

Democrat Candidates Speak Out on Board

By United Press International
Two of the Democratic candidates for the nomination to succeed Gov. John Connally talked about the Texas Liquor Control Board Tuesday. Another said he was opening a campaign office in Houston.

Lt. Gov. Preston Smith told an El Paso group he had "every confidence in the people investigating the Texas Liquor Control Board" and said he has always stood ready to "work and cooperate" with any agency for the "betterment of our laws and their enforcement."

But the gloves came off a little when candidate Eugene Locke commented about both Smith and the TLCB.

Locke said Smith had "failed the people of Texas by ignoring flaws in liquor control laws which have contributed to recent widespread charges of irregularities."

He said Connally and House Speaker Ben Barnes have acted properly in pushing investigations into alleged TLCB irregularities.

"I regret to see that the lieutenant governor again fails to share a position of responsibility with the governor and the speaker of the House in a very alarming situation where there is an urgent and obvious need of legislation," Locke said.

He said Smith had assumed a position of opposition "where he should exert leadership, if he has any capacity for leadership."

Smith said in his talk, "I would hope this governor's race can be based on enlightened views on the situation and hopefully avoid any mudslinging based on errors in judgment about Texas affairs."

In another talk, Smith urged Texas to vote for a constitutional amendment that would gradually abolish part of the state ad valorem tax.

In a speech prepared for a meeting of a real estate organization, Smith said the present system results in "unequal collection of these state taxes from Texas property owners."

And in Houston, Alfonso Veloz, a bank employee who is running for the governor's nomination, said he planned to open a state headquarters next Monday.

Veloz said two attorneys, Amador P. Martinez and Henry Sanchez, were helping him start. Martinez owns the building where the headquarters will be located, Veloz said.

Michael Garcia will be his campaign manager, Veloz said, and the campaign is expected to begin in about three weeks. He said he was having posters printed now.

Veloz said he had no campaign speeches planned. "If I have to make speeches, I'll make them," he said.

Negotiators Back At Work on Strike Of Garbagemen

NEW YORK (UPI)—City and union negotiators returned to the bargaining table today at the insistence of state legislative leaders to seek a permanent solution to New York City's politically volatile garbage dispute.

The talks resumed under Mayor John V. Lindsay's terms that garbage collectors continue working while negotiations are under way. Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller was unable to gather the votes in the legislature to support his plan for a temporary takeover of the city's sanitation department.

Decision Likely Soon On Reserve Call-Up

By DARRELL GARWOOD
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Defense Department's action in speeding an additional 10,500 ground troops to Vietnam makes it likely that a decision will come soon on whether more civilian reserves will be called to active duty.

When he ordered the callup of 14,787 air reservists on Jan. 25, President Johnson indicated that a plan involving civilian ground reserves also was under consideration.

In announcing Tuesday that additional troops were being rushed to Vietnam, the Pentagon said no decision had been reached as yet on a callup of ground force reserves.

But a defense spokesman made clear that the additional troops going to Vietnam would be from regular units and would further deplete the forces available for emergencies in the United States and elsewhere.

The 82nd Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, N.C., which until now has been kept on duty in the Western Hemisphere, and the remainder of the 5th Marine Division at Camp Pendleton, Calif., were expected to provide most of the troops for the latest contingent being sent to Vietnam.

The Defense Department said the units would not be identified until they reach Vietnam, presumably by air. They could include a brigade from the 82nd Airborne, and one of the two remaining brigades of the 5th Marines, who already have a third of their force in Vietnam.

If the ground reserves are summoned from civilian life, three National Guard Divisions — the 28th in Pennsylvania, the 38th in Indiana, and the 47th in Minnesota — and the 4th Marine Division, which is spread over the country, are considered most likely to be tapped.

The Guard divisions headed a 150,000-man "select force" of civilians who received special training and equipment in 1966. They have been ready since that time for deployment within six to eight weeks if necessary.

The Defense Department made it clear that the troops now being flown to Vietnam were not part of the old plan, which called for an increase from 500,000 to 525,000 in U.S. forces there by the end of the year.

The new contingent is being sent in response to a special request submitted in the last few days by Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in chief for Vietnam.

Viet Offensive Does Little To Change Opinions

By United Press International
The latest Communist offensive into South Vietnam has done little to change the attitudes of several prominent Texans concerning the war.

Opinions on the conflict are varied, but a majority feel the war should be continued, despite the Communist stepup.

"It makes me madder than hell," said State Sen. Jim Bates of Edinburg.

"I just got a boy back from over there," he said. He doesn't talk much about it, but I can gather it's pretty rough."

Bates said the U.S. should use whatever force is needed to end the war by winning it.

"Call me hawkish, but as far as I'm concerned, no other policy is possible," he said.

But Mayor Paul Veale of McAllen was not sure what consequences might come from the offensive.

"I just don't know. It's confusing," he said. "I feel we must keep the solemn commitments we have made, but we are not doing too well on the diplomatic front, and our national image has suffered badly."

Veale said the country's image is bound to suffer "a fourth-rate power like that can keep us pinned down for years."

"But if the war ended tomorrow, frankly, I don't know who we'd turn that country over to. It really looks hopeless. I don't even know who we're keeping our word to anymore," said Veale.

Multi-millionaire oilman H.L. Hunt of Dallas said the administration should seek the advice of generals concerning the war. He said he is no military man himself, so he consults generals highly regards their opinions.

He said he thinks the war in Vietnam should be prosecuted vigorously.

"I have always said we were operating the war as a training school for Russia and Red China," he said. "We had hung on with them until we taught them, how to sink our ships. That was the early conduct of the war. Conducted on that basis it was for their benefit."

"I think we had to get in and win it in an honorable way or the word 'United States' would be meaningless throughout the world," said Houston mayor Louie Welch.

"If the legitimate government in Vietnam should release us from our commitments, then

General Describes Wall as Tough Part

SAIGON (UPI) — Embattled Leathernecks withdrew from Hue's forbidden city today and allied divebombers in their biggest raid hit the Viet Cong behind the citadel's 12-foot-thick walls with bombs, rockets and napalm that sent huge balls of fire rising over the former imperial capital.

Brig. Gen. Foster C. LaHue, whose Marines met sheets of Communist fire in trying earlier to storm the citadel, watched the air attack from a helicopter and told UPI correspondent Richard V. Oliver his men faced "the toughest part of the entire battle" for Hue.

"That wall was built to defend the city, of course, and the damned thing is doing its job. As soon as we crack that wall, we're going right in," said the 49-year-old Leatherneck from Cordon, Ind.

Drop Nausea Gas
Oliver reported the allied planes also dropped a nonlethal type of nausea gas which temporarily disorients its victims, the effects wearing off after several hours. Oliver reported the gas was used to soften up the guerrillas for Marine ground attack.

TO BECOME JOINT CHIEF?
Indications Growing On Westmoreland

By SAM FOGG
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Now that congressional criticism of Gen. William C. Westmoreland is out in the open, there are increasing indications he will be brought back from Vietnam and moved up to the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

In fact, the very fact of complaints about his performance as U.S. military commander could enhance his chances for the Joint Chiefs appointment, since it would both satisfy the military establishment and place him largely out of reach of his critics.

Several members of Congress have been expressing, strictly in private, some doubts about the general's ability to wage this unusual war; about his search and destroy tactics as opposed to a "clear and hold" approach.

On the other hand, Rep. Glenn R. Davis, R-Wis., spoke on Tuesday of the "impending dismissal of Westmoreland."

"I can recognize in the Washington atmosphere," Davis said in a speech, "all the signs of White House attempts to make Westmoreland the scapegoat."

Motives aside, President Johnson has the opportunity to make a change in July when Gen. Harold K. Johnson's second term as Army chief of staff expires.

Promotion of Westmoreland to that post would provide a means for a graceful change of command in Vietnam. It also might give the Johnson administration and new Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford the benefit of some fresh thinking on the war.

Should Westmoreland move up, two names figure in the betting on his successor in Vietnam, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams Jr., his deputy since last spring, and Gen. Bruce Palmer, Westmoreland's deputy as Army commander in Vietnam.

In no sense do Washington observers anticipate any abrupt firing of Westmoreland.

Westmoreland went to Vietnam as deputy commander in January, 1964, and moved up to the No. 1 spot in August of that year.

Patman Attacks Federal Reserve Board As Damaging US Economy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., told Chairman William McChesney Martin today his agency is doing more damage to the American economy than anybody besides the Viet Cong.

At a hearing at which Martin was testifying before the House-Senate Economic Committee, Patman, chairman of the House Banking Committee, told the Fed Chief he was guilty of "malfeasance and nonfeasance in office."

"Your agency has failed miserably and is continuing to fail in meeting its obligations to the economy in a wartime period," Patman said. "Outside of the Viet Cong, I do not know of any institution that has done more to damage the American economy in the past few years."

Patman said he would not consider administration legislation to permit an increase in FHA and VA mortgage interest rates until the FED complied with previous legislation aimed

West Virginia Officials Face Federal Charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Gov. W. W. Barrow of West Virginia, three present state officials and two West Virginia businessmen have been indicted on federal charges of bribery and conspiracy, the Justice Department announced today.

Also named in the indictments returned by a federal grand jury at Charleston, W. Va., on charges involving state contracts were:

Burl A. Sawyers, 55, West Virginia state road commissioner.

Vincent J. Johnkoski, 57, deputy state road commissioner.

Truman E. Gore, 56, West Virginia commissioner of finance and administration.

Bonn Brown, 56, Elkins, W.Va., attorney.

Alfred W. Schroath, 65, Clarksburg, W.Va., automobile dealer.

Barron, a Democrat, served as West Virginia governor between 1961 and 1965.

The indictment charged that a conspiracy began in 1961 with Barron's appointment of the three state officials and is still continuing.

It also charges that the conspiracy called on Brown and Schroath to spread the word to certain companies that they could obtain state contracts — many without competitive bids — in return for payments to several companies set up by Schroath.

The grand jury charged that Barron and the three other state officials conspired to direct business to those companies which made payments to a firm set up by Schroath.

Profits from the conspiracy, the indictment charged, were shared equally by all the defendants.

The indictments were returned under a federal law governing conspiracy in the use of interstate facilities to aid in racketeering enterprises. If convicted, the defendants face a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine each.

Barron and the others were charged with setting up land development companies in Florida to which receivers of state contracts under the alleged conspiracy would make contributions.

The indictment did not contain a total of the amount of money allegedly gained through the conspiracy.

Eighty-Nine Legislators To Run Unopposed in Texas Primaries

AUSTIN (UPI) — Eighty-nine Texas legislators will run unopposed in their party primaries but 55 Democratic incumbents and one Republican face intraparty competition for nominations.

Appropriations committee chairman Rep. Bill Healy and Sen. A. M. Aikin Jr. are both unopposed in their party primaries. But face challenges from Republicans in November.

Two other Democratic House committee chairmen, Rep. Bill Clayton of Springlake and Rep. Ralph Wayne of Plainview, have no Democratic opposition, but face challenges from Republicans in November.

Sen. Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo faces opposition in both the primary and general election. His foes will be W. E. (Pete) Snelson in the primary, with the winner of that contest facing Republican Ernest Angelo Jr. of Midland. Snelson almost beat Hardeman two years ago.

Foreign Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

In the ferment of a changing world, an accompanying phenomenon has been a rising political consciousness among student groups the world over and the use of student demonstrations as a political weapon.

As a one-time student, this correspondent recalls such far-off events as the Iowa farm revolt in Depression days and the veterans' march on Washington. These were events of far-reaching social and economic importance but they also were far outside the student world.

No such thing as draft-card burnings or the extreme of student self-immolations on college campuses occurred then. The student now expected to be heard, whether it be against the policies of his own administrators or of the government in Washington. And politicians now feel it necessary to carry their campaign messages to the student forum.

Latin Political Force

As a phenomenon, the student in politics is nothing new to the more volatile Latin nations where he long has considered himself among the elite, living on campuses where either the law or tradition assured autonomy and freedom from police interference.

But it is something new for the United States and for other such orderly nations as Sweden and West Germany.

A natural student target in recent times has been the war in Vietnam but it need by no means be such a major issue.

In Freiburg, West Germany, police turned water cannon on students demanding lower street car fares.

In Hamburg, police pushed back 1,000 students attempting a march on America House to demonstrate against the war in Vietnam.

Similar student demonstrations have been held in West Berlin, London and Stockholm.

Warning To Demonstrators

So widespread and violent have the German demonstrations become that Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger felt it necessary to issue a warning that demonstrators would be punished.

"We live in a free country, but we also live in a nation of laws in which no one is allowed to use violence or to violate law and order to impose his own opinions," he said.

Unfortunately, these demonstrations have their own inherent dangers.

On the Berkeley campus of the University of California a demonstration against teaching methods degenerated into a demand for the right to utter obscenities.

In West Berlin, it led to a course in the making of Molotov cocktails.

NEEDLESS DISASTER

HONG KONG (UPI)—A senior fire department officer said that no one should have died in a small fire confined to one floor of a building and extinguished in 10 minutes. Assistant Chief Fire Officer Fred Jackson said the 18 persons who suffocated might still be alive if two workmen had turned in an alarm before fleeing in panic.

REVEAL PLAN

LONDON (UPI)—The British government announced yesterday that the planned Anglo-French jet passenger "airbus" for short hauls would go into service in 1973. John Stonehouse, minister of state for technology, told Parliament it wouldn't compete directly with the similar American-built airbus which may begin service in 1972.

IRVING, Tex. (UPI)—Charges of armed robbery were lodged Monday against two men in the holdup of a Minyard's supermarket, and a third was being sought today.

The charges named Finis Smith Blankenship and Robert Leon Sharrock. A third man got away despite a manhunt by officers and a shot fired at his auto by Irving Police Chief James Coldwell.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Television paid tribute Sunday night to newspaper comic strips in a one-hour NBC-TV special—"The Fabulous Funnies"—that had all the looks of a high-powered show business winner.

It was first cabin all the way, thanks in great measure to that gifted and civilized showman, Carl Reiner, who not only provided the link for the animated sequences, musical numbers, film clips and interviews with cartoonists—but set a new standard for video hosts as well.

Despite the excellent organization and format of the show, it was the ubiquitous Reiner—participating in the animation clowning, narrating with style and even singing "Little Orphan Annie"—who gave the hour its final touch of high gloss. He broke down the cold concept of the impersonal video host in a charming way. And he clearly threatens Tony Randall's position as one of our new singing idols.

Emphasize Entertainment

Technically, this was one of those so-called entertainment-documentaries. But the emphasis was almost wholly on the entertainment value, with only light touches of the significant aspects of comic strips in the social scheme. It would be an entirely welcome idea if the same production crew, and Reiner, did a followup special concentrating on the social aspects.

The Sunday hour noted that an estimated 100 million newspaper readers scan the comics daily. And among the cartoonists interviewed briefly were Charles Schulz (Peanuts), Al Capp (Li'l Abner), Chester Gould (Dick Tracy), Milt Caniff (Terry and the Pirates, Steve Canyon), Rube Goldberg, Mort Walker (Bettie Bailey), Chic Young (Blondie), Otto Soglow (The Little King), Hal Foster (Prince Valiant), Fred Lasswell (Barney Google), Al Smith (Mutt and Jeff) and Ernie Bushmiller (Nancy).

There was, of course, the inevitable film clip of the late New York City mayor, Fiorello LaGuardia, reading the comics on the radio. But the frankly entertainment numbers—were very well done too. Best, perhaps, were the Royal Guardsmen doing their lively song inspired by the "Peanuts" strip, "Snoopy vs. the Red Baron"—with live action and animation giving added bounce.

Musical Numbers

In addition, the Doodletown Pipers were fine with "Alley Oop," as well as offering "Jubilant T. Cornpone" from the musical version of "Li'l Abner," and the comedy team of Burns and Schreiber had a splendid taxi sketch keyed to the hour's theme.

Lee Mendelson productions was responsible for the program. The contemporary flavor was well integrated by producer George Schlatter and director Gordon Wiles. Sam Denoff and Bill Perky did the writing, along with Mendelson and Schlatter. And Reiner, who can put a show together, put this one over.

PHS Students See Careers In Annual Clinic

Pampa High School students had a glimpse into the futures of their possible vocations today as they attended the 10th annual Career Clinic, and heard Mrs. Morton G. (Dolly) Ware, speak on "Promise of Tomorrow."

After Mrs. Ware, of Fort Worth, delivered the keynote speech in a general assembly early today, students attended a series of roundtable discussions on 60 professions.

Sponsors were Altrusa Club, Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Pampa Chamber of Commerce. Clinic directors were Mrs. D. B. Jameson, Altrusa representative; Mrs. Gene Fatheree and James H. Hult, counselors.

After the 66 Pampa area consultants reviewed the eight basic questions pertaining to their occupations, students, faculty members and consultants attending the clinic were to write critiques of the clinic to assist those planning the 1969 clinic.

Consultants meeting with PHS students today were to describe the principal divisions of their work, the kind of work done and the people and equipment needed for the occupation.

In discussing the importance of each occupation reviewed they were to explain the necessity for it and if the demand for the occupation will increase or decrease.

Consultants in businesses, professions or vocational fields were to explain how and where a student should prepare for the career, and what type and grade level of education is demanded.

On the question, what abilities are needed for each career, they were to answer which of 14 qualities best suited the occupation: abilities to follow directions, get along with others, lead others, use good English, write well, use common sense, courtesy, dependability, initiative, perseverance, thoroughness, mechanical skill and physical strength.

Questions on income students listed for study were what is the average yearly income of a beginner, experienced worker, methods of payment and chances of building a savings on the salary.

Questions to be answered on advantages and disadvantages of the occupation are "does the worker have a chance for growth and promotion, and is the occupation regular, or overcrowded with applications, and where are best opportunities in each field?"

Consultants were also to explain methods and times of job applications.

Before the first career clinic was held 10 years ago, representatives of the three present sponsoring organizations and school officials studied career clinic plans which were successful in other places. They enlisted help of major companies in this area, set up a budget, devised a student and consultant handbook and a student survey to indicate the students' career interests, and made a checklist to evaluate results of the clinic.

High school seniors who have attended three clinics here will have had chances to study six different vocational fields to get realistic information from people actually working in the careers they study, clinic directors said.

Thousands Living In Sin Says Mayor

MAPLE SHADE, N.J. (UPI)—You'd think Valentine's Day wasn't the most propitious time to bring it up, but former Mayor George Senior of Maple Shade is outraged because "Thousands of people are living in sin."

The errant lovers owe their nonmarried status to a mixup at the courthouse, and not to any conscious aversion to carnal bliss. In fact, they were not even aware of their social transgression.

Over the past seven years, 671 couples took out married licenses at the Maple Shade Township offices. Each bore the signature of the municipal registrar, Mrs. Verona MacQuaid.

So far, so good. But, unbeknownst to the bride and groom, in each case the license was invalid.

It seems Mrs. MacQuaid was appointed by the five members of the local board of health, not the five members of the township committee as required by state law.

It mattered little that the five members of the board of health are also the five members of the township committee. The licenses are invalid. The township committee became cognizant of the mistake in January, and had tried secretly to correct the error so as not to inconvenience the married couples. The effort was unsuccessful.

Township Solicitor Howard Yocum, however, has assured the 671 couples they will not have to go through it all over again. The licenses will be pulled from the files and taken to court for validation "without any trouble," he says. Love conquers all. Especially on Feb. 14.

Color Change Suggested For Fire Trucks

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Fire engine yellow? That is the suggestion of Dr. Arthur C. Heinsen Jr., one of the nation's leading optometrists, who told the Southwestern Congress of Optometry Tuesday red fire trucks may be pretty but they are quite unsafe.

Heinsen, of San Jose, Calif., said red looks like black at night. "More people run into fire engines than fire engines run into people," he said.

Hunting coats are slowly changing from the traditional red to yellow because of research into color blindness, he said.

"We know that one out of 12 men is color deficient or color blind," he said. "He sees red and green as the same color. Therefore a hunter wearing a red coat and standing in front of a green tree would not stand out to a color blind person."

He said he thought the best color for fire trucks and firemen's coats was golden yellow.

Mercury Thefts Are Reported In Oilfields

Theft of mercury from oil field regulating meters has been occurring in Gray, Wheeler and Collingsworth counties for the past month, Gray County Sheriff R. H. (Rufe) Jordan warned oil field producers this morning.

"We've had several incidents like this to happen over the years," Jordan said. "We had not been bothered with these kinds of thefts for about two years until just last month."

Jordan said the thieves had done "a very professional job" of removing the mercury from the oil field meters.

"Mercury sells for about $7 a pound and these thieves (or thief) have been averaging about 8 or 9 pounds per meter," Jordan said.

The Sheriff said that a total of about 50 mercury thefts had occurred in the three counties.

Rotarians Hold Ladies Night

Pampa Rotary Club members honored their Rotary Anns at the annual Ladies Night Banquet last night in the Coronado Inn.

Soloist Bill Davis, Pampa High School Choir Director, accompanied by Jerry Whitten at the organ, provided the musical program.

Floyd Watson, who served as master of ceremonies, introduced the guests and David Fatheree paid tribute to the ladies. Stan Burnham gave the invocation.

Patman

(Continued From Page 1) at helping the housing industry. According to Patman, Martin and the FED, under open market policies, were required by 1966 legislation to buy mortgage funds of the Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA) and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

But Patman said Martin had refused to follow the orders of Congress "and because of your defiance, Congress has been asked to impose a fantastically high interest rate burden on home buyers."

"Your failure to carry out this act represents malfeasance and nonfeasance in office," Patman said. "It is malfeasance that is adding to our slums, to the high price for housing, to our crisis in the cities as well as in our rural areas."

"It is the cruelest kind of malfeasance and I hope you have some explanation," Martin shrugged off the malfeasance charge with a chuckle. "I'm sure you're not serious about this malfeasance," he told Patman.

"Not only did I make that statement," Patman retorted, "But I feel very strongly about it."

Martin said it was not an issue of malfeasance. He said the FED had complied with the act. "If we want to lower interest rates we must have a responsible fiscal program," Martin said.

This means, Martin said, approval of the administration's bill to raise income taxes and a continuing program to eliminate the balance of payments deficit.

CAREER TALK — At the annual Career Clinic held today at Pampa High School, there was much discussion, both formal and informal. Shown here in an informal moment are the guest speaker, Mrs. G. (Dolly) Ware, of Fort Worth, and a student, Shirley Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Wallace, 101 S. Wynne.

Address Given To Teachers Association; Election Held

Mrs. Morton (Dolly) Ware of Fort Worth delivered a brief, but witty commentary on American life Tuesday night after delegates to the Gray-Roberts Unit of Texas State Teachers Association met here to elect officers.

Officers elected were G. N. Mounser, Lefors, president; Bob Parks, Howard Graham, and Mrs. Ramona Gruben, first, second and third vice presidents. Evelyn Prichard, secretary, and B. R. Nuckels, treasurer.

Teachers named 16 delegates to attend the district next meeting in Amarillo March 7 and 8 and four to attend the state meeting in Fort Worth in October.

District delegates will be Mr. and Mrs. Frank Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Graham, Mrs.

Ramona Gruben, Mrs. Melvin Hall, McHenry Lane, Mr. and Mrs. G. N. Mounser, B. R. Nuckels, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Parks, Mrs. Hazel Poole, Miss Geraldine Rampey, Jack Riley and Lewis Rogers.

State Delegates will be Graham Rogers, and Mr. and Mrs. Mounser.

Mrs. Ware, an after-dinner speaker who describes herself as a "third generation Panhandle girl," spoke to about 100 Pampa area delegates in the teachers' meeting at Pampa High School.

Her topic, billed as "ESP (Extra-Sensory Perception)," turned into more than a discussion of her 1-year voyage with the "world of mediums and clairvoyants," but a capsule commentary on American living from old-fashioned women and women with careers, to "how to make your husband live longer."

She advised American women, "remember wives, tell your husbands every day how much you admire, respect and love them. You won't regret it. The saddest day for a man is for his wife to tell him to pull his stomach in when he already has."

On children and youth, she said, "someone said 'a child is a creature who stands half way between the adult and a television set,' and some young people think the term 'shift for yourself' means the car shift is on the floor."

Suggesting a way for teachers to help have an honor high school, she advised instilling the ideas, "everybody is somebody, and I care about you."

On the question "where is the old-fashioned woman?" she answered, "at home with our first husbands." She added, "Women today are up and coming. You can see them anywhere, and today, you see girls' knees in places where you used to not see girls'."

In her commentary, on reasons for more multiple births she said, "we are living in a world of instant history. So many twins are being born today because too many of them are afraid to come into the world alone."

In conclusion, she quipped, "there are three rules about making housekeeping easier: 'If it is loose, pick it up. If it isn't, dust it, and if it moves, feed it.'"

On a more serious tone, she added, "The 21st century is here, and it is in the mind. We have gone from muscle power to brain power. The only one left is spiritual power. The day we let God out of America, America is gone, for when freedom is at stake, silence is not golden."

Mrs. Ware, mother of five children, says her philosophy is "happiness is a way of traveling, not a destination," speaks annually to about 100 organizations throughout America. She is married to a Fort Worth executive, manages her own irrigated wheat and maize farm and ranch near Sunray, invents things in her spare time, and reads palms for a hobby. She attended Stephens College and is a graduate of West Texas State University with a degree in English.

Nebraska May Put Kennedy On Ballot

By WILLIAM B. KETTER LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—Nebraska's secretary of state decides today whether to enter the names of Percy, Kennedy and Wallace in the state's biparty May 14 primary.

Frank Marsh has the sole responsibility of slating presidential candidates in the nation's third primary of the year and second "free-for-all" primary.

Automatic on the Republican ballot, Marsh said, were the names of Governors Nelson Rockefeller of New York and Ronald Reagan of California, the two "noncandidates" and the declared Republican candidates Gov. George Romney of Michigan and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

On the Democratic side would be the names of President Johnson and Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn.

He said Tuesday he was not sure how he would handle the name of former Alabama Gov. George Wallace, because the state has no provisions for a third party unless the party is formally organized in Nebraska.

Although Wallace has formally organized his American Independent party in California and was expected to do so in other states, he has not done so in Nebraska.

But Marsh said he could place a third party candidate on the ballot as a Democrat or as a Republican.

He said he would clarify his position at a news conference announcing the slating at 10:30 a.m. CST.

Marsh said "some, but not much" consideration was being given to Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., on opposite sides of the ballot.

Persons not named by Marsh to the primary listing may petition themselves on the ballot before March 15.

Trial Testimony Is Continuing

WHEELER (Sp)—Testimony continued today in the murder trial here in 31st Judicial District Court of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Simpson of Shamrock, charged with the June 30 murder with malice of Simpson's uncle, Jake Sutton.

Two witnesses were called to testify yesterday after the eight man, four woman jury was selected around mid-afternoon. They were Virgil C. Bright, a Mangum, Okla., policeman, and Jack Downer, a tavern owner from Erick, Okla.

Mrs. Simpson, 34, and her husband Melvin, 41, were arrested in Mangum, Okla., July 1 and have been free on bond.

Judge Grainger W. McIlhenny is presiding.

The average age of Americans at the end of 1967 was 27.7 years, according to the U.S. Dept. of Commerce.

Press Gets Sympathy

CHICAGO (UPI)—The executive director of the Illinois Crime Investigating Commission said today his sympathies were with the press in its confrontation with the American Bar Association over the dissemination of information about criminal cases.

"Juries aren't prejudiced by newspapers," said Charles Siragusa. "Juries are a pretty common sense group."

The house of delegates of the ABA will meet here next Monday to vote on the "Reardon Report" which would prohibit attorneys from discussing criminal cases with reporters, particularly in pretrial stages and outside of the court during the trial.

"The only ones who have ever benefitted from sounding off to the press are the defense attorneys," said Siragusa.

"I know of a couple of cases where defense attorneys have leaked information to a newspaper to help their client," he said.

The press restrictions could become an ABA canon next week if approved by the House. Siragusa said such ABA proposals and other recent judicial rulings were making it tough on law enforcement officials.

"Pretty soon the only way we're going to be able to catch a guy is if he comes backing out of a bank with a smoking gun, a la Dillinger, and we're standing there with a summons," said Siragusa, whose office has as one of its prime targets the crime syndicate.

Weather Delays Martin Address

Attorney General of Texas Crawford C. Martin has cancelled plans to speak before the Legislative and National Affairs Committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce at a breakfast meeting tomorrow in the Starlight Room of the Coronado Inn.

The meeting, however, will be held at a later date. Inclement weather made it impossible for Martin to make the trip here from Austin.

Topic of Martin's talk will be "1967 and Your Attorney General's Office."

Martin was elected attorney general in 1966 and assumed that position Jan. 1, 1967. He also served in the State Senate from 1949 to 1963, when he was appointed Secretary of State by Governor John Connally. He was reappointed to that position in 1965.

Bomb Near Saigon Near Saigon, where allied troops hunted down guerrilla bands on the outskirts and reported the danger of a fresh Viet Cong invasion, U.S. Air Force E2C Stratofortresses today staged their closest raids to the capital.

U.S. spokesmen said the eight engine jets, each capable of dropping 30 tons of bombs, hit 10.5 miles from Saigon. Some reports said bombs fell closer.

On the capital's fringes, government troops reported killing 64 guerrillas at suburban Binh Chanh. A ship channel near Saigon, guerrilla mortars and recoilless rifle fire hit the SS Tourists, an American merchant ship bringing supplies.

At Hue, Oliver reported the giant balls of napalm fire spread smoke that darkened the city at noon.

Explosions shook the ground throughout the city. Streams of machinegun fire shot up at the attacking U.S. divebombers. A Marine pilot taking part in the raid reported three bullet holes in his F4 Crusader but he made a safe landing at Da Nang airport, 20 miles to the south.

The Communists inside the walls were dug into trenches and bunkers, some of them carved under the walls, Oliver said. Marines said the positions made head on assaults virtual suicide charges—making the air attack necessary.

Agreement Reached On Right of Way

Final agreement was reached this morning on the last piece of right-of-way needed for improvements on Texas 152 (Alcock St. and the Borger Highway.)

The county is responsible for getting right-of-ways needed for new roads or additional construction or improvements to existing ones.

County Judge S. R. Lenning, Jr. said the county agreed to pay George Neef Sr. $5,000 for a 20-foot wide strip of property which extends for approximately three blocks on Alcott St. The property was needed for the widening of Alcock St. and Texas 152.

Harris County GOP chairman Dudley Sharp, who was secretary of the Air Force under President Eisenhower, was positive in his thinking.

Belgian Controversy Flares On Languages

By PHIL NEWSOM

UPI Foreign News Analyst
There is, declared Theo Lefevre, the then-Belgian premier, in 1961 only "one economy, one society, one Belgian nation."

But for three weeks in the medieval Catholic university town of Louvain during late January and early this month rioting students revived an issue that has divided Belgians ever since they achieved independence from the Netherlands in 1831.

This was the linguistic barrier between the Flemish-speaking people of the north and the French-speaking Walloons to the south.

On Feb. 7, the Belgian government, split among itself on the issue, fell.

It is agreed that the pieces will be difficult to put together again.

Recall Past

Those who fear for the future of the country recall with foreboding the bloody demonstrations of the 1950's which nearly ripped Belgium apart over the issue of King Leopold's return from political exile.

That issue also accentuated the differences between the Flemish and the Walloons and led to demands for an "autonomous Wallonia" in protest against the restoration of Leopold. Leopold's abdication and the elevation of his son Eudouin to the throne brought temporary peace. But the language barrier remained.

A new attempt to settle the issue in 1962, setting up formal linguistic frontiers, only led to more riots and new demands for separatism.

And this was the issue at Louvain.

Flemish students feared the Walloons were using their presence at the university as a spearhead for bringing French culture to Flanders, and they demanded removal of the entire French section from the university.

Belgian bishops governing the world's largest Roman Catholic university, also split on the question and tossed it to the government which fell after eight Flemish ministers refused to compromise.

In Belgium, language differences provide the spark. Actually the troubles go deeper.

The Flemish outnumbered the Walloons by more than one million and they had a majority in parliament. But they charged the top jobs in the armed forces and diplomatic services still went to the Walloons.

Finally, the Walloons, for years economically dominant over the Flemish, saw their own fortunes decline because their coal mines were closing and their heavy industries losing out to the more modern factories of Holland and Germany.

Unless agreement can be found, only the extremists stand to gain from Belgium's present difficulties.

The Lighter Side

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—After four weeks of grueling inactivity, Congress is taking a rest this week to renew its energy for the next spurt of dynamic uneventfulness.

The House has scheduled three "pro forma" sessions, which means it meets for several minutes without doing anything.

These contrast sharply with the regular sessions, at which it may meet for several hours without doing anything.

The Senate, meanwhile, is scheduled to renew the civil rights debate. Which means it meets for several weeks without doing anything.

Traditional Holiday

The purpose of this respite, or lull within a lull, is to enable the lawmakers to participate in the traditional Lincoln's birthday observances.

Tradition has it that Congress comes out of hibernation on Lincoln's birthday. If it sees President Johnson's shadow, it becomes inanimate for six more weeks.

The Lincoln's birthday tradition is, of course based on folk myth and is not always a reliable omen.

But for what it may be worth, the weather here was favorable for shadow watching. There was hardly a cloud on the smog bank, which has replaced the horizon hereabouts.

When Johnson went to the Lincoln Memorial for a commemorative address, his shadow was clearly visible. However, I got the impression from his remarks on Vietnam that he may have been seeing the shadow of Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy.

Predict Summer Session

Anyway, the appearance of the President's shadow has caused some forecasters to predict that the congressional dormant season will last too long to permit a midsummer adjournment.

Lest someone leap to the wrong conclusion, I should point out that inaction is not the same thing as lassitude. At least not in Congress.

It takes many long and strenuous hours for Congress to work up a full head of inertia.

The House Ways and Means Committee, for instance, has nearly exhausted itself not acting on Johnson's proposed 10 per cent surtax.

It is difficult to say how much longer Congress will have the strength to remain motionless. But with occasional rest periods, it should be able to hold still until the Easter recess.

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 14, the 45th day of 1968 with 321 to follow. This is St. Valentine's Day.

The moon is full.
The morning star is Venus.
The evening stars are Mars, Saturn and Jupiter.

On this day in history:
In 1886 the west coast citrus industry was born as the first trainload of oranges left Los Angeles for eastern markets.

In 1903 President Theodore Roosevelt enacted into law the Department of Commerce and Labor with George Cortelyou its first secretary.

In 1933 Gov. W. A. Comstock of Michigan ordered an eight-day bank holiday to check a financial panic and $50 million was rushed to Detroit to bolster banking assets.

In 1967 President Johnson ordered the Central Intelligence Agency to stop giving aid to students following reports of long time help to the National Student Association.

A thought for the day: Robert Burns said, "Put to see her was to love her, love but her, and love forever."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Roger E. Spear, president of Spear & Staff, Inc. believes the stock market shows impressive signs of approaching a major selling climax, barring a worsening of the Asian situation.

"The outlook has become so serious toward the end of last week that the worst fears of investors may have been largely discounted," he said.

Spear said the current selling wave is serious and that further selling of the high flyers and glamor stocks is a distinct possibility, although he sees no cause for panic. Fundamental market factors such as rising corporate profits and some rising economic indicators are strong on balance, he said. Spear recommended buying of "good yield-type issues with well-established growth rates and . . . depressed fast-growth stocks and special situations."

James Dines & Co., Inc., said it believes the stock market could be in the process of forming a major bottom within the next few days and that this break "should be a brilliant strategic moment to commit . . . reserves."

The company contended that the list is near an oversold condition but cautioned that if a rally does materialize it probably will not indicate a bull market, but more likely "an intermediate rally in a bear market."

Oppenheimer, Newborg & Neu sees the market in the midst of a major downturn that will break through the November lows and recommends sale of

Washington in Grip Of Gloom, Frustration

The Nation's Capital By GEORGE J. MARDER WASHINGTON (UPI)—On the bus, in the bar, under the Capitol Dome you can sense it—a mood of baffled frustration gripping Washington.

Conversations about the cold and traffic congestion are shot through with bitter comments about the all-season problems of a troubled nation.

Vietnam haunts the capital day in, day out, hour to hour, showing no sign of solution. No longer is there trust in the promise of a phasedown in the U.S. involvement in a year or two.

Then of course there are the 22 men of the USS Pueblo, captives of the North Koreans. Despite official assurances on Vietnam, there is fear that the trend again is toward escalation. You can smell it both in the flutterings of the doves and the flapping of the hawks.

Gloomy Time It is a time such as Washington has not undergone since the Red Chinese crossed the Yalu River into Korea or the Battle of the Bulge in World War II.

Only more so. Today in Washington the problems mount steadily.

There is a stark realization that more must be done in the ghettos of America. But no one has come up with a way of getting at this problem and fighting a war at the same time. The national preoccupation is with Vietnam.

President Johnson, faced with this situation, managed in his new budget to scrape up a half-billion dollars to meet what he called the nation's most urgent needs.

The Senate came into the second session of the 90th Congress with unfinished legislative business on civil rights. It has been alternately debating and ignoring that business from the outset.

The rights measure has been torn between pressures to sweep it under the Senate carpet or expose it to full-dress debate, dehydrate or inflate it, weaken or strengthen it, kill it or kiss it to death with compromise.

The civil rights debate has become something which cannot be labeled a debate or a filibuster, but as a frustrated something in between.

Same Old Story

On taxes, it is the same. The administration, taking on the coloration of an irresistible force, has marched to Congress for the third time, with its "indisputable" argumentation for a tax increase.

It met, for the third time, the immovable object in the man from Kensett, Ark., Rep. Wilbur Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, where tax laws are written—or the page is left blank.

There are, despite all this, a couple of bright spots.

There is enthusiasm this winter about what the federal government will do for the consumer. The cost is minimal: the benefits, political and otherwise, are multitudinous.

And there is the rallying cry for law and order. The criminal must be put in his place.

Washington hungers for the taste of spring—trying to forget that with it will come a batter against frustrations by the name of Martin Luther King, and his followers.

FAST FOOTWORK keeps you alive in Hue, South Vietnam, where these Marines are engaged in house-to-house fighting against heavily entrenched Communist positions.

Liquor Law Revision Group Neatly Divided

AUSTIN (UPI)—A committee carefully balanced between "wets" and "drys" was named today to help revise Texas liquor laws.

Speaker Ben Barnes and Rep. R. H. Cory of Victoria picked Reps. James Slider of Naples and Bill Clayton of Springlake, both with voting records as "drys," and Reps. Cletus Davis of Houston and Roy Garwood of San Antonio, both considered "wets."

Cory, the chairman of the special subcommittee, voted both ways on the liquor by the drink bill in committee last year.

The committee will meet at 9:30 a.m. Saturday in the capitol to begin recommending revisions in the liquor laws. Cory said he would welcome suggestions in writing from anyone with ideas about improving the liquor laws.

He said the committee probably will meet at least once a week in an attempt to have recommendations ready for the special legislative session if Gov. John Connally should decide to include liquor matters in the session. He said he had no assurance Connally would do so.

Cory said the "wet-dry" issue was a factor in selection of committee members, along with experience and ability.

In another development, the Liquor Control Board named a Department of Public Safety Intelligence expert as No. 2 man in the LCB.

43. Monday was named assistant administrator of the LCB, replacing William L. Ferguson. Ferguson resigned effective Feb. 1 in the midst of investigation surrounding the department and its activities.

O. R. Crawford of Jasper, LCB member, announced Humphreys' appointment.

He said the board members feel "fortunate to obtain the services of Mr. Humphreys in our unrelenting efforts to find every possible weakness in the board's operation, and to take corrective measures."

Humphreys has been chief of the DPS intelligence section for 11 years. He will assume the LCB post as soon as he can terminate his services with the DPS.

Humphreys' appointment came on the heels of the firing of LCB district supervisor Johnnie Shillings of Longview. The LCB gave no reason for dismissing Shillings, saying only the action was a result of investigations being conducted into LCB activities.

Long Says Citizen 'Victim' of IRS

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—U.S. Sen. Edward V. Long charged Tuesday that many Americans are "victims" of Internal Revenue Service agents who must catch a certain number of tax offenders to meet a quota.

Long, D-Mo., said the "quota system" remains in effect even though IRS Commissioner Sheldon Cohen has "officially" banned the practice.

Long said, "one of the reasons the IRS agents are willing to break state and federal laws is because of the quotas and production goals they have to meet. I believe many American citizens are victims of IRS agents who are under tremendous pressure to meet their quotas."

Long, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on administrative practices, which has been investigating the IRS, made the charges in remarks prepared for delivery to the Missouri Oil Jobbers Association.

He said, "there are far too many IRS agents who were wiretapping and eavesdropping and wish they could still do it."

Snow Triggers Rash of Accidents In Pennsylvania

SOMERSET, Pa. (UPI)—Swirling gusts of snow cut visibility drastically on the ice-slicked Pennsylvania Turnpike Tuesday, triggering a rash of chain-reaction collisions involving at least 30 vehicles.

Two persons were injured, and a 1-mile stretch of the westbound lanes between the Somerset and Donegal interchanges was closed for nearly two hours.

The collisions began at 8:45 a.m. when winds gusting to more than 35 miles per hour shrouded the superhighway in snow and caused eight vehicles, six of them tractor trailers, to ram together near the Somerset interchange.

"Then it was like dominoes," a state trooper at the Somerset barracks said. "A vehicle would come on, try to apply its brakes and either skid into the back of the pileup or go onto the shoulder of the highway. When a car managed to stop in time and still stay on the road, another would come along and ram it."

Police said the vehicles' slow rate of speed prevented serious injuries.

Admitted to Somerset Community Hospital in fair condition were Terry Empe, 27, a truck driver from Pittsburgh, and Owen Schamber, 66, a beer distributor from Lebanon, Pa. Both suffered head and face cuts. Empe also suffered a dislocated shoulder.

The maze of damaged vehicles delayed ambulances in reaching the scene.

At the height of the pileups a call went out for all available wreckers in the area, and westbound traffic was backed up for at least six miles from the Somerset interchange.

During the lane closings, westbound traffic was rerouted onto adjoining Pa. 31.

Leaders Insist Colleges Close Until Demands Met

ORANGEBURG, S.C. (UPI)—Student leaders today demanded that officials keep two Negro colleges—where three students have been killed in racial violence—closed until their demands are met.

Leon Love, state president of the NAACP youth chapter and a student at South Carolina State College, said "you can't assess the situation, but the tension is still here."

Love and other young Negro leaders from across the state met and drew up a list of demands calling for desegregation of a bowling alley where last week's violence began, creation of a fair employment commission and an end to "police brutality."

"We want these demands to be carried out," Love said. "Unless they are, we can't expect Orangenburg to remain as quiet as it has been the last few days."

Gov. Robert McNair said Monday he had been in contact with the White House on the violence that rocked this farming town, and announced the 600 National Guard troops rushed in last week would remain in town indefinitely.

Another NAACP youth leader, George Campbell, challenged McNair's statement that "black power" agitators from outside the state were responsible for the violence.

They "couldn't agitate anything unless there was a situation of unrest," Campbell said. "If you really want to look at an agitator, just look at an officer."

UAW Men Strike Dallas Ford Plant

DALLAS (UPI)—An estimated 1,600 members of United Auto Workers Local 870 walked off jobs at the Dallas assembly plant of Ford Motor Co. today.

Local president Roy Kinney said the strike was called because the company refused to negotiate a work overload issue.

Kinney said he anticipated a "long strike."

The union approved the strike in a vote about two weeks ago, but the company was not served a five-day notice until Feb. 5. The five days ended at midnight Saturday, and negotiations broke off Sunday.

Kinney said the main reason for the strike was the union's contention extra work was put on employees, who, if they failed to comply, were penalized by a 30-day layoff without pay.

A company spokesman said disciplinary action had been taken against workers who refused to do their jobs. But, he added, the employees were not being overworked.

The union has been negotiating with Ford about a month and a half and "management has not conceded that we have one problem," said Kinney.

DEAR ABBY: I am a teen-age girl with the same kind of problem every other teen-age girl has. BOYS! First, let me explain that I am not "boy crazy." I'm just tired of going out with my girl friends.

In our social setup, the boys reserve the right to ask the girls to go out with them, marry them, etc. This is stupid. All the boys I know are shy and have no initiative. It is very frustrating!

Could you do me a favor and tell the boys of the world to open up their eyes and notice that there are girls around, and to please pay some attention to them, to call them up and show some interest?

And, Abby, if you know of a planet where it is acceptable for a girl to ask a boy for a date, please let me know. I am packed and ready.

A PROTESTER
DEAR PROTESTER: I agree. The system is all wrong. Not only do the girls outnumber the boys, but they mature earlier and are ready, willing and eager to commingle while the boys stand around with their hands in their pockets, blushing it up.

No wonder the women are becoming the more aggressive breed. And even more frightening is the undeniable increase of men who don't care whether they lead or follow.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the girl who wants to change her fiancé's name to something shorter and easier to pronounce. Don't do it.

My name has 14 letters in it.

Executive Board Has PTA Program

The Executive Board of Lamar PTA met recently in the principal's office for a business meeting and announced March 6-30 will be Public School Week. In the unit meeting for Father's Night the Father's conducted the meeting. Cub Scouts of Pack 111 gave the pledge and Austin Ruddick the prayer. Charles Terrell presided, as Lloyd Gooch read minutes and Tom Dunn gave the treasurer report. A nominating committee was elected.

David Green introduced the program. The Lamar Choir, directed by Mrs. Sue Higdon, presented an original patriotic program written by three members of the choir.

A Teacher Appreciation program for March 7 will be the next unit meeting.

1968 Cupids Mail Sentiment In Valentine Ribbons 'N' Lace

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—The sentimental valentine is back in all its satin, ribbon and lace glory. Credit its return in large part to the war in Vietnam, and to a lesser degree to the fact it's leap year and open season on eligible males.

But the greeting card industry has found that in times of war, there is a surge of sentiment both on the home and battle fronts. This year, for instance, local organizations scattered around the nation got together to send both Christmas greetings and Valentines to men in Vietnam, whether they knew them or not.

Men in the combat zones are affected too. During the early days of World War II, men fighting in the North African campaign actually mailed more holiday greetings to the folks at home than the folks at home sent, reported Stephen Q. Shannon, executive director, the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

Shannon said that Valentine ranks second to Christmas in the number of cards mailed, but represents only eight to 10 percent of the total greeting card business. Christmas accounts for more than 50 percent. Trailing Valentine's day are Easter and Mother's Day, about even in numbers.

Valentines these days are for expression of friendship, as well as love. And there are any number especially for children. The custom of sending Valentines actually pre-dates Christianity and grew from a Roman festival, the Feast of Lupercalia, dedicated to the pastoral god, Lupercus, and to the goddess of love, Juno.

As part of the merry-making, Roman maidens placed their names in an urn set up in the public square and courageous bachelors were each entitled to one draw to determine "blind dates," as it were, for the coming year.

The Christian church for centuries fought these "pagan love lotteries," but they persisted. Written Valentines appeared about the year 1400, says the greeting card association.

The first Valentines in America were exchanged during Revolutionary days. By the middle 1850's the publishing and distribution had become a sizeable business.

Cottonwood Takes Role in Laboratory

By United Press International

The trouble with the eucalyptus is that it cannot stand frost. The cottonwood can stand frost all right but needs plenty of water. It grows all over East Texas and in creek and river bottoms anywhere else in Texas.

Cottonwood has a small, flexible fiber. In contrast with it, the pine, widely used in Texas for papermaking, makes a paper somewhat like coarse weave cloth. But when cottonwood fibers are mixed with pine fibers, the cottonwood fibers fill in the crevices and the result is a slick, high gloss paper.

Another advantage is that cottonwood is light and magazines like it because of increasing mail costs.

"The cottonwood would offer a new source of income in Texas if water were available," Dr. van Buijtenen said. "It is a very demanding tree. It will grow well if everything is going for it. But it can't stand hardship."

COPTER CRASHES

YOKOHAMA, Japan (UPI)—Two workmen flying to a drilling site in a hot springs area were killed when an All-Nippon Airways helicopter crashed and burned.

SIGN PACT

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan and West Germany signed a new commercial air agreement increasing the number of flights between the two countries and giving Japan Air Lines landing rights in Frankfurt.

Dr. van Buijtenen said Champion Paper now is getting cottonwood from Oklahoma and Arkansas. Texas A&M also is conducting other experiments in Southeast Texas on cottonwood growing.

"It looks good in some places," he said. "In others it does not."

But he expects to know in few years whether cottonwood can be grown like a field crop in Texas at a profit.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The coconut crab, Birgus latro, is believed to be the largest land crab in the world—some specimens weighing several pounds and measuring more than a foot in length, reports The World Almanac. Considered good eating throughout the islands of the Pacific and Indian Oceans, the coconut crab, which has a yen for coconuts, abandoned the ocean and adapted its body to terrestrial life.

Area Club Meets
SKELLYTOWN (Spl) — The Skellytown Slimmer TOPS Club leader, Mrs. Evelyn Brobst, led the group in singing several TOPS songs at a recent meeting.

The Queen of the week was Mrs. Sadie Lane, with a loss of 34 pounds.

Mrs. Evelyn Brobst will receive a personal shower today from members in honor of her becoming a KOP, reaching her desired weight goal. Members are asked to bring a salad which will be served during the social hour.

Those attending were Mmes. Evelyn Brobst, Sadie Lane, Ernestine Campbell, Gladys Simmons, Zelma Wood, Odell Hassler, Dorothy Horner, Janie Davis and one new member Mrs. Neoma Mercer.

It was announced the district spring conference will be held Feb. 26 and 27 in Hereford.

About 25 members attended the Garden Club meeting. Mrs. Thelma Bray presented the program on "Beauty Expressed Through Creativity."

"Through the life of Luther Burbank, we found he developed and created new fruits, vegetables, flowers and feed for cattle from cactus. He hybridized the Shasta daisy and developed 23 varieties of potatoes, 220 new trees, grapes and 60 varieties of plums," Mrs. Bray said.

'LIVE-IN '68'

is the name of an open-plan, two-story modern dwelling with an upside down roof. The four-bedroom, two-and-a-half-bath house will be a feature of the 25th anniversary Cleveland Home and Flower Show and will be built inside the city's Public Auditorium. The show, which runs March 2-10, has been named the largest combined exposition of its type in the United States, according to the National Association of Exposition Managers. Architect James G. Herman designed "LIVE-IN '68" to stand by itself or as part of a condominium cluster community, above. Plan, left, shows layout of the first floor. In addition, there are children's bedrooms, playroom and bath on the second floor. An intricately detailed scale model of 80 such homes will be exhibited, depicting part of a residential community possibility for the future.

PROTEST BAN

HULL, England (UPI)—An Icelandic trawler docked at Hull loaded with fish caught in waters now closed to British fishermen because of recent trawler disasters. Hull fishermen complained that foreign vessels were cashing in on the government ban, which was imposed after three trawlers were lost with 59 men aboard.

FLIGHTS BANNED

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnam has prohibited Air France from flying over its territory on runs between Cambodia and Communist China, an Air France spokesman said. He said the ban applied only to Communist China flights and not to the eight flights a week the French national airline makes into Saigon.

Cottonwood Takes Role in Laboratory

By United Press International
The trouble with the eucalyptus is that it cannot stand frost. The cottonwood can stand frost all right but needs plenty of water. It grows all over East Texas and in creek and river bottoms anywhere else in Texas.

Cottonwood has a small, flexible fiber. In contrast with it, the pine, widely used in Texas for papermaking, makes a paper somewhat like coarse weave cloth. But when cottonwood fibers are mixed with pine fibers, the cottonwood fibers fill in the crevices and the results is a slick, high gloss paper.

Another advantage is that cottonwood is light and magazines like it because of increasing mail costs.

"The cottonwood would offer a new source of income in Texas if water were available," Dr. van Buijtenen said. "It is a very demanding tree. It will grow well if everything is going for it. But it can't stand hardship."

COPTER CRASHES

YOKOHAMA, Japan (UPI)—Two workmen flying to a drilling site in a hot springs area were killed when an All-Nippon Airways helicopter crashed and burned.

SIGN PACT

TOKYO (UPI)—Japan and West Germany signed a new commercial air agreement increasing the number of flights between the two countries and giving Japan Air Lines landing rights in Frankfurt.

Dr. van Buijtenen said Champion Paper now is getting cottonwood from Oklahoma and Arkansas. Texas A&M also is conducting other experiments in Southeast Texas on cottonwood growing.

"It looks good in some places," he said. "In others it does not."

But he expects to know in few years whether cottonwood can be grown like a field crop in Texas at a profit.

Harvesters Beat Bulldogs; Need One Win for Crown

The Harvesters crushed the Borger Bulldogs by 68-54 last night one day before Valentine's day with one game remaining and needing one more victory to take the District 3-4A basketball crown.

Alvin Achord came off the bench in the early minutes of the second period to spark the Harvesters to their 25th victory of the season.

The other district teams which had only two losses before this week's action still have only two losses as all won, Tascosa beat Amarillo 62-55; Caprock beat Palo Duro 59-48 and Plainview beat Colorado, 77-53.

The game at Borger was tied five times and changed hands the same number of times before the Harvesters pulled away in the third stanza. Beau Bond made a lay up with 1:30 to go in the third quarter to put Pampa out front by 44-42.

George Bailey hit his 11th straight shot from the charity line with 18 seconds to play in the third to give Pampa a 53-42 lead going into the last eight-minute period.

A 15-foot jumper by Johnny Carlos gave the Harvesters a 17-point advantage with two minutes to go (68-51).

Pampa smashed Borger in the third quarter outscoring them by 22-7. The Harvesters outshot the 'Dogs from the field. Pampa (25-48) hit 53 per cent and Borger (24-65) hit 37 per cent.

This Friday night Pampa ends the regular season play with Palo Duro in Amarillo.

The Shockers beat Borger's "B" team, 51-47, but the "C" team lost by 54-52.

Michigan Skater Takes Silver

GRENOBLE, France (UPI)—Terry McDermott of Birmingham, Mich., the only gold medal winner for the United States in the 1964 Winter Olympics, picked up a surprise silver in the 500-meter speed skating race today and Billy Kidd led the American ski contingent safely through the slalom qualifying test.

Erhard Keller, the world record-holder from West Germany, won the 500-meter sprint with a time of 40.3 seconds but the showing of America's "Flying Barber" was the upset of the day. McDermott had retired for 2 1/2 years following his 500 victory at Innsbruck and at 27 was considered too old to make a successful comeback.

But McDermott, racing in the last of the 24 pairs, came through with an exceptional time of 40.5 seconds. This earned him a tie for second with Norway's Magne Thomassen, who had skated in the third pair.

Keller, skating for only three years, holds the world record of 39.5 for the sprint and also has a pending mark of 39.2.

McDermott, no longer the most famous barber of the 1964 Olympics but now an interior decorator salesman, said after the race he definitely was retiring from competition.

"I also have a living to earn," he said.

Kidd, the silver medal winner in the 1964 Olympic slalom, breezed through his qualifying heat to become eligible for Saturday's championship run. Joining him for the final were Jimmy Heuga of Squaw Valley, Calif., the bronze medal winner at Innsbruck; Spider Sabich of Kyburz, Calif.; and Rick Chaffee of Rutland, Vt.

Jean-Claude Killy, France's king of the hill who is seeking to add the slalom to his downhill and giant slalom successes, also was an easy qualifier in the much-criticized elimination trials, which were aimed at paring the huge field of 102 entries.

"I didn't have any trouble whatsoever," Killy said after his run, "but I still think this elimination is a stupid rule."

'Horns Beat Bears Frogs, Hogs Fall Too

By United Press International

The Texas Longhorns beat the Southwest Conference leader Baylor 79-65 Tuesday night in a night of upsets inside and outside the Southwest Conference.

TCU and Arkansas were also victims of upset-minded SMU and Texas Tech respectively. Only Texas A&M followed the script and defeated Rice.

In another major upset, the University of Texas at Arlington Rebels toppled nationally-ranked Trinity 94-89 in San Antonio. The Rebels, now 3-17 for the season and 1-5 in Southland Conference play, dealt fifth-ranked Trinity its second conference loss. The Tigers are now 17-5 and 5-2.

The Rebels used a full court press to force Trinity into 22 turnovers in a game marred by 58 fouls, and hit eight free throws in the last 72 seconds to steal the win.

Eddie Stallings turned in 31 points for the Rebels and Larry Jeffries 29 for Trinity in the upset.

Gary Overbeck and Billy Arnold had 20 points each in leading Texas over Baylor. The Longhorns never trailed though Baylor tied the game 2-2 and 6-6 in the first three minutes.

Tommy Bowman led the Bears with 19 points.

Lee Tynes, who had only six points for the night, scored four of those in the last 28 seconds to lead Tech to a 74-72 win over Arkansas. His points climaxed a Tech comeback which saw Arkansas leading by 16 points at one time in the last half.

Vernon Paul led Tech with 17 and James Eldridge also had 17 for the Razorbacks.

In the other Southwest Conference games, SMU followed Bill Voight's 24 points and Lynn Phillips' 23 points to a 70-63 win over TCU, and Texas A&M topped Rice 78-58.

Baylor now leads the SWC scramble with a 7-2 mark, while TCU, Arkansas, A&M and Texas are tied for second with 5-4 records. Tech and Rice are both 3-6 and defending champion SMU is 2-7.

Five Stars Talk of Old Garden With New Garden Opening Tonight

A new era in sports begins tonight at the new, multi-million-dollar Madison Square Garden. An NBA doublehader with Boston playing Detroit and San Diego meeting New York will be the first basketball played in the new arena. It will also be an occasion to honor members of the Madison Square Garden Basketball Hall of Fame.

Five of these stars, who helped make the old Garden historic, recall their most memorable experiences there.

Bob Kurland
—Oklahoma A&M

"It was the night of the finals of the 1948 Olympic play-off tournament. I was out of college and playing with the Phillips 66 team against the University of Kentucky. They had guys like Alex Groza, Ralph Beard and Wally Jones. The winner of the game was supposed to place five men on the Olympic team. It was a close game and we won. I had something like 25 points."

Hank Luisetti
—Stanford University

"It was Christmas week, 1936. West Coast teams never did well in the East. Well, we played five games and won them all. The climax came at the Garden when we decisively beat Long Island University, which had won 42 straight. I scored 15 or 16 points — high-scoring then — and also gained some fame because of my one-handed jump shot, unusual in those days."

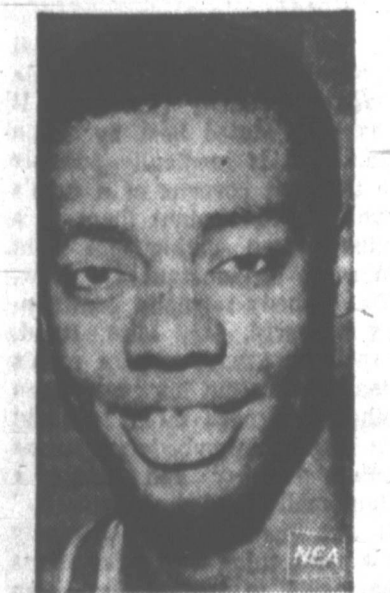

Tom Gola
—LaSalle College, San Francisco Warriors and New York Knicks

"The whole week of the 1952 NIT tournament stands out in my memory. I was an 18-year-old freshman eligible for varsity play because of the Korean War. Here I was playing before 18,000 people in the No. 1 basketball city and arena in the world. We won the tournament and I was named MVP, along with my teammate Norm Grekin."

Bob Pettit
—Louisiana State University and St. Louis Hawks

"For a basketball player, the Garden is like playing Hamlet — it's the tops he could hope for. My biggest thrill was the first time I played there. It was the 1954 East-West College Shrine game. I played center for the East and, although we lost, it was a great experience. My teammates were Frank Ramsey, Cliff Hagan, Frank Selvy and Togo Palazzi."

Oscar Robertson
—University of Cincinnati and Cincinnati Royals

Montgomery Ward
DRUM LOT
OIL SALE
Now In Progress

"It would be impossible to say. Maybe when I was in college I could have come up with one. But a lot of that rah-rah stuff was worn off since coming to the pros. The night I scored 56 points against Iowa when I was a college sophomore was exciting. But the biggest thrill has been just playing in such an historic place. I'm honored to have been a part of it."

Dodgers Get Haller
LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Los Angeles Dodgers today had the long ball hitting catcher they needed after obtaining Tom Haller from the San Francisco Giants.

To get Haller, the Dodgers gave up second baseman Ron Hunt and utility infielder Nate Oliver. As part of the deal, the Dodgers also will get a minor league player to be announced later.

Nine Football Greats Make Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (UPI)—Clark Shaughnessy, whose idea of the man in motion made the modern T-formation effective, and star backs Bobby Layne and Buddy Young were among nine former football greats named Tuesday to the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame.

Also slated for induction into the shrine at the 11th annual awards banquet in New York, Dec. 3, 1968 are backs Eddie Casey of Harvard, Johnny Pingel of Michigan State and Monk Simons of Tulane and linemen Adam Walsh of Notre Dame, Al "Ox" Wistert of Michigan and Henry Ketcham of Yale.

Shaughnessy, who coached college football for 31 years at five schools, developed the man in motion idea—the halfback running through the backfield parallel to the line of scrimmage while the quarterback counted the signals—at the University of Stanford in 1939.

The maneuver out-flanked the 6-2-2-1 defenses of that era and Stanford recorded a perfect season in 1940 followed by a 21-13 victory over Nebraska in the Rose Bowl.

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license, nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself. No more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

But You Must Give

We are indebted to the magazine, U.S. News & World Report, for the following cynical but searching communication.

David Lawrence, editor of the magazine reports that the letter was written by a professional soldier—who preferred to remain anonymous—from a U.S. Army base. The soldier said that he theoretically received it from someone with "modern ideas" of what is expected from a "giver." He also wonders how many people are accepting today the philosophy of "I Will Take," the hypothetical signer of the letter, which follows:

Dear Mr. U.S. Giver:

In order to identify myself, I must say that I cannot be recognized by my social philosophy. I may not even be an American, but I can be recognized by my social philosophy. I feel the world owes me a living. I believe that I am unique and should have priority over others. I believe I should have a high standard of living, regardless of my ability or willingness to work. Finally, I consume more than I produce, and I hold that it is your duty to sustain me and that it is one of my most basic rights to be sustained.

Now that we are identified I want to tell you that you are the root of the conflict in our society today. You think that something may be wrong when an industry is required to pay employees out of proportion to what they produce, or even pay them for not working. You feel a little uneasy when the nation's railroads are forced to hire employees they do not want or need. You can't believe that people are serious when they ask for a guaranteed income or a negative income tax.

I implore you to stop thinking about these and similar things, as your thoughts give rise to unrest and unhappiness. You must realize that it is your duty to give.

You must give of your time and wealth in order that I may live. It is through your earning power and, in turn, your sacrifice that I can obtain the bounty of our civilization. Think of the honor that is yours when you can say, "I have given." In order to glorify you perhaps I will devise a sticker for your car or a plaque for your home, so all may know you are discharging your obligations to mankind.

Do you say you don't want to give? Don't be unreasonable and resist. It would be in vain. All levels of government have the legal and moral right to force you to give through taxation. The governments will in turn insure that I get my share of your wealth. Even though this system has been in effect for years I am not satisfied with the progress that is being made. Your wealth has not been adequately distributed—you still have much more than I. Consequently, I must turn to a more exposed and honest method of obtaining the wealth to which I am entitled.

I will simply take my share by force. Violence and force are my means of expressing my indignation over receiving less than I deserve. Oh, you may have some pangs of regret when your wealth and your property you may feel some imposition when your cities are burned. You may be inconvenienced when unruly and unjustifiable strikes, disrupt your community. Don't you know you are responsible, because you believe your wealth and yours property are really yours? Not so! I have no property—therefore, I have a just claim to a part of yours.

Do not allow me to mislead you. Equality of wealth is not my goal. For if we had equal wealth, I would have but little claim to your possessions. I will be enraged if you allow this to happen. It is your duty to work harder, produce more and sacrifice more, so that my standard of living may become higher and higher.

Stop going against your conscience. Stop resisting and allow me to be sustained in accordance with what I deserve, thereby alleviating the strikes, riots, and uneasiness in this nation.

Forever Yours,
I Will Take

Population Explosion

Beginning in 1896, when the first one appeared, it took 16 years, until 1912, to count the first million. The figure climbed to 50 million by 1931, only 19 years later.

It took even less time, the 17 years until 1948, for the 100-millionth. This figure was doubled in just 14 years—to 200 million in 1962. The next 50 million came in less than six years, or about one-sixth the time required for the first 50 million.

This isn't about people, but about a geometric population explosion of another kind—the motor vehicle.

A few weeks ago, the industry in the United States produced its 250-millionth vehicle. That total includes nearly 206 million passenger cars and more than 44 million trucks and buses.

This is not a footnote to 20th-century history. The fantastic expansion of the role of the motor vehicle plays in our daily lives and in the nation's economy is a large part of that history.

Offbeat Love Manual

Published just in time for the Valentine's Day rush is a new book called "365 Ways to Say 'I Love You'."

It's an "offbeat little love manual," says the perpetrator—ah, publisher—and that it is. Consider these recipes recommended to the housewife who wants "to tell that man in your life how much he means to you every day of the year":

- Put two "I love you" notes in his socks.
- Fill his car with multicolored balloons.
- Murmur "Ich liebe dich" and serve sauerbraten with gingerbread gravy.
- Meet him at his office at 8 o'clock with a cool drink. Or if you can't make it downtown, prepare a royal Roman bath by steaming up the bathroom for at least a half-hour before he gets home. Prepare an exotic fruit bowl for him to nibble while luxuriating.
- Make a tent over the bed with sheets stapled to the ceiling. Veil your face with an exotic scarf.

The manual doesn't say so,

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Currently in the United States, 70 per cent of its 200 million people live on slightly more than 1 per cent of the land. The other 30 per cent live on the remaining 99 per cent of the land, in small towns, in rural areas or on farms. The World Almanac notes that about 11.6 million persons, or less than 6 per cent of the population, were living on farms in 1966.

Civil Rights for Workers
Forty-four words, part of an act of Congress, have a lot to say about the civil rights of American working men. And every year a powerful lobby seeks to strike out these words. The "words" comprise Section 14-B of the Taft-Hartley Act. They specify that any state may pass a law to forbid the practice of compulsory unionism. The "lobby" prefers compulsory unionism in all states.

Compulsory unionism is an arrangement in which an employer and a union official agree to require every employee to join a labor union, in order to hold his job. New employees generally get 30 days to join up or get out.

Right-to-work laws are state laws (as allowed by 14-B) which prohibit such compulsory arrangements. If a worker lives in one of the 19 "right-to-work" states, he may decide for himself whether to join, or not to join, a union.

The Manion Forum radio and television audience was recently brought up-to-date on this subject, by the Executive Vice President of the National Right-To-Work Committee, Reed Larson. This organization is dedicated to the belief that union membership should be a voluntary affair. Here is what Larson had to say:

"The paid union officials, who like to have their salaries paid by the dues which employees are forced to pay into union treasuries, want 14-B repealed so that there will be legal compulsory unionism in every state."

"All of our polls—in fact the AFL-CIO's own secret poll which was revealed to the press last summer—indicate that a substantial percentage of the rank and file union members believe that membership should be voluntary, not compulsory. But very few of these are willing to hazard the reprisals, the threats and intimidation which come their way when they speak out publicly in opposition to the official union line."

"Three cases, brought by employees, have come to the Supreme Court on this issue of compulsion. In each case the court avoided facing up to the constitutional issue. They didn't reject it; they simply side-stepped it."

"In the most recent one, the Street Case, which was brought by a group of railroad employees, Justice Hugo Black dissented from their action to side-step it. Here is what he said:

"There can be no doubt that the federally sanctioned union shop contract here as it actually works takes a part of the earnings of some men and turns it over to others who spend a substantial part of the funds so received in efforts to thwart the political, economic and ideological hopes of those whose money has been forced from them under authority of law."

"The stark fact is that this act of Congress is being used as a means to exact money from these employees to help get votes to win elections for parties and candidates and to support doctrines that they are against. If this is constitutional, the First Amendment is not the charter of political and religious liberty its sponsors believed it to be."

GROWING CRIME RATE

Thomas Jefferson wrote in 1776 that the primary purpose of government was to keep men secure in their lives, liberties, and property. He said that since some men would always try to violate these rights, "government would be defective in its principal purpose were it not to restrain such criminal acts."

Today, nearly two hundred years later, the "principal purpose" of government is still the protection of its citizens. Yet statistics on the frightening growth in crime in this country show that as our government has usurped more and more of the functions of private enterprise and individual actions, it has become less and less a protector of life, liberty, and property.

According to a report of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, crimes of violence have increased sixty-two per cent in the last six years. Lesser crimes such as thefts and robbery

WASHINGTON:

Algeria Hijacked 12 Ships, Cost Million in Ransom

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—U.S. historical experience with efforts to secure the release of hostages doesn't give rise to hope for quick results in the USS Pueblo case.

Probably the most famous American negotiations for the return of hijacked U.S. ships and their crews lasted 10 years and ended with the United States paying sizable tribute.

In July, 1785, the Algerians captured two American vessels. The dey of Algiers held the 21 men aboard for a ransom of $59,496.

Negotiations for the release of these men went on for a decade. Eleven of the 21 died before being ransomed.

Before agreement was reached, the Algerians had hijacked 10 more U.S. merchantmen.

Finally, Congress in 1795 paid $92,463 for the ransom of 115 men, including the survivors of the 1785 incident and as a partial payoff to prevent future hijackings. The United States also agreed to send an annual tribute to Algiers for "protection" of its commerce from Algerian raiders.

Part of the U.S. tribute to Algeria for ransom of the hostage merchant crewmen and for freedom from attack by Algerian ships was the 36-gun frigate Crescent. The ship, with supplies and presents aboard, was valued at over $300,000. The cargo included 26 barrels of dollars.

According to Edgar S. MacLay's "History of the Navy," these presents had a far different effect from that intended. When the other Barbary States saw the ship Crescent given by the United States in tribute to Algiers, they also demanded tribute.

As a result, treaties in which the United States agreed to pay tribute for "protection" were also signed with Tripoli in 1796 and with Tunis 1799.

The payment of tribute did not seem to be effective for long. Periods of peace for American merchantmen and their crews in the Mediterranean seemed to occur only when U.S. Navy ships made shows of strength in the area.

When one American merchant convoy was being formed up for movement through the Mediterranean with Navy escort, the U.S. 44-gun frigate President and the 12-gun schooner Enterprise beries have increased seventy-seven per cent. In the last year alone, the number of crimes has increased seventeen per cent.

The government has defended its programs of handouts by saying that unless men are cared for by government agencies, they will turn to crime and violence as an outlet. Yet crime has increased, not decreased, because individual responsibility is discouraged.

The Supreme Court has also contributed to the growth in the crime rate by its decisions which give more protection to criminals than to the innocent. Crime will continue to increase unless it is deterred by effective punishments on the one hand, and a clear awareness of its moral evil on the other.

prise visited Algiers. MacLay reports that the appearance of this force had a more soothing effect on the dey... than a dozen George Washingtons loaded with presents."

The hijacking and hostage problem wasn't solved for the United States in the Mediterranean until 1805 when Congress sent Commodore William Bainbridge and Stephen Decatur with a number of warships to deal with the problem with sufficient force.

Decatur captured the Algerian flagship, entered the harbor of Algiers, took the capital city and forced the ruler to surrender all U.S. captives, pay an indemnity and give up his exactions of tribute. Decatur then went on to Tunis and Tripoli and forced the same agreements on their rulers.

These acts ended the Barbary state attacks on American shipping. The North Africans continued, however, to attack the ships of European nations and other countries for another decade and a half.

Wit and Whimsy

A politician was seeking reelection.

Mr. Driggs—Fellow citizens, I stand before you on my record. If you had a hired man who had worked for you for a long time, would you not think it right for you to keep on employing him?

A voice from the audience broke in with:

Voice—Not if he got to thinkin' that he owned the whole darned farm.

Mr. Smith (sadly admonished his wife)—If you hadn't taken so long getting ready, we would have caught that train.

Mrs. Smith—Yes, and if you hadn't hurried me so, we wouldn't have so long to wait for the next one.

On a government road job one of the political job holders was assigned to go up the road and warn the motorists that the way was partially blocked and to drive carefully. The worker assigned to that duty was afflicted with laryngitis. A motorist drove up and the worker stopped him.

Mr. Tate—What's the matter?

The worker with laryngitis whispered huskily.

Mr. Webb—There's a government road job up the road.

Mr. Tate—That's all right, (whispered the driver.) I'll go by quietly so we won't wake 'em.

Trim-Fat Plans Proposed To Curb US Gold Drain

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Foreign News Analyst
The "American abroad" celebrated by Mark Twain, Henry James and Ernest Hemingway may soon be a vanishing species.

The Johnson administration is currently studying a tax on the spending of Americans overseas as one method of slowing the nation's loss of dollars through tourism.

This one ostensibly will be only a temporary emergency measure. In some distant future the ordinary citizen of the United States could regain his cherished right to travel and traditional freedom of movement.

But, as the French say, "nothing is as permanent as the temporary." In government bureaucracy restrictive measures usually become permanent. Indeed, was a tax ever rescinded? Americans are still paying taxes imposed as temporary measures during World War II.

There is hardly any doubt that a tax on travel to Europe, if it is ever imposed, will hurt the less-affluent, especially teachers and students ever eager to acquire a bit more culture.

It will mean little to the well-heeled heavy spenders of the international jet set who will continue to shuttle to the plush cafes and discotheques of Europe and New York.

A tax that only the affluent can pay is a particularly undemocratic way of curbing the American urge to travel abroad.

A wiser method to stop the drain on the dollar, more in the spirit of American democracy, was suggested by Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont.

Why not, he asked, bring home the 220,000 American soldiers who are still in Europe? Under the protection of the American "nuclear umbrella," the West European nations are now strong enough to defend themselves in a limited war with Russia.

The fact is, of course, that the Russians are too busy with their Red Chinese enemy and their own economic troubles to embark on military adventures in Europe. Moscow's military strategists never relished the idea of a possible conflict on two fronts—in the Far East and West.

NATO still serves as a guarantee against a revival of Russian aggression, but it no longer needs the presence of American divisions in Europe.

Another practical suggestion was made by Prof. Robert Strausz-Hupe, director of the Foreign Policy Institute of the University of Pennsylvania. In his view, a drastic reduction in the swollen staffs of U.S. agencies operating abroad would be an effective measure to cure the ills of the American balance of payments.

The American ambassador to Brazil said recently that his diplomatic mission would not be worse off for a 25 to 40 per cent reduction in manpower.

As Strausz-Hupe pointed out, U.S. missions abroad "team with all kinds of experts who are supposed to render all kinds of services to the respective host countries." Yet such services to the local populace could and should be provided by the indigenous governments at their own expense.

To save some $500 million, the government bureaucracy is again encroaching on the American's fast-vanishing rights.

As yet, it seems, the Johnson administration has done little to trim the top-heavy "diplomatic" staffs abroad or bring the American soldiers home from Europe.

Perhaps, Strausz-Hupe suggested, before the physician attempts to cure his patients, he should make every effort to cure himself.

The imposition of a tourist tax is also a two-edged sword since governments threatened with the loss of American tourists are bound to retaliate.

It will certainly stop the flow of young Europeans who have been coming in ever greater numbers.

would have enabled them to save 2,000,000 pounds sterling a year whereas the largest deficit in any one year had not been more than 300,000 pounds sterling. It claims that the unions forced this excessive staff on the News Chronicle and The Star, and that in consequence nobody did a fair day's work.

That's a pretty good example of how newspapers having a union contract cannot be independent, watchful and courageous newspapers trying to inform the general public on the truth of all important questions, without any favoritism to any special group.

TRIBAL ECONOMICS

Paul A. Samuelson, author of a widely-used textbooks in economics and one of the most influential modern economists, wrote a very interesting column in Newsweek a short time ago. Since the statist approach of Mr. Samuelson is an unfortunately widespread disease today, I'd like to comment on a few of the things he said.

Discussing what basis should be used by economists in recommending policies to politicians, Mr. Samuelson says, "On what then DOES depend the proper policy recommendation? Ultimately, the choice on such matters must depend on the value judgments of the majority of the citizenry." And he went on to say that "the United States is not today remotely near any limit of tax capacity," that he could think of all sorts of good reasons for expanding the "public sector," that Americans are today probably spending "too little" on government, especially on "important welfare programs," and that what the majority wants, the majority should get.

Mr. Samuelson would like to claim that he is being "scientific" by implicitly endorsing the value judgments of the "majority" of the people and by discharging policy recommendations in all directions, to help "the people" attain what they want, but he isn't. If you tell a thief the safest way to steal something, you are helping him steal, and you are lending moral sanction to the robbery. Mr. Samuelson is doing the same thing when he advocates welfare programs which loot some people for the unearned benefit of others.

One can just see the scientific Samuelson at a Ku Klux Klan meeting about forty years ago, sanctioning the lynching of innocent Negroes, on the grounds that "the value judgments of the majority of the citizenry" demand that their "public resources"—human lives in this case—be sacrificed for an end that the "majority" approves of: the appeasement of naked prejudice.

"But that's entirely different," he will no doubt exclaim. No, Mr. Samuelson, it isn't. The principle is the same. The root of that principle is that a man's life, liberty and earnings—his property—do not belong to him, but to the community, the tribe, the nation: ANY collective, but never to him as a sovereign individual. The basic principle of a free society, the exact opposite of that accepted by Samuelson, is that each and every man is the sovereign owner of his life and property, and that no one—neither man nor government—has the right to molest anyone else for any reason.

Mr. Samuelson disagrees. For him, it seems perfectly all right to rob anybody, as long as that robbery is "legal" and in accordance with the "value judgments of the majority." Perhaps Mr. Samuelson can justify his belief, but he hasn't done so, to my knowledge, thus far. Shall we really regard everybody's lives and property as belonging to the tribe, and seek fair ways to distribute wealth, so that inequality would be abolished?

If so, then we'll find the final application of this principle leads to a sticky problem. It has been stated best by Ayn Rand. It is medically possible to take the corneas of a man's eyes and transplant them to a blind person, giving him sight in some circumstances. Now, if everybody is really community property, says Miss Rand, "should we wait until a man's death to cut out his eyes, when other men need them? Should we regard everybody's eyes as public property and devise a 'fair method of distribution'?"

If not, then why do precisely the same thing with other items belonging to individuals? Can it remain wrong to nationalize a man's eyes, while it is right to nationalize a man's income? But the principle is the same!

A thought for the day: American novelist Hermann Hagedorn said "Down the chambers corridor of years, the quiet shutting, one by one of doors."
