers defuse Oklahoma's volatile Wishbone attack, but they outrushed the nation's best rushing team, 297 yards to 279, and they did it on five fewer carries.

That was the story of Thursday's classic see-saw showdown, which wound up with top-ranked Nebraska's defending national champions turning back runner-up Oklahoma 35-31 on Jeff Kinney's fourth touchdown of the game, a two-yard thrust off left tackle with 1:38 left to play, capping a 74-yard, 5 1/2-minute drive.

Nebraska's top rated defense, although it was stretched for 467 yards by the nation's most offensive-minded team, never snapped, and, in fact, took away the fuse that ignites the Sooner attack—the end sweeps by speedy Greg Pruitt.

Meanwhile, the Nebraska offense discovered the Oklahoma defenders were vulnerable to a power play off tackle and the Cornhuskers sent Kinney smashing for 154 yards in the second half.

"The only thing they took away from our defense was that we didn't break any 70-yarders," said quarterback Jack Mildren, Oklahoma's star performer with 30 carries for 130 yards and two touchdowns and five of 10 passes for 137 yards and two more scores.

"They kept us from going wide with Pruitt," said Pruitt, who gained 53 yards on 10 carries, only twice running the feared pitchout-sweep that made him the most explosive running back in the country.

In effect, the only thing Nebraska took away from Oklahoma's offense was the sparkplug. It was enough.

Nebraska's defensive ends, Willie Harper and John Adkins, played wide to shut off Oklahoma's pitchouts.

"We knew they had to," said Coach Bob Devaney. "They were turning the play back into our other people. The way the defensive ends played the pitchout we copied from Missouri, which defended Oklahoma very well. We also copied some things that Southern Cal did well against them. We looked at eight or nine different game films and tried to incorporate the best of them.

"But we were very cautious to get our defensive ends wide enough. You might not have noticed them as the ones doing the job, but they were. I talked to John McKay of Southern Cal and he said their defensive ends probably underestimated Oklahoma's speed. So we played it wider."
The Cornhusker offense, which had planned to run wide but managed only 87 yards in the first half, took the fight directly to Oklahoma after trailing 17-14 at the half.

"In the first half, we kind of had to figure out where we could move the ball," explained Devaney. "In the second half, we decided to go right at them. We found we could move the ball on the ground and we relied a little more on our ground game in the second half. Oklahoma has a fine ground game but ours was certainly great today."

"We beat them physically in the second half," said quarterback Jerry Tagge. "One play, a power play off tackle, was going very well. When they lined up strong to one side, we just ran it to the other side. I called quite a few audibles."

The nation's 1-2 teams took turns thrilling a sellout crowd of 61,826 and a national television audience.
Nebraska's Johnny Rodgers

zipped 72 yards on a punt return with only 3 1/2 minutes gone and, following a 30-yard field goal by Oklahoma's John Carroll, the Cornhuskers took a 14-3 lead early in the second quarter on the first of Kinney's four short touchdown plunges.

That's when Oklahoma proved its own worth. Twice the Sooners battled back from an 11-point deficit. This time they went 80 yards, with Mildren scoring on a three-yard keeper, and they exploded 78 yards in only four plays and 46 seconds just before halftime to nose ahead 17-14.

Behind for the first time in this 11-0 season, Nebraska wasn't about to be denied. Kinney capped drives of 53 and 62 yards with three-period touchdowns to make it 28-17. But again the Sooners tilted the roller coaster in their direction.

Mildren scored on a two-yard run at the end of a 73-yard strike that featured a 51-yard bomb from Jon Harrison, who grabbed Mildren's two touchdown passes, to Albert Chandler and Mildren lofted a 17-yarder to Harrison with 7:10 remaining.

Threatened with having their 20-game winning streak and 29-game unbeaten skein broken, the Cornhuskers went 74 yards for the winner, with Kinney covering 50 yards on seven carries and Rodgers making a diving catch of an 11-yard third-down Tagge pass at the Oklahoma 35.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

What happened to the $10,000 granted by United Presbyterian Church to the Angela Davis Defense Fund? Who received the money? How was it acknowledged? What was it spent for?

These questions were asked by Presbyterian Lay Committee, Inc., and the answers were reported in its October, 1971, Journal.

The publication quoted a letter from Frank H. Heinze, director of the Presbyterian office of information. He wrote:

"The $10,000 granted to the Angela Davis Defense Fund by the Council on Church and Race was delivered personally by the chairman and staff director of the Office of Ethnic Church Affairs of the Synod of the Golden Gate to Mr. Ellis Sheppard, the West Coast treasurer of the fund. The grant was acknowledged by a signed receipt from him dated May 14, 1971."

Mr. Heinze added that the money was not earmarked for any specific item of the legal defense.

Many persons abhor the gift to Miss Davis. Her revolutionary zeal hasn't helped her image with the bourgeois contributors to church funds. Just recently, one of her "love" letters was quoted as follows: "We have to learn to rejoice when pig's blood is spilled... to learn how to set the sights accurately, squeeze rather than jerk and not be overcome by the damage." Even so, the gift to Miss Davis defense fund has a certain degree of morality to it. United Presbyterian Church has no taxing powers. It could only give to Miss Davis what had been in turn given to it voluntarily by its own members. So if a policeman, or perhaps even a Presbyterian, is killed by a black beauty's squeezing of a trigger, at least no one was forced to encourage same with his donation to the defense fund. What any contributor did, he did of his own free will and shares accountability for his action. Except that the money had first been given by the members, it could not have been given by the organization. The individual, therefore, has plenty of options.

Question Box

QUESTION: The "liberals" seem to be exercised about William H. Rehnquist, who has defended the authority of the government to spy on its citizens. They also are objecting to the government keeping records on the people and using them against the citizenry a few years back, some of us objected to the school district having "cum" files on our children, and we were called crackpots or worse. Is there any difference?

ANSWER: We can see no difference other than degree in these various infringements on individuals' privacy. In fact, it would appear that the practice of accumulating personal and private information about children in schools and their parents is only a forerunner to the growing tendency of those in power in government to accumulate names, addresses, psychiatric histories, records of alcoholics and drug addicts, gun ownership, income tax records and who knows what else.

The fact that the whole thing can be computerized has made the national "cum" files possible, and has suddenly awakened some of the politicians to the dangerous practice. A dictator would find it easy to roust out those whose records show they might not be willing to submit to rigorous controls.

Parents with children in the tax-supported schools said the "cum" files were sent along with their children from one grade to another and even followed them to other schools. They rightly objected, but were criticized severely for objecting to the practice.

Now some of the critics may be waking to the danger of such practices, whether they are by national politicians or those in charge of the state schools.

In this and like communities, public sentiment is everything. With public sentiment, nothing can fail; without it, nothing can succeed. Consequently, he who moulds public sentiment, goes deeper than he who enacts statutes or pronounces decisions. He makes statutes and decisions possible or impossible to be executed.

Outlook On Character

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

From pioneer days, the American character had a special shape. Americans were bold, extroverted, enterprising, and self-confident. They weren't ridden by guilt. To open this land and settle the continent required a tough-minded people. And Americans were known as realists until recently.

In the last decade, however, the American character has undergone a partial transformation. At least some Americans have displayed uncharacteristic qualities. They have come to feel guilty about their possessions and the nation's power. They have abandoned individualism and sought refuge in groups. They have acquired a fondness for communicating the inadequacies they feel, hoping thereby to develop a new communion of the weak.

Fortunately, this type of American is a minority. Otherwise, the country wouldn't be sending men to the moon or engaging in other heroic enterprises. But it is dismaying that inward-turning Americans seem more numerous each year.

The new outlook is evidenced in a variety of ways. It is reflected in the back-to-nature hippie communes and in the emergence of esoteric cults such as were revealed in the Charles Manson trial. The new outlook also is mirrored in less dramatic and sensational ways such as the retreat into comfortable little circles—or encounter groups—where they shed intellectual and moral independence and privacy and are sustained by emotionally holding hands. The encounter groups use sensitivity training methods with the avowed aim of liberating the individual through group analysis.

It is interesting to talk to people who belong to one of these groups. Their talk is full of "love," "sharing," and "tolerance," but they communicate to others their conviction of moral superiority and exclusiveness. More than that, they seem to get a "charge" from acts of self-abasement involving disclosure of some portion of their inner lives.

No doubt this psychological reaction on the part of encounter group participants is characteristic of similar cults throughout history. The orthodox Marxist also derives a certain thrill from group belonging in the cell or larger cadre.

This type of group activity would be harmless but for the fact that in many cases the graduates of encounter groups emerge from their collective experience with a new, highly emotional outlook on social and community problems. The reason for this, no doubt, is that such groups operate on a basis of sharing emotional experience. Very definitely, reason isn't the instrument of discourse or an analytical tool in their exploration of problems. The use of reason involves saying this or that thing is illogical and wrong. The contemporary group member doesn't want to characterize a cooperating group person as mistaken or worse.

In the real world of community problems, however, the emotional approach leads to trouble. In a community or nation, progress is the result of the energy and logic displayed by creative individuals. The emotional, group-oriented people are uncomfortable with an emphasis upon reason, duty, and discipline. They want to downgrade creative individualism and extroverted confidence, for those approaches and qualities run contrary to a groupism that endeavors to make equals of unequals.

This is not to deny an individual's inner life which is the heart of religion. A personal philosophy requires frequent self-examination. It involves a necessity, as the Roman emperor-philosopher Marcus Aurelius said, that one "look at things as a man, as a human being, as a citizen." But the strong individual doesn't need to conduct self-examination on a group basis. The great inventors, builders and scientists—Edison, Ford, Marconi, Einstein—didn't depend on group approval. They acted alone, thereby manifesting their uniqueness, self-reliance and courage.

In any case, the groupism of today is alien to the traditional, vigorous American character that was responsible for turning a wilderness into a great civilization. Constant emphasis upon little groups or collectives runs against the grain of the individualistic, American character. Each individual has an inner life, but it shouldn't be a species of confession-swapping.

Hopefully, the new groupism is an intellectual and moral fad that will disappear before the decade has ended. Ours is a country that needs dynamic individuals, people engaged in the real world and sustained by their personal principles and private search for truth and the public good.

Your Health

Dear Dr. Lamb — Our family often substitutes popcorn for a meal, especially instead of Sunday supper and sometimes during the week, too. For three adults, we use one generous cup of unpopped corn, prepared by popping in three tablespoons of shortening (which is marked "high in polyunsaturates"). This, when prepared, yields about two quarts per person. No butter is added as the oil and salt used in popping give it a sufficiently good flavor. Your comment, good or bad, on this practice, would be appreciated.

Dear Reader — Thumbs up for popcorn if you are careful what you pop it in and what you put on it. About 11 per cent of the calories in plain popcorn are from vegetable fat and over half of these are the polyunsaturated type. It is, then, a very low-fat food and what fat it contains is probably beneficial, since the usual American diet contains limited amounts of polyunsaturated fat. I would recommend popping it in a small amount of cooking oil. Of these, safflower oil contains the least amount of saturated fat and the largest percentage of polyunsaturated fat. Corn oil is about second on the list. Then leave it plain, seasoned with salt. This makes a far better snack than most items. For calorie control or fat intake control, it is far superior to potato chips, crackers impregnated with cheese or fat or similar snack items. For calorie restriction, it is superior to any nuts used as snacks. The vegetable oil of cereals, like popcorn, are an important source of Vitamin E. So thumbs up for popcorn and let's hope it replaces a lot of other goodies that are not so good for the health. Popcorn, along with turkeys, belongs to the tradition of Thanksgiving. The Indians brought the popcorn to the feast and amazed the colonists by popping it. In rural areas a bowl of popcorn by the fireplace was a winter night tradition. Not too long ago, the family sat by the fire, ate apples and popcorn while reading — there were few places with radios and none with TV — but we didn't have as many of a lot of things then that we have now — including too many fat snacks and an epidemic of heart and vascular disease.

Dear Dr. Lamb — Can you please settle an argument in our family about birth control pills. I say that at 16 you can get the pill from your doctor without telling your parents. My mother says you can't until you are 18. Who's right? Dear Reader — Only your doctor knows who is right, my dear. After all, he is the one who writes the prescription or has the pill. Ask him.

"Guess who's calling?" is one sure way to get a hang-up from us.

Inside Washington

Despite Congressional Nays, Extension of Aid is Likely
By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON.—If you are befuddled and confused about what is happening in Congress on foreign aid, don't fret! Even legislators directly involved in the rancorous bickering and baffling backing and filling are bewildered.

It's a jumbo-size snafu — not uncharacteristic of Congress. But despite the beclouding "fog of battle," the following can be quite authoritatively predicted: There definitely will be foreign aid legislation. This 25-year-old program that has cost taxpayers more than $138.5 billion will be continued — for at least another year.

The compromise authorization bill that will emerge from the Senate-House conference committee will (1) side with the House on the issue of combining economic and military aid in one measure and (2) favor the Senate's stand in slashing the overall total. The House voted $3.44 billion economic aid; $2.1 billion military aid. The two separate bills the Senate finally passed, after first surprisingly defeating foreign aid completely, set economic aid at $1.44 billion and military aid at $1.5 billion for a total of $2.94 billion. The conference compromise will be somewhat more than that, but less than $3 billion.

After the compromise authorization bill is finally disposed of, the appropriation committees will take over the stage — and what happens then is what really counts. These key committees determine how much money actually will be allocated for foreign aid in the current fiscal year.

Both the House and Senate appropriations committees are headed by long-time opponents of large-scale foreign aid spending. Rep. Otto Passman (D-La.), chairman of the House Appropriations subcommittee in charge of the foreign aid budget, proudly boasts of axing it by at least 20 per cent a year for many years. And if Sen. Allen Ellender (D-La.), head of that chamber's Appropriations Committee, had his way, he would kill foreign aid outright.

Most likely is an actual foreign aid money bill of around $2.5 billion. That will be a record low in the quarter-century history of this stupendously expensive program.

Plenty of Funds All that widely publicized bureaucratic talk about there being no unobligated money in the foreign assistance pipeline is pure claptrap!

Actually there are unspent billions that can be used until new legislation is enacted. The money is immediately available to keep both economic and military foreign aid going for months, and even years.

That is irrefutably revealed in an unpublished study by the Congressional Research Service. Its figures and findings are based wholly on official sources, and they are highly informative. Under the caption "Foreign Assistance Funds in the Pipeline as of June 30, 1971," the report discloses the following:

Worldwide technical assistance $149.5; Alliance for Progress; 62.7; Multilateral agencies, mainly UN, mainly UNDP, 147.4; American schools abroad, 26.9; Indus Basin loan, 6.9; Indus Basin grants, 4.0; Contingency funds (appropriated as such) 30.3 Social Progress Trust Fund (for Inter American Development Bank), 18.4; Administration expenses, AID, 9.6; Development loans (Alliance for Progress), 1,003.9; Worldwide Development loans, 1,032.0; Development Loan Fund (liquidation), 8.0; Supporting assistance (military, administered by AID), 704.0; Administered by AID unobligated, 104.8; Military assistance (grants and credits administered by Department of Defense), 1,574.6 Total military and economic aid "in the pipeline", 4,882.9

It is no wonder Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield (Mont.) contends:

"Drastic curtailment of the foreign aid program by no means a catastrophe, either to our country or to the concept of U.S. participation in international cooperation. On the contrary, it is the first step in a long-overdue change: a first step in ending the disillusioning state of international isolationism into which the distortions of this program have done so much to bring our country.

There are more than sufficient funds to forestall a sudden liquidation of the aid administration or sudden unemployment of staff employees. Indeed, the program will be able to go on in the same wasteful and counter-productive pattern for many months, if not years."

No Love Lost An important backstage factor in the closed-door deliberations between the House and Senate confers on their widely differing foreign aid authorization measures is personal antipathy between the two chairmen. Rep. Thomas Morgan (D-Pa.), head of the House group and a practicing physician, considers Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), leader of the Senate panel and a Rhodes scholar, an overbearing snob, while the latter disdains Morgan as a "backwoods pill pusher."

Morgan is very firm about one thing: "Sen. Fulbright is not going to write the foreign aid authorization measure.

Nationalist China Is Striving To Deal With All Challenges

By LEONARD PRATT
Associated Press Writer
TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — A month after its expulsion from the United Nations the Taiwan government seems to reflect more expectation than defeatism.

The conservative government is striving to be flexible enough to deal with new challenges in diplomacy, economics and politics. Among the island's 15 million people one can find concern about the future, but apparently little alarm.

Officially the government still depicts itself as the legitimate government of all China, and reaffirms its pledge to one day return to the mainland. But the U.N. defeat and the problems which followed it are bringing changes.

NEW YORK (AP) — Starting as a sickly infant, CBS' "Hawaii Five-O" has grown into healthy maturity. The series was almost cancelled after its first season, but now, four years old, the Jack Lord action show must be counted as a solid hit—it was in fourth place in the most recent Nielsen ratings.

The secret of the show's appeal is its setting, the lush tropical backgrounds of the 50th state. Against those big, waving palms, blue sea and big waves, they play cops and robbers of the most traditional TV style.

Tuesday night's episode was a good example. The island's underworld, according to the script writer, consisted of four families who split up the gambling, narcotics traffic and vice. A mainland syndicate overlord sent over a representative to arrange for a cut. He was found, dead and tied to a stake in shallow water off a beach.

It only took the intrepid Steve McGarrett, head of the state police force, to clean up the whole thing, but by this time it appeared that the criminal structure of Hawaii bore a remarkable resemblance to the state-wide table of operation that was outlined so neatly in the novel "The Godfather"—except that the top men consisted of two Chinese, one Japanese and a Samoan.

Lord invests his role with a sort of bared-teeth intensity and restrained violence that give essentially threadbare situations some special excitement.

Today In History

Today is Friday, Nov. 26, the 330th day of 1971. There are 35 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history On this date in 1925, Germany ratified the Locarno Treaty, pledging to guarantee the French frontier.

In 1504, Christopher Columbus' patron, Queen Isabella of Spain, died.

In 1789, President George Washington set this date aside as a day of national thanksgiving for the adoption of the U.S. Constitution.

In 1857, the first Australian Parliament was opened in Melbourne.

In 1940, the half-million Jews of Warsaw, Poland were ordered to live within a walled ghetto.

In 1943, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Chinese President Chiang Kaishek ended a wartime conference in Cairo.

In 1945, documents outlining Adolf Hitler's war plans were introduced at the Nuernberg trial of Nazi war leaders.

Ten years ago: The Kennedy administration announced that George W. Ball would replace Chester Bowles as undersecretary of State.

Five years ago: The governments of Australia and New Zealand were swept back into power in elections that endorsed their policy of sending troops to Vietnam.

One year ago: It was announced that U.S. troops in Vietnam had passed Thanksgiving Day without a combat death.

The Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE

Helen Flint shows that romance can develop quickly. So read the fascinating experiences of some of the famous Board Members of the Scientific Marriage Foundation. The IBM machine (Computer Cupid) merely acts as a romantic shortcut for modern couples to get acquainted. Romance is then up to them!

CASE: S-529: Dr. Cort Flint is a famous Baptist theologian and evangelical preacher who is on the Board of our Scientific Marriage Foundation.

During our recent SMF luncheon, Mrs. Frank Kromm suggested:

"Dr. Crane, who not ask some of the distinguished Board Members to explain just how or where they met their wives?"

Mrs. Flint gayly volunteered, saying she was in high school when a handsome new bandmaster was employed at her school.

"When I first saw him," she added, "he was presiding over our study room."

"And I knew instantly that he was the man of my dreams."

"In fact, I told my mother that same afternoon that I had finally found the man I was going to marry."

"Alas, I didn't play any instrument of the band, so I secretly took lessons for a year in order to join the school band."

"And two years later, we were married!"

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT
Dr. Charles Ray Goff, Dean of the skyscraper Chicago Temple, where he kept congregations spellbound during his 19-year ministry there, then was asked about his romance.

So he mentioned that he had been a 20-year-old guest preacher who was conducting revival services in a Iowa village.

"The last night," he said, "I saw a girl come into the meeting and sit down part way back."

"It may sound strange, but I said to myself, 'Charlie, that's the girl you are going to marry!'"

Alas, he didn't even get to speak to this girl of his dreams, for he had to rush away to another town via train that same night.

But he did learn her name from his traveling assistant and soon came back to marry her.

Next, I called on Dr. Morgan Williams, a former Canadian pastor who gravitated into the U.S.A. via Michigan.

He also occupied many large pastorate in Illinois and built the million dollar Methodist Church at Kankakee, where former Gov. Len Small was a member.

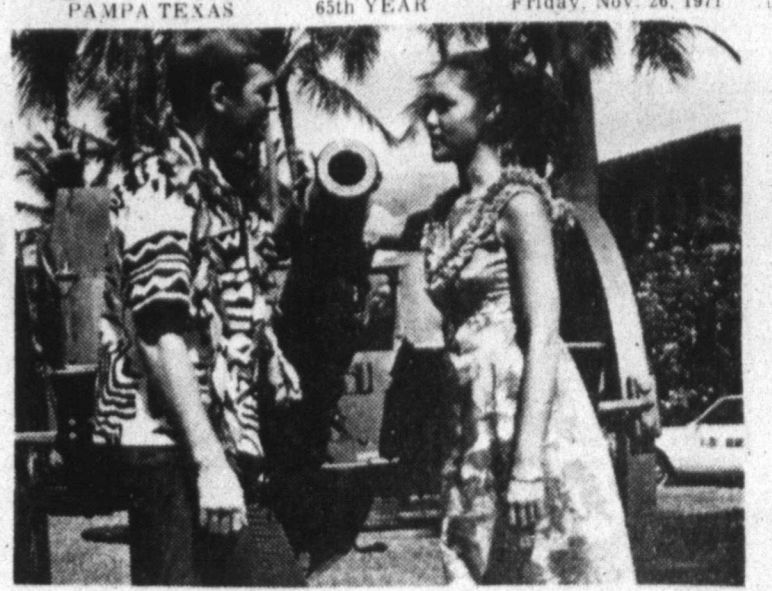

"I met my wife at a ball game," he confessed.

"She was hit by a foul ball that broke her nose."
