MAKING THE RAFTERS RING FOR ROOSEVELT

NEW PICTURE OF GOV. ROOSEVELT

These are the men who started the stampede that resulted in the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt at the democratic convention in Chicago. At the outset of the fourth ballot William Gibbs McAdoo (left) swung California's swing to the New York governor. Carl Estes (left) was soon on the stand with Texas' standard, indicating the nomination was assured.

One of the "Flying Moffetts" is pictured above climbing from the plane of her father, Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the naval bureau of aeronautics, after a flight over Washington. She is Miss Beverly Moffett, capital society girl. Two brothers likewise are air enthusiasts.

This scene of excitement prevailed for 43 minutes at the democratic national convention in Chicago after John E. Mack placed the name of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in nomination. Flying banners, state songs and tumultuous cheers marked the parade of the Roosevelt state delegations before the speakers' platform.

This exclusive photograph of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York was taken in Albany, N. Y., when he was keeping in close touch with proceedings of the democratic national convention in Chicago.

YES, SHE LIKES PARADES!

Mrs. Stuart Mills of Brainerd, Minn., a delegate-at-large, was hoisted delegates' shoulders during the big demonstration at the democratic national convention following the speech of John E. Mack, who placed the name of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in nomination for the presidency.

Future Movie Star?

Marylyn, baby daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Franklyn Thorpe—Mary Astor of the movies—is yet a bit camera-shy. She was held by her mother for her picture in Honolulu, the infant's birthplace.

BREAKFAST ON THE PLATFORM!

After the democrats held their famous all-night convention sessions in Chicago, many officials had their breakfasts brought to them. Sen. Thomas J. Walsh, convention chairman, is shown breakfasting on the speakers' platform.

Beauty And Fashion

Lynne de Souza, "Miss France" of 1932, is shown wearing one of the new summer hats with a black and white ensemble.

SHE LED CHEERS FOR RITCHIE

Mrs. Wallace Lanahan of Baltimore, standing atop the speaker's desk, captured the crowd's attention at the democratic convention in Chicago when she led cheers for Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland after his name had been placed in nomination.

ROOSEVELTS HAPPY AFTER NOMINATION

MACK NOMINATING ROOSEVELT

The first name placed before the democratic convention in Chicago was that of Franklin D. Roosevelt. John E. Mack, who made the nominating speech, is shown in action. When he named his man, he gave the signal for a huge demonstration that made the rafters ring.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

CHAPTER XXXII
The hot wind whipped Cherry's hat back from her face...

It will be cooler as soon as we get out of town, Pearson told her. He had to raise his voice above the sound of the car.

Pearson glanced at his watch. "Car, tell me when you are waiting for a long distance call when I call. But you needn't worry about Dan. That lead leads a charmed life."

The rain was falling in big drops...

now and the sky had darkened rapidly. Pearson drove without regard for speed limits.

Suddenly the storm burst in earnest. An ear-splitting peal of thunder was followed by flashes of sheet lightning. The rain fell in torrents.

They were out of the city now on a road dotted here and there by small dwellings. The sun was still visible over the tops of the buildings but for the first time Cherry noticed that the sky seemed darker.

Cherry looked down at her frost white dress. The rain had ruined it. She turned to Pearson. "Maybe we should go back."

"No, I think the best thing we can do is keep going. Never can tell about these summer storms. Some times they blow over in five minutes."

"You're not afraid, are you?" he asked. She was but refused to admit it.

you get a fire here? Any place where we can dry out those wet clothes?

The place was an oil station. The room they were in seemed to be an old shed that had been converted for its present use.

All three went into the adjoining room. It was larger and there was a counter evidently used for serving quick lunches. There was a stove at the far end of the room.

Cherry was beside the stove, holding out her wet skirt to the heat.

Instead of answering he asked, "Do you have a telephone?"

She came back and sat on one of the high stools before the counter. The steaming cups of coffee were set before them and sandwiches made of thick white bread and sliced ham.

PA'S SON-IN-LAW

It seemed hours before Pearson said, "We're coming to something, There's a light!"

In five minutes they had reached the building. It seemed to be an oil station. Pearson sounded the horn and the door opened, letting out a shaft of yellow light.

"Run for it, Cherry," he said. "It's right behind you."

She tossed her head back smiling. The dark curls fell away from her face becomingly. The white dress was dry now but it clung to the girl's figure.

"Why, Max?" "I'm not sorry for what's happened," he went on swiftly. "I've wanted to talk to you like this for weeks! Oh, Cherry, haven't you seen—don't you understand? I've tried not to think about you, I've tried not to let myself care but I can't help it. It's been agony for me! Cherry, don't you understand? I—I love you!"

Cherry smiled. "I'm not sure, it's not my own. It wasn't exactly the kind I'd counted on, but I don't believe I've ever been wet-ter!"

"I can't be 40 miles," Pearson objected. "We left Wellington before the storm began."

Cherry asked, raising frightened eyes. "Oh, Max, what can we do?"

"I tried to call Pa half an hour ago. Storm must have wire down."

"Well," Pearson said, "You might give us a couple of cups of the hottest, strongest coffee you've got, some sandwiches. After we've drunk the coffee maybe we'll be able to get out of Wellington and we're 35 miles north. This is the Moomouth Highway leading into Moomouth City."

She came back and sat on one of the high stools before the counter. The steaming cups of coffee were set before them and sandwiches made of thick white bread and sliced ham.

"No, much of a night to be out," the youth said, smiling.

Forsan Contract Club In Meeting

The Forsan Hi Lo Contract club met with Mrs. McElroath on the Magnolia lease Friday afternoon. High score was won by the hostess and low by Mrs. Boyle.

Two new members, Miss Wayne Munn and McCarty, were added. Mrs. Boyle's mother, Mrs. M. C. Harding of McCreary, was a guest, substituting in the play for Mrs. Prescott.

It was decided to play five games at each meeting. Those present were Mrs. J. E. Sullivan, Lloyd Burkhart, C. B. Parker, Wayne Munn, L. S. Boyle, M. C. Harding and McCarty. Mrs. Purker, residing on the Magnolia lease, will be next week's hostess on Thursday.

Forsan Wins Carnival Of Values Baseball Championship Sunday

The Forsan Oilers captured the baseball championship of the Carnival of Values tournament Sunday afternoon in a 3 to 0 battle with Fairview in the finals.

Coffee, slugging catcher, carried off batting honors for the day with a long double to right in the second inning that scored Gressett from first base.

Forsan won their way into the final round by defeating the Big Spring team while Fairview won over Coahoma 8 to 7 with a wild ninth inning rally that tied the score at 7 all.

Leroy Gressett went the route for the Oilers in their semifinal tilt with the local players, and easily won a 7 to 2 decision as his mates battled Payne hard.

Leonard Rose, who was beaten in the final contest by Forsan, almost single-handedly carried Fairview into the championship game.

Fairview and Forsan, dark horses both, entered the final round of the Carnival of Values baseball tournament Saturday and will meet for the championship today at 3:30 on the East Third diamond.

Forsan, with the veteran Leroy Gressett hurling masterful ball, administered a 7 to 2 defeat to the Big Spring club.
