Czechs Meet In New Atmosphere To Talk Reform

PRAGUE (UPI)—The Czech Parliament met today in an atmosphere of anti-Soviet press criticism and began debate on the new Communist leadership's program for social reform and economic repair.

The debate may also touch on the explosive issue of recognizing West Germany, something no Czech Communist regime has ever before discussed publicly.

The newspaper Mlada Fronta said Moscow feared a "disruption of the firm Czechoslovakia-U.S.S.R. friendships" but it said the basic cause for the concern was the Kremlin's lack of "complete and objective information."

It chided the Soviet leaders for searching the Czech reform movement for "elements of imperialist ideological infiltration rather than for a personal evaluation of existing circumstances."

The trade union newspaper Praca also criticized Moscow for intimating that "imperialists" were maneuvering to use "revisionist, nationalist and politically immature elements" as a means of restoring capitalism to countries like Czechoslovakia.

The newspaper conceded there had been voices in the Czech press that "might have offended our allies, specifically the Soviet Union."

But it added that the voices did not represent the government's official views.

David Ennals, joint parliamentary secretary of the Home Office, went to No. 10 Downing Street for the talks on the growing controversy over an antidiscrimination bill and the ouster of an opposition Conservative party leader for arguing that colored people in Britain should be sent back to where they came from.

The Home Office suspended one immigration officer and ordered an immediate inquiry after 40 officers at London Airport endorsed a petition supporting Conservative Enoch Powell's call for a halt to colored immigration.

The immigration service employees invited Powell to visit the airport and see the "corruption and deceit that goes on to get immigrants into this country."

"We are biased—most people are," a spokesman for the group said.

Powell over the weekend lost his job as spokesman for the Conservative party on defense matters after he suggested in a speech that colored immigrants go back where they came from. Britain has more than a million colored residents and most of them arrived in the country during the past 15 years.

ART SHOW WINNERS—First place winners in the first annual Lovett Memorial Library Children's Art Show are Brent Colwell, 5; Wendy Barber, 9; Bill Deaver, 10; and Robert Gage, 15. The show will be open today through Saturday for the public. About 100 children, pre-school through junior high age, entered the show and displayed 300 exhibits.

Winners In Children's Art Show Named

Lovett Memorial Library staff members announced winners today in their first annual Children's Art Show which will be open to the public today through Saturday.

About 100 children entered 300 exhibits. Since we had such a good response we plan to make this an annual show," Mrs. Barbara Cockrell, librarian, said.

First place winners were Brent Colwell, 5, St. Matthew's Day School pupil, in the pre-school and kindergarten group; Wendy Barber, 9, Stephen F. Austin Elementary School pupil, in group II, grades one through three; Bill Deaver, 10, Travis Elementary School, group three, grades four through six; and Robert Gage, 15, Pampa Junior High, group four.

Other winners in Group I were Todd Jasmin, 6, Dee Barton, 4, (See WINNERS, Page 3)

South Vietnamese Spearheading Push

SAIGON (UPI)—Military spokesmen today disclosed allied troops are sweeping the A Shau Valley in their first major drive along North Vietnam's main infiltration route into South Vietnam. Thus far the Communists were shying from battle.

The 350 South Vietnamese paratroopers spearheading the push into the 25 by 5 mile valley—running from the Laos border east to within 15 miles of the coastal city of Hue—have found in a week only 10 North Vietnamese trucks and 330 pounds of TNT which they seized and destroyed Wednesday, the spokesmen said.

In other developments, U.S. spokesmen said that last week 287 American servicemen were killed in combat, 1,453 wounded and none reported missing. They said the South Vietnamese suffered 380 men killed and the Communists had a total of 1,899 killed.

Low Kill Ratio
It was the lowest ratio of Communists killed compared to allied soldiers killed in a week this year. Last week's "kill ratio"—a military yardstick for judging the tide of war—was slightly more than two Communists killed for every slain allied serviceman. The year's high was 20 to 1 during the Communists' Tet offensive in February.

In the air, U.S. jets flew 116 bombing missions Wednesday against North Vietnam's southern panhandle supply lines, with the Air Force's F111A swinging jets remaining grounded for the second day in a row after a third plane loss.

In the Saigon area, U.S. infantrymen killed 33 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese in a four-hour battle Wednesday 30 miles northeast of the capital. Eight Americans were killed in the fight. But spokesmen said fighting generally slackened in the allied drive to wipe out the Communist threat to Saigon.

Today Viet Cong waiting on the Saigon River channel from the sea to the capital fired four rocket grenades into the Tulane Victory, a 490-foot U.S. transport moving 60 miles south of the capital. Military spokesmen said the ship suffered little damage and no one was hurt.

Communists Musing Troops
Allied attention lay in the A Shau Valley where U.S. intelligence reported up to 10,000 North Vietnamese massing with a battalion of tanks and nests of 37mm cannon to drive away allied strike planes.

Never before had the allies attempted to clean out the valley through which the North Vietnamese rumbled bulldozers carving all-weather roads to run supplies to five Communist

'Open Meetings' Law Is Held To Be Constitutional

AUSTIN (UPI)—Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin said Wednesday the Texas open meeting law was constitutional and he defined some of the terms in the law that had brought charges of vagueness.

Martin released copies of an opinion sent to Cameron County Dist. Atty. F. T. Graham in connection with a Brownsville case.

Graham had said he believed the law unconstitutional because it was too vague. He said he would not prosecute members of the Brownsville Public Utilities Board for barring a Brownsville Herald reporter from a session prior to their regular meeting unless Martin ruled the law constitutional.

Martin said the "language used is clear and unambiguous." He defined some of the terms in the law, which was passed last year and required public officials to conduct their meetings in public with limited exceptions.

The opinion said "setting" and "meeting" were synonymous in the act—either meaning "one in which the members of the governmental body transact official business with which such agency is charged to perform."

Martin offered this definition instead of a literal interpretation of "session" in the sense of any "sitting" of the group.

He said an "open meeting" is one "that the public is permitted to attend," and a "closed meeting" is one "that the public is prohibited from attending."

The ruling said the law provided ample warning to public officials they can be prosecuted for a misdemeanor offense if they participate in a closed meeting, unless they protest the exclusion of the public.

CoC Membership Check-In Friday
The next check-in for the Chamber of Commerce's membership round-up drive will be held at 10 a.m. Friday in the chamber office.

Kay Fancher's "Six Shooters" are currently leading five other teams in the round-up campaign.

Tax Board Holds First Meeting With Assessor

Pampa's newly-appointed city board of equalization held its first meeting this morning with Tax Collector-Assessor Aubrey Jones.

The board, comprising George Scott, L. L. Sone and R. M. Samples, was appointed by the city commission on Tuesday, sworn in yesterday and started to work today.

The tax assessor today turned over books and records on property valuations for the 1968 tax year.

Equalization board members will study the figures and may in some instances lower valuations if it is decided a lower valuation is justified and increase valuations where the board believes tax values should be raised.

Notices will be sent to all property owners where valuations are increased and a public hearing will be set to iron out any differences.

The figures turned over to the board today include valuations on both real and personal property inside the city limits.

86-Year-Old Man Stoned By Children

MILWAUKEE, Wisc. (UPI)—He was 86 years old and he was sitting inside when the first stone hit his house.

The old man rushed outside. There were four kids.

The youngest, a 9-year-old boy, threw a stone. The old man went down. The others, two 10-year-old boys and a 10-year-old girl, cocked their arms.

The old man's leg was hurt in the fall—moving around at 86 isn't easy anyway—and he lay there. The yelling children stoned him again.

Rudolph Eakos, 48, happened by. He grabbed two of the children. The other two ran away.

'Display Battle' In Warsaw Between Poles, Americans

By Harold Martin
WARSAW (UPI)—Did you hear the one about the Polish Veterans Union repeating U.S. Polish jokes? They are doing it in Warsaw today to make America look sick.

The American Embassy is countering the campaign with its own display of how Polish-Americans look good.

It is causing a war of words on tree-lined Aleje Ujazdowskie, the street that separates the embassy from the veterans union headquarters.

The veterans group, Zbowid, set up a special display in its small white, prewar manor house set back among the trees. It splashed up a bulletin board display of the American ethnic joke book "It's Fun to be a Polack" by Marvin Miller.

Amunition against United States: a cartoon showing a wild party with the caption, "Who is always last to leave a Polish party?"—the police.

Amunition: a cartoon showing the sleeve of a suit with the caption, "The Polish napkin."

Across the street, in the modern glass and gray marble embassy that is America in Poland, U.S. diplomats counter-attacked. Up went their own sidewalk display. It is designed to show that it is not only fun to be a Pole in America but also worthwhile.

Amunition for America: a newspaper item from the United States about Dr. Edward A. Piczek receiving the Tuberculosis Institute Award.

Amunition: another newspaper clipping: "Patrolman Henry Hojnacki has received a departmental citation for risking death while arresting two women for stealing."

Amunition: articles in Polish on such Polish-Americans in government as Congressman Clement J. Zablocki of Wisconsin and John K. Kluczynski of Illinois and the Federal Reserve system's Mieczyslaw Stefan Szymczak.

Amunition: a reminder that the U.S. ambassador to Poland is John A. Gronouski, a former postmaster general and a Polish-American.

5-Hour Session Is Held By School Board

Pampa School trustees interviewed two superintendent prospects in a five-hour session Wednesday and set dates for three more interviews, two Friday and one Tuesday, according to board President John Gikas.

"We met at 7 p.m. and met until almost midnight in a five-hour session, to interview two applicants. The interviews Friday and Tuesday may or may not be the end, we won't know until the board is in accord on its decision," Gikas said.

He explained the reason the board is "taking so long, is because we are trying to get the best man for the job and want to be sure. These people are interested in us and we are in them. They are asking a lot of questions about us as we are of them. We both, (the board and its prospects) want to be sure we don't make a mistake."

Gikas stated the board has (See SCHOOL BOARD, Page 3)

Antidiscrimination Bill Controversy Grows In Britain

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson today called in a junior cabinet minister to explain why government immigration officers defied his policy and supported a ban on colored immigration into Britain.

David Ennals, joint parliamentary secretary of the Home Office, went to No. 10 Downing Street for the talks on the growing controversy over an antidiscrimination bill and the ouster of an opposition Conservative party leader for arguing that colored people in Britain should be sent back to where they came from.

The Home Office suspended one immigration officer and ordered an immediate inquiry after 40 officers at London Airport endorsed a petition supporting Conservative Enoch Powell's call for a halt to colored immigration.

City Bank Deposits Are Up $3.5 Million

Bank deposits in Pampa as reflected in the April 18 bank call were more than $3.5 million dollars above the April call one year ago today.

Floyd Watson, president of First National Bank, said today deposits totaled $22,343,163 compared with $19,148,091 last April 25, an increase of $3,195,072.

At Citizens Bank and Trust Co., Floyd Imel, president, reported deposits of $13,077,000. One year ago today the figure was $12,728,000, an increase of $350,000.

The total increase in deposits at Pampa's two banks was $3,545,072 on a ratio-wise par with most other banks in the state where increases were noticed.

Amarillo's deposits in seven banks showed only a total increase there of approximately $6 million in deposits compared to Pampa's more than $3.5 million increase.

US Encourages Mideast Allies To Improve Relations With Russians
LONDON (UPI)—The United States has encouraged its Middle East allies to improve their relations with the Soviet Union but has convinced them the time is not yet ripe to lower their guards against Communist aggression, U.S. officials said today.

Diplomats saw this as the chief achievement of a two-day meeting of ministers of the Central Treaty Organization (CENTO), which ended Wednesday.

Member nations of the 13-year-old alliance—the former Baghdad Pact—are Great Britain, Iran, Pakistan and Turkey. The United States technically has only the status of an observer. But it takes part in all CENTO activities and contributes substantial military, economic and technological aid.

In their closing communique, the CENTO ministers pledged themselves to "continue to work for peace and security in the area."

U.S. officials expressed gratification that there were no moves to pull out or to wind up the alliance, even by Pakistan, which has played a limited role since 1962 as a sign of displeasure at U.S. and British arms aid to its neighbor and enemy, India.

Nicholas deB. Katzenbach, U.S. undersecretary of state, told newsmen that among points he made in the talks were: —Persian Gulf: The United States does not plan to take over Britain's military role in the area. It believes that, basically, it is up to the countries of that area to solve their own problems.

LBJ Leaves 'Em Laughing At Democrat Dinner

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson left them laughing at his first political appearance since pulling out of politics, and he added a chuckle of his own at the notion he might reconsider.

"I never realized withdrawal pains could be so pleasant," the Chief Executive said as he bantered with Illinois Democrats Wednesday.

Johnson made a quick flight to Chicago to address some 4,000 party colleagues at a $100-a-plate fund raising dinner presided over by Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Before and after his speech, a serious plea for national unity and rededication to "winning the peace," Johnson teased his enthusiastic audience about his bombshell announcement March 31 that he would not seek another term.

When the prolonged applause at his arrival died down, Johnson said he had just closed his eyes "and thought for a while that I leaped ahead of time—to another hall in the stockyards," where the August Democratic convention will be held.

"Then I realized who I was—the President, not the vice president or one of the members of the Senate."

In his prepared speech, Johnson said division in the nation must be healed.

No matter how strong and prosperous the country might be, he said, "no nation can long endure when citizen is turned against citizen—cause against cause—section against section—generation against generation—by the mean and selfish spirit of partisanship."

"America's political parties must become the guardians of all our people."

He stressed that "decisions we must make this year are better unity and understanding among the most important any

Mauritius Joins U.N.
UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Mauritius, a small island 500 miles off the East African coast in the Indian Ocean, was voted into the United Nations Wednesday by acclamation as the organization's 124th member.

Americans have ever had to make.

"Perhaps more than at any time in our past, we shall be choosing our future and the future of our children. The trial of our courage and wisdom with continue beyond the ordeal of Vietnam the test of our compassion will continue long after the ordeal of our cities."

The President urged his audience "not as partisans, not as Democrats, not as Republicans" but "only and always as Americans" to view the nation's accomplishments to sustain better unity and understanding.

Historical Group Will Hear Talk Friday On 'The Old Fort Elliott'

The Pampa Genealogical and Historical Society will present Earnest R. Archambeau of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society as guest speaker at the Texas Historical Month Observance, being commemorated jointly by the Society and the Gray County Historical Survey Committee, at 8 p.m. Friday in the auditorium of Lovett Memorial Library.

EARNEST ARCHAMBEAU
... to review history

Archambeau has served the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society both as a board member and as an editor of the Society's Historical Review. He is author of many historical articles and papers including the "First Census of the Panhandle—1880." His research on all phases of Panhandle history has taken him to all major museums and libraries in the country. His research in the National Archives provided the basis of maps he prepared showing the exploration of Josiah Gregg from Ft. Smith, Ark., to Santa Fe along the Canadian River in 1836.

Friday night's program is entitled "The Old Fort Elliott Story" and Archambeau will present a review of the events and circumstances which led to the establishment of the first and only military fort in the Texas Panhandle. The troops who later were stationed at Ft. Elliott came into Gray County in November of 1874 searching for two white girl captives of the Cheyennes—Julia German, 7, and Addie German, 5. Following their recapture by troops under Lt. Frank Baldwin on Nov. 8, 1874, the troops remained in Gray County and camped on Cantonment Creek all the rest of 1874 and spring of 1875 when the permanent fort site was selected some distance farther east in Wheeler County near the present Mobeetie, where the water was said to be better on Sweetwater Creek. The story of the soldiers, buffalo hunters, and frontier families who came to the area and participated in the life at Ft. Elliott is one of the most picturesque in the annals of the southwest.

A commemoration of the 132nd anniversary of the Battle of San Jacinto... the battle that lasted 30 minutes and established Texas Independence from Mexican tyranny in 1836, will be observed.

All members of the society are urged to be present for the bi-annual election of officers for 1968-69 which will follow the program. The meeting is open to the public and all persons interested in the history of the Panhandle region are invited to attend.

BARRIER DOWN
CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI)—The Trade Union Council of South Africa voted Wednesday to admit African unions despite objections of some representatives that the action would run counter to the government's racial separation policies.

Small School Band Contest Results Given

PANHANDLE (Sp1)—Seventeen schools, represented by nearly 1,000 bandsmen, competed here yesterday in the Region One, North Zone, University Interscholastic League band contest for Class A and AA schools.

In Class A, Gruver and Stratford got Sweepstakes awards. White Deer got a 1 in concert and sight reading; Claude, one in concert, two in sight reading; Clarendon, one in concert and two in sight reading; McLean, two and two; Sunray, three and three; Canadian, three and one.

In Class AA, Panhandle and Wellington were awarded Sweepstakes; Phillips got a two in concert and one in sight reading; Sanford-Fritch, three and three; Stinnett, three and three; Spearman, two and one; Shamrock, one and two; Memphis, one and two and Dalhart, two and one.

Concert judges were Harlan Lockin of Southwestern State College in Weatherford, Okla.; Merlin Jenkins of Texas Christian University, Fort Worth; and Mel Meeds, Lee of San Antonio. In sight reading, the judge was Gerald Hemphill of Phillips University, Enid, Okla., and the contest chairman was G. ald Smith, Panhandle Band director.

The bands were judged last fall on marching, and those results were included in their percentages for yesterday's judging.

'Plainsman' To Be Dedicated At Frank Phillips

BORGER (Sp1)—The "Plainsman", a bronze-cast sculpture by A. Kelly Pruitt, will be dedicated at Frank Phillips College at 2 p.m. Sunday, May 5, in the auditorium of the Fine Arts Building. A reception will follow in the James W. Dillard Library. Pruitt will attend the ceremonies.

The statue is the final gift of the 1966-67 sophomore class. Approximately 100 members of the class participated in fund raising projects throughout the school year to help purchase the statue.

The "Plainsman" was created by Pruitt of the Taos, New Mexico, Gallery of Western Art, especially for Frank Phillips College and has a value of $3,000. Only 36 statues will be cast with the first one being placed at Frank Phillips College. The statue, bronzed in Rome, Italy, will be placed in the foyer of the James W. Dillard Library on a pedestal designed by B.R. Cantrell, architect of the library.

Glyce Purcell, Phillips, now of North Texas State University, was president of the 1966-67 class; Stacie McNulty, Borger, also of North Texas, vice-president; and Sharon Purcell, Borger, North Texas, was secretary-treasurer. Class sponsors were Mrs. Catherine Fry, Mrs. Nevada Thomason and Richard McKinney.

'Briscoe Boosters' In Pampa Visit

The "Briscoe Boosters" of Uvalde rolled into Pampa yesterday carrying the campaign message of their "favorite son," gubernatorial Candidate Dolph Briscoe, a leading Texas ranchman, business leader and civic worker, to the people here.

Volunteer citizens from Briscoe's home county, the Briscoe Boosters have taken off work and are paying their own expenses to tour the state, relating the outstanding qualifications of their fellow townsman for Governor.

The touring groups include men in motorcades while the ladies are taking to the road via bus. They'll cover an estimated 22,000 miles in the campaign, according to Jack Graves who is the Briscoe Boosters chairman.

The men's groups, composed of businessmen, professional men, farmers and ranchers, are traveling in motorcades of three to four cars each tour. Tours are running one a week, with two a week tours during the final weeks of the campaign. Graves explained.

The ladies' tours are being made by bus, with each bus carrying about 20 ladies.

They're stopping in each community along the tour routes.

Man Held After Car Is Taken

A man identified as Ronald Dean Sweet was brought to the Gray County jail today on a warrant from the county sheriff's office after being charged with driving an automobile without the owner's consent.

Gary Wetsel, the car owner, said he was in the Chaparral Cafe about midnight last night when the man ran outside, got in his car and drove away.

Sweet was arrested in Shamrock by a law enforcement official after a service station owner notified him that a man had failed to pay for some gasoline. The warrant for his transfer to Gray County issued this morning.

Settlement Is Reached Here In Labor Dispute

A settlement was reached yesterday afternoon between Cabot Corporation's Pampa plant and Stanley Butler, a dismissed employee, at a National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) hearing in the Gray County courtroom.

The hearing stemmed from charges filed by C. R. Williams, representative for the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (OCAU) at Cabot, that Butler had been fired for "discriminatory reasons." The charges were filed with the 16th Regional Headquarters of the NLRB in Fort Worth.

Cabot charged that Butler was fired for insubordination. The union petition charged that Cabot had engaged in unfair labor practices in dismissing Butler for attempting to organize Cabot's Technical Service into a union. Technical Services includes analytical, rubber and ink laboratory workers.

Butler was dismissed Dec. 22, 1967. The petition was filed with the NLRB a short time later. The union also charged Cabot with further threatening employee security by stating that Butler had been fired for passing out union cards. The union petition also charged Cabot had threatened to reduce employee pay from a weekly to an hourly basis if they became unionized.

Notice of an election for union representation of Technical Services at Cabot had been called off after the petition had been filed.

The settlement reached yesterday provided for:

(1) Cabot Corp. to post a public notice for 60 days in its offices vouching that it would not interfere, restrain or coerce employees attempting to form labor organizations.

(2) Payment to Stanley Butler of $3,000 "to make whole for any loss of pay suffered as a result of any discrimination."

The funds, granted under the FAA's airport aid program, will be used to extend and mark the north-south parallel taxiway connecting taxiway and re-connect and mark north and south parallel taxiways with connecting strips, and extend the airport parking apron.

Pampa Girl Will Sing In Concert

Diane Phillips, 1966 Pampa High School graduate and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Phillips, 729 N. Nelson, is a member of the Baylor University Chamber Singers which will present its annual spring concert today in Waco.

Chamber Singers is a 17-voice troupe of select singers, whose specialty is music from the Renaissance and contemporary periods.

Miss Phillips, a junior, sings first alto. She is a music education major, working for a bachelor's degree in music education.

She is also a member of the Chapel Choir which was in Chicago recently on tour.

Bond was set at $2,500 by Justice of the Peace Ed Anderson yesterday for William Albert Moore, 64, of Pampa, for indecent exposure.

Moore was arrested by Lt. G. H. Wallace shortly after noon yesterday following a complaint from a citizen. Police said the incident occurred in an alley near the 100 block of W. Foster.

Another speaker for the day was Tim Duke, recent winner of the Pampa Optimist Club's oratorical contest. His subject was "Golden Opportunities of Youth."

THE LIGHTER SIDE Good Boys, Bad Boys

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — One thing about us Americans, once we understand a problem clearly we usually can be counted on to do the right thing.

Especially if the problem is too big to fit under a rug. The other day, for example, I made a passing reference to these public service messages on radio and television urging motorists not to leave their keys in their cars.

The burden of the appeal is that most car thefts are committed by teenagers and that a key left in the ignition switch may tempt some youth to steal the car.

"Don't help a good boy go bad," the messages say.

A number of motorists have written me saying that until they heard these messages they didn't understand the problem. They had thought that culpability in auto larceny rested on the thief rather than the car owner.

Now that their thinking has been straightened out, they are determined to do the right thing.

One suggested remedy is the enactment of a law under which a motorist whose car is stolen should be arrested for contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

I have a neighbor, Smedley as I shall call him, who particularly took the message to heart.

In my neighborhood, a favorite youth recreation is to drive along the suburban streets dropping cherry bombs into mail boxes. Cherry bombs are used because the kids in my neighborhood are too lazy to make their own Molotov cocktails.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bache Co., feels that the market will continue to be highly volatile "so long as uncertainty over Vietnam peace talks prevail, but we will probably see only limited periods of profit taking as traders continue to accumulate on dips." The investment community, the firm says, insists on positive thinking.

Thomson McKinnon comments that apparently the market has at last entered into some kind of reactionary phase. "A pause for digestion of the spectacular gains of recent weeks would be most welcome at this time," the analyst feels. "A reaction is not expected to destroy the market's improved outlook."

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin's back-to-back visits to Pakistan and India, following closely upon another to neighboring Iran, provides evidence of a sharp revival of a traditional Russian interest in the area of the Persian Gulf and entry to the Indian Ocean.

Britain's influential Institute for Strategic Studies suggests that this same interest may account for seeming Russian ambitions to take over guardianship of the Suez Canal.

It is a part of Russian expansionist moves into areas which formerly had been western preserves extending from the western end of the Mediterranean to the Bay of Bengal.

It has caused Spain to up its price for U.S. Spanish bases, with reopening of the Suez Canal, could make Russia a naval power in the Indian Ocean as well as in the Mediterranean.

To Iran Kosygin promised increased trade.

To Pakistan it was promises of a steel mill, a nuclear power plant and other economic aid.

To India, which he had visited only a few weeks before, Kosygin gave promises that Soviet aid to Pakistan would mean a reduction of arms aid against the Red Chinese.

Also held out was a conditional promise that Russia would come to India's defense in case of a Red Chinese nuclear attack.

It was only a 90-minute airplane stop that Kosygin gave India this time, but his previous visit had resulted in Russian orders for heavy Indian industrial equipment that amazed even the Indians.

This is infiltration at its most sophisticated level.

But to come back to the global analysis made by Britain's Institute for Strategic Studies:

With the development of supertankers and large cargo ships, the Suez Canal is declining in economic and strategic significance to the West. But Russia also is becoming increasingly involved in the political and strategic future of India.

"May she not," demanded the survey, "aspire to become the guardian for Suez for the same reasons that impelled the British to become its guardian 80 years ago?"

In the Mediterranean, the Russians are believed to have 45 to 50 war vessels which are not protected by aircraft carriers and are not rated a match for the larger U.S. 6th Fleet, but which do have a political impact.

Beyond that, the British Institute saw the Russians running into the same frustrations among the Arab states that have plagued the West for so many years.

The institute conceded the danger of a confrontation with the Soviets in the Mediterranean and the Middle East.

But the real target, the institute suggested, is India and its population of nearly 900 million people.

FIRST IN LINE for a roller coaster ride, this deer wandered across the frozen bay at Sandusky, Ohio, and took up residence at a Cedar Point amusement center. Warmer weather has increased activity in the area, but the animal has shown no signs of leaving, posing a problem for local police. Patrolman Leon Luce, inset, directs traffic around the uninvited guest.

National Window

By MERRIMAN UMITH
UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI)—
Backstairs at the White House: With President Johnson and Congress back in town, the tempo picks up at both ends of Pennsylvania Avenue.

Interestingly, the physical presence of the chief executive, although he may be quite invisible to them, seems to make a great difference to tourists visiting the White House.

The visitors are pouring through the executive mansion by the thousands during this warm spring season. When they hear the President is away, there is an almost uniform expression of regret.

Increased earnings housewives are. They seem to feel the trip is more worthwhile if they at least know he is in the same building, although the chances of seeing him in person are remote.

Attendance at the traditional Easter egg roll on the south grounds of the White House Easter Monday was a good example of how visitors feel when the chief executive is not on hand. Police estimated the crowd at a little over 5,000, much less than in years when the first family was in residence.

During the recent convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE), perhaps the most frequent question put to correspondents and Washington officials was: "Is President Johnson really out of it?"

There was another large convention in town at the same time—the annual gathering of the Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR). Interestingly, the DAR ladies were asking much the same sort of question of those with whom they came in contact while visiting the nation's capital.

This reporter had a standard answer: According to all available evidence, the President meant it on the night of March 31 when he informed the country that he would not seek nor accept nomination to another term. Furthermore, he told reporters on the same night that his decision was "completely irrevocable."

To reverse his current political field, the President would have to generate incredible delegate enthusiasm to sweep the Democratic National Convention. There are no indications any such feeling is building up.

Of course, there have been so many political shocks thus far in 1968 that even more experienced political observers are ready to believe almost anything is possible.

The professional experts of both parties, however, do not see a Johnson draft developing, even in the unlikely event that the President changed his mind.

'Political Pollcats' Blasted By Hill In Visit Here

John Hill, Democratic candidate for governor, told a group of supporters here Wednesday that "I am not one of those political pollcats."

"By pollcat, I mean someone who puts out polls saying he is winning the governor's race, when the polls actually have very little substance."

"Most of these polls are 'taken' at the direction of tired old politicians—or tired new politicians—and are based on political observers talking to political observers. The problem is that they never observe anyone but each other, and it's awfully hard for them to realize there is a new voice on the scene."

"Won't May 5th be a surprise?" "Speaking of polls, one taken in Austin the other day showed me with 100 percent of the vote."

"The poll asked the question, 'Who really should be governor of Texas?' It was taken in my Austin state headquarters."

"What is really interesting are the highly unconfirmed rumors I hear that not only did I get 100 percent in my own headquarters, I got 22 percent in another major candidate's headquarters, 35 percent in another, and 48 percent in the third," Hill said.

Hill campaigned Wednesday in Dumas, Pampa, Vernon and Wichita Falls. State Sen. Jack Hightower of Vernon campaigned with Hill in that city. Hill hosted a "Candid Candidate" show last night in Wichita Falls. Today Hill will campaign in Wichita Falls and Temple and will close the day with a "Candid Candidate" show in Waco.

YOUTH PROBLEM

SOFIA (UPI)—Premier Todor Zhivkov of Communist Bulgaria told the state-run television stations Wednesday that he could not tell long-haired boys from girls on the entertainment program and he instructed them to "get rid of these imitators of bad Western taste."

Zhivkov said in a letter to station directors that often he could identify girls only when the cameras moved to the knees "and you are confronted with one of these miniskirts which are contrary to the sound taste of Bulgarians for beauty."

Television In Review

'Emmy' Hilarity

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The annual hilarity that accompanies the release of television's Emmy award nominations has been noted time and time again.

This year, however, it has been disturbing to see how the news-documentary field—television's most significant area—has been involved unfortunately again in the hocus-pocus of the proceedings.

To begin with, the news-documentary people—who have the normal journalistic distaste for affectation—find themselves nominated in no less than five high-sounding categories:

Regularly scheduled news programs; coverage of special events; news documentaries; cultural documentaries and "other news and documentary achievements."

The nominations in these five categories total almost 80, enough to make any down-to-earth newsman blush.

And a careful perusing of the nominations would convince any fair-minded observer that most of them are definitely not in the league of exceptional achievement—which theoretically is the only standard being considered. One obvious problem is that four networks—ABC, CBS, NBC and National Educational Television—are guaranteed a certain number of nominations (by themselves, no less) in these categories. This is something like a trial lawyer doubling as a judge in his own case.

The point, of course, is that nobody should be guaranteed anything. If a network's output hasn't come up to par, why should it be flattered?

Another point was brought up Wednesday when Wolper Productions, on whom all three commercial networks rely heavily for hit shows, justifiably complained to the television agency about the second class nominations status of independent documentary producers.

For example, although the four networks are guaranteed five nominations each in the "cultural documentaries" field, independent producers can get a more maximum of two—and only if the candidates can survive a complicated procedure.

In a letter to the television academy, the Wholper people, in addition to a request for equal status, also indicated they ideally preferred a nominating system under which no one has any guarantees—and candidates are chosen "on a basis of excellence, regardless of the production source." And isn't that what it's all about?

MAJOR CAUSES OF DEATH IN U.S.

In the general population of the U.S., the death rate from all causes combined during the first 10 months of 1967 was 3 per cent lower than for the same period in 1966 and 2 per cent below the average rate for the like months of 1962-66. Chart shows a per cent distribution of major causes of death in the 1967 period, based on Metropolitan Life statistics.

The Order of the Cincinnati is made up of descendants of officers who fought with George Washington.

FOREIGN NEWS COMMENTARY
President Of Zambia

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia is a guitar-playing, nonsmoking, nondrinking man to whom it is easy to apply adjectives.

Today at the age of 43, he is called an idealist and a moderate, and by a member of his cabinet, Zambia's indispensable man.

In other days, before independence, he was called an anarchist, a Communist and a potential Mau Mau terrorist.

The United National Independence party which he leads campaigned for independence on a slogan of "discipline, patience, loyalty and non-violence," and those continue to be his policies. Yet, as a militant Pan-African he sees no conflict between nonviolence and the fact that Zambia plays willing host to black nationalist organizations dedicated to the overthrow of neighboring white-ruled governments in Portuguese Angola and Mozambique on the west and east and Rhodesia to the south.

Richest State

Zambia's copper income makes it the richest of the newly independent African states, and its 70,000 European residents give it the greatest white population among the new states. Ten of these hold seats in Zambia's 75-member parliament.

Some 3,000 others hold government jobs and along with other industries have made their contribution both to Zambia's wealth and its stability.

Yet, as whites in a Pan-African society, they remain suspect as possible saboteurs.

This, plus Kaunda's recent action nationalizing Zambia's major commercial and trading businesses, could drive away both the whites and the foreign capital needed to keep Zambia's economy booming.

Part of the explanation for Kaunda's action lies in the country's background.

Many Jobless

While copper has made the country rich, its wealth is unevenly distributed. Rural unemployment is near the 100,000 mark and may even be higher.

Black Africa's struggle to overthrow Rhodesia's white supremacy government has cost it heavily. Rhodesia's railroads formerly carried all of Zambia's copper for export. Her electricity supply flows from the Rhodesian side of the Kariba dam across the Zambezi River, and could be cut off at a moment's notice by the Rhodesians.

At great expense Zambia now seeks its own power supply, plus rail and highway link to Dar Es Salaam, Tanzania. Years must pass before they can contribute to the economy.

Another reason for Zambia's nationalization move was to halt an outflow of nearly $50 million annually in profits from foreign investment.

Kaunda's action did not take in the copper mines, and his defenders say that if he had not stepped in when he did mounting political pressures might have forced him to take over copper as well.

Sultry Voice At Sea
Puzzles US Sailors

SUBIC BAY, Philippine (UPI) — The sultry voice of an American girl inviting them to have a drink has been puzzling battle weary U.S. sailors aboard in the south China Sea for the last few months.

As the big ships of war from Vietnam pull alongside the fleet oiler Ponchatoula, they are greeted with "Hello, big boy. Welcome alongside. How about a big long drink?"

Fleet oilers are normally well-equipped — but not that well equipped.

Pleasant Listening

While the sailors try to figure out the greeting, instead of gruffly explicit instructions from a gravel-voiced boatswain's mate, the sexy voice of the girl continues with:

"Welcome alongside the best darned oiler in the Pacific fleet...standby for Ponchatoula's bolos...I don't want any handsome devils to get hurt."

A bolo is a lead-weighted line used to haul the oil lines between the ships. They can do serious damage even to a sailor who is not confused.

The girl also comes up with other little bits of advice as the refueling proceeds. She reminds the sailors, in a nice way, that smoking is not permitted.

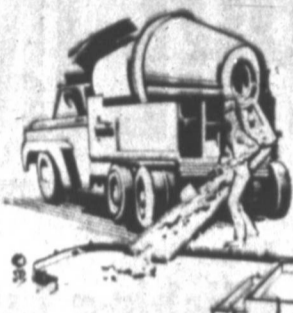

The voice belongs to 18-year-old Mrs. Jane Cole of Dallas, Tex.

Mrs. Cole is the wife of communications technician third class John M. Cole, who is stationed at San Miguel communications station, near Subic Bay. Sometimes she works as a part-time hat check girl at a nearby officers' club and there she met a junior officer from the Ponchatoula, Ensign Howard Hayes, who liked her voice.

He talked her into making the recordings—including some that greet the larger ships by name. And as the warships, their tanks full again, head back for battle, the Lorelei of the Ponchatoula sends them on their way with:

"So long, big fellows. I hope you enjoyed my service."

20,000 Are Expected For Shrimp Festival

By PRESTON F. KIRK
HOUSTON (UPI) — Hundreds of shrimp trawlers from Florida to Brownsville, will join the "mosquito fleet" April 26-28 in the seventh annual Galveston shrimp festival.

More than 20,000 visitors are expected to crowd the piers of the Texas resort island to witness old world charm and pagentry that has become a part of American folklore—the "blessing of the fleet."

The ceremony, part of the old world custom known as the ritual of the sea, marks not only the opening of the shrimping season, but the official beginning of the summer season of the semi-tropical isle.

Boats on Parade
Hundreds of shrimp boats, decked with brightly colored flowers and decorations, will parade Sunday before Bishop-elect John J. Cassata, and the Right Rev. John L. Morkovsky, apostolic administrator of the Galveston-Houston diocese, Roman Catholic Church.

The priests will sprinkle holy water on the vessels and petition the Lord's favor for a bountiful catch, a tranquil voyage, a peaceful harbor and a safe return.

Cash awards will be given to the best-decorated shrimp boats in classes of 40 feet and longer and those less than 40 feet.

Another event during the Mardi Gras-like spectacle includes the shrimp festival parade, the biggest and most colorful of the island's many pageants.

Crowds Last Year
Last year more than 40,000 witnessed the parade of floats, marching units and beauties

Cancer Fatalities Still On Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI)—American deaths from heart disease, diabetes and tuberculosis have dropped but cancer fatalities remain on the increase, according to Surgeon General William H. Stewart.

In his annual report Tuesday Dr. Stewart said that compared with 1966, deaths from cardiovascular disease declined 3.3 per cent during 1967, from diabetes about 6 per cent, and from TB 16 per cent, but cancer deaths increased by about 3 per cent.

down Galveston's seawall boulevard.

There is entertainment to delight visitors of all ages: Square dances, beauty contest, a water skiing exhibition, costume balls and sailboat races.

Galveston Island boasts the world's largest fleet of small sailboats, and then there is the Galveston beach for the younger set.

Despite Hurricane Beulah and the destruction of more than 100 shrimping vessels last year, more than 60 million pounds of shrimp were hauled into Texas ports.

A kedge is a light anchor and "to kedge" means to move a vessel from one place to another with the help of a kedge.

WE LOOK, but do we see? We read, but do we comprehend? Photographer Larry Mulvehill, ever alert to the unusual or off-beat, found these amusing sign situations at New Smyrna Beach, Fla.; a Phoenix, Ariz., traffic court; the Florida Keys; a parking lot in Jacksonville, Fla.; and Water Mill, N.Y.

MOSCOW (UPI)—Communism is good for reindeer. Tass, the Soviet news agency, said Wednesday that the reindeer population on the frozen Kola peninsula had been "almost wiped out before the establishment of Soviet power." News, it said there are 20,000 reindeer on the peninsula—compared to 100 of them 40 years ago—and reindeer meat is being exported to Sweden.

B&PW Guests Give Style Show

B & P W "Girls of the Month" entertained Pampa Business and Professional Women's Club with a style show at their regular social in the City Club Room Tuesday.

Miss Vickie Martin was narrator as the girls modeled spring clothing from local fashion shops. Girls participating were: Misses: Martha Myatt, September; Vickie Martin, October; Phyllis Cole, November; Jean Johnson, December; Toni Blackman, January; Jean Skaggs, February; Sherry Morgan, April; and Judy Fugate, May.

Mrs. J. J. Rance has served as chairman as this "Girl of the Month" committee for the 1967-1968 club year, assisted by co-chairman, Mrs. Sam Williams.

This is a club project designed to recognize and honor a high school senior girl each month of the club year. Each girl is selected by the high school counselor and teachers on the basis of high scholastic standing, efficiency, personality, honesty, integrity, loyalty and dependability.

The "Girls of the Month" served refreshments from a table covered with an embroidered cloth using Illac as a center piece. Mrs. J. W. Duke was a guest, and Mrs. B. W. Ellis, a new member.

DEAR ABBY: We have been married for over one year, and I can't remember the last time Eve cooked a hot meal for me. She is so busy with her bridge club, garden club, and book club that she doesn't have time to cook. She comes home at 6 p.m. and serves me a cold meat sandwich on a paper plate, and that is supper!

I give her a generous allowance for groceries, but there is never anything to eat in the house. We have no children yet, so if I get mad enough, I could just pick up and leave. Any suggestions?

EVE'S HUSBAND

DEAR HUSBAND: The next time you are served a cold meat sandwich and potato chips on a paper plate, tell EVE that the picnic is over. And also tell her that at one time EVE was the only woman in the world, but times have changed, so she'd better turn over a new leaf.

He has a girl I'll call Jane. They have gone together for three years and want to get married soon. Jane has just turned 21. The problem is Jane's mother. She won't let Jane get married until my son OWNS a home of his own and has $2,000 in the bank. Abby, my son has a real nice apartment completely furnished and ready for Jane to move into. He has a good car (paid for) and he doesn't owe a cent. They love each other, and I can't see where Jane's mother has any right to put such a big stumbling block in their road. I would like your opinion.

THE BOY'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: A 21-year-old girl doesn't need her mother's legal consent to marry, so if Jane is willing to wait until the man she marries meets her mother's qualifications, perhaps Jane isn't mature enough to marry anyone yet.

DEAR ABBY: Your recent column on who should say "grace" when a clergyman is a guest will be a great help to hosts who may be faced with that dilemma. But you would do the clergy a tremendous service if you were to print this, which is also related to the saying of "grace."

To whoever is in charge of the programs for civic groups and service organizations: Any lay person can offer the invocations and benedictions at such meetings, so please don't feel that you must ask a clergyman. We are frequently "invited" to break into our busy days to rush downtown to some hotel just to say a short prayer that could have easily been said by anyone, thank you.

Food, Drug Administration Forbids Silicone Shots for Beauty's Sake

By PATRICK MCCORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration prohibits use of silicone injections for cosmetic purposes—to build the bustline or fill out space beneath facial wrinkles.

But where beauty's concerned, women are finding a way to locate cooperative doctors who practice this kind of cosmetic plastic surgery. Some topless night club performers have built their careers on the cosmetics powers of silicone injections. Now a team of San Francisco doctors, after an X-ray study supported by a U.S. public health service grant, reports some surprising findings about the illegal practice.

—Exhibit A. Although breast augmentation by silicone injection is against the law, its use appears widespread.

Look Like Cancer
—Exhibit B. X-ray studies of women who have had the injections show the material may look like cancer in the breast, thus masking, at a future date, real cancer.

—Exhibit C. Migration of the silicone to other parts of the body may decrease bust size within two years.

The doctors, reporting in "Radiology," published by the American College of Radiology, include Dr. Hideyo Minagi, Dr. James E. Youker and Dr. Harris Knudson—all from the University of California School of Medicine.

The silicone substance, which may be in liquid, resin or solid form, is injected a bit at a time, but because such injections are illegal, the researchers were unable to obtain complete information as to the type, quantity or purity of silicone used in women studied.

"Most of our patients noted a diminution in the size of their breasts several months to two years after injection," they reported. The reason for the shrinking bosom line eluded them but they suggested that "the silicone material migrated into the chest wall and abdominal soft tissues."

"The tendency of silicone to migrate from the breast may at times reach extreme proportions," they said, citing one case of a suspected groin hernia.

Silicone Migrated
At surgery it was discovered to be a collection of silicone that had drifted from the patient's breasts.

Various methods have been devised to halt silicone migration, among them mixing the substance with animal or vegetable fatty acids. In such cases, X-ray studies of the breast showed the silicone tending "to collect in small-to-moderate-size nodules because of a slight inflammation."

The danger lies, the radiologists said, in the possible masking of a later malignant tumor which would be obscured on mammograms—X-rays of the bosom.

The California team recommended mammographic studies for all patients with a history of silicone injection. Such a study of a patient could be used as a base line for comparison at later dates.

"By this means," they said,

Astrological Forecast

By CAROL RIGHTER

Friday, April 26, 1968

GENERAL TENDENCIES: One of your best days for putting into motion whatever new ideas you have that are pioneering in their nature and that give you a chance to express talents that you have been unable to do anything about before. Show that you have practical good sense, and for entertaining those you'd like to be with in the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Since early A.M. the planets are with you for gadding about socially and impressing others favorably. You look very charming and are thinking very clearly. Get the results you want from others.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Getting into private outlets you like is good in A.M. and that you please others and make better intrusions into the factor called success. Make annual plans for the future. Forget that comfortable chair.

MINI (May 21 - June 21): Jolie friends and relations at interesting social whirl so that you improve your image and be with persons difficult to see during business hours. Know what your personal aims are. Then you can attain them by being direct.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21): You have to show more respect for higher-ups if you want to get the results you desire in the business world. Support comes easily. Some good invitation is extended to you and you accept eagerly.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): New opportunities present themselves for business and pleasure progress, so seize them quickly. Collect data that will help you to make decisions for the future. Don't act without being fully informed.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21): Showing that you handle responsibilities in a most conscientious way gains you much support from higher-ups. Be cheerful in doing a favor for a good friend. Show that you are generous with money, also.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 21): Take partners out to some charming spot and you find you can converse with them more satisfactorily, get support for some new plan of yours, and enjoy it more.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22 to Nov. 21): Be more enthused about the work ahead of you whether at home, office, shop, or whatever. Show efficiency and make all just sparkle, glow. Coworkers will now carry through with that share of your plan that is "distinctly yours."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): If properly attuned to the planets, you arise feeling wonderfully well, and can then get in to whatever activities please you most with enthusiasm. Young people can be very helpful to your plans. Be a good manager.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You need to make your home more comfortable and colorful, so get busy and do just that. Have your feet firmly on the ground and you advance very quickly in whatever you may be doing. Be smart.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You are feeling very clever, and looking dynamic, so out to see and be with persons who can make your life more affluent.

happily. Get in touch with those from afar also. Get the results you want.
PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): If you concern yourself with ideas of an entertainment nature, you find you can start building up your reserve quickly. Get good ideas also from one who is expert in business. Show that you have practical good sense.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he, or she, will be one of those highly charming young people that others want to spoil at a very early age. There is a definite pioneering spirit in this chart, though and the success here will be made partly much by imagination and effort, although not discounting the value of assistance from friendly sources, too.

Tender Artichokes Are In Markets

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food Editor
If you have never eaten them, try artichokes now. They are easy to prepare once someone explains how.

Here are instructions for preparing them, either hot or cold. BASIC DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING ARTICHOKE
Wash artichokes. Cut off stems at base and remove small bottom leaves. If desired, trim tips of leaves and cut off about 1 inch from top of artichokes. Stand artichokes upright in deep saucepan large enough to hold snugly. Add teaspoon salt for each artichoke and 2 to 3 inches boiling water. Cover and boil gently 35 to 45 minutes or until base can be pierced easily with fork. Drain. If artichokes are to be stuffed, gently spread leaves and remove choke (this portion) from center with metal spoon.

ARTICHOKE WITH TUNA ASPIC
6 medium artichokes, prepared as directed
1 can (13½ ounces) tomato aspic
1 can (6½ or 7 ounces) tuna, drained
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese, softened
¼ cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon finely chopped

onion
½ cup sliced pimento-stuffed olives
Dash pepper
2 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped or sieved
Spread artichoke leaves apart and remove choke (this portion) with metal spoon. Melt aspic in saucepan; allow to partially set. Mix together cream cheese, mayonnaise, tuna, lemon juice, onion, olives and pepper. Combine with aspic and fill artichoke center. Chill for 3 to 4 hours before serving. Garnish with egg.

Apricot Juice, Jam Make A No-Cook Spring Pie

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food Editor
It's spring. It's time for a change. Try this apricot juice and jam pie for something very different, both in preparation and taste.

APRICOT JUICE 'N' JAM PIE
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin

- 1 can (12 ounces) apricot nectar, divided
- 2 eggs
- 2-3 cup sugar
- teaspoon salt
- ½ lemon, peeled and seeded
- 1 cup heavy cream
- 1 cup ice cubes
- Gingersnaps or vanilla wafers
- ½ cup apricot jam
- 2 tablespoons apricot brandy or orange liqueur
- Whipped cream or whipped topping

Sprinkle gelatin over ½-cup cold apricot nectar in 5-cup blender. Heat remaining apricot nectar to boiling; add to blender. Cover and process at stir speed until gelatin dissolves. Add eggs, sugar, salt and lemon; cover and process at liquefy speed until smooth. Remove cover and add cream and ice cubes, one at a time. Continue to process until ice is melted. Let mixture stand until it thickens and will mound. For pie shell, place gingersnaps over bottom of 9-inch pie plate. Arrange, whole wafers around side of pie plate. Turn gelatin mixture into pie shell. Chill 4 or 5 hours. Stir apricot jam and brandy together and spread over top of pie. Top with whipped cream.

Ham Cube Dish Goes Polynesian

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food Editor
We've been to Polynesia but never met anything quite like Polynesian ham cubes. It contains orange segments, pineapple bits, soy sauce, crystallized ginger and chopped celery, green peppers, and onion. It's worth a try.

- POLYNESIAN HAM CUBES
- 1 pound cooked ham, cut in ½-inch cubes (about 3 cups)
- 1 can (11 oz.) mandarin orange segments
- 1 can (13½ oz.) pineapple tidbits
- Water
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon
- 2 teaspoons soy sauce
- ½ teaspoon chopped crystallized ginger or teaspoon powdered ginger
- 2 tablespoons chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- 1 cup sliced cooked celery
- 3 cups cooked rice

Drain orange segments and pineapple tidbits, reserving liquid. Add enough water to fruit liquid to make 2 cups liquid. Combine cornstarch and cinnamon in a saucepan. Add fruit liquid, soy sauce, ginger, onion and green pepper. Cook, stirring constantly, until thickened. Add ham, fruit and celery. Cook until heated through. Serve over rice. Six to eight servings.

Answers To Food Questions

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Food and Nutrition Editor
Q—My sister keeps warning me that cream or milk in the coffee make the coffee more harmful. Is that true?
A—No. The addition of cream or milk to coffee does not make it harmful. That and many other popular superstitions regarding food are exposed in the American Medical Association's manual, "Today's Health Guide." Here are a few of them:
Sour food such as lemon juice or sauerkraut can cure diabetes. They can't.
Cooked cereals heat the blood. They don't.
Warm bread may cause a stroke. It won't.
Beets build blood. They don't.
Never give milk to a patient with fever. The milk won't affect the fever at all.
Wine makes blood. It doesn't.
Yogurt and brewer's yeast are dietary requirements. They aren't.
Olives, oysters and raw eggs increase sexual potency. They don't.
Ice water causes heart trouble. It doesn't.
Raw vegetable juice contains life-giving properties, but cooked vegetables are "dead." Not so.

Bob Knight Is Coach At Wisconsin U.

MADISON, Wis. (UPI)—Wisconsin tapped the Army Wednesday for a general to command its basketball team.

Bob Knight, for three years head coach at the U.S. Military Academy, was the choice of the University of Wisconsin Athletic Board to succeed John Erickson, who resigned to become general manager of the new Milwaukee National Basketball Association team.

Knight, 27, was one of seven finalists for the job. His Army teams compiled a 51-21 record and were 20-5 last season. The Cadets made it to the National Invitational Tournament but lost to Notre Dame in the opening round.

In 1965-66, Army's record was 18-8 and it was 13-8 in 1966-67. Erickson said Knight did "an excellent job at Army. He's absolutely top help. He certainly is a top notch candidate and excellent coach."

A 1962 graduate of Ohio State University, Knight played three years of varsity basketball, including 1960 when the Buckeyes won the NCAA championship.

Knight will inherit a team that was highly-touted last season but finished with a 13-11 record, including 7-7 in the Big Ten.

2 Divisions Expected In American

CHICAGO (UPI)—Approval of a separation into two six-team divisions beginning with the 1969 season was expected to come almost automatically today at a special meeting of American League baseball owners.

Such action would put added pressure on the National League, which last week decided to expand to 12 teams in 1969 if possible, to follow the same course.

The American League program would take effect with the expansion of the circuit to 12 teams, adding clubs at Seattle and Kansas City.

The American League approved the divisional plan once previously, last summer, and then rescinded its action because of bitter objections by the National League, which charged it had not been given sufficient time to study the proposal.

However, the American League can adopt the divisional plan without consent of the National League adopting the program.

In such a case, however, the American League would be holding a playoff between divisional champions to determine the league representative in the World Series at the same time the National League was winding up a pennant race over the entire season, perhaps with a champion decided long before the finish.

The National League last week decided to expand to 12 teams in 1969, if possible, advancing the date from the previously approved 1971, and it was viewed certain the advancement resulted from the American League plan to add two teams next year.

Montreal Learns Longevity Secret ... 'Don't Relax'

By United Press International

The Montreal Canadiens learned the secret of longevity in National Hockey League Stanley Cup competition—"don't relax."

"We aren't making the same mistake this year of allowing our confidence to grow out of bounds," contends Montreal Jean Beliveau.

And the Canadiens haven't. They beat the Black Hawks three straight and can wrap up the Eastern Division playoff title in the fourth game of the best-of-seven series in Chicago tonight.

Then, it's simply a case of St. Louis and Minnesota running out the string for the dubious prestige of facing the Montreal firing squad of Beliveau, Yvan Cournoyer, J.C. Tremblay and Co.

The Blues and North Stars are tied 1-1 going into the third game of their Western Division finals tonight at St. Louis.

Beliveau, who scored his seventh goal of the 1968 playoffs Tuesday night and is gunning to break the record of 12 he shares with former teammate Maurice (Rocket) Richard, believes the Canadiens' failure to relax after winning the series opener over Chicago 9-2 led to further victories.

"Last year, we made the mistake of relaxing after beating Toronto big in our opener," Beliveau said. "The Leafs went on to win the second game and finally the Cup. It was a long hot summer and people in Montreal never let us forget we lost the playoffs."

Montreal has won seven straight and could become the only team to win 12 in a row in a single playoff for year's to come. The expansion team will get stronger and there is little likelihood future clubs will enter a final playoff with the expectation of losing four straight.

The Blues won the first game of the series from the North Stars and lost the second Monday night when Parker MacDonald scored for Minnesota at 3:41 of a sudden death overtime period.

In the frosty 40-degree temperatures at the park on the shores of Lake Erie, the Cleveland righthander admitted he often lost the sense of feel while holding the ball on the mound.

Once he threw it, however, there were problems only for the Detroit Tigers as Hargan pitched the first one-hitter of the 1968 major league season. Only a third inning single by Jim Northrup kept Hargan from tossing his first no-hitter.

The excellent effort gave the Indians a 2-0 victory, snapping the Tigers' nine-game winning streak—the longest for the Tigers since the club won 10 straight in 1949.

Hargan, beaten by the Tigers 5-0 last Thursday afternoon, credited trainer Wally Bock for preventing the cold from bothering him too much.

"Between Inning Warmups "Wally took good care of me between innings," Hargan said, "he covered me with blankets and kept hot packs on my throwing arm."

Cleveland wasn't the only place where the weather wasn't spring-like Wednesday. Three games were postponed because of inclement weather—after four were postponed Tuesday. It's time now for the usual rash of stories wondering why the majors don't wait until May 1 to start the season since there's almost always a bad stretch of weather in April. Playing at night in April is always a hazard, too.

In other American League action, Baltimore topped Minnesota 7-3, Oakland nipped New York 4-3 in 11 innings and California whipped Washington 6-1.

In the only National League game, Pittsburgh edged Los Angeles 4-3 and St. Louis blanked Cincinnati 7-0. The Houston at New York, San Francisco at Philadelphia and Atlanta at Chicago games were postponed.

Hargan, picking up his first victory after two losses, scored the Indians' second run after left fielder Willie Horton and shortstop Ray Oyler collided, letting his fly fall for a triple in the seventh. Pinch-hitter Leon Wagner followed with a single. Horton was carried off the field and hospitalized with a possible concussion.

Hardin Leads Rally
In 37-degree temperature in a day game in Minnesota, pitcher Jim Hardin tripled home two runs to spark a three-run sixth inning rally that gave Baltimore the triumph over the Twins.

John Donaldson's two-out single with the bases loaded in the bottom of the 11th inning gave Oakland its victory over New York. Mickey Mantle hit his second homer of the season and 520th of his career in the first inning.

Paul Schaal hit a tie-breaking homer in the third inning and drove in two more runs with a single in the seventh as the Angels beat Washington. Clyde Wright, who walked in a run in the first inning, settled down and went the route for the Angels while allowing just two hits.

Harvesters Host Coronado Friday

The Pampa Harvester baseball team, battling to get out of District 3-AAAA cellar, will play host to Coronado High School of Lubbock tomorrow.

The game will get underway at 4 p.m. at the Optimist Ball Park.

Saturday afternoon the Green and Gold will play Estacado High School of Lubbock here.

The Harvesters sport a 7-15 record for the season.

Curt Flood drove in five runs with two singles and a triple and Mike Shannon hit his third homer of the season as the Cards blanked the Reds behind Ray Washburn's five-hit pitching.

Bill Mazeroski's second sacrifice fly of the game scored Gene Alley with an unearned tie-breaking run in the sixth to give Pittsburgh its victory over Los Angeles. Jim Bunning, got his second victory although he left the game in the seventh with a pulled groin muscle and Roy Face finished up.

Both divisions in the Texas League race tightened Wednesday night when the Albuquerque Dodgers beat the Amarillo Giants 7-3 to tie the Western Division leading Giants, and the Memphis Blues and Shreveport Braves split a doubleheader to remain even in the Eastern Division.

Memphis, which was tied with Shreveport going into Wednesday's games, took a brief lead by winning the first game 6-2. But the Braves came back to take the nightcap 3-0.

In other action, the San Antonio Missions bombed the El Paso Sun Kings 12-0 and Arkansas Travelers edged the Dallas-Fort Worth Spurs 3-2.

Albuquerque picked up a run in the second inning on Ken Washington's home run and exploded for four more runs in the fifth to sew up the win. Dick Armstrong was the winner, and Amarillo's Bill Frost took the loss.

Memphis' Jerry Hinsley, backed by solo home runs by Curtis Brown and Chico Diaz, limited the Braves to four hits to win the opener, Don Spain lost it.

But Shreveport came back with good pitching of its own in the nightcap when starter Ron Schuler and winner John Stewart combined to limit Memphis to four hits. A three-run outburst in the bottom of the fifth helped the Braves regain a tie for first place.

Byron Nelson Golf Classic Underway At Preston Trails

DALLAS (UPI) — The par-3 holes may be the keys to deciding the winner of the $100,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic which got under way at Preston Trails Golf Club today.

Most of the golfers in one of the fastest fields of the 1968 season have praised the five-year-old course despite its youth and think it will mature into one of the nation's greatest.

But, they've found that if the four "short" holes on the 7,086-yard par 35-35-70 layout mature into anything tougher than they already are the holes will become monsters.

Three of the four pars are more than 200 yards and the toughest of the group is the 218-yard No. 8, which is surrounded by traps and has a creek with a very steep tree-studded bank.

The wind, which was expected to be light for the opening round, could make the holes even tougher and force the golfers to switch from three or four irons to the longer woods in order to reach the green. The loss of accuracy by the switch could prove disastrous.

The field is the fastest in the 15-year history of the event, which used to be known simply as the Dallas Open, with nearly all of the big names of the game on hand.

Dickinson Shoots Best In Pro-Am

DALLAS (UPI)—The crowds came to see Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and comedian Bob Hope, but it was Gardner Dickinson who shot the best golf Wednesday at the pro-am round of the Byron Nelson Classic.

Dickinson shot a four-under-par 66 to win $500 on the last day of practice rounds. The $100,000 tournament begins today.

Tommy Aaron and Don Massengale tied for second place with 67s took $400 each. Bruce Crampton shot a 68 for fourth place and $325.

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE
The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.
We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license, nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself. No more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Pioneering Equality

If your glasses fog up a bit as you read these lines it may be because the writer is just a bit steamed up by all the oratory and hand-wringing of recent weeks. It's time for the politicians and hand-wringing of self-appointed critics of United States' citizens to shut up.
This is a pioneering county, and the fact is that for more than a hundred years we've been pioneering in the field of race relations. In recent days violence flared in 125 cities in the United States. But it was not racial violence. Whites did not confront blacks. The fact is that a herd of teenagers and a few adult criminals went on a spree in a lot of cities, and a permissive society tolerated it. And by tolerating it, the authorities encouraged it. Maybe that permissiveness was part of the experimentation that is essential in pioneering. It certainly isn't the way we would have handled the situation, but it is the way some men of unquestionable motive and integrity chose to handle it.
In any event, let the critics of the United States, particularly foreign critics be silent, and quickly. Is there a country in the world where the black man has the freedom, the opportunity, or the worldly goods that the Negro in America enjoys? You know there isn't. Britain closes its doors to such immigrants. The hip set in France tolerates them as tourists and pets. Black students from Africa have recorded, repeatedly, the insults and isolation of those GI's who ran off to Sweden to avoid Vietnam were Negro. They've come back from Sweden to face the medicine-court martial and prison and discharge. Why? Because, they say, the Swedes didn't accept the Negro in that Socialist society.

So we are having problems. Difficult as it may be for those of us who live in small communities like this one to understand, they are very real and very disheartening problems. But America is working at resolving them, and already we are a hundred years ahead of most of the nations of the world. You haven't heard any of those "world opinion" nations inviting American Negroes to immigrate to their countries have you? And you won't.
The pioneering will go on, as it must. And when America has learned how to handle the problem, then some other nations of the world will copy the formula and the Negro will be accepted and incorporated into their national society. But not until America has shown the way. You can bet on it.

Power In Little Things

Not just what is right, but why it is right is a central problem of life.
When we know the correct path, we yet often tend to remain hesitant because we are not certain our convictions are set in the firm rock of reason.
We are inclined to suppose that while we are generally sure, we are not absolutely sure. Wavering, we give up what we can possess.
Take the case of two boys of similar physical ability who are set to jump across a creek of reasonable width. One boy has jumped the creek before so knows he can do it. The other has not made the leap previously and is not sure. When the test comes, one boy lands, the other splashes. What made the difference? The certainty in the mind of one boy was reflected in the performance of his muscles, and uncertainty kept the other from doing physically what he was physically capable of doing.
As with boyhood, so with manhood. As with games, so with business. So with organization.
What gave the first boy the confidence in his capacity to leap the stream? Experience, we say, and tend to drop the subject at that point. Certainly experience, but let's penetrate the subject further. Granting that experience has something to do with the successful feat, precisely what did that experience give one boy that the other boy didn't have? The answer of course, is knowledge.
Well, knowledge that you have the capacity to jump so far is one thing, but how does that carry over in other things—business for example, or sales? We have discussed this matter with several salesmen and businessmen, and the answer always comes back the same. The knowledge to be most desired in business is the knowledge of how to help the other guy so as, in the outcome, to help yourself. If you can figure out a way to help the other fellow, a way that is within the range of your capabilities, then you stand a better than even chance to gain a customer.

But how do you find out what helps the other guy?
A wise friend gives us this answer:
What counts are little things—an errand that you can run, a good word that you can put in. You would be very surprised, our friend said, at what helps people; sometimes it is no more than admiring a picture of his family, or a comment on his new suit, or some subtle change that he's made in his office or organization. Most everybody sees the big thing so the person who has the sensitivity to note the little things is the one who stands out from the rest.
Is that just a general idea? If you believe so, by tomorrow you will have for men what you read here. But you grip this information until it grips you, if you receive it to be not information only but actually an unvarying law of nature, then you will be empowered to proceed boldly.
It is merely a restatement of the profit motive—intelligently applied.

Bald Truth About Men

It is well-known that women will spare no expense and endure almost any discomfort for the sake of beauty, from spending hours basking their heads under dryers to attempting to teeter about on stilts while encased in body armor. Vanity is indeed named woman.
Men are different, of course. To be sure, they're supposedly becoming more fashion-conscious and sales of men's toiletries are zooming. But in general, men are content to present themselves for better or worse as nature made them.
They are? Take that most ego-shattering of afflictions—baldness. Correcting nature's shortcomings in this respect has become a $20-million-a-year industry.
Approximately 100,000 men bought toupees (now called hairpieces) in 1967, says a leading maker, who charges an average price of $465 for a name was?

fall-safe and almost undetectable topper. He expects business to double this year.
This kind of rethatching is not good enough for some men, however. They are turning to hair transplant surgery, a long, tedious and terrifically expensive process in which clumps of hair and roots are removed from the more luxurious fringe regions of the cranium and implanted in the upper desert areas. Thousands of men have undergone this ordeal in the past five years, reports the Wall Street Journal.
Each transplant can cost from $5 to $25 and the average patient requires 200 to 300 of them. Yet even at these prices, the New York dermatologist who originated the technique treats 100 patients a week and is booked for two months in advance.
Vanity, what did you say your average price of $465 for a name was?

H. L. Hunt Writes

GOLD AND GOOD SENSE
The "gold crisis," which is currently taking so much space on the front pages of newspapers, is in reality a dollar crisis. Once the dollar was the strongest of currencies. Now the world is telling the U.S. government that the dollar is weak and getting weaker.
The stampede in the gold markets was caused by a recognition of the fact that the United States has been for too long living beyond its income. It still is.
For decades the U.S. has followed a policy of deep Federal deficits accompanied by artificially easy money. This policy has resulted in inflation of an increasingly harsh nature. The Federal Government has been overspending not only at home but abroad as well. This excessive overseas spending along with inflation has given rise to a chronic deficit in our balance of payments with other nations, and as a result the U.S. lost more than half of its gold stock within a comparatively short time.
Only a reversal of the policies that have caused the deep trouble now threatening our national security can lead this nation back toward fiscal stability. Unless those policies are reversed, the entire economic system based on personal enterprise can hardly be expected to survive. Destruction of this system would hand international communism its biggest opportunity ever for economic and political exploitation.
Our freedom as a nation and our individual freedom are inextricably involved in the monetary crisis, and it appears doubtful that the day of reckoning can be staved off for very long by "gimmicks."

ANSWER: The results of ignoring this moral absolute is that morals decline, crimes increase, the coercive power of government enlarges and the standard of living of all people declines.
If the individual believes he has the right to initiate force against his neighbor, he will believe that it is right to steal from his neighbor, to disregard the rights of others, to loot and plunder, to riot and destroy. This has been going on across the nation.
The individuals who are plundered and whose property is destroyed may have the long hard work of a lifetime wiped out and be left in poverty. Those who have worked the destruction certainly gain nothing from it. Even the looter, in the long run, loses, for though he may momentarily gain possession of the stolen goods, he has, at the same time, contributed to the moral decline where now even he is no longer safe with his stolen goods, for someone else who has seen him loot will be aroused to steal, in turn, from him. No one profits and everybody's standard of living is lowered—not just by the amount of property destroyed, but further by the amount that will not be produced because of fear it will be destroyed, too.
The distrust and fear that is generated from such actions prevents people from cooperating with each other, and it is only through peaceful, cooperative effort that individuals can improve their lives. Civilization of any level is impossible without the cooperation of individuals. Savagery is the only alternative.
Savagery is the state of society when the use of force is the only way known and all people ignore the moral absolute that it is wrong to initiate force.
To the degree that people learn not to initiate force against each other, but to cooperate and get those things they want by peaceful, voluntary exchanges where both parties to the exchange believe they have profited, to that degree only can men progress.
When individuals in a civilization resort to force to get what they want, other individuals will fear and resent these actions, and they will join together to meet force with force, themselves or they will demand that the government meet force with force, and the result will be dictatorship, where all suffer.
If there is any beneficial result from the use of initiated force that anyone can point out, maulian hair into the aneurysm. This also causes clotting within the dilated artery.

The Doctor Says:

By WAYNE BRANSTADT
Bland Diet Important
Peptic Ulcer Treatment

Many ulcers of the stomach and duodenum appear to be caused by nervous tension. These ulcers can usually be controlled with antacids and a bland diet that includes taking gelatin or milk between meals. Recent observations indicate that most persons with chronic peptic ulcers that fail to respond to this treatment have either an enlarged parathyroid or a parathyroid tumor.
Overactivity of this gland may or may not be the cause of these ulcers but there seems to be little doubt that it is the reason these ulcers fail to heal. This may be because the excessive parathyroid secretions produce a high level of calcium in the blood which in turn increases the flow of stomach acids or because the parathyroid hormones make the lining of the stomach or duodenum more vulnerable to the corrosive action of the digestive juices.
Before the treatment of a person with a peptic ulcer is started, it would appear to be wise to test him for parathyroid overactivity. If this is found, the treatment should be directed primarily toward correcting this abnormality.
Q—I have been taking Peritrate for two years for my angina. I also have glaucoma. In a recent column you said this drug should not be taken by persons with glaucoma. Why?
A—According to a statement by the American Medical Association, recent evidence indicates that there are no harmful effects from taking this drug in persons who have glaucoma. All previous warnings should, therefore, be rescinded.
Q—Is surgery the only treatment for an aneurysm?
A—Drugs that lower the blood pressure have been used with some success in halting the progress of an aneurysm but they cannot be considered to be a cure. Although surgery is the only cure, some of the newer surgical techniques are relatively simple and are replacing the more heroic measures used in the past. The new methods include the induction of clotting within the aneurysm with an electric needle, or injecting iron particles into a bleeding aneurysm then magnetizing the particles so that they will obstruct the leak. Aneurysms of the basilar artery in the brain have been successfully treated by injecting shafts of stiff mam-

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: You state that no individual group, or government has any right to initiate force against any other group or government or individual, to coerce them to pay for anything they do not want to use. What are the results of ignoring this moral absolute and how do these results come about?

ANSWER: The results of ignoring this moral absolute is that morals decline, crimes increase, the coercive power of government enlarges and the standard of living of all people declines.
If the individual believes he has the right to initiate force against his neighbor, he will believe that it is right to steal from his neighbor, to disregard the rights of others, to loot and plunder, to riot and destroy. This has been going on across the nation.

Easier To Promise Than To Deliver

Chicago Tribune

President Johnson hailed passage of the civil rights bill in extravagant terms, declaring: "Thru the process of law we shall strike for all time the shackles of old injustice." Other supporters of the measure have been promising that its "open housing" provisions would end discrimination in the sale and rental of about 80 per cent of the nation's dwellings.
Worthy as this intention may be, it is not likely to be achieved by the new law. Extravagant promises only lead to bitterness when they cannot be fulfilled. Unfulfilled promises made by the advocates of previous civil rights laws probably have contributed to the recent racial disorders.

millies that the entry of a few Negro families will not mean that the neighborhood will soon become all-black.
Passage of the new civil rights bill may help some families to move out of the "ghetto" into white neighborhoods, but as long as whites don't care for Negroes as their neighbors, integration of the neighborhoods will be followed by resegregation.
These hard facts need to be explained, especially since the enactment of the new law is being described as an inspiration by Congress on their behalf. Federal Judge James E. Parsons, honorary chairman and a founder of the Chicago Conference on Religion and Race, injected a wise note of warning:
"Passage now has the tone of placating the present anger. A number of Negroes will look at it as a thing which the riots brought about, and will look to rioting in order to get the next step."
At the same time, the riots have intensified greatly the prejudice of whites, which is the basic cause of segregation. Each new riot will cause more prejudice, and long continued riots will bring nothing but national disaster.
The shackles of the Negro are being struck off one by one, but it is no favor to him to promise instant utopia. His best hope of further progress is not in rioting but in the maintenance of law and order.

One aim of the new civil rights bill is to break up residential segregation, often called the "ghettos." The main cause of this segregation is not the unwillingness of whites to sell or rent to Negroes but the unwillingness of whites to move into a neighborhood after Negroes have started to move there.
Nearly all the Negro areas of American cities were once occupied entirely by whites. When Negro families began to move in, each area was for a time "integrated." The integration ended and segregation began when all the whites had moved away. Under the new law the federal government may be able to compel whites to sell or rent to Negroes, but the government cannot compel whites to stay in a neighborhood.
The unhappy cycle of whites moving out when Negroes move in has been repeated over and over in many areas of many American cities. The cause has not been the lack of an "open housing" law. Many states and cities have such laws but they have had little effect. Integration has been successful only in places where it has been possible to establish extralegal quotas and so assure white fa-

Successful Treatment Possible For Gingivitis

Dear Dr. Lawrence: My daughter, 11, is in a mental institution and I have been informed that she has gingivitis. What is gingivitis? And is there any successful treatment for it? Mrs. H.G.F.
Answer: More commonly as gum tissue or gums gingival tissue is normally firm pink-colored and variously stippled (somewhat resembling orange peel).
Some investigators claim that there is no so-called normal gingiva; that this tissue is always in some state of inflammation. When diseased it is known as gingivitis.
The term gingivitis, therefore, is not a definitive term. It suggests that an inflammation is present but the degree of inflammation determines the state of the disease, and whether the condition is in fact gingivitis, Vincent's infection (trench mouth) or some other disease.
This can only be determined after clinical examination by your dentist, and when necessary, by microscopic tests.
Generally speaking, when we say gingivitis we refer to gum tissue which is red, sore-looking swollen and bleeds easily. It's usually not painful and very often patients are not aware of it.

Examine and trace back the causes of any condition you believe wrong in man's life today and see if the origin was not in the initiation of force—whether by an individual, a group, or the state.

Straight Talk

By TOM ANDERSON

"Martin Luther King, Part I"
A strange woman with a Negro voice called me a few days after the killing and asked if Martin Luther King was a Communist. I replied that I do not know; and that also I do not know whether Kossygin, Brezhnev or Ho Chi Minh are Communists. I've never seen their cards. But M. L. King was surrounded by Communists and was carrying out the Communist program more effectively than any known American Communist.

Communist he might as well be; for he is doing for them exactly what they themselves propose and have advocated for years.
King's book, "Stride Toward Freedom," after being asked about Marx and Marxism, said, "It challenged me. . . . Marx had revealed the danger of the profit motive as a sole basis of an economic system. . . . I responded with a definite yes."
King used the mailing plates of the "National Guardian" to solicit funds of SCLC. Guide to Subversive Organizations, Washington, D. C., 1961, page 193, House Committee on Un-American Activities said of the "National Guardian": "Virtual official propaganda arm of Soviet Russia."
Bayard Rustin, an identified Communist and convicted sex pervert, was formerly Martin L. King's secretary. While in Kings employ, he attended a national convention of the Communist Party U.S.A.
Hunter Pitts O'Dell was an officer in the Communist Party U.S.A. and at the same time on King's payroll as an adviser.
The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee has stated that the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, headed by King, is "substantially under the control of the Communist Party through the influence of the Southern Conference Educational Fund and the Communists who manage it."
King and his "non-violent" successor Abernathy both attended the Highlander Folk School in Tennessee, a Communist training school. While addressing this assemblage, King praised School Director, Miles Horton, whose "noble purpose and creative work" he said he had long admired. Horton was once a member of the Young Communist League. In the famous picture of King at the Highlander Folk School, the other comrades enjoying the lecture are Aubrey Williams, an identified Communist whom King described as "one of the noble personalities of our times, and Abner W. Berry, of the Central Committee of the Communist Party.
On April 4, 1967, exactly one year before he died, King preached a "sermon" denouncing our effort in Vietnam and calling the United States the "greatest purveyor of violence in the world today." King urged Negroes to evade the draft, to refuse to fight for their country. King was doubtless not a member of the Communist Party. But the Communist conspirators have lost one of their greatest allies.

Before his death there had been mounting pressure in Congress to make public the F.B.I. files on King. It should be done, not in any sense to malign the dead but to prove that this great "non-violent" leader was either a dupe, a willing tool or a fellow conspirator with the Communists. Reportedly, the F. B. I. has unimpeachable evidence, including photographs, proving King was having secret liaisons with one of the biggest money raisers for the Communist Party.
When New Orleans police raided the Communist SCEF they found correspondence and cancelled checks from Martin Luther King.
The president of SCEF and also vice president of the SLCC (King's organization) is Fred Shuttlesworth. According to government files, he has been involved in seven Communist front activities since 1960.
King and Floyd McKissick, National Director of CORE, announced June 7, 1966 that they would lead a march through Mississippi. CORE renounced non-violence. McKissick is the attorney for the DuBois Clubs of America, a Communist front. At a recent dinner honoring the Communist Negro leader, W.E.B. DuBois, King declared: "We can't talk of Dr. DuBois without recognizing that he was a radical all his life. Some people would like to ignore the fact that he was a Communist in later years. I never do. It is time to cease muting the fact that Dr. DuBois was a genius and chose to be a Communist. Our irrational, obsessive anti-Communism has led us into too many quagmires."
June, 1964, King sent a telegram to Jesse Gray, a Communist who was leading riots and rent strikes New York: "You have my absolute support." Communists considered this telegram so important they put it on the front page of the "Workers" June 2, 1964. Gray called for "guerrilla warfare" later.
"Indianapolis Star," July 8, 1965, stated, "If King is not a

Communist he might as well be; for he is doing for them exactly what they themselves propose and have advocated for years.

King urged Negroes to evade the draft, to refuse to fight for their country. King was doubtless not a member of the Communist Party. But the Communist conspirators have lost one of their greatest allies.

Before his death there had been mounting pressure in Congress to make public the F.B.I. files on King. It should be done, not in any sense to malign the dead but to prove that this great "non-violent" leader was either a dupe, a willing tool or a fellow conspirator with the Communists. Reportedly, the F. B. I. has unimpeachable evidence, including photographs, proving King was having secret liaisons with one of the biggest money raisers for the Communist Party.
When New Orleans police raided the Communist SCEF they found correspondence and cancelled checks from Martin Luther King.
The president of SCEF and also vice president of the SLCC (King's organization) is Fred Shuttlesworth. According to government files, he has been involved in seven Communist front activities since 1960.
King and Floyd McKissick, National Director of CORE, announced June 7, 1966 that they would lead a march through Mississippi. CORE renounced non-violence. McKissick is the attorney for the DuBois Clubs of America, a Communist front. At a recent dinner honoring the Communist Negro leader, W.E.B. DuBois, King declared: "We can't talk of Dr. DuBois without recognizing that he was a radical all his life. Some people would like to ignore the fact that he was a Communist in later years. I never do. It is time to cease muting the fact that Dr. DuBois was a genius and chose to be a Communist. Our irrational, obsessive anti-Communism has led us into too many quagmires."
June, 1964, King sent a telegram to Jesse Gray, a Communist who was leading riots and rent strikes New York: "You have my absolute support." Communists considered this telegram so important they put it on the front page of the "Workers" June 2, 1964. Gray called for "guerrilla warfare" later.
"Indianapolis Star," July 8, 1965, stated, "If King is not a

Communist he might as well be; for he is doing for them exactly what they themselves propose and have advocated for years.
King's book, "Stride Toward Freedom," after being asked about Marx and Marxism, said, "It challenged me. . . . Marx had revealed the danger of the profit motive as a sole basis of an economic system. . . . I responded with a definite yes."
King used the mailing plates of the "National Guardian" to solicit funds of SCLC. Guide to Subversive Organizations, Washington, D. C., 1961, page 193, House Committee on Un-American Activities said of the "National Guardian": "Virtual official propaganda arm of Soviet Russia."
Bayard Rustin, an identified Communist and convicted sex pervert, was formerly Martin L. King's secretary. While in Kings employ, he attended a national convention of the Communist Party U.S.A.
Hunter Pitts O'Dell was an officer in the Communist Party U.S.A. and at the same time on King's payroll as an adviser.
The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee has stated that the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, headed by King, is "substantially under the control of the Communist Party through the influence of the Southern Conference Educational Fund and the Communists who manage it."
King and his "non-violent" successor Abernathy both attended the Highlander Folk School in Tennessee, a Communist training school. While addressing this assemblage, King praised School Director, Miles Horton, whose "noble purpose and creative work" he said he had long admired. Horton was once a member of the Young Communist League. In the famous picture of King at the Highlander Folk School, the other comrades enjoying the lecture are Aubrey Williams, an identified Communist whom King described as "one of the noble personalities of our times, and Abner W. Berry, of the Central Committee of the Communist Party.
On April 4, 1967, exactly one year before he died, King preached a "sermon" denouncing our effort in Vietnam and calling the United States the "greatest purveyor of violence in the world today." King urged Negroes to evade the draft, to refuse to fight for their country. King was doubtless not a member of the Communist Party. But the Communist conspirators have lost one of their greatest allies.

THE ROAD TO PEACE
The American people have distinguished themselves by their industry, their extroverted natures, and their ability to solve pressing problems with amazing efficiency. And yet, in one respect at least, they are no different from other men throughout the world or history: in their understanding of the nature of political processes, they are stupendous blockheads!
It has been disgusting to watch the behavior of such men as President Johnson and Ho Chi Minh donning the garb of "men dedicated to finding peace." It is equally nauseating to see various national and international figures praising these men for their "unselfish" and "dedicated" efforts to achieve peace in Vietnam.

Granted, these two heads of governments have taken the position that it would be desirable to end the war in Vietnam. But this overlooks one vital point: Who STARTED the war in the first place? These same two men!

It would indeed be gratifying if the Vietnam war could be brought to an end now. It would be more gratifying, however, if we never had to concern ourselves with getting into any future wars.
But as long as the American people—like people throughout the rest of the world—continue to worship political institutions and the men who head them; as long as they continue, like cattle, to lick the hands of the butchers who lead them into the slaughter house; so long, then, will the politicians have their obedient following for any war in which they choose to involve their countrymen.
Throughout the past few weeks, politicians have reminded us that "the road to peace is a thousand miles." No, it is not. The road to peace involves only a desire to live with one another in a condition of non-violence, and an understanding of the nature of political institutions which, alone, are capable of waging wars.
In this understanding, however, most people fall into the classic statement once made by G. K. Chesterton: "Anything which is rational is always difficult for the lay mind. But the thing which is irrational, anything, can understand."

Hello!

By JOAN WILKE
(The Freeman)

(Miss Wilke is an advertising writer.)

If you're familiar with English detective stories, you know that "hello" is much more than a salutation. It's a surprise!

It's what every good English detective says when he stumbles upon a previously overlooked, wonderful, important, delightful little clue that is sure to unravel the whole mystery.

That's why "hello" is such a fine greeting — whether to a stranger or an old friend. It's the expectation of discovery. The anticipation of some new and wonderful revelation... or some new meaning in something long familiar.

Freedom is the only philosophy that treats life realistically — as a mystery that will unravel surprise by surprise.

Only In Freedom

Only freedom can accommodate the day-to-day surprises that arise from truth and error, wisdom and folly, the simple and complex, the limited and limitless.

It allows for disappointments and failures as well as success. Everyone benefits freely (and willingly!) from success when it happens, but no one is forced to share another's failure unless all future's are bound up through a collective. So freedom magnifies all success and minimizes and confines failure. Collectivism does just the opposite.

Freedom offers no pat answers to pat problems because it always anticipates some new discovery or variation.

Collectivism proudly asserts it has the answers, and concretizes them into laws, thereby perpetuating the old and obstructing the new.

Freedom treats life as a process, not a thing. A continuous happening, not something that happened. So it is an invitation to life, not an encroachment on it. It is a beckoning, not a coercive force. It recognizes life as a series of beginnings.

All forms of materialistic collectivism treat life as though it's over, in the sense that it is predictable. It is so preoccupied with the present that it rejects the past and considers the future a projection of the present.

It worships "change" but, being oriented to the current situation, considers change simply a rearrangement of existing conditions, intellectually contrived and politically manipulated. It never anticipates real change... only repetition of existing conditions.

Limitations

In limiting life to its own predictions, it necessarily brings about the conditions it predicted, since life only repeats itself when restricted.

Freedom recognizes that life's secrets already exist and lie undiscovered, waiting to be stumbled upon in a series of delighted "hellos." Collectivism drearily limits itself to the idea that what is discovered is what exists, so it mechanically distributes the accumulated surprise of the past without allowing for the continuing surprise of new discovery.

Freedom is nourished by expectation. Collectivism cannot survive without fears... real or imaginary... grouped together and therefore exchanged and exaggerated in such hand-holding gatherings as unions and pressure groups or any combination formed for the force that will ally its fears.

The future is determined largely by the choice individuals make between expecting the best or the worst.

Whereas fear paralyzes, expectation energizes. The most remarkable person I know... and the freest... always seems to have this air of anticipation about him. When he comes through a door or around a corner, he has the manner of one who has heard a firecracker go off and has come to see what the celebration is all about. He's in a state of perpetual "hello!" With his attitude, I doubt that he's ever disappointed, because he would see the most ordinary thing with extraordinary delight.

Within The Circle

By SYDNEY A. MAYERS

Fragments

He drew a circle that shut me out — Heretic, rebel, a thing to flout.

But Love and I had the wit to win:

We drew a circle that took him in.

— Edwin Markham

Recent years have brought a marked resurgence of what is tantamount to a class struggle, though not one in the classic mode. The current mass conflict does not pit slave against master, sans-culotte against aristocrat, peasant against Czar, nor proletarian against capitalist exploiter. Thus it is not essentially a war between oppressed and oppressor. In fact, the prevalent turmoil is (for the most part) singularly impersonal, since it is not directed toward the overthrow of identifiable individuals holding undue political or economic power. Instead, it constitutes an outburst aimed at changing existing conditions, altering environmental circumstances, and rearranging the pattern that has more or less been accepted as a way of life.

Today's "class struggle" reflects the bitter resentment that has swelled in the hearts of so-called minority groups, who feel unjustly isolated from the mainstream of the community.

How A Socialist Experiment Failed

(Chicago Tribune)

In a Chicago speech, Premier W. Ross Thatcher of Saskatchewan expounded on the evils of the socialist experiment in his province. He heads the Liberal party, which in 1964 tossed the socialists out of office after they had been in control of Saskatchewan for 20 years. "We found that there is nothing wrong with socialism except that it doesn't work," he said.

When the socialists were elected in 1944 they promised to end unemployment, provide jobs by building government owned factories, give free medical and health service to all citizens, and bring prosperity to the farmer. Over the years they set up 22 so-called crown corporations and waged continuous war on private enterprise. Legislation authorized the government to expropriate and operate any industry or business in the province.

How did it work out? Investors from eastern Canada, the United States, and Europe shunned the province. Industry after industry by-passed Saskatchewan, and located elsewhere in Canada. Discriminatory legislation forced dozens of oil companies to leave the province, and gas explorations and prospecting halted.

Between 1945 and 1963 more than one million new industrial jobs were created in all of Canada. But in Saskatchewan, after 18 years of socialism, there were fewer manufacturing jobs than had existed in 1945. What Thatcher describes as the greatest mass exodus of a people since Moses led the Jews out of Egypt took place as 270,000 citizens left the province to find employment elsewhere. By 1964 almost half of the government corporations had gone bankrupt or had been disposed of, and the rest were kept afloat only by repeated and substantial government grants. Their losses were colossal, and in the absence of the profits that were supposed to finance free medical care and hospitalization, the money had to come from tax revenues.

Citizens discovered that government sponsored medicine and hospital care are anything but "free." Costs of the hospitalization plan skyrocketed from 7.5 million dollars to 74 million dollars annually. The same pattern is evident in the cost of a medical care program introduced four years ago, which is rising at the rate of 10 per cent annually.

Under socialism the provincial debt went up from 150 million dollars to 600 million dollars. More than 600 new taxes were introduced, and 650 other taxes were increased. In short, socialism in Saskatchewan, according to Thatcher, produced industrial stagnation, retarded development, oppressive taxation, and major depopulation.

After his speech Thatcher was asked at a news conference if he detects any evidence of socialism in the United States. He replied he noted certain "symptoms" but declined to be specific. Perhaps he considered that the parallels in excessive government spending, oppressive taxation, and welfareism were so obvious as to require no delineation.

Disdainful of mere tolerance, impatient with polite acceptance, and indignant at the special status imposed upon them, they are now determined, it would seem, to attain by whatever means, their rightful places, shoulder-to-shoulder with the so-called "superior" beings whom they regard as no more than their peers. The fruit of this resentment has inevitably taken the form of increasingly militant efforts to achieve their goal.

Beyond question, there is intrinsic justice in the desire to effectuate the assertion that all men are equal. To discriminate against an individual; or worse, to condemn him to iniquity, simply by reason of his complexion, his origin, or the manner in which he worships his deity, is more than unjust. It is immoral. One cannot help but feel compassion for those who fervently seek succor from suffering, as well as sympathy for their urgent endeavor to assume their fellow men. That they should attain their end is undoubtedly "a consummation devoutly to be wished."

However, in setting forth on a journey, no matter how important or how appealing the destination may be, a wrong road may be taken. So it appears to me in contemplating one aspect of the struggle for human equality. That is the tendency to turn away from the "outsiders," and to turn inward toward one's own "kind." Presumably this tendency could be a poignant illustration of the old saw, "Misery loves company," but I doubt it. Even if there were logic in the platitude, and solace could be found in the companionship of similarly afflicted sufferers, I question that this in itself accounts for the phenomenon I have observed. I think the explanation is deeper: perhaps an animosity toward "strangers"; perhaps a feeling that "in union there is strength"; perhaps relaxing comfort in being able to talk and act freely, without fear of being ridiculed.

In any case, the reason for the clanishness of the militant minority is of merely psychological interest; objectively it is of little consequence. What is important is the evident error that exists in the very formation of these tightly-knit arrangements, bound together solely by national, religious, or racial considerations. The inconsistency involved in such a procedure is glaringly apparent. Those who organize into cohesive groups, limited exclusively to their "own kind," are in effect proclaiming to all who are "outside": "You have excluded us from most of your world, therefore (in retaliation?) we shall withdraw from you and congregate within our consciously homogeneous community, from which you shall be shut out!" Are they, in truth, shutting The Others out — or are they closing themselves in, deliberately intensifying the isolation they so bitterly resent? To my mind the latter situation regrettably prevails, paradox though it is. But why? Can one escape from a ghetto by locking its portals from the inside?

Antipathy

Certainly there abounds in our social milieu widespread antipathy toward various segments of the populace, a sentiment generally rationalized on the ground that they are "different." I think such unhealthy feelings reflect on those who harbor them, not on their targets. But beyond that, it occurs to me that building a higher wall or digging a wider ditch is hardly a logical means of eliminating a divisive condition. It would be wiser to remove the wall, or fill in the ditch, and thus create a clear area for mutual communication and understanding.

For those who suffer discrimination to "stick together" within a proscribed circle, as a reprisal against their tormentors, is to succeed only in assuring their own dismemberment. By that act, they unwittingly engage in a self-defeating gambit, effectively deepening the chasm that sets them apart. Moreover, they inevitably discourage the many potential friends who are eager to offer sympathy and good will. Instead of tightening the circle in which they take their stand, it is incumbent on them to enlarge it, and welcome sufficiently enlarged, perhaps one day its limiting edge will disintegrate. And then there will be no "circle" other than that which encompasses our earth.

FREE TRADE CAPITALISM

Honest Capitalism Alone Can Defeat Communism

(The Free Trader, London, England)

Last month one of our correspondents asked us why we described "The Free Trader" as "a publication for those who believe in honest capitalism."

The answer is that we believe that complete Free Trade — or free market capitalism is honest capitalism where all people have freedom of opportunity and no special privilege is granted to any one section of the community.

Protectionist capitalism is what we described as dishonest capitalism. It is a form of capitalism under which some sections of the community are regarded as being more important than other sections and are given special privileges.

In our opinion the importance of any section of the community is decided by the demand for the products or the services of that section and it gets its just reward from the customer. No section, not even farmers or shipbuilders or retail traders are entitled to any special consideration from the community other than that which their own services or goods command by their quality price or other ingredient. In our opinion protectionist capitalism cannot be defended against communism; free trade capitalism can, we are convinced, be defended against all comers and indeed can go on the offensive as being the only form of capitalism that is worthwhile and in the interests of all the people.

We must not overlook the fact that if one section of the community is given special privilege it can only be given by taking something away from other sections of the community.

Mr. Harold Wilson's principal new appointment to his Cabinet, Mr. Peter Shore appears to mark yet another step towards the police State.

Mr. Shore describes himself as an "open interventionist." His position as Secretary of State for Economic Affairs presents him, as he believes, with the task of identifying obstacles and developing remedies to maintain expansion and full employment. Mr. Shore is an inexperienced young man with a definite prejudice against the business of the City of London. He favours centralised planning and thinks that he is the man to do it. We would suggest that he might proceed with a little more humility. The business of an island nation dependent for around fifty per cent of its food and over ninety per cent of its raw materials for its industry, is highly complicated.

Moreover, while many other countries can produce motor cars or refrigerators or television sets equally as well as our own the things that other countries have not been able to do nearly as well have been those activities dependent on integrity, the merchandising, financing, banking and insuring and investing activities of the City of London. Those earnings which have been spread throughout the national life have been the most valuable earnings of all and if Mr. Shore in his prejudices does anything to weaken the earning power of the City he will be responsible for undermining the well being of the mass of the people.

Mr. Shore's appointment is doubtless due to what the government regards as the imperative need for dealing with an increasing volume of unemployment. It is pledged to full employment at any price. Very unwisely many Conservative propagandists are also urging the government to take steps to maintain full employment. The only way the Government in present circumstances can maintain full employment is by pouring out more and more paper money and taxing productive industry to maintain industry that is not profitable. Over twenty-five years ago the late Very Reverend W. R. Inge, Dean of St. Paul's wrote "The promise of the Government, to put an end to unemployment by finding work for all, will, I fear turn out to be a very costly failure. The work which it is intended to make will necessarily be work for which there is no economic demand; otherwise it would not be necessary to create it artificially. It will be carried on mainly by those who are rejected by the trades — the untrained, the incompetent, the work shy. They will have no motive for doing an honest day's work, and there will be no way of punishing them when they refuse to do it. The total failure of the National Workshops of Louis Blanc in 1848 must not be forgotten."

In a free economy there can be no free unemployment. It is true wages will fluctuate downwards as well as upwards but the purchasing power of wages is increased by the flow of cheap and abundant supplies of imported foodstuffs and raw materials. At the same time as he made his statement regarding full employment Dean Inge also said that persistence in socialist policies would result in a financial crash, compared with which the threatened disaster in 1931, was a mild shock. "We shall be obliged, whether we like it or not," he said "to look the facts in the face." Dean Inge's crash has been long delayed. One expedient after another has postponed the event. But it is not impossible for a 1931 situation to arise in circumstances of high prices whereas in 1931 the poorest people at least received some relief from the fact that food prices were at about the lowest level of all time.

If government persists in bolstering up so called employment by pouring out more paper money then it is certain that the pound must collapse in value. That will serve no useful purpose whatsoever and will merely bring discredit on the British people.

In July Grimsby trawler owners prevented Danish trawlers from landing abundant fish supplies in order to keep up prices. At the same time National Farmers' Union members urged that cheap Irish beef should be kept out of the British market. The Free Trade League protested against these policies in an advertisement in "The Times" newspaper and pointed out that when other products are rising in price it is essential that cheapness wherever obtainable should be allowed to reach the people. Subsequently the British Trawlers Federation joined in the demand for restriction of landings of abundant fish supplies and the nationalised steel industry added to the handicaps of home market and exporting secondary industries by raising steel prices. Another advertisement was inserted in "The Times" protesting against these activities. We had a number of letters supporting our protest and a demand for copies of "The Free Trader." There is no doubt that the effect on authority of the expression of the alternative point of view can be important. But what we have to do is to induce more and more people to join the Free Trade movement. In recent times our increase in membership has shown very substantial acceleration, and includes many enthusiastic young people.

Lord Robens at the National Coal Board has been closing down pits in order to produce an organisation that will pay its way. Mr. Wilson has become afraid of the unemployment that must follow this policy and the suggestion now is that closing down of pits should stop. The answer to this problem is to offer all the so-called uneconomic pits for sale either to the Miners' Union or other organisations and allow them to make them profitable if they can. Doubtless some of these pits could be made payable if the men would prefer to remain in their present locality and homes and accept lower wages. The lower wages could be made worthwhile if the miners could buy cheap food and other essentials. Wages are worth what they will buy and more and more people are beginning to recognise that paying people in money of lower quality is but another method of wage reduction — a dishonest method of wage reduction.

Burmester & Wain, the famous Danish shipbuilding company have refused to accept a Government subsidy. They are closing down that section of their shipbuilding business that the trade unions refuse to allow the company to make profitable. Some 3,700 out of 6,000 workers are being affected. British businessmen too should keep out of the hands of government. They should refuse to accept dollars which can only be supplied either by printing worthless paper money which only dilutes the total value of the nation's currency or is taken by taxation from those industries which can be made to pay. The ultimate result of taking from the good to reduce all to the level of the bad.

"The Daily Express" tells its readers that the rising tide of imports is the biggest threat to Britain's financial stability. The Government regularly exports industry to buy British machinery rather than foreign. It then proceeds to complain that some of the State run organisations appear to give preference to foreign producers. The answer to the problem is that excessive imports result from an excessive circulation of paper money — and government alone is responsible for that. Government should stop pouring out paper money for useless schemes and allow all people to make the best use of the money that they properly earn by buying at home or abroad.

Our Secret Allies

(Richmond News Leader)

Abraham Lincoln once said that the first obligation of any government is to itself. By that he meant that if a government does not destroy the elements — internal and external — that would bring it down, the government in question soon will be out of business. Recently the Soviet government supplied devastating verification of Mr. Lincoln's law.

The verification came in two episodes involving young Russian writers. In the first incident a writer named Vladimir Bukovsky was sentenced to three years in prison for leading a demonstration in Moscow's Pushkin square in support of a demonstration in Moscow's Pushkin square in support of the soviet press, he said: "What the prosecutor would like to hear from me, he won't hear. There is no criminal act in my case. I absolutely do not repent."

In the other trial, three writers and a typist were convicted of editing and printing manuscripts critical of communist life. One of the four, who in effect turned state's evidence, admitted his guilt. But the other three pleaded innocent to the charges and castigated the court, Soviet law, and the secret police. One of the dissenting three — Yuri Galanskov — said, "Any patriot has a duty to die for his country, but not to lie for it." He got seventy years in a slave labor camp.

Significantly, the defendants were not alone. Leading Russian intellectuals signed petitions and demonstrated in the condemned writers' behalf. Pavel Litvinov — the grandson of Stalin's foreign minister of the '30s, Maksim Litvinov — smuggled the transcript of the Bukovsky trial to the west. And with Larisa Daniel, the wife of exiled writer Yuli Daniel, young Litvinov openly distributed a printed screed to persons awaiting the verdict of the trial of the three writers and the typist.

"There can be no pretense that the trial is objective," the circular said. "The sentence has been decided from the very start. This trial is a stain on the honor of our state." Subsequently, he was fired from his job at a Moscow chemical institute and now faces a trial of his own.

What does all this agitation for literary freedom mean? Perhaps it means, as author Eugene Lyons has written, that the west has a loyal secret ally in the people of Russia. For no matter how thoroughly the Soviet government remodels the minds of most of its citizens, there still are those who will not submit. The Soviet government, in fulfilling its obligation to itself as Lincoln said governments must, will destroy many of them. But it cannot kill them all. And one day, those who remain may comprise the agency that will put Soviet tyranny out of business for good.

Economy

(“Freedom First”), London, Eng.

"More parsimony is not economy. It is separable in theory from it; and in fact it may, or it may not, be a part of economy, according to circumstances. Expense and great expense may be an essential part of true economy. If parsimony were to be considered as one of the kinds of that virtue there is however another and a higher economy. Economy is a distributive virtue and consists not in saving, but in selection. Parsimony requires no providence, no sagacity, no powers of combination, no comparison, no judgment. Mere instinct, and that not an instinct of the noblest kind, may produce this false economy in perfection. The other economy has larger views. It demands a discriminating judgment, and a firm sagacious mind. It shuts one door to impudent impertunity, only to open another, and a wider, to unpresumptuous merit. If none but meritorious service or real talent were to be rewarded, this nation has not wanted, and this nation will not want, the means of rewarding all-the service it ever will receive, and encouraging all the merit it ever will produce. No state since the foundation of society has been impoverished by that species of profusion."
