McLean school officials question consolidation

By J. ALAN BRZYS
Staff Writer

MCLEAN — School officials questioned Tuesday night whether voluntary consolidation with other school districts is a panacea to problems created by school finance reform legislation.

During the regularly scheduled McLean Independent School District Board of Trustees meeting, several board members said they have received feedback from district residents who indicated voluntary consolidation may not be feasible.

The board voted unanimously June 4 to endorse a proposal to petition for consolidation of McLean, Lefors and Alanreed school districts.

Consolidation could lead to construction of a K-12 school between Lefors and McLean to be called the North Fork Consolidated Independent School District, according to officials.

Both Lefors and Alanreed would lose money under the legislation, while McLean would gain approximately $108,000 the first year.

According to Shirley Johnson, McLean ISD business manager, the district had a $126,000 deficit this past year and the system would continue operating at a deficit despite the extra funds.

A town meeting on the consolidation issue is set for 5:30 p.m. Thursday in the high school gymnasium. Information is expected to be available at the town meeting concerning the status of a petition calling for an election on the issue.

State Rep. Warren Chisum, D-Pampa, in a May informational meeting, told school board members their "window of opportunity" for choosing consolidation would shut Sept. 1.

The board, at the earlier meetings, indicated voluntary consolidation may be the only means of survival. However, Tuesday night they voiced reservation.

James Hefley, board president, said he has "heard some talk we may be running scared."

City commissioners OK BFI landfill agreement

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Pampa city commissioners gave approval Tuesday to what amounted to a franchise agreement with BFI for use of the city's landfill during their meeting at City Hall.

City Manager Glen Hackler said that while the private waste disposal company has already been using the landfill, the franchise agreement will put a cap on the amounts and types of trash BFI dumps.

Federal and state guidelines have prohibited items such as tires from being disposed of because they are considered environmental hazards.

Pampa's landfill is quickly developing into a regional waste site due to increased regulations and what city officials are crediting as long-range planning in the past.

Currently, Fritch, Borger and Stinnett are using the Pampa landfill for a fee and Lefors is currently considering moving their waste operations to Pampa due to the regulations.

Lefors' landfill is scheduled to close on Aug. 31.

City officials finalized plans for a visit on June 27 and 28 to Big Spring to inspect a massive baling operation at that municipality's landfill, saying such a trash computing process in Pampa could add hundreds of years to the landfill.

Hackler said any agreements Pampa makes to accept solid waste from other cities or companies is done with two goals in mind — bringing in revenue to the city while not sacrificing the long-term availability of a waste disposal site for local use.

In other action, Municipal Court Judge Patsy Lee was reappointed to another two-year term by commissioners.

They also gave unanimous approval to bids totaling $608,918 for gravel wall water wells and a 150,000-gallon elevated tank at the prison site east of Pampa.

A bid of $26,533 was accepted from AIS Continental in Amarillo for an asphalt roller for local street work.

Since Gray County contributes to Lovett Memorial Library, city commissioners approved an ordinance making a Commissioners Court representative an ex officio member of the Lovett Memorial Library Board.

Final approval was given by bids for rehabilitation of the city service center, fire department and city employee uniforms and re-zoning of the west sides of the 400 and 500 blocks of North Cuyler from multi-family to office.

Woman files $2.5 million lawsuit against city on civil rights violations

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

AMARILLO — A local woman is seeking $2.5 million in damages from the city of Pampa based on claims she was illegally detained by police and strip searched during a June 10 drug raid at 905 E. Twiford.

Amarillo attorney Jeff Blackburn filed the suit in federal court Tuesday afternoon on behalf of 22-year-old Oralia Hernandez.

Blackburn said he is keeping open the possibility that nine other clients who were at the residence the night of the raid could also file separate suits for approximately the same amount of money.

The suit by Hernandez alleges: "After initially searching the plaintiff and during the period in which she was held under arrest and against her will, the officers put city policy into effect ... by using unwarranted, unreasonable and excessive force against her and the other female occupants of the residence.

"All of the officers forced the female occupants of the home into a bathroom one at a time. Once inside, they were ordered to take their clothes off. They were then searched by one of the officers. After this strip search was conducted, the officer forcibly pushed her hand into the rectums and vaginas of the women.

"Plaintiff saw the other female occupants of the house treated this way. She heard their screams and cries from the bathroom. Plaintiff was then forced into the bathroom by the officers. She was stripped of her clothing. She was searched. She was penetrated rectally and vaginally by the officer."

Blackburn said, "We will work on this hard and fast. We don't know who the cops are who did this and the city has been less than forthcoming. But the problem is not the individual officers.

"It is a city that is aiding in flagrant civil rights violations. The answer is to sue them in federal court for what they have done."

He claims Hernandez's civil rights were violated because she was subjected to unlawful arrest and absence of due legal process, and denied equal protection of law and freedom from excessive force.

She was not formally arrested by police and was allowed to leave the residence shortly after the search ended at 3 a.m. on May 11, attorneys and representatives of the city both assert.

City Manager Glen Hackler commented this morning, "The allegations are serious, but they must be proven. There are a lot of things professionally and personally I would like to say, but I am unable to do so because of the pending litigation."

He added, "One thing is clear — the representatives of the plaintiffs would prefer to see this as a daily saga which will erode the credibility of the city and police department."

Hackler said Pampa has a reputation as a professionally managed city with a "well-trained police department."

"I recognize mere assurances from the city manager, no matter how strongly worded, will not take the place of actions," Hackler said. "My challenge to the 191 employees of the city is to perform at the highest standards possible ... Hopefully, this will be a reassurance to those who may question our abilities or intentions."

A Pampa counselor who works with abused women reported Tuesday afternoon that local females appear very concerned about the possibility of abuse by police following the allegations of police misconduct.

However, several district attorneys around the Panhandle have dismissed allusions by representatives of Hernandez suggesting the strip search amounted to rape.

They said the question more revolves around the propriety of the warrant used when Hernandez and five other women were subjected to the body cavity searches.

City officials have 20 days to file an answer to the lawsuit, Blackburn said.

Vanderpool named to CED 14 board

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Freshman Pampa Independent School District board member Phil Vanderpool volunteered Tuesday night to serve as a representative to County Education District 14, the newly-formed six-county school taxation district designed to equalize education funding in the northeastern Panhandle.

School trustees used their meeting at Carver Center to unanimously approve Vanderpool, who joked, "I think this is going to be interesting. This doesn't intimidate me."

Education Districts are drawing fire from the Budget Balanced Schools Association, which claims CEDs are the Legislature's way of illegally imposing a state property tax.

PISD board members grumbled Tuesday that CED 14 will have little real decision-making power since it is merely billing and collecting for an amount of local property taxes mandated by the state.

CED 14 includes the 16 school districts in Gray, Lipscomb, Hemphill, Hutchinson, Ochiltree and Roberts counties.

Mark McVay, PISD business manager, said, "CEDs are incorporated as independent school districts solely for the purpose of levelling the first tier of (property) taxes (for education)."

He explained schools can multiply the $2,200 basic allotment per student allowed by the state by their average daily attendance (ADA) to see how much Tier I funding they are entitled to.

Beyond that, local boards may tax another 45 cents that will be guaranteed to yield at least $21.50 per ADA.

"For every penny of taxes we raise above $1.06, we will generate approximately $100,000," McVay said. "At our first budget workshop we gave the amount needed in order to balance the budget. It would take a $1.17 tax rate. We have a pretty good estimate on what the CED will generate for us. They will set their own tax rate and then we have to plug in how much we need, minus how much the CED will generate, to see how much we will need to support our budget."

A third tier of taxes for local use, which is not guaranteed by the state to raise a set amount of money, may also be assessed by the local district.

McVay said CEDs and local school systems are faced with major changes in taxing authority.

Dr. Dawson Orr, superintendent, said collection and redistribution of taxes through CED 14 stands to hurt the PISD's level of operating capital.

"Whenever you set up a new way of collecting taxes, your collection rate falls dramatically," Orr said. "If people hold their taxes until the last minute, whereas in Pampa they have traditionally paid early, it could impact us in a pretty negative way."

Following a lengthy discussion, trustees gave approval to a pilot all-day kindergarten program at Wilson and Travis elementaries, in spite of objections by some parents.

Sue Unruh, a parent, said after the meeting, "We feel they're too young to go all day. We have a five-year-old with a short attention span. I don't see he will get all that much from an all-day program."

She said school board members already had their minds made up about supporting all-day kindergarten and that advertised attempts to get parental input were misleading.

"I think they had their minds made up before the meeting ever started," Unruh said.

Pamela Ayers, another parent, said she is opposed to state education goals of "getting our kids earlier and longer."

"I'm of the opinion we push our kids too fast," Ayers said.

Teachers told the board they would be adding two hours of straight curriculum to each day, along with numerous education opportunities through discovery centers and other activities.

If full-day kindergarten is successful at the two campuses, board members said they will seriously consider

Lefors trustees approve student test results

By BETH MILLER
Staff Writer

LEFORS — Lefors Independent School District Board of Trustees approved the results of the 1990-91 Metropolitan Achievement Tests given to students in grades 1-11 during the regular meeting Tuesday evening.

Joe Roper, new superintendent for the school district, said he was pleased with the results.

"Overall, it's a good test and the kids did great," he told the school board.

He said the tests show more work is needed in reading comprehension and spelling in some grade levels.

In unrelated business, the school board appointed Trustee Charlie Sullivan to be the district's representative on County Education District 14, contingent upon Gov. Ann Richards signing Senate Bill 351.

The school board discussed, but took no action on purchasing a Pitney Bowes mailing system, on having the gym floor redone and on having the old boiler tank in the gym removed and replaced.

During the public comment section, first-grade teacher Joyce Griffin expressed her concern that the school board might be considering cutting kindergarten from a full-day to a half-day schedule.

The half-day kindergarten was mentioned at a recent meeting as a possible way to save money for the school district in future years.

"If we cut it to half a day, we're going to be hurting the kids," Griffin said, adding that responsibilities have increased for both students and teachers in recent years at the kindergarten level, which is much like what first grade used to be like.

"Maybe there are other ways to save money besides cutting programs academically," she said.

School Board President Garrel Roberson thanked Griffin for expressing her concern and said the board will consider her comments in the future.

Following an hour-long executive session, the board

- approved the Career Ladder assignments for 1990-91.
- approved hiring McLean teacher/coach Jerry Miller to teach the driving phase of driver education this summer.
- hired Superintendent Roper's son and wife, Mike and Melinda Roper, to teach at Lefors ISD. Mike Roper will teach upper level mathematics and Melinda Roper will teach elementary school. The Ropers have been teachers in the Hooks ISD.
- In other business, the board:
  - approved Update 39 as submitted by Texas Association of School Boards to the Lefors ISD Policy Manual.
  - approved the payment of monthly expenditures.
  - approved minutes of previous meetings.
  - approved the payment of $1,406 for liability insurance for the school district.
  - accepted the resignations of Dale and Joyce Means, who are moving to Amherst.

Cool refreshment

With time on her hand now that school is out for the summer, 8-year-old Ashley Kimball decides to try to pick up a little spending change by offering some cool lemonade for those wanting a bit of relief from the summer heat. She set up her stand Tuesday at her parents' business, Beaver Express, at 509 W. Wilks.

Parents of Kansas murder victim want prosecutor removed from Braun case

GARDEN CITY, Kan. (AP) - The Finney County prosecutor has been asked to remove himself from a murder case because the victim's parents are concerned he will offer the alleged killer a plea bargain.

The family of Mary Rains also have asked County Attorney Ricklin Pierce to step aside so the attorney general's office could prosecute the case against Gregg Braun, who is accused of killing Rains and Barbara Kochendorfer, two Garden City convenience store clerks, in separate incidents on July 19, 1989.

Braun also is charged with capital murder in the death of E.P. Spurrier, shot in his Pampa, Texas, photo processing shop July 20, 1989, and is accused of killing Gwen Miller, in an Ardmore, Okla., flower shop on July 21, 1989.

A New Mexico jury is to decide in September whether Braun will be executed for killing Geraldine Valdez, at a Springer, N.M., convenience store July 23, 1989. He is scheduled to go on trial in Texas and Oklahoma after he faces the charges in Garden City.

Pierce said he had not talked to Braun or his attorney about dropping any of the charges against Braun in exchange for a guilty plea to other charges.

He also said Tuesday that he would not step aside from the case.

Rains' parents say they are concerned Braun will serve only a few years in prison in Kansas if convicted.

"With the current system, he could get a murder (conviction) and be out in seven years," said Robert Hessman, Rains' father.

"We can't depend on other states to do anything; we've got to take care of this ourselves," said Hessman, who lives near Dodge City.

Hessman said Pierce told his wife, Ruth, that the prosecution was considering dropping charges of kidnapping and aggravated robbery against Braun in return for a guilty plea to the murder charges. The family opposes any charges being dropped, he said.

Pierce said he only explained to the family what could happen in the case against Braun.

"I talked with the victims' families about all the possible things that could occur, and now all of a sudden this has become a plea bargain," he said.

Even if no plea bargain is arranged, Hessman said, his family wants the attorney general's office to take over the case from Pierce.

"We have been following his cases ever since our daughter's death two years ago, and he has shown his inadequacies in several cases, so we certainly don't want him handling our daughter's case," Hessman said.

McLean

Board member Bill Thomas said he has heard questions about "where the money is going to come from to build a new school."

Board member Steve Brass said, "Socially, it makes a difference who you are consolidating with. We may not be improving ourselves."

He added, "There's more to it than consolidation just for the sake of consolidation."

Board member Gwen Henley said, "I really don't honestly and truly want it (consolidation)."

Hefley said, "I think the longer we stay here, the better off we'll be."

Johnson, concerning state funding and the school system's ability to remain intact, said, "I don't think they (the state) will force you out; I think they'll starve you out."

Trustees agreed it would be advantageous to be counseled by an "expert" on the school finance reform legislation and its ramifications.

In related business, Henley was selected as the board's delegate to the newly established County Education District 14 contingent on the school finance legislation being signed into law by the governor.

In other business, the school board also:

- Heard an overview on plans for summer school, which begins Monday.

- Asked Gray County Commissioner Ted Simmons to arrange leasing of fuel storage facilities from the county. McLean's former supplier reportedly is closing this month and the board is concerned it may be forced to pay higher fuel prices.

- Adopted a school calendar for the coming year. School begins Aug. 19.

- Voted 4-0 with two abstentions in favor of Career Ladder selections. One teacher was elevated from Level II to Level III; two were moved from Level I to Level II; and two were dropped from Level II to Level I. Brass and Thomas abstained.

- Voted to pay new superintendent Stanley Lamb effective June 1, citing that he had already begun work.

- Authorized the purchase of playground equipment costing approximately $10,000.

- Hired Bonita Myers as full-time counselor at a total rate of $34,500 based on her qualifications and 17 years of experience.

making it a district-wide policy, eliminating developmental kindergarten and transitional first grade.

Board member Jim Duggan said he empathized with parents, saying he knows how hard it is to turn loose of youngsters.

"A pilot program is the best way to do this," he said, "because we can make adjustments as we need to."

Carver Center administrators, including Orr, were each given a raise of approximately $2,000 by trustees, but agreed to work four additional days.

"Last year as an assistant superintendent I received a $2,000 raise," Orr said. "This year I get a $2,000 raise as superintendent, but I also work four more days."

Orr and other administrators said they looked forward to the four extra days of work as a time to have strategy sessions for the district.

In other action, board members gave unanimous approval to bids for paper, food and bulk items, as well as approving a peer tutoring program aimed at helping handicapped students at the high school.

"It is an application to have an elective course where students can serve as peer tutors and get credit," Orr said. "They will do readings and work that will help in their knowledge of the needs of the handicapped. These are regular education students who would be helping special education students."

Trustees also agreed to re-finish the floor of McNeely Field House, instead of replacing it.

"The money we had would simply not fix the problem of splits in the floor," Orr said. "So we will be doing some caulking around the edges."

Small crowd attends McLean cable hearing

McLEAN - A short, sparsely attended public hearing concerning renewal of a cable TV franchise with Sammons Communications was held Tuesday night in the Lovett Memorial Library.

Jim Hampton, chief technician for Sammons, fielded questions concerning availability of service and length of the contract, according to city officials.

Other concerns voiced included the lack of popularity of several existing channels.

Attending the meeting, which lasted less than an hour, were most of the members of the City Council and approximately a half-dozen residents.

The City Council is expected to meet with Jim Hampton, Pampa area manager for Sammons Communications, at its regularly scheduled July meeting.

they looked forward to the four extra days of work as a time to have strategy sessions for the district.

In other action, board members gave unanimous approval to bids for paper, food and bulk items, as well as approving a peer tutoring program aimed at helping handicapped students at the high school.

"It is an application to have an elective course where students can serve as peer tutors and get credit," Orr said. "They will do readings and work that will help in their knowledge of the needs of the handicapped. These are regular education students who would be helping special education students."

Trustees also agreed to re-finish the floor of McNeely Field House, instead of replacing it.

"The money we had would simply not fix the problem of splits in the floor," Orr said. "So we will be doing some caulking around the edges."

Consultant makes feasibility study of dredging at Lake McClellan

By LARRY HOLLIS
Managing Editor

LAKE McCLELLAN — A consultant in dredging operations visited Lake McClellan this week to conduct a feasibility study on possible dredging operations at the Gray County lake.

Eric H. Seagren of St. Louis, Mo., Midwest regional sales manager for Ellicott Machine Corp., was at the lake Tuesday afternoon surveying the amount of silt accumulation and proposing recommendations on the best methods of dredging to use at the lake.

Accompanying Seagren on the boat tour of the lake were John Erikson, Lake McClellan concessionaire; O.L. Presley of Lefors, former Gray County commissioner; and Raymond Henry of FRH Services.

Henry, of Lefors, has been working with Gray County officials and the U.S. Forest Service regarding the proposed dredging of Lake McClellan to remove the accumulated silt deposits and to increase the depth of the lake and thus its water-retaining capacity.

Henry, who has conducted dredging operations, brought in Seagren as a consultant for the Forest Service to make the feasibility study of the lake and its dredging requirements.

Seagren met this morning with Reggie Blackwell, district ranger of the U.S. Forest Service's Black Kettle National Grasslands office in Cheyenne, Okla., as well as officials from the North Rolling Plains Resource Conservation and Development Council, Soil Conservation Service and county officials to discuss his recommendations.

The lake, which normally has a surface area of more than 300 acres, in early May was down to about 20 surface acres, with most of the lake bottom exposed and drying in the sun and wind. The U.S. Forest Service and Black Kettle National Grasslands officials have been working with county and other local officials to develop a renovation project for the lake.

Recent rains have brought the lake back to above normal levels, with water at the spillway being only about two feet below the top of the dam and much of the beach areas submerged in water. But officials have indicated some long-term solutions need to be reached to help the lake retain more water and thus survive dry spells in better condition than was the case in the past few months before the recent spate of rains.

Henry said he sought a consultant from Ellicott because "it's the top of the line when it comes to dredging operations." He said the firm has conducted numerous dredging operations throughout the nation and has specialists in the various types of dredging. Seagren is a specialist in lake dredging operations, he said.

After touring the lake by boat and taking soundings to determine the amount of silt accumulation, Seagren said he feels hydraulic dredging would be the best route for Lake McClellan.

He said he believes the lake "can be dredged easily" by the hydraulic method, which involves pumping the silt-laden water out of the lake in a slurry mixture — about 20 percent silt and 80 percent water — and putting it in siltation ponds.

After the silt has settled in the pond, then clear water can be pumped back into the lake, Seagren said. He added that Ellicott "believes in recycling water" from dredging operations.

"It's not an easy solution," he explained. "You don't want to make it [the lake] too deep too soon, or you might find yourself out of water."

Seagren said dredging operations of this type work best when there's water in the lake. Using equipment on a nearly dried-out lake bottom, as existed at Lake McClellan just a few weeks ago, would have been extremely difficult due to the strong possibility of equipment sinking into the lake bottom.

He noted that the lake bottom may look dry on the surface, but there's usually several feet of mud underneath. Equipment might be used to clear out the outer edges of such a lake, but would be of little use in the deeper parts of the lake, he said.

Seagren said he feels the dredging would be best "if done over several years," taking care of a portion of the lake at a time to avoid pumping too much water out of the lake. He said he thinks this is especially important for a lake like McClellan, which depends heavily on rainfall.

If done too quickly, or all at once in a relatively short time, there is the possibility that too much water will be taken from the lake that cannot be replaced quickly by the dependable rainfall common to the Texas Panhandle, Seagren said.

Doing the project over several years would have several benefits, he explained. By doing the lake a portion at a time, the rest of the lake could remain open to be used for recreational activities.

Also, the use of siltation ponds would allow some water to be returned to the lake as the dredging operations continue, he said.

Water also is needed to float the dredging equipment, and the longer-range operations would keep water in the lake to float the dredging machine, Seagren said.

He also said he feels medium range or smaller dredging machines would be best for the McClellan conditions. Such equipment would pump the water out more slowly without draining too much water from the lake, something that could be a problem with the bigger machines.

In addition, he noted, the smaller machines cause less stirring up of the water and keeps the turbidity down. They also can be operated to allow more specific selection on where the dredging is done, permitting the portion-by-portion dredging of the lake bottom, he said.

The slower suction power of the smaller machines also cuts down on the number of fish that might be sucked into the pump lines, something that the fishermen might appreciate, Seagren said.

The dredging of the lake bottom also could open up any springs that might be covered over in the lake bottom. By taking up the mud and gravel cover, the springs could be exposed and renew their water flow back into the lake, he explained.

The major problem, Seagren said, is finding a place or places to dike up to form the siltation ponds. The ponds also need to be within a reasonable distance from the lake, since the farther away they are, the more pipeline needed and thus the more expensive the costs.

He also said the ponds should be at a higher elevation than the lake to allow for easier return of the cleared water into the lake.

Seagren said dredging the lake would provide deeper basins where silt can collect instead of being washed down to the spillway area and collecting below the dam.

"Unfortunately, there will always be a problem with silting" in the lake, he said. But dredging can remove much of the silt that has already accumulated and deepen the lake, thus allowing water to be retained for longer periods.

Also, the flood and silt control dams constructed during the 1980s upstream on the Lake McClellan watershed has cut down the amount of silt going into the lake, he said. Those silt control dams, coupled with dredging operations, should help increase the life of the lake, he said.

The best and most economical way of dredging the lake would be to find places "to put the silt where it will stay" and not wash back into the lake, Seagren said.

The silt disposal ponds would provide this route, he said. After the water is returned to the lake, the sediment in the siltation ponds would be allowed to dry out, either filling in the areas chosen for the pond sites or being hauled off to other places.

"It's great topsoil," he said, adding that he has seen farmers in other places where dredging operations were used take such silt deposit and turn it into good farmland.

Seagren stressed that he was here "just to make recommendations." The actual decisions will have to be made by the Forest Service personnel and other officials, he said.

After touring Lake McClellan late Tuesday afternoon, Seagren said, "Boy, can you believe that in West Texas there's a lake like this? With all these trees?"

He said the lake is worth saving.

Childress sheriff pleads guilty

AMARILLO (AP) — Childress County Sheriff Claude Bob Lane, who two years ago received national attention as a crusader against drugs, has ended his term in office by resigning and pleading guilty to drug charges.

Lane, who was named in a 14-count indictment returned in April, pleaded guilty in federal court Tuesday to using a telephone to assist a conspiracy to distribute marijuana.

In exchange for Lane's resignation and plea, the state agreed to drop 13 counts against Lane, including carrying firearms during a drug trafficking crime and using the trunk of his patrol car to distribute marijuana, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Dick Baker.

Lane, 55, faces four years in prison and a $250,000 fine. Sentencing will be in several weeks, Baker said.

After a series of well-publicized drug busts, the Wall Street Journal in 1989 featured Lane prominently in a front-page story on small-town sheriffs fighting narcotics.

Local residents were shocked to hear drug charges had been filed against Lane, who had served as sheriff since 1984.

But his arrest in January was the culmination of an intense investigation by federal agents, which included a wire tap on Lane's phone.

Baker said the most telling evidence came from conversations between Lane and a man he recruited to sell 15 pounds of marijuana seized by the sheriff's department in a drug raid last October.

Baker said Lane had told his accomplice, who later testified for the state, to sell the drugs for $10,000 and keep any profits.

During one conversation, Lane told his accomplice to be more careful in selling the drugs.

"If you keep bumming around, someone is going to catch on," Lane was recorded as saying.

"Somebody did catch on, all right," Baker said Tuesday. "We were taping the conversation. After that it was just a matter of time."

People close to Lane say he was constantly in financial trouble and likely tried to sell the drugs to pay back debts.

Lane has admitted responsibility and liability for the loss of about $9,615 from the Childress County Sheriff's Office. This amount was reported missing in an audit of the sheriff's office earlier this year.

Senate panel takes up super collider's spending

By JENNIFER DIXON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate panel has agreed to spend $509 million on the super collider next year, setting aside $75 million more to build the giant atom smasher than the House approved two weeks ago.

Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, chairman of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on energy and water development, said that while the collider still comes up $25 million short of what President Bush had sought, the $509 million should allow construction to proceed on schedule.

The panel's decision Tuesday on the superconducting super collider, included in a $22 billion energy and water spending bill, should have no trouble passing the full Appropriations Committee, said Johnston, D-La. The panel was scheduled to take up the bill late today.

"I don't think there are any guerrilla bands roving around taking pot shots at it," Johnston said after the committee's vote.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said he was also confident the full committee would approve the $509 million.

"And with that kind of support, I believe we can defeat any challenge on the Senate floor," Bentsen said.

The SSC has faced far less opposition in the Senate than in the House, where opponents won 165 votes two weeks ago on an amendment that would have killed the $8.25 billion atom smasher being built south of Dallas.

The Senate committee's decision to award $25 million toward a new project at another high energy physics project, Fermi National Laboratory in suburban Chicago, averted a possible showdown with Illinois lawmakers.

Unlike in the House, where lawmakers initially sought to get Fermi money diverted from the super collider, Sen. Alan Dixon said he and fellow Sen. Paul Simon were not interested in pitting the projects against each other in the Senate.

"We're not getting into one of those classic brawls on the floor of the Senate where someone's ox has been gored," said Dixon, D-Ill. "A good settlement beats a questionable lawsuit all the time. We have made a good settlement."

Dixon said he supports development of the super collider, but acknowledged that the price could be a threat to Illinois.

"I am very much concerned that Fermilab's future can be somewhat in jeopardy by the ambitions of those who advocate the super collider," Dixon said. "We want these things running on parallel tracks."

Johnston declared the SSC "a very important national project. We can keep the project on schedule with this (appropriation)."

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, called the decision Tuesday "another major step forward for the superconducting super collider. And if we can hold close to this number in conference (with the House) we will be off to a strong start in making the SSC a reality."

Chisum to visit McLean, Lefors

State Rep. Warren Chisum is scheduled to make two stops — McLean and Lefors — on Thursday at the respective city's town meetings.

Chisum, D-Pampa, is set to be at McLean at 5:30 p.m. for the town hall meeting at the school gymnasium.

He is then scheduled to attend Lefors' town meeting, set to begin at 7 p.m. at the school auditorium, although he may be a little late getting to that meeting, he said earlier. Both schools have been discussing the possibilities of consolidating in light of Senate Bill 351 and its ramifications for the small districts.

Chisum is scheduled to discuss the workings of Senate Bill 351, the new finance reform legislation for state school districts, and other related issues. He will also be available to answer general questions.

Other items for discussion at the Lefors town meeting will be a question and answer session about closing the city landfill, beautification and other related issues.

McLean City Council to meet Thursday

McLEAN — McLean City Council will consider a policy on customer service and a resolution and ordinance on drug testing during the regular monthly meeting on Thursday.

Other items on the agenda include the cable television franchise, discussion about the hospital building and a request from a resident to change the old Interstate 40 Main Street to two-way traffic.

Councilman Brad Dalton is scheduled to speak about city clean-up, daily time and mileage reports, mowing private property and seal coating and paving.

Mayor Sam Haynes and Dalton are to talk about cleaning out a dry creek causing drainage problems.

Other items on the agenda include payment of current bills and transfers as needed.

The meeting, set to begin at 7 p.m. in City Hall, is open to the public.

Opinion

Kremlin should free Baltics for more aid

Maybe the entertainment industry should put together a concert to aid the Soviet Union — call it Kremlin Aid. At least that way Americans would have a choice about contributing. As it is, every year taxpayers are making involuntary contributions to the Kremlin. Last year it came to $1 billion in credits for food exports; this year it should be $1.5 billion or more. Though officially "credits," the bankrupt Kremlin will never repay them, meaning U.S. taxpayers will pick up the tab.

With Soviet special envoy Yevgeny Primakov at his side, in Washington Secretary of State James Baker announced that the "United States is very interested in supporting both political and economic reform in the Soviet Union." Well, there's nothing wrong with supporting political reform, especially change without violence. But as to economic reform, in reality there is little the United States can do. The effort must be made by the Soviets. They must bury socialism beneath Lenin's Mausoleum and rehabilitate capitalism.

The Bush administration says it is still examining the Soviet economic plan brought over by Primakov. But the writing is on the wall: U.S. taxpayers will pay the requested $1.5 billion. Recently, Baker announced, "We want to see this succeed." The "this" includes Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's request made last month, for the capitalist West to fork over $100 billion.

The Soviet Union could easily get that much money on its own. It could end the $3.5 billion annual subsidy give to the communist junta in Afghanistan, and the several billion dollars given to Fidel Castro in Cuba; disarm the estimated 10,000 to 30,000 nuclear warheads stockpiled during the Cold War, most still aimed at the United States; demobilize most of the 4 million-man Red Army; and privatize farms and businesses.

Giving our money to the Kremlin is an insult to taxpayers. This year we're bailing out our own government's incompetence to the tune of a $300 billion federal budget deficit. Must we also pay for the incompetence of every begging socialist regime? Moreover, propping up socialist regimes is counterproductive. It's like giving Dracula a blood transfusion. The problem with socialism is socialism, not a lack of credits.

But if Baker and his boss, President Bush, are bent on giving Gorbachev U.S. taxpayers' dollars, at least a price tag should be attached: Freedom for the three Baltic republics, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia. When Soviet "black beret" troops murdered 14 peaceful protesters in Vilnius, Lithuania, on "Bloody Sunday" last January, they did so just days after Gorbachev cashed his $1 billion U.S. taxpayer check. If he is to get our money again, this time we should preclude such cynical action by first making him unchain the Baltics.

Let her fingers do the walking

WASHINGTON — Let me get back to the Supreme Court's decision of May 23 in the family planning case. The decision in Roe v. Sullivan is being roundly condemned, or roundly defended, as if it were a landmark on the judicial horizon. It isn't.

Several aspects of the high court's action merit better understanding. Except in one critical respect, which I want to return to in a moment, this was not a case of constitutional law. It was a case of statutory law. The court was not construing the word "liberty" in the 14th Amendment. The court was construing the word "program" in the Public Health Service Act.

The distinction is crucial. In the famous case of Roe v. Wade, decided in 1973, the court found that the Constitution accords women an almost absolute right to have an abortion during the first trimester of pregnancy. At a later stage the right may be regulated by the states under their power to preserve potential human life, and it may be regulated by Congress under its power of the purse.

Since the Roe decision of 1973 we have seen half a dozen high court decisions upholding state regulation. The May 23 decision in Roe v. Sullivan served to uphold federal regulation. Specifically the case dealt with a regulation promulgated by Health Secretary Louis Sullivan, forbidding doctors in federally funded clinics from "counseling" a patient on the option of abortion.

Regulations imposed by an executive agency have none of the impressive status of a constitutional declaration. Dr. Sullivan himself, if he were so disposed, could abolish or rewrite the regulation that has kicked up such a storm. Congress could take the matter into its own hands. Last week Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., was working on a bill to overturn the high court's decision. I doubt that his bill will pass, and I am confident it could not survive a presidential veto, but these are political speculations. Put them aside.

On a second point: Except for the one constitutional issue, the court's opinion was soundly based in judicial tradition. The court historically has paid great deference to the presumed expertise of federal agencies in construing federal statutes. Here the court deferred to Dr. Sullivan as secretary of health and human services.

Third point: The complaining doctors and clinics in this case demanded something akin to a summary judgment. They contended that the statute and the regulations are invalid on their face. Simply as a matter of law, this is a tough proposition to prove. The burden on the plaintiffs was to show that "no set of circumstances" could be imagined in which the regulations could be sustained. The plaintiffs clearly failed to meet the requirement.

But if the court's 5-4 decision may be defended as a matter of jurisprudence, it cannot be condoned as a matter of constitutional law. Rehnquist and his four colleagues rightly held that Congress may attach conditions to the expenditure of public funds. Congress does this all the time. State highway aid, for one example, has been conditioned on the retention of speed limits and the destruction of billboards.

The point is that Congress may not impose conditions in violation of the Constitution, and that is what Sullivan's gag rule amounted to. Physicians cannot be compelled to abandon their right of free speech when they enter a federally subsidized facility. They cannot be told what not to say.

Analogies come immediately to mind. Public schools have the power to expel students for misbehavior, but "misbehavior" cannot be defined to include the wearing of a black armband to protest the war in Vietnam. Under the law that authorizes union shops, labor unions have the power to exact agency fees from non-member workers; but as the court just held anew, that power cannot be conditioned upon the workers' constitutional rights of free association. All this is elementary.

It is the constitutional aspect of Rehnquist's opinion that justifies serious concern. If the government may control speech by buying silence, it is later than we think, and the road ahead is darker.

As for the rest, let us calm down. The 4,500 federal family planning facilities assuredly are not the sole source of counseling on abortion. A pregnant woman would have to be ignorant beyond belief not to know that a pregnancy may be medically aborted. Information on the process is widely available. All that is required of her is an ability to read the Yellow Pages and to let her fingers do the walking.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, June 12, the 163rd day of 1991. There are 202 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On June 12, 1939, the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum was dedicated in Cooperstown, N.Y. — one hundred years to the day on which Abner Doubleday supposedly invented the sport. (Most sports historians doubt, however, that Doubleday truly invented baseball).

On this date:

In 1665, England installed a municipal government in New York, formerly the Dutch settlement of New Amsterdam.

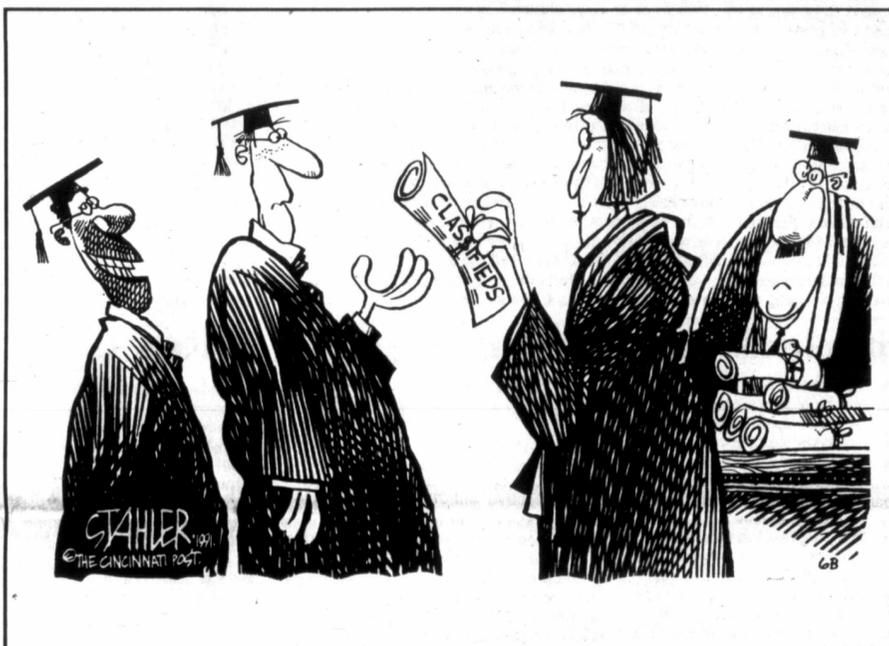

In 1776, Virginia's colonial legislature became the first to adopt a Bill of Rights.

In 1838, the Iowa Territory was organized.

In 1898, Philippine nationalists declared independence from Spain.

In 1937, the Soviet Union executed eight army leaders as a purge under Josef Stalin continued.

In 1963, civil rights leader Medgar Evers was fatally shot in front of his home in Jackson, Miss.

Saddam should pay even more

Saddam Hussein appears human. He is sub-human.

When he withdrew from Kuwait City he ordered kerosene dumped into the city's water supply — for no earthly military reason.

When he torched the oil field he did it with malice, systematically.

A scorched-earth retreat can be militarily useful.

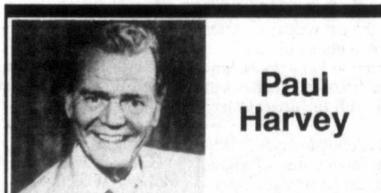

Setting the biggest fire that ever was was not a "military act"; it was the pure-meanness mischief of a pathological psychopath.

Dr. Henry W. Kendall, Nobel laureate in physics at MIT, and Dr. R.L. Garwin, a physics colleague, have been mobilizing our best scientific brains to see if there is not some better way to fight such fires.

They found the challenge to be monumentally complex.

For example, when I asked about the potential for extinguishing the fires with explosives, Kendall explained that these wells are infinitely more complex than a pipe in a hole. Each may involve six to eight concentric pipes reaching different depths under varying pressures.

Also, Saddam Hussein surrounded each well with an assortment of mines — different makes, different depths. Some explode under pressure. Some you must pass over a certain number of times before they explode.

The on-site scientists came away with enhanced respect for such fire fighters as Houston's legendary Red Adair, but a mine field is a unique problem not usually met in that profession.

Access to each well must somehow be cleared. Presently, the most promising technique involves an enormous "leaf blower," a powerful machine capable of blasting a clean strip of desert 30 feet wide and a foot deep, detonating or tossing aside any and all explosives.

And there is yet a more sinister problem.

A burning well is a lesser ecological menace than a gushing well, which may create a lake of oil, dozens of square miles of oil up to four feet deep.

When that lake of oil congeals under a skim of tar, explosive gases are trapped underneath with the potential to convert a disaster into a catastrophe.

And nobody has ever before had to deal with minesweeping underneath a lake of oil.

Several nations are competing with an assortment of techniques for dealing with these problems, each hoping to win some lucrative contracts.

There are 15 teams now working in the burning fields, and The Union of Concerned Scientists as well as our federal government are presently most confident of the orthodox techniques employed by traditional oil-field fire fighters, with some additions, will get the fires out.

The subject of war reparations is on the back burner for now, but somewhere up the road ahead the responsibility for these fires and the astronomical costs of putting them out and their grave costs to the world environment Saddam Hussein should have to pay.

It's a sorry audit of the "wages of sin" if this post-war reconstruction ends up costing us more than it costs him.

Parades saluting American values

By BEN WATTENBERG

It's patriotism season, with a kicker. The parades have begun, and this year we'll have substance along with the salutes.

Normally, during this time, there are four occasions for parading: Armed Forces Day, Memorial Day, Flag Day and Independence Day.

This year, on June 8, there was the addition of the "National Victory Celebration." The NVC, in Washington, yielded "the largest military victory parade since World War II."

Moving past the White House and the Lincoln Memorial, and ending up at the Pentagon, were Patriot missiles, Apache, Blackhawk and Harrier aircraft, 11 military bands and 10,000 troops, representing every unit that took part in Desert Storm.

At the head of what has been called "the mother of all parades" was Stormin' Norman himself, Sir Schwarzkopf.

Parades can often tell us what's going on in a nation's mind, the meaning to be divined only by learned seers. This year, I decree, the true meaning of all the foot-stomping and flag-flying will be (and should be) that Americans are damn proud of themselves.

I further decree that the parades should symbolize victory not only in the Gulf War, but in the Cold War. (How come we missed a celebration for that? Can you imagine Ronald Reagan not declaring a Cold War Victory parade in 1990?)

Cliches may be even better indicators than parades. The difference between this parade season and the last one can be seen by the change in buzzphrases. Last year it was being said that "America was in decline." This year we're talking about a "New World Order."

There is a relationship between the two phrases: If America is in decline, there won't likely be a useful New World Order.

Last year at this time it was being said that "The American Century" was ending and that for a dozen different reasons (all wrong) poor America would no longer be "No. 1."

The question about "Who's No. 1?" need not be a braggart's exercise. It is a grand old debate, elucidating the idea that at certain times in history one nation has stood out as the engine of global activity, often to the benefit of the global community.

Understanding where the engine is, what fuels it and in which direction it is pushing us, gives us a sense of how the world works. Sensing that, we have a better chance to judge whether we want to try to change it, and how.

The war in the Gulf revealed, once again, that great things are more likely to happen, for everyone, and by everyone, when there is a leader. That happened in World War II, in the Cold War and in the Gulf. In each case, many nations participated, and the enterprises were led by America. That's the message the bands should be blaring.

An America in decline wouldn't have done it, and couldn't have done it.

Only a global community with leadership allows us to think about a

New World Order. The NWO is not substantive, at least not yet. It is only a moment — defined by negatives, not positives; defined by opportunities, not realities.

We have a world that is, finally, unthreatened by totalitarians of the right (fascist, Nazis); unthreatened by totalitarians on the left (Communists, Soviets); less threatened by bandit states. Churchill said if we could get through those messy parts of the 20th century, we could enter "the broad sunlit uplands."

The parades are saying that, thanks to America, such a relatively unthreatening situation now exists, for the first time in a long time. That gives us an opportunity to let the blessings of free politics, free markets, free speech and free science hold sway. As and if that happens, the human condition can improve in ways yet unknown and untold.

The parades tell us to seize the moment. If we use it wisely, we have the opportunity to let the sunlight in.

Eruption shoots ash skyward, sends molten rock down slopes

(AP Laserphoto)

A thick plume of ash rises from the crater of Mount Pinatubo in northwestern Philippines following a major eruption today. No casualties were reported. The ashflow covered a wide area in the northwestern part of the volcano, but spared the U.S.-run Clark Air Force Base.

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Mount Pinatubo erupted with three thundering explosions today, shooting a giant plume of ash more than 12 miles high. Molten rock and hot gas poured from the volcano, and nearby residents fled in panic.

A Filipino serving with the U.S. Navy became the first reported fatality related to the eruption when his car collided with a bus on an ash-slicked road north of the Subic Bay naval base.

Tens miles to the east, hundreds of Americans fled Clark Air Base, home to 15,000 American military personnel and their families. Most of the base's residents had been evacuated Monday.

Clark did not appear threatened by volcanic flow.

Scientists warned of more, possibly larger eruptions from the 4,795-foot volcano, which was dormant for six centuries until it began spewing steam in April.

"This could only be the beginning," said Raymundo Punongbayan, director of the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology.

Residents of nearby Angeles panicked when a huge gray-greenish mushroom cloud burst from the volcano and turned day to night, and thousands of fleeing people packed roads.

Seismologists said searing gas, ash and molten rock raced at great speed down the mountain's western and northern slopes. They said most of the debris flowed into the Marcella, Maraunot and O'Donnell rivers and that there had been no reports that property or homes had been damaged.

About 3,000 Aeta tribesmen, descendants of the original inhabitants of the Philippines, fled the slopes of Mount Pinatubo.

At a refugee center in Olongapo, 35 miles southwest of the volcano, survivors told of the sky growing dark, then of hearing a tremendous explosion followed by a rain of ash.

"We were forced to leave our homes because stones as big as my head were falling down from the mountains," said Rolly Soria, 18.

"There was panic everywhere," said Manuel Romualdo. "Children were crying. We had to grab whatever we could."

People scampered for safety with their belongings and livestock over roads slippery with ashfall, reporters said. Refugees wore cardboard boxes to protect themselves from the ash.

"They were stunned by the eruption," reporter Bert Basa said by telephone from Angeles. "Their faces turned ashen, and it looked like their hair was standing on end."

Ash was so thick in the air that at noon, motorists were driving with their headlights and windshield wipers on.

An Associated Press photographer who circled the volcano in an airplane said an aerial gunnery range at Clark was covered with ash, as were mountains in the Zambales range, normally lush, green tropical peaks that now looked like the Alps in winter.

Today's eruptions began at 8:40 a.m. with a tremendous blast that sent forth a mushroom cloud. It was followed by a second explosion a few minutes later and a third, smaller blast at 11:49 a.m.

The huge plume 12 1/2 miles high could be seen in Manila, 60 miles to the south, and reporters at the scene said it blocked out the sun. The cloud drifted westward into the South China Sea.

Seismologists said the volcano had plenty of built-up magma and even more severe eruptions could come later.

"The crisis has not ended yet," said Punongbayan, of the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology.

"We have signs that the volcano is preparing for another one."

Punongbayan warned people within a 15-mile radius of Pinatubo to flee.

"The smoke is very thick like a dark mushroom in the sky," Gus Abelgas, a reporter for ABS-CBN television, said in a broadcast from Botolan, near the volcano's western slopes. "It's just like what we saw in Hiroshima."

President Corazon Aquino visited refugee centers near Angeles briefly before returning to Manila for independence day celebrations.

Moments after the first explosion, sirens wailed at Clark Air Base, and 600 of the 1,500 Americans remaining there fled eastward to safety. Air Force spokesman Lt. Col. Ron Rand said 900 Americans, mostly security personnel, remained at the 130,000-acre base.

Clark is one of the biggest U.S. bases overseas. Punongbayan said Tuesday that the site was in the path of the volcanic flow from Mount Pinatubo during its last major eruption, in 1380.

The Americans who fled Clark with a few belongings on Monday moved in with sailors and their families at Subic Bay naval base, 50 miles to the southwest.

Angeles, a city of 300,000 is adjacent to the base, but authorities have not ordered a general evacuation there.

About 19,000 Filipinos had earlier been evacuated from three provinces near the volcano's slopes and were housed in about 25 makeshift evacuation centers outside the projected danger zone.

Officials said more were evacuated after today's eruption but they could provide no new figures.

About 10 people in Moraza, a village on the western slope of the mountain, were refusing to leave, relief officials said. They told rescuers that they would not leave their livestock and if the animals die, "we will die with them."

On April 2, Pinatubo produced a small hydrothermal explosion caused by underground water meeting hot rocks deep inside.

On June 3, the volcano spewed ash in a mild eruption. That same day, 4,452-foot Mount Unzen in Japan erupted with an explosion of superheated gas, ashes and rocks that killed 38 people.

A larger flow days later razed dozens of houses.

Experts say there is apparently no connection between Unzen and Pinatubo.

There are about 21 active and 200 dormant volcanoes in the Philippines. The last major eruption was the Taal volcano, about 50 miles south of Manila, in 1965. That explosion killed about 200 people.

Japanese, Philippines volcanoes are part of Pacific's volatile 'Ring of Fire'

J TOKYO (AP) — Mount Pinatubo is set along the geologically turbulent Pacific rim known as the "Ring of Fire," where vast plates of the Earth's crust grind against each other, triggering earthquakes and volcanic eruptions.

The circular zone stretches around the Pacific, including North and South America, Alaska, Japan and New Zealand.

Also a member of this geologic club is the 4,452-foot Mount Unzen, a volcano in southwestern Japan that erupted June 3 after lying dormant for nearly 200 years.

Unzen sent superheated gas, ashes and rocks flowing down its slopes, killing nearly 40 people. Days later, a larger flow razed dozens of homes.

It had last erupted in 1792, killing 15,000 people, in Japan's worst volcanic explosion.

Both eruptions are typical of what occurs when the ocean plate is pushed, or "subducted," beneath the continental plate, scientists say.

Solid material brought down from the surface melts or boils in intense heat beneath the Earth's crust, becomes lighter and forces its way upward, erupting into the atmosphere in the form of ash, vapor and molten rock called lava.

But experts say the two current bursts of activity from the Ring of Fire — Mount Pinatubo and Mount Unzen — aren't directly related.

"In my discussion with our volcanologists, we saw no connection between the two," said Jim Devine, a seismologist with the U.S. Geological Survey's office in Reston, Va. "In our judgment (it's) a coincidence."

Masaaki Kimura, a volcano expert at Japan's Ryukyu University, agreed that there appears to be no direct link between Unzen and Pinatubo, "except in the larger sense that both volcanoes are the result of plate tectonics, created by movements of the Philippine Sea plate."

Kimura and other scientists say the eruption of Pinatubo probably was more directly triggered by a shift in underground stress after the powerful earthquake that hit Baguio City in July.

That earthquake, which registered 7.7 on the Richter scale and killed about 700 people, also occurred on northern Luzon Island.

"A tectonic earthquake with that big a magnitude as July 16 can trigger a volcano eruption," said Delfin Garcia of the Philippine Institute of Volcanology and Seismology.

The last major eruption in the Philippines occurred in 1965, when the Taal volcano, 50 miles south of Manila, exploded, killing about 200 people. In all, there are about 21 active and 200 dormant volcanoes in the Philippines.

Japan has about 75 active volcanoes, 19 of which are watched around the clock.

The United States' Mount St. Helens, which erupted ferociously in 1980, leaving 57 people dead, is also part of the Ring of Fire, as is the highest mountain in the Western hemisphere, the extinct Aconcagua volcano in the Argentine Andes.

The Paricutin and Popocatepetl mountains of Mexico, Mount Hood and Mount Rainier in the United States, and Japan's Mount Fuji also are part of the ring.

Low fat recipe uses ground beef to make tasty sandwich

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Magazine Food Editor

Although ground beef is quick and convenient to cook, it's not a low-fat meat. Most supermarkets offer lean and extralean ground beef, which contain less fat than the usual product. For meatballs, patties and meat loaf, buy the leanest ground beef you can afford. If you plan to crumble and cook the meat for use in casseroles or these sandwiches, buy regular ground beef and thoroughly drain the fat.

To drain, transfer the meat to a colander or sturdy sieve over a bowl. Then use a paper towel to wipe out any fat remaining in the

Grilled burgers are tops in U. S.

NEW YORK (AP) — Hamburgers are America's favorite food to cook over the coals, says the Barbecue Industry Association, but grilled fish and seafood are growing in popularity.

Americans grilled 44 percent more fish and seafood in 1989 than they did in 1985, the association says. A survey by the Barbecue Industry Association also shows that 92 percent of grill owners use barbecue sauce at least some of the time when they cook out. Hickory flavor, tomato-based, sweet and sour, and spicy-hot are the top flavors.

pan. Draining this way can remove a tablespoon or more of fat, making it well worth the extra moment it takes.

BARBECUE BEEF AND BEAN SANDWICHES

1/2 pound lean ground beef
1 medium onion, chopped (1/2 cup)
One 8-ounce can red kidney beans
One 8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 tablespoon brown sugar

1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Few dashes bottled hot pepper sauce

Dash pepper
4 French rolls or Kaiser rolls, split and toasted
1 cup alfalfa sprouts, shredded lettuce, or shredded cabbage (optional)

In a large skillet cook beef and onion until brown. Drain. Wipe skillet with paper towels. Return mixture to skillet.

Stir undrained kidney beans, tomato sauce, brown sugar, mustard, Worcestershire sauce, hot pepper sauce and pepper into meat mixture. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Simmer, covered, for 10 minutes. Uncover and simmer 3 minutes or until desired consistency. Spoon meat mixture into rolls. Top with alfalfa sprouts or shredded lettuce, if desired.

Makes 4 servings.

Pampa Middle School Concert Girls Choir chosen for TMEA convention

The Concert Girls Choir of Pampa Middle School has been chosen to sing at the Texas Music Educators Association (TMEA) convention in San Antonio in February 1992.

The choir consists of 55 seventh and eighth grade girls and is directed by Suzanne Wood.

Wood sent tapes of the past three years performances at UIL choir contest to the TMEA honor choir selection committee in early May and was recently notified that the choir had been chosen to perform at the convention.

TMEA is a large and prestigious organization consisting of secondary and collegiate choir, band, and orchestra directors as well as elementary music teachers from throughout the state. It serves as a model for many other states, as it is the largest and most active organization of its kind in the United States.

"Being chosen to participate in the convention is an honor given only to the most outstanding choirs in Texas and is a tremendous opportunity for the choir to represent Pampa and its continuing tradition of musical excellence," said Suzanne Wood, director of seventh and eighth choirs at Pampa Middle School.

"Beef for Father's Day" is again being promoted by American National CattleWomen, Inc. According to Carolyn Buckingham, of Top of Texas CattleWomen, "Beef and Father's Day are a natural tie-in. Not only is beef one of the most popular foods among fathers around the country, but the industry embraces the strength, loyalty and integrity that we like to associate with fatherhood."

Buckingham pointed out that beef is highly nutritious, considerably leaner than 10 or 20 years ago and contains a high proportion of nutrients compared to calories and a leading contributor of iron, zinc, and protein.

Texas Post Office murals on exhibit

"Texas Post Office Murals of the New Deal" is a traveling photographic exhibition that offers an opportunity to see a representative selection of the New Deal murals. These will be on exhibit at Carson County Square House Museum in the Senator Grady and Adrine Hazelwood Building June 10-September 30. The museum is open daily until 5:30 p.m.

From 1934-1943, the federal government embarked on a unique art patronage program to decorate the walls of newly built public buildings across the United States. The program was meant to inspire a sense of pride in the past and hope for the future in economically difficult times. In Texas, the results of this New Deal program can be seen in over 60 post offices and federal buildings in small towns and large cities where murals survived.

Basics of color rubbing

By BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS

Color rubbing is a brush-on and rub-off painted finish technique, resulting in a light and dark patina look, explains Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

To get the most from color rubbing, select surfaces with high and low areas. For example, wall paneling and moldings have ridges, recesses and grooves where color will collect and dry dark. When the surface is rubbed, the high areas polish to a light pastel.

Old or new wood furnishings with relief carving and turned legs will also work well for color rubbing. The high and low areas of these pieces give exciting light and dark effects.

Brush the color on and rub it off. Test the following steps on a scrap of lumber before rubbing for real:

Enamel the surface white. Let dry.

Mix glaze of 3/4-cup white oil-base paint, 2 tablespoons paint thinner, and 3 tablespoons artist's oil paint in a wide-mouth 1-cup container.

Brush glaze on one section of the surface at a time. Let set for 3 minutes.

Wipe away paint with an absorbent rag, taking up most of the glaze.

Rub the surface using rapid, circular motions and a clean rag. Polish until high areas are light and color remains only in the low areas.

Man's yearly physicals missed growing cancer

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this from a well-known cancer and tumor clinic in Texas.

We are here because my husband, who has had a complete physical every year since 1971, has inoperable prostate cancer. I am angry and bitter because no doctor, during 20 years of annual physical examinations that included a digital rectal examination, ever mentioned that there are blood tests which can detect prostate cancer.

We have been told that my husband has had this disease for at least seven to eight years. We also learned that if a man's brother or father has had prostate cancer, his chances of getting cancer are increased 2 1/2 times! In every medical questionnaire my husband has ever filled out, he stated that his father had died of prostatic cancer. (His brother was diagnosed last week with the same disease!)

We are hoping that our experience will educate others so they will not find themselves where we are. We strongly urge all "high risk" men to be examined by a urologist, because many physicians do not recognize prostate disease.

ANGRY AND BITTER

DEAR ANGRY AND BITTER: You have every right to be both angry and bitter, and I thank you for trying to warn others.

For readers who do not know what "high risk" means in this context, it refers to people whose blood relatives have been afflicted with the same disease.

DEAR ABBY: When a couple asks another couple to ride along with them, what is the proper seating? Should the wife automatically sit in front with her husband, or should she sit in the back with the other lady? Or should the couple whose car it is ask the other couple how they prefer to ride?

EDNA C. IN CARMAN, ILL.

DEAR EDNA: It depends on the circumstances — how well the couples know each other, the distance to be traveled and whether either of the couples are newlyweds. (Newlyweds usually prefer to sit together.)

The important factor in the seating arrangement is that everybody be pleased and comfortable. Couples who have a long friendship might prefer "one-on-one" conversation with the spouse of the same sex. My personal rule of thumb: When in doubt, sit with your own mate.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for insisting that a written thank-you note for a gift is still absolutely imperative. I was appalled when a reader suggested that a "warm hug and a verbal thank-you at the next chance meeting at church or a social function should be sufficient."

A child should be taught at a very early age to write a thank-you note. Writing improves finger coordination, penmanship and spelling, and helps to create a bond between the child and the giver.

In today's world of electronic communication — the telephone and fax — it is still necessary to record thoughts, events and instructions in writing. If a "tape" is erased, the message is lost forever. Therefore it is vital that we learn how to communicate in writing. And it all begins when a child is taught to write a thank-you note.

At 86, I am still writing.

Bulls can wrap up title

Battered Lakers are down 3-1 in best of seven championship finals

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Michael Jordan's long wait should end tonight.

When he was a freshman, his North Carolina team won the NCAA title. Two years later, his U.S. Olympic team won a gold medal. Then the wait — six years without a championship — began.

"I was spoiled," he said, but "I was able to be patient" because he saw the Chicago Bulls progressing through those years.

Patience was a quality he needed the past two days.

A 97-82 win Sunday over Los Angeles gave the Bulls a 3-1 lead in the NBA Finals. Since then, the feeling has grown that the battered Lakers have little chance to survive tonight's fifth game of the best-of-7 series.

Jordan is holding his feelings in.

"I'm nervous and every now and then I get chill bumps thinking about the situation," he told reporters Tuesday, "but I'm not going to let you guys see that. I'm going to be really cool about it ... until it actually happens."

"Then I think the inside and the outside are going to be the same."

An NBA title is one of the few things Jordan didn't achieve as he grew into basketball's best player, winning his second most valuable player award this season. The Bulls' franchise also has waited a long time as it closes in on the first title in its 25-year history.

Chicago coach Phil Jackson doesn't sense a "win it for Michael" urge motivating his club.

"I think everybody wants to win it as badly as Michael does," he said. "We know our chances are great. We're just not going to celebrate until it happens."

It seems almost inevitable that it will.

No team has won a Finals after trailing 3-1. The Bulls have been smooth on offense and smothering on defense, outscoring the Lakers 99.8 to 89.3 points per game and outshooting them 52.5 percent to 43.3.

Los Angeles has lost three straight games and been dominated and decimated in two of them. It may have to rely on its weak bench if injured starters James Worthy and Byron Scott can't play tonight.

"The momentum in this sport is so hard to counteract," Jackson said. "As matchups and game plans develop, situations come about where you know how you can stop them and you know how to score."

"All season long when we were expected to win ball games, we come out and we focus and we win it," Jordan said.

But the Lakers, who won five of the last 11 NBA titles, haven't given up.

"We're not going with the mass hysteria," Los Angeles coach Mike Dunleavy said. "We have to come back, dig down and block everything out."

"I'm not willing to concede."

Dunleavy, 37, scrimmaged with his players Tuesday because only nine of them practiced.

Magic Johnson rested and Worthy got treatment on the left ankle sprain he sustained in the Western Conference finals and aggravated Sunday. Scott nursed the right shoulder he bruised when he slipped on a wet spot in the fourth quarter Sunday. He said he was told the injury takes at least a week to heal.

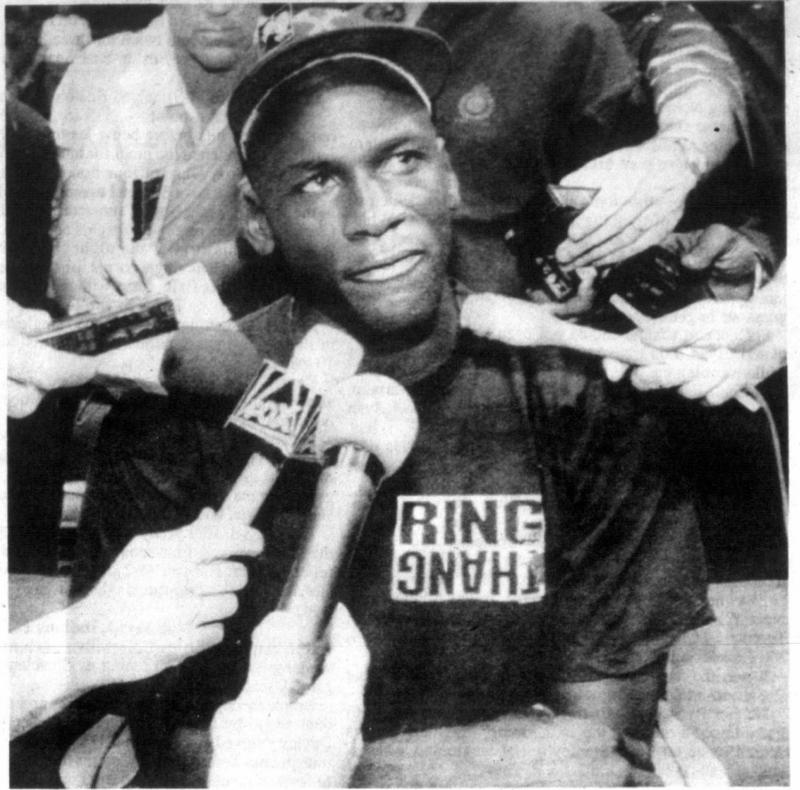

"I'm planning on not having" Worthy and Scott, Dunleavy said.

"I haven't given up," Los Angeles trainer Gary Vitti said. "No decision will be made on either of them until game time."

Both will be subpar if they play, and Scott has had a poor series, hitting just 5 of 18 shots and scoring 18 points while averaging 35 minutes per game.

A.C. Green would start in Worthy's spot, while Terry Teagle, whose shooting touch has gone cold, would fill in for Scott.

"We don't perceive (the reserves) as a problem," Green said. "We have a chance to see if what has been said about our bench is true."

(AP Laserphoto)

Michael Jordan could win his first championship as an NBA player tonight.

Woosnam prepares for pursuit of elusive Grand Slam

U.S. Open Golf

By STEVE WILSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

CHASKA, Minn. (AP) — Ian Woosnam's Masters grin is a grimace of frustration as he pursues the elusive Grand Slam in the prairie heat of the U.S. Open.

He stalks the slender fairways and slippery greens of Hazeltine National with trepidation, not the cocky swagger that characterized his gait at Augusta National two months ago.

He knows he has a chance to make history, but events seem to be conspiring against him, taunting him like a nightmare of putts that linger on the lip of every hole.

This revamped course does not suit his adventurous style. His head is clogged from a cold. His spirit is low after a few weak outings. And the record book shows no one has won the Masters and U.S. Open in the same year since Jack Nicklaus in 1972. No one has ever won all four Grand Slam titles in a single season.

Woosnam's response to all that Tuesday, two days before the start of the 91st U.S. championship, was to go out after a practice round and bash dozens of balls as hard as he could.

"Whoever's going to be driving the ball long and straight is going to do well," said the chunky little Welshman, who worries more about the direction of his drives than their distance. "At the moment, my confidence is not very high, and I think I'm a confidence player."

Most of the pundits are overlooking him in this tournament, though the fans mob him at every hole as if he were a cute rock star instead of a hard-smoking, beer-drinking, snooker-playing Brit.

The hot players are Billy Andrade and Corey Pavin. Greg Norman says he has the fire in his belly to win again. Seve Ballesteros is coming back strong. Defending champion Hale Irwin looks as if he's ready to give it another run. Nick Faldo is always a threat and amateur Phil Mickelson, a smooth-hitting left-hander, is showing the promise of a future champion.

Woosnam figures those are the favorites, too, but he's not quite giving up on himself.

"Obviously it's in the back of my mind to try to go for the Grand Slam, but I'm a little bit disappointed that I'm not playing too well," he said. "I'm a little upset because I've really been looking forward to coming here and playing good. Things could change around tomorrow. I'm an inspirational player. If I start hitting the ball well tomorrow all the way around, it could help change things for me."

Hazeltine National will penalize Woosnam and any other player who has a tendency to stray from the middle of the fairways or muff approach shots. The rough is five inches tall and the fairways are long and narrow, like green carpet runners.

"Augusta favors long hitters. This one demands nothing but accuracy," said Curtis Strange.

Weeping willows, lindens, birches, silver maples, blue spruce, butternut and other lovely, sweet-sounding trees have grown up and given character to a course that was badly, though not unfairly maligned when it last hosted the Open in 1970.

None of the gale-force winds that blew through here 21 years ago have been felt lately. In fact, the air Tuesday was hot, muggy and still.

But the greens remain treacherous and unforgiving. Shaved low and baked hard by the sun after recent rains, putts skidded during practice as if they were rolling on glass instead of grass.

"These are the fastest Open greens we've seen in quite a while," said Strange. "Anybody who does well here is going to have to do everything well. You've got to drive well. You've got to use your irons well. And you have to putt well."

"Then there are the intangibles. You've got to think well. You've got to be patient. And you've got to have plenty of guts. The guy who wins here this week will do those things the best. I've got a couple of them."

Finding excuses for losing second nature to big league baseball fans

Rangers hampered by too many night games

By RON SIRAK
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — So Miami and Denver are going to get major league baseball teams. Well, what they're going to get are baseball teams playing in the major leagues.

What they're going to get are BAD baseball teams playing in the major leagues. Maybe fans should start getting their excuses ready now.

In most major league cities this is second nature.

In Boston, Red Sox rooters blame more than 70 years without winning a World Series on the curse of Ruth — that fateful day in 1919 when the Babe was sold to the New York Yankees.

Yankee fans, who were so used to success after getting Ruth that they forgot how to make excuses, blamed it on CBS in the 1960s and George Steinbrenner in the 1980s. You can always blame it on The Boss, no matter who he — or it — is.

Cubs fans blame their fold every summer on playing too many day games.

Texas Rangers fans blame their inability to win on playing too many night games.

Seattle fans blame never having had a winning season on the fact that everyone goes boating in the summer. Seattle fans also blame going boating every summer on the fact that the Mariners have never had a winning season.

The Mets fans blame it on Buddy Harrelson, who blames it on David Cone, who blames it on Ron Darling, who blames it on Gregg Jefferies, who blames it on the fans. All off the record, of course.

Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme can Blame It on the Bossa Nova.

Michael Caine can Blame It on Rio.

Rocky start and Miami fans can blame it on a Communist Cuba just 90 miles off its shores.

Denver fans can blame it on weird starting times concocted by TV because it is the only major league team in the Mountain time zone and Miami fans can blame it on Tubbs and Crockett being taken off the air.

Denver fans can blame it on the fact that most of its fans will come from out of state and need two tanks of gas to get to the game and Miami fans can blame it on having spring training in Maine.

Mostly, though, fans in Denver in Miami can blame it on the fact that, if you are a real baseball fan, it's better to have a bad team than no team.

Denver fans can blame it on an early winter and Miami fans can blame it on a late summer.

Denver fans can blame it on a

CURRENT NAMES: (a) California Angels; (b) Houston Astros; (c) Milwaukee Brewers; (d) Texas Rangers

With the National League about to add two new baseball teams, the history of first-year expansion clubs in the major leagues is a sobering factor. As it happens, the three worst records were turned in by fledgling NL teams. Worst of all? The 1962 New York Mets won only .25 percent of their games.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Promoter Dan Duva is confident, at least publicly, that Evander Holyfield will defend his undisputed heavyweight title against former champion Mike Tyson this year.

Don King, who promotes Tyson, doesn't see it that way. At least not now.

On Tuesday, Duva, who promotes Holyfield, successfully bid $51,101,000 to hold the fight and said: "We will get this fight done no matter what it takes to do it. Mike Tyson and Evander Holyfield will fight each other this fall. Tyson will knock out Riddock, then he has to fight Holyfield."

Duva sees the fight being held in late October, early November, probably at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas.

Duva topped seven other promoters in the purse bids conducted by the International Boxing Federation, which is charge of Holyfield's mandatory defense in the fall. Don King, who promotes Tyson, was not one of them.

King agrees with Duva that Tyson will knock out Donovan "Razor" Ruddock in their rematch June 28 at the Mirage in Las Vegas, but that's it.

King does not agree with the 75-25 split, which is traditional under purse-bid proceedings. That means Holyfield would get $37.5 million and Tyson $12.5.

Tyson is the main attraction, contends King, and should get more than 25 percent.

Ryan shuts down White Sox

AL roundup

By DICK BRINSTER
AP Sports Writer

Chicago White Sox manager Jeff Torborg — having caught a no-hitter by Sandy Koufax — knows an ace when he sees one. Still, he can't believe the results when he sees no-hit king Nolan Ryan at less than his best.

"He never ceases to amaze me," Torborg said after Ryan shut out the White Sox 2-0 Tuesday night. "I've seen him sharper, and I've seen him throw harder. But look at the linescore."

It would show that Ryan pitched a six-hitter, which to Torborg's way of thinking wasn't too bad for the White Sox.

"Last year, Ryan had one game where we got only one hit and he struck out 16," Torborg said. "And in a 10-inning game, we got three hits and he struck out 15. So I guess we're getting better."

For once, a shutout should not even have been contemplated. Ryan didn't have command of any of his pitches while warming up.

"I don't like going out there with that kind of warmup, but you can't let it affect your approach to the game," Ryan said.

He didn't. He went out and struck out 10 for his 61st career shutout as the Texas Rangers ended an eight-game losing streak.

Ryan struggled in the first inning, giving up a leadoff single to Tim Raines and hitting Frank Thomas. In only one other inning did he allow two runners on base.

"The way things had been going for us, it's important not to put the team in the hole in the first inning," Ryan said.

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Minnesota 5, New York 3; Kansas City 11, Baltimore 0; Cleveland 2, Toronto 1 in 12 innings; Detroit 5, Oakland 1; California 4, Milwaukee 3; and Boston 8, Seattle 5.

It was the first complete game by a Texas pitcher since Ryan's no-hitter over Toronto on May 1.

Neither Ryan (4-4) nor Chicago's Alex Fernandez (2-6) had allowed a run until the sixth inning, when the Rangers scored twice on Mike Stanley's RBI single and a bases-loaded walk to Mario Diaz.

Ryan struck out 10 or more for the 210th game of his career and third time this season. He tied Tom Seaver for eighth on the all-time shutout list.

Ryan's 306th victory moved him past Eddie Plank into 17th place all-time, one behind Mickey Welch. Despite spending 15 days on the disabled list, Ryan almost regained the AL strikeout lead. He has 86, two behind Boston's Roger Clemens.

Red Sox 8, Mariners 5
Ellis Burks homered twice for three RBIs, and Jack Clark hit a two-run shot as Boston beat Seattle to take over first place in the East.

Danny Darwin (3-3) helped Boston pull ahead of Toronto by one percentage point — .535 to .534. He allowed four runs on seven hits before being leaving in the sixth inning. Jeff Reardon pitched the ninth for his 16th save.

The Red Sox, who hit four home runs in a 6-2 victory Monday night, took a 3-0 lead against Scott Bankhead (2-5) in the first on Wade Boggs' run-scoring double followed by Clark's second homer in two nights and sixth of the season.

Burks hit his first of the night in the fifth after Mike Greenwell's infield single to put Boston ahead 6-1. Burks' second homer, his sixth, came with two out in the ninth.

Twins 5, Yankees 3
Minnesota, getting a bases-loaded single from Kent Hrbek in the eighth inning, rallied to extend its winning streak to 10 games.

Kevin Tapani (4-6) won his second straight start despite allowing home runs to Mel Hall and Roberto Kelly. Rick Aguilera pitched a perfect ninth for his 17th save, tying him with Oakland's Dennis Eckersley for the major league lead.

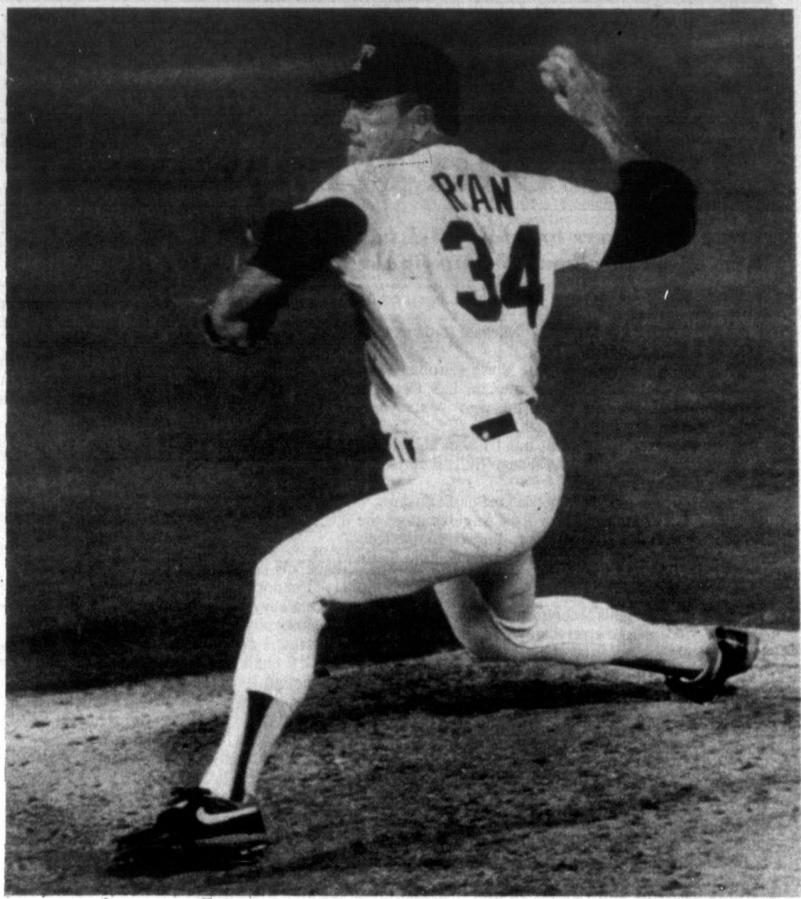

Minnesota's streak is its best since 1985 and two short of the 1980 club record. The loss was only the fifth in 17 games for the visiting Yankees, who had taken a 2-1 lead on Hall's two-run homer in the seventh.

Trailing 3-1 after Kelly's homer in the top of the eighth, the Twins scored four runs off Scott Sanderson and four relievers. Jon Habyan (4-2), the third New York pitcher, allowed Hrbek's two-run single that gave Minnesota a 4-3 lead.

Blue Jays 2, Indians 1
Ken Dayley hit Alex Cole with a pitch to force home the winning run in the 12th inning as Cleveland ended its five-game losing streak.

Brook Jacoby led off with a single and took second on a bunt single by Chris James before Turner Ward sacrificed. Dayley relieved Jim Acker (1-4) and walked Beau Allred on four pitches before hitting Cole in the back with a 2-2 pitch to force in pinch-runner Carlos Baerga.

Shawn Hillegas (2-0) pitched two hitless innings in relief of Greg Swindell, striking out three. Swindell went 10

Nolan Ryan threw his 61st career shutout Tuesday night as the Rangers beat the White Sox, 2-0.

Charlton's return from disabled list gives Reds a boost

NL roundup

By The Associated Press

Any chance the Cincinnati Reds have of repeating as world champions depends a lot on Norm Charlton's health.

The Reds need pitching and struggled around .500 while Charlton was on the disabled list. He returned Tuesday night and gave up one run on five hits in six innings as the Reds beat Montreal 6-1 at Olympic Stadium.

Charlton (3-5), disabled May 26 with tendinitis in his left shoulder, struck out four and walked none in winning for the first time since May 14. Ted Power and Kip Gross finished for the Reds.

"I guess they did know what was best for me," said Charlton. "I didn't want to go on the DL, but I realize now the club had my best interests and theirs in mind."

The third-place Reds have won three straight and trail Los Angeles by four games in the NL West. Having a healthy Charlton gives them some hope.

Last season, he was 12-9 and struck out 117 in 154 1-3 innings while working as a starter and a reliever.

"I figured at first all I'd need to do was miss one start and I could come back," Charlton said. "But it turned out to be good. It gave me a chance to work things out on the sideline and to do some running, and I came back stronger."

Elsewhere in the NL it was New York 2, Atlanta 1; San Francisco 8, Chicago 6 in 10 innings; Houston 1, Philadelphia 0 in 11 innings; and St. Louis 10, San Diego 4. Los Angeles at Pittsburgh was postponed by rain.

Chris Sabo paced the Reds' attack with two RBIs and pair of doubles.

Cincinnati scored two runs in the fourth inning off Chris Nabholz (2-4) to take a 2-1 lead and added four runs in the fifth.

"Charlton had better pop on the ball than he did before he was out," Reds manager Lou Piniella said. "He pitched as well as anybody could be expected to after coming back."

Mets 2, Braves 1
Frank Viola gave up one run on four hits in 8 1-3 innings and Kevin McReynolds hit a two-run homer as New York beat Atlanta at Shea Stadium.

Viola was two outs away from his fourth complete game of the season when play was delayed 57 minutes by rain. John Franco relieved when the game resumed and got the last two outs on four pitches for his 13th save.

Charlie Leibrandt fell to 5-5.

Cardinals 10, Padres 4
Milt Thompson hit a two-run homer and Gerald Perry added a solo shot in the sixth inning off rookie Jose Melendez to power visiting St. Louis past San Diego. Fred McGriff got the Padres close for awhile when he hit a three-run homer in the bottom of the sixth. McGriff leads the NL with 14 homers.

St. Louis starter Ken Hill (6-3) got the victory despite allowing 10 hits in six innings.

Giants 8, Cubs 6
Jose Uribe scored the tiebreaking run on a passed ball in the 10th inning and pinch-hitter Mike Kingery singled in another to lift San Francisco over Chicago at Wrigley Field. The Giants have won seven of 10.

Dave Smith dropped to 0-3, while Kelly Downs (3-4) got the victory with relief help from Dave Righetti.

Astros 1, Phillies 0
Pinch-hitter Ken Oberkfell drew a bases-loaded walk from Roger McDowell (3-2) with one out in 11th inning to lift Houston over Philadelphia at the Astrodome. Al Osuna (2-2) pitched one inning for the victory.

Canadian's Hext takes third in Texas High School rodeo finals

By J. ALAN BRZYS

Sports Writer

ABILENE — Canadian's Shan Til Hext captured third place in pole bending Tuesday night in the Texas High School Rodeo Association finals at the Taylor County Expo Center.

Hext turned in a 21.101-second ride in the Tuesday night go-round.

The 1990-91 Tri-State High School Rodeo Association queen was Tri-State champion in barrel racing this year and in 1989-90, and considers the event her strongest.

She ranked third this year in pole bending in Tri-State competition.

Amy Hill of Channing finished ninth in pole bending with a 31.106-second score and Rajana Thompson of Amarillo placed 10th with a 34.119-second ride.

Hill was Tri-State champion this year in pole bending.

In team roping Tuesday, the Snyder-duo of Mickey Gomez and Jerry Don Thompson headed and heeled their way to a first-place 6.110-second score.

Gomez partnered with Tye Maben of Spur to win the Tri-State championship in team roping this year.

Cutting competition begins today at the Abilene rodeo.

NCAA director may be investigated

SAN DIEGO (AP) — NCAA executive director Dick Schultz could find out first-hand how his organization's investigators work.

Virginia is investigating whether its athletic fund-raising arm illegally made loans to student-athletes from 1982-90. Schultz was athletic director there from 1981-87.

Schultz met the press Tuesday prior to making a speech at the National Association of Collegiate Directors of Athletics' annual convention. He said he didn't want to comment on the Virginia situation, but then spent about five minutes doing exactly that.

"I guess the only thing I want clearly understood is that I had absolutely no knowledge of any major NCAA rules violations while I was there," Schultz said.

"Anything I say has the ability to be misinterpreted by either side. Virginia might think I'm taking a shot at them and somebody else might say I'm trying to whitewash the situation," Schultz said. "I think the best thing to do is wait for them to complete their investigation and see where that goes."

Virginia president John T. Casteen III formed a four-member panel last month to investigate the loans by the Virginia Student Aid Foundation.

If the investigation reaches the NCAA, Schultz said he would not be involved in conducting it because investigators report to the Infractions Committee, not him. He said he will be interviewed "if they want me to be."

Virginia AD Jim Copeland said last month that most of the 36 loans in question went to members of the football, men's basketball, wrestling and golf teams. He said some involved graduate assistant coaches and four or five students who did not play sports.

The interest-free loans ranged from $40 to $1,700 and averaged about $350, Copeland said. Most have been paid off, he said.

NCAA rules say any employee or representative of a school's athletic interests may not provide a student-athlete with a loan.

Glo-Valve downs Celanese

Optimist roundup

The no-hit pitching of Mike Weatherly and the defensive play of Bryan McCormick helped Glo-Valve Service edge past Celanese, 4-2, Tuesday in a National Major Bambino battle at Optimist Park.

Weatherly struck out 14 to win his second victory of the year. Only one ball was hit in fair territory. McCormick made two fine defensive plays to preserve the no-hitter. Brian Brown and Darby Schale each gave up two runs on three hits for Celanese. Brown struck out six while Schale whiffed four.

Celanese struck for their runs in the first inning on two walks and a throwing error. With two out in the bottom of the inning, Weatherly singled, advanced to third on a throwing error and scored on a double by Efen Jimenez. Jimenez stole third and came home on a wild pitch.

Matt Evans led off the Glo-Valve fourth with a single, went to second and third on wild pitches and scored on a single by Ryan Schumacher. Aaron Davis walked, went to second on a fielder's choice, then to third on Schumacher's hit and scored the game's final run on an infield out by Weatherly.

Glo-Valve improved its season record to 5-3 to remain one-half game behind Cabot in the National League. Celanese dropped to 4-4.

Chase Oil Field Service came back to defeat Thomas Automotive, 13-12, in Bambino (9-10) League action Monday night.

Winning pitcher was Josh Rodriguez, who gave up one hit while striking out five and walking three.

Spurs' Brown meets with South Carolina officials

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — San Antonio Spurs coach Larry Brown has met with South Carolina officials about their head coaching job, a newspaper reported today.

Brown met with Gamecocks officials Tuesday night in Dallas, The State newspaper of Columbia reported. It quoted unnamed "sources."

There were no immediate details available about the discussion. Brown had said earlier he would meet with South Carolina officials within 48 hours.

"They obviously want to talk to me, and I want to get this over with," Brown said Tuesday at an impromptu news conference outside his home in San Antonio, Texas. "I will go and meet with them in the next day or two."

The search committee is scheduled to meet Friday.

"I've always thought that some day I'd be back in college," Brown said. "I didn't anticipate it happening very soon."

I look at myself as someone who likes to teach, and you know that's something that's always made me think about college."

Famous stray adapts to new home

SUMTER, S.C. (AP) — Homely, even for a mutt, and still lacking in the social graces, BoJo the desert dog is home.

The blond puppy with the curly tail and floppy ears was found by U.S. troops in December, wandering the Saudi desert: a nomad, motherless and hungry.

Six months and more than $1,400 later, he's ensconced in Master Sgt. William "Butch" Fields' off-base government duplex.

"He was just wandering. He was just out in the road walking," Fields said.

BoJo had left the litter. His mother was missing and three of his siblings were dead. Two other survivors from the litter were taken to an animal shelter.

But there was something about BoJo that made him a keeper.

The two lieutenants who found him couldn't give him the attention he needed, so they called military firefighters to see if they needed a mascot.

"I started to tell them no ... but I said what the heck. Once I put him in my pocket that was it," said Fields, who is chief of the Shaw Air Force Base firefighting unit and had been sent to the Persian Gulf.

Man and mutt struck up a friendship that weathered war, hardship and sleepless nights. The other soldiers had named the puppy Joe Bo, but Fields felt the name was not Southern enough and changed it to BoJo.

"Just like any other baby he cried all night and messed the floor," Fields said.

The mixed-breed pup with German shepherd features was fed puppy food when Fields could get it. When he couldn't, the diet consisted of milk, crackers, hamburgers.

BoJo was also offered soldiers' field rations. But, proving the conventional wisdom the rations weren't fit for a dog, BoJo turned up his nose.

Their days and meals shared, Fields knew that when the time came to come home, BoJo was coming too.

The Air Force wouldn't allow BoJo on a military flight. Apparently he lacked the right kind of dog tags.

A commercial flight was the only alternative. Fields and his wife, Patty, "borrowed and begged" the $1,400 it cost to fly him home via SwissAir.

"People say you're crazy, but to me it wasn't. You get attached to something," Fields added. "I'd already raised him."

"He's always been tender-hearted," said Mrs. Fields.

Since arriving home, BoJo's rough and tumble ways from the war are being tamed. There are fewer table scraps, and he sleeps in bed with the Fields.

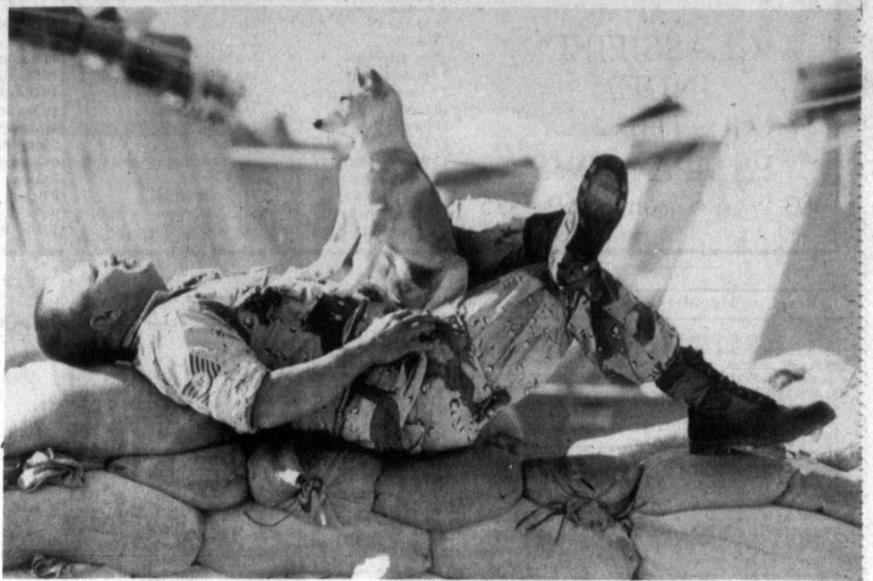

He's also had to adjust to grass and running water, things he never experienced in the desert.

The mailman, the enemy of many dogs, brings BoJo rawhide treats.

He's been presented the bone to the city in Orlando, Fla., been the grand marshal of a parade at Universal Studios and presided over an animal shelter groundbreaking.

In addition, he's been inducted in the Air Force. "Airman basic," Fields said with a laugh.

But at heart BoJo is still a mutt. He plays with his souvenir sock from the desert and sneaks naps on the couch.

(AP Laserphoto)

BoJo, the dog of the Arabian Peninsula, first made news in this Feb. 15 photo when he was adopted by U.S. troops as their mascot. Six months later he is bunking with his adopted family of Master Sgt. William Fields of Fayetteville, S.C.

Huge geomagnetic storm from massive solar flare to hit Earth today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration says a new solar flare will hit the Earth today with a massive geomagnetic storm — but it's not something the average person is likely to notice.

Solar forecasters at the agency's space environment services center in Boulder, Colo., said Tuesday that the latest flare erupted about 11 p.m. EDT Monday and was rated at X-12 plus, the highest intensity that can be recorded by satellite instruments.

Willow Cliffswallow, an Air Force major and a solar forecaster at the center, said the geomagnetic effects of the storm should smash into the Earth's magnetic belt starting about 10 a.m. EDT today.

Utility and pipeline companies have been alerted about the approaching storm, she said.

Large solar flares can produce magnetic waves that move and compress the Earth's geomagnetic belt. This can send power surges down electric transmission lines and pipelines, and cause interference that blocks some forms of radio communication.

The geomagnetic storms also push southward the areas where the aurora borealis, or Northern lights, can be seen.

Cliffswallow said the most recent storm may cause the aurora to be visible today as far south as a line from Norfolk, Va. to Tulsa, Okla. to just south of San Francisco.
