His Touch

By Charlotte Barbaree

Scripture: For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life. For God did not send his Son into the world to condemn the world, but to save the world through him. (John 3:16-17 NIV)

My husband was born dead! A long, difficult labor had left him with what appeared to be a severe brain hemorrhage. His head was elongated and was black from eye-brows to crown. His mother's sister was a delivery room nurse, and she assisted with his delivery.

When the doctor delivered the baby boy, he wasn't breathing. The doctor laid him aside and told "Aunt Willie" not to look at him. "It will just break your heart," he said.

But Aunt Willie wasn't willing to give up so easily; she couldn't face her sister without having tried to save her baby. Aunt Willie went to work on the pitiful little body and kept working till he started to breathe.

Later, when she handed the baby into his mother's arms, he was frighteningly damaged and fragile. His head was still misshapen and black; his nose was broken; he had a heart condition; and he was very likely brain damaged. But he was alive!

However, the baby surprised everyone and grew into a healthy, intelligent, strapping boy. He recently celebrated his 50th birthday, and all 50 years have been productive: personally, socially, intellectually, occupationally, and spiritually.

Aunt Willie went to heaven a few months ago, but the bond between her and the boy she saved was special till the day she died.

God sent his son into the world to give life to the spiritually dead. We mortals often give up on individuals in whom we find no redeeming value. We put them aside and assume them to be beyond hope — regrettably dead and damned.

But Jesus isn't willing to give up so easily. His Spirit goes to work on the pitifully lifeless soul and keeps working, trying to coax it into breathing the new life of salvation. And when it exhales corruption and inhales redemption, it becomes a living soul!

As Jesus joyfully views the new born, he doesn't dwell on the marks that evince the damage to and fragility of the babe. He sees, instead, the strong, productive Christian the individual can grow to be.

And the bond between the Savior and the soul he saved will remain divinely special all the way into eternity.

(If you are seeking salvation, read John 3 in a New Testament. If you are in need of spiritual counseling, contact a clergyman of your choice.)

Soviet Jews: this year in Newark

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Amid the humble clutter of an apartment complex basement, Jews who fled anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union will gather Friday evening to recreate their ancestors' flight from oppression in Egypt.

Newark, largely black and Hispanic, seems an unlikely place for Soviet Jews to connect with their heritage.

But members of the Mount Sinai Congregation, one of two synagogues remaining from 30 that once flourished in Newark, have found a door to their past through the age-old Passover ritual.

Moshe Gorfinkel, 69, celebrated Passover last year for the first time since 1928, when he was a child in Baku, the capital of the Soviet republic of Azerbaijan.

"Everything I felt at that time came back, fresh from childhood," Gorfinkel said through an interpreter. "I could hear my father lead the celebrations. The gefilte fish, the red borscht, the horseradish. It was exactly the smell and taste of my childhood."

Passover renewed Gorfinkel's ties to his roots. It also let him relive the bitterness of his own exodus.

A good life working as an accountant in Baku ended abruptly, he said, after a conflict between Armenians and Azerbaijanis made Jews a convenient target for both sides. "Now, there is no way, no life for Jews there."

Three generations of Gorfinkels fled Baku and made their way to New Jersey.

"They feel they were delivered from Russia," said Rabbi Samuel Bogomilsky, who has been at Mount Sinai since 1964.

Bogomilsky, an orthodox rabbi from the Lubavitch sect, has witnessed the decline of Judaism in Newark. Most of the 100,000 Jews moved to the suburbs, especially following the 1967 riots, and the rabbi saw the synagogues close one by one.

Corn Bible Academy Choir

Bible Church to host Oklahoma choir

The Corn Bible Academy Choir, of Corn, Okla., will present the program, "Carry the Torch" at the Bible Church of Pampa, 300 W. Browning, on Wednesday, April 3, at 7:30 p.m.

Directed by Charles Reiger, the 34-voice choir is a ministry of the music department of Corn Bible Academy. The performance in Pampa is the first stop on a six-city tour for the choir.

Founded in 1902, Corn Bible

Academy is a six-year state accredited Christian junior and senior high school affiliated with the Mennonite Brethren. CBA offers Bible studies for each grade level in addition to the state required classes, plus music and athletics. There are dormitories for both boys and girls who are non-commuting students. Corn, Okla., is located 13 miles south and western of Weatherford in western Oklahoma.

Performing with the choir is senior Pamela Hubbard, 17-year-old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Roger A. Hubbard of Pampa. Hubbard has been a student of CBA for four years.

Two local churches plan performances by gospel trio 'Evergreen' this Sunday

Evergreen, a gospel trio comprised of Janae Harris, Russell Ball and Wendel Christenson, are to be singing at Pampa Chapel and Faith Christian Center on Sunday, March 31.

The trio will sing at Pampa Chapel, 711 E. Harvester, at 10:45 a.m. Sunday. They will then perform for Faith Christian Center, 118 N. Cuyler, at 6 p.m.

Evergreen ministers in churches throughout the United States, singing a wide variety of music including southern gospel, classic hymns of the church and some original compositions.

Pastors Howard Whiteley of Pampa Chapel and Ed Barker of Faith Christian Center invite everyone to attend this special time of ministry and sharing. A nursery for children through three years old will be provided for the performance at Faith Christian Center.

Pampa Chapel also plans an Easter Sunrise service at 6 a.m. Sunday. The public is invited to attend.

John and LaFern Pratt

Couple to conduct revival at New Life Worship Center

John and LaFern Pratt of Houston are to conduct revival services beginning Sunday, March 31, at the New Life Worship Center, 318 N. Cuyler.

Services will be at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday and 7:30 p.m. on Monday through Wednesday nights. The couple will present worship choruses, special singing and uplifting messages from the Bible.

On Sunday, Mrs. Pratt will give her inspiring personal testimony concerning how she was healed of multiple sclerosis through divine power. Doctors in Amarillo had given no hope for her recovery. Special prayer will be offered for those needing healing. Evangelist Pratt is a graduate of Southwestern Assemblies of God college in Waxahachie. The couple has pastored churches in Waco and Panhandle, conducted children's crusades in churches, in camps, and conventions throughout the United States. They have also made numerous appearances on television and radio.

Pastor Allen Poldson, of the local church, and the Pratts are long-time friends. "The public is invited to hear the music, the testimony, and challenging messages from the word of God by the Pratt family," he said.

Religion briefs

CHICAGO (AP) - Bishops of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America say that the only doctrinally acceptable way for a person to be baptized is "in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit."

The usage had become an issue because some pastors see the traditional formulation as sexist and have begun baptizing instead in the name of the "Creator, Redeemer and Sanctifier."

The bishops, in a unanimous statement, said that "we must be pastoral and sensitive in speaking to the issues of our time. Yet we must also be responsible in maintaining the integrity of our orthodox Christian tradition."

U.S. seeks to restore communications after Moscow embassy fire

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials may reinstall a top-security van once used during a high-level meeting in Moscow to restore critical communications knocked out by fire in the American Embassy.

The fire struck Thursday when Washington could ill afford to lose touch with its vital embassy listening post in the crisis-wracked Soviet capital.

While firefighters battled the blaze, tens of thousands of demonstrators defied a ban by President Mikhail S. Gorbachev to show support for his arch-rival, Boris N. Yeltsin, president of the Russian republic.

The fire destroyed much of the U.S. Embassy building just as a $50 million renovation was nearing completion. An American source said 80 percent of the embassy's capabilities were destroyed and that virtually all secure communications had been halted.

An official source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the embassy was instructed to send all classified communications by diplomatic pouch until secure electronic facilities can be set up.

Officials hope to set up makeshift work space on the grounds of the new U.S. Embassy compound, whose eight-story office tower stands unfinished, vacant and purportedly riddled with Soviet eavesdropping equipment.

Another source said the fire set off a hasty search for a specially modified mobile van that was shipped to Moscow in the fall of 1987 to serve then-Secretary of State George Shultz during his meetings with Gorbachev and top Soviet officials on sensitive arms control issues.

Shultz couldn't use the old embassy because investigators feared Soviet agents had penetrated it by compromising its Marine guards. One Marine was court-martialed in the sex-for-secrets scandal, but officials eventually concluded the top-secret communications room remained secure, and the van was quietly shipped out of the country.

That was merely one chapter in an embarrassment that already has cost American taxpayers about $300 million and likely will cost at least that much more before anyone moves into new embassy offices in Moscow.

Congress and the administration have been unable to agree on whether to tear down the unfinished building and start over, or accept part of it as insecure and build up to four stories on top to house classified functions.

The old embassy was being renovated so it could be used until officials in Washington decide the fate of the new structure.

The Soviet news agency Tass said welding in an elevator shaft under renovation sparked the embassy blaze. It was at least the fourth fire in recent years and the second to cause extensive damage to the ambassador's office and other sensitive rooms.

Work on the new embassy was halted five years ago after U.S. inspectors said they found sophisticated electronic eavesdropping devices implanted in structural parts of the building that were assembled by Soviet workers.

One source familiar with the work estimated that the government has spent $60 million to $70 million trying to figure out what the Soviets did to the building.

Ambassador Jack Matlock and embassy spokesmen have refused for years to discuss work that has continued in the new building, but tons of rubble reportedly have been removed by U.S. workers and shipped by diplomatic pouch for microscopic scrutiny in the United States.

KGB chief Vladimir A. Kryuchkov denied to The Associated Press that his agents ever bugged the embassy, and U.S. officials have never displayed any devices that they found.

But independent sources say there is no question that the building contained countless tiny electronic devices designed to intercept U.S. secrets by monitoring voices and electronic communications.

Congress declined to appropriate $270 million the administration sought last year to tear down the old building and construct a new one on the site.

The State Department's most recent proposal is to tear off the new building's top story and replace it with three new floors built with materials hauled in from the West under diplomatic protection and assembled by American labor.

That would be expected to cost from $180 million to $220 million, in addition to the cost of maintaining the old embassy under increasingly difficult conditions.

But a congressional source, requesting anonymity, said Thursday that this proposal faces opposition in the intelligence community and probably would be voted down in the House international operations appropriations subcommittee where it faces its first test.

Quayle voted in 1983 to cut funding for Patriot missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Dan Quayle once voted to slash spending for the Patriot missile that he has so effusively praised since the Persian Gulf War.

As a senator, Quayle was among several Republicans who voted to cut funds for the Patriot. Now the vice president is embracing the missile-defense system — an overall success in intercepting Iraqi Scud missiles aimed at Israel and Saudi Arabia.

"To those who say it won't work, that you can't hit a bullet with a bullet, I say go ask (Iraqi President) Saddam Hussein that question because Saddam has seen many of his Scud missiles blown out of the air by an American weapon system known as the Patriot," Quayle told workers at the Kennedy Space Center recently.

In 1983, while representing Indiana in the Senate, he joined other Republicans in opposing an effort to restore $177.6 million that was being cut from the Patriot program.

Also voting against the funds were then-Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, who chaired the Armed Services Committee; Sen. John Warner of Virginia, now the ranking Republican on the panel; and Sens. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and William Cohen, R-Maine, both still members of the committee.

But a Quayle spokesman said Thursday, "This was not against funding of the Patriot." The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, contended that Democrats sought to add money above what President Reagan had requested, and that Quayle voted for the spending level the president wanted.

The Republican glee over the Patriot's success in the Persian Gulf was evident on Feb. 15 when President Bush went to Andover, Mass., to speak to employees of Raytheon Co., maker of the missile.

"Thank God that when the Scuds came, the people of Israel and Saudi Arabia and the brave forces of our coalition had more to protect their lives than some abstract theory of deterrence," Bush said. "Thank God for the Patriot missile."

House Republicans have been researching lawmakers' records on the Patriot in hopes of finding members who opposed the weapon, but neither the full House nor Senate has voted strictly on the missile, according to officials at Raytheon and congressional sources.

However, money for the Patriot was a point of contention in a June 22, 1983, vote of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

At the time, Reagan had called for buying 525 Patriots and spending $1.27 billion on procurement and spare parts.

An Armed Services subcommittee cut $233.6 million from the request while slashing the number of Patriots to 287. The Senate was controlled by Republicans that year.

When the full Armed Services Committee met to approve a final Pentagon budget, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., sought to restore $177.6 million for the Patriot program. He failed by a vote of 9-8, largely along party lines, and Quayle was among those voting against the measure.

Quayle's spokesman said that at the time, the Patriot was intended to be an anti-aircraft system and Quayle later was "instrumental" in pushing for it to be changed to an anti-ballistic missile system.

Other Republican senators who opposed the restoration of Patriot funds were Barry Goldwater of Arizona, Roger W. Jepsen of Iowa, John East of North Carolina and Pete Wilson, now governor of California.

The issue didn't die there, however. Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., now the Armed Services Committee chairman, sought on July 14, 1983, to restore money for the Patriot and other conventional weapons systems by cutting the fiscal 1984 allocation for the B-1B bomber by $888.7 million.

Nunn's amendment proposed delaying production of 12 B-1B bombers and spending the savings on conventional systems like jet fighters, tanks, helicopters and the Patriot — all of which were used successfully in the Gulf War.

Mother grieves at river where one son drowns, two others are missing

By JOHN HOWARD Associated Press Writer

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Wailing and tugging her hair in anguish, Siheang Lim kept vigil all day on the bank of the rain-swollen Calaveras River, where one son drowned and two others may have perished.

"She's sitting up there and she won't leave, poor little thing. I can't blame her," neighbor Diana Husted said Thursday.

Lim's boys were among five children — two sets of brothers — who were swept into the chilly current Wednesday evening while playing. Holding hands, the youngsters apparently thought they could wade to an island in the middle of the stream, police said.

One child, 10-year-old Sitha Soun, was rescued immediately by a bystander, who saw the children tumble into the water. But the onlooker was unable to reach the other four children, who disappeared.

Three hours later, police found the body of Vanna Soun, 9. Thursday morning, a police officer walking the bank a half-mile downriver spotted the body of Charles Pich, 7, a son of Siheang Lim.

Rescuers hunted through the night for her two other sons, 9-year-old Herbert Pich and his 8-year-old brother, Danalee.

Police didn't know why the mother's name differs from her sons.

The area is popular with neighborhood children who ride bicycles along a path. The riverbed is usually almost dry. But heavy rains last weekend swelled and widened the waters to about 30 feet. It was about 15 feet deep where the children were swept away, says Stockton Deputy Police Chief Ed Chavez.

"They were holding hands and trying to get out to this little island," he said. "One boy lost his footing and pulled the others into the water."

Stan Pros, 15, said the accident was "so quick I just didn't believe it."

"I started to run to them and when I got there they just disappeared," he said.

By Thursday afternoon, searchers had covered the 3 1/2 miles down to the deep water channel that allows oceangoing vessels to reach San Francisco Bay and the Pacific Ocean. Stockton is 82 miles east of San Francisco.

Rescue workers included divers who searched the muddy water for hours.

"It's very, very exhausting work," said Sgt. Michael Ries, a police spokesman. "That water is 40 degrees or less; you can't see anything, you're working by touch only. It's hard."

Siheang Lim, a Cambodian refugee, stayed at the river's edge most of the day, reciting Buddhist prayers and being comforted by friends and community workers.

About 300 miles to the south at Camp Pendleton, rescuers searched for a sailor who may have been swept out to sea by the rain-swollen Santa Margarita River. Another Navy man drowned in the accident; his body was recovered Thursday.

Navy officials withheld the sailors' names.

Seven sailors aboard two Humvees were stranded Wednesday night on a sand bar near the mouth of the river.

Four sailors swam to shore, but the three in the second vehicle were trapped on its roof.

They clung there for about 30 minutes, but then the surging current swept them away. One man made it safely to shore, officials said.

Camp Pendleton is about 50 miles north of downtown San Diego.

Names in the news

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Kenny Rogers is among the country music stars who will perform at a benefit concert for the families of Reba McEntire's road manager and band members, who died in a plane crash last month.

McEntire's road manager, seven members of her band and two pilots were killed when their plane crashed March 16 near San Diego. McEntire, a four-time winner of the Country Music Association's female vocalist of the year award, was not aboard.

The concert, scheduled April 22 at the Municipal Auditorium, is being organized by Rogers' booking agent, C.K. Spurlock.

The Oak Ridge Boys, Eddie Rabbit, Ricky Van Shelton and Patty Loveless also will perform, Spurlock said Thursday.

The course you presently set for your self looks like a good one, and results should bear this out in the year ahead.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Usually, you're the type of person not easily swayed by dissenting opinions. However, today you may be pressured by purveyors of bad advice and make an unwise decision. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be tolerant today when dealing with people who don't grasp ideas as quickly as you do. In this case, it might be due to the way you convey instructions or information.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's best not to borrow tools or special equipment today that you don't know how to use properly. There's a possibility you might have to repair or replace what was loaned to you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are indecisive about buying a big ticket household item today, perhaps you need more time to think it over. Don't rush in where bill collectors are likely to tread.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't worry so much about how individuals you're involved with are going to perform in a specific situation today. In actuality, they may be more uncertain about you than you are about them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Developments that could be financially beneficial must not be treated indifferently today. If you do, there's a good chance what you had within your grasp could slip away.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Should you get careless closing a deal today, you may let two individuals, who could have been directed to do something to your advantage, off the hook.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually, you're good about keeping secrets, but today you might discuss something you shouldn't with individuals who didn't even have to probe you for this confidential information.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your sale's resistance could be rather low today, so it might be wise to steer clear of stores that offer unique merchandise. Once inside, you might end up buying gadgets you don't need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Traditionally, you're a tenacious person who sticks to the course until your objective is achieved. However, these qualities may not be functioning today, and you might quit too early.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Subdue any inclinations to act upon impulse today, especially in your financial or business affairs. What sounds good at first might not stand up later.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you have recently become involved in a project, don't take shortcuts in the hope of getting things done quickly. You've heard that old bromide, "Haste makes waste." Heed it.

Court: brothers' confessions of killing parents can be used at trial

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Erik Menendez told his brother, Lyle, "I can't kill anymore" after confessing to a psychologist that they shot their millionaire parents, a court disclosed in ruling the confession can be used as evidence.

The 2nd District Court of Appeal ruled Thursday that tapes and notes of conversations between Erik and Lyle Menendez and the psychologist may be used as evidence against the brothers at their trial.

The brothers' lawyers had argued that using the information would violate doctor-patient privilege. Defense attorney Joel R. Isaacson says the decision will be appealed to the California Supreme Court.

The three-judge appeals court ruled unanimously that doctor-patient privilege ceased on the grounds that the life of the psychologist, Jerome Oziel, was threatened.

The court's 24-page ruling quoted Oziel's girlfriend as saying she overheard Lyle Menendez, 23, tell Erik - the first to confess - that Oziel would have to die because he knew they had slain their parents.

She said 20-year-old Erik replied, between sobs: "I can't stop you from what you have to do, but ... I can't kill anymore."

Jose and Kitty Menendez were shot to death in their Beverly Hills mansion on Aug. 20, 1989. Their sons were arrested a year later.

The brothers, who told police they came home to find the bodies, are being held without bail pending trial. They could face the death penalty if convicted.

Prosecutors have said the brothers killed their parents because they feared their father was changing his will to keep them from inheriting his $14 million fortune. Jose Menendez was an executive with Live Entertainment Inc., a video distribution company.

But the appeals court said the pair told Oziel, "They didn't kill their parents for money, but rather out of hatred and out of a desire to be free from their father's domination, messages of inadequacy and impossible standards." The court also said Oziel had his girlfriend, Judalon Smyth, cave-drop on one of his sessions with both brothers after Erik confessed.

She said she posed as a patient in Oziel's waiting room and heard the two talking near the elevator. She said Lyle Menendez told his brother: "I can't believe you did this! I can't believe you told him! I don't even have a brother now! I could get rid of you for this! Now I hope you know what we are going to have to do ... We've got to kill him and anyone associated to him."

It was then that Erik replied that he couldn't kill anymore, she said.

The court also said Lyle Menendez once asked Oziel if he was afraid.

"Dr. Oziel replied that ordinarily he didn't choose to live in fear," the court documents said. The ruling quoted Oziel as saying: "Lyle looked at me coldly and said, 'Neither did my father.'"

Oziel became so afraid that he armed his family with shotguns and considered leaving the country, the court said.

Oziel said Lyle later told him he had decided not to kill him because such a murder would lead police to the brothers.

The court indicated that Oziel persuaded the brothers to continue therapy, suggesting he could help them build a psychological defense if they were tried.

He began recording the sessions with the brothers' permission on Nov. 2, 1989, two days after Erik first confessed, according to the court.

On Nov. 28, the court said, Erik met with Oziel and expressed the fear that Lyle would kill him.

"Erik expressed remorse for the killings, and told Dr. Oziel he was 'feeling suicidal' and wanted to die," the court documents said.

"With respect to his fear of Lyle, Erik stated, 'It wouldn't be so bad if he killed me. I would just let him do it.'"

In March 1990, Smyth told police of the confessions. Police searched Oziel's home and his lawyer told officers about the tapes and recommended the district attorney listen to them, the court said.
