POSSIBLY CANCER

Virus Diseases May Be Cured

By WILLIAM B. MEAD
WASHINGTON (UPI)—The common cold and a vast range of other virus diseases may have finally met their match. Government scientists, in a major scientific breakthrough, say they have discovered a medicine which may lead to control of virus diseases from colds to smallpox simply by making the body's own disease-fighting apparatus work better. There was a possibility that the discovery could even prove to be a cure for cancer. The medicine may both cure and prevent, its discoverers said Thursday as the National Institutes of Health (NIH) announced the discovery. The medicine was developed by NIH scientists in conjunction with New York Medical College. Dr. Samuel Baron, a NIH virologist, said the medicine—a synthetic RNA (ribonucleic acid)—stimulates the body's own virus-fighting system, called interferon, to work harder and do a better job of warding off diseases. Possible Cancer Cure Depending on whether human cancer is a virus—an unanswered medical question—the medicine could prove to be a cure or treatment for cancer and leukemia. Baron cautioned that more tests are necessary to make sure that the RNA has no harmful side effects. Tests so far, all conducted on animals, have produced none. He said if all goes well the medicine may be available for use generally within five years. Once in mass production, he said, "It would be no more expensive than the antibiotics which are available today." Since RNA is a single medicine which fights virtually all viruses, Eason said, it might enable doctors to bypass the usual steps of developing a vaccine against a particular disease, thus eliminating the medical barriers to successful treatment of encephalitis, serum hepatitis, viral pneumonia and, possibly, cancer. Cures for Some He said cures and immunizing medicines already are available for most other serious virus diseases, including polio, smallpox, influenza, measles and yellow fever. The medicine, which would be taken simply by inhaling it like a nasal mist, would be used as "a preventive when you do not have a vaccine," Baron said. It would be used as a cure in the same circumstances, he said. As an immunizer, he said, the medicine's effects would not

Rusk Warns NATO Of Soviet Attack

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG
BRUSSELS (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk told the NATO council of ministers today the United States cannot remain indifferent in the event of a new Soviet attack in Eastern Europe similar to the invasion of Czechoslovakia. U.S. delegation sources reported. Other conference sources said Rusk told the NATO foreign ministers the fate of Austria and Yugoslavia are closely linked with NATO's own security interests and that an attack on Romania would lead to an even graver crisis than that which followed the invasion of Czechoslovakia. Informed sources quoted Rusk as saying such an attack in Eastern Europe would seriously impede improvement of relations between the United States and the Eastern European Communist countries. Rusk spoke on the second day of a three-day session heavily dominated by the Czechoslovak crisis. The U.S. delegation did not release the text of Rusk's speech, and U.S. sources denied he made as tough a statement as that reported by others at the meeting. But they said he did indicate in general terms the United States could not be indifferent in the event of a new Soviet attack. One conference source quoted Rusk as saying textually in this context: "We must indicate that what happens in Yugoslavia and Austria is related to Western security." This source said he also warned an attack on Romania would touch off an even graver crisis. The U.S. delegation refused to confirm these purported quotes. Rusk was making his last appearance here after eight years of representing the United States at the NATO council. He

Air Force Hits Two Red Camps In Vietnam DMZ

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. Air Force divebombers and allied artillery today blasted two North Vietnamese camps in Vietnam's Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), killing 34 Communists and triggering 12 explosions in guerrilla fuel and ammunition stockpiles. Unofficially, the new Communist supply camps were the 11th and 12th violations of a Hanoi agreement that it would not "abuse" the zone if the United States would stop the bombing of North Vietnam. The United States warned the violations could undermine peace efforts in Paris.

In the French capital, North Vietnamese officials denied their troops had violated the six-mile-wide zone separating North and South Vietnam. American headquarters said today's was the heaviest one-day bombardment of the zone by allied forces since President Johnson halted the northern bombing Nov. 1. For the third successive day, the allies fired into the DMZ without first being fired upon by the Communists. Again it was a U.S. Army spotter pilot who sighted the guerrilla camps, in the southern half of the DMZ three miles north of the South Vietnamese hilltop outpost at Gio Linh. He immediately called in F4 Phantom fighter-bombers and 155mm artillery strikes. Only Thursday, allied guns shelled two North Vietnamese bunker bases in the zone—the second time they had fired into the strip without first being fired upon. Those barrages ignited a 500-foot fireball. The first time was Wednesday when a U.S. spotter pilot directed 500 rounds of artillery and naval gunfire onto a group of 15 North Vietnamese soldiers in the southern half of the DMZ. There was no immediate explanation whether Gen. Creighton W. Abrams' U.S. command had changed its tactics in dealing with North Vietnamese activity in the zone.

Comprehensive City Plan Tour Set for Tuesday

A tour of Pampa to physically review and study the community in regard to a proposed comprehensive plan for Pampa is scheduled for next Tuesday afternoon, City Manager Charles Hill said today. Hill said the bus tour will start from the north side of City Hall at 1 p.m. and proceed to the southern part of the city, terminating at City Hall at approximately 3 p.m. The city manager said Marvin

Rain and Sleet Reported In Vicinity, More Forecast

Rainfall amounts recorded in Pampa and surrounding vicinities since early Thursday ranged from 35 to almost an inch in Pampa. Half an inch to 60 were reported in Lefors, Laketon and southwest of Pampa while rainfall amounts in other areas outside of Pampa ranged from .30 to .70. Light fog and mist was reported Thursday morning. Heaviest downpours were recorded early Thursday, a telephone survey indicates. Most of the other moisture has been in the form of light drizzle and slow rainfall. Some very light sleet was reported in some parts of the county. Pampa's high Thursday was 56 degrees and much the same readings were reported in other parts of the county. Overnight lows were all around 34 and ranged from 35 to almost an inch in Pampa. The Amarillo Weather Bureau said the cool front was expected to move southward to Central Texas by late today, but some rain and brisk temperatures were to remain across most of the Panhandle and northern half of the state through Saturday. Forecasts of temperatures in the 40s today and an overnight low of near 30 were called for by the Amarillo Weather Bureau. Winds are expected to be light and the temperature is expected to climb to the low 50s by Saturday. An auto accident near White Deer and motorcycle-car wreck in Lefors were attributed to the inclement weather.

U. S. Insists Policy Called for Two Sides

By LOREN JENKINS
PARIS (UPI)—North Vietnam today accused the United States of breaking its word on war negotiations. It also said charges of Communist violations of Vietnam's Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) were a "maneuver designed to hide American policy of aggression." Nguyen Thanh Le, chief spokesman for the Hanoi delegation here, told a news conference the United States had agreed to separate Viet Cong and North Vietnamese delegations at planned talks here. "Instead of keeping its word, the United States now claims that the agreement called for a two-sided conference," Le said. "Such an assertion is groundless." The United States has insisted its talk agreements with Hanoi called only for two sides—the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong on one side and the United States and the South Vietnamese on the other. The South artillery shelling across the DMZ," Le said. "This is a maneuver aimed at hiding the intensification of its war of aggression, its continuation of overflights of North Vietnam in order to fool world public opinion which is demanding the immediate convening of substantive Paris talks." President Johnson halted U.S. bombing of North Vietnam Nov. 1 to get expanded talks here. American planes have continued to fly over North Vietnam but only on photo-reconnaissance missions. But Le called these flights "a great provocation." He demanded they be stopped immediately. In Saigon, U.S. commanders said the reconnaissance flights showed the North Vietnamese using the bombing Vietnamese have refused to come to the talks, saying they will not take part unless the Viet Cong show up only as part of the Hanoi delegation. Claim Violations Le's accusation about the DMZ violations was a formal reply to Washington charges that the North Vietnamese were endangering the talks here by continuing to use the North-South Vietnam border zone as a base for military operations. In Saigon, military reports said the Communists have violated the DMZ at least 12 times since the Paris talks agreement was announced Oct. 31. According to diplomatic reports, Hanoi was said to have agreed to deescalate its use of the DMZ as one condition for the talks. "The United States is making a big noise about so-called

Carson County Set To Observe Its Pioneer Day

PANHANDLE — An all-day series of programs are slated here tomorrow in observance of the annual Carson County Pioneer Day. The programs will include ribbon-cutting for a new addition to the Square House Museum; a Pioneer Tea; "The Impossible Dream," a program of patriotism and heritage; a barbecue; a presentation of German folk music; and the unveiling of three historical markers. Special tribute is being paid this year to early-day Panhandle pioneers C. "P. Buckler, Maggie Marie Weatherly, Laura V. Hamner and George L. Simms. The historical markers will honor the surveying firm that laid out the city of Panhandle; the Simms brothers, who plowed a 115-mile long fire lane in the early hazardous days of prairie fires caused frequently by passing trains; and the last will mark the terminus of the Santa Fe, which once ended near Panhandle. The Pioneer Tea will be held from 1:30 to 3 p.m. in the War Memorial and will be hosted by the Federated Women's Clubs of Panhandle. The afternoon program of "The Impossible Dream" will be held from 3 to 4:30 p.m. in the Panhandle High School auditorium. The program of patriotism and heritage will feature songs by local talent and speeches by several per-

School Board To Study Plans For Track, Cafeteria

Pampa school board Thursday scheduled a called meeting for 6 p.m. Nov. 26 in Superintendent Dr. James F. Malone's office to study specifications and plans for a new lighted track at Pampa High School and cafeterias for Mann and Wilson Elementary Schools. The board met in Carver Educational Service Center with Athletic Director Swede Lee to discuss the need for a new track. Trustees voted to authorize Dr. Malone to secure an architect to submit specifications and a cost analysis for an all-weather 440 track and cafeterias within the present structures at the two elementary schools. Trustees also approved two resignations, employed four in the district, accepted low bids on 53 filing cabinets and announced a science teachers' workshop for Pampa. Resignations approved were for James Albin, bus driver; and Bobby Stephens, baseball coach. Stephens, teacher here three years, made his

Catholic Bishops Approve Birth Control in Some Circumstances

By LOUIS CASSELS
WASHINGTON (UPI)—America's Catholic bishops today approved a pastoral letter holding that there may be circumstances in which a Catholic couple can practice contraception without falling into sin. Details of the 11,000-word document were not immediately made public. They were expected to be released about noon CST. The draft of the letter by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops also said that the draft law should be amended to provide exemption from military service to "selective conscientious objectors" — those who object to a particular war rather than to all wars. It also called for a reappraisal of America's commitment in Vietnam. Authoritative sources said that after a brisk floor debate, several straw votes and numerous revisions of language since it was first presented on Monday, the pastoral letter now commanded the overwhelming support among the bishops. Chief interest centered on the birth control section in which the American bishops gave their pastoral interpretation of Pope Paul's July encyclical declaring contraception contrary to natural law and therefore immoral. The American bishops emphasized at great length that the papal encyclical is "the authentic teaching of the church" and should be respectfully accepted by all faithful Catholics. However they said it is up to each Catholic couple to apply this moral teaching to its own circumstances with "a practical judgment of the rightness and wrongness of a given action here and now." Thus a couple might conscientiously conclude that because of their circumstances at that

Lefors Optimists To Have Supper

The Lefors Optimist Club will have its annual hot dog supper today in observance of youth appreciation week. The meeting will be held in the Civic Center at 7:30 p.m.

Junior high through high school youth will be honored at this supper and meeting for good conduct and behavior.

Curtis Griffin, past lieutenant governor of this area, of Pampa will be guest speaker.

Sunday the Optimist Club will have its annual Optimist dinner at the cafeteria to raise money needed to carry on work with the youth. Serving will begin at noon.

Local Churches To Take Census

Fifteen churches of Pampa are cooperating in the taking of a telephone religious census.

The churches have turned in membership lists to Roy Koenig, minister of education of First Baptist Church, chairman of the project.

The telephone numbers on the list and the commercial numbers will not be called. The remaining 3,748 numbers will be contacted by volunteers.

Price of admission is $1.50 for those 11 years of age and up; 75 cents for those 10 and under; and $5 for an immediate family ticket.

LIVE WIRE

In Greensboro, S.C., a wind-storm knocked down a power pole, leaving a live wire exposed on the ground. J. B. Walke stood guard over the wire most of the next day to keep people away from it until power officials, plagued by broken lines and power failures in 20,000 homes, could repair it. The Greensboro Record said Walke "should be commended for his fine attitude and service to the people."

You, Your Child and School

By DAVID NYDICK
UPI Education Specialist

This past Sunday was the first day of American education week as declared by President Johnson. He stated, "Education—universal, equal and excellent—is a goal which we have cherished since our country's birth. In the last decade, however, we have sought to fulfill this goal with greater zeal, greater commitment and greater success than at any period in our history."

America has a good thing going—its schools. This is a theme which is most appropriate. There has been a great deal of turmoil, confusion, and strife related to the schools.

Regardless of the criticisms and many negative attitudes, we have an outstanding educational system in this country. This doesn't ignore the need for improvement; it is just a suggestion that people remember the many good qualities about their schools, not just the areas reeking criticism. Millions of you have visited the schools this week. You saw special programs in the auditorium, exhibits of students' work, and visited regular classrooms to see lessons.

These were good experiences. You had the opportunity to learn a little more about the schools, the programs, and the staff. Perhaps the most important part of this week is that it is an introduction to the schools. Maybe more parents will continue to learn more about their school system.

The schools need community support throughout the year, not just on special occasions. It is true in most cases that you get what you deserve. Committees with parents and adults who are interested and actively supportive of the schools normally have the better school system.

The week has been highlighted by the daily themes which point out the special contributions of the schools:

- Stimulate moral and spiritual values (Sunday)
- Strengthen the nation (Monday)
- Aspire to quality teaching (Tuesday)
- Provide equal opportunity (Wednesday)
- Foster lifelong learning (Thursday)
- Promote economic prosperity (Friday)
- Strive for healthy personality development (Saturday)

These are excellent goals for the schools. In order to achieve these, there is a need for broad support and participation on the part of everyone. The schools cannot be the "whipping boy" for the ills of society. We can and should look to our schools to help solve these ills for future generations.

Let's support our schools with constructive suggestions rather than destructive criticism. Let's work together. The results will be the basis for our future.

Fashion Makers Question Use Of Fluid Style

HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—NEA—The one question in the world of fashion that can arouse more pros and cons than any other is, "Has the waistline returned to the point where the unfitted shape is out of style?"

Let's take the pros—those who without a moment's hesitation vote "Aye." They feel that a belt leaves no doubt there is a waistline which may or may not need trimming down. And they claim the belt is a bold statement of femininity that is here to stay.

On the other hand the cons maintain you cannot beat the unrestrained fluidity that the no-belt silhouette displays. It is so easy to wear and still accentuates the figure with subtle nuance. Further it permits more diet self-indulgence and adds up to a more-relaxed way of living.

Right now the pros appear to be in the ascendancy for, like it or not the belt is influencing fashion.

Like most "let's try and see" innovations it started with a small foothold pushed the fashion door a bit wider and now is intently bent on not being denied.

Yet the key to good fashion is to dress the way you look best. Individuality is an important factor in dressing.

The maxi shirt caters to both sides of the waist question. The shirt-that-grew is designed to be worn either way—with or without a belt.

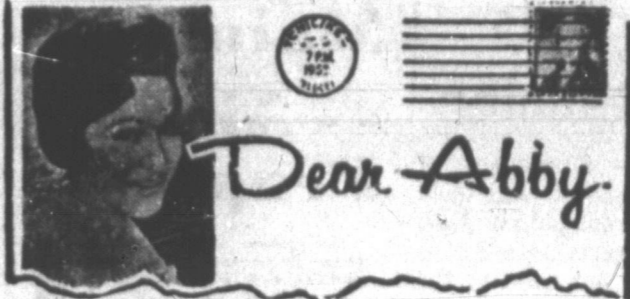

Members of the beltless breed cheer up. Be an individual. Go beltless if you prefer that look. At last you will be expressing you.

DEAR ABBY: I'm confused. Emily Post says the bride goes down the aisle on her father's right arm. Amy Vanderbilt says there is no "rule."—It's the minister's preference.

I've attended two weddings in the past month, and both brides went down the aisle on their father's left arm.

Did you have a formal church wedding? And if so, on which on your father's arms did you go down the aisle?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: I had a formal church wedding 30 years ago which I (and the whole Sioux City, Ia.) shall never forget. It didn't matter on which of my father's arms I was because he had a twin daughter on each one.

I say, which arm is unimportant, as long as the father gets his daughter off his hands.

DEAR ABBY: My son Ronnie is a pretty good all-around kid, but he is crazy over cars. This doesn't particularly bother me, but it bothers his mother to distraction.

Ronnie loves cars and everything that is connected with them. But it doesn't stop there. He will sit on a chair, or a step, and "pretend" he is a car, and he goes through all the motions from starting a car, to racing the motor, to squeaking tires with all the sound effects.

Asking him to stop doesn't help. He doesn't hear me half the time. I know it is not unusual for kids to use their imaginations, but I wonder if Ronnie is too wrapped up in his imaginary "car" for his own good? I keep hoping he'll outgrow it.

RONNIE'S FATHER
DEAR FATHER: You don't say how old Ronnie is, which is very important. If you think he should have "outgrown" this childish charade by now, perhaps you should ask his doctor before the kid persuades you to trade him in on a newer model.

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband sent our two children an 8 by 10 photograph of himself. I had it framed and hung it in their bedroom. It's the only picture they have of him, and they see him only twice a year as he lives out of town now.

I remarried, and my husband objects to my having my ex-husband's picture in the house. I told him that although the man is no longer my husband, he is still my children's father, but he can't see this. Who is right, Abby?

IN DOUBT

DEAR IN: I think you are. And so will your husband if he wants to be fair.

DEAR ABBY: I just have to answer the wife who complained about "gutsy

Upsilon Chapter Members Attend Dentistry Program

Upsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met recently in the Hospitality Room of Citizens Bank and Trust.

Mrs. Bill Greer, ways and means chairman, discussed the upcoming chapter bazaar and displayed several "easy to do crafts" for the bazaar.

Upsilon members decided to have three gift exchange sessions during the year—at Christmas, Valentine and end of the year.

It was also decided Upsilon members will give a Thanksgiving Basket and named Mrs. Charles Potter and Mrs. Darrell Danner as chairmen. Members are to bring their items for the basket at the next meeting.

Mrs. B. D. Kindle, program chairman, introduced Mrs. Robert Brogdon and her program, "Environment, Health, Work and Play". She appeared in her white dental assistant uniform to present her program and stressed the importance of caring properly for children's teeth.

Hostesses were Mrs. Jimmie Carter and Mrs. Kenneth Freeman. A patriotic theme was used for the centerpiece of red, white and blue on a bright red tablecloth. Napkins with the American flag and favors of tiny flags in red and white gumdrops completed decorations. During the social, members discussed the presidential election.

Other members present were Mmes. Jack Eubanks, Kenneth Heflin, E. C. Jenkins, James Ownsby, Max Patton, Tommy Richardson, Joe Lamberson, Ronald Fox, W. Dean Wilson and Betty Scott.

AT-HOME ELEGANCE—A dashing hostess look for the holidays is the cotton velveteen ensemble. Miss Pat of California designs it with a long tunic jacket and pants with flaring legs that scrape the heels.

Fabric textures will be bolder in spring and summer clothes. The Fashion Group reports new crackling blistered surfaces are a common denominator to many. The new season also will be one in which extras count. Embellishments include beads, braid, embroidery, jewels, ribbons.

The Lighter Side
 By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—If you find yourself reading more now but enjoying it less, you may be suffering from scatological fatigue.

But don't be alarmed. The condition isn't incurable. It only means you have become tired of seeing four-letter words in print.

Almost everyone who is exposed to contemporary fiction incurs the malady to some degree.

The quickest way to throw it off is to search your bookshelf for a novel written back in the days when authors employed symbols to represent Anglo-Saxon vulgarities.

Some of those symbols were marvelously expressive. A good symbol man was a far more inventive writer than the current crop of novelists who insist on spelling it out for you.

I personally have always admired the "blankety-blank" school of obscenity obscuration.

"Blankety-blank you, John Dalton! For two cents I would give you such a blankety-blank thrashing you would remember it for the rest of your blankety-blanking life."
 The beauty of a passage like that is that it permits the reader to fill in the blanks from his own vocabulary, which may be a good bit more potent than the run-of-the-mill novelist's.

I have also encountered some extremely proficient dot, dash and asterisk authors. One book I remember enjoying was banned in Boston because of its sexy...s.

The trick here is knowing when to use which. If a novelist has one of his characters exclaim—when... is indicated, it can ruin the entire chapter.

As a rule of thumb, dots should be used when ladies are present; dashes are best in a dialogue between two men, and asterisks have the greatest impact when the author is speaking for himself.

I feel, however, that the most effective obscenity symbols in all literature are created when an author unleashes his emotions with an improvised composition on the upper case keys on the top row of his typewriter.

No four-letter word can possibly be as bawdy as: quote —&&&*&—unquote.

If the author is feeling particularly risqué, he might throw in a few number and percent symbols to make the shock more intensive. They can knock a reader right out of his chair.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—A sublime ode to nature was presented by ABC-TV Wednesday night in an hour special, "The Sense of Wonder," based on works of the late marine biologist and author, Rachel Carson.
 The broadcast, narrated with perception and feeling by Helen Hayes, incisively explored Miss Carson's reverence for the natural world around us—and her belief that appreciation of the earth, sea and sky can sustain one's soul throughout a lifetime.
 Viewers could only admire the skill with which the program was made not only visually effective, but actually inspiring, by Executive Producer Jules Power, Producer Daniel Wilson and Director Alan Seeger. The script by Joseph Hurley was poignant, direct and highly intelligent, drawing skillfully on Miss Carson's words.
 The photography, from seashore to city, from forest to desert, was outstanding, providing numerous fascinating shots of animals, birds, flowers and the like. And the constant emphasis on the instilling of a love of nature in children went beyond the obvious, touching on a philosophical base with which to approach life. It was a program from which youngsters and their parents could feel mutual benefit.

Perhaps best of all, the references to Miss Carson's book "Silent Spring," which caused a controversy in its deserved and accepted criticism of the use of pesticides on nature's creations, showed the direct application of philosophy to action and practicality.
 In an age when pollution threatens to destroy the wonders around us, this one little lady's quiet fervor for the essentials of life made her a rally point for those who would prevent filth and poisoning for profit.
 What Miss Carson was saying, of course, is that if the sense of wonder for the real beauties of life is instilled early and naturally in human beings, there is at least a chance in the constant fight against soulless profiteers.
 ABC-TV confirmed Wednesday its major midseason shakeup. Canceled as of their Jan. 30 broadcasts are "The Ugliest Girl in Town" and "Journey to the Unknown." On Jan. 31, The Don Rickles Show, "Felony Squad" and "Operation: Entertainment" will present their first shows. And the Wednesday edition of "Peyton Place" is another midseason casualty, although the Monday edition will ride out the 1968-69 semester. The new series are:
 —"Section 8," a satirical, topical half-hour of comedy by the producers of "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In." It arrives Feb. 5.
 —"What's It All About World?," an hour of contemporary comedy and occasional music, starring Dean Jones.
 —"The Tom Jones Show," a weekly variety hour headlining the British pop singer, and beginning Feb. 7.
 —"Generation gap," a half-hour game show pitting two panels—one of teenagers, the other of adults over 30—against each other. Starts Feb. 7.
 —"Let's make a Deal," an obnoxious longtime game show, will also go into ABC's prime time Feb. 7. And in other changes, "The Flying Nun" will begin at 7:30 p.m. EST starting Feb. 6, a half-hour earlier than its current time slot—and, the same day, "That Girl" will move up to 8 p.m. EST, an hour earlier than its present position.

Rev. Downing to Discuss 'Paradox and Christianity'

The Rev. Carlton S. Downing will deliver the sermon for the morning worship in the First Christian Church, corner of 18th and Nelson. He has chosen for his sermon topic "Paradox and Christianity" with scriptures from Matt. 16:24-27.

He will be joined at the Lecture by the Rev. J. W. Duke. The choir, under the direction of Miss Rosemary Lawlor and accompanied by Mrs. John Gill, will present the Anthem.

Snack Supper will be at 5:30 p.m. Sunday. The cost is 25 cents per person and the young people are welcome to bring guests. The evening youth group meetings are at 6 p.m. each Sunday evening.

Monday the Fellowship Sunday School Class will have its Bible study in the home of Mrs. Ann Chapman, 2010 Hamilton, beginning at 7:30 p.m. The General Christian Womens Fellowship will meet Wednesday for their regular luncheon. This will be their Thanksgiving meeting, and they are honoring the shut-in members of the Church by bringing them to be guest of honor at this Luncheon.

An executive board meeting of the CWF will be held immediately following, according to the president, Mrs. Helen Maxey.

The Pastor's Cabinet of the First Christian Church will meet with Rev. Duke Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Church library.

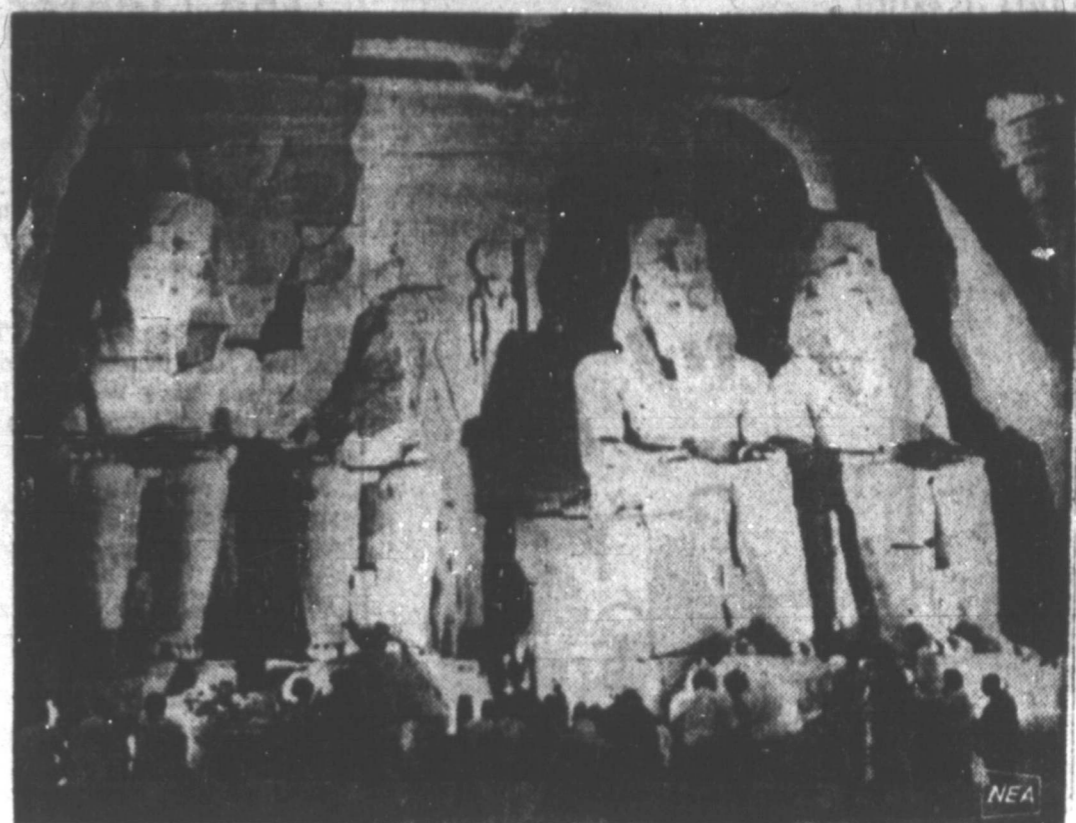

Scientists to Study Mortals, Immortals

"Thy hands have made me and fashioned me: give me understanding, that I may learn thy commandments. Let thy tender mercies come into me, that I may live: for thy law is my delight."

These words from Psalm 119 are part of the Bible lesson-sermon titled "Mortals and Immortals" to be read at the 11 a.m. service Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist. Related passages from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, include:

"In Science, man's immortality depends upon that of God, good, and follows as a necessary consequence of the immortality of good."

C. F. W. Von der Ahe, the third president of the old St. Louis Browns, was the originator of the hot dog.

FAITH WITHOUT ACTIONS

Person's Style of Life Often Reflects Religious Attitudes

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Many people equate religion with acceptance of certain doctrines.

But this is not the biblical view. In the great sourcebook of Judaism and Christianity, a religious person is distinguished not by his stated beliefs but by his actions, his attitudes, his relationships—in short, by his style of life.

It is of course true that everyone's style of life ultimately reflects his deepest convictions. But what a person says is not always a reliable guide to what he believes strongly enough to live by.

Some who profess ardent religious faith are unwilling to take any costly or dangerous action in obedience to that faith. And many who called themselves unbelievers display in actual practice a profound commitment to the values which biblical religion upholds.

Anyone who thinks that religion is merely a matter of "believing in God" will find little comfort in the Scriptures. "So you believe that there is one God?" asks the author of the New Testament epistle of James. "Good for you! The demons also believe that—and shudder."

Concerned With Actions
Hundreds of years earlier, the great Jewish prophets had warned that God is concerned with the way men act rather than their diligence in paying ritual tributes to him.

"Thus says the Lord," cried the prophet Amos: "I hate, I despise your feasts, and I take no delight in your solemn assemblies. . . . Take away from me the noise of your songs; to the melody of your harps I will not listen."

But let justice roll down like waters, and righteousness like an ever-flowing stream. . . . Perhaps the most persistent of all Christian heresies is the idea that a person is assured salvation if he publicly professes belief that Jesus is the son of God.

Jesus gave no encouragement to that kind of purely verbal piety. "Not every person who calls me 'Lord, Lord' will enter into the kingdom of heaven, but only those who do what my Father in Heaven wants them to do," he said in Sermon on the Mount.

On another occasion, when some of his disciples were proclaiming their devotion to him, he told them they could easily prove it by their deeds. "If you really love me," he said, "you will obey my commandments."

And I take no delight in your solemn assemblies. . . .

"Take away from me the noise of your songs; to the melody of your harps I will not listen."

But let justice roll down like waters, and righteousness like an ever-flowing stream. . . . Perhaps the most persistent of all Christian heresies is the idea that a person is assured salvation if he publicly professes belief that Jesus is the son of God.

Jesus gave no encouragement to that kind of purely verbal piety. "Not every person who calls me 'Lord, Lord' will enter into the kingdom of heaven, but only those who do what my Father in Heaven wants them to do," he said in Sermon on the Mount.

On another occasion, when some of his disciples were proclaiming their devotion to him, he told them they could easily prove it by their deeds. "If you really love me," he said, "you will obey my commandments."

Describes True Worship
No one attached greater importance to faith than the apostle Paul. But in his letter to Christians at Rome, he said that true worship consists of "offering yourself as a living sacrifice to God."

"Love one another warmly as brothers in Christ, and be eager to show respect for one another," he said. "Work hard and do not be lazy. Serve the Lord with a heart full of devotion . . . share your belongings with your needy brothers, and open your homes to strangers. . . . "Do not be proud but accept humble duties. Do not think of yourselves as wise. . . . If someone does evil to you, do not pay him back with evil. Try to do what all men consider to be good. Do everything possible, on your part, to live at peace with all men."

Re-read that passage and note the active verbs: Love . . . Work . . . Serve . . . Share. Accept . . . Try . . . Do.

The biblical emphasis on doing reaches a climax in the Epistle of James. "Do not fool yourselves by just listening to God's word," it admonishes. "Instead, put it into practice . . ."

"What good is it for a man to say, 'I have faith,' if his actions do not prove it? . . . show me how you can have faith without actions, and I will show you my faith by my actions."

Southern Baptist Minister Tries to 'Turn On' Hippies

ABILENE, Tex. (UPI)—Ron Willis is an impetuous young Southern Baptist minister from California whose sideline is getting hippies "turned on" with Christ.

Willis, who prefers not to be called "reverend" or pastor, says he is a "street minister." He has been talking to hippies in Oakland and Los Angeles for two years. He feels those who have gone some time without meals.

"I chat with them. I don't preach. I feed them if they're hungry." He does not always have to initiate the conversation.

He Looks Young
Willis, who is short, and has thick wavy brown hair, looks younger than his 28 years. His youthfulness, complete with some of the hippie slang, and a clerical collar he wears as street minister, are a drawing card for most hippies.

He said the collar, worn with an old corduroy coat and shabby slacks, "spells help." The young approach him with quiet imploring, calling "Father?" or "Reverend."

It is a person to person ministry that is slow, but it is the way the church has to work—on a personal level, said Willis. "Unless it does, the church is going to hell, baby."

Get Young Involved
His brief speech to the Baptist General Convention of Texas in Fort Worth was punctuated with urgings to the staid Baptist leadership to get young people involved in "social gospelism" that gives them usefulness and purpose.

He said work in poverty pockets and ghettos, constructing useful habits among the poor, was a rewarding outlet for youthful energy which "is going to find some release anyway."

Willis went to Abilene for morning seminars and an address to students at Hardin-Simmons University Tuesday.

Willis' discussion in Christian youth groups includes his conversion experienced five years ago, when he was assistant manager in a ladies ready to wear department in a Sacramento store. He says he met a man who "turned him on" for Christ.

"High on God"
He tells drug using hippies, "I've been getting high on God ever since."

Willis said, "The hippies have a legitimate search. They're looking for God, God who loves you even if you're not free, white and clean."

But the young minister, married and father of two, finds the hippies heartbreaking. He once had to help commit a 25-year-old school teacher from Kentucky to a hospital because she was completely insane from LSD.

The victories include a hitch hiker who had wandered for four years until Willis found him and put him to work in a coffee shop the minister owns.

What He Dislikes
He hates to see hippies sitting on street curbs without purpose. "You don't just hand out religious literature and kiss them goodbye. You don't just have programs to fill up the long hot summer. It's the long cold winter that's so bad."

Willis tells Southern Baptists if they filled up winter months with youthful activism, there would be no long hot summers. "The church hasn't failed. It just hasn't given enough guidelines—too many swimming parties and barbecues and not enough involvement."

Melonaire to Sing In Amarillo Program
The Melonaire, gospel singing group from Pampa, will perform tomorrow at the new Civic Auditorium in Amarillo.

The program will start at 7 p.m. Featured will be "The Blackwood Singers," "The Lancers" and "The Smitty Gatlin Trio," with various local talent.

Tickets will be on sale at the door at $2 for adults and $1 for students. The program will be emceed by Bob Ross of Gospel Music Times, heard regularly Sunday mornings on radio.

These public spirited firms are making this weekly message possible — join with the ministers of Pampa in hoping that each message will be an inspiration to everyone.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

BLYTH ROBINSON, Evangelist
Hi-Land Christian Church

New Testament Christianity Is Undenominational

A man from Germany, who had just arrived in this country, asked me, "Why is it that you Americans have one God, one Bible, yet have so many demoninations?"

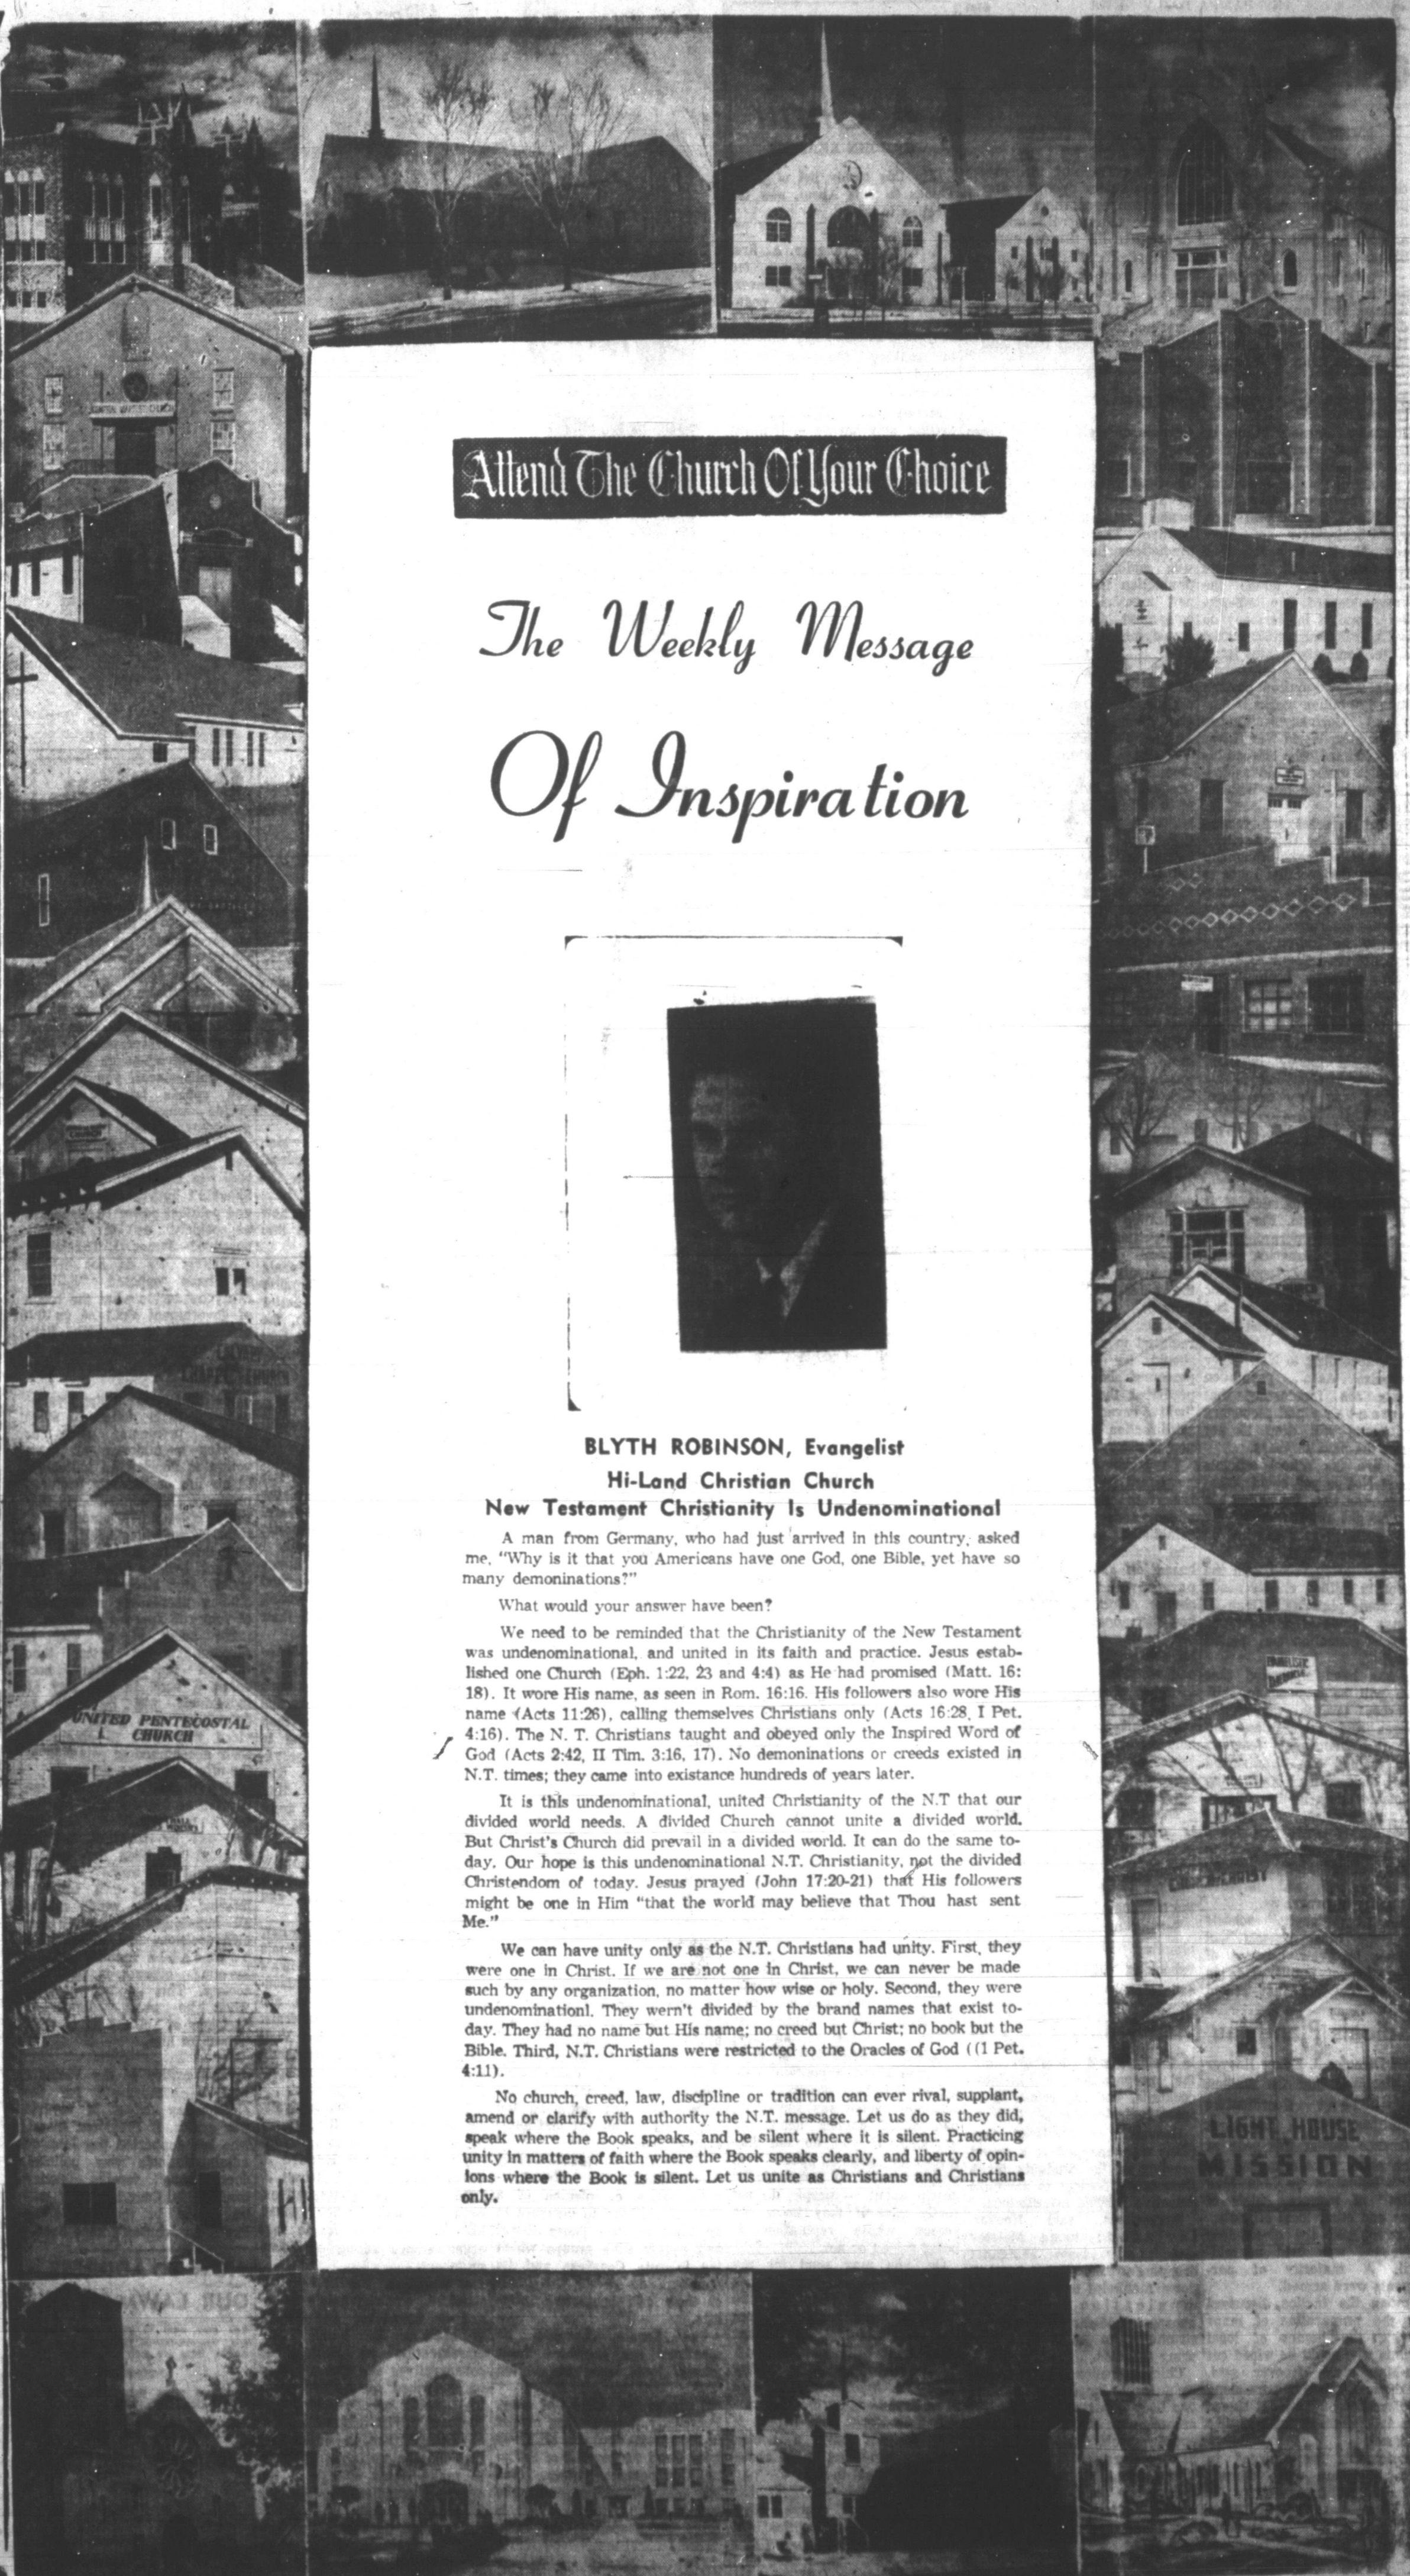

What would your answer have been?

We need to be reminded that the Christianity of the New Testament was undenominational, and united in its faith and practice. Jesus established one Church (Eph. 1:22, 23 and 4:4) as He had promised (Matt. 16:18). It wore His name, as seen in Rom. 16:16. His followers also wore His name (Acts 11:26), calling themselves Christians only (Acts 16:28, I Pet. 4:16). The N. T. Christians taught and obeyed only the Inspired Word of God (Acts 2:42, II Tim. 3:16, 17). No demoninations or creeds existed in N.T. times; they came into existence hundreds of years later.

It is this undenominational, united Christianity of the N.T. that our divided world needs. A divided Church cannot unite a divided world. But Christ's Church did prevail in a divided world. It can do the same today. Our hope is this undenominational N.T. Christianity, not the divided Christendom of today. Jesus prayed (John 17:20-21) that His followers might be one in Him "that the world may believe that Thou hast sent Me."

We can have unity only as the N.T. Christians had unity. First, they were one in Christ. If we are not one in Christ, we can never be made such by any organization, no matter how wise or holy. Second, they were undenominational. They weren't divided by the brand names that exist today. They had no name but His name; no creed but Christ; no book but the Bible. Third, N.T. Christians were restricted to the Oracles of God (I Pet. 4:11).

No church, creed, law, discipline or tradition can ever rival, supplant, amend or clarify with authority the N.T. message. Let us do as they did, speak where the Book speaks, and be silent where it is silent. Practicing unity in matters of faith where the Book speaks clearly, and liberty of opinions where the Book is silent. Let us unite as Christians and Christians only.

Another 'German Miracle'

Germany learned about inflation and printing press money (6,000,000,000 marks for a pound of butter, plus Adolf Hitler) the hard way after World War I. Several years ago, Edgar Schlesinger, of Monticello, N. Y., sent the Wall Street Journal tangible evidence of the lesson the Germans learned. One item was a letter mailed in Germany on May 23, 1923, bearing 550 marks postage. Some six months later, at the end of November, another letter required postage costing 220 billion marks.

West Germany's finance minister after World War II was Ludwig Erhard, who learned his economics under an old-fashioned economist, the late Wilhelm Roepke.

Erhard rejected the recommendation of the U.S. Advisory Commission that Germany should go the socialist route to rehabilitation in the reconstruction period. Instead, he turned to private enterprise. The result came to be known as "the miracle of West Germany."

With business booming in 1968, and unemployment a mere half of one per cent, German officialdom recognized the signs of creeping inflation. Prices, as a result of money inflation, were rising at about four to five per cent, (as they are doing now in the U.S.).

Remembering 1923, West German officials clamped down hard on the boom that was getting out of hand. Government spending was restrained. Credit, as a result, was curbed, and money was made more expensive. There were gloomy predictions that the "miracle" was ending, as buying and production fell off temporarily, new investment in plant and equipment decreased and unemployment rose to 2.3 per cent.

Still, the government persevered in its policy, and the old-fashioned remedy worked. Now they are speaking of it as "another German miracle."

West Germany, slightly smaller than the state of Oregon, and with a population of 60 million, is producing $1.30 billion a year—third after the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. Her foreign trade is second only to the U.S. in the "free world," as are her gold and dollar reserves. Unemployment has eased down to just one per cent and prices have stabilized, rising less than one per cent in the past year.

Today, the German mark may well be regarded as the world's strongest currency.

Fighting inflation does require some fortitude and at least some understanding of fundamental economic principles.

Miracle? No, just plain, common old horse sense.

School Plans Go Awry

It would be laughable if it were not so tragic. For years the educational hierarchy has been telling America that because of the "population explosion" it was necessary for the people to vote more and more money for more and more schools.

Now, according to Newspaper Enterprise Assn., population experts are forecasting that elementary and secondary enrollments will drop 15 per cent in the next 15 years.

But are the school officials elated? Not so you could notice it. One man says the nation has been caught flat-footed by the declining birth rate and has no plans to cope with it.

"Any industry faced with the loss of 10 million clients needs to do some planning," Dean H. Thomas James of the Stanford school of education was quoted as saying.

It has been suggested that there will be a need to shift resources to the support of colleges and universities, and that the additional teachers being trained can be diverted from elementary and high schools to teach in the colleges and universities. A further suggestion is made that funds and teachers can be used to reduce class sizes, remedy "overcrowding" and improve the quality of programs.

NEA says "ghetto" schools and some other schools will continue to grow because of immigration of pupils. This in spite of the fact that recent population studies have shown a decline of the growth of "innercities," because of a reversal of the trend of movements from rural areas to the cities, and the move to suburbs.

James says more planning is required to show where schools should be built and where personnel should be located. He predicted that the 1970 census "will reveal the shocking misdirection of the estimates now in use."

The trouble is that schools are not based on any semblance of the free enterprise system, under which a business is established to fill a demand. The schools, generally, are based on support by the tax payers, with the bureaucrats in charge determining where and how the money will be spent.

A businessman will have to have a pretty good idea where and when to invest his money in hopes of earning a profit by giving a service the people want. But the politicians and bureaucrats know only one thing—they must keep on spending money to keep the bureaucracy operating.

The planning that is needed is planning to phase the government out of this industry and to start allowing the free market to serve the people in the training of the young people.

Setting up more government planning will only reveal more "shocking misdirection of the estimates."

Radicals Plan Mau Mau Tactics

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover has disclosed that the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee held a top-secret conference earlier this year at which plans were discussed for the "elimination by Mau Mau tactics" of mayors, chiefs of police and other local officials.

Hoover said the closed-door conference was held in mid-April. A majority of participants were armed.

Among the tactics discussed was the preparation of maps showing the homes of local officials who could be wiped out Mau-Mau style, Hoover said. The deployment of snipers along travel routes of National Guard units and police forces was also discussed.

Participants were urged to recruit Vietnam war veterans to train militant blacks in demolition and guerrilla warfare. Black college students were to instruct ghetto residents in the care and use of firearms, the preparation of Molotov cocktails, and the reloading of spent cartridges.

Hoover also disclosed that plans were mapped at a recent meeting of the Students for a Democratic Society to sabotage Selective Service installations.

Suggestions, said Hoover, included: firing Molotov cocktails from shotguns; dropping "thermite bombs" down manholes to destroy communication systems, using sharp, tripod-shaped metal instruments to halt police and army vehicles.

Chicago police foiled a plot by guerrilla hippies to firebomb two Loop department stores and create havoc during a scheduled peace march. They raided the headquarters of the Heavenly Blue Lights, a militant New Left group, and confiscated a veritable assembly line for the manufacture of Molotov cocktails.

Clip this handy list of Other Things to Talk About, now the election is past.

1. Your gas mileage. At first the subject may seem too prosaic, even dull. However, surveys taken in other post-election times proves the subject is astonishingly effective in making the transitional period from politics to "other subjects."
2. Merely say, "You know, I am getting only up to _____ miles on my _____." Many otherwise intractable political-obsession owners will respond and tell you what they are getting on their _____.
3. Sex. With any luck at all you should be able even during the few weeks after election to switch a conversation from politics to sex, as an independent survey shows that 63 per cent of political bores have not talked about sex since the New Hampshire primaries.
4. In transferring the conversation from politics to sex, it is advisable to use a general conversational opening gambit rather than a specific one, particularly in mixed company. (Examples: "Gee, it certainly seems sexy for November, huh?" Or: "What was it Mark Twain said about sex?")
5. Your diet. This subject has the vast advantage of being almost impossible to switch back to politics, although it is true that in these first post-election days many addicts will find that even diets remind them of politics. So, for that matter, will gas mileage and sex. Everything reminds them of politics. Merely avoid these extreme cases and it is possible with a little effort to find many people who will listen to you say "diet."
6. They will not listen to your diet, of course, but will spend a very long time telling you about THEIR diets. I am sure you will agree this is music to our ears after what we have been through in the campaigns.
7. Jokes. These are invaluable in emergencies and particularly in the worst emergency, which is when someone with a political fixation stops you today and says, "Well, whaddya think of the election?"
8. "That reminds me of the story about the traveling salesman and the ant-eater," you say quickly. "Have you heard it?"
9. "Yes," your newfound conversational companion will say. "But lemme tell you the great one making the rounds about the witch doctor at the nudist colony. It seems . . ."
10. If you have found a good joke teller you can spend up to an hour never hearing politics mentioned. If the conversation lags, merely say, "I hear a lot of 'em but I never can seem to remember them."
11. When he runs out of jokes ask about his gas mileage.
12. Poetry. I have found it effective, when cornered for post-election debates, to say, "Let me tell you how Samuel Coleridge put it." Then read all the verses of The Ancient Mariner and if he is still there go quickly into Reading Gao. This may not work with Wallace supporters who will wait you out, but is effective in most cases.
13. Gossip. Authorities recommend gossip so highly as a means of avoiding political talk, even today, that you may find it feasible where nothing else works. If there is anything people had rather do than gloat or fume about a political candidate, it is hear gossip.
14. If you cannot say something bad about anyone don't say anything. If you do not like malicious gossip about real people, make up somebody to gossip about — people do not really care if they know the person whose reputation is being ruined or not.
15. Or, you may send for my bound volume of gossip stories I made up about Billy and Jane to keep from hearing why Tom Dewey lost in 1948. In the last installment Billy and his Dog, Spot, ran away to Atlantic City with the Avon Lady because Jane kept hogging the heroin.
16. Talk about your hobby. If you do not have a hobby, perhaps something in the above list will appeal to you.
17. There are, of course, other means of avoiding political discussions today, although I can Domestic Bliss Ahead For Nixon and Demo. Congress?

ROBERT ALLEN JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — The new Congress, though controlled by the Democrats, appears well suited to work with Republican President Richard M. Nixon in a spirit of friendly togetherness on such domestic problems as law-and-order.

In the foreign field the new President may have more problems with Congress and its committees. However, as we noted previously with respect to defense policies, opposition to Nixon's foreign policies may well amount mostly to talk.

Generally speaking the new Congress, a bit more Republican as a result of Tuesday's voting, but still controlled by Democrats, shapes up as a little bit more conservative too. That should suit Nixon's purposes very well indeed.

A Congress slightly more conservative than the last one should, for example, take kindly to Nixon's promise of a diffusion of powers to the states. It should warmly entertain Nixon's programs to help industry create 15 million new jobs and help "black capitalism" fight despair in the inner cities.

The new President's promise to appoint "strict constructionists" of the Constitution to the Supreme Court can only be welcomed by a Senate which will be quite similar to the one which blocked President Johnson's nomination of Abe Fortas to be Chief Justice.

House and Senate committees should give a friendly reception to Nixon's promised proposals for a new national council for law enforcement, for new narcotics curbs and for a new national academy to train state and local law officers. Many lawmakers will be glad if Nixon, as he promised, devotes personal attention to the war on crime.

Certainly Nixon's oft repeated promise to appoint a new attorney general will be applauded by the congressional establishment. Attorney General Ramsey Clark has come under heavy congressional fire for failure to crack down on the fomenters of anti-war and anti-draft disorders.

LIBERAL - CONSERVATIVE ALIGNMENT—The liberal-conservative complexion of a Congress is hard to measure in an objective way. Those liberal and conservative groups which try to rate Congress and its members do so on the basis of their own subjective interests.

The Senate, because its members are insulated from purely local concerns, often do not seem to think of any. Personally, I am locking myself in the garage until this all blows over. Send for my list of Solitary Confinement games. (See how many words you can make out of Spiro Agnew, which is oris wenga spelled very backward.)

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: Churchill said "Democracy is the worst form of government, except for the others". You advocate letting everyone decide his own economic affairs, and claim the result, while not perfect, is the best arrangement men can visualize. Unscrupulous liars can deceive enough people to stay in business, you say. Yet you oppose letting everyone decide what the scope of government shall be, on the grounds that unscrupulous liars can deceive enough people to stay "in business" indefinitely. Shouldn't both economic power and political power be dispersed as widely as is humanly possible?—James D. Thackery.

ANSWER: We do not believe we have opposed "letting" everyone decide what the scope of government shall be on the ground that unscrupulous liars can deceive enough people to stay in business" forever," as Mr. Thackery says.

We have opposed the idea of using political action to solve human problems; such as allowing a majority of those voting to deprive an individual of his life or honestly acquired property. Our contention is that there is a single standard of right for individuals, all groups and those in government. We do not believe theft is right under any circumstances, including persuading a majority of voters to approve the theft.

We know of no way to disperse power better than through the voluntary non-coercive way. In this way all individuals will be able to determine what goods or services they wish to obtain by their acceptance or rejection of the offerings of the sellers.

If a majority of voters can deprive an individual of his life by a military draft, or his earnings by taxation, the individual has been deprived of his right to make his own decisions in his own self-interest. Society which allows all individuals to make their own decisions and to act in a peaceable manner without harming others is a free society. This is not possible when he must submit to decisions of others as to what is best for him.

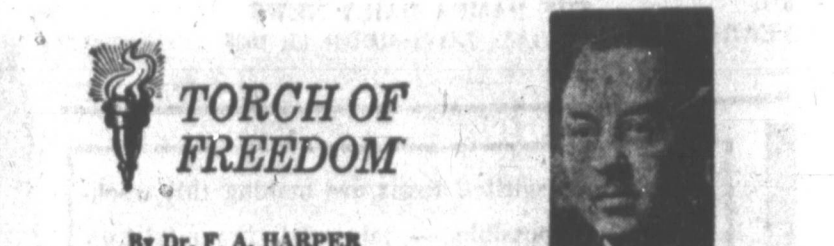

several critics of the Vietnam war to compensate for the election-day defeat of several war critics. If President Nixon, who has supported the Johnson administration's war policies, does have foreign policy troubles in Congress they will be rooted in the Senate as President Johnson's have been.

Three Republican arrivals, Arizona's returning Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, Florida's former Congressman an Edward J. Gurney and Kansas' Robert J. Dole are clearly conservatives. Both Dole and Gurney ranked high on the ACA list in that organization's rating of House members.

A couple of the new GOP senators, Pennsylvania's Richard S. Schweiker and Ohio's William M. Saxbe defy classification as liberals or conservatives and can probably be described as moderates, in the mold of President-elect Richard M. Nixon himself.

All in all, then, the entire new crop of senators is not expected to make much change in the overall complexion of the Senate.

As noted, however, the new Senate arrivals do include

By Dr. F. A. HARPER

LONDON — Caution was in the air as 300 persons reviewed the world economic climate here the week of Oct. 14. The occasion was the second International Monetary Seminar.

The caution was evident as bitter memories of history brought forth the acute dangers of the monetary game many countries are playing these days. Starting with a solid money base years ago, credit has been built on credit until the whole structure could topple over whenever some serious crisis occurs to threaten again the peace and seeming prosperity of the world. Then like a pyramid built upside down, the heavy top on a narrow base of precious metals (gold, mainly) could come tumbling down. The sweep of crisis could feed on itself and spread from country to country — among those who have gotten farthest out on the monetary limb.

That is the danger which hung like a heavy black cloud over the proceedings of these learned and experienced persons these past few days. The hope and habit of trying to get something for nothing has built up in many countries to where the wise and prudent are quietly building their storm shelters. As expressed by Professor John Jewkes of Oxford University, "This is the age of economic gimmicks, the age when governments . . . frantically pursue Utopias and end up by achieving precisely the opposite results to those they set out to achieve . . . creating greater evils than those they claimed to be able to remedy."

In this age of rampant fiscal adulteration and irresponsibility, Professor Gaston Leduc of the University of Paris put it well when he said: "People get the money they deserve," as he pleaded for a quick return to money founded on gold wherein lies the ultimate confidence of people the world over.

The scant attention given this seminar by the world press, if that be the likely outcome, would merely document the concern of Mr. Dana L. Thomas of BARRON'S: he said, "Everywhere people are losing faith in what the newspapers are telling them." Or, what facts are they not telling the people about monetary storms ahead if we continue to pursue these dangerous policies of recent years?

EXPORTING LIBERTY

PARIS — In a lecture before 60 key professors and business leaders — sponsored by the French Freedom Center, I was reviewing the status of socialism in the United States. The growing burden of government to where it now takes 41 cents of each dollar of personal incomes was reviewed. But in France, I learned from these experts, 45 cents of the income dollar is required to pay the bill for government.

The president of the Freedom Center, Mr. Pierre Lhoste Lachaume, properly pointed the finger of responsibility on the citizens themselves. He said: ". . . one-eyed people are kings in the Kingdom of the Blind."

And yet in France it was heartening to find freedom being courageously promoted by top talent such as those present at the meeting. This is the country, we must remember, which has given us in years long past a rich heritage of thought on the principles necessary in a society of free persons. It is from France, for instance that we have borrowed the inspiration and concepts of Frederic Bastiat whose work over a century ago was vital in moving Britain and Sweden toward the freedom and economic betterment they enjoyed for decades thereafter.

And let it be noted, too, that it is to the everlasting credit of Mr. R. C. Hoiles, founder of the Freedom Newspapers to discover the works of Bastiat and first make them known to some key intellectual leaders in the United States a quarter century ago.

It was a privilege, therefore, to try to bring back to leaders in France some of the new fruits of libertarian thought from our land; to encourage them in their work for liberty — an international means for the betterment of mankind.

The United States has exported far more than a hundred billion dollars of "aid" to other nations, France included. The result has characteristically been enmity instead of prosperity. Far better, said

Did you hear what them sneaky little buggers over in West Germany went and done? They went and hooked one of our missiles from us right under our noses.

It was one of them air-to-air missiles and was stored at a NATO base near Neuburg in southern Germany. It wasn't any trouble to pilfer it as it is only 9 and a half feet long. All they done was cut a hole in the fence around the base and load it on a wheelbarrow.

It couldn't happen here. There ain't nobody left who knows how to run a wheelbarrow. But over there, they not only know how to run one, they know how to use it to trundle off missiles and such.

After they wheeled the missile down the road a piece they loaded it on their car and drove away. They went to a airfield, dismantled it, and shipped it by air freight to Moscow.

I don't imagine the state department will learn anything from this little eppy-sode so I had better point out the pertinent thing about it. What we need to do is start a crash program for our spies on "The Wheelbarrow and Its Uses in Spy Work" then issue every spy a wheelbarrow and a set of wrenches for dismantling missiles when they get them away from the enemy bases.

Foreign News Commentary

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Whether or not the world is to see a return to the cold war of Stalinism and regardless of whether peace is to come to Vietnam, the winter of 1968-69 promises to be long and cold.

Partly this is because a new occupant is to take over the White House in January. The Soviets may be expected to test Richard M. Nixon's determination just as former Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev put the late President John F. Kennedy to the test or, as many in Europe fear, it could be the Middle East in a Soviet attempt to force open the Suez Canal.

More than the advent of a new U.S. President, however, is the obvious Soviet determination to apply a new hammerlock on the nations of Eastern Europe and to extend the strategic gains it made as a result of the six-day Arab-Israeli war in 1967.

The message from the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia has come through loud and clear in Eastern Europe and is echoing through NATO where alarmed Western diplomats and military planners again are attempting to shore up defenses against aggressive communism.

Bulgaria, which had been looking longingly toward West German technological expertise and wealth, has abandoned all plans to follow Romania into a diplomatic accord with West Germany.

Poland, where party leader Wladyslaw Gomulka fights to hold his job against the ambitions of his interior minister, Gen. Mieczyslaw Moczar, proclaims its loyalty to Moscow and the Warsaw Pact and eliminates the last of the liberal reforms the Poles thought they had won in 1956.

The 1967 Mideast war made the Soviet Union the big strategic gainer by reason of its advance into the Mediterranean. This it obviously means to extend and consolidate.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—E. P. Hutton sees the market as a whole able to extend its current advance over the short term. The company says it will be tested by a somewhat less bullish news background, in particular the Chase Manhattan Bank's upward revision of the prime rate, which "was probably not much of a surprise," and the less than expected new car sales figures for the initial 10-day period in November.

Wright Investors' Service notes that the Nixon administration was born "out of a desire for change and into a world in which both domestic and international change is already in progress at an unprecedented rate." The firm believes it is too early to appraise the extent of the reaction which it feels will result from a new administration becoming responsible for the economic and social leadership of the country at a time "when both the economy and the market show every sign of 'topping out'."

The firm says it believes the end result will be salutary for investors.

Reynolds & Co. says it expects a continuation of the "Nixon bull market" now that "Wall Street's favorite" is headed for the White House. The analyst adds that along with this factor various technical conditions indicate that "the stage has now been set for a renewed attack on the 1000-level" of the Dow Jones Industrial average.

Pampa Hosts Lubbock in Playoff

By RON CROSS
Sports Editor

Pampa and Lubbock end their 1968 football campaigns tonight on Harvester Field, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Both teams finished last in their respective zones in District 4-4A, Pampa in the north zone and Lubbock in the south zone. Both have 0-4 zone marks and both stand 1-8 for the season.

The winner tonight will finish ninth in the 10-team district. Other 4-4A teams are in district playoff games tonight and Saturday also.

Tonight's game will be the 37th time the two teams have met on the football field and the first time since 1965, when Lubbock won, 20-0.

The Westerners own a huge 23-11 advantage over Pampa in the series and two contests have ended in a tie. The Harvesters last beat Lubbock in 1963, 27-19.

But the teams will be as evenly matched as you can get and the winner will probably be determined on who makes the least mistakes and who takes the best mental attitude into the game.

None of the 14 seniors for the Harvesters playing their last game have ever beaten a Lubbock team.

There will be some changes in the Harvester lineup with coach Swede Lee doing some shuffling in the backfield.

Two warriors, tailback Scotty King and center Moss Hampton are listed as doubtful for the game and probably won't even suit up.

In a surprise move junior Ross Holman will return to start at quarterback. Gary Parrish, who has quarterbacked the team the last three games will move to tailback, replacing King and Hal Clabaugh, who was moved from full back to tailback last week.

Bert Tollison, a 140 pound junior, will start at fullback and junior John Jenkins will start at wingback.

Junior Mark Watkins will start at center in place of Hampton. Jay Johnson and Dan Carlton will be at ends; Larry Kotara and Chuck Lanehart at tackles and Eddie Hopkins and Duncan McCarroll will start at guards.

Defensively there will be only one change with Clabaugh, Ray Tindall, Nolan Welborn and Berger and completed two passes on the tailback option play.

Although Clabaugh is not starting he will probably see some action at either fullback or allback. The senior runner

King, the Harvesters leading ground gainer is just a junior and has all of next season to look forward to.

Offensively and defensively there isn't much difference between Pampa and Lubbock. The Westerners have more speed but Pampa, in four zones games picked up 795 yards on total offense to Lubbock's 720.

Defensively the Westerners gave up 1,561 yards while the Harvesters were touched for 1,734.

Lubbock has a fine passing-receiving combination in quarterback Jack Butler and end Randy Williams. In four zone games Butler connected on 18 of 58 tosses for 141 yards while Williams caught 11 passes for 120 yards.

Bucks play Sanford-Fritch away from home and must win to tie for the district title, if Stratford beats the Greyhounds.

McLean is holding on to first place with a 4-0 record while Wheeler and Clarendon are lurking not far back, both at 3-1.

But a Clarendon win and a Wheeler victory over winless Claude tonight would throw the race into a tizzy.

The district winner would be decided by a coin toss Saturday.

Gruver, McLean Seek District Crowns in 1-A, 2-A Tonight

Gruver and McLean try to clinch the District 1-A and 2-A championships, respectively, tonight while Wheeler, Stratford, Clarendon and White Deer hope they don't.

Gruver plays at Stratford where the Wildcats attempt to throw District 1-A into at least a two-way tie and McLean travels to Clarendon where the Bronchos hope the district title here will be decided by a three-way coin toss Saturday.

Gruver is 4-0 in conference play while White Deer and Stratford both stand at 3-1. The same would be true in District 1-A should that conference end in a tie.

McLean clipped Wheeler earlier in the season but the Mustangs upset Clarendon last week to break an eight-game winning streak by the Bronchos.

Canadian tries to break a six-game losing streak when the Wildcats close out their season tonight by hosting Sunray.

Groom tries to keep pace with Booker in District 1-B by playing host to Follett and Texline plays at Booker.

Oscar May Play On Title Team

By United Press International

When Dr. Naismith first put up those peach baskets, he probably never dreamed anyone would ever play his game as well as Oscar Robertson.

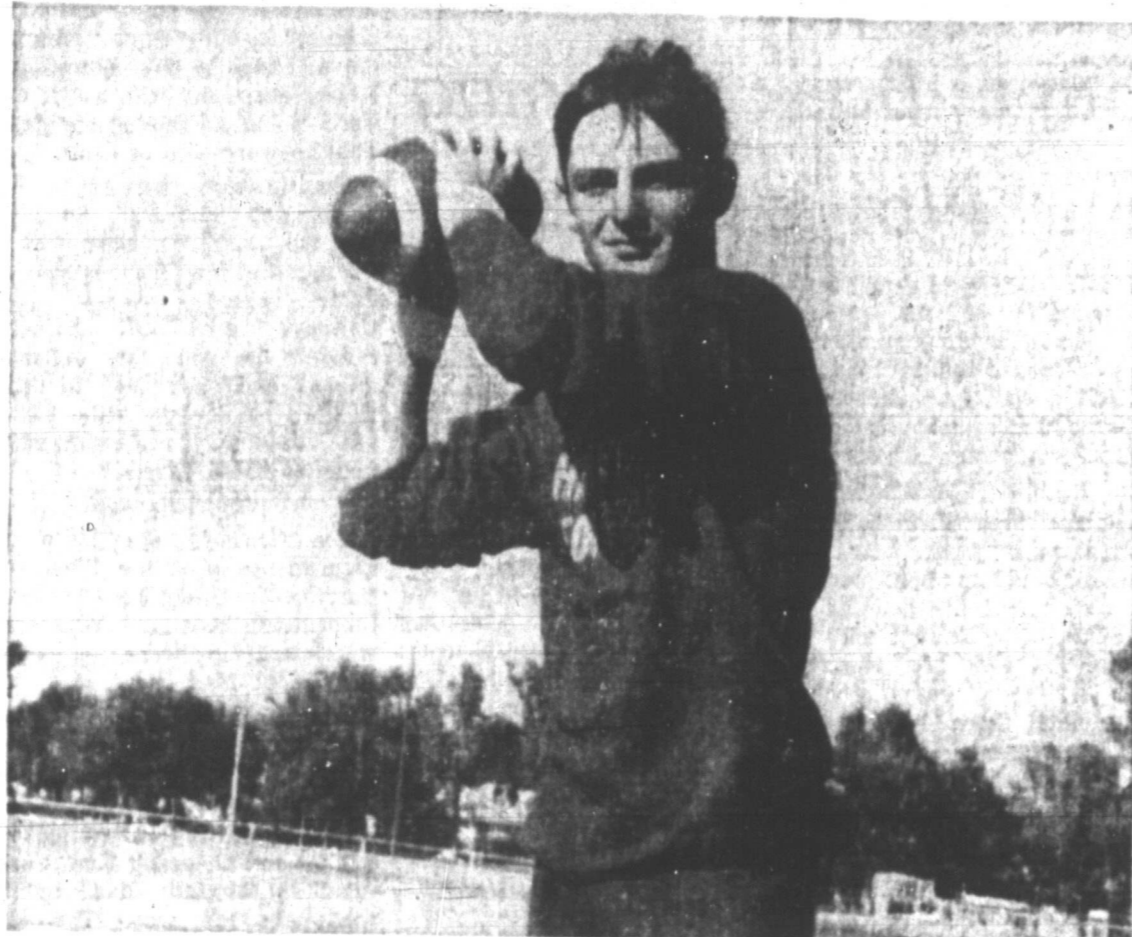

Robertson is generally conceded to be the best all-around basketball player ever, and for the last decade he's starred for the University of Cincinnati and the Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Association.

But there's one frustrating aspect to Robertson's career. He's never played on a championship team. The Cincinnati Bearcats never won the NCAA title with him and the Royals have never won the NBA crown.

Things may be changing this season, though. Robertson, who usually has been hampered by the lack of a good supporting cast, is suddenly directing a team that has the best record in the NBA.

The Royals, playing their third game in as many nights and in as many cities, made it 10-3 Thursday night by downing the slumping New York Knicks, 110-101.

The Royals got 29 points from Robertson—who played 37 minutes despite a leg injury.

ROSS HOLMAN has been named starting quarterback for the Pampa Harvesters tonight in their district playoff game with the Lubbock Westerners. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

King Hopes Baylor QB Doesn't Have Hot Day

By United Press International

Coach J. T. King of Texas Tech was speaking about his own team's chances against Baylor when he warned about passers with "hot hands," but the warning fits all four Southwest Conference battles Saturday afternoon.

And, oddly enough, it would serve as a double warning for the key game at Little Rock where Arkansas and Southern Methodist attempt to knock each other out of a share of the conference lead in a regionally-telvised contest.

That is because both teams have premier passing quarterbacks and because each one figures to win if its passer can come up with a great day.

Texas and Tech, which share the four-way lead with Arkansas and SMU, also will be facing teams with dangerous passers when Texas plays Texas Christian at Fort Worth and Tech meets Baylor at Waco. So will lowly Rice when it invades College Station against Texas A&M.

"John Bridgers never fails to have an exceptional passing game," Tech's King commented. "And, he has a great quarterback in Steve Stuart along with fine receivers."

"And, anytime you play a team with a great passing attack, you face the danger of catching them with a hot hand. And that can be disastrous."

Stuart of Baylor and Ted Fay of TCU, who will be throwing at Tech and Texas, cannot stack up alongside SMU's Chuck Hixson and Arkansas' Bill Montgomery in the aerial statistics so Tech will be favored by 10 points and Texas by 14 in their games.

The odds-makers favor Arkansas and Montgomery by 7½ points over SMU and Hixson, probably because when both lost to Texas, the score was 30-29 against the Razorbacks and 38-7 against SMU.

Texas A&M, with Edd Hargett at the throttle, is favored by 13 points to keep Rice winless and in the conference cellar.

More than the championship will be at stake in the games at Little Rock, Fort Worth and Waco. The lucrative Cotton Bowl host role as well as other possible post-season bids also will be dangling in the balance.

None of the four could sew up the Cotton Bowl berth by winning, because Texas Tech still has to face Arkansas and SMU meet Baylor on Nov. 23 and Texas still has its traditional Thanksgiving Day date with Texas A&M Nov. 28.

Tech can get the Cotton Bowl bid by sweeping both games if it winds up in a tie with Texas or a triple tie with Texas and SMU, but a two-way tie with SMU would project the Mustangs into the Dallas classic for the second time in three years.

Texas must win both and hope for a two-way or three-way tie with either or both SMU and Arkansas.

Arkansas must win both and hope TCU or the Aggies derail Texas.

But, even the losers, if they can break even in their last two starts, can entertain some hopes of a post-season invitation.

TT's Dowdy Stands Tall

By MIKE WEBSTER

LUBBOCK, Tex. (UPI)—Texas Tech starting left defensive end Bruce Dowdy stands tall, his arms upstretched diagonally, and the crowd goes wild.

The crowd knows the "big play" sophomore has just put a large crimp in somebody's game plan, and this is his signal of acknowledgement.

Already the youngster from Pasadena, Tex., has established himself as one of the most colorful and perhaps among the best defensive players ever to don a Tech shirt. And, as a sophomore, he's just getting started.

"Bruce is a big-play football player," says J. T. King, head football coach at Tech.

Even if King doesn't share the crowd's appreciation for Dowdy's showmanship, he does have great affection for his performances and measures in tons the potential involved.

"When he has gained enough experience to acquire consistency, he can become a great one," King says. Since Tech began competing on football's big-time level, few players have attracted such acclaim so early in their careers as Dowdy.

Shockers Lose Heartbreaker 22-14

By RON CROSS Sports Editor

Pampa and Palo Duro's B teams battled in the mud and rain and closed out the 1968 football season in a flurry, here Thursday night.

The Chieftians scored once in every period but the first and the Shockers tallied once in the first and once in the fourth period to lose a 22-14 heartbreaker for a 1-9 season record.

Doug Thompson returned to the Shockers lineup and almost guided Pampa to victory. But a slippery ball cost him two pass interceptions and a pair of fumbles.

Ricky Harris again led

Pampa in rushing, grounding out 46 yards on only seven carries.

Inconsistency on both offense and defense also didn't help the Shockers.

With Thompson at the helm Pampa jumped to a 6-0 first period lead when the sophomore quarterback took his team 87 yards in 14 plays and ran the last 11 for the touchdown with 3:24 left in the period.

In the drive Thompson hit two passes for 35 yards, a 24-yarder that got the Shockers out of the hole on a third and 10 situation.

But the big play came on a mistake by the Shockers.

Tommy Hawkins went back to punt but the snap from center dribbled to him and Hawkins picked up the ball at the Palo Duro 40, and took it to the 14.

The Chieftians scored on their first possession in the second quarter.

They intercepted a Thompson pass at the 33 and returned it to the Pampa 22. Six plays later quarterback Jack Rudy hit tailback Don Johnson with a 10-yard scoring aerial, then ran the same play for the two-point conversion and an 8-6 halftime lead.

Palo Duro upped its lead in the third period, scoring just 1:41 from the end moving 61 yards on 12 plays.

The same pass play, from Rudy to Johnson for two yards gave Palo Duro a 14-6 lead.

Rudy hit only three of five passes for 23 yards but he made the most of them and the big play in this drive was a 16 yarder on third down that carried the ball to the Pampa three-yard stripe.

Pampa's final score came after the Shockers had recovered their fourth fumble of the rain-soaked night.

They moved 60 yards in eight plays with Thompson accounting for all but 11 yards.

He ran 43 yards on one play then passed for 12 more yards.

Palo Duro made it 22-6 by scoring on its first possession in the fourth quarter, this time moving 43 yards in eight plays, all of it on the ground.

Moline Ahern scooted in from the five with 9:35 to play and Rudy hit Mike Klip with the conversion points for a 22-6 lead.

The touchdown came on a 29-yard pass to Hawkins with 1:37 to go. Thompson then got the two point conversion with a pass to Gary Jenkins.

Palo Duro got the ball on the kickoff and was held to only one yard for two downs. But on third down Ahern broke loose for a 15-yard gainer and then held on till the game ended.

Kaline Wins Gehrig Award

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Al Kaline, veteran outfielder for the Detroit Tigers and a clutch performer in the team's World Series triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals, has been named 1968 winner of the Lou Gehrig Memorial Award.

The award is given annually to the major league player who is considered to have best exemplified the personal character and playing ability of Gehrig, the Hall of Fame first baseman of the New York Yankees.

In announcing Kaline's selection, the special committee said: "he represents sustained excellence and ability to surmount physical injury with playing skill and competitive drive undiminished."

District Honors Are Up for Grabs

By United Press International

San Antonio Whealey and Houston Austin have grabbed off the first two of what will be at least 44 district championships decided on the last big regular Texas high school football weekend.

Whealey, which saw its undefeated season go down the drain last week, bounced back Thursday night to defeat San Antonio Brackenridge 14-6 and capture the district 31-AAAA title.

Fort Worth Poly ranked as the big loser. A Poly victory over Fort Worth Eastern Hills would have given the Parrots the 9-AAAA championship, but they fell 17-13. That leaves the door open for Fort Worth Terrell to take the district crown with a win over Fort Worth Dunbar tonight.

Clinches District Title

Houston Austin clinched the district 17-AAAA crown with a 20-18 edging of Houston Yates.

In other action in Texas Thursday night, Houston Lamar whipped Houston San Jacinto 7-0. Houston Waltrip downed Houston Williams 32-20. Fort Worth Arlington Heights (already the winner in district 10-AAAA) decked Fort Worth Western Hills 49-8, and Eryan tied Waco University 7-7.

District crowns will be decided by the bundle tonight all across the state.

The top remaining game in Class AAAA will bring together undefeated San Marcos and Seguin to choose the winner of district 28.

China Leads In Cup Golf

ROME (UPI)—Hsieh Yung-yo couldn't know his own backyard better than he knows the 6,850 yard Olgiata Golf Course. He studied the layout when a cousin won medalist honors in the 1964 Eisenhower Trophy Tournament.

"I remembered much when I watch my cousin Min-nan," said the Taiwan-based pro. "I forgot not much."

It certainly looked that way Thursday when Hsieh, coaching partner Lu Liang-huan, led Nationalist China to a surprise first round lead in the 16th World Cup Tournament.

All the experts forecasting another runaway victory by the United States were caught looking the wrong way as the Chinese carded 139. The United States totaled 142 and held a share of fourth place after 18 holes.

Sime Back Running But Not as Fast

MIAMI (UPI)—As "the fastest human" of the middle Dave Sime held nine world sprint records, but he runs a good bit slower now, sometimes at the head of a straggling pack of middle-aged men and women.

The former Duke University three-sport man went back to running as a jogger, for two good reasons: to help spread the word about the benefits to longevity of running, and to prolong his own life. He also plays a superior game of club tennis, but there his contact with sports ends.

Sime, 32, is now Dr. David W. Sime, practicing ophthalmologist-eye surgeon. He turned down a draft call from the Detroit Lions of the National Football League, and several major league bonus offers in baseball to be a doctor.

"I was very serious about being a doctor, and I decided I couldn't be a good professional athlete and a good doctor, too. I decided medicine would be more rewarding. I had to feel I was doing something useful. It's a different kind of satisfaction than I got from sports," says the tall young surgeon.

Sime has a lot to look back on. He went to Duke on a baseball scholarship, but only played one full year and was an All-America center fielder. He also played a year as "longsome end" on the Blue Devil football team.

Bowl Picture to Clear

By United Press International

The sound of shattered crockery will hit an agonizing pitch on Saturday when several more college football teams see their bowl hopes go to pieces.

With the season in its danger zone, a loss can be all but fatal to those ambitious teams carrying post-season aspirations.

Typical of the deadly situation is the case of Southern California, rated the best collegiate team in the country with a 7-0 record and boasting the probable Heisman Trophy winner in O.J. Simpson. Yet all the glory of an exciting season will be wiped out if the Trojans lose to Oregon State on Saturday.

And the Trojans are favored by a mere 6½ points against the only team to beat them last year.

Run For Roses

Both teams go into the contest at Los Angeles with Pacific Eight Conference records of 4-0, although the Beavers lost two of their four outside games. The winner of this showdown clash will represent the Pacific Eight in the Rose Bowl, and if Southern Cal loses, despite its fine record, all it can look forward to is watching the New Year's Day classic on television.

The bowl pressure also will be felt in other sections of the country, with one of the more important games being contested at Auburn, Ala. between fifth-ranked Georgia and 9th ranked Auburn. The winner of this 72nd meeting between the two schools gets both the Southeastern Conference title and a bid to the Orange Bowl.

Unbeaten Georgia, fresh from a 51-0 trouncing of Florida, is a slim 2½-point favorite.

Third-ranked Penn State could provide the opposition in the Orange Bowl, provided it retains its perfect record against weak Maryland. The Nittany Lions are whopping 20-point choices.

Tennessee Favored

Georgia also is being wooed by the Sugar Bowl, but in contention as well as Tennessee and Mississippi, who meet at Knoxville on Saturday. Tennessee, which is rated No. 10, is picked by seven points.

The other half of the Sugar Bowl probably will come from the Big Eight Conference, where a big scramble is going on. Sixth-ranked Missouri and seventh-ranked Kansas are the main contenders, but the Jayhawks lost to Oklahoma last week and Missouri rates as a point underdog to the Sooners on Saturday.

Kansas has much easier pickings this week, rated 15 points better than Kansas State.

The Big Ten champion, which will go to the Rose Bowl, won't be decided until next week when second-ranked Ohio State collides with fourth-ranked Michigan. Both teams should win this Saturday as the Buckeyes are picked by eight points over Iowa and Michigan goes against winless Wisconsin.

Hull Captures 22nd Hat Trick of Career, Hawks Win

Bobby Hull did some celebrating Thursday night but the Pittsburgh Penguins suffered the hangover.

Hull celebrated his game-winning goal Wednesday night with 17 seconds left against Pittsburgh by scoring three more Thursday night in the second period as the Hawks whipped the Penguins again, 6-4.

Hull's goal Wednesday night snapped a four-game Hawk losing streak. Thursday night in Pittsburgh, he collected the 22nd hat trick of his NHL career.

In the other three games, Toronto edged Montreal, 5-3, Philadelphia upset Boston, 4-2, and Detroit beat Los Angeles, 5-2.

Pittsburgh, suffering its fifth straight loss, was stung for Hull's first goal with the second period just 44 seconds old. His other two came at 11:53 and

Cowboys Face Must Game With Redskins

By United Press International

Even Tom Landry's wife knows something is wrong now. The Dallas Cowboys, who started to think it was going to be so easy to make the NFL title game, are not starting to worry about merely winning the Capitol Division crown.

The Cowboys, winners of their first six games, have lost two of their last three games and Landry is the first to admit the Cowboys suffered a letdown.

"We were going so great we thought it was going to be a breeze," Landry said, "even in the meetings it was noticeable. I even heard my wife ask if we were going to go undefeated. That's a sure sign of death."

The Cowboys, who meet the Washington Redskins Sunday, lead the Capitol Division with a 7-2 record. New York is just a game behind at 6-3. The Cowboys are still heavily favored to win the division crown and advance to the Eastern Conference title game—but now they realize it isn't going to be so easy.

Cowboys Favored

The Cowboys are 13 point favorites to beat the Redskins this week but they were 17 point favorites to beat New York last week—and they were beaten by the Giants, 27-21.

The Cowboys have lost the NFL title game the last two seasons on the final series of downs to the Packers.

Last week the Cowboys looked bad as the underdog New York team outlasted and outthrew them all the way. The old questions about Don Meredith's quarterbacking ability in the clutch situations were also revived. Bothered by injuries, Meredith has been unable to come up with the key play in the two losses—and had three interceptions against the Giants.

The Redskins are hampered with a 4-5 record since Sonny Jurgensen is playing with broken ribs. But the Cowboys and Redskins have played five straight games decided in the final minutes and this one could be close if the Cowboys don't regain their old form.

In the other seven games Sunday, New York is a 14-point choice over Philadelphia, Cleveland is a nine-point pick over Pittsburgh, Minnesota is figured by two over Detroit, Los Angeles favored by six over San Francisco, Green Bay is listed by 14 over New Orleans, Baltimore is a 12-point choice over St. Louis and Chicago is favored over Atlanta.

Giants over Phillies

New York, worried about a letdown itself after the important win over Dallas, is still expected to have little trouble downing winless Philadelphia to remain a game behind the Cowboys.

Baltimore and Los Angeles are figured to remain tied in the Coastal Division at 9-1 with victories. But Los Angeles, whose offense has been shaky and bothered with injuries, should have more trouble with San Francisco than Baltimore will have with St. Louis.

Cleveland, the hottest team in the NFL with four straight victories, should remain in first place in the Century Division by knocking off Pittsburgh. Cleveland is now a serious contender for the NFL crown.

The tangled Central Division race should remain tangled. Chicago, despite the loss of Gale Sayers, should defeat Atlanta and that would put the Bears in first place if Minnesota loses to Detroit. Chicago and Minnesota are 5-4 and Detroit and Green Bay are 3-5-1. If Detroit beats Minnesota, the Lions are in the race even though they have a sputtering offense.

Green Bay, plagued by injuries and all but dethroned as NFL champion, figures to beat New Orleans on memory alone—if nothing else.

Jets Keeping Eye on Title

American Football League experts chuckled when Phil Iselein said his goal as new club president was to see the New York Jets in the Super Bowl.

"Iselein knows a lot about thoroughbred racing and dress-making," said the Jets' detractors. "But he'll learn the hornets' nest of pro football is different."

Well, the Jets could win their first AFL Eastern Division title when they play the Oakland Raiders Sunday and then there would be only the AFL championship game between them and a Super Bowl meeting with the National League champions.

The Jets lead the Eastern Division by 3½ games with five to play. Two victories in their last five games would give the Jets the title outright and, in any event, "two" is the magic number which would eliminate the Houston Oilers, Miami Dolphins and Boston Patriots.

Oakland Favored

The Jets have won four straight games but are 7½-point underdogs because Oakland is the defending league champions, is playing at home and is faced with a "must victory" to keep pace with the Kansas City Chiefs and San Diego Chargers in the three-cornered Western Division race.

The Raiders, however, may be without the services of regular quarterback Daryle Lamonica, who missed last Sunday's 43-7 victory over the Denver Broncos because of spasms in his back. Forty-three-year-old George Blanda handled the assignment against the Broncos in style with four touchdown passes and two field goals but is an obvious risk. The Raiders have reactivated Cotton Davidson for emergency duty behind Blanda.

Joe Namath hasn't thrown a touchdown pass for the Jets in his last six games but he has passed them into position for many of their scores. In the process, the Jets have acquired new respect as a solid football team which does not rely too heavily on one player.

Each team takes a 7-2 record into the game which will be seen nationally on NBC-TV starting at 4 p.m. EST.

Missing Businessman, Secret Witness, Sealed Indictment--A Bizarre Mystery

ANGLETON, Tex. (UPI)—A private investigator whose search for a missing Houston businessman led to his own brother's indictment, tight security around a key witness and a sealed second indictment Thursday added up to one of the most bizarre mysteries.

A Brazoria County grand jury Wednesday indicted one man—Charles V. Harrelson, 30, on a charge of murder in the death of Houston carpet firm executive Alan Berg—partially on evidence gathered by Harrelson's brother Claud.

Another indictment—believed to be that of a woman—was given sealed to Judge J.P. Hardy to be opened sometime Wednesday never to take another missing person case again. He said he had faced Nathaniel Berg—the dead man's father and co-owner of the carpet firm—outside the courtroom after the indictment was handed down.

"Facing Mr. Berg was the hardest thing I ever had to do," said Harrelson. "I know a lot of people are going to think there was something wrong, but I worked on it (the Berg case) as hard as I knew how."

Gambling Debts

Earlier police theories that the murder was connected with heavy gambling debts Alan Berg was known to have had apparently have been dropped, according to one official source. Court authorities appeared to be concerned over the safety of the unnamed witness, Dist. Atty. Ogden Bass refused to say whether the person was an actual witness to the slaying or how long the person had been in custody.

Brazoria County Sheriff Robert Gladney, who also testified Wednesday before the grand jury asked photographers not to try to take pictures of the mystery witness.

If a picture were printed, "I might as well get ready to go to the funeral," Gladney said.

More Witnesses

Other witnesses who appeared Wednesday included Crawford Booth, 37, a partner in a Houston stock brokerage and former owner of the Backstage Club, and Nathaniel Berg, father of the slain man.

Charles Harrelson was last seen in Kansas City, Mo., where he was stopped driving a red convertible. He was arrested and charged with carrying a prohibited weapon when a sawed-off shotgun was found in the car.

Authorities later found the shotgun belonged to Booth.

The indicted man has a wife and son living in Houston and reportedly has police records—mostly for armed robbery—in California, Florida, and Missouri.

PLAGER INJURED

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League announced Wednesday that defenseman Bob Plager would be out of action for several days.

Plager was hit in the eye by teammate Myron Stankewick's stick in a freak accident during a practice session.

SPENCER CLEARED

LONDON (UPI)—Thad Spencer, American heavyweight defeated by Britain's Billy Walker Tuesday night, has been cleared on a charge of obtaining credit by fraud.

Spencer had pleaded innocent to the charge of obtaining $176 by fraud from a man in connection with renting an apartment.
