

Old People Seek Right to Vote in Mandamus Writ

ABILENE, July 18. (P)—Hearing has been set for Tuesday morning in 42nd district court here on a friendly suit for writ of mandamus filed in behalf of a group of citizens over 69 years of age for the purpose of forcing Grady Farmley, county assessor and collector, to issue exemption certificates to them, entitling them to cast ballots in next Saturday's primary.

The suit attacks a ruling of the attorney general that persons in towns of 10,000 or more population who were 69 years old last year must have obtained exemption certificates by February 1, this year to vote next Saturday. Plaintiffs, represented by James P. Stinson, county Democratic chairman, contended they should be given exemptions from poll tax payment at any time they may offer to vote. The assessor-collector has followed the attorney general's ruling.

CAPITOL JIGSAW

AUSTIN, July 18. (P)—Of the 204 persons who took the state medical examination in the House of Representatives chamber recently, 13 were women, the largest number in any Texas class.

Most of the women candidates for licenses to practice medicine, officials said, intended to specialize in diseases of women and children.

Ages of the candidates averaged between 25 and 28 years, which was said to be slightly above normal in some years, due probably to increased pre-medical study requirements.

Acting Governor Walter F. Woodul looked out of the window of the executive office and saw two big-batted Rangers sitting on the grass in a shady spot near the capitol.

"How long have those convicts who escaped the other day been at large?" he queried.

Informed that he lasted about six days and at last reports the convicts had disappeared in woods near Mexia, he took another look at the resting Rangers and sighed.

Woodul, incidentally, once was adjutant general and the direct commander of the Rangers.

Tax records in the office of Comptroller George H. Sheppard reveal some things about the life of prominent early Texans.

Records from Harris county disclose that Sam Houston owned three lots in Houston valued at $1,000 and 15 acres of land valued at $1,000. He was assessed a tax of $3 on a negro slave.

That was in 1839 when Houston was at the height of his career. Harris county before that year had been known as Harris county.

While taxes in those days were relatively low, Sheppard said, penalties were high. Records show frequent payments of double taxes when the tax payer had been delinquent no more than a year.

The will of James Tyler, who died in the Battle of the Alamo, was brought to light in the Travis county district clerk's office recently.

One paragraph indicated Tyler had faith in the growth of Texas. It noted he was entitled to a league of land in Stephen F. Austin's colony and expressed a desire to leave it and other property to a sister.

"It might be better perhaps for her to let the land lay awhile," he said, "as it would prove more valuable."

M. C. Lewis, capital poundmaster, comes forward with a word in defense of dog-catchers. He claims to be a pal to lost pets.

"I've reunited more children and their dogs than any other man in town and brought great happiness through my work," he said.

"By getting rid of the mongrels, most of them diseased and likely to contaminate good dogs, we protect not only fine animals, but children who might be victims of rabies."

Half of the 3,000 dogs passing through the pound are reclaimed by their owners. Fine dogs unreclaimed never are killed, but are given to persons who provide good homes.

Auto Lights Quit, So Youths Tour Mexico Mountains by Flashlight

Stranded at night in the high mountains beyond Jacala, Mexico, when the generator of his car blew up, Albert Williams, young Yale student, sat for 40 miles on the fender of his roadster, with a companion driving, and lighted the way over precipitous trails, rising at one point to 9,500 feet, with a flashlight.

Williams and a friend left Laredo, Tex., bound for Mexico City on a vacation trip. They had covered the 550 miles from Laredo to Tamazunchale and started up the steep mountain roads separating Jacala from the plains country.

With good luck, they would have covered the highest mountain section from Jacala before dark, but trouble with their brakes delayed them. By the time they resumed their way, darkness was coming on.

They switched on their lights and continued the series of sharp ascents and downward pitches as they wound higher into the range. Suddenly, on a precipitous winding drop in the trail, their lights went out. Their generator had blown up.

Cold at those high altitudes would prevent their getting any sleep in their open car. More-

FRENCH FIGHT OVER TWO FLAGS ALSO, TWO NATIONAL ANTHEMS

PARIS, July 18. (P)—The rivalry of two flags and two songs have become the symbol of a bitter struggle between French nationalists and leftists.

Rightist deputies in open debate asked members of Premier Leon Blum's government "if the tricolor is still the national flag and 'La Marseillaise' still the national anthem."

Nationalists have adopted the tricolor as an emblem to unify the forces of the right while socialists and communists mass their followers behind the red flag.

Angry nationalist communists shouted "La Marseillaise" in the St. Lazare station while police separated them from followers of the leftist People's Front who sang back the "Internationale."

Combat By Color.

Rightists, smarting under the rule of France's first Socialist premier, asked all nationalists to display the tri-color from windows.

A day later the Blum government officially announced "there was no display of the tri-color in eight de-

PARKS CONTAINING WATER AREAS ARE MOST POPULAR, STUDY SHOWS

AUSTIN, July 18. (P)—State and swimming boating and fishing, are local parks containing water areas, shown in a preliminary study made where facilities are available for by the National Park service to be the most popular in Texas from the standpoint of use.

The study is important from the standpoint of planning for continued development of recreational areas," says a statement from the third regional office of the service, "because it furnishes a definite guide to activities that are most popular with park users. It shows, in a number of hikers the advisability of continued development of foot trails. Another point brought out is that in Texas there appears to be an unusually large percentage of persons who are interested in nature study, including geological formations, plant and animal life."

In cooperation with the Texas state park and other state agencies, the National Park Service is carrying on development work in 18 state parks: Palo Duro canyon, Bonham, Bastrop-Buschler, Lake Corpus Christi, Big Bend, Longhorn Cavern, Mother Neff, Garner, Fort Parker, Balmorhea, Dalingerfield, Lockhart, Mackenzie, Cleburne, Tyler, Paris, and Kerrville.

Work in metropolitan parks at Fort Worth, Dallas, Beaumont, and Sweetwater, is being done in cooperation with local park boards.

Where there are no natural bodies of water and conditions are favorable for development of adequate water supplies, the statement says, dams are being built to create lakes. Construction of roads, trails, bridges, comfort stations, overnight cabins, shelters, picnic units with fireplaces, tables and benches are among the major projects.

Emergency Conservation Work funds and Civilian Corps labor are being used.

More extensive planting of trees and shrubbery is being done in sparsely forested regions. To encourage the return of birds and small mammals to areas they have abandoned, water holes are being developed and plant material brought in for food and shelter.

Permanent structures, such as administration buildings, caretakers' houses, and cabins, are being screened with plant material to blend into the natural surroundings. Parking districts are being arranged to restrict automobiles to limited areas so as to promote ground cover and preserve the semi-wilderness aspect of the parks.

"Nature trails" are being developed and signed with names of flowers, trees, and geological formations.

Enclosed in the letter were several blanks which can be filled out and mailed to the bureau which will secure the passport and have it ready upon presentation of proof of application at Laredo.

The bureau is sponsored by the Laredo chamber of commerce and the Mexican Automobile association. B. A. Puiros is manager of the new bureau.

BRIDGE GUNMAN WINS ON EXPERT'S APPEAL

WARSAW. (P)—Joseph Illias got so excited by the bad playing of his bridge partner, Jan Bartomiejczyk, that he drew a revolver from his hip pocket and fired at him.

Though the wound was superficial, the lower court of Lodz condemned Illias to three years imprisonment.

Illias appealed and engaged a Warsaw attorney renowned for his skill at bridge.

The lawyer understood the condition of Illias by the terrible mistakes of Bartomiejczyk, and defended his cause so well that the court of appeals here reduced the sentence to a nominal one.

Mrs. Alfred Gilliland underwent an appendectomy at Worley hospital Friday afternoon. Her condition last night was excellent.

Boys Will Play In Hoover And In Pampa Today

Boys' league-leading Christians will make a stand at Hoover this afternoon, and the Pee-wees will entertain Phillips 66 Juniors in the only games in the Junior baseball loop. Both contests will start at 2:30 o'clock. It is understood that the LeFors-Little Road Runner game, scheduled to have been played at Hoover, has been postponed.

The Phillips boys haven't had any luck against the Pee-wees this season, and they will be trying harder than usual to win the game. The Pee-wees have been defeated only by the Little Road Runners and the Christians. Last Sunday, Berger won a ball game in the last inning 9 to 8.

The Christians have walloped Hoover unmercifully in previous games, and they fully expect to repeat the afternoon.

Phillips will have Norman Cox, Esslinger or Turner available for mound duty, and the Pee-wees will probably pitch Keg Rafferty—if they don't use Amos Reed. The Pee-wees gained certain strength last week when Billy Morrow returned to the lineup and slammed out a home run in the Berger game.

Stream Gone, Shade Solaces Tortured Cattle

Tortured by the pitiless, scorching sun rays that beat down on their bony flanks, these cattle huddle pathetically in the shade of a bridge beneath which, only a short time ago, flowed a cool stream in which they had splashed and quenched their thirst. Scenes such as this are common in western regions, as the terror of drouth lingers on.

Blackfaces Collect 23 Hits During Melee

Huber's Blackfaces of Borgor took a licking to the practice chucking of a pair of Road Runner pitchers on Friday night and gave the Birds an old fashioned country licking. The score was 17 to 4 when the 23 base hits from Huber bats had cleared the air.

The Birds had an opportunity to score in the first inning when McNabb opened with a single and stole second but he died on third when the next three batters up went out. One run was pushed across in the second. Cox walked but was forced by Poindexter who escaped hitting into a double play by sliding into first. Lisle doubled, sending Poindexter to third from where he scored on a wild pitch.

BRUNDAGE WARNS OLYMPIANS NOT TO BREAK REGULATIONS

ABOARD S. S. MANHATTAN, En route to Berlin, July 18. (AP)—Disciplinary problems among members of the American Olympic team, which arose today when rain cut short the workouts, drew a sharp warning from Avery Brundage that further unreasonable violations of the training rules would result in the dismissal of the offenders at the first port of call—Cobh, Ireland.

Officials denied the suggestion that this was a "modified Nazi salute" explaining they desired a distinctive gesture as a part of the opening ceremonies. It has not been decided who will have the honor of carrying the stars and stripes except that the choice will be based on seniority thus making James W. HUNTER CLAIMS LABOR AND OIL GROUPS' VOTES

TAKES ISSUE WITH SANDERFORD IN ADDRESS

(By The Associated Press)

Candidates for the Texas democratic gubernatorial nomination ended a week of strenuous speaking tours Saturday and, with one exception planned to rest Sunday for the final week of the campaign.

Roy Sanderford, at Ennis, told of his plan to pay old age pensions with a 3 per cent sales tax, and expressed unqualified opposition to any sort of an income tax. He advocated a constitutional amendment barring the possibility of the state ever having an income tax. He said it would attract capital.

Sanderford said he would use two-thirds of the sales tax revenues to pay old age pensions and the balance to do away with the state ad valorem tax.

Gov. James Alfred halted his campaign Saturday to accept Fort Worth's invitation to attend the opening of the Frontier Centennial. Czech leaders had invited the governor to Dallas Sunday for Czech day at the Central Centennial Exposition.

Alfred estimated he had traveled 4,000 miles in two weeks of active campaigning. He spoke Friday night in Fort Worth, emphasizing the liberality of the Texas old age pension law.

At Palestine, Pierce Brooks of Dallas promised, in the event of election to "run the lobbies out of Austin." Brooks pointed to old age pensions as the major point of the campaign and accused Alfred of "letting the people down on this vital question."

He spoke optimistically of his chances of election and predicted he would defeat the other four candidates because none of them had "dared criticize the sinister special privilege lobbies."

Tom Hunter of Wichita Falls, spoke at Beaumont, claiming the support of organized labor and oil interests because he had worked in Washington for an excise tax on foreign oil importations.

Hunter took issue with Sanderford and advocated a gross income tax of 1 per cent with a $6,000 exemption and others as needed. He said such a levy would pay old age pensions and permit abolition of the ad valorem tax.

The Wichita Falls candidate criticized Governor Alfred regarding pensions, declaring administrative

F. W. Fischer of Tyler, speaking at Fort Worth, deplored conditions in the state making necessary the "detention of insane patients in jail cells instead of hospital wards. He promised corrective measures in event of election.

Fischer advocated taxation of natural resources to pay pensions and a train length limit law to safeguard lives of railroad employes and increase employment.

He stood firmly on demands for adoption of the child labor amendment and minimum wage laws for women.

Oil Leases Will Be Auctioned Off

AUSTIN, July 18. (AP)—Texas officials Monday will auction off oil leases on 12,000 acres of University of Texas land in West Texas, using the public outcry method of sale for the second time in the state's history.

J. H. Walker, veteran land commissioner, said only once before had the public auction method been used to dispose of public lands in Texas. That was about 1839 or 1840, he said, when Austin townlots were sold.

Col. Walters of Oklahoma, who hawked thousands of acres of Indian land for the government, will be the auctioneer. Walker said interest evinced by oil men indicated bidding would be brisk.

Oil production is in close proximity to some of the 76 tracts of quarter-section size in Andrew, Ector, Crane, Union and Ward counties. About three-fourth of the land is located in Andrews county.

Between scenes, Gary Cooper spends most of his time bicycling around the Paramount lot. He likes the exercise.

FARM ISSUE HOLDS VITAL SPOT IN COMING POLITICAL CAMPAIGN

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Some one recently observed that American political parties may abandon the Republican-Democratic division and the country will be divided between a rural party and an urban party. Since before Christ, political parties have divided along those lines more or less. The great feud between Marius and Sulla was partially based on the former's championship of the farmer, while Sulla backed the city dweller. Marius was a farmer's son. The Gracchi are famous for all time because they formed a dirt-farmer party and gained the upper hand in Rome.

Down through the ages the division has been present, often flaring into bitter war. The United States is no exception. The farm issue was present at the very beginning of this nation's history, and right now is emphatically present in the shape of a third party and an agrarian candidate, William Lemke.

In the early days of the United States, the farm party was wholly dominant. It is likely that few people in the new republic ever foresaw the time when the farmers would be anything else but dominant. To be sure, only eight percent of the adult male population had the right to vote and, as land owning was a major qualification, it followed naturally that the voters should be farmers. The merchants, the bankers, the city dwellers constituted the small oppressed minority. The farm question was not so much an issue in those days; it was not big enough to be recognized as an issue. The farmers had everything their way.

The first farm issue, curiously enough, was an issue between farmers and farmers, but the roots were similar to the roots of modern farm unrest. On the one side were aligned the southern planters who, although farmers, were of a capitalistic turn of mind. They were great landholders. On the other side were ranged the small farmers of the north and west. The issue was over free soil, which states should permit slavery and which not. The discussion destroyed the old Whig party, but sowed the seed for the new Republican party.

The next chapter was written around the homestead issue. Remnants of the Whigs and the Democrats opposed the idea of granting free public lands to actual settlers. Here, for the first time, the urban capitalistic interest entered. Merchants and manufacturers felt that few western lands would attract dissipated city workers and that, in consequence, the wage level would rise. The southern Democrats, the planters, felt that as the proposal involved actual occupation of the free lands, they would be excluded, as they could not leave their old plantations.

Today, in the west, where the farm bloc is backing its own presidential candidate, its supporters are being assailed as communists or, at least, as communistic in their doctrine. In 1880, President Buchanan vetoed the first homestead act on the ground that it was communistic. It was stated at the time that the theory was the result of a tainted European importation of subversive ideas. That was three-quarters of a century ago, but the same charges are made today.

When Abraham Lincoln was elected, a new homestead bill was introduced. He signed it in July, 1862, just 74 years ago. Any citizen, 21 years or over, except Confederate veterans, could take up free public land.

During the reconstruction period, the farm issue was neglected. The federal government was busy with reconstructing the south, and the homesteaders were busy with their new lands. The western railroads, subsidized by the government, were being built. The next agrarian uprising took the form of the Grange movement. The farmers attacked high freight rates saying that their lands did them little good when they could not afford to pay the freight to market their crops. Large groups marched on state capitals, demanding regulation. At one time the Grange had 850,000 members. Next, the farmers were drawn into the Greenback party, the same rural urge toward inflation being notable then that has been noted currently.

In 1897, the farm demand for railroad regulation was met by creation of the Interstate Commerce Commission. But years of heavy rainfall, which had resulted in the ploughing of normally dry land, had caused farmers to overreach themselves, and a severe slump was when a long period of aridity set in. This prompted the farmers to join western mining interests in the demand for free silver. The farmers were having the same difficulties with mortgages that the Lemke farmer-followers are having today. The Populist party grew like a mushroom, threatening to become a major party. Then William Jennings Bryan became the farmers' Messiah and led the free silver campaign, largely supported by the farm element.

Farm Bloc Appears.

The Republicans, coming to power, told the farmers that the high tariff policy they espoused gave the city workers more purchasing power, thus creating a better market for farm products. Certain it was that, under Republican control, farm products rose in price and farm lands increased in value. In 1904, the Republicans carried the entire west for the first time since 1884.

The farmers seemed safely Republican, raising no special issue until after the 1920-21 depression. Then when, as a result of the post-war situation, farm prices abruptly dropped, a live farm issue again appeared, and the Farm Bloc was organized in Congress. The Farm Bureau Federation had one of the most powerful lobbies at Washington. The Bloc in Congress was composed of western Republicans and southern Democrats, and held a balance of power as to some measures. Various proposals of farm relief were made, the McNary-Haugen bill being the most famous. It was repeatedly passed and vetoed, but had tremendous support and made the farm issue outstanding.

President Coolidge, while twice vetoing the McNary-Haugen measure, was forced to recognize the farm issue. He strongly urged development of farmers' cooperatives. The farm issue became a live one in national conventions of both parties and promises had to be made. While LaFollette's independent candidacy earlier had courted the farm vote, it failed to obtain it completely, leaders of farm organizations counselling their members that years would be required to build up a new party and it would be wiser to

Dusting The Covers Of Texas History For THE TEXAS CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION OF 1936

AUSTIN, July 18.—Several attempts were made to found missions in the land of the Texas Indians at the end of the 17th century. It was regarded by Don Carlos Sigüenza y Góngora, first historian of the University of Texas library. Although it was published in 1691, it is only now being translated into English by Dr. Carlos E. Catena, Latin-American librarian at the university.

"The Count of Galve entrusted the expedition to Governor Alonso De Leon, who as I write this account, is now dead, may he rest in peace on the bosom of immortality," Góngora wrote. "He succeeded in his efforts and his name will forever be a formidable memory to all the barbarous tribes whom he overcame work within the ranks of the old parties.

When Herbert Hoover was elected, almost his first action was to call a special session of Congress to enact farm relief legislation. It was in his time that the Federal Farm Board, which spent hundreds of millions for farm relief, was set up. A special tariff, designed for the protection of the farmer, was passed. But the world was in a decline. American farmers were suffering no more than farmers elsewhere. Then came the New Deal under the Roosevelt administration, which put into effect more sweeping farm relief measures than the wildest farm leaders of past times had ever dreamed. Hundreds of millions were distributed to farmers and still are being distributed.

et in spite of that, the farm issue remains among the foremost. Although both Democratic and Republican platforms in this campaign have dedicated planks to the husbandman, enough of them still feel dissatisfied to create support for an independent ticket, and Mr. Lemke, like earlier leaders of the farm issue, is confident of triumph.

details from which only this chapter is here set down. This history will see the light of day when it pleases the hero who ordered me to write it. Therein will be seen the admirable fertility of this province which will henceforth be called Carolina (later called Texas). The customs and habits of its people, their religion, their government, and all those things that assure the permanency of anything that may be done there, will also be told. A very good beginning has been made, as shown by the fact that the captain of the Texas, whose name is Deso, not only welcomed our people in his own home, but came out to meet them on the road the moment he learned that they were coming; and the fact that he built a church and a house for the three missionaries who stayed among them; and the fact that the chief sent his nephew, whose name is Demeno, with Father Damian Massanet to the City of Mexico, in order that he might kiss the hand of his Excellency in the name of his uncle. As an acknowledgment of the presents received, the envoy was to place at the feet of his Excellency the province over which he rules and that of his confederates and friends, who are many.

"While on the last expedition, Governor Alonso De Leon, took captive a French girl called Magdelaine Talon, about 14 years old; three small boys, her brothers, and a young man named Pierre Meunier, son of the Sieur de Prioville private treasurer of the King of France. The latter accompanied his comrade, Marquis de Sabonier, who joined LaSalle in his unfortunate voyage and was killed by the Indians while foraging for food. From the survivors taken prisoners, from the nephew of the Texas chief, Deso, who was received as an ambassador, from Father Pray Damian Massanet, from Captain Francisco Martinez, from Gregorio de Salinas Varona, much was learned and great hopes entertained for the future."

TEXAS OIL TAX ON PRODUCTION LEADS NATION

FIGURES REVEALED BY REPORT OF STATE ASSOCIATION

By H. J. STRUTH
Petroleum Economist

Texas oil producers actually pay a total production tax of seven and three-quarter cents per barrel of crude oil produced, which tops the tax rate of every other oil producing state, according to data collected by The Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association of Texas. This fact is accurately revealed for the first time through the collection of tax statistics from Texas oil producers by questionnaire, the returns from which have thus far accounted for sixty per cent of the State's crude oil production in 1935.

Production taxes paid within the State during the past year, by more than 4,000 Texas oil producers, aggregated $30,175,317 on a total production of 391,097,000 barrels, or an average tax per barrel of 7.72 cents. This makes it evident that the gross production tax of two cents per barrel on crude oil is only one of many taxes imposed upon the producing branch of the Texas oil industry. Last year, the gross production tax paid by Texas oil producers and royalty owners amounted to $8,126,995, which constituted only about one-fourth of the oil production taxes collected in the State. In addition, $22,048,322 was collected in State, county, city, and school ad valorem taxes, franchise taxes, regulatory taxes, gross receipts taxes and various other State levies on the producing branch of the oil industry.

Texas oil operators are shown by these facts to be at a decided disadvantage with those in other oil producing states. In Oklahoma, the crude oil production tax is five per cent of its market value, which makes the average tax per barrel about five and one-half cents, and this is in lieu of all other taxes. In Louisiana, the crude oil tax ranges from four to eleven cents per barrel, depending upon the gravity of the oil produced, while the average tax is not more than six cents per barrel. In this connection, it is pertinent to note that the Louisiana legislature realizes that present oil taxes are too high and have actually proven disadvantageous to the state's oil development, since it voted down proposals to increase state oil taxes and reduce the tax rate of certain of the state's oil operations. In New Mexico, the oil tax has averaged less than two cents, also in lieu of all other taxes. Kansas levies no oil production tax, while their ad valorem tax averages less than two cents a barrel. California has no gross production tax on oil, while their ad valorem tax average but 3.75 cents per barrel. No other oil producing state imposes as high an oil production tax as Texas.

This huge tax bill does not do any means cover all branches of the Texas oil industry. It represents only the taxes paid by producers of crude oil on production and operating equipment of leases. Additional millions of dollars in taxes are paid to the State and various counties by oil refiners, natural gasoline plant operators, producers and distributors of natural gas, transporters of petroleum and its products and marketers of refined petroleum products. Altogether, the Texas oil industry is the direct source of sixty per cent of the tax revenue collected in the State. Additional data received from Texas oil operators by questionnaire shows that expenditures in 1935 for payrolls, lease rentals, lease bonuses royalties, freight charges, materials and supplies, teaming, etc., aggregated $440,418,175. Payrolls alone amounted to $161,882,479; landowners received nearly $50,000,000 in rentals and bonuses; equipment manufacturers reaped a harvest of $126,449,009, spent in the purchase of last year's oil field operating equipment.

GRAY COUNTY LEADS FIELD IN PANHANDLE WELL COMPLETION

Tammany Chief Is Active at 77 4,462 BARRELS ADDED TO POTENTIAL; OUTLOOK BRIGHTENED

A colorful career ranging from mine physician in Arizona in Wild West days to New York City health commissioner has been that of Dr. Thomas Darlington, Tammany's grand sachem, shown speaking at a recent celebration at the Hall. At 77 he still is active as a physician and civic worker, and in recent years has delivered hundreds of lectures in eastern colleges and over the radio.

The Panhandle oil field jumped to the front the past week faster a period of minor activity. Eight completions, six of them in Gray county, added 4,462 barrels of oil to the field potential.

Sixteen new locations also brightened the outlook. Moore and Hutchinson counties led the parade with six each, followed by Gray with two and Carson and Wheeler with one each.

Completions tested by the Railroad Commission were:

Gray County.

Cambrian Oil Co. C. S. Barrett No. 6, section 112, block 3, I&GN survey, tested 622 barrels. Pay was in line formation from 3,135 to 3,244 feet. Total depth was 3,244 feet.

Continental Oil Co. Finley No. 14, section 32, block B-2, H&GN survey, completed for 622 barrels in granite wash at a total depth of 2,967 feet. Pay was from 2,928 to 2,987 feet.

OIL PROBLEMS DISCUSSED IN BROWN REPORT

IPA ATTORNEY MAKES EXHAUSTIVE STUDY FOR ROESER

Russell B. Brown, general counsel for the Independent Petroleum Association of America, has been making an exhaustive study of the nation's oil problems and his report to Chas. F. Roeser, president, carried in part here, is of interest to everyone connected with the oil industry.

Mr. Brown says:

At this time inquiry directed to me and the conversation about oil seems to be largely concerned with the problems of the present. The outcome of the Federal investigation now being conducted in Wisconsin and when will the industry likely know the results? Second, is the oil states compact justified? Third, what is the immediate future of oil? To answer these three problems would require someone with more ability to look into the future than myself but the inquiry seems to justify some comment.

Department of Justice Investigation

The investigation held by the Department of Justice at Madison, Wisconsin was regarded by many of the industry as a fishing expedition. However, all recognized the importance to the industry of a proper enforcement of the Anti-Trust Laws. If there was a real violation the Department of Justice can render a service to the industry by a proper application of the law to the facts found. If there is an effort on the part of the Department of Justice to justify their investigation by prosecution without merit it would be a great injury to the industry. Whatever the facts are found, action on them will not likely be taken before the latter part of September or possibly the middle of November. It is not believed that it is possible to digest the vast amount of reports and testimony submitted to the grand jury earlier than that. What the grand jury may do no one can now tell.

The meeting of the Oil States Compact Commission at Dallas on July 30 focuses attention on the activities under this program. I think no one can deny that a great deal of good has already been accomplished by this body. Loosely and ineffectively drawn as was the compact many felt that it would be impossible to accomplish what has happened. The representatives of the oil producing states permits a discussion of the problems of the respective states and their relations to the problems of all the other states which must inevitably lead to a better understanding by the individual states of the part they have in this overall program. No state however small in the field of production of petroleum should feel that they are not concerned with the success of this effort.

Summer Reading

In discussing the problem of the future of the petroleum industry many outstanding economists are now engaged. Therefore, what we could say would be puny indeed as compared to what they should find. The stimulation from these queries though seems to justify looking backward as well as forward. The oil industry was first to enter into the depression. As a matter of fact, we were having our own depression prior to the general depression which hit our country. Therefore, we were first to be caused to study the means of getting out of the depression. The first industry to begin to show signs of recovery. How we met these problems is now history but it becomes interesting history from the standpoint of how to avoid a similar depression in the future and in measuring the value of effort on the part of those concerned.

Recognizing that all industrial problems were receiving more and more attention in Washington, our Association asked the writer of this letter to come to Washington and establish headquarters in May, 1931. Upon leaving for this task, I made a statement which was published in the May, 1931, issue of the Independent Petroleum Association Monthly. Part of this statement is as follows: "Today—the unsettled, discouraging situation in the oil industry is due to three things:

1. Flood of crude oil in East Texas.
2. Continued imports of foreign oil.
3. Enormous stocks of crude and refined oils.

"Obviously, the first problem in Texas' problem, exclusively. It would be extremely unwise for the National Government—or any other external agency—to interfere in this problem. The great State of Texas, and the oil producers therein, must face—and solve—this problem. And with this problem unsolved, there can be no stabilization of the industry either within or without the State of Texas."

Further Federal Control

Outside of establishing a definite limitation on imports and the extension of the "Hot Oil" law, there would not seem to be any justification for further Federal legislation so long as the now existing agencies function. Therefore, the success of the meeting of the Interstate Compact Commission at Dallas, July 30, becomes extremely important. If the states now members continue their operation and if states who are not members continue to cooperate, either by becoming members or by recognizing the program, the stability of the oil industry would seem to be assured. Success in this is the best answer to the demand for Federal control. With the increased demand for petroleum products and the encouraging cooperation in marketing, lower prices are indicated.

The future of the industry should inspire confidence. The long expected price increase for crude cannot be delayed much longer if we can make the program of balancing supply with demand effective.

STARR COUNTY PARK IS OLDEST IN COUNTRY, TOTALLY PETRIFIED

ROMA, Texas, July 18 (AP)—This border town's new park perhaps is the oldest in the country. It consists wholly of petrified wood taken from a little known "stone" forest nearby. One of the rarest specimens has an arrowhead about three inches long buried in it. The finely splintered wood, perfectly preserved, indicates the arrow was shot into the tree while it was living, perhaps hundreds of thousands of years ago. The arrow is not of flint, indicating it belonged to a more remote period. Geologists said they had not been able to identify it. Petrified forests have been found in several other sections of Texas and in some places, notably around Glenn Rose and Stephenville in Central Texas, the fossilized wood has become popular as building material. One of the largest petrified forests in the state was found near Bluff Dale in Earth county. Other sizeable collections were located in the same county in the coal-mining region near Thurbur near Thurbur. One of the Thurbur forests was discovered a few years ago by Ross R. Wolfe of Stephenville. It appeared never to have been molested. The long petrified trunks were in rows, and there was little tangle. Wolfe said the position of the trunks indicated the forest may have been leveled in a storm. The Big Bend country also has petrified wood. A 70-foot long ossified log found near Engle Pass is in a San Antonio museum.

ner of the house just then and they could not keep the story from her. She listened quietly, and then insisted on joining the search. "What do you think?" she asked Pat anxiously as she fell into step beside him. "Do you believe we'll find him?"

"The others had gone on ahead. Pat stopped and took both the girl's hands in his. "I have a hunch we won't," he said. "I wish you'd go back into the house, Claire. I'd feel safer about you if you did."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER V As Dan stared at the bloody cap, his mask-like face showed emotion for the first time, but whether it was amazement or fear it was impossible to tell.

Bob turned to him. "You were with Eb, weren't you, when he went back to the tool house?" "Yes and no," Dan answered. "We walked down to the shed, as I said, but he went back alone to see if he'd locked the door. Told me to go on up to the house."

"What do you think?" she asked Pat anxiously as she fell into step beside him. "Do you believe we'll find him?"

First National Bank In Pampa Member Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation [QUESTIONS THAT ARE ASKED ABOUT BANKING] Why is public confidence so important to a bank? THERE are two main reasons why public confidence is so important to a bank. In the first place people must have confidence in a bank before they will deposit their money.

She turned the leaves of the book in her lap absentely. Then her uncle's neat handwriting met her eye, and she looked at it with closer attention. She had never heard that Uncle Lyman wrote poetry himself, but here was evidently an original verse: "Deep in the mountain depths I lie.

"I would be like Eb to start a hole here and then rush off to the village to get something to cut the roots with. That's likely just where he's gone now." She seemed to get an immense satisfaction out of her own explanation. "Yeah! But that don't tell why he left his cap behind smeared with blood spots, Miss Spratt," answered Pat.

"Sussie flashed him an angry glance. "Eb might-a whanged his head or something when he was leavin' over." "He might, Sussie," agreed Dan Dallas. "And then again, maybe he didn't."

"Well, anyway, I ain't stayin' out here to get soaked. Claire, you better come on in, too." Sussie turned on her heel. "Say, there's Eb comin' now. No it ain't, it's—"

"Claire, honey!" Hannah threw her arms about the girl and stood panting for breath. "You're all right then. Down there. Just back of those aspens. I took the short cut. A man—he's layin' on his face. I—I think he's dead!"

CLARK GABLE TO APPEAR IN 'FRISCO FILM

JEANETTE MACDONALD WILL BE HIS CO-STAR

"San Francisco" brings Clark Gable and Jeanette MacDonald together as a co-starring team for the first time.

The musical romance gives Miss MacDonald her widest scope in vocal numbers in her screen career—a total of nine presentations ranging from a solemn hymn to the most beautiful operatic arias.

Clark Gable returns to the vigorous type of role that first elevated him to stardom as a blustery Barbary Coast gambling baron who has no faith in anything but his own power and his charm over women.

Co-starring with Miss MacDonald and Gable is Spencer Tracy in his most unusual role, that of a priest; a distinguished supporting cast includes Jack Holt, Jessie Ralph, Ted Healey, Shirley Ross, Margaret Irving, Harold Hubbs, Al Shean, William Riccardi and Kenneth Harlan.

"San Francisco" is laid in the colorful period of 1905-6, its life of gaiety and song, its Barbary Coast prior to and through the disaster that leveled the famous Golden Gate city thirty years ago.

Among Miss MacDonald's vocal numbers are:

The "Jewel Song" from "Faust"; musical excerpts throughout the "Faust" opera; the "Prison Trio" with Mephistopheles and Faust; an aria from "La Traviata"; "Love Me and the World Is Mine"; "My Heart Is Free"; Gounod's "Ave Maria"; "Nearer, My God, to Thee"; "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "San Francisco." Other rollicking musical features of the period are contributed by Shirley Ross and Ted Healey in the quaint setting of a Barbary Coast resort.

The picture follows closely in the wake of the tremendous successes scored by "Naughty Marietta" and "Rose Marie," and comes to the screen as the third of Miss MacDonald's films directed by W. R. Van Dyke.

Two Stars in a Throbbing Drama

Clark Gable and Jeanette MacDonald, teamed for the first time in "San Francisco," with Spencer Tracy, soar to new heights in this flaming romance of the Barbary Coast, directed by the man who gave the screen "Naughty Marietta" and "Rose Marie."

Monument Erected.

As a part of the state-wide beautification and centennial acquaintance program, the state highway department is erecting a monument in Hemphill county. The monument is located midway between Canadian and the river bridge. Similar monuments are being located at all county seats and at other interesting sites throughout the state. Assistant Division Engineer Gaston of the Texas Highway Department is supervising the work here. The project will likely be completed in two weeks.

Placed exactly between two large cottonwood trees, the monument itself is composed of a granite rock 30x24x44 inches, placed on a flagstone platform. Attached on the top of the rock is a bronze 18x20 inch plate bearing this inscription: Hemphill county formed from Young and Texas territories. Created August 21, 1876. Organized July 5, 1886. Named in honor of John Hemphill, 1809-1862. First Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Texas, Adjutant General of the Somerville Expedition. Member of the First State Constitutional Convention, Member of the United States Congress, Canadian, the county seat.

OFFICER POINTS TO MONEY SAVED ON FREIGHT BILL

AUSTIN, July 18.—Millions of dollars were saved Texas farmers and ranchmen during the drought, depression and dust-storm periods by freight rate reduction initiated by the Railroad Commission, Ernest O. Thompson, chairman of the commission, declared in a recent address.

Thompson, a candidate for reelection to the commission in the July primaries, has given full explanation of the commission's freight rate decisions in his campaign speeches.

When the drought situation became acute two years ago, Thompson said he took the initiative in bringing about lower freight rates on cattle, foodstuffs and farm products to tide farmers and ranchmen through the period of stress.

Millions of dollars were saved farmers by reductions in rates on grain, while the initiation of a carload shipment plan for cotton has reduced the cost of shipping a bale of Texas cotton from the interior to the ports more than half, he stated.

Humphrey Bogart served in the navy during the war but he didn't make application for his bonus because "I don't believe in such things."

ENGLISHMAN'S WAR ON NOOSE WILL BE BROUGHT TO AMERICA

LONDON, July 18 (AP)—England's one-woman crusade against capital punishment will land at New York in September for a whirlwind campaign—cost no object.

The woman is Mrs. Violet Van der Elst, wealthy, stout and blonde, whose spectacular anti-hanging demonstrations in Britain have cost her $120,000 a year, by her own estimate, and brought her world-wide notice.

"If we can abolish capital punishment in England and America," she said at her restful, old-fashioned Kensington home, "every other country where legalized murder is still in force will follow the example."

Will Spend To Save.

With an army of assistants, Mrs. Van der Elst plans to start her work abroad on a big scale.

"What is Madison Square Garden like?" she asked. "The more people it holds the better. I'll take it if I can get it for my first meeting—money is no object."

A widow with brooding dark gray eyes and a penchant for jewelry, Mrs. Van der Elst reckoned she has been spending $60,000 a year on her English campaign plus $60,000 to cover the losses of her anti-capital punishment magazine.

Her most sensational demonstration was held outside Strangeways prison during the execution of Dr. Buck Ruxton, convicted of murdering his wife.

Crowd Boos Her.

After being jeered and booed by part of the big mob at the gates, she was hemmed in her car by a crowd with police lining both running boards. Later a Manchester
