

Protesters, war supporters clash

By The Associated Press

A 30-year-old Palestinian took his oath of U.S. citizenship, then strolled into a raucous confrontation over war in his native Middle East at the federal courthouse in Newark, N.J.

The sidewalk shouting encountered Thursday by Ayman Silwany was echoed during demonstrations that led to hundreds of arrests across the United States.

Silwany was sandwiched between protesters chanting "No blood for oil!" and construction workers who countered with obscenities.

The Jerusalem native said he admired the vigorous debate in his adopted country, but feared Americans take a short-sighted view of politics in his homeland.

"Have they thought about retaliation and terrorism in the future?" Silwany asked.

He spoke before Iraqi missiles bombed Israel, injuring at least 10 people. The attack brought swift condemnation from Jews and Jewish leaders.

"I'm terribly disturbed, frightened and a little angry that the world didn't listen," said Shoshana Cardin, chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations in New York. "This is what Israel was warning the world about."

Temple Emanuel in San Francisco opened its doors to worshippers Thursday night once word of the attack spread.

"There's a feeling of anguish and shock and trauma right now," said Rabbi Robert Kirshner. "It wasn't unexpected, but it still comes as a shock."

Earlier Thursday, thousands of angry demonstrators staged a third day of riotous protests in San Francisco, throwing rocks, screaming obscenities and clashing with police.

Police made nearly 1,000 arrests when some of the day's 7,000 anti-war protesters blocked a street near the Pacific Stock Exchange, said Police Officer Ernest Chapman.

San Francisco Mayor Art Agnos urged them to stay calm. "Our conscience has spoken," he said. "Our civility now must be demonstrated in equal measure."

In Sacramento, Calif., 100 war protesters who staged a peace sleep-in on the steps of the state Capitol was met by 300 demonstrators in favor of Operation Desert Storm.

They rode in a flag-waving motorcade and carried signs that said, "Support the U.S. - We Do" and "Freedom for All."

About 100 anti-war protesters settled in early today for an all-night vigil at Philadelphia's City Hall after a traffic-snarling march to the Liberty Bell during the afternoon rush hour.

"Make us makers of peace," the Rev. Paul Washington told a crowd of about 1,100, some of whom exchanged angry words with 200 counter-demonstrators.

In Washington, 14 people were arrested near the White House after two protesters were clubbed by U.S. Park Police and others threw rocks and bottles.

Scores of Georgia House members walked off the floor when Rep. Cynthia McKinney, an Atlanta Democrat, denounced the war with Iraq as "naked aggression."

Blood and oil were poured on the steps of the federal building in downtown Los Angeles.

Special services set to continue through Sunday

Revival services are continuing nightly through Sunday at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church, 1700 Alcock. Services begin at 7 p.m.

Guest speaker, the Rev. Mick Snider of Henryetta, Okla., is the founder of the Bible Holiness Crusades. These crusade meetings bring hundreds of people from across the nation together each year for fundamental, back to the Bible rallies. Also part of the team are his wife, Theresa, and son, Jarrod.

The Rev. Albert Maggard and the congregation of the church invite the public to attend the special services.

His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: In this you greatly rejoice, though now for a little while you may have had to suffer grief in all kinds of trials. These have come so that your faith - of greater worth than gold, which perishes even though refined by fire - may be proved genuine and may result in praise, glory and honor when Jesus Christ is revealed. (1 Peter 1:6-7 NIV)

My Aunt Sissie has a flair for flower arranging. Years ago she went to work at a flower shop and showed such a "feel" for the work that her boss decided not to send her to training seminars for fear she would lose her natural touch.

Feeling encouraged and capable, she developed her skill, and her talent blossomed amongst the varied blooms of her trade.

Eventually, health problems brought about Aunt Sissie's resignation. Through the intervening years, arthritis has taken a cruel toll. However, Aunt Sissie has never lost her talent and love for flower arranging. Though her hands ache when she works, she still enjoys her craft; and the results beautifully grace the homes of family and friends.

We have all become spoiled; as far as we're concerned, no one else can make an arrangement for us that is as lovely and creative as Aunt Sissie can make.

Christian conversion produces wide-open attitude. We become born again to a newness that burgeons with possibility. Caught up in the glory of transformation, we feel elated and capable, and we set about to develop our new-found faith. And we blossom and are productive.

But sooner or later, we waver in our fervor; and the aches and pains of worldliness set in. The temptation to resign and seek more comfortable accommodations is strong.

But the true test of our faith is in whether we can enjoy confidence and expression and development in our relationship with Christ even when we ache to the very core of our soul.

Our faith finds substance from the sure knowledge no one and nothing can adorn our lives with beauty and mercy the way Jesus can.

FORT WORTH (AP) - A United Methodist bishop says the next missionary challenge for U.S. Christians is not overseas, but among teen-agers and young adults in American communities.

Bishop Leroy C. Hodapp of Indianapolis, president of the denomination's 100-member Council of Bishops, attributed the church's membership decline in recent years to its failure to involve the young.

Unless it finds ways to do so, the denomination could "die in one generation," he said at a news conference.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) - Christian historian Mark U. Edwards Jr. has been appointed acting dean of the Harvard Divinity School, serving in place of Dean Ronald F. Thiemann who is on leave to complete a book.

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) - U.S. District Judge Howard Munson ordered removal of a painting of Jesus' crucifixion that has hung on the wall of a public school in Schuylerville, for 25 years.

Munson ruled the painting conveys a "message of government endorsement of Christianity."

Police arrest woman suspect in serial killings

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

OCALA, Fla. (AP) — A woman linked to the deaths of seven middle-age men was charged with murder in one of the roadside slayings, and prosecutors in four Florida counties prepared additional murder charges.

Aileen Carol Wuornos, 34, was charged Wednesday with murder after being arrested on a concealed weapon charge last week in a bar near Daytona Beach. Investigators on Thursday described her as a sometime prostitute and convicted felon. Police said property belonging to the seven victims was found in a storage unit rented by Ms. Wuornos.

She was silent at her first court appearance Thursday and was ordered held without bond in the Volusia County Jail. No arraignment date was set.

Marion County sheriff's Capt. Steve Binegar said the arrest should help solve "quite a few" cases in several states. He declined to identify those states.

"I believe she is a killer who robs, not a robber who kills," said Binegar, chief investigator in the slayings. "We believe she pretty much meets the guidelines of a serial killer."

"We have an excellent case, or cases," said Sheriff Don Moreland.

Binegar said prosecutors in Marion, Citrus, Pasco and Dixie counties were preparing additional charges.

Public defender Ray Caff of Daytona Beach, who was appointed to represent her, would not comment on the case.

Ms. Wuornos and a companion were the subjects of a nationwide manhunt since November. The killings occurred from late 1989 to late 1990.

"I believe she is a killer who robs, not a robber who kills."

— Capt. Steve Binegar

The companion, Tyria J. Moore, 28, implicated Ms. Wuornos as the sole killer, officials said. Ms. Moore, described as the chief witness against Ms. Wuornos, was not arrested.

The victims' bodies were usually found along rural roadways, some stripped nude, in different areas of the state. They were robbed and their cars found abandoned elsewhere.

Most if not all had been shot, but authorities did not disclose details.

Authorities believed some of the men were killed after picking up or stopping to help their assailant on the highway. Condom packages were left in several of the cars, police said.

Although robbery was listed as one motive, Binegar said there was little money involved. Police recovered property belonging to each of the victims from a storage locker rented by Ms. Wuornos, Binegar said.

Ms. Wuornos was held on a weapons-violation charge until Wednesday, when she was charged in the shooting death of Richard Mallory, 52, of Clearwater, who was killed along Interstate 95 north of Daytona Beach.

Ms. Wuornos served a year in prison in 1982-83 on a conviction for armed robbery, officials said. She also has faced prostitution, vehicle theft, grand larceny and bad check charges over the past eight years.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You have excellent leadership qualities at present, especially in the social realm. If you want to have more clout where your peers are concerned, you only have to assert yourself. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Someone to whom you have recently shown consideration is thinking of reciprocating. There is a possibility this individual might try to balance the account today.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't stymie your hopes and expectations either today or tomorrow; they have an excellent chance of being gratified. What you desire can be rationally achieved.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) An opportunity of a fleeting nature from a least suspected source might present itself today. It will pertain to something that could help fulfill an ambitious desire.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A friend who is separated from you in miles, but not in spirit, is anxious to hear from you at this time. It is possible you have been harboring the same feelings, too.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Two important objectives can be achieved today, but not necessarily on the first try. They are interrelated and your second effort could bring them into being simultaneously.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Several people with whom you've cooperated in the past will be supportive of your interests today — if their help is needed. Don't be reluctant to request assistance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Conditions could be a bit unusual and somewhat mysterious where your work is concerned today. You'll be helped rather than hindered, even though you might not be a participant in these machinations.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone who you find appealing is also rather intrigued by you. This person might make this fact known through an intermediary today. You should be pleased.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have the ability today, if you choose to use it, to complete a number of little things you've recently left unfinished. Why not try to tie up the loose ends?

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're in an extremely creative cycle and your imagination could have greater value than you attach to it. Discuss your ideas with persons whose judgment you respect.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) From time to time in this present cycle your financial prospects could be outstanding. This is one of those times, so focus on ways to either make or save money.

Medical groups urge AIDS-infected members to warn patients, stop performing surgeries

ATLANTA (AP) - The American Medical Association and the American Dental Association urged AIDS-infected members to warn patients or stop doing surgery after a federal report indicated a dentist passed the deadly virus to three patients.

The groups announced the new policies Thursday after the Atlanta-based Centers for Disease Control released its latest report on Dr. David Acer of Stuart, Fla., who died of acquired immune deficiency syndrome in September.

Dr. Harold Jaffe, deputy director for science at the CDC's AIDS division, said Acer likely infected three patients through "direct blood to blood contact," perhaps from a cut to the dentist during oral surgery.

All three patients had teeth pulled by the dentist, the CDC said.

The American Dental Association, whose officials were publicly skeptical of preliminary CDC report on the case last August, announced a new policy, telling AIDS-carrying dentists to warn their patients or stop performing dental surgery. The American Medical Association went a step further, saying doctors who perform surgery or other invasive procedures that carry a risk of acquiring HIV infection "should determine their HIV status."

The AMA said those who test positive for the disease "have an ethical obligation not to engage in any professional activity which has an identifiable risk of transmission of the infection to the patient."

The dental association still believes that masks, gloves and other steps to prevent the spread of infection are sufficient to protect patients, said spokesman Philip Weintraub.

The CDC report said evidence "strongly suggests that at least three patients" were infected at Acer's office. One of the patients, Kimberly Bergalis, who has been diagnosed with AIDS, said state health officials told her the other infected patients were an elderly woman and a young man.

The issue has also arisen in Baltimore, where Johns Hopkins Hospital surgeon Rudolph Almaraz reportedly operated on about 1,800 patients after becoming infected with HIV.

Hopkins doctors say the only way Almaraz could have passed on the AIDS virus is if he cut himself during surgery and dripped blood onto the patient. Hopkins' officials said they know of no such incidents involving Almaraz, who died last November.

CDC officials will meet in Atlanta next month to review guidelines and policies for preventing the spread of HIV during medical procedures.

The National Association of People With AIDS condemned the medical associations' new policies.

"It's going to damage a lot of careers for doctors and dentists who find themselves with HIV, and it's also going to cause a problem for those people with HIV getting treatment," said NAPWA spokesman Mike Meridian. "It'll raise fear within the doctors and the dentists."

Cook to five presidents brings skills to Colonial Williamsburg

By JOE TAYLOR
Associated Press Writer

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) - You could start with lobster Reagan and a Nixon souffle, dine on duckling a la Carter or roast veal au Ford and top it off with LBJ's old-fashioned tapioca pudding.

Former White House chef Henry Haller will bring the bipartisan culinary experience of five administrations to Colonial Williamsburg next weekend when he prepares two state dinner-style meals at the Williamsburg Inn's Regency Dining Room.

The menu features a presidential favorite from the Johnson, Nixon, Ford, Carter and Reagan administrations. The main courses are Ford's stuffed roast veal tenderloin and Carter's supreme of duckling with orange and ginger sauce.

Haller, executive chef from 1966 to 1987 and author of "The White House Family Cookbook," said all the first families were careful about what they ate.

"They know that the press sees them every day, they're on television every day, and they want to look good," said Haller.

Lyndon Johnson, a Texan with a reputation for liking barbecue, actually had another favorite: rib roast. But Haller said Johnson liked desserts best, and top on his list was tapioca pudding.

When Richard Nixon arrived in 1969, Haller did his best to avoid any kitchen debates. The main dish was usually souffles and Nixon also insisted Haller reduce the menu to a salad and main course. Desserts were served only when there were dinner guests, Haller said.

"President Ford, he'd eat everything," Haller said. "He just liked to eat food." His favorite was pork chops with red cabbage, Haller said.

The Carter years brought an emphasis, not surprisingly, on Southern cooking. "Every Wednesday was fried chicken" for the Georgia family, Haller said.

Ronald Reagan liked lobster dishes, Haller said. As with Nixon, the Reagans wanted to eat light, but Reagan insisted on dessert, so usually something with fruit was served, he said.

Haller said he never had to share the kitchen with a First Lady, but did make room for Johnson's daughter, Lynda, so she could bake brownies for her husband, Charles Robb, then a Marine stationed in Vietnam.

Robb went on to be governor of Virginia and is now a U.S. senator.
