IT HAS TO GO. Countess Cecilia Lewenhaupt of Sweden has received the king's permission to set her century-old castle afire. The three-story wooden castle will be burned down later this year when weather conditions are right. The countess said the mansion is too expensive to keep and she wants to build a smaller house on the lot. The structure has no special historic value.

Birth Rate In US Is Down

NEW YORK (UPI)—The birth rate of the United States has declined 28 per cent during the past 10 years, statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. Report.

They said the U.S. decline reflected similar declines in most industrialized countries of North America, Europe and Asia, while the birth rates of underdeveloped countries in South America, Asia and Africa have remained at a high level.

The insurance company said the birth rate in the United States last year was 17.9 per 1,000 population compared to 25 per 1,000 in 1957. Further, last year's birth rate was the lowest on record in the United States and Canada, where the rate has fallen 36 per cent during the 10-year period.

In the Soviet Union, the rate decreased from 25.4 per 1,000 in 1957 to 18.2 in 1966. In Japan, another highly industrialized country, the rate dropped from 30.2 per 1,000 between 1945-49, to 23.7 per 1,000 in the period 1950-54, and down to 18.2 in 1955-59.

Controversy Is Not Ended By Pope's Birth Control Stand

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

The encyclical issued Monday by Pope Paul VI won't end the birth control controversy in the Roman Catholic Church.

Nor will it entirely halt use of the pill and other contraceptives by Catholic families.

When the Pope finally spoke on birth control, after four years of indecision, he spoke forcefully. But he did not speak "Ex Cathedra"—from the Chair of Peter—and his ruling therefore does not have in church doctrine the status of an infallible pronouncement which Catholics are compelled to accept on pain of mortal sin.

Many Catholic liberals, anticipating which side the Pope eventually would come down on, have already made clear that they would not feel bound in conscience by a papal reiteration of the old teaching.

Fr. Hans Kung, the brilliant young Swiss theologian whose ideas on church reform were tremendously influential at the Vatican Council, has provided a rationale for disagreeing with the Pope's view that "every matrimonial act must remain open to the transmission of life."

Fr. Kung points out that it is a settled principle of Catholic moral theology that "a doubtful teaching does not oblige."

Another liberal theologian, Fr. Gregory Baum, says there indisputably is "real doubt in of a solid body of contrary moral opinion in the church and leaves no room for the exercise of individual responsibility which was so heavily stressed by the Vatican Council.

He points out that the effort to draw such a distinction, which the Pope repeated today, has been repudiated by most of the world's leading Catholic theologians and by a majority of the Pope's own special international commission of experts.

Since members of the hierarchy, scholars and the people themselves are clearly "not in agreement" on birth control, Fr. Baum argues, the Pope's decision cannot be regarded as "a definitive interpretation of divine law binding under all circumstances"

Prior to the issuance of the encyclical, a substantial number of Catholic families were using contraceptives. And an unknown but not insignificant number of priests were condoning the practice in the privacy of their confessions.

At least two members of the hierarchy — Cardinal Julius Döpfner of Munich, Germany, and Bishop Sergio Mendez Arceo of Cuernavaca, Mexico—had formally instructed their priests not to withhold the sacraments from any couple who reached a conscientious decision that they should use contraceptives to limit the size of their families.

To man Catholic liberals, this is the crux of the matter: Decisions on birth control are a matter of "family responsibility" which each couple should make in accordance with its own conscience and circumstances.

Just two days ago, 152 of the 1300 priests of the Washington archdiocese publicly rebelled against a statement by their Cardinal Patrick O'Boyle that the church's teaching "neither permits nor condones the use of means of contraception, be they mechanical, chemical or simply behavioral."

The dissident priests said in an open letter to Cardinal O'Boyle that they "cannot in conscience follow this directive because it ignores the existence

BERRY'S WORLD

"Grandpa always perks up when the commercials come on—they're the only thing he can HEAR!"

Washington Window

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter

This is the time of year—every four years—when most reporters regularly assigned to the White House leave the creature comforts of 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue and enter the cruel world of a presidential campaign, beginning with the two party conventions.

If one must make the transition, there is no better place to make it than at Miami Beach, site of the Republican National Convention.

After covering Democrats at the White House since 1961, the first thing one notices here is a lot of Republicans. Also, it is somewhat jarring to note the presence of a number of veteran Secret Service agents who are assigned this year to all candidates and not just the occupant of the White House.

Since the murder of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy in Los Angeles, agents have been assigned to all major candidates, including George Wallace, former Governor of Alabama who is running as a third party aspirant to the White House.

Agents traveling with Wallace have had more work than some of their colleagues with feelings sometimes running high when he makes public appearances.

But agents protecting Wallace report he is most considerate and gives them more than enough advance notice of his movements.

The agents also speak highly of the well-ordered planning in the camp of Republican Richard M. Nixon who, from years of political campaign experience, has learned the wisdom of not working his staff—and himself—into senseless exhaustion.

Nixon was not entirely this way in earlier campaigns. But apparently he has learned that periodic, definite breaks in his schedule add to the efficiency and durability of those around him who must bear an even heavier share of campaign activity than he does.

Agents covering Sen. Eugene McCarthy say that of all the candidates, there is less advance notice of the Minnesota Democrat's activities. They report it is often necessary to scramble without much warning.

Fast movement around the country is an old story to the men assigned to Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, who has had Secret Service protection since the 1964 election. And Republican Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York has long been protected by his state police and now he has more of it with federal men on the job.

RUSSIAN ROBOT reportedly has the power of speech and can walk independently. The mechanical man was made by students for a creative art exhibition in Moscow.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—If television's weekly series in the new season often looks like a grind of the old movie house days, it won't be by coincidence. In addition to a network movie every night of the week, the old staples of Westerns, cops-and-robbers shows and provincial comedy will be on wide display, especially for the non-selective.

On CBS-TV, the Westerns will be "Gunsmoke," "Dancer" and "Wild, Wild West." On NBC-TV, there are such oaters as "The Virginian," "Daniel Boone," "The High Chaparral" and "Bonanza." And on ABC-TV, the horse operas include "The Big Valley," "The Outcasts," "The Guns of Will Sonnet" and "Here Come the Brides."

Familiar Lineup
The cops-and-robbers shows, of which the secret agent programs are merely a variation, line up as follows: On CBS-TV: "Mission: Impossible," "Mannix" and "Hawaii Five-O." On NBC-TV: "The Outsider," "Ironside," "Dragnet," "Adam 12" and "The Name of the Game." On ABC-TV: "The Avengers," "The Mod Squad," "It Takes a Thief," "N.Y.P.D.," "The Feloony Squad," "Judd for the Defense" and "The FBI."

As for provincial comedy, CBS-TV has enough for all three networks: "M.A.B.," "The Beverly Hillbillies," the Doris Day show, "Green Acres," "Blondie," "Gomer Pyle" and "Peticoat Junction."

Game Shows Return
Considerably below provincial comedy are "ABC-TV's "The Newlywed Game" and "The Dating Game," and NBC-TV's "The Mothers-in-Law" all of which defy description among viewers whose spelling ability has advanced beyond C.A.T.

In addition to some of the better movies, the selective viewer of weekly series can choose a number of shows that will probably provide good entertainment on a steady basis.

The better returning series include "Gunsmoke," the Lucille Ball show, "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In," the Smothers Brothers program, the Dean Martin hour, the Jackie Gleason outings, "The Hollywood Palace" and "Mission: Impossible."

Of all these, none is more astounding in its continuing success than "Gunsmoke," which week after week turns out sharply done tales that are often better than most of the high-toned specials done for such series as "CBS Playhouse."

Coastline In US 'Sinking'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Don't panic, but California is sinking—rapidly. Even Texas is subsidizing. So are a lot of other places, including Louisiana, Alaska, Washington state, and Arizona. This downward movement of the earth's surface here and there is due, the Coast and Geodetic Survey has reported to a variety of causes, among them the activities of man.

The survey has been measuring up-and-down movements of the earth for half a century. Natural forces causing slumps include earthquakes, frost action, and changes in the moisture content of soil. Some changes in the earth's contour may occur slowly "over the ages." Those for which man is responsible can be measured in a matter of decades or even shorter periods.

In either case the surveys findings, it said, establish that "the earth is not 'terra firma' it only looks that way."

Subsidence discovered by the survey in the past few decades range from two-fifths of an inch after the 1965 Puget Sound earthquake in Washington to 24 feet near Mendota, Calif. The Mendota slump took place over a 23-year period starting in 1943. Geologically speaking, this was rapid.

Other sizable subsidences, include more than seven feet near Eloy, Ariz., since 1948; nearly five feet near Houston since 1943; 5.6 feet at Portage, Alaska, after the 1964 earthquake; and 20 inches at New Orleans in the past half century.

DISCOVER GIANT
TOKYO (UPI)—A policeman found a five-foot-four-inch-long leech in the gardens of Emperor Hirohito's imperial palace Monday and said the giant leech would be given to the emperor's youngest son, Prince Hitachi, a student of biology. Such leeches average about 2 1/2 inches in length.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 11 years old and my brother is eight. My mother and father are split up, and Dad is married to another lady now. Mom is going to marry another man in September. Her new husband has a boy who is nine years old. After Mom marries this man his name is going to live with us and our "brother" because his own Mom is dead. He don't know how to hold a fork, he walks like a girl and talks like a baby and we don't like him at all. What should we do?

DEAR BOYS: You and your mother should be extra nice to this motherless nine-year-old boy. Maybe he is a slow learner, but he has feelings. Be patient with him and try to teach him. People who are the "hardest" to love, usually need love the most.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are planning to go to his hometown next month to attend his sister's wedding. We would like to stay with his parents, which is the problem. His mother is a thrice-committed paranoid schizophrenic, and sudden violent outbursts are symptomatic of her condition. My husband and I can look after ourselves, but should we take our six-months' old baby? I have seen my mother-in-law on innocent people with everything from golf clubs to knives. She has been normal for over a year (with constant medication) but that doesn't mean she might not have another outburst. We could leave our baby at home with my mother, but I hate to deprive my mother-in-law of her grandmotherly pleasures. But if she asked to bathe the baby, for example, I would climb the walls.

Please tell me what to do. My husband agrees to go along with your advice.

WORRY WART
DEAR W.W.: Under the circumstances, as long as you can't take the baby with a free and untroubled mind, you'd be better off to leave it at home with your mother.

DEAR ABBY: Every now and then, some troubled Mom writes to complain that Pop has been showing signs of creeping senility. (He smiles at lovely young things, and imagines himself to be a swinger.) "What," asks the anguished wife, "can I do to bring the old fool to his senses?"

The columnist, (usually a female with more mileage than she cares to admit) takes Mom's part and proceeds to explain that "when a man gets past middle-age he is apt to develop strange symptoms, often stemming from the knowledge that youth is no longer with him."

If we lay aside the psychological gibberish and check the facts, we will see that the old man is acting as he always has, though in some cases, his wife is not.

I am past 60, and am as ready to look at a pretty face as is my 20-year-old grandson. I do not perform in any role with the zest or vigor I once possessed, but my instincts are the same. If Mom has lost pace in an effort to maintain a youthful state of mind, she might try accepting this fact, instead of trying to transfer her problem to Pop.

Designers Revive Classic Capes To Cover Fall, Winter Fashions

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—Fashions for fall and winter come in many moods.

One of them is the mood for the cape, which has horned into almost every collection of any note in the women's ready-to-wear field.

A smattering of New York's pace-setting designers have always included capes in their collections, with the good hope that the classic covering would catch on.

But this year, the cape literally and figuratively sweeps across the fashion scene.

Capes come in lengths from fingertip to the maxi (about 11 inches from the floor) and on down to the floor when they get into evening clothes.

Not New

The cape is not new to Pauline Trigere. This French-born designer who has had her own firm on Seventh Avenue for nearly three decades always shows capes.

Typical of hers for fall '68 is a daytime cape-dress combination done in shades of green and brown cable tweed.

Miss Trigere's firm is one of the more than 110 individual designers and manufacturers displaying their new wares for the nation's designers and visiting fashion reporters. By the time the shows conclude Friday, the reporters will have seen all phases of women's trends in the men's wear field as well.

John Moore, the Texas-born designer who made Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson's inaugural ball gown, showed rain capes in water repellent velvet. All-purpose capes came in combination with coats, capes in pink for instance topping green coats.

ideas running through your mind now are fine, but this is not the right time to put them in operation. Get busy and gather the added data you need. Be as thorough as possible.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Meet the expectations of others where promises are concerned so get busy right away. Also, instead of expecting male to do things for you, do something kind and constructive yourself. Be fair, just.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he, or she, will be a sensitive young person who can easily solve problems provided it is with the cooperation of others. Teach early to listen more to others and to talk less. There is a tendency to be a little forced, but this should be curbed. Giving the right spiritual training early is very important.

length number in sharp red wool, worn over a slinky, low cut black wool dress, the bodice outlined with jewelling.

And the ultimate in capes was in the fur collections with mink or sable, usually cut with banding on the horizontal, forming floor length topplings.

In the collection of Chuck Howard, a designer branching out now to his own manufacturing, the opening number of the show was a wide yellow cape closed with black frog braiding.

Donald Brooks produced the "Inverness" cape in giant plaid, its fingertip length topping a straight coat which came to the knees, and in turn topping wide legged tweed trousers.

Removable Hoods
Jacques Tiffeau of Tiffeau & Busch coupled capes with pants, put removable hoods on the capes and in some cases cut the pants to above the knee lengths, about the same as Bermuda shorts.

Bill Blass, designer for and partner in the Maurice Rentner firm, did big circular-cut capes in giant plaids.

Among those featuring capes for formal wear was Adele Simpson, who showed a floor

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 31, 1968

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when you are all too apt to get in arguments with others, it is essential that you double-check whatever you say or do to make sure you have not made a slip of the pen, or of speech, since one is not apt to coordinate as well as usually either today or tonight. Be gentle.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Although you do not agree with all, you had better look at their side of things if you don't want a severance of connections right now. You are a little out-of-control where personal aims are concerned. Think them over carefully.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to garner more of that data needed if you are to get routine duties working more successfully and intelligently. Follow workers will help more willingly if you do not make definite demands. Use a little diplomacy, as befits humanity.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) While pleasure is on your mind, you are in one of those extravagant moods, as well for a better time. Show real affection to that close tie. You are apt to make sarcastic comments at times that are hardly pleasant.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) This day is fine for getting rid of restrictive situations that have been causing dissent at home. You can begin an up-trend toward greater success. However, do not start wheels in motion as yet.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 23) It isn't only your own driving that is important, you must keep an eye on the other fellow also. Be sure you wear shoes when driving and avoid possible accidents. Don't let your tongue be caustic with either friends or foe.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) Did you stop to think that if you cut down on expenses you automatically increase your income? Then concentrate on that plan that will really be profitable in the days to come. Get the right partners to make it worthwhile, easier.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) Stop being depressive and feeling others are imposing upon you and get busy with important work ahead of you. Relying on others does not help you very much. Avoid that social business until a better time. Be more practical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 21) Investigations today usually lead to nothing but wind alone now. So get busy on whatever will make your personal life more ideal. Don't let that tired, worn-out person be without a friend—show that you are fine one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You had better postpone seeing those friends you have in mind today, since they are not in a very good mood. Know what it is you want to do now. Stop wasting time and energy foolishly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you don't obey laws, both moral and legal, you find your reputation deteriorates very badly. Don't criticize higher powers, but show loyalty instead. If there is some relative you have been very unfair with, try to make it up to him, or her.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Those

It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

A Word About Non-Conformity

It seems that just about every generation in every society has its rebels. The current species is called the hippy. The breed varies but little from nation to nation. The teddy boys of England and the lipstick-wearing longhairs of the Scandinavian countries are the same, fundamentally, as the domestic oddballs of San Francisco, New York and Boston fame.

In bygone days they were known as Bohemians and later as beatniks, but they still conformed to set patterns of non-conformity. They are distinguished by a universal dislike for the establishment; they look down on the organization man, and try to organize against him. Yet they conform more to a set pattern than he does.

For example, the organization man may live in an apartment, town house, hotel room, penthouse, coldwater flat, bungalow, farmhouse, or any one of dozens of other abodes. He may be Catholic, Protestant, Jew, agnostic or atheist, or any one of several less well-known religious sects.

Not so the hippy. His religion is the present fad. He may worship Timothy Leary this week, Mao Tse-tung the next, and Fidel Castro before the month is out. His abode is a kind of commune where he shares the dirt, disease and perhaps the various bodies as well.

The organization man may be a Republican, Democrat, Conservative, or Liberal. Indeed, he may be a combination of all of these assorted issues.

Not so the hippy. His ideological commitments never extend beyond the immediate need of self and commune.

The organization man follows of pursues the dream of his individual goal. The hippy confines his dream to what a pill or a needle or a weed in a roll of paper will provide.

For all their talk of being individualists, the hippies are anything but. They are conformists of the worst kind, segregating themselves physically in hippy ghettos, isolating their ambitions to self-indulgence, and confining their dreams to drugged nightmares. It's quite rare that there is anything to distinguish one pig from all the others in the pen.

'Brute' Trades Sword For Pen

"The Brute" has traded his uniform for a business suit and his sword for a pen, but his purpose in life — serving his country — remains the same.

"The Brute" — he picked up that nickname 34 years ago at Annapolis — is Victor Krulak, recently retired Marine Corps lieutenant general and now vice president of a West Coast newspaper chain (Copley Newspapers).

He said at the time of his retirement that he wasn't quite sure what he was going to do in civilian life, but emphasized that whatever he decided "must involve the opportunity to do something for my country."

With more than three decades of military service and three years under his web belt, he's certainly entitled to take it easy. He doesn't have to work. His family is grown and his retirement pay is sufficient to allow him to sit back and contemplate writing his memoirs, were he so inclined.

But he's not that kind of man.

He's the kind that gets a friend to thump him on the head in the hope that the resulting lumps will raise his height from 5 feet, 4 1/2 inches to the Naval Academy's minimum requirement of 5-feet-6. He's the kind who took a Marine parachute battalion into Japanese-held territory and made the enemy believe a whole division had landed. He's the kind who becomes the Marine Corps' youngest brigadier general at age 43. And he's the kind who becomes a newspaperman at 55 because he can't shake the serving — my country habit.

Actually, newspapering is a logical pursuit for Krulak. Like the Corps, it has its long-standing traditions and its dedication to duty. A city editor's drill-instructor-like bellow will sound like music to Krulak's parade ground-hardened ears. Complaints from the troops (readers) will be nothing new to him.

Welcome to the fourth estate, general.

81,299 'Governments'

How many governments do Americans live under? Most people, thinking of the federal, state and city or village governments would answer three. Others, remembering counties and townships, would say four or five.

The fact is, it takes seven "governments" to administer the affairs of the United States and they add up to more than 80,000 separate units, reports Commerce Clearing House.

In addition to the federal, state county, township and municipal governments, there are school districts and special governing units, such as highway and housing authorities. The grand total is 81,299 and is broken down as follows:

Federal — one; state — 50; county — 3,048; municipal — 18,048; township — 17,105; school district — 21,782; special district — 21,264.

Local governments excluding school districts, increased from 56,508 to 59,466 in the last five years. This was due to almost 3,000 more special districts being formed to meet a wide range of programs, such as soil conservation, water supply, public housing, fire protection, etc.

Nevertheless, increasing population and the growing complexity have actually resulted in an overall decline in the number of governments. Consolidation has trimmed the number of school districts by more than 28,000 in the past 10 years.

Largely because of this, the present 80,000-plus "governments" is well below the 91,237 tallied in 1962 and the 102,392 recorded in 1957.

Watch Who You Hire

In 1968, some 75 million voters will be electing a president and vice president, congressmen, governors, legislators and local officials — thousands all told. The people are hiring all these men and women to run governmental affairs with tax money taken from all of us. It is important therefore that the voter use his very best judgment in weeding out officials who have shown lack of ability in handling public funds and expenditures economically.

Public officials need public support and understanding in working out answers to such problems as war, unemployment, inflation, riots, taxes, strikes, breakdown in law and order, etc. Money alone won't solve these problems. It takes thinking and planning — not just spending. No saying is more appropriate today than the old one, "if we get bad government — we usually deserve it." It's up to the people to watch their public servants — that's what they still are — and they need the help and opinion of their employer.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functioning of government which will not insure anyone.)

QUESTION: What is the difference if any, between voluntary socialism and state socialism?

ANSWER: There is a great deal of difference.

In voluntary socialism, those who wanted it would associate voluntarily with others to live according to the rules of socialism, i.e., ownership of property in common, and distribution of the results of production according to need. It would not be coercively imposed on these people, and any who wished to would be able to withdraw at any time.

State socialism, on the other hand, enforces these rules on everyone, whether they wish to live by these rules or not. It must coerce; otherwise those who did not want to live by socialist rules would refuse to do so, and the production of these people would be lost to the state, which the state could not afford and would not tolerate.

It makes little real difference whether the state actually owns, or only controls the property.

There is very little real difference between state socialism and communism. In fact, the communists like to call themselves socialists — it is the name in Russia: The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. In Nazi Germany, the nominal ownership of property was left to the individual, but the state had absolute control of what was done with it.

But however it is done, and by whatever name it is called, when the state controls what a person may do with his life and property, directly or indirectly, on the local level or the national level, it is still socialism. The American Fabian Socialists prefer not to call themselves socialists. They refer to themselves by such names as The League of Industrial Democracy. That fools the public, but it is still the same thing.

In our own country and in all countries in the world today, the state controls to a large extent what individuals may do with their property — That is, with their lives, their actions, their ideas and their material goods.

When the state controls what a person may do with his material goods, his secondary property, it can do so simply by taxing him and taking part of his property away from him to use as the state sees fit, whether the man likes it or not. It can also regulate the operation of his businesses and the use of his land.

When the state controls a man's primary property, that is, his ideas, thought and actions, there can be no freedom of press, no freedom of speech, no right to assemble, no freedom of religion, no freedom to move from place to place, or from job to job. There are plenty of examples of this in recent and long ago history. It can even control what he wears by controlling the clothes that are manufactured and how they are sold.

The state will attempt to control man's primary property—that is, his ideas and thoughts and actions, in order to get him to agree to state control of his secondary property. It can do this by indoctrinating him in school to believe that he gets all his rights and benefits from the state.

If the state fails to convince people it is in their best interest to turn over the property to the state, then it will more and more attempt to control their primary property to accomplish this goal. It will dictate what can be taught in school, it will require all children to attend state approved schools, and forbid all others. It will restrict or forbid worship in one's religion, and the people will become fully enslaved, as in Nazi Germany, as in Fascist Italy, as in feudal Europe, and as in much of Asia and Africa today.

Fortas Nomination May Be Withdrawn Despite Senate Unpopularity

ROBERT ALLEN

JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — There is a possibility that Justice Abe Fortas' elevation to Chief Justice will be withdrawn.

Whether this happens depends on factors that are still developing.

So far, recall of the intensely controversial appointment appears to be the last thing on President Johnson's mind. To all and sundry, he is testily proclaiming his combative determination to "battle it out to the end."

That may well be the President's ego-aroused intention. But time and events have a way of forcing drastic changes. It is highly significant that recall is being guardedly discussed by Democratic senators who nominally are supporting Fortas' nomination. From their private comments it is very evident that they are doing this with utmost seriousness. It's very apparent that what they would like to see done.

This pronounced backstage hostility in these quarters is extremely important. It graphically reveals the underlying unpopularity of the appointment, and the marked dislike and distrust of Fortas.

He may be a long-time crony of the President, but he has few admirers in the Senate — if any. That's the basic vulnerability of Fortas' nomination, and why its eventual withdrawal is entirely possible. The simple fact is that Fortas has little personal appeal and strength of his own, and time is running against him.

CONGENITAL WHEELER-DEALER — Although the militant bipartisan opposition is considerably outnumbered, three factors are definitely working to its advantage: Lack of the required two-thirds Senate majority to impose cloture and cut off prolonged debate. That's admitted even by Administration leaders. As a consequence, the opponents can block a vote on confirmation for an indefinite period. With 22 Democrats up for re-election, at least half of them facing extremely uncertain outcomes, there will be irresistible pressure to adjourn by early October. The House will be particularly insistent, on that, as all of its members are up for election and many face tough fights. The President could recall Congress after the November balloting. But that would not ensure that the opposition would be in a more compliant mood to allow a vote on the Fortas-Thornberry appointments.

Strongly adverse reaction throughout the Senate to Fortas' admissions that he continued to advise Johnson while on the Supreme Court, and that he had phoned a wealthy former client and sharply admonished him for assailing White House policies. These disclosures made a distinctly sour impression even among those supporting Fortas.

Strong resentment even among senators who for various reasons are backing the President's two appointments, that in his last months in office he named two cronies to these exalted judicial seats. Throughout the Senate, there is underlying sentiment that these selections were unseemly and unworthy of a President who is notoriously so sensitive about his role in history.

This widespread indignation was pointedly expressed by a leading Democratic liberal, as follows:

"If I have to, I'll vote for Fortas and Thornberry, but I'll hold my nose when I do so. The President's appointment of these two cronies is a plain outrage. Of all the notable jurists and bar in our country of more than 200 million people, all the President could do in his final days in office was to nominate two close henchmen."

"It was an act of crass and crude ward politics; patronage of the shabbiest kind. If just goes to show that Johnson can never really rise above his primary wheeler-dealer instincts and habits. What is particularly astounding about all this is that he is now so sensitively conscious of his place in history. He's going to great lengths to make sure it's all written out the way he wants it."

"Yet when it comes to appointing the Chief Justice and an associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, he has no qualms about stooping to the ward-politics level and naming two cronies. It beats me. I guess if all gets down to one thing: He just can't rise above himself and really be a statesman. He's a hack politician at heart and cannot get over it."

Editor:

I have a daughter and son-in-law living in Pampa. They are struggling to make a living for themselves and four small children on a route salesman's salary. Last winter my daughter became ill at church and was admitted to Highland General Hospital. It took three weeks in the Pampa hospital and one week in St. Anthony's in Amarillo and two doctors to find the trouble.

They had been unable to carry insurance so those bills are still unpaid. Last Wednesday morning I received word that my daughter was taking her husband to work when the tie rod broke on the car and she was in Highland General again. One lung collapsed and a neck bone broke and she received bad cuts on her face. These young folks are good citizens and I can't help believing that if people in Pampa knew their trouble, they might want to help.

Would you put this need before the people and at least let them know?

Sincerely,
A Mother

and went to Communist China where he carried on identical activities against the U.S., aiming most of his invectives against our troops in Vietnam, while continuing to publish "The Crusader" and mailing it to the U.S.

"His history of association with pro-Communist groups is both clear and lengthy, as outlined in the report of the House Committee on Un-American Activities on May 6, 1963. From all reports I have read, the actions and deeds of Williams have undoubtedly indicated that he has, in effect, renounced his American citizenship. He has obviously sworn allegiance to at least two foreign countries, and has called for the violent overthrow of the government of the United States."

Also noted by Rogers is that in 1955, "Williams expressed his desire to renounce his citizenship in a letter to the President in Washington, D.C." In wanting to come back, Rogers warns Clark, Williams has a very definite purpose.

"I have heard," Rogers wrote the Attorney General, "that Williams intends to try to live up to his promise to return home this year before election time in order to lead violent disruptions throughout the country and may do so by entering from Canada."

"What I would like to know," continued Rogers, bluntly, "is what measures you have taken to prevent this expatriate from returning to the U.S. and implementing his plans to terror and destruction."

Rogers' letter was written several weeks ago, but he has yet to hear from Clark.

Williams was last reported in Tanzania. He issued a statement that he had sought permission to return to the U.S.

Restless Student: Here's What Makes Him Tick

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA) — University professors have now begun to do research on student unrest.

One such unpublicized study by S. L. Halleck, M.D., professor of psychiatry at Wisconsin University, deserves more than passing interest. It seems to suggest a little knowledge is a dangerous thing.

Halleck divides "the determined minority of restless students" into two groups:

The activists—those who "reject the political and economic status quo and are making vigorous attempts to change the structure of our society."

The alienated—those who "reject the values of their society as well as the values of their own past and are developing a style of life which is contradictory to the Western ethics of hard work, self-denial, success and responsibility."

These students "sometimes participate in efforts to change the society but for the most part they are withdrawn and passive."

"Alienated students and, to a lesser extent, activist students find it difficult to sustain goal-directed activity. Their capacity to organize for any kind of action is limited, even their political efforts seem highly organized."

"Alienated students live at the edge of despair. Although they seem at times to be enjoying life, there is always a sense of foreboding about them. Often they become depressed and suicidal. Activist students are more emotionally stable but are also prone to deep feelings of hopelessness and self-pity.

"...most alienated students tend to seek medical or psychiatric excuses from their obligations at the first sign of stress. They also have a discouraging tendency to break laws and to insist that their own personal needs and problems are such that they should not be held accountable for these actions. When students are occasionally arrested for smoking marijuana, they almost always avoid punishment by becoming informants and thus avoid legal accountability."

"Today's restless youths," says Halleck, "have grown up in a world which has not been dominated by religious faith but which has sought many of the answers to the questions of life in science. In their adherence to scientific rationality they cannot accept guilt. Many are affluent and have grown up in suburban communities where, except for what they see on television, they are shielded from the tragedies of life. They are convinced that man should be joyful and guiltless..."

"When a person raised with such beliefs encounters the harsh realities of life, he has little to fall back upon. He may project his anger upon those whom he feels are frustrating him. In his conviction that there are rational solutions to any problem, he cannot help but be intolerant of the irrationalities of those who prevent progress. If he perceives his own aggressive tendencies, he's frightened by them and attempts to deny them. In his belief that life and especially the sexual aspects of life can be enjoyed without guilt, he becomes highly disturbed when he discovers that a certain amount of guilt is inevitable. He even becomes plagued with additional guilt over the realization that he is guilty. Too often such a student finds it necessary to construct 'devil' theories of history in which the existence of evil is attributed to only a few who block the progress of the man."

Your Dental Health

Dentures, Unfortunately, Are Not Forever Things
DEAR DR. LAWRENCE:

Could you tell me why my upper denture keeps breaking?

ANSWER: Dentures break for lots of reasons, and strangely enough bouncing them on the tile bathroom floor is not the most common.

I mention this first only because, except for flushing a denture down the toilet, the most traumatic experience for denture wearers is that sickening, heart-stopping moment when the denture slips out of soapy hands and bounces endlessly and hopelessly around the floor, especially if you don't have a spare in your bureau drawer.

Most fractures occur in the mouth and are due to poorly fitting dentures and unbalanced "bite." They may have been perfect when first made, but dentures are not forever things. They wear and are affected in other ways by ravages of use and age. This, combined with shrinkage of underlying bone and gums, produces excessive torque on the denture base which finally gives way.

Simple repair is not enough. To prevent recurrence, dentures require bite adjustment and sometimes rebasing.

Another major factor affecting frequency of denture fractures is how the teeth are worn. A passive, pleasant pusillanimous Mr. Milquetoast rarely if ever breaks his false teeth. But Mr. Big, the tough guy who chews nails and spits rust has a high fracture rate.

The best thing for Mr. In-between to do is to see his dentist regularly and frequently for examination and denture adjustment.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE:

Several years ago the nerves were removed from my two front teeth. Now they are discolored, almost black, and my dentist wants to pull them and make a partial plate. Another dentist I consulted said he'd cap them. What shall I do?

ANSWER: Cap them. And if your teeth must come out, replace them if possible with a fixed bridge. Avoid any type of removable partial plate except as a measure of last resort. Ideally in these cases, the treatment of choice is capping, followed in order of preference by a fixed bridge, and last and least acceptable, a partial denture.

With Some Reservations

"It isn't whether you win or lose — but how much to play the game." Everybody goes on strike. When football players go on strike we have gone about as far as we can in the silly society. Unless of course, the coaches walk out next.

If the strike hadn't been settled before the season started I can imagine some of the signs the players would be carrying around the stadiums —

"Bronco Hipski is Unfair to Hangnails," "Swivel-Hips Heiligman uses 2 inch cleats," "$22,500 for 6 months work Ain't Enough," "I'm 25 years old and Need A Pension."

Not only do the players get a average of 22 thousand gets, they usually work for six months at some other job or own restaurants or cafes and bars that make money all year long.

And don't forget to add revenue for smiling and showing their teeth and gums for T.V. cereals or toothpaste.

I tell you, these poor fellows really do need a pension to keep them in their old age after 26. With all this loot coming in, if they can't save enough or invest enough to keep them until they are at least 40, then they must have more muscles between their ears than they have on their legs.

I think they just look d around and saw everybody else was striking so they done it too in order to keep in step with the times.

Culver Hurls No-Hit Tilt As Reds Defeat Phils, 6-1

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer
George Culver, a 25-year old Cincinnati Reds pitcher who also dabbles in golf and sports writing, started the biggest day of his career in frustration and ended it in tears.

The frustration was because of an ailing toe in his right foot and the tears were for pitching the third no-hitter of the major league season.
The 6-foot, 2-inch, 185-pound native of Salinas, Calif., turned in the classic Monday night when he beat the Philadelphia Phillies 6-1. Tommy Phoebus of the Baltimore Orioles pitched the first no-hitter of the season against the Boston Red Sox on April 27 and Jim Hunter of the Oakland Athletics pitched the American League's first perfect game in 46 years against the Minnesota Twins on May 8.

Culver, who wept without shame while reporters interviewed him following the classic, conceded that it had been "quite a day." He said he had been sick all day and received a shot of novocaine before the game to ease the pain in his toe.

Great Experience
"I was in another world," said Culver, who was acquired from the Cleveland Indians last Nov. 21. "I'm crying because I know that winning is good but winning a no-hitter is really great."

Culver, whose slider "bores in" on hitters like a left hander's curve ball, walked five batters and struck out four. The Phillies scored their run in the second inning when Richie Allen reached second base on errors by Tony Prez and Woody Woodward on the same play, went to third on an infield out and scored on Cookie Rojas' sacrifice fly.

The Reds, who won the first game of the two-night doubleheader 7-6 on Pete Rose's triple and Vada Pinson's sacrifice fly in the ninth inning, backed Culver with three run rallies in the third and fourth innings. Alex Johnson, Don Pavletich and Pat Corrales drove in two runs each to lead the Reds' 12-hit attack.

The St. Louis Cardinals defeated the New York Mets 5-1, the Houston Astros beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-0, the Pittsburgh Pirates shaded the Atlanta Braves 3-2 and the San Francisco Giants topped the Chicago Cubs 4-1 in other National League games.

Yankees Beat Detroit
In the American League, the New York Yankees downed the Detroit Tigers 7-2, the Boston Red Sox swept the Baltimore Orioles 3-2 and 8-3, the Washington Senators topped the Cleveland Indians 4-2, the California Angels nipped the Minnesota Twins 2-1 and the Chicago White Sox topped the Oakland Athletics 7-2 in 13 innings.

Lou Brock, who spoiled Nolan Ryan's no-hit bid in the sixth inning with the first of his two doubles, drove in two runs and scored another as Ray Washburn pitched a seven-hitter for his 10th win for the Cardinals. Nolyan Ryan, the Met's early season stakeout sensation, suffered his ninth loss against six victories.

Mike Cuellar pitched a four-hitter and knocked in the only run he needed in the second inning in scoring his second shutout and sixth win for the Astros. Cuellar, who was bothered by an arm ailment early in the season, struck out four and walked one.

Roberto Clemente singled home Maury Wills with the decisive run in the sixth inning to help the Pirates' Bob Veale notch his ninth win. Bill Mazerowski homered for the Pirates while Hank Aaron had three hits and Joe Torre two for the Braves. Ron Reed was tagged with his sixth loss.

Gaylord Perry's two-hitter earned the San Francisco pitcher his ninth victory. Singles by Ty Cline, Willie McCovey, Willie Mays and Jay Alou sparked a tie-breaking three-run rally in the sixth inning that dealt rookie Gary Ross his first loss.

Off The Top By WES DUMONT Pampa News Sports Editor

Will Pampa forfeit the Berger-Pampa high school football game at Harvester field here this year if they do not build a new fence to enclose the football playing field? The answer, according to Pampa High School officials, is no.

Despite rumors that Berger (and other schools) may file a protest in case the fence is not built, new superintendent, Dr. James Malone, said Monday that the enclosed field will not be built because of the long range plans of the high school. These include the building of a fence around the entire area of the football field, the moving of lights and a new track field. The building of a link fence around only the football field was the recommendation after an incident at the conclusion of the Pampa-Borger football game two years ago on Nov. 11, 1966.

Four officials were escorted to their dressing rooms by two uniformed policemen after the game. Between the football gate and the dressing rooms, one official lost his cap. In bending over to pick up his cap, he was struck on the right ear by an adult Pampa fan.

The official was James Kile. Pampa's athletic director and head coach and vice principal met with the four officials in their dressing room and apologized for the incident. The incident was reported to the Pampa police who searched and found the culprit, who was fined.

Subsequently, a Pampa school official wrote a letter to the athletic board recommending a taller chain link fence be installed. The state athletic board assessed no penalty for the incident because of three factors: 1. Adequate police protection. 2. Guilty person fined.

3. No evidence of misconduct by student body.

It was subsequently recommended by the athletic board that a taller, chain link be installed and that more exits be provided for policemen.

When a new athletic director, Swede Lee, and a new school superintendent, Dr. James Malone, were hired, they decided that a taller chain link fence would be costly because they would have to remove it, if a long range development of a track field were later instigated.

Dr. Malone contacted the state office and it seems agreement was reached that Pampa would have to add reinforcements (or policemen) this year but that it need not build a new fence.

Pasarell Bids For Eastern Tennis Title

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (UPI)—Charlie Pasarell has an early bid going for the Eastern Grass Court tennis singles title. Beaten in last year's semi-final, Pasarell had to produce some booming baseline smashes to survive Monday's opening action with a 15-13, 6-2 decision over Pete Fishbach of Great Neck, N.Y.

Pasarell of Santurce, Puerto Rico, and a top player in the United States, got his first service break in the 28th game cross court service return. Clark Garber of New York, the No. 1 seed in the eastern championships and semi-final winner over Pasarell last year, easily moved into the second round by whipping Tony Bull of Albuquerque, N.M., 6-1, 6-3.

Alvin Sharp Wins First

Pampa motorcyclists came back from Perryton Sunday with some wits tucked under their belts.
Alvin Sharp won first in the open division in the races and second in the 250 cc division while his brother, Jimmy, came in second in the 175 cc division. Jimmy Pool came in third in the 100 cc division and Alvin Sharp won the Wheelley Contest.

Wayne Caswell, riding a Buddy Epperson cycle, won a special consolation race open to all size motors. The Epperson cycle is a 100 cc vehicle which was damaged in the 100 cc division race.

Some Pampa cyclists plan to take part in races at Duke, Okla., next week with other meets coming up in the near future.
At Amarillo over the weekend, Amarillo cyclist Don Parker won the Tri-State Championships at the Speed Bowl when he won both races of the day on two different motorcycles. One race was for 250 cc motors up and the other went down from there.

Efforts are still being made locally to arrange for a motorcycle race track with plenty of enthusiasm for motorcycling being shown.

Several Pampa individuals are interested in cycle races and two organizations, the Pampa Two-Wheelers and the Pampa Boat & Ski Club, have motorcycling enthusiasts among their membership.

Weeping Culver Surprises Mates

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—George Culver's Cincinnati Red teammates weren't surprised that he pitched a no-hitter Monday night against the Philadelphia Phillies.

What surprised them was the reaction of the 25-year-old righthander who is known in the dugout as "a flake."

Culver sat down at his dressing cubicle after his 6-1 victory over the Phillies and cried. It was the last emotion expected of a guy who emoted two days of "time" in a Venezuelan jail, as a "Mean" golfer and once aspired to be a sports writer.

"It's always good to win," said Culver. "But winning a no-hitter is just great."

Culver revealed that he had been sick all day because of pain in a toe on his right foot and had a shot of novocaine to ease the pain before the game. "I decided I needed the shot," he said, "when I tried to put on my shoe before the game and couldn't."

Culver, acquired by the Reds in a trade with the Cleveland Indians last November, pitched in 53 games for the Indians last season but 52 of them were relief appearances.

The 6-foot, 2-inch, 185-pound righthander has given up his ambition to be a sports writer but says he may still write a book. He's known as a good "flaky sort of a guy" and never has explained why he was arrested while playing winter ball in the Venezuelan League.

"Let's just say I was in the wrong place at the right time," he quipped. "It's easy to get arrested in that country."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—"In three short weeks the atmosphere has changed from one of optimism to one of fear and Wall Streeters are wondering if we are due for a downward ride on the roller coaster," says Reynolds & Co.

Sifting through possible causes of the downturn, such as the state of the economy, money and interest, international finance, and politics, Reynolds decided that "politics is the name of the game right now."

With Presidential candidates differing so widely, "it would not be surprising to see this market uncertainty last until after the nominating conventions," Reynolds said. As for the economic outlook, "it is our feeling that the consumer will come through again and prevent a slowdown from becoming a recession," the firm said.

Shearson, Hammill & Co. believes the consumer may shift the impact of the income tax increase to his rate of savings and continue spending. And, it says, "if the evidence of an economic slowdown becomes clearer, the Federal Reserve is in an excellent position to stimulate the economy by increasing the supply of credit."

Harris, Upham & Co. believes the tax hike and the $6 billion cut in Federal spending "should calm our roaring boom." Earnings estimates for 1968 will be lowered and the real value of goods and services should now level off for a year or so. While this is not fuel for a bull market, the firm said, investors prefer such restrictive measures to the threat of disastrous inflation, tighter money, and further deterioration of the balance of payments position.

Blair & Co., Inc. believes that with huge amounts of stock still overhanging the market, lower prices overall are likely to prevail in the period ahead, particularly in the high risk and/or overvalued equities where valuations still remain excessive.

Threat Of Inflation Subsiding

EDITOR'S NOTE: Arthur M. Okun, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, discussed the nation's economic outlook during an interview with UPI's correspondent James L. Srodes. The following dispatch describes Okun's major conclusions.

By JAMES L. SRODES
WASHINGTON (UPI)—Prices will rise less rapidly during the second half of this year. Spending will decrease, along with the threat of inflation.

Peace in Vietnam would dictate a complete reassessment of the nation's fiscal commitments.

Those are the views of Arthur M. Okun, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, now that the 10 per cent income tax surcharge is in effect and federal spending is being reduced.

With 250 major labor contracts due for negotiation this year, and with strikes threatened in some major industries, the 39-year-old former Yale professor is chiefly concerned just now with possible new inflationary pressures from wage and price increases.

As for the immediate outlook, Okun had this to say: "Probably the most obvious indicator to the ordinary citizen will be that prices will slow their rate of increase during the second half of this year. I don't claim this is due to the tax increase, however. I think slowdowns in steel stockpiling and auto production will work with other factors to give us a slower second half."

"But it may well be that the slowdown in the economy's growth rate will become evident sooner than the benefits—such as lower price increases or a higher certainly in the second half than the first, but only by a few tenths of a percentage point."

Q—What about the housing industry?
A—I think housing has really been on its way down for the last couple of months. It has been surprising to me that it has held up as well as it has.

Q—How long should we keep the surcharge?
A—Any judgment I make is not really a judgment made as an economist and certainly not as the President's economic adviser. I surely would not like to see a big growth in federal expenditures without the tax revenues to pay for it. Nor Q—How soon will we see anything? You once compared the U.S. economy to a fat lady munching chocolates. When does she start to get her figure back?

A—I think we have her on a diet right now and there is no question that by the time you see third quarter figures for our gross national product, it will be evident that there has been a dramatic change of pace from the first two quarters of the year.

You will see the general tone and buoyancy in markets affected. I say the main factor behind the inflation of the past year has not been acute shortages in any area but rather a buoyant economic environment where nobody was much concerned about pricing himself out of the market. It was just too easy to raise prices and let the consumer feel the burden.

This will change and some of the change will not be welcome or desirable but it is the price we pay for taking some of the steam out of the economy.

Q—Will one of the unwelcome changes be higher unemployment levels?
A—I don't think so. I think it will stay in the 3.5 per cent to 4 per cent range during the year, would I like to see the tax left on without having some expenditure to provide some stimulative offset.

I think the job of cooling off the economy will certainly be done by early 1969 and I don't think we need a sedative to keep the economy sluggish beyond that date.

Rockefeller Needs Northeastern Power Base To Head Off Nixon

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The backbone of Nelson A. Rockefeller's strength among delegates to the Republican presidential nominating convention is the Northeast. The situation in New York and New England—which are expected to give him the lion's share of their convention votes—is summed up in the following dispatch, one of six on the GOP race from various regions of the country.)

By KIRTLAND I. KING
ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Nelson A. Rockefeller must hold his northeastern power base in early balloting at the Republican National Convention to stop Richard M. Nixon.

Rockefeller heads for the Miami Beach meeting a definite underdog in nationwide surveys. But he holds a better than five-to-one margin among delegates from New York and New England.

He feels he can win on the fourth or fifth ballot. Eight years ago he made a half-hearted attempt to overtake the former vice president but quit. At the 1960 convention, Rockefeller seconded Nixon's nomination. This time, he said, he will reverse the act.

The New York governor has never lost an election and is now serving his third term in Albany. He predicts he can win "I know they do want a winner party's national ticket."

Calls Himself "Winner"
"I can win in November if the Republican party wants a winner and the delegates nominate me," Rockefeller said. "I know they do want a winner and that's why I'll be nominated. It will help local candidates win, too."

The pre-convention delegate strength in New England as shown in an UPI breakdown is: New York, 88 for Rockefeller and 4 for Nixon; Connecticut, 13 leaning to Rockefeller and 3 to Nixon; Maine, 6 for Rockefeller.

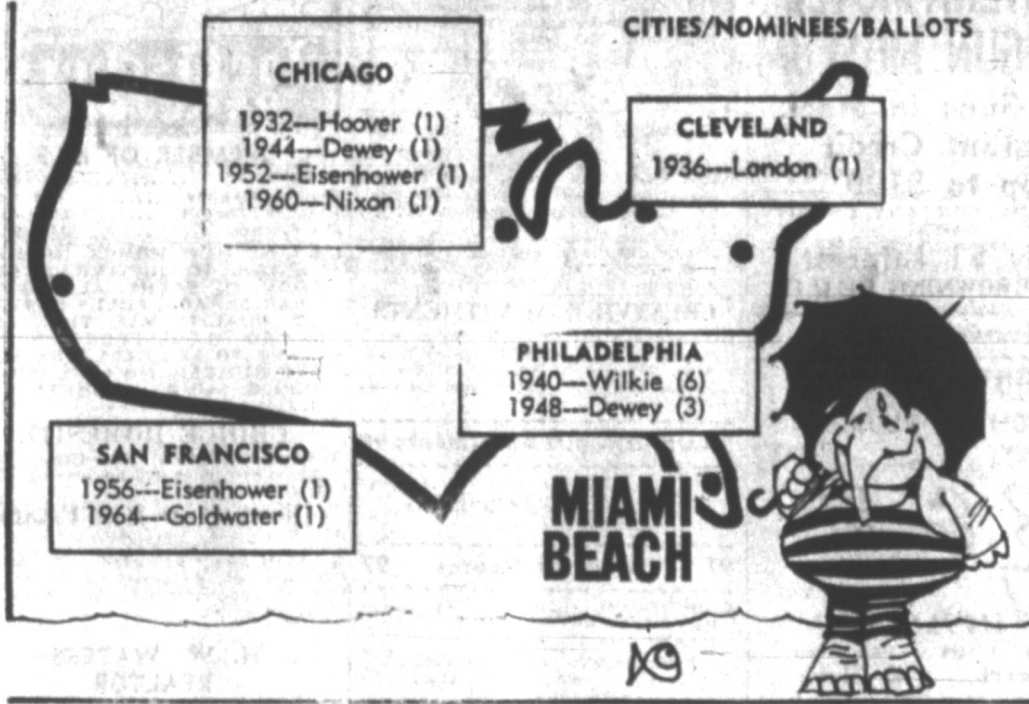

Rockefeller won the Massachusetts 34-man delegation in a primary election the same day he announced his active candidacy. He beat out favorite-son candidate Volpe. Volpe, however, insists the delegation is committed to Rockefeller for only one ballot and that he will be able to swing a good number of them to Nixon.

Brooke and Volpe have been at odds for some time and a bitter fight may develop in Miami Beach, the only New Hampshire, the only other New England state committed to a presidential candidate, has pledged its eight votes to Nixon. He won the primary.

Tiny Rhode Island, is sending a 14-man delegation to Miami favoring Rockefeller. In Connecticut, 13 of the states 16 votes will go to Rockefeller even though there is said to be Nixon support in powerful quarters.

Vermont's 12 votes are split but Nixon appears to have the biggest share. Under the system students allowed to take the courses will be given only a "Pass" or "Fail" mark in the course, rather than a numerical or letter grade.

GOP CONVENTIONS

Miami Beach is a newcomer among national convention cities. Traditionally, both major parties have favored major northern cities, with centrally located Chicago the stand-out favorite. Map locates sites of the last nine Republican conventions, the presidential nominees selected and, in parenthesis, the ballot on which they were nominated.

It Says Here Topless Shows Can Strengthen Marriage

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI)—Take your wife to a topless show, men. It will help strengthen your marriage.

That's the view of two clinical psychologists who testified at a special hearing recently that a sight of bare-breasted dancing girls is beneficial for the welfare and morals of both men and women.

The experts' opinions were bolstered by signed statements of 9,000 visitors of Ore House, a beer parlor with topless dancers and waitresses. The signatures were gathered in anticipation of a misconduct hearing before the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. Customers said the entertainment "was not contrary to public welfare and morals."

The two psychologists went further. Said Dr. John Marquis of the Palo Alto, Calif., Veterans Hospital: "Seminude females performing suggestive dances can be good for desensitizing anxieties people have about nudity and sex. Exposures to stimuli in a relaxed, unthreatening atmosphere can make a person feel more comfortable about his anxieties."

Topless girls, said Marquis, "serves to direct a person's interests to good healthy heterosexual relations—away from perversions and hangups."

Dr. David Newman, clinical psychologist, said the topless shows help "exhaust men's curiosity about women's breasts, which American males seem to have a preoccupation about."

University To Institute Pass-Fail System For Students This Fall

By PHIL GARON
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—The University of Texas will institute a pass-fail system this fall, allowing some students to concentrate on learning and quit worrying about grades, a university dean said today.

Dean John R. Silber of the U-Austin college of arts and sciences said the school's new pass-fail system "will enable the student to branch out fairly widely from his particular field of scholarship and take courses of a diverse nature without endangering his grade average or his acceptance at a good graduate school."

Under the system students allowed to take the courses will be given only a "Pass" or "Fail" mark in the course, rather than a numerical or letter grade.

Seeks Good Grade
Today's college student is too often guilty of seeking a good grade instead of knowledge, Silber said.

"It's difficult for a student to remember that his grade should reflect his involvement with and understanding of his course—but that it should not be the sole purpose of the course," he said.

Students will often skip a worthwhile course with a reputation for being strictly graded, and instead flock to easier courses to keep their averages up, Silber said.

"It is highly desirable for a pre-medical student to take a course in music, literature or creative writing," the dean said, "just as it is valuable for the humanities student to take courses in the sciences and mathematics."

The pass-fail program at UT-Austin will allow students after the freshman year to take up to 16 semester-hours of elective courses in which they receive only a "Pass" or "Fail" on their record. In "rare cases," Silber said, a student may take a course in his major under this system.

The limit is two pass-fail courses per semester. The cumulative grade-point average will then be computed only from those courses graded in the numerical manner, the dean said.

FOREIGN NEWS COMMENTARY — Latin American Economy

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—Efforts to achieve economic integration in Latin America have run into the stumbling block of economic nationalism.

Where once there were ambitious plans to march forward steadily towards a common market on the European model, now there is pessimism and skepticism about the way ahead.

Most in trouble is the Latin American Free Trade Association (LAFTA), whose members are in extraordinary conference in Montevideo, Uruguay, trying to break a deadlock that has put it more than six months behind a programmed schedule.

Diplomats are skeptical that it can be done. Members of LAFTA are pre-medical student to take a course in music, literature or creative writing," the dean said, "just as it is valuable for the humanities student to take courses in the sciences and mathematics."

The first 25 per cent was achieved in 1964. But more than two months of negotiations failed to produce agreement on the products to be included in the second 25 per cent which was supposed to be achieved by the end of 1967. Members were forced to call the present extraordinary meeting.

Its prospects are no brighter. Last December the negotiations broke down over wheat and oil. Freeing those two commodities would achieve the 50 per cent goal. But Mexico, with support from Argentina and Brazil, objected to oil, and Bolivia objected to wheat. The object, of course, was to protect national producers.

The sub-regional Andes group of Bolivia, Colombia, Chile, Ecuador, Peru and Venezuela was formed to push forward faster than could be done in the larger LAFTA group. But private interests in Venezuela and Ecuador are dragging their feet out of fear their interests will be harmed.
