With Tears In His Eyes John Garner Denies Charges Reported Whispered About Him In N. Y., New England

NEW YORK—With tears in his eyes, Speaker Garner sought Monday to put an end to what had been called a "whispering campaign" against him.

At a luncheon in democratic national headquarters, he attacked religious bigotry, denied he had not supported "Al" Smith in 1928, and said on prohibition he was an "outright repealist."

His voice quavered frequently as he answered three pointed questions that were fired at him in rapid order by leaders of three New England states which supported Smith in the Chicago convention.

There is a whispering statement that you did not support Smith in 1928," said Joseph A. Maynard, state chairman in Massachusetts, as he paused in his talk to the state leaders.

"I began voting very early, when I was 19," the Texan replied, with a smile playing on his ruddy face "and I want to say that I never split a democratic ticket."

"I said in 1928 in two speeches I delivered in behalf of Smith that I believed he was one of the greatest leaders America had ever produced."

The speaker paused, then added: "And I still believe that." The New Englanders applauded and Garner continued: "I think Smith would have made one of the greatest presidents this country has ever known."

It is not a fact that the present leaders of our party in the south, like yourself, repudiated religious bigotry," asked Chairman J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island.

"That is true," Speaker Garner replied quickly. He paused, then added: "And I would apologize for the great state of Texas. If a man had told me Texas would have gone republican in 1928, I would have thought him crazy."

"I hear that I am considered a handicap to the ticket in the east. Of course I regret that. It reflects of the religious bigotry we had in 1928."

The speaker a Methodist by faith, hesitated a moment, then continued with quivering voice: "I have suffered from that bigotry more than you know, both politically and personally—communications—threats—suffered more than you gentlemen realize—attacks you people in New England know nothing about. That will answer your question."

Tears Well Into Eyes. There were tears welling in his eyes as he finished. A wave of applause swept around the luncheon table, at which more than 50 kingspins of the democratic campaign were gathered.

"How do you stand on the question of the 18th amendment?" asked Chairman David Wilson of Connecticut.

"That is a great subject to me," came the quick reply.

Again his face was wreathed in the same smile he had worn earlier in the day as he stepped from a train that had borne him from Hyde Park and Albany, where he more photographs and more interviews. Late in the day he was asked what his evening program would be and replied: "Well, I guess I've got a lot more jabbering to do with these folks, but I go to bed early, you know, so they'll have to talk fast."

"Oh Yeah? BUT SCIENCE SAYS O.G. IS THE BEST CIGARETTE"

THE VERDICT OF SCIENCE This is to certify that in 75 repeated tests made of four leading cigarette brands... measuring the heat content of each cigarette by the Calorimeter method... it was shown that OLD GOLD is from 112 to 156 B. T. U's. COOLER than the other brands.

IT'S PRETTY hard to duck away from those tireless cigarette ads. Wherever you go, they're apt to float right up alongside of you and whisper their coaxing claim: "Mine's Milder!" "Fresher!" "Kinder!"

But how about listening to some scientific facts, instead of adjectives? In 75 laboratory tests* of 4 leading cigarettes checked by scientists of two universities, OLD GOLD was found to be the coolest cigarette, and therefore the most delightful in every way. OLD GOLD won these tests because it is made of the PUREST and choicest tobacco... free of all heat-generating flavorings. That's the "why" of "not a cough in a carload." ## CHAPTER XIX

Mrs. Faxon joined the young people at luncheon. Elizabeth Barry's sister, had telephoned, she said. Elizabeth, marrying early, was the mother of four frolicsome children and kept in daily touch with the Townsend ménage yet Mrs. Faxon mentioned her call as if it were an occasion.

"Want anything?" Barry inquired. "Just to say hello. And to suggest that you might like to drive over for dinner this evening."

"That reminds me," Barry exclaimed. "I thought it might be a good stunt to have dinner at the camp. There are steaks around somewhere, aren't there? Jean could make—"

"Splendid!" Mrs. Faxon said delightedly and took the reins of preparation out of Barry's hands. "I'll send Jimmy down to get the place warm and dusted."

Turning to Mona she went on: "You should feel duty toward Barry showing the camp only to his closest friends. I've known of people to hint for weeks—"

"It's my private thinking place," Barry admitted.

After luncheon the four piled into Barry's roadster and made a tour of the countryside. They stopped for a tea at a small inn and when they returned to the motor Barry drove with Mona beside him, Steve and Lottie, in the rumble seat, were apparently deep in some gay secret. Steve's chuckles, punctuated by Lottie's high-pitched chatter, reached Mona in the front seat.

The car ran smoothly along the highway, dipping with the hills, rising again amid rows of oaks and firs. It glided past the carefully cultivated meadows that made up the well-groomed estates of the rich.

Here all was luxury—no huddled shacks of tiny houses, no glaring billboards, no small shops.

As the road twisted and turned the sinking sun reddened, danced ahead of them, danced to the left, then the right again and finally disappeared, as if to terminate the pleasant game of hide and seek they had been playing. Almost immediately they were back at Twilight, returning by a new road, dusk settling in the trees.

The girls ran upstairs, laughing and chatting.

"Hey you!" Barry called.

"That's for me," explained Lottie. "Didn't I tell you he always calls me that?" She turned and said, "What?"

"Hey you! Dinner is broiling. Come on!"

Mrs. Faxon had gone ahead with Jimmy and Jean, and the huge basket of supplies. Mona and Lottie, Steve and Barry, set out to follow over the gently freezing road, then struck out crosslots for the camp.

On the veranda the appetizing odor of broiling steak greeted them. Jimmy, kneeling before the flame, was guarding the piece de resistance tenderly but relinquished his place immediately to Barry. Jean, smiling from the kitchen door, was mixing salad dressing. The camp now was warm, cozy and delightful.

Mrs. Faxon, busying herself at the table, called them at last to sit down.

When they had finished eating they turned on the radio and danced. Mona puzzled at first decided that Barry was avoiding her. When he addressed her he seemed to keep the conversation on a general note. The servants departed carrying the emptied hampers and Mrs. Faxon, from her cretonne fire-seat, beamed on the little party approvingly.

"She likes us," Mona thought. And she was right. Mrs. Faxon thought Mona exquisite and her friend, Lottie, refreshing and amusing.

"Barry should have more good times like this," Mrs. Faxon was telling herself. Loyal to each, the dissension between Barry and his uncle worried her. She did her best to help each of them arrive at a more complete understanding.

At last all of them left the little camp wrapped in darkness and silence. Mona thought, as she took Steve's arm, that the whole day had been over too soon. Lottie walked with Barry and he told her of the southern cross, of the tropics, and the lunar rainbow he had seen once in Post-of-Spain.

"Everyone was excited about the lunar rainbow, I remember. Steve and I had one to bed. The night was lighted by the whitest moonlight I had ever seen and after a while it began raining. I awoke, heard a noise in the hotel court, got out of bed and saw two natives knifing each other down below. Beyond, above the houses across the street, was the rainbow—a faint arc of color. When I mentioned it next morning everybody was much more excited about that than they had been about the murder. Killings were frequent enough but lunar rainbows were rare!"

As Mona drew on her hat before the mirror she thought with a pang that in a scant quarter of an hour she would leave this delightful place. How easy her entrance had been and how simple her departure: Another 15 minutes and then an exit through the door. She might never enter Barry's life again!

She left Lottie busy before the dressing table and descended the stairs just in time to hear Jimmy call Barry to the phone.

"Miss Dowser calling," he said.

Present Barry reappeared and caught Mona's hand in his own. There was no one else in the hall and he drew her into the drawing room.

"Does it make any difference to you that Steve is my friend?" he asked. "I mean, do you like me any better because of that?"

His eyes, looking into hers, were troubled. "You didn't like me at first at the office, did you?" Barry went on.

Mona drew her hand away gently. "Of course I like you," she said promptly though a trifle shakily. She had wanted to see Barry alone. The moment was here now and she hardly knew how to meet it.

"I want to ask you something, Mona," Barry went on. "I've asked Steve. I've asked your loquacious little friend, too, and now I'm going to ask you. They've both encouraged me a little in the hope—"

"Hope?" the girl's face was querulous.

"The hope that I'm not intruding. That the situation between you and old Steve isn't serious. If I hang around a bit—dine with you—take you out once in a while—am I butting in? Hang it—are you in love with Steve?"

Mona raised her eyes and looked at him squarely.

"Steve has never asked me that," Barry, she said.

"You see," he went on earnestly, "if Steve were engaged to a girl and I were to take her out to dinner he would cheerfully postpone the wedding ceremony and persuade her to go with me! That's Steve!"

"He thinks a great deal of you, I know."

"And he thinks a great deal of you, Mona, too!" Once more Barry grasped her hand eagerly.

"Wouldn't the girl's feeling in the affair matter to Steve at all, Barry?"

Mona raised her eyes and looked at him squarely.

"Steve has never asked me that," Barry, she said.

"You see," he went on earnestly, "if Steve were engaged to a girl and I were to take her out to dinner he would cheerfully postpone the wedding ceremony and persuade her to go with me! That's Steve!"

They were interrupted by a shout from without. Bright headlights threw the hedges into artificial day, light as the car smashed into the darkened space before the entrance. Steve, bareheaded, jumped from the driver's seat and raced to the door.

"All set?" he called. "You look ravishing, Lottie. Make it snappy, will you? Where's Mona?"

"You are the most beautiful thing in the world," Barry was saying softly when Steve appeared in the door.

Barry turned. "Well we don't seem to be getting anywhere," he said smiling. "Steve, as soon as I get this girl halfway agreeable to a dinner date you and Lottie have to break in and ruin everything!"

"You can date her up any time," Steve said. "I've got to be in town by 10:30. Come on—everybody ready?"

"All right then," Barry was saying in a low tone. "Have dinner with me Monday? Tuesday then? Confound it, Wednesday?"

"Call me Wednesday morning," Mona agreed and the three of them were off.

Monday and Tuesday passed for Mona in a glow of happiness. She was to see Barry Wednesday.

But Barry did not call on Wednesday. The telephone rang frequently. Five calls came for her but none was from Barry. At four o'clock Steve telephoned.

"Barry was ill," he said. Out at Twilight, Mrs. Faxon was afraid it was influenza.

State Auditor Says Ferguson Has Maliciously Juggled Figures In His Report On Expected Deficit

State Auditor Moore Lynn took exception to what he termed "malicious figure juggling" by James E. Ferguson, by which Mr. Ferguson seeks to disprove the Auditor's estimate that there will be a deficit of only $354,110.18 in the General Revenue Fund at the end of the next fiscal year.

Lynn's statement is as follows: "James E. Ferguson has often used the phrase, 'Figures never lie, but liars often figure.' The August 4th issue of the Ferguson Forum strikingly proves the truth of this old adage. On page three of this sheet are found these two paragraphs:

"These excessive rates reduced to dollars and cents as shown by the calculations of the Comptroller show that the estimated deficiency (and deficiency means in the red) in the general revenue fund after giving credit for all the prospective revenues for the government to the State will be four million, seventy-nine thousand, two hundred twenty-nine dollars and thirty-four cents ($4,779,229.34) at the end of the next fiscal year and for the available school fund the deficiency will be five million, eight hundred eighteen thousand, seven hundred fourteen dollars and thirty-one cents ($5,818,714.31). To this is to be added a deficiency accruing at the end of this month as shown by the Comptroller's records of three million, nine hundred forty-four thousand, seven hundred thirty-four dollars and forty-seven cents ($3,914,734.47)."

"Adding to these three items together the now official records of the Comptroller's office show that the state of Texas after taxing the people in forty-seven different ways is facing a total deficiency or debt of thirteen million, eight hundred eleven thousand, seven hundred forty-eight dollars and twelve cents, ($13,811,748.12)."

"A careful reader needs less than an elementary knowledge of arithmetic and State government to detect at least two glaring and gross errors in these two paragraphs. Both are cunningly designed to mislead. One of the errors, obviously and flagrantly studied, is $3,914,734.47 in his favor.

"He estimates a deficit in the General Revenue Fund at the end of the present fiscal year totaling $3,914,734.47, and estimates $4,079,229.34 as the deficit at the end of the next fiscal year. He adds these two figures together, adds the total thus obtained to another figure and obtains a grand total of $13,811,748.12, but Mr. Ferguson carelessly—or, perhaps, carelessly—forgot that his estimated 1932 deficit of $3,914,734.47 is included in and becomes a part of the 1933 deficit of $4,079,229.34.

"Mr. Ferguson's political arithmetic makes the final figure more than three times as large as his own statement of what the deficit in the General Revenue Fund may be at August 31, 1933. By the same sort of logic, a man with an overdrawn bank account of $20.00 today, and $10.00 tomorrow, would figure he owed the bank $30.00.

"The second error is a studied inference that the School Fund is a part of the General Revenue Fund. Any legislator, any school man, will advise you that the School Fund is entirely separate from the General Revenue Fund. It is NOT administered by the Governor nor can it be by the wildest flight of demagoguery be linked with either the Governor's office or the General Revenue Fund, yet Mr. Ferguson would lead the casual reader to believe that the State's General Revenue Fund faces a $13,811,748.12 deficit.

"Using his own figures, the worst he can claim is a possible deficit of $4,079,229.34 in the General Revenue Fund at the close of the next fiscal year. The State Auditor estimated in his report of May 10, 1932, that the probable deficit would be only $354,110.18.

"The figures used by Mr. Ferguson purport to have been taken from the statement submitted to the Automatic Tax Board. In a statement to the press dated August 13, 1932, the State Auditor has shown that those figures were computed on the basis of an automatic mechanical formula which could not take into account certain new sources of revenue, changes in economic conditions and lapses in appropriations made by the Legislature.

"His latest misstatement but further evidences the lengths to which Jim Ferguson will go in juggling figures for his own political advancement. Just such malicious juggling the people could expect were Jim Ferguson ever again elevated to a position of trust in Texas."

A ROOSEVELT FOR HOOVER

Mrs. Edith Kermit Roosevelt, widow of former President Roosevelt, leaves the plane that took her to Washington for President Hoover's official notification. She is one of President Hoover's ardent supporters and was the center of a buzz of political and social discussion on her old home grounds—the White House lawn. (Associated Press Photo)

Mr. Spencer Leatherwood recounted forming the first club in Howard county under an agent with membership growing rapidly from eighteen to twenty-six. An agent, he told commissioners, had taught fine points of sewing that saved many dollars. Mrs. R. Rainer gave similar testimony.

Telling of a need for an agent even among townspersons, Mrs. John Tucker spoke to commissioners. Mrs. H. W. Bartlett informed commissioners that an agent would be able to launch such a program as to make woman aid husbands in paying taxes, the county retaining the difference of an agent's salary.

"I am thoroughly sold on the work," declared Mrs. Dave Leatherwood. "I don't want it for myself, there are women who need it so much more than any woman here. The court couldn't make a better investment that will pay as the dividends."

Eight of the men to appear in behalf of the agent home provided for was H. L. Hix, who explained his interest as being fifteen years in the making. He referred to Lubbock county as an example of what the work would do. He believed it would be feasible for commissioners to provide for an agent with a prospective reduction of taxes in eight and with the cost amounting to only a fraction of a cent on a hundred-dollar valuation. "This is more than you think it is a proposition of feeding our people," he told the court.

Benefits

Sim O'Neal told how such an agent had benefited Coleman county and said it was not an expense but an asset to the county. A certain oil company opened its kitchen to rural folks for canning as long as an agent was maintained, he said, but now the kitchen was closed.

As a member of the rural-urban committee of the Rotary club, J. R. Pickle believed an agent to be a financially sound proposition. Real value of the agent, he declared, was not financial, but was on a higher intangible plane.

C. T. Watson hit at incompetent agents and asked that a good one be obtained, if one was provided. "I appreciate the fact that the budget must be balanced, but I appreciate the necessity of extension work. If you can't give us an agent without going into debt, we would not want one. But if you can, and still be clear, we would like to have one," he pleaded.

Mrs. Will Gregory testified to her interest in 4-H children in the absence of an agent. Women present were unanimous in pledging charity aid through canned goods if an agent is obtained. Herbert Keating said his one interest in an agent was in seeing the people learn to live at home.

Answering petitioners, Judge Debenport said it is not a question of like or dislike for the work. It is a question of finances. The affair is in the hands of commissioners, whom Judge Debenport said had not yet discussed the budget, which is his work. He then went into a discussion of the budget, explaining transfer of funds, uncertainties of the budget and taxation and loss in valuations. He stressed the need of economy and drains on the treasury through charity.

No other discussions on the budget were heard when Judge Debenport left the house open to any such discussions.

Local Troop Ranks Second In Swim Meet

Thomas Joe Williamson Individual Star Of Carnival

Troop 1, Big Spring, was nosed out in the Buffalo Trail Council water carnival at Midland Tuesday by only a few points. Troop 52 of Midland took the meet on events under 110 pounds and runner-up places.

Thomas Joe Williamson, Troop 1, was individual star of the water carnival, taking one first place, a second and leading his troop to victory in the relay and water polo events.

Clyde Thomas was the only other Troop 1 man to score a first place, finishing ahead of the field in the breast stroke race.

The local troop took a good lead in the relay and finished with a width of Pagoda pool to spare, Williamson putting on a powerful finish. In water polo Troop 1 licked Troop 52 of Midland 5-1. In the preliminaries Troop 1 beat Troop 17 of Texas by 3-0 and Troop 61 of Barstow 4-0. Williamson took second in the back stroke and was forced out of the pay in diving off a tie for third place.

Jack Pickle, member of Troop 1, was unable to compete in the meet, having been injured in a fall from the trolley spanning the pool the day before. He was confined to a Midland hospital suffering from a cut on the head and bruises.

More than 250 visiting scouts enjoyed a barbecue and plate lunch followed by a theater party. Midland officials expected only about 250 scouts to attend.

Miss Fannie Sue Reed, who has been visiting her aunts, the Misses Leatherwood, has returned to her home on the ranch.

Prizes Offered For Bridge Here Friday 3 o'Clock

Four unusual and attractive prizes have been selected by the committee in charge of the benefit bridge party to be given by the West Texas Memorial Museum at the Settles Hotel Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Cunningham and Phillips will give a sugar and creamer set of art pottery. Victor Mellinger will give a new black flat pocketbook. The White House grocery will give a gallon of preserves and Albert M. Fisher one of the new ham and egg skillets.

In addition to these prizes, a silver electric coffee percolator has been donated by the Texas Electric Service Co and will be given away at the party.

Special guests of the party will be the women who attend the meeting of the West Texas Press association with their husbands or in the capacity of newspaper delegates.

Since this is to be a big get-together of the bridge players of the city, most of whom use the big parties to keep up many friendly contacts they would otherwise lack, it is suggested that those who can make reservations in advance with Mrs. R. W. Henry or Mrs. Albert M. Fisher.

Young Entertains Business Men's Club

Carl Young, accompanied by Mrs. Omar Pittman at the piano, entertained Business Men's Luncheon Club with several enjoyable solos at its regular meeting Wednesday.

C. T. Watson announced the coming of the West Texas Press association Friday and Saturday and asked that the citizens continue to extend that hospitality that has made Big Spring a popular place with visitors to conventions.

Fox Stripling and M. H. Morrison was on the program committee. Morrison talked on the value of kind words as antidote for the depression.

V. H. Flewellen was named to see about a program for next week.

In the absence of the president, B. F. Robbins, Harvey Rix, vice-president, presided.

Dallas Wholesalers Optimistic As Orders Reach Higher Figure

DALLAS, (UP)—The influx of orders for reservations to the annual style show here of the wholesale merchants' association gave indications the 1,270 seats available would not be sufficient to seat purchasers.

New buyers and increasing orders added to the optimism held by Dallas wholesalers and officials of the association. A new trend in business and an encouraging atmosphere in their home regions were reported by many buyers.

"I don't like to exaggerate, but business is looking up a little," E. P. Tipps, of Shamrock, said. "The rise in commodity prices, hogs, cattle, cotton, were effective. Now we are anxious to go. We have been holding back."

Tipps' viewpoint was corroborated by numerous other merchants who expressed belief that the "turn has arrived."

Cotton Export Loan From R.F.C. Expected

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Possibility of the first reconstruction finance corporation loan to finance export sales of cotton under terms of the new relief bill, arose.

Orville Bullington, Wichita Falls, Tex., conferred with director Jesse Jones as representative of a group of Texas cotton men.

Bullington, Republican candidate for governor in Texas, said that he simply broached the question of such a loan, and had not as yet made formal application.

The cotton group he represents includes the Sealy interests of Galveston.

The corporation directors conferred with officers of the Interstate Commerce Commission, reportedly on the question of loans to railroads, for repairs and maintenance.

Kiwanis Club Men Urged To Attend Feast

Members Will Carry Visitors To Park From Hotel

Officials of the Kiwanis club Wednesday asked that all members be reminded that this week's meeting will be held at City Park at 8 p. m. instead of the usual noon meeting at the Crawford hotel.

The change was made to allow for entertainment of first arrivals among delegates to the West Texas Press Association convention, which will open its program here Friday morning.

A chicken barbecue will be given with visiting newspapermen, as guests. It will be a star affair.

Club officials are very anxious that full attendance of all members be realized. They are urged to stop at the Crawford hotel shortly before 8 o'clock and pick up visitors in their cars.

A committee, including Joe Ernster, D. W. Webster and Tom Davis is in charge of the barbecue. Wendell Bedehk will be chairman for an informal get-together program.

Swatters Lead In Golf League

The Sand Belt Golf association race tightened over the week-end as Lamesa defeated Sweetwater 26 to 18. Big Spring dropped a decision to Midland 25 to 19 and Snyder ran rough-shod over the last place Odessa club 29 to 15.

Sweetwater's golfing legion still held the lead, raising their point total to 221 as Colorado was idle and dropped into fourth place with 206. Lamesa's spirit sent the Dawson county entry ahead of the Big Spring nibble wielders by a single point, 209 to 208.

Snyder remained securely in fifth place with 183 to 190 for Midland. Odessa with 133 was 27 points in the cellar.

The next meeting will find Odessa playing Colorado. Midland meeting Sweetwater, Lamesa invading Big Spring and Snyder with an open date as the result of the withdrawal of Texas from the League.

Joe Bailey, Jr. To Stump For Party Ticket

DALLAS, (UP)—Joseph W. Bailey, son of the late U. S. Senator Bailey and a candidate for congress, has been selected as a speaker for the national democratic party, his campaign headquarters announced.

Selection of Bailey was made by Mrs. Clara Driscoll Sevier of Corpus Christi, national committee woman. M. H. Kittrell, Jr., in charge of Bailey's office here said the latter would accept.

Kittrell, who received the letter from Mrs. Sevier, said that Bailey would stump for the national ticket of the party, win or lose at the Aug. 27 runoff. Bailey is opposed by J. H. (Cyclone) Davis of Sulphur Springs, for congress-at-large, place 2.

Bailey is expected to be one of the speakers at the Dallas Labor Day celebration, Kittrell said. John N. Garner, democratic vice-presidential standard-bearer, has been asked to speak at this gathering at which Senator Jos Robinson opened his campaign for vice-presidential four years ago.

Garner's answer to the invitation has not been received. It was understood here the answer would be issued by the democratic national committee from its headquarters in New York.
