WASHINGTON
By RAY TUCKER

Sweet—Several of President Roosevelt's key advisers on power deprecate his insistence on the death sentence for holding companies. They prefer strict regulation to extermination. It may explain the faintness of the magnates and the strength of their stocks.

The more extreme senate measure gives holding companies a reprieve until 1942. Then there will be several years of litigation during which the hand of the government may be stayed. By that time, however—1944, if not 1940—we may have a less strenuous administration. If the courts don't upset the measure a congress subservient to a "normalcy" chief executive may.

The power people are beating the tom toms publicly over the pending measure. But if you take into consideration numerous stock splits, their securities are selling as high as they did when Warren Harding was president. They aren't losing any sleep.

Threat—Mr. Roosevelt is passing up no chance to outmaneuver the power interests. He has quietly revived discussions with Canada for a St. Lawrence waterway pact. The original treaty met senate defeat because of midwestern and eastern objections to its navigational features. Now Mr. Roosevelt's diplomats are emphasizing the power question in their pourparlers with Canadian representatives. They haven't gotten very far, and probably won't, but it's a threat and a talking point in negotiations on Capitol Hill.

Mr. Roosevelt will soon point to reduction in power rates resulting in part from his program. The cut to the consumer from July 1, 1935 to the same date this year amounts to about $20,000,000. Although one-third of the gravy was dished out in the vicinity of TVA the benefits were fairly widespread. The report will precipitate some private squirmings and explanations.

True—Administration labor scouts don't look for any major strikes until fall. There may be sporadic outbreaks, but they expect basic industries—steel, automobile and textile—to escape large-scale disturbances through the summer months.

ALP—Francis J. Gorman, for instance, yearns to stage a strike demonstration in the textile industry tomorrow. He would like to protest against the industry's installation of lower wages and longer hours since the codes flew out the window. But the manufacturers

Seven Accused In Willacy County Irrigation Project

WASHINGTON, (AP)—An indictment charging seven men with conspiracy to defraud the government in connection with the $4,800,000 PWA irrigation project in Willacy county, Texas, was held invalid in the District of Columbia supreme court Thursday by Justice Jesse Adkins. The court held the indictments were fatally drafted.

Two former PWA employees were among seven accused in planning to defraud the government through changes in plans and specifications for the project.

'Bill' Doupe Is Captured

Lubbock Sheriff Follows Trail Of Fugitive Into Oregon State

W. E. "Bill" Doupe, who with Ed "Perchmouth" Stanton, Andrew H. Nelson, and J. B. Stephens, broke jail at Lubbock in 1934 has been recaptured in Oregon.

His capture was another laurel for Sheriff Tom Abel of Lubbock who is fast gaining a reputation as a man hunter.

Doupe and his companions took Walter Posey and Campbell H. Elkins, banker and bank accountant, as hostages when they escaped. After spending most of the afternoon driving around north of Big Spring, they released their victims near Fairview. They were picked up by Glass Glenn and brought to town.

"It was Doupe who talked with his companions and suggested that they go to New Mexico so we would have a federal charge against us," he also boasted he would never be taken alive.

Sheriff Abel kept following Doupe's trail and furnished information which led to his ultimate capture. If Doupe waives extradition, Abel and a deputy will go after him immediately. The other escapers were recaptured, Stanton being electrocuted.

Moore Helps Make Red Letter Day On The Golf Calendar

Jim Moore combined with Lee Hubby to make Wednesday a red letter day on the Munny golf calendar.

Hubby pulled the million-to-one shot with an ace on No. 8, but Moore's flashy streak almost equaled it.

He got a beautiful drive off No. 11. Then with cool calculation, he pitched his approach squarely into the cup for an eagle two.

Woolworth Co. Leases Store In Big Spring

A. P. McDonald & Co. Building Leased To New York Concern

A. P. McDonald, pioneer Big Spring business man, owner and manager of A. P. McDonald & Company, men's furnishings store, announced Thursday he has leased the 25x100 foot building at 218 Main street to F. W. Woolworth & Company, New York City, effective January 1, 1936.

Mr. McDonald said the lease papers were completely signed Wednesday, calling for a lease period of ten years. The Woolworth company will install a new front and make other improvements and rearrangements in the two-story building, prior to opening for business January 1, 1935.

Mr. McDonald said he intended to retire from business just as soon as he could dispose of his men's furnishings stock and fixtures.

Coming to Big Spring February 1, 1897, from Abilene, where he had worked for several mercantile firms since 1892, Mr. McDonald was employed as buyer and manager of the Patsy-Matthews & Company mercantile store, later known as Matthews-Woicott Company and Stokes-Hughes company. He entered business for himself in 1906, opening a men's furnishings store

Laws Asked To Guard Against Court Attacks

President Sends Message To Congress Recommending Legislation

DEFINITE ACTION TO END UNCERTAINTY

Urges Withdrawal By U. S. Of Its Consent To Be Sued

WASHINGTON, (AP)—Legislation to tighten up any possible loopholes threatening the nation's new monetary system was recommended to congress Thursday by President Roosevelt.

The legislation was designed to guard the administration's monetary policy against court attacks.

"Before termination of this session of congress," the president said in a special message, "I believe it is important that definite action be taken to eliminate any uncertainty with respect to right of holders of gold clause bonds of the government to sue for payment either in gold or else in legal tender with additional sum of 66c on every dollar.

"To this end I urge withdrawal by the United States of its consent to be sued upon its currency for securities."

Specifically, the president recommended immediate enactment of legislation:

1. That will authorize and direct the secretary of treasury, at request of holders of gold clause securities of the United States to make payment therefore in cash, dollar for dollar, with accrued interest, or at the holder's direction, to exchange such securities for non-gold clause securities with the same interest rate and maturity;
2. That will terminate any consent which the United States may have voluntarily given to be sued on its securities, coins or currencies;
3. That will reaffirm the fixed policy of the United States to make payment to all holders of its securities, coins or currencies on an equal or uniform dollar for dollar basis and will make appropriations available for payments on this basis only.

City To Make Water Survey

County Commissioners Decline To Participate; En- gineers To Work Soon

Making good its avowed intention of starting a surface water survey in the county at once, the city Wednesday accepted the proposal of Joe E. Ward, consulting engineer, and cleared the way for him to begin work almost immediately.

Tuesday evening city commissioners had voted to accept Ward's proposal of $2,000 for the survey and detailed work until a PWA loan were granted for dam construction, if such were deemed feasible, contingent upon Howard county assuming half the cost.

This action was taken after County Judge J. S. Garlington had expressed keen interest in the survey and suggested the commissioners court might wish to bear part of the expense in order to gain data from the survey.

County commissioners declined the offer and the city commission was convoked into session, acting immediately to accept Ward's proposition.

Thursday Ward said he intended to have his staff on the job within a week's time if possible. "The time to do something is right now," he explained. "If we wait, something else might come up and delay us."

He will direct a thorough survey of country within a radius which would permit practical lifting of water to Big Spring. Ward said length of time required for the survey was a matter for conjecture, being wholly dependent upon findings.

ITALY'S PROBLEM.

Fifty thousand more Italian soldiers are about to depart for Africa, according to dispatches from Rome.

Mussolini has ordered their mobilization in connection with the Abyssinian dust-up; and the dispatches explain that,
while he isn't exactly hunting for trouble,
he "wants to show Europe that Italy can solve its own problems" without the aid of the League of Nations or anybody else.

This is a praiseworthy bit of individual self-reliance, no doubt, and should be accepted gratefully in a world where self-reliance is becoming a rare virtue.
And yet this business of solving your own problems, in the field of international relations, is not quite as simple as it may seem. For the excellent reason that when you set out to solve your problems you are very apt to raise a new set of problems for somebody else to solve.

It is not hard to find illustrative examples from history.

For many years prior to 1914, the "Serbian question" was one of the most weighty problems confronting the government of Austria-Hungary. We can understand it best by pretending that California, New Mexico, Arizona, and Texas were almost solidly populated by Mexicans; that these Mexicans all wanted to get back under the Mexican flag; and that the Mexican government convinced with them in a campaign of terrorism by which American governors were assassinated and American buildings were bombed.

Such a situation would seem unendurable to us; and that is precisely the way an exactly similar situation seemed to the government of Austria-Hungary in 1914, so that, when the Archduke Franz Ferdinand was killed, the government anticipated Mussolini's program and set out to solve its own problems without any outside assistance.

Well, there is not much use going into details about what happened next.
For Austria-Hungary to solve her Serbian problem meant the creation of a new problem for Russia, for Russia to solve that gave Germany a problem; and after a few similar progressions, the whole world found itself with a

OILERS SMASH TYPE LICE WEDNESDAY, FOUR TO ONE

V.F.W. Marks Another Win Swatzy Hurls For Herald In Absence Of Ray McMahon

By HANK HART

The Codden Oilers, who have been roughed around considerably by the major teams, smashed the mighty Herald Type Lice Wednesday evening, defeating the Harris sluggers, 4-1.

The Herald tried valiantly, but it was not enough, for the Oilers were clicking at their best. "Horsecollar" Henninger, on the mound for the Coddenites, twirled one of his best games and would have received credit for a shutout had not Baker tossed wild in the sixth inning in attempting to catch Miller Harris in a double play.

The Oilers' runs came in pairs, two in the second and two in the fourth.

"Chick" Greer, sandy haired youth of the local CCC, led his mates to victory with his terrific hitting at the plate. Greer had the Herald infield jumping far and wide as he rapped out a pair of extra base blows in opposite sections of the field.

The Herald's only counter came when Pickle binged in the sixth, who took an extra base on Baker's wild throw, and tallied on a hit by Roland Swatzy.

Swatzy, who did mound duty in the absence of Ray McMahon, the league's leading pitcher, lost the decision when his mates could not break the Codden defense.

The VFW, who have been threatening to climb from the cellar for some time, took another step in that direction by defeating Southside Ice, 17-4, in the evening's first game.

The Vets found Burris' fast fall to their liking, pounding it freely in every inning.

Patterson led the attack against the Ice men's pitcher, collecting a home run and three singles in five trips.

Standfield, inactive for over a month, returned to ride to an easy victory on the mound when his mates contributed their greatest offensive game in weeks.

The Southern Ice victory was their fifth of the season.

Banquet Tonight To Honor C. C. C. Basketball Team

A banquet, honoring members of the championship basketball team, will be held 8 p. m. tonight at the CCC camp mess hall. Major Thomas Jenkins, commanding officer of the West Texas district, will be the principal speaker. Other speakers will be W. T. Strange, manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, and Mrs. Chas. series of interlocking problems which resulted in the death of some millions of men.

Discussing the affair at this length is just another way of saying that national relationships are so extraordinarily complex these days that no nation any longer has any external problems which affect itself alone.

The world has shrunk too much. Whether we like it or not, we shall all, eventually, sink or swim together.

High honors went to Jim Schmiedley who, tallying 214 points in his last game, compiled a total of 514

Angelo Team May Play Here Soon

Possibility of getting the Texas & Pacific baseball team out of Dallas here for a game with the Cowboys July 4 dwindled Friday when the T&P team turned down a $20 guarantee offer.

Manager Harris has been dickering with Oscar Peoples of the San Angelo Sheep Herders for a double-header here the 6th.

Peoples asked for a fifty dollar guarantee, but Harris considered that too high and wired an offer of $30 and $0-40.

Leiber Gives Lot Of Punch

By The Associated Press

It has taken Hank Leiber some time to live up to the promise he showed when he first reported to the Giants in Los Angeles three years ago. The husky Arizona made a fine impression on John McGraw with the way he stood up there at the plate and took his cut. One peek at Leiber in action even then was enough to convince anyone that he was a natural slugger.

There isn't a right-handed batter in the National League today who hits the ball harder than Leiber does. He seems to have found his real stride and his average is going to soar if he keeps on getting the two and three hits he has been pounding out per game of late.

Hank hits the ball on a line, but in the early games was not getting many homers. Many of his drives that went for put-outs would have been extra-base hits had they been placed a few feet to either side. Outfielders and infielders were robbing him of hits with spectacular catches.

The law of averages now seems to be working in his favor for his drives are dropping where the fielders cannot lay a hand on them. One-fourth of his hits to date have been extra-base clouts.

To make his hitting more deadly Leiber seems to have found the range of the park walls. In a recent game against the St. Louis Cardinals he hit a pair of home runs, one of them just about the longest ever hit in the Polo grounds. It struck the balcony railing some 125 feet from home plate.

Leiber was a great athlete at the University of Arizona and no shrinking violet when it came to estimating his own ability. Hank thought he was a good ball player when he first struck the Giants' training camp and wanted everyone to know about it. He is one of the most powerful men in the league.

It has taken him quite some time to polish off the rough edges and to develop the balance and steadiness necessary to a big league regular. Now that he has finally begun to click in a big way it is a feather in Terry's cap for the Giants' manager was confident that Leiber would come through if given time.

Better Against Cards

The league-leading Giants have shown considerable improvement over their last year's showing against the Cardinals, at least in the first seven games. Last year the Giants managed to win only one game out of the first seven played but this year the situation is reversed for they have taken five from the St. Louis world champions.

The Cardinals still look like the one team capable of making it interesting for the Giants. If the Cardinals are counting on another garrison finish to pull them through again this fall they had better get that idea out of their heads. The Giants pack more power and have not been playing under the terrific pressure that broke their backs last year and so are highly likely to crack wide open again.

In ringing up his ninth victory of the season at the expense of the Cardinals, Carl Hubbell can boast of a victory over every club in the league except Brooklyn.

would welcome a strike now. They have large inventories and would appreciate a summer war.

The endless NRA is watching this situation closely. The new Labor Relations Board will tackle this armed truce as its first problem. Mr. Roosevelt is banking heavily on fall recovery. He does not want it jeopardized by industrial upsets.

Fate—

It would not serve as legal evidence in the controversy between the government and the airplane company as to what caused the crash in which Senator Bronson Cutting was killed. But it is the talk of the Capital.

On the night before the late Senator Cutting flew home he dined with Evelyn McLean, the owner of the fatal Hope diamond. She wore it at the dinner. Its luster attracted the artistic senator. He reached toward it. Mrs. McLean warned him of the superstition—allegedly borne out by many deaths—that to handle it was disastrous to everybody except the owner. Senator Cutting scoffed at her warning. Two days later he was dead.

Practical—

Senator Norris has refrained his constitutional amendment for abolition of the electoral college and direct election of presidents.

He hatched this revolutionary plan when presidents he did not like were in the white house. He thought it would encourage and ease the formation of a third party. It was designed to lighten the expense and the task of fomenting a potential revolution.

But Senator Norris still dotes on Franklin D. Roosevelt—"another Roosevelt." He believes that the president has made some serious mistakes, but he is strong for the administration's social program. So he won't give aid and comfort to third parties at this particular moment if he can help it. Mr. Norris is a very practical politician.

Unlikely—

It is well to bear in mind the impediments facing attempts to amend the constitution. No proposed amendment can be submitted to the states unless it is passed by a two-thirds vote of congress. The tight squeaks through which recent legislation has passed show that it would be exceedingly difficult to get a two-thirds vote for a constitutional amendment.

No amendments can be submitted through the states unless two-thirds of them make the demand and then three-fourths of them must concur if the amendment is to be ratified.

A great deal of agitation and an unmistakable public demand must develop before two-thirds of the present congress will propose any constitutional amendment. The overwhelming Democratic majority means nothing, as many Democrats talk on this question.

Nippon—

World statesmen worry about the potentialities of war in various spheres of controversy. But our military strategists see no threat of conflict except in the Orient.

No nation now involved in current controversy possesses the peculiar combination of personnel, raw materials and money for carrying on a first-class war. This applies to France, Germany, Italy, Poland and the Balkan states—powder barrels of Europe. Alliance of any of these nations with Russia or another nation rich in raw materials would be a dagger thrust at the anemic body of world peace. So far no such union is in sight.

Only Japan is fuelling the weapons of conflict. With her conquest of China she will possess rich stores of oil steel and coke. That's why the world's military chieftains are cock-eyed from squinting toward the Land of the Rising Sun.

Notes—

The gold-plated mansion of the late "Tom" Walsh, of Camp Bird fame, is taken over for government offices—typewriters in a palace. Rex Tugwell's rural resettlement scheme is undergoing a sea-change into "satellite towns" adjacent to cities where work may be had, maybe. But good farm lands are being substituted for poor ones, also, with much benefit to poor farmers. A great deal of the work-relief fund is absorbed in past expenses. Contractors are putting up a howl against the wholesale scrapping of relief projects calling for materials and machinery.

NEW YORK By JAMES McMULLIN

Inkpot—
An opinion drafted by a most distinguished constitutional lawyer says the Wheeler-Rayburn bill is less valid than the NRA.

The legal authority's analysis stresses the points that it exceeds the authority granted by congress by the constitution and delegates power to the Securities Exchange Commission without providing adequate standards to govern its exercise. The latter was one of the most important elements in the supreme court's anti-New Deal decisions on NRA and federal oil control. The eminent attorney expresses it as follows:

"If congress were to pass an act in bare language directing the Securities Exchange commission to register and regulate such holding companies as it thought should be registered and regulated and to exempt all others... to cut off the heads of all those whose heads ought to be cut off and to spare the rest; and if the act should add that the only guide congress had to offer the commission was that it should keep in mind 'the public interest or the interest of investors or consumers—no one... would agree that such an act could stand. Yet it seems not unfair to say that S. 2796 reduced to simplest terms is still a little more than that. Good laws are not written by throwing an inkpot at the Devil."

Rights—

Another section of the lawyer's opinion dwells on the "grave" deprivation of liberty involved in the attempted denial of access to the mails or the facilities of interstate commerce. This is the penalty imposed by the bill upon any unregistered person (or corporation) who is declared a holding company. In essence it would forbid such persons to use the mails, telephone, telegraph and perhaps even the facilities of air, sea and land travel—or to own securities in any company engaged in interstate commerce. "He is in short put under a form of domiciliary arrest."

The question is raised whether access to these things is "a mere privilege which congress may grant or withhold at its pleasure or a right which cannot be impaired except for causes connected with the instant use forbidden."

Court precedents are cited to show that a citizen's right to use the mails and engage in interstate commerce are natural rights not derived from federal authority. "As such it would seem that his right is subject to abridgement only when the public health, safety and morals or the protection of commerce are concerned; not because his activities are too widely scattered, his business unpopular, or his investments of a character that congress does not approve."

The analysis concludes: "If the provisions of the bill are enacted into law, I do not think the act can survive the scrutiny of the courts."

Reins—

Great Britain is playing a grand game of hide-and-seek with stabilization. One day she's for it—next day not a chance. The real answer to this off-again-on-again attitude is the Baldwin government's unwillingness to monkey with the monetary buzz-saw with a general election looming up this fall. Returning to gold might prove highly unpopular at the polls.

If the conservatives win the election—as they expect to at present despite obvious Labor-Party gains—betting is they would quit acting coy and get down to brass tacks with the United States and France. They would no longer have to worry about political repercussions.

England is still angling for a commitment from FDR that he will not devalue the dollar again. The president politely declines to rise to the hook. There's no prospect of evaluation in the near future—but he has no intention of scrapping a potentially useful monetary weapon. Even if he were willing to make such a pledge, it wouldn't mean a thing. Congress holds the monetary reins in the last analysis and the supreme court ruled—in the gold case—that no congress has power to bind its successors even as to terms of a fixed contract.

Technique—

The Pan-Asiatic movement is coming along much faster than even the Japanese expected a few months ago. A high Japanese staff officer tipped the hand when he remarked that Chinamen who opposed Nippon's program were "racial traitors."

The Japanese are great on bell-curve gestures—but they have a streak of caution too. New Yorkers in close touch with the Far East say that army authorities never order a military operation these days unless they're darned sure it will be easily successful. They learned their lesson at Shanghai. The current Japanese strategy is to penetrate China with as little fighting as possible.

The Japanese use an educational technique also. A number of leading Chinese financiers and businessmen have recently been brought to Japan in groups—at the Empire's expense—to inspect Japanese industry and learn how much

Still Hitting 'Em

The veteran MacDonald Smith, still seeking a major title after all these years, blazed a path-shattering 66 to lead the first half of the qualifying round for the British open at Muirfield, Scotland. (Associated Press Photo)

they stood to gain by accepting Japanese leadership.

Buck—

Financial leaders get word that a lot of congressmen voted for the Wagner bill who really weren't any too strong for it. They rode along just to get the Federation of Labor off their chests—with the mental reservation that the supreme court can be counted on to nullify the law in due course. That's blown-in-the-bottle buck passing.

Headlines—

Most laymen think of the Bank for International Settlements as an imposing super-bank of tremendous influence. Actually it carries little weight and its main purpose of existence ended when reparations stopped. In capital and deposits it ranks below the second flight of New York banks. But it still has good publicity. One observer puts it: "A $10,000,000 transaction in New York is hardly important enough to break into print. But the same size transaction among three nations is likely to crash the headlines."

Prizes Awarded H. D. Club Women For Dresses Made From Foundation Patterns

Large Group Of Club Members And Contests Meet Together At First Methodist Church For Basket Lunch

Mrs. H. W. Bartlett, clothing demonstrator of the Overton Home Demonstration Club, was awarded a trip to the short course at A. & M. College in July for the dress she entered in the clothing contest held Wednesday at the First Methodist church.

She will represent Howard county in the state clothing contest and will establish a new record for the county, this being the first time a local woman has entered a dress in the state contest.

The contest is sponsored by A. & M. extension service and is supervised by Mrs. Doris R. Barnes, extension specialist in clothing.

Mrs. Charles Lawrence of Luther won the second prize for demonstrator, which was a dozen fruit jars.

Mrs. John W. Davis of R-Bar also received a dozen pint fruit jars for winning third place.

All club members, listed as co-operators, were judged on a different basis. The dresses they made fell into three classes, house dresses, street dresses and sheer dresses.

Mrs. G. J. James of the Overton club, chairman of the Howard County Council, won first place in the house dress contest and was given the cash prize of $1.50.

Mrs. Rose Hill of Elbow, won second place, receiving a dollar;

Mrs. Duke Lipscomb, third place, receiving fifty cents.

In the street dress contest, Miss Gladys Harris of Vincent won first, Mrs. W. H. Heckler of R-Bar, second; Mrs. Floyd Ashley of Elbow, third. Prizes were the same amount in all three classes.

Mrs. Allon McClintock of Luther was first in sheer dresses, Mrs. Robert Dunn, Vincent, second; and Mrs. W. D. Caldwell, Vealmoor, third.

Appearance Prizes

Mrs. Ed Carpenter of Vincent was awarded a special prize for her appearance and was presented with a cash prize of a dollar that the local ice plant of the Southern Ice company donated.

For demonstrators, Mrs. Charlie Lawrence of Luther won first; Mrs. H. W. Bartlett, Overton, second; and Mrs. John W. Davis, R-Bar, third.

Judges of the dresses were two out of town home demonstration agents, Miss Jellene Vannoy of Martin county and Miss Dyora Crowder of Tom Green county.

The women assembled at the First Methodist church in the morning in the biggest rural club group that ever met for a contest in the history of the organization.

After spreading a basket luncheon at noon, they went into the afternoon's program.

So great was the crowd that the group went into the main auditorium of the church and filled the whole lower floor. The program of stunts planned for the basement was changed to an extemporaneous program more suited to a church auditorium.

Madison Earl Smith, Howard county recreational leader, was in charge of the grand march that came immediately after lunch.

Mrs. Duke Lipscomb led the group singing Pianists of the afternoon were Mrs. A. A. McElrath, Charles Houser and John W. Davis.

Talks were made by Rev. C. A. Bickley and Judge J. S. Garlington. Mrs. W. C. Rogers of R-Bar spoke on "The Growth of Home Demonstration work in the county."

Jane Houser of Clark gave a reading and Mrs. Willard Smith of Fairview gave "A Thought for the Day."

Miss Josephine Winslow, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Roy Stallings, played a violin solo.

All women who took part in the grand parade of models were new dresses made for the occasion, most of them marked by excellent style features and increased attention to details in sewing. All dresses were made from foundation patterns.

Those entering street dresses were: Mrs. Willard Smith, Fairview; Mrs. W. D. Anderson, Luther; Mrs. H. C. Reid, R-Bar; Mrs. O. B. Gaskin, Knott; Mrs. J. J. Jones, Knott; Mrs. Cleatus Langley, Fairview.

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN

On no conceivable ground can Mr. Roosevelt justify the decision to press for enactment of the new tax program this week. This article is written Tuesday morning. Except in the vaguest terms in respect to the corporation tax, no one has yet published the proposed rates. No one has presented any figures showing what amounts these unknown rates are to take. No one has presented any figures estimating what revenues they are supposed to yield. No one has made an argument in favor of any specific proposal. No one has made an argument against any specific proposal. Some of the information may be published in a few hours. It does not matter. Not an editor in the country will have had time to digest it and to consider it even superficially before the end of the week. Without information, without examination, without hearings without public debate, it is proposed before Sunday midnight to enact a tax program containing the most far-reaching implications.

Why? If the government credit were impaired, if there were a financial crisis requiring an instantaneous support of the budget, this procedure could be justified. But the government's credit is excellent. The budget, though out of balance, is not in jeopardy. There is no crisis whatsoever calling for such utterly undemocratic and disorderly methods, and the resort to these methods must be stigmatized as nothing less than a flagrant abuse of power.

The American people have a right to know what the program is. They have a right to examine it. They have a right to debate it and to hear it debated. They have a right to think over the many immensely complicated questions which it raises. They have a right to take the time necessary to understand it.

The report comes from Washington that the reason for this impetuous haste is that the president has to prove his sincerity to Senator Long and to the members of Senator LaFollette's group. If there were any other even partially plausible explanation of this decision the report might be rejected as a malicious rumor. For how can any one prove his sincerity by rushing blindly into a major decision before the people of the country have had a chance to open their mouths? If this program is sound, is carefully conceived, is judiciously arranged, the people will support it when they understand it.

Regardless of what Senator Long chooses to say about it while they are considering it, they will measure the sincerity of the program by its substance and not by the preposterous standard of whether it is enacted before Sunday midnight. Senator Long may think haste is a criterion of sincerity. But the rest of us will think that haste is a demonstration of insincerity. For we do not recognize Huey Long's moral qualifications for setting up the standards by which to judge the sincerity of the president of the United States, or of the congress of the United States, or of the people of the United States.

No matter what he may think and say and threaten, no matter what any faction in the senate may think and say and threaten, the true test of sincerity in public life will continue to be a willingness to submit all proposals to searching examination and thorough debate, to put all the cards on the table face up and to let the people understand and be heard.

The filibuster is a miserable weapon. But if there is any justification for preserving the right to filibuster, this is an occasion when a filibuster is justified. The reason why the senate has clung to the privilege of unlimited debate is that, in spite of all its indignity and inconvenience, though it has been abused innumerable times, it is one final safeguard against the passage of laws before the people have realized their import. No one understands this tax program. If nothing else will do it, the filibuster should be used this week to compel the Administration to return to an orderly and decent procedure.

Miss Lucille Rogers has returned from a month's visit to Galveston where she has been visiting her sister, Mrs. J. F. Filcher.

A Clothes Closet For A Nickel

Mrs. Clarence McMurry Wins First Place In Contest; Many Others Given Honorable Mention

Howard County women have been planning, building closets for clothing all spring. Some of them built entirely out of necessity, some with an eye to the clothing contest held in Big Spring Wednesday, in which the names of three that made the most improvement were announced. Ten women succeeded so well in making clothes closets that they deserved special mention. Miss Georgia Belle Fleeman, who graduated from C.I.A. this spring after majoring in home economics visited each of the ten homes and judged the work. Mrs. Clarence McMurry of Elbow was awarded first place. Mrs. McMurry started with a nail in the wall and built a closet as complete as you please at the cost of a nickel. The nickel went to pay for nails.

Everything else was obtained wherever Mrs. McMurry could get it. Somebody gave her some unused rolls of ceiling paper. She managed to obtain enough white paint and a discarded door without having to pay for it. A windmill sucker rod served as a clothes rod. She made coat hangers for her two-year-old baby's clothes out of heavy wire.

Second Place
Mrs. Charlie Lawrence of Luther was the only one of three who built a closet to go with a new bedroom. Her husband did most of the work on both bedroom and closet. The total cost of the closet was $3.51—every nail counted. Mrs. Lawrence went in for trimming. She papered a Stetson hat box with wall paper and gave it a fancy border, also covered a box for holding shoe polish and rags, etc. with the same paper and border. She built shoe pockets for adults and for her son.

Third Place
Ten cents was the value set by Mrs. Hoy Hancock of Fairview on the old closet she had to hang clothes in—which was only a curtain. For $1.50 she now has a pretty new one, made with wooden frame work, painted on the outside and papered on the inside. It has plenty of shelf room, not 'only enough for storing winter undergarments in the summer and visa versa, but also for household linens.

The seven others in the contest were: Miss Delphia Whitaker, Vincent; Mrs. J. W. Davis, R-Bar; Mrs. Nathan Zant, Vealmoor; Miss Verma Chapman, Lomax; Mrs. I. W. Rogers, Soash; Mrs. H. W. Bartlett, Overton; and Mrs. C. A. Ballard, Chalk.

points; the value of the new closet; the percentage of improvement over former conditions; and the cost of the improvement.

Mrs. Fred Stephens Is Hostess To Ideal Club

Mrs. Fred Stephens extended the hospitality of her home Wednesday afternoon to members and friends of the Ideal Bridge club for a pretty summer party.

Shirley Robbins, Lee Hanson, G. A. Woodward, R. C. Strain, Ira Thurman, and Libburn Coffey. Mrs. Hanson scored highest.

Six members of the club were present for play, Mrs. L. W. Croft, R. T. Finer, A. E. Service, Homer McNew, O. H. Wood and J. D. Biles. Mrs. Biles made high score. Ronelle Stephens helped her mother serve a delicious refreshment plate. Mrs. Wood will be the next hostess.

ENEMY'S KISS

Chapter 36
BURNED LETTER

Daphne was at the door; Robert Rede opened it for her. Alison standing rigid, paralyzed by shock, watched them go out together and heard Daphne, in the hall, murmur "My dear, that's it! I'll speak to Doctor Mortimer for you and I know a wonderful maid."

Alison did not move but she found her knees shaking, her hands trembling, as if she had fainted.

No matter what happened now, her father would never again believe her! She would be carted off helpless to Spain with some grim maid chosen by Daphne to support the hideous pretense that she was victim of hysteria and nerves!

She started at the fireplace blankly, wondering if she were to run away tonight, escape, whether she would be safe. Would they chase her, catch her, bring her back, even shut her up, perhaps in some ghastly nursing home?

The whole familiar room seemed to have grown cold and horrible, unfriendly, as she started down into the fire.

Suddenly she stooped, caught up a scrap of torn paper.

Charred at one corner where it had been lying on the iron bars, it burned her but she did not know it. For she was staring at the words scrawled in a clean, firm, hand, cut short by the diagonal tearing of the sheet.

"If you know, Alison—" and below "—et no answer—" with at the bottom the bold signature "Guy Lu—" ending in burned dark brown edges.

A letter to herself from Guy!

She had a swift vision of Daphne standing by the oak chest in the hall. So that was what she had been doing there! That was why she had stood with skirts outspread before the fire!

A red blaze of anger swallowed Alison's fear. She dropped on her knees on the hearthrug, gathering up all the charred bits she could find—no more than half a dozen little pieces and two of those almost burnt!

She heard the front door shut, as she stood up. Her father was at the door when Alison pushed past him, both hands guarding those small fragments of a letter. She heard him call after her and paid no heed as she fled up the stairs, gained her own room and locked the door.

They would not fit.

Here a word, there a tiny bit of a sentence clear, tantalizing her by hinting at the uncompleted meaning.

She had pushed aside her brushes and little pots, had spread the burned paper out on the glass top of her table, trying each bit to each as one tries to fit a jigsaw puzzle, but they would not make sense.

Guy had written to her; had left the letter, probably, since he had not had time to reach her by post; that was all that she knew when she sat back at last, baffled. Twice during that long session, she had heard her father's knock and had listened to him pleading with her to open the door. She had answered carefully, reasonably, sanely. "I don't want to talk just now, I'm going to bed. Please leave me alone."

She had heard him go back at last to his own rooms and now, looking out, she could see that his light was out.

Half past two; too late to steal down and ring up Guy. By morning Daphne might have the doctor waiting, have engaged a maid to spy on her, she might be a prisoner!

She opened her evening bag and counted out her small store of change: nine shillings in cash. But she had jewelry, enough perhaps to keep her until she found work. Best to go at once, tonight, to an hotel where her luggage would insure her having time to sell what she possessed.

Her own suitcase was upstairs, stored in the attic; she dared not get it, since that would mean tipping past her father's door and up the servants' stairs. She found an old round hatbox which she had used to keep some private, treasured school mementoes.

She put these on the shelf and filled the hatbox up. She changed quickly into the grey suit, added a grey felt hat and little marten fur, her sturdiest pair of gloves and thick dark shoes. Yet it was already past three when she unlocked the door quietly and stole very softly down the thick maroon carpet to the passage to the stairs.

What a noise each step seemed to make at night! She did not dare to turn a light on but found the front door and felt for the chain. The latch gave under her hand and a rush of cold air nipped her as she got the door open. The square looked dark and unfamiliar at this hour, with nothing moving and the lamps dim in a rising fog.

"Victoria—St. Francis? She had no little money that she chose Victoria although it was near, almost too near for safety. The hatbox weighed heavily on her arm and she was afraid that some policeman, noticing her, might stop her to ask what she was doing at that hour, carrying a bag.

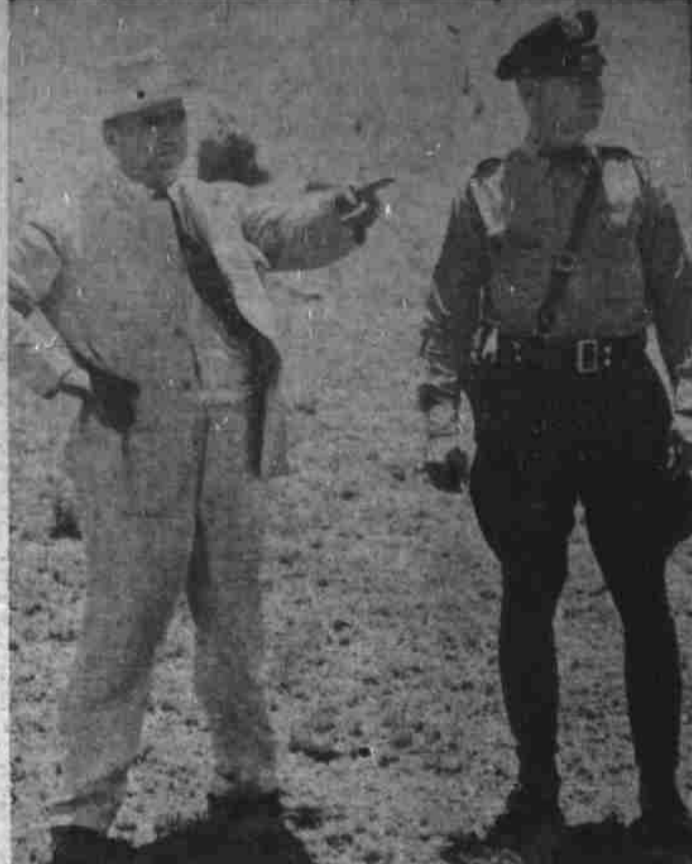

She went into the station; it was empty but there was a waiting room with many people sitting, half asleep, along its shiny benches. She chose to wait in the third, as being less likely to contain anyone she knew. It was half an hour before the hustle of a train arriving released her from an uncomfortable vigil between a fat old man and a bright painted all-to-friendly Frenchwoman.

Ex in hand, Alison made her way towards the incoming train, mingling with its passengers, and with them she went into the hotel.

"A single room, please; a cheap one." The clerk behind the booking-desk barely looked up; young women with hand luggage are not uncommon in a railway hotel at night.

"Number 517," he said briskly. "That'll do"

SEEK MISSING ILLINOIS TOURISTS

A search of the desert near Socorro, N. M., was ordered by Gov. Clyde Tingley (left) of New Mexico for four Illinois tourists last seen May 22. He is shown giving directions to E. J. House, state police chief. Forged travelers checks and their abandoned car were considered important clues in the hunt for Mr. and Mrs. George Lorius of Duquoin, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer of East St. Louis. (Associated Press Photo)

A bare grey room, full of people whose poverty was real and who took it as part of the day's work. Alison, who had never seen these things, remembered Guy sitting in the little restaurant in Soho and saying "They don't want any fairy godmother stuff. They want understanding, sympathy. And that means experience."

She had thought him brutally frank then but now she saw that he was right. What had she got to give to these tired or busy people? She felt rather humble as she chose a far corner, well behind the crowd, to stand and wait.

She was so intent on the crowd that she did not hear the door open.

"Come again on Friday. Who's next?"

She looked up and met his eyes. He was across the room in three strides.

"You! Down here; You got my letter?"

"I want to talk to you about it. But I can wait." She indicated the roomful who were watching the two of them with interest and sundry half-hidden winks.

"Come in and wait in the back room," he suggested.

"No, thanks, I'd rather stay here." That was all; he vanished again accompanied by his next patient.

But she was very leg-weary before the last of the patients had gone in and out again, before twelve o'clock struck and her own turn came.

"Have you a car outside?" He was standing by a desk, very businesslike in a white overall and a pair of horn-rimmed glasses.

"No." She laughed a little shakily. "I haven't even got my fare back to Victoria."

Ten minutes later, Alison lay curled up in a strange bed, trying to realize that she had run away from home.

Dundas; the telephone book gave her the number and street; but when she found it, she got a slight shock. Such a squalid, wind-lag little back street, with ragged white-faced children playing on the pavements, uncleaned of refuse from the day before!

Even her old grey suit seemed too smart for this street, an insult to the dragged women who stood curled up in doorways. She felt almost glad when she reached the end door with the red sign above it and Surgery written in white.

Once there, she had imagined she would see Guy at once; but the door stood open and the room inside, bare but for wooden benches round the walls, was crowded. There was no sitting space left, and the people who were standing looked as though they had been waiting for some time.

And Nothing Can Be Done About It

There's a new member of the club named Shear and he plays the most atrocious golf yesterday as he was finishing the first nine he noticed the glumness of his caddy.

JUST TO MAKE CONVERSATION HE SAID, "HAVE YOU EVER CADDIED FOR A WORSE PLAYER THAN MYSELF?" THE CADDY DIDN'T REPLY.

TWO MORE HOLES WERE PLAYED. SHEAR THOUGHT THE BOY MUST BE DEAF SO AGAIN HE ASKED HIM, "HAVE YOU EVER CADDIED FOR A WORSE PLAYER THAN MYSELF?"

THE CADDY REMAINED SILENT. TWO MORE HOLES WERE PLAYED. ONCE AGAIN SHEAR ASKED HIM THE SAME QUESTION.

THE CADDY REMOVED HIS CIGARETTE. "I HEARD YOU TH' FIRST TIME," HE REPLIED. "I'M STILL THINKIN'."

I THINK A LOT OF THESE CADDIES ARE TERRIBLY RUDE, I HOPE THE MAN DIDN'T TIP THAT BOY.

THE SPORTSMAN

BY LARRY BAUER

You'll never get a sportsman of the northwest to admit there is any greater thrill in life than hooking a big Chinook or Silver salmon. These fish, found in abundance in the waters of Puget Sound in Washington, will fight until they are too tired to wiggle, and a big one, such as a 25 or 30 pounder, will keep even the most skilled angler busy for a good half hour.

They show intelligence by darting under the boat and cutting the line on the keel. The only way to land the fish is to play him until he's ready to collapse.

Squirrel Music The fine old sport of squirrel shooting is under way in the south and as the season advances it spreads north. Slick young reds and greys are chattering, and that is music to the riflemen's ears. The small-bore enthusiast is getting both practice and relaxation afield, with some mighty good eating to boot.

Pursuit of these little tree-dwelling mammals is traditional to Americans," says Bob Chandler, Oklahoma wild life authority. "History of the lives and habits of the nation's pioneers is replete with accounts of squirrel shooting for sport with their long-barreled Kentucky rifles and to provide cabin tables with a toothsome delicacy.

"Tales by James Fenimore Cooper and other rugged writers reveal that with wild turkey, deer and larger game available, keen-eyed woodsmen consistently expended their precious powder and ball at squirrels."

Squirrel pie isn't hard to take; neither is stewed squirrel with dumplings, but something really good is fried young squirrel with hot biscuits and gravy. Um! No wonder the old timers went after em. And still some folks say: "Just can't understand how anyone could eat a squirrel." Well, what was good enough for grandpap is good enough for us, and the old man reached the ripe age of 92.

An abundance of water in Montana trout streams cheered the winter-weary angler when the season opened May 21. The state parched under a relentless sun last year, but streams hard hit by the drought were restocked when weather conditions permitted.

Montana has reduced fishing licenses from $2.50 for a year's permit to $1.50 for a 15-day non-resident license.

Fishing prospects in Colorado this summer are very good. The state, known for its trout fishing, has planted, among other species in the high mountain streams, thousands of the golden-marked California trout.

Rowland Matteson of Laramie, Wyo., landed a 29-inch native trout at Lake Halls as the season opened. Fishing conditions are reported bright in the state.

City, County Dads Discuss Charity Case

No Solution To Problem Reached, Arguments Are Advanced

City and county commissioners locked verbal horns over the tangled situation of bearing charity burdens Wednesday and retired where they started.

The conference, held without the county judge, city manager or city secretary being present, was the outgrowth of the city's action in checking the direct charity burden to the county after June 1.

County commissioners asked for a continuance of the old set up of 50-50, saying that this was the customary set-up in a vast majority of places. They contended the city ought to bear a portion of the expense as a service to its tax payers.

The city's view was that bearing of the expense was unembellished double taxation if the city contributed one half since all city tax payers must also pay county taxes. City commissioners also contended it was the county's duty, by state law, to care for paupers within the county.

It appeared likely that other conferences would follow until some definite solution is reached in the matter.

Clever Water Theft Scheme Is Uncovered

City Water Department Makes Discovery; Man Is Fined

One of the cleverest water theft schemes ever uncovered by the city department was discovered Thursday.

A beautiful, thrifty garden, a cow, and a family of six children caused ultimate detection of a neat by-pass scheme.

Sensing something wrong, the department had investigated the meter and connections without success for sometime. When the latest reading showed only 238 gallons consumed, water department employees were convinced something was wrong.

Workers detected evidence of diggings near the meter box and unearthed the by-pass. It involved an attachment between the box and main with a cut-off before tying onto the private line. The arrangement steered clear of the usual tests run for by-passing.

A father of six children confessed, after lengthy questioning, to installing the device and was assessed a $25 fine. Employed only part of the time, he will be given an opportunity to work out the fine and pay for new connections.

Clean Out Kidney Poisons

Wash Out Your 15 Miles of Kidney Tubes If kidneys don't pass 2 pints a day and get rid of more than 1 pound of waste matter, the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters may become clogged with poisonous waste and the danger of acid poisoning is greatly increased.

This acid condition, brought about by poor kidney functions is a danger signal and may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and distress.

Most people watch their bowels which contain only 27 feet of intestines but neglect the kidneys which contain 15 miles of tiny tubes and filters. If these tubes or filters become clogged with poisons, it may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't run any risk. Make sure your kidneys empty 2 pints a day.

Ask your druggist for DOAN'S FILLS, an old prescription, which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. © 1934, Foster-Millburn Co.

to 1933, the report shows, the three months with the highest death totals were September, October and November. The average monthly total of deaths during these months was 3,137, compared with a June to August average of 2,804. For some reason, the trend shifted in 1934 and the three high months were October, November and December. An average of 3,640 persons lost their lives in traffic accidents in each of these months.

Probably the most important factor in this bad record, says Accident Facts, is the decrease in daylight during the fall and early winter months. While nation-wide figures on the danger hours are not available, experience in certain parts of the country indicates that deaths reach their peak each day between five and seven o'clock in the afternoon. This is also the period of heaviest traffic. The death curve reaches another decided peak between the hours of midnight and one a. m., a time when there is comparatively little traffic. The safest time to drive, according to these figures, is in the morning between seven and nine o'clock. From that time on the death curve
