Pretty Girl Sleeps On After Year Of An Illness-Baffling To Science

'We Don't Know Anything Else To Try', Says Mother—Malady Diagnosed As American Sleeping Sickness

BY RAY BLACK
United Press Staff Correspondent
OAK PARK, Ill. (UP)—A year ago Thursday, pretty Patricia McGuire, a publisher's secretary, sank into a coma from which she has never roused.

It will be a sad anniversary, the 800th day since "Patricia left our world for one of her own," said Mrs. Sadie Milley, her mother.

Since that time one winter re-eded and gave way to spring. Green came into leaf, the leaves fell a long summer's sun, fell with an autumn. Another winter is almost gone.

On February 15, 1932, Mrs. Milley called the family physician on the telephone and said: "Please come over and see Pat, doctor. She's been drowsy for several days and now she's gone to sleep and we can't wake her up."

Neither the mother's pleading words, nor the best knowledge of science, nor suggestions that have poured in from sympathetic folk all over the land, have been able to awaken the 27-year-old, tall, athletic girl in the year just elapsed.

No More Transfusions
"No, we won't try any more blood transfusions. No, Patricia shows no sign of getting better. No, we don't know anything else to try."

Infinite weariness was in the faces of the mother and Patricia's older sister, Mrs. Gladys Hansen, who lives with the mother, daughter and step-father in a pleasant brown stucco house on a quiet Oak Park street.

They recalled sadly how Dr. Traut, soon after taking the case and diagnosing it as "encephalitis lethargica," or American sleeping sickness, had announced hopefully to them that he had managed to isolate the germs in the girl's blood stream and prepared a serum which he hoped would effect a cure.

But that proved of no avail. She was taken to a clinic and examined by the leading specialists of the middle west. None could suggest any remedy.

Constant Care
Through all the long hours since Miss McGuire sank into the deep sleep from which she has roused only enough to flutter her eyelids, groan, or smile a faint shadow of a smile, she has had every care. For many months there were two trained nurses.

Then, having learned what there was to be done—the feeding through nostrils, the regular turning of the body, the daily massage of the limbs so they would not waste away—mother and sister have been the nurses.

In a big box in a corner are hundreds of letters, newspaper clippings, announcements of weddings, engagements, births and deaths.

"We are saving them to show Pat when she wakes up," her sister said.

Nancy Daws Plays In Radio Program
DENTON—Miss Nancy Daws gave a piano solo, "Soaring" by Schumann, on the Pancake Hour program over Radio Station WFAA in Dallas Saturday night.

Miss Daws, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Daws of Big Spring, is a sophomore piano major at Texas State College for Women (CIA).

Pancake hour is celebrated each year at the college in memory of its founding. The name "Pancake Hour" is taken from a custom of ancient monasteries. Each year when some of the monks would return from their year's travels, a cake was baked in a large pan. The monks would eat this cake and then tell their adventures and accomplishments for the year.

Who'd ever believe that you paid only $2.95 for these captivating Springtime dresses, in the soft blurry tones so new this spring . . . prints that are "different" on dark backgrounds. New browns, blues, navy and black.

Texas Press Legislative Bureau Open

Ray Nichols Of Vernon Placed In Charge Of Capital Service

AUSTIN, (UP)—Ray H. Nichols, publisher of the Vernon (Texas) Daily Record and former president of the Texas Daily Press Association, was named manager of the T. P. A. Legislative news bureau.

The bureau which he will direct will supply dailies, weeklies and periodicals of Texas information about taxation legislation pending before the Texas legislature.

In reporting the matters to the editors, Lowry Martin, president of the Texas Press Association, said, "The service would be non-partisan and non-political. The bureau will maintain no lobby, Martin said.

The bureau will not consider other legislative measures before the house or senate in its service which will be distributed free, Martin said.

Nichols, a native Texan who began his newspaper career in Lampasas, is widely known throughout the state. He is a past governor of Rotary International.

In Amarillo He founded the Amarillo Tribune, an evening newspaper which later merged with other dailies in that city. He began his career with the Vernon Record 23 years ago, becoming publisher of that paper 12 years ago. Nichols is married and has three children. He is chairman of the Board of Stewards of the Vernon Methodist church and has been prominent in affairs of that denomination in Texas.

The bureau will be staffed by three persons. A newsman will work in connectin with Nichols. The third person will be a woman who will be employed in the office.

"Our object in opening this bureau," said Nichols, "is to acquaint the people with the various details concerning the cost of government. We will not favor or oppose any particular official, group, measure or program."

Tax Facts
"Our object is simply to present the facts with reference to tax matters and rely upon the people to form their own opinions concerning definite measures. Our attitude is to be one of friendly helpfulness towards public officials.

"It is not our desire to criticize present or former public officials for conditions because we recognize our present system of taxation is the product of nearly a hundred years and the blame belongs to

to the whole people and not any particular group."

The offices of the bureau will be in the Driskill Hotel. The bureau will be kept open during the legislative session.

The Texas Press association executive committee made plans for the bureau after a complete study of the taxation situation. In establishing it, said Nichols, the T. P. A. is creating a clearing house for various taxation studies which have already been made out which have not been given to the people.

"It is a belief of the Texas Press Association," said Nichols, "that this is a service which the newspapers owe the people."

Under The Dome At Austin

By GORDON K. SHEARER

AUSTIN, (UP)—When physicians make their usual demands for "health protection expenditures" to the present legislature as they have done in the past, they are due for a surprise. Figures have been gathered to show that the doctors as a profession are not co-operating for public health.

For instance: State health department records have been assembled which show that only 54 cases of pellagra (a reportable disease) were reported by Texas physicians in 1931, yet the death records show 1,039 fatalities from it. Tuberculosis is also a disease upon which a report is required. In the same year the Texas physicians reported 1,098 cases. They signed 4,304 death certificates giving tuberculosis as the cause of death.

Some legislators this year are going to bob up and ask what the health department did about prosecuting a physician who signed such a death certificate and had failed to report the disease while treating the patient. Others may ask the medical lobby the embarrassing question:

"What is the State Medical Association doing about it?" and "Does this comport with the ethics of the profession?"

Rep. W. E. Pope, Corpus Christi, is associate editor of a new Corpus Christi daily newspaper The Telegram. It is the second venture of the Nueces county legislator in the publishing business.

Approach of the Texas Centennial adds peculiar interest to the action of the state highway commission recently in fixing the route of Highway 112 in Gonzales county.

"The road will make a loop around Santa Anna Mound and there also will be a paved roadway to the monument marking the battle of Gonzales where the first shot for Texas Independence was fired from the Gonzales cannon.

This cannon has been made the design for one of the quarterings on the proposed state coat of arms.

So heated was the debate over reconsideration of Frank L. Denison for highway commissioner that the senate didn't even take time out for lunch.

From 10 a. m. until 3 p. m. the battle waged and after that—drug stores surrounding the capitol felt the brunt of the long fight.

Reference to the death of the father of Ernest O. Thompson, Texas railroad commissioner, was made by Ray Nichols, Vernon newspaper publisher, when he introduced the commissioner to members of the Texas Press Association at their midwinter meeting here.

The commissioner thanked the publisher for his introductory remarks and in appreciation for an article Sam P. Harben, secretary of the association, carried on Mr. Thompson's death in publications he edits, told this story.

"I was down in East Texas seeing that the shut down order was being enforced when my father was on his death bed.

"There are 9,600 wells in that field and we were seeing that all obeyed the orders.

"One morning I telephoned mama from East Texas and told her I would come home that afternoon. She said papa was weak but told me he had read in the morning newspapers that three wells were still running in violation of the commissioner's orders.

"But mamma," I told her, "there are 9,600 wells down here and we will get to those today."

"That's all right Ernest," she told me, "but papa says for you to stay down there until all the wells are closed and he wants you to go out today and see that those three wells are closed."

"I stayed there and went out to see that the three wells were closed in compliance with the commissioner's orders.

"That night when I got back to our headquarters I had a wife that papa was dead."

CHAPTER XXXIII

Jerry and Sheila entered the side door of the Grandmore Hotel. The corridor extending to that door led past cigar and news stands to the lobby. But near the entrance there was a small parlor, usually vacant, known as the Rose Room.

With swiftly beating heart, Sheila proceeded Jerry into this parlor. The mezzanine lounge was much too public for their talk.

There was no one else there. Sheila sat down on the broad-covered divan and Jerry dropped beside her. "Terribly sorry I can't ask you to dinner tonight, Sheila," he said. "How about tea?" He smiled. "I don't often indulge in that sort of thing but maybe it's one of your habits. Do they serve it here or must we go to the dining room?"

She knew and Jerry knew perfectly well that they did not serve tea in the Rose Room. They did, however, as a matter of fact, serve it anywhere. When tea was served in Spencer it was served at someone's home.

"You mean that you have an engagement?" Sheila asked. Then, brightening she added, "Why not drop around after the show tonight? We are leaving at midnight but I can have my things packed and ready. Maybe," her voice shook a little, "you could take me for a little drive?"

The rising inflection as she finished the sentence softened the fact that she was making the advances. She watched the young man at her side. Jerry was leaning back against the divan, one leg crossed over the other, swinging easily. His silver cigarette case was open in his hand.

Suddenly he snapped the case shut. And in that instant the situation became clear to Sheila. Jerry had made love to her. He had almost asked her to marry him. He had said that he loved her, promised to follow her to New York. Well—he had done that. He had gone to New York but not to see her. Sheila doubted that her being there had had anything to do with that journey. Jerry probably made frequent trips to New York. The Jerry she had met wearing overalls, carrying his lunch in a paper bag, had completely fooled her. The son of a wealthy family working up from the ranks! Oh, but she had made herself ridiculous. An impulse to laugh swept over her. She knew before he spoke what Jerry would say.

"I'm tied up at home tonight. Sorry. That and a charming smile. And her guess was correct. He said it almost in those very words.

"When are you returning to New York?" he asked after a moment. Jerry sat up straight, reached for his hat and made, as if to rise. He was going now. She would not see him again.

"New York," Sheila repeated. "Oh, we have 48 weeks' booking. We've hardly been out a month."

"A long season, yes."

He rose, twirling his hat in his hands, facing her.

"Sheila, don't look that way, dear," he began, his expression suddenly tender. "So she was making it as plain as that she was miserable. Her lips trembled. Was she going to cry?"

"Sheila!"

The corridor outside was empty. There was no one to see. Jerry's arms, outstretched, enclosed her.

"How could you hurt me so?" she asked later, reproachfully.

"But darling—"

"You'll have dinner with me?" her voice was pleading. "Oh, Jerry say you will! Telephone home. Tell them you'll be there by eight o'clock. That's early! The whole evening will belong to them. Do stay, Jerry."

"Well, maybe—"

But later, in her dressing room at the theater, Sheila reviewed the scene uncomfortably. How she had begged him! Her face grew crimson at the thought. How she had pleaded with him to dine with her! She, Sheila Shayne, who had been so proud of her independence!

Leaving Jerry in the lobby, she had hurried to her room, dressed carefully and called Henri, the head waiter, on the telephone. She had given the dinner order. The party was to be at her expense.

"Mr. H. Henri, and fillet of sole. Your best salad. An ice. And demi-tasse."

"In your room, Miss Shayne?" the waiter asked.

"No. I want dinner for two. And the corner table if it isn't taken."

The corner table was cleverly concealed behind palms. Henri himself would serve the dinner. He would see that the food was excellent. Saturday night was a night of festivity at the Grandmore. There was always dancing there on Saturdays and music through the dinner hour.

Seated in the dining room, Sheila discounted her earlier fears. She looked across at Jerry and was sure he did love her. "Maybe" she thought, "he'll come to see me of when the train leaves, after all."

But Jerry did not suggest it. When the dinner was over he escorted her to the stage door, Sheila clung to him.

"Goodbye, dear," he said softly. "Then you can't—" Her voice broke.

Jerry shook his head. "Don't see how I could make it." He kissed her gently. "Where do you play next?"

"Ah!" Jerry's tone was brighter.

Woman Golfers To Play Saturday

Beginning at 10 a. m. Saturday, women golfers will launch on an all-day handicap play with more than a score competing.

Both front and back nines of the Country Club course will be played by the women.

Prizes will be awarded to winners of the three lows for the day, a prize in the morning and afternoon to medalists, and a prize morning and afternoon to one taking least number of putts on eighteen holes.

Mrs. Rix asks that those listed below who will be unable to compete in the play Saturday call her. Qualifiers include Mmes. Ralph Rix, Noel Lawson, E. O. Ellington, Theron Hicks, G. H. Hayward, H. A. Astell, Olive Bristol, P. K. Liberty, Spence, J. T. Robb, M. H. Bennett, Carl Blossfield, A. E. Chester, Roy Carter, Eck Lovelace, Vernon Mason, J. L. ## Carlsbad-Pecos Road Surfacing Is Started PECOS (UP)—Surfacing of the second section of the new Carlsbad-Pecos highway, state highway No. 17, started this week, giving employment to 120 men.

The 21-mile project represents an expenditure of $125,000.

Half of the first 19-mile section more Sheila stood beside him. Her breast rose and fell in long, deep breaths.

"All in?"

She nodded and sank into a chair without speaking.

"It's a tough life," he remarked, sympathetically.

She smiled back at him. "Yes." But life would be easier. It was easier for those girls she had seen sitting out in front, watching her. It would be easier—some day—for her. Sheila was not deceiving herself. However. How could life be happier with Jerry Wyman so changeable and inconstant?

Ballplayer Catch Year's Largest Fish

SEATTLE (UP)—No homer that Earl Averill ever hit for Cleveland ever gave him a bigger thrill than when he landed a 22 1/2 pound steel head in the Pituhuk River, northeast of Everett, Wash.

It was the biggest steelhead of the season caught in western Washington. The Snohomish County boy, who made good with San Francisco in the Coast League and Cleveland in the American League, is an ardent fisherman. The boys at the Cleveland training camp will hear a lot more about that "big baby" this spring.

Christian Homemakers Have February Party

Mrs. W. B. Clare entertained the members of the First Christian Homemakers' Sunday School class at her home Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. H. E. Clay as assisting hostess.

The first part of the afternoon was devoted to matters of business. Most of the discussion was given to charity. The social session was mostly conversation and social visiting.

Delicious refreshments were served by the two hostesses to Mrs. T. E. Baker, J. H. Stiff, Dalmont Cook, George Hill, George Wilke, Steve Baker, R. J. Michael, J. H. Rockhold, Harry Lees, G. W. Dabney, W. W. Inkman.

Next month Mrs. G. W. Dabney will be the hostess at her home, with Mrs. Earl Glaser assisting her.

Mrs. H. C. Mann of Colorado is visiting her daughters, Mrs. E. E. Fahrenkamp and Miss Grace Mann.

On Killer's Trial After 12 Years

SAN ANGELO (UP)—Twelve years have obliterated the trail across Texas' prairie made by the murderer of Nick Kaklikakis, but the search for him has been renewed.

One autumn day in 1920 Kaklikakis, Greek candy maker, strolled down the street here with his son Mike, then 12. Another Greek appeared. A flash of fire, a boy's scream, later a missing automobile were the only known incidents to Kaklikakis' death.

Hawley C. Allen, grim rancher who for 20 years had been an arm of West Texas' justice, then was sheriff. He theorized Kaklikakis was slain for revenge because the candy maker once had testified against a man in a Colorado murder trial.

For two months Sheriff Allen sought his man. He then retired from office, went back to his ranch, but kept in touch with Kaklikakis' son.

Twelve years passed. This winter Allen again strapped on his guns, went up to Tom Green county and got a job as chief deputy.

"What are you going to do Hawley?" asked a friend.

"Find the murderer of Nick Kaklikakis," Allen replied.
