Weather Bureau Here Is Notified To Keep Watch For Vessel

The Akron was reported over Houston at 3:43 p. m.

The U. S. navy dirigible Akron, which left Lakehurst, N. J., at 6:55 a. m. Monday, eastern standard time, was reported over Galveston shortly after 3 p. m. Monday.

The Associated Press states bureau in Dallas reported to The Herald that it had not determined what course the ship would take across Texas.

It was expected to cross the Rocky mountains west of El Paso.

The United States department of commerce airways radio station and the government weather bureau here received a message early Monday afternoon notifying them to keep a watch for the dirigible, and saying that it would pass along the Dallas-El Paso airway on its way to the west coast.

The ship had been making slow progress all the way from the Atlantic coast.

Leaving Lakehurst at 6:55 a. m. Sunday it was reported over Mexico, Georgia, 705 miles away, at 9:30 p. m. Sunday.

It passed over New Orleans about noon and at 1:05 was over Beaumont. Fifty minutes later it was reported over Port Arthur, apparently turning back to the coast line.

At 2:15 p. m. the Associated Press reported the ship over Galveston.

In case Commander Rosendahl turned his huge ship back toward Dallas and took the Dallas-El Paso airway route the people of Big Spring and vicinity might expect to sight the vessel late Monday night.

The Akron has been averaging only about 50 miles per hour since leaving Lakehurst.

JOUETT SHOUSE, executive chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who is well known in West Texas for his former interest in the old Kansas City, Mexico & Orient, failed last week to be elected a delegate to the national convention by Kansas Democrats.

To outsiders it appears as if the party leaders in Kansas displayed greater lack of appreciation than have any other political chiefs in many years. Unquestionably, Shouse has done more for the Democratic party in the three years he has held his office than any man in America.

The morning after the Hoover triumph four years ago it appeared as if the Democratic party were dead. In the following spring, Mr. Shouse took charge of the party's affairs and immediately began injecting new life into it.

The sweeping victories at the bi-election year congressional races in 1930 were due in a large part to his efforts.

The Democratic party has too few conscientious and able leaders to be able to afford to ignore them. Let us hope that Democrats elsewhere place a higher value on Shouse's services than the Kansas leaders.

PREVALENCE OF CANCER

(First of a series of ten articles on cancer issued by the Texas Medical Association.)

Cancer is a universal disease. It attacks the entire animal kingdom, including man. Growths of much the same nature are common also in plants and trees.

The ancient Egyptians were familiar with cancer. The earliest writings of India make mention of it. And the most primitive races of man were no doubt afflicted by it from the very beginning of their existence.

Cancer attacks both the old and the young. Babies are born with it, and the oldest people die of it. Cancer is largely a disease of adult life, however, occurring chiefly between the ages of forty and seventy.

Women are afflicted by cancer more often than men. This is due to its frequent occurrence in the female breast and the female genital organs. Women have 100 times more cancers of the breast than men, and about four times more cancers of the genital organs.

Cancer affects all parts of the body. The stomach and liver are the most frequent seat of the disease, and cancers of these organs, combined, are responsible for more than one third of the total cancer deaths in the United States. Cancers of the female genital organs equal 14 per cent of the deaths. Cancers of the intestines and rectum, combined, causes 13 per cent of the deaths. Cancers of the breast, mouth, skin and other organs are responsible for the remainder, in the order named.

About one tenth of all deaths in the United States are at present due to cancer. More than 115,000 people died of the disease in this country during 1929.

Cancer ranked second as a principal cause of death in the United States during 1929, exceeded only by heart disease. In 1900 it ranked sixth. It has climbed steadily upward in recent years, with an increasing destruction of life.

To Appear Before Lawyers of State

Martin W. Littleton
MINERAL WELLS—Clyde E. Thomas, a prominent attorney of Big Spring and a member of the Attendance and Publicity Committee of Texas Bar Association, stated that from all indications it appeared that the annual meeting of the Texas Bar Association at Mineral Wells on May 19, 20 and 21 would be the most interesting and best attended meeting that the association has ever had.

Mr. Thomas based his opinion upon advice from officers of the association to the effect that advance registrations are running far ahead of any similar period in the half century of the Bar Association indicating that interest in the annual meeting of the association is more widespread over the state than ever before. This is accounted for, Mr. Thomas believes, by the most unusual program that has been planned for this year's meeting and the excellent arrangements that have been made for the entertainment of visiting lawyers and their families.

Program
In commenting upon this year's meeting, Mr. Thomas pointed out several unusual features:

The program committee has secured the attendance of two of the most outstanding lawyers in the United States in the persons of Hon. Martin Littleton of New York and the Hon. Guy A. Thompson, president of the American Bar Association. Both Mr. Littleton and Mr. Thompson are to make addresses during the meeting. Capacity audiences are expected to hear each speaker.

The lawyers of Texas will take peculiar interest in the address of Mr. Littleton because of the fact that he is a native born Texan who has become since his removal to New York one of the recognized leaders of the American Bar. The address of Mr. Littleton will be on the subject of "What Price Progress," and will doubtless challenge the serious thoughts of every person who hears it.

The business program of the convention promises to be not only one of the most constructive, but the most enthusiastic as well that the Association has ever known. It is certain to bring about active participation in the discussions by the ablest lawyers in this state. The principal subjects to be discussed during the business sessions will be: "Lay and Corporate Encroachment on the Practice of the Law," "Raising the Standard for Admission to the Practice of the Law," and "The Self Governing Bar Bill."

Changes
Foreshadowing the interest which will be taken in the matters to be discussed was the action of the Dallas Bar Association and the San Antonio Bar Association recommending drastic changes with reference to examination for admission to the practice of the law in this state.

There is a wide divergence of opinion among the lawyers regarding the merits of each of the propositions mentioned and the discussion promises to be lively on each subject. As indicative of the character of debate that may be expected, it is expected that the argument in favor of the Self Governing Bar Bill.

Go window-shopping
in your easy chair

Relax for a moment and turn the pages of your newspaper. Let the advertisements help you to make your shopping plans. Do you need a dress, or a coat, or a hat? Perhaps a new blanket for a guest-room, some curtain material, or even a few new pots and pans for the kitchen? Of course, there are many things you want and need... but you may be letting many of them wait until you see in a store or window exactly what you have in mind, at an especially alluring price.

Those are the very things you will find in advertisements. Attractive articles, new and improved ones, prices that make quick action an economy. Think how many steps it can save you to hunt out these things, and find them, in comfort at home! If a special opportunity is offered, you'll know about it in time. When new articles are announced, you can have them before they are the least bit out of date. And you can save hours of waiting and asking, miles of steps—and money too!

These are but a few of the ways the advertisements in your newspaper can serve you. If you read them every day, you are sure to grow wise in the ways of purchasing... and saving.

SUSAN HERE TODAY
SUSAN CARREY, pretty secretary, falls in love with BOB DUNBAR, son of a millionaire. DENISE ACKROYD, who hopes to marry Bob, asks Susan to attend a house party and manages to cause a misunderstanding between Susan and Bob. BENZ LAMPMAN, another suitor of Susan's, has a fist fight with Bob. Susan jumps out of Bob's car and asks protection from ERNEST HEATH, her employer, who is passing. He takes her home. MR. HEATH, jealous of Susan, threatens an alienation suit but desists when JACK WARING produces a letter incriminating her in an affair with another man, RAY FLANNERY, who works in the next office, confides to Susan that "SKY" WEBER, whom she cared for, has married another, ROSE MILTON. Susan's chum, plans to give up her career to marry. On Christmas eve Heath sends Susan flowers and Ben, who has proposed marriage and been refused, is jealous. Waring meets Denise at a New Year's eve party and she indiscreetly tells she has meddled in Susan's and Bob's love affair.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXII
It was one of those sharp bitter days in late January. Snow had fallen the day before and overnight had changed into sleet. The pavements were an icy menace along which taxicabs cautiously slid. At five o'clock Susan looked out and shivered. For the past half hour she had noticed Mr. Heath fussing about in his own office. There did not seem to be any particular reason for his lingering. She was putting on her hat when he appeared in the doorway.

"Miss Carrey, I have the car and it's a wretched night. Let me drop you at your home."
"Surprise showed in the girl's face. "Oh, that's awfully kind of you but isn't it out of your way?"
"Not at all. I should be very happy to do it. Just one moment and I'll be with you."
They rode down in the elevator together, the girl, as always, more than a little shy with this man whom she had met in the street, spring down to open the door for him. He tucked a thick, soft rug around Susan's knees.

"Are you quite comfortable?"
Susan said she was. She felt as warm as toast.

"Good." Her employer's voice was brisk and businesslike as ever. "I wanted especially to talk to you," he went on, still in the quiet, impersonal way. The girl waited silently. She loved the purity of his tone, the rich color under her fingers. She was quite unprepared for what was to follow.

"You know, didn't you, that Mrs. Heath's term of residence in Reno will be over next week?"
"No, I didn't know that," Susan looked at him innocently.

"Yes. That's the way it is. I shall be free then."
"Yes, of course," Susan didn't know what else to say.

"I'm afraid I'm doing all this very badly," Heath continued. He murmured, "but I don't know what to say."

"I didn't expect you to give me an answer tonight," he said. "I want you to think it over. I'm afraid I have been very clumsy about it." The look of melancholy she had become used to in the past few weeks clouded his face. Susan hastened to reassure him.

"It's I who am clumsy -- and stupid, too," she amended. She had the satisfaction of seeing that rare smile lighten his features.

Heath was thinking. "The girl has tact, and what is more, gracefulness." He had considered himself a completely disillusioned man but there was something in Susan's freshness which delighted him and gave him hope for the future. What could he not do with this girl at his side? He liked to think of her in soft fine fabrics with pearls at her throat. He would build her a new home somewhere, in the country where low hills lay. She should have a French house with fine, delicate furniture and velvet textured rugs. That would be the proper setting for her.

"Let me think about it," the girl was saying, her fine, soft eyes luminous. What color were they, Heath wondered? Gray or black or were they a lambent hazel? Some day, perhaps, he would really know.

The car jolted around a corner. In spite of Simon's careful driving the going was rough. The motion flung Susan almost into Heath's arms, and the fragrance of the buson momentarily intoxicated him. She righted herself, laughing, but a bright apricot stain colored the pure oval of her face and the man fell silent. He had not realized before how his heart was set on this marriage. Now he knew fully how much he had builded upon it. It was Ruth, with her irrational jealousies, her fierce and sudden decision to try to blacken this girl's name, who had made him see. It had been the last thing Ruth had meant to do but she had accomplished it.

Heath took up the speaking tube and told Simon in a low, stern tone to be more careful. Nothing should happen to this girl through fault of his, Heath swore in his heart. Nothing but good!

Susan thrilled to the core, realizing in some small measure what of fury stirred in the lap found themselves impressed held fast.

"I am not patient usually," Heath repeated. "But I wait for this. I can wait for a girl."

Susan felt an impulse to tell him how fine and honorable and content she was. "But I wait for this. I can wait for a girl."

He was fine and honorable and content. He had all the virtues, couldn't she love him? They did not speak again. Simon halted the car before the
