UNITED NATIONS (AP) - The proposed creation of a U.N.-guaranteed haven in northern Iraq for Kurdish refugees would be an unprecedented challenge to a country's sovereignty - and is being received with widespread skepticism.

Relief efforts have been conducted in temporary enclaves in Sudan by the United Nations and by the Security Council has never created refugees within their own country.

Iraqi Prime Minister Saadoun Hammadi said in Baghdad on Tuesday that his country would oppose "by all means" the British-proposed plan for a protected enclave, Iraq's official news agency reported.

At the United Nations later in the day, British Ambassador Sir David Hannay appeared to moderate his government's call for a U.N.-monitored haven in northern Iraq for Kurds that would be protected by some sort of military force.

"It is not a political device, nor a juridical concept," Hannay told reporters. "It is a humanitarian idea to establish somewhere in northern Iraq a number of zones or areas where these refugees should feel reasonably secure and the pressure on them to Vatican in El Salvador. But the cross the frontier should be relaxed."

He said the idea was not to draw an enclave strictly to protect new borders for a Kurdish area, a clearly undesirable precedent for many nations.

Atlantis shuttle astronauts granted another day in space by high winds

By MARCIA DUNN AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) Blustery winds prevented NASA from landing the space shuttle Atlantis in California today, and the astronauts were ordered to remain in space an extra day.

Mission Control first delayed the landing by 1 1/2 hours in hopes the winds would subside. But they didn't, and flight directors decreed a Thursday morning touchdown at Edwards Air Force Base in the Mojave Desert.

"I hope you don't mind if we ask you to stay up another day but we're going to give up on today," Mission Control's Brian Duffy told

We understand, and I think that's a good decision Brian. Thanks a lot," replied Steve Nagel, mission commander.

The astronauts have enough supplies on board to stay up at least through Friday. High winds were expected again Thursday at Edwards, and the weather did not look favorable at the Kennedy Space Center backup site in Florida. Kennedy had not been considered for today.

City briefs Democrats expect to pass budget next week

WASHINGTON (AP) – Democrats are predicting House passage next week of their proposed $1.46 trillion 1992 federal budget, a spending blueprint they say does more for working Americans than President

The House Budget Committee approved the Democratic package on a voice vote over Republican opposition Tuesday, as Congress ended its Easter recess and began plunging in earnest into its work for the year.

The Persian Gulf War over, lawmakers braced for partisan fights over domestic issues including crime legislation and parental leave.

One of those battles was expected to be joined today. A House Judiciary subcommittee planned to debate legislation requiring a seven-day waiting period for people seeking to buy handguns. The administration lion. has linked its support for the legislation to passage of an overall crime bill.

Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., chairman of the budget panel, said the House would approve the Democratic spending plan for the 1992 fiscal year next week. "I feel very confident," he said.

The committee adopted the Democratic spending outline after rejecting by voice the plan Bush proposed in February. Republicans had offered Bush's blueprint as an alternative.

Republican, chided Democrats for offering a budget that differs little from Bush's. He noted that although boosting spending, the Democratic plan was just 3.2 percent higher for those programs than the president's.

"Big deal," said Gradison. "That's the right direction, sure, but come on. To listen to this debate it sounds like we're going to change education in Ameri-

Panetta insisted that the changes were important. "You can describe it as small change, but it isn't a small change to the people affected by the budget," he said.

In fact, strict new rules limiting spending and record federal deficits have severely limited lawmakers' abilities to aim vast sums of money at various problems.

As a result, the Democratic budget endorses no increases in benefit programs, despite the recession. It simply urges future consideration to raising unemployment benefits, aid for poor women and children and other initiatives. Such increases would have to be paid for with tax increases or cuts in other programs.

In addition, both the Democratic and Bush budgets call for defense spending next year of about $295 bil-

Both also carry federal deficits of about $290 billion, second only to the record projected $318 billion gap this year.

The committee adopted the budget after Democratic leaders headed off a bipartisan attempt to put the panel on record favoring a cut in the Social Security payroll

Reps. Frank Guarini, D-N.J., and Richard Armey, R-Texas, had intended to offer an amendment supporting a bill by Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., cutting the Rep. Willis Gradison of Ohio, the panel's ranking tax that workers and employers pay to support the Social Security system.

But after Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman Democrats touted education as an area where they were of the Ways and Means Committee, and other House Democratic leaders who oppose the proposal learned of the effort, they negotiated a compromise with Guarini MOSCOW (AP) - Taking a carrot-and-stick approach to avoid "catastrophe," Mikhail S. Gorbachev is proposing to speed up the transition to a free market system but seeking a simultaneous moratorium on strikes and demonstrations.

Taking his case to the people, the Soviet president on Tuesday made an impassioned appeal over national television, saying "We face the danger of economic collapse.

Senate committee questions parole of 'Trinity River Massacre' convict

AUSTIN (AP) - A former member of the state Board of Pardons The Dallas Times Herald. and Paroles, who had an "eyeball to eyeball" interview with a heroin addict convicted of slaying three law officers, said he voted to parole the man because he thought he had been rehabilitated in prison.

"My impression was he was rehabilitated, he had remorse for what he'd done," Douglas Jeu said Tuesday of Leonardo Ramos Lopez.

Sen. Ted Lyon had demanded to know why Lopez, convicted in the "Trinity River Massacre," was released on parole after serving 16 years of a life sentence.

Lyon, D-Rockwall, used a meeting of his Criminal Justice Committee to question Ronald Givens of the Board of Pardons and Paroles and Jeu over the 2-1 decision to parole Lopez, 44. Lyon recited Lopez's criminal record, including 20 arrests for alleged felonies and the three murders, and said, "Tell me why you think it's in the best interest of society" to release him.

"Personally I share the same sentiments you have," said Jeu, a Houston lawyer.

Lyon responded in an angry voice, "You're the one who let him out, you're the one who signed the release. And I want to know why. Don't give me any bull about your sentiments.'

Jeu said, "I followed the guidelines that were set out by the law telling me what to do. ... One of the main considerations that I made ... was whether or not this person would be a danger to society if released into society.

Givens, a board member stationed in Angleton, said, "I do not beauty of our area and to educate feel guilty as a board member, doing what I set out to do."

He said he relied on Lopez's file and a conversation with Jeu about his interview with Lopez.

When it voted in November to parole Lopez, the board panel recommended that Lopez stay in prison until April 1992, Jeu earlier told

But parole division staff, acting under a new state law, speeded Lopez's release, the newspaper reported. Lopez was freed on Dec. 18, 1990. He was released to a private home in Houston.

Lopez and Rene Adolpho Guzman were convicted of the murders of Dallas County deputies Sam Infante, 32, and William Reese, 31, and Ellis County deputy A.J.

Robertson, 55. The deputies were ambushed on Feb. 15, 1971, while attempting to serve a burglary warrant in Dallas. Their hands were bound with wire, and they were driven to the Trinity River bottoms and shot.

After a three-day manhunt, Guzman and Lopez were arrested in Dallas.

They were tried after a change of venue to Bell County and sentenced to death. But after the U.S. Supreme Court in 1972 ruled the death penalty unconstitutional in Texas, a Texas appeals court overturned the sentences.

They were tried again in 1974, and were sent to prison to begin serving life terms. Guzman, who remains in prison, will be eligible for parole in September 1992.

James Granberry, chairman of the Board of Pardons and Paroles, said Lopez was eligible for parole in 1982 and was turned down 16 times before being released. He said he voted a year ago against releasing Lopez.

But Granberry said since Lopez's release, "according to the members of the panel that checked with the parole officer, he has been a model parolee."

Albania's freedom a ray of hope there?

Albania and the United States have resumed diplomatic relations after a break of 52 years, another small step by the tiny Balkan country toward rejoining a world from which it walled itself off after communists seized power at the end of World War II. The old regime was not only xenophobic: It was so oppressive that until last year, private cars were forbidden, religious practice was outlawed and foreign travel was virtually impossible; its Leninist orthodoxy was so rigid that it condemned the Soviet Union, even Mao's China, for being too soft on "bourgeois imperialism."

Now, with communism breaking down and democracy breaking out all around them, Albania's leaders are groping toward a new system that has yet to take shape. After a half-century of repression, tentative moves toward liberalization and political reform have succeeded only in touching off a wave of unrest and a flood of emigration by young Albanians who see no future in Europe's poorest country, with or without better government.

Establishing ties with the outside world – including the United States, a potential source of aid and investment – is one useful way of counteracting the chaos; so are the release of political prisoners, which the government says is virtually complete, and the legalization of opposition parties.

The elections on March 31 tested the regime's intentions and its popularity among Albanians in their first free election. The communists won the elections, but other parties showed that they have formed a solid base upon which democratic elections can continue to grow in future years.

Even if Albania's communists do embrace pluralism – and there seems to be enough dissent in the country despite the showings of the recent elections – there are horrendous problems yet ahead. As poor and underdeveloped as it is, Albania has probably gotten poorer with all the disruption of recent months – strikes, public demonstrations, emigration. Washington and other Western capitals hope, by restoring relations with Tirana and by holding out the promise of economic aid, to promote democratic reform where democracy has never existed and stability where instability is rife and getting worse. That's the right approach, but given the Balkan peninsula's bloody history of ethnic, religious and linguistic clashes, it would be foolish to make any hopeful predictions just now.

CHARLESTON, S.C. - It is no bad thing, I submit, to mark major anniversaries as they come along. I am marking one now, and ask your indulgence in a sentimental journey.

Early in March of 1941, as a senior in Missouri's School of Journalism, I learned that I had accumulated sufficient credits for graduation. There seemed to be no point in hanging around Columbia, Mo. Time to earn a living!

Because I am a Southerner, as distinguished from a Midwesterner, and because I am day people, as distinguished from night people, I wanted to work on an afternoon newspaper in the South. So I wrote letters of applications to the Atlanta Journal, the New Orleans Item and The Richmond News Leader.

Those letters of application arouse some embarrassment. Ahem! I was 20 years old and looked to be about 14. In an effort to assure prospective employers of my maturity, I modestly noted that I was "as familiar with the streets of Paris as I am in either Paris or New York.

March 25, a telegram came from Charles Hamilton, wet behind them. But Ham took a chance. city editor of the News Leader. It read: "Would you a week?" On winged feet I fled to the Western Union office. With trembling hand I drafted my reply: "Will arrive Monday. Kilpatrick."

So it all began. I took a Wabash train to St. Louis, then a C&O by way of Louisville to Richmond, and on the morning of Sunday the 30th I arrived at the old Main Street Station. I showered in the Railroad YMCA, got into my best herring- thought I had the makings of a feature writer. He I reckon I always will.

bone brown suit - it had a double-breasted vest and walked to the newspaper office on Fourth Street. The building was closed, but the heavenly scent of printer's ink hung in the balmy air. Bliss, what bliss! And the next morning I presented myself to Hamilton and went to work.

He greeted me with a querulous inquiry: "Where did you learn to read? All I asked was whether you would be interested in a job." I could not have been an impressive prospect, even in the with those of New York." This was the truth. It suit with the double-breasted vest. I weighed barely was, in fact, quite literally true: I had never set foot 130 pounds. I audibly wheezed. The aura of untried youth hung palpably around me. A fresh haircut In any event, I cast my bait and on Tuesday, had emphasized my loving-cup ears. I was very

Those were happy days. It was the custom at be interested in job as general reporter, starting $35 the time to start cubs on what was termed "rewrite." This wasn't "rewrite" by the standards of New York or Chicago. We rewrote obituaries from the morning Times-Dispatch; otherwise we mostly took dictation on our two-piece telephones from reporters who were out on their beats.

Soon I was graduated to a beat of my own, covering business news and the federal courts. Ham would wander over to my desk, bearing a clipping that had amused him. Could I develop a local angle? "Be funny, Kilpatrick." No assignment is more difficult than to be funny on command.

My closest friend was another novice on rewrite, Stan Kennon. On a Sunday morning, eight months after I came to work, we decided on impulse to drive down to Duke University. An old friend from the university, a cellist, would be playing in a performance of Handel's Messiah. We went to duke's great Gothic chapel for the afternoon concert. Afterward, in the deepening twilight, lugging Mary's cello, we started across the campus. A newsboy came running toward us, hawking an extra edition of the Durham Herald-Sun. It was Sunday, Dec. 7. The Japanese had bombed Pearl Harbor.

Stan and I rushed back to Richmond and sought to enlist as flying cadets. He made it. I didn't. Chronic bronchial asthma did me in. He died as a bombardier over Hamburg. I stayed at home and wrote the weekly Servicemen's News: and as other reporters drifted off to war I covered police, hospitals, fires, City Hall, the state General Assembly, the governor's office and the Virginia Supreme Court. I was variously drama critic, movie reviewer, business editor, even outdoors editor. "Every man a tiger," said Hamilton.

The ensuing 50 years have passed as lightly as the blowing leaves of March. Newspapering never lost its enchantment. To cover the world from a press box is a privilege given to only a few of us. To know the key players, to write against a deadline and to see one's work in print an hour later, hot off the press, is a thrill that imbues a lifetime. Half a century later I still smell the printer's ink of 1941.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, April 10, the 100th day of 1991. There are 265 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: On April 10, 1925, the novel The Great Gatsby, F. Scott Fitzgerald's Jazz Age evocation of empty materialism, shattered illusion and failed romance, was first published by Scribner's of New York. On this date:

In 1847, American newspaperman Joseph Pulitzer was born in Mako, Hungary.

In 1866, the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was incorporated. In 1880, Frances Perkins, the first woman to serve in a president's Cabinet as Franklin D. Roosevelt's secretary of labor, was born in Boston. In 1912, the luxury liner RMS

Titanic set sail from Southampton, England, on its ill-fated maiden voyage. In 1932, German president Paul Von Hindenburg was re-elected, with Adolf Hitler coming in second.

Let's make music together

Music is everywhere - in bird song and in bubbling brooks and in laughter, even in the stars. Music is the universal language that transcends time and space.

Music is one of the seven forms of human intelligence, all equal in stature and in potential. And vet education – as is – is almost totally geared to nurturing linguistic and logical-mathematical abilities alone, leaving the other five forms including music – neglected.

The National Commission on Music Education is such a coalition. Already, in its first year, it has won the support of 75 national organizations, willing, under a slogan of "Let's Make Music," to work together toward the musical enrichment of public schools' curricula.

By NANCY BYAL Better Homes and Gardens Magazine Food Editor

What a shame that cooking meat in the microwave oven has gotten such a bum rap! You can bake tender and juicy meats, like this pot roast, if you select a roast with a uniform shape and thickness, and use your microwave oven on a low power level.

Flat roasts, such as a beef chuck pot roast, are the ideal shape for microwave cooking. Also look for a roast with good marbling (even amounts of fat spread throughout the meat). If one area has heavier marbling, it will cook faster then the rest. In general, boneless roasts cook more evenly than roasts with a bone, because large bones shield the meat from the microwaves.

By using a lower power setting, the meat cooks more slowly, letting heat penetrate to the center without overcooking the outside. Even with a lower power level, you can still cut an hour or more off the time it takes to cook a pot roast in a conventional oven.

MARINATED POT ROAST WITH VEGETABLES

One 2 1/2- to 3-pound boneless beef chuck pot roast

1 cup dry red wine

1 teaspoon finely shredded orange peel

1/4 cup orange juice 2 tablespoons olive oil or cooking oil

1 teaspoon dried basil, crushed 1/4 teaspoon pepper

2 teaspoons instant beef bouillon granules 1 pound whole tiny new potatoes, quartered

One 10-ounce package frozen tiny whole carrots

One 9-ounce package frozen Italian-style green beans 1 cup fresh (peeled) or frozen pearl onions

2 tablespoons cornstarch

2 tablespoons cold water Trim fat from meat. Place meat in a plastic bag set in a bowl. Combine wine, orange peel, orange juice, oil, basil and pepper; pour over meat and close the bag. Chill for several hours or overnight, turning the bag occasionally to distribute the marinade.

In a 3-quart, microwave-safe casserole combine meat, marinade and bouillon granules. Turn meat to coat all sides.

Cook meat, covered, on 100 percent power (high) for 5 minutes or until liquid is boiling. Cook, covered, on 50 percent power (medium) for 40 minutes. Turn meat over. Add potatoes. Cook, covered, on medium for 15 minutes more. Turn meat over. Add carrots, green beans and onions; spoon juices over. Cook, covered, on medium for 25 to 30 minutes more or until meat and vegetables are tender. Transfer to a warm platter, reserving juices. Cover meat and vegetables with foil to keep warm.

For gravy, strain the pan juices through a sieve into a 4-cup glass measure; use a large spoon to skim off the fat that rises to the surface. Measure 2 cups of the juices; discard the remaining juices.

In a small bowl stir together cornstarch and water; stir into the reserved juices. Cook, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) for 2 1/2 to 3 minutes or until thickened and bubbly, stirring after every minute until slightly thickened, then after every 30 seconds. Cook, uncovered, on 50 percent power (medium) for 30 seconds more. Serve with meat and vegetables. Makes 8 servings.

Choose cereal for nutrition; check sugar content carefully

NEW YORK (AP) — Parents should read the nutrition labels of children's cereals carefully, the Environmental Nutrition newsletter says, to check for specific amounts of sugar and other ingredients.

Especially important is the actual volume measure in cups that corresponds to the 1-ounce serving size, the newsletter says, and the carbohydrate breakdown, which gives specific amounts of complex carbohydrates, sucrose and other sugars and fiber.

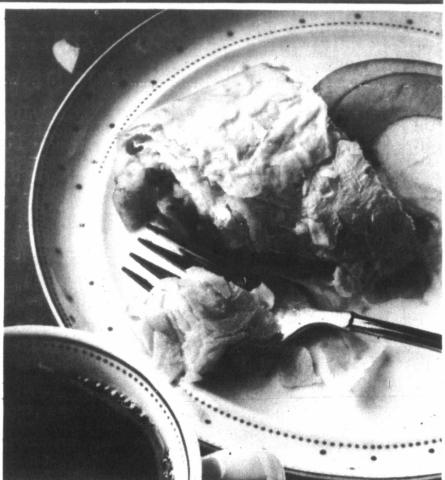

"Although 1 ounce is the standard serving size for cereal, 1 ounce of a particular cereal may overflow from a bowl, while another may barely cover the bottom of that same bowl," the newsletter says. "Thus, if a child needs 2 ounces of a cereal to fill a bowl, the amount of sugar consumed will be twice the amount listed on the cereal box per serving."

"Environmental Nutrition" offers these tips on choosing a cereal:

— Choose a cereal with the least amount of sugar. Divide grams of sugar by four to determine the number of teaspoonfuls of sugar per serving in the cereal.

Give unsweetened cereals to children whenever possible to limit sugar intake. If a child balks at eating unsweetened cereal, add 1 teaspoon of sugar to provide sweetness.

Children's cereals are not a good source of fiber. For adequate fiber intake, give children a variety of high-fiber foods such as beans, fresh fruits and vegetables, and whole-grain breads.

Lighter apple strudel uses phyllo dough instead of pastry to cut the calories in traditional apple strudel. The recipe is quick to prepare and assemble.

Lighter apple strudel uses phyllo dough to cut calories

By NANCY BYAL Better Homes and Gardens Magazine Food Editor

Making a great pastry dessert needn't mean spending all afternoon in the kitchen, at least not in my kitchen. I often use phyllo dough as a baking shortcut. Not only does phyllo produce flaky crusts like magic, but it can also reduce calories, too — down to 83 calories per serving for this strudel.

Phyllo (FEE-lo), also spelled filo, comes in thin sheets and is used in traditional Greek dishes such as baklava. You can buy it in the freezer section of many supermarkets.

To use phyllo, you layer several sheets together, brushing each sheet towel to keep them from drying out.

LIGHTER APPLE STRUDEL

2 tablespoons sugar 2 tablespoons brown sugar

1 teaspoon ground cinnamon

4 medium cooking apples, peeled,

1 tablespoon lemon juice

12 sheets frozen phyllo dough (17- by 12-inch rectangles), thawed 1/3rd cup margarine or butter, melted

In a small bowl stir together sugar, brown sugar and cinnamon; set aside. Sprinkle apples with lemon juice; set aside.

On a sheet of waxed paper brush one phyllo sheet with some of the melted margarine or butter. (Cover remaining phyllo sheets with a damp towel.) Top with another phyllo sheet; brush with margarine. Repeat stacking and brushing with 4 more sheets to make 6 layers of phyllo. Repeat to make another stack of 6 layers of phyllo.

Place apples in a 2-inch-wide strip with melted margarine or butter as along one long edge of each phyllo you stack the phyllo. While you're stack, leaving 2 inches at short working, be sure to cover the unbut-sides. Sprinkle with the sugar mixtered sheets with a slightly damp ture. Fold in 2 inches along short sides; roll up tightly, beginning from long side with apples. Place, seam side down, on a greased 15- by 10by 1-inch baking pan.

Brush rolls with margarine. Bake in a 350-degree oven F for 30 to 35 minutes. Cool slightly; loosen from pan. Cool in pan on a wire rack. Slice to serve. Makes 16 servings.

Transplant for chimp is monkey business

DEAR ABBY: In a recent issue of Parade magazine, I saw a brief article (enclosed) that disturbed me greatly. It details a parent granting permission for his 6-year-old child to donate a kidney to a chimpanzee suffering from simian nephritis!

The item read, "The father of little Brandy Oxenrider visited the ailing primate in his cage at the Perkins Animal Clinic in Atlanta, bearing a large bunch of bananas.

"As a family, we are 100 percent committed to animal welfare,' said the father, a 40-year-old health food store owner, but sometimes it can be kind of frustrating. I heard about a laboratory rat out in California who needs a heart transplant. I'd really like to donate mine, but how will it fit into that tiny little chest cavity?"

Abby, removing a kidney from a 6-year-old child for donation to a chimpanzee is outrageous! It's one thing for an adult to make an informed decision based on facts and potential risks to donate an organ. but this 6-year-old obviously does not understand the risks of surgery and going through life with only one

Unless this child were terminally ill with no hope for recovery, this is outright child abuse and should be stopped! If this were the case, there would be lots of parents or children on transplant waiting lists who would be disappointed and angry to hear of inter-species transplants, as a physician who has some knowledge of human-to-human transplants, I believe the chances for success are far greater in twins or siblings. Even the chimp would be better served if it were to receive a donor kidney from another chimp — and preferably a blood relative. Quite frankly, I am at a loss to understand why there are any transplants from human to animals at all!

JOE WEINSTEIN, M.D., SOMERVILLE, N.J.

DEAR DR. WEINSTEIN: As much as I love animals, I, too, was at a loss to understand why, when humans are on waiting lists for organ transplants, a chimpanzee would take preference over a child for a kidney transplant.

I telephoned Information in Atlanta and asked for the telephone number of the Perkins Animal Clinic. I was told that there was no animal clinic listed under that name.

I then called the editorial department of Parade magazine and asked for the source of the item concerning the kidney transplant from child to chimp. I was told that that item was meant to be a joke!

Perhaps I've lost my sense of humor, but in my opinion no kind of organ transplant is a joke.

CONFIDENTIAL TO JEANNE P.: Happy birthday, my beloved firstborn!

DEAR ABBY: I'll get right to the point. I am 45, female, divorced, no children, and I've been told that I am very good-looking. RANDALL - With Pampa's Quincy Williams and Randall's John Tipps locked in a pitching duel, the District 1-4A game had all the makings of an extra-inning affair.

However, that notion changed in the top of the seventh when Pampa took advantage of Caprock defensive lapses to claim a 3-1 win Tuesday afternoon.

With the win, Pampa remained in a tie with Borger for first in the district standings. Both teams have 3-1 league records.

The score was deadlocked at 1-1 going into the seventh when Brad Smillie and Williams got to Tipps for back-to-back singles with one out. A wild pitch allowed Smillie and Williams to move up a base. After Tarin Peet struck out, Steve Sanders grounded to third, but Caprock's Chris Briley throw was high to first, bringing in Smillie to break the tie. With Russ Stephens the batter, Tipps uncorked another wild pitch that sent pinch runner Darren Jones across the plate.

Quincy Williams

Randall, 2-2 in district play, dropped into a three-way tie with Dumas and Caprock for third place.

Williams, a senior righthander, went the distance on the mound to and walked one.

"Quincy did a super job. He didn't strike out very many, but he kept them flustrated," said Pampa head coach Rod Porter. "He never gave them many good pitches to Pampa is 15-2 for the season while Randall is 14-4.

Pampa took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Russ Stephens doubled and Zach Thomas knocked him in with a single to center field.

That lead stood up until the fourth inning when Caprock tied the score on Briley's RBI double.

Leading Pampa's 12-hit attack were Stephens, double and single; Sanders, double and single; Williams, Smillie and Kurt West, two singles each; Brian Ellis and Thomas, one base hit each.

"I don't know about this bunch. Just when you think they're going to cave in, they come through for you," Porter said.

Tipps suffered his first mound loss in three starts. He struck out 10 and walked one.

Jon Ostrowski was Caprock's leading hitter with a triple, double and two singles.

Pampa hosts Borger at 1 p.m. Saturday at the high school baseball field. Borger has a 12-5 record for the go-ahead run during a four-run eighth-inning rally as the San Diego Padres beat the San Francisco Giants 7-4 Tuesday night for their first opening day win since 1984.

Borger defeated Dumas, 8-6, and Caprock won over Hereford, 7-4, in other district games Tuesday.

Will Clark's two-run triple in the 4-3 lead, but the Padres tied it on Tony Gwynn's run-scoring single. Fred McGriff then walked to chase reliever Trevor Wilson.

Santiago greeted Jeff Brantley with a single to left, scoring Gwynn. Jerald Clark added an RBI single and Shawn Abner hit a sacrifice fly.

Mike Maddux (1-0) earned the victory, his first in the majors since April 20, 1989, by getting the last out in the top of the eighth. Larry Anderson pitched the ninth for his by allowing three runs in one-third of an inning.

Willie McGee singled to chase Padres starter Ed Whitson in the top ferts worked Clark to a full count caught stealing in the fifth.

The final tally gave the Groom boys' team with 35 doubles title. points and first place, followed by Miami with 15, Higgins and Lakeview tied for third with 10, and McLean

The Groom girls topped the nine-school field with 30 points. McLean and Lakeview tied for second with 15 points each, Lefors accounted for 10, and Follett managed 5 points. "I knew they'd compete well - they always do - but I didn't expect them to do as well as they did considering the quality of the competition," said Shirley Fields, Groom boys' and girls' coach. "This is the first time we've won both the boys' and girls' team trophies." In boys' singles action, Groom's Mike Conrad put away Lakeview's Ruben Torres in straight sets. Conrad, seeded No. 2 in the boys' bracket, won handily 6-

Conrad never fell behind and relied on consistently accurate ground strokes and a powerful serving game for the victory. Torres, playing catch-up tennis, resorted to a faster-paced, power game. The tactic proved unsuccessful and Torres made many unforced errors. McLean teammates Daniel Harris and Christian Looney battled through three sets and eventually Harris won to take third place in boys' singles. In singles play, McLean sophomore Patsy Barker toppled No. 1 seed Shannon Fields of Groom in straight sets.

Barker took a 3-0 lead in the first set and built it to a 6-0, 6-1 victory by playing precision tennis with a minimum of miscues.

Although Barker's medium-velocity, first serve was somewhat erratic, she made up for it with a deadly accurate, slicing second serve.

The McClean player, who is expected to show up in Harvester green next season, incorporated well-placed lobs and shots hugging the lines, to defeat the top-seed-

Fields, a multi-sport athlete, matched Barker strokefor-stroke in several lengthy rallies. However, she couldn't get the crucial shots to fall and came up on the losing end of the contest, which was closer than indicated by the final score.

Wendy Gillespie of Follett placed third.

Woman fakes terminal cancer two years to gain sympathy of co-workers, others

NEW YORK (AP) - A woman said. whose fiance broke off their engagefor two years to get sympathy, fooling co-workers and even a cancer support group, a report says.

The woman shaved her head to mimic a side effect of chemotherapy, dieted away 20 pounds or so and feigned listlessness and loss of appetite as part of the ruse, said Dr. Marc Feldman, co-author of the report in the journal Psychosomatics.

'She felt that the process of rebuilding a social life for herself was simply overwhelming. She needed a shortcut," Feldman said.

She had what psychiatrists call a factitious disorder, in which a person consciously fakes an illness for some psychological gain. A wellknown variant is Munchausen syndrome, in which a person virtually makes a career of being a patient.

Nobody knows how common factitious disorder is, said Dr. David Folks, a professor in the department of psychiatry and behavioral neurobiology at the University of Alabama

School of Medicine in Birmingham. But "on any one day, you could probably go into your local hospital and find one patient who either had factitious disorder or was a Munchausen patient. So it's not rare by any stretch of the imagination," he

Feldman, a psychiatrist in private ment faked terminal breast cancer practice in Birmingham, Ala., treated the woman after her ruse was discovered. He was then director of Duke University Medical Center's cancer center in Durham, N.C.

> The woman, who by then was 35, began the charade while working as a corporate secretary. She told co-workers that the cancer had spread and that her prognosis was grim. She modeled her symptoms on the genuine cancer of an acquain-

After experiencing a gratifying outpouring of warmth from her officemates, she joined the support group because it was a ready-made social network, Feldman said in a telephone interview.

'The groups there really work to be unconditionally supportive, very nurturing and warm," he said. "The very first day she showed up she was embraced and welcomed.'

She built up a network of close friends, Feldman said.

Yet "she was quite confrontative at times in group with other cancer patients, saying that they needed to face their illness head on, needed to be much more direct in dealing with the issue of cancer," he said.

The charade was uncovered when a routine check of medical records showed that she had never seen the cancer specialist she claimed was treating her.

When confronted, the woman psychosocial programming at the confessed immediately, which is unusual for factitious disorder, Feldman said. Then, distraught and remorseful, she contacted Feldman and agreed to be hospitalized, he said.

She was diagnosed with major depression and a personality disorder. She made good progress during four weeks in the hospital, Feldman said. When she was discharged, she said she would move to a new state to start her life over.

Feldman said he has not had any contact with her since that time, about 18 months ago. She apparently did not get back with her boyfriend, he said.
