Tough cowboy

Ronnie "Hoot" Tucker, who turned 6 Sunday, turns out for the practice session at the Top O' Texas Rodeo Arena Sunday as he prepares for the Top O' Texas Kid Pony Show opening at 7 p.m. today. Hoot has one more obstacle to overcome than the other young contestants — cerebral palsy. He has a special harness built by his grandfather to enable him to stay on his horse. He will have to be led around the barrels, but he will compete nevertheless. Other Kid Pony Show performances will be at 7 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, with the Top O' Texas Rodeo performances at 8 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Slovenia wins partial control of borders; tanks break up Croatian, Serb firefight

By SLOBODAN LEKIC
Associated Press Writer

BRIONI, Yugoslavia (AP) — Slovenian and federal leaders agreed today on a formula that would give the republic limited control of its borders and time to work out secession peacefully.

As an indication of good will, Slovenia released its last captured federal army troops — fewer than 100 officers — the army command announced today in Belgrade.

In Croatia, which declared independence along with Slovenia on June 25, federal army tanks broke up a firefight Sunday between Croatian and Serbian fighters. More than a dozen combatants were reported killed.

It was the first time federal troops opened fire in Croatia to break up fighting between Croats and Serbs who have clashed almost daily since May. The village of Tenja, where the fighting took place, was reported quiet today.

An agreement in principle was reached with Slovenian and Croatian leaders by Yugoslavia's eight-member collective presidency, in a meeting on the island of Brioni off Yugoslavia's Adriatic coast.

"Our road to full independence will be long but now it is clear that after three months of negotiations our sovereignty will be full," Slovenian President Milan Kucan declared.

As did an earlier European Community-brokered cease-fire, the agreement suspends the implementation of the Slovenian and Croatian independence declarations, without suspending the actual declarations.

It also sets a three-month cooling-off period and an Aug. 1 deadline for the start of negotiations on a new federal structure for Yugoslavia's six republics and two autonomous provinces.

Federal President Stipe Mesic, a Croat, said after the accord was reached that "peace begins today."

The agreement cements a four-day truce that has largely held in Slovenia since its lightly armed forces repulsed army tanks and warplanes seeking to reimpose Yugoslav sovereignty over the republic's borders with Italy, Austria and Hungary.

The violence in Slovenia left 62 people dead, the Red Cross said.

Under the accord, Slovenian police will control the republic's 27 border posts — a symbol for Slovenes of their long-sought sovereignty — but turn over revenue from customs duties to the federal government.

European Community mediators, who have interceded three times since the independence declarations on crisis missions, helped broker the accord.

The EC representative to the talks, Dutch Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek, called the agreement complex and cautioned against over-optimism: "It remains to be seen whether we have had any success."

The agreement also called on both sides to release all prisoners of war. Today, the army general staff announced that the last remaining army prisoners, about 100 officers captured by Slovene defense forces, had been released overnight.

Slovenia had held more than 2,400 federal army prisoners captured during fighting with Yugoslav forces since the republic's independence declaration. All but 91 officers had been freed before Sunday.

The agreement also calls for federal army units to return to their barracks, the deactivation of the Slovene territorial defense and a return to quarters by midnight Monday (5 p.m. CDT).

The state news agency Tanjug said the joint declaration was accepted "in principle." It said the Slovenian parliament, the federal government and the federal presidency must still approve it.

There was no word on whether the army would abide by the accord. The army, which is dominated by officers from the hard-line republic of Serbia, did not heed civilian authority when it intervened in Slovenia. Leaders in Croatia and Slovenia said they believe the army is still not under the control of the government.

Thirty-five to 50 EC observers are to arrive Tuesday to begin to monitor compliance with the cease-fire and terms of the accord, Slovenian Foreign Minister Dimitrij Rupel said.

In Croatia, the army stepped in Sunday after it was fired on while trying to separate battling Croatian militiamen and armed Serbs in the village of Tenja, Tanjug said.

A cease-fire took effect after 10 hours of fighting, the report said.

The village is in Slavonia, a swath of Croatia primarily inhabited by Serbs, and is home to 8,000 Serbs.

Belgrade radio reported 10 Croatian and two Serbian fighters were killed in the clash, and Croatian militiamen told an Associated Press reporter in Tenja that at least four of their own were killed and 15 wounded. The army said one soldier was killed.

The civilian Serbs in Tenja said today that two of their fighters were killed and 18 hurt. They also claimed 30 Croats had been killed after being trapped in a house in the Serbian area.

Serbia's hard-line nationalist president, Slobodan Milosevic, has threatened to annex parts of Croatia where Serbs are in the majority. On Saturday, he told his people to prepare for war.

Milosevic's election in 1987 gave a boost to nationalism in Yugoslavia's largest republic, and Croatia and Slovenia have been seeking greater autonomy since.

The violence in Croatia has been exacerbated by the memory of Croatia's Nazi regime, which massacred tens of thousands of Serbs during World War II. Serbs make up 11 percent of Croatia's 5 million people, and many fear renewed persecution.

Gorbachev sending arms team to Washington to discuss treaty

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev is sending his foreign minister and top general to Washington this week in a redoubled effort to conclude a strategic arms treaty, the White House said today.

Bush called it "a good sign" and said there was ample time to arrange a superpower summit in Moscow at the end of July.

"I have said before that what we want to do is have a summit meeting with the Soviets, and I've also said that I want this START agreement completed," Bush told reporters.

"Whether these last difficulties can be ironed out, we just don't know. But this should be seen as a good sign," Bush told reporters as he met with business leaders at the White House on his education plan.

"It's a good thing that they're coming," said Bush. "There's plenty of time to get this done so that we can have this meeting at the end of July."

Bush noted that he will also have a chance to talk with Gorbachev himself next week in London after the economic summit.

Gorbachev relayed word on Sunday through his ambassador that he was sending the high-powered Soviet delegation to try to hammer out the START agreement. Bush sent the Soviet president an urgent message on Saturday pressing him to act to bring the strategic arms reduction talks to a successful conclusion.

"President Gorbachev agreed with the president's view for the need to redoubled efforts at completing a START agreement and accepted the president's invitation to send a delegation to Washington to work on the negotiations," White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said.

Fitzwater said the Soviet ambassador to Washington, Victor Komplektov, conveyed the Gorbachev response to Brent Scowcroft, the White House national security adviser, on Sunday.

"The Soviet delegation, headed by Foreign Minister (Alexander) Bessmertnykh, will arrive on Wednesday evening," Fitzwater said. The delegation will also include Mikhail Moiseyev, the chief of the Soviet general staff, and Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Alexei Obukhov.

They will meet with Secretary of State James A. Baker III and other American counterparts on Thursday afternoon and Friday.

"A lot depends on this meeting," Bush said. "The president welcomes this decision by President Gorbachev and hopes it can lead to further progress in the START negotiations," Fitzwater said.

In Moscow, Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Vitaly Churkin said today, "We expect this meeting will help energize work on final stage of START talks."

Bush told reporters this morning as he returned to the White House from Camp David that he had heard back from Gorbachev. He did not elaborate.

Bush said Saturday that he sent the message to prod Gorbachev to "energize his bureaucracy" and conclude the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty by the end of July. "I want to get their team moving as fast as ours is," the president said then.

The U.S. ambassador to Moscow, Jack F. Matlock Jr., delivered Bush's message orally to Gorbachev on Saturday.

A senior Soviet official in Moscow said Sunday that the communication from Bush was useful and positive, and could help break the logjam over START.

Bush is still hoping to go to Moscow for a summit in late July, but he is insisting on a finished strategic arms treaty first. The two superpowers have been working for nine years on a pact to reduce their long-range nuclear arsenals by 30 percent.

Fitzwater said there was no set date beyond which it would be too late to arrange a Moscow summit in late July.

'The president welcomes this decision by President Gorbachev and hopes it can lead to further progress in the START negotiations.'

"From a practical standpoint, we could probably go through the summit in London after the Gorbachev-Bush meeting and still make the summit" in Moscow, he said. Bush and Gorbachev will meet over lunch in London on July 17 after the three-day economic summit of the world's seven major industrialized nations.

Bush plans to head from London to Greece and Turkey for five days, returning to Washington on July 22.

"If we get back from the summit on the 22nd, we could probably turn it around within a week and go back," said the spokesman.

"We're still shooting for the end of July. That's what the president is pushing for in his communications," said Fitzwater.

Bush's message was prompted by disappointment over the lack of progress in nearly a week of talks in Geneva between the chief U.S. arms negotiator, Undersecretary of State Reginald Bartholomew, and Obukhov.

The two sides are still not agreed on several issues, including procedures for inspecting missile factories, how much test flight data can be concealed, how to distinguish new strategic missiles from older ones, and reducing the number of warheads on missiles not being dismantled.

Bush said last month the treaty was "96 percent ... or close to it concluded."

Powerful storms pound states in East, Midwest and South; at least 8 killed

By The Associated Press

Violent storms that blew a tent down on 400 people at a religious revival in Philadelphia and contributed to eight deaths in Maryland, Iowa and Michigan eased up today after lashing several states with high winds, rain and hail.

The thunderstorms that marched across much of the East, Midwest and South on Sunday smashed mobile homes, ripped the roofs off houses, uprooted trees and knocked out power to tens of thousands of homes and businesses.

Storms continued in Ohio today. Two sightings of funnel clouds were reported in western Miami County, but there were no reports that any tornadoes touched down.

In Maryland on Sunday, a couple was killed by lightning, three children died in a car crash and a man died when he fell off his boat. Women were crushed by falling trees in Iowa and Michigan.

Only minor injuries were reported after the tent went down on 400 people attending the "Anticipating a Miracle" religious revival in Philadelphia.

"One of my guys went flying 20 feet in the air," trying to hold the tent down, said the Rev. Tony McCreary. The 24-foot-tall tent lifted off the ground and collapsed, McCreary said.

Winds gusting as high as 85 mph blew down trees, power lines and telephone lines throughout much of Pennsylvania, the National Weather Service said. Three-quarter-inch hail fell outside Philadelphia, and hail the size of nickels was reported in the south-central part of the state.

About 15 trailer homes at the Indian River Inlet in the Delaware Seashore State Park were destroyed by an apparent tornado when winds of up to 105 mph tore through the area, state park police said.

In Maryland, Robert and Penny Chatterton were struck and killed by lightning as they huddled under a tarp on the shore of the Middle River, Baltimore County police said. A third person suffered minor burns.

In Carroll County, police said three children, ranging in age from 18 months to 5 years, were killed in an auto accident on rain-slick Route 97. The children's parents and another passenger were hospitalized.

In Dorchester County, Grover Corchoran Jr. of Preston was killed when he lost his footing in choppy water and fell overboard while working on his boat. The motor was running and the boat ran over him, Maryland Natural Resources Police said.

A woman camping with her family near Clear Lake, Iowa, was killed when a tree crashed on the van she was in. Police said Joyce Elaine Dreesman, 32, of Dike, Iowa, had sought shelter from rain and winds topping 60 mph.

Another woman was killed as she ran to her Green Oak Township, Mich., home outside Detroit. Lightning struck a tree, causing a limb to crash down on Nancy Thom, 48.

Elschwere in Michigan, winds gusting to 70 mph tore the roofs from 20 houses in Highland, about 40 miles northwest of Detroit. High winds also damaged about 100 homes in Ionia County, east of Grand Rapids, said Michigan State Police Lt. James Burdick.

Heavy rain in southeast Ohio caused flooding that lifted a mobile home off its foundation and sent it floating downstream, authorities said. Several other homes in the area were damaged, but no injuries were reported.

Hail measuring 3 1/2 inches across fell at Lyon, Iowa, and 1 1/2-inch hail and winds gusting up to 65 mph were reported in Spencer.

In Wisconsin, authorities reported winds gusting to more than 80 mph and a tornado. A hangar with 20 planes inside collapsed at Dane County Regional Airport in Madison, said Kent Kruger, supervisor of the county's emergency communications system.

The National Weather Service said a tornado touched down in Jefferson County, east of Madison, but there was no immediate report of damage. About 25,000 customers in southeastern Wisconsin lost electrical service, utility officials said.

NAACP to wait on Thomas endorsement

By MICHAEL GRACZYK
 Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The leaders of the NAACP said today they would withhold an endorsement or opposition to the nomination of black conservative Judge Clarence Thomas to the U.S. Supreme Court until they meet personally with the nominee and after the civil rights group conducts a review of Thomas' record in public office.

Benjamin Hooks, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and William Gibson, chairman of its board of directors, made their announcement at the group's annual convention in Houston.

The two civil rights leaders said they wanted to meet with Thomas "as quickly as possible," but that no date has been set. They said they had talked to "emissaries" of Thomas, but had not spoken directly to the nominee.

President Bush nominated Thomas, 43, last week to succeed Thurgood Marshall on the Supreme Court. Thomas easily won Senate confirmation in 1989 to the U.S.

Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia.

The NAACP officials also said they hoped to have an exhaustive review of Thomas' record in public office complete by Aug. 15.

"We're not going to be stampeded into mass hysteria just because someone says we're waffling," Hooks said. "What we're doing is what we've always done. We're not waffling."

Both the National Organization for Women and the League of United Latin American Citizens have come out against Thomas.

Hooks and Gibson said their decision came after a meeting of 30 to 35 members of the NAACP board, which appeared to be split on what position to take on Thomas' appointment. Gibson said there was no animosity and that the meeting atmosphere was not hostile.

"There was discussion," he said, adding however, that there was no kind of intimidation. "There were no arguments. It was very enlightening to me to see 30 or 35 board members take this stance."

In a joint statement from Gibson and Hooks, they said they recognized the appointment and the far-reaching implications in shaping the future of the court.

"At the outset, we knew there was much in Judge Clarence Thomas' history, especially during his tenure as chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission to give us pause," they said.

"His record at the commission was not a good one in terms of his sensitivity towards affirmative action and racial and age discrimination. Without a shadow of a doubt, our assessment of Mr. Thomas and his philosophy was not favorable. The fact is, we are so unfavorably impressed with his known record that we are forced to look further."

The endorsement has become one of the major issues before the NAACP, which has gathered here for its 84th annual national convention.

Hooks had said that while the NAACP had wanted a black appointee to succeed Marshall, the only black who has ever served on the high court, the group feared Thomas might not share enough of Marshall's philosophical views to benefit the nation's black population.

Sheriff's Office issues 1-900 phone warning

Gray County Sheriff's Office is cautioning Pampa residents to know how much calls to 1-900 telephone numbers are going to be before placing the calls.

And Chief Deputy Terry L. Cox said Pampa residents can also have a 1-900 block placed on their telephone line to avoid anyone calling the 900 numbers from their line.

Two recent incidents, reported to the sheriff's office, included a case in which an elderly woman reported calls totaling $2,500 on her bill that were to 1-900 numbers, Chief Deputy Terry Cox said. A teenager had apparently used the telephone to place the calls. Another resident reported calls totaling about $3,000 when another person had used the telephone line.

"Even if you do not know the calls are being made, you will be responsible for the bill," Cox said.

Pampa and Amarillo are the only two cities in the Texas Panhandle that have the 1-900 service available, Cox said, with single calls ranging up to $100 each.

He said he was told by a Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. representative that the service to have a 1-900 block has been available in Pampa since June. The block is free of charge and can be placed by calling 1-951-2141.

Lefors City Council to form volunteer committees

LEFORS — Lefors City Council is scheduled to finalize volunteer committees and discuss the landfill closure at a regular meeting set to begin at 7 p.m. today.

The council has asked for volunteers for committees that will work to promote the city and to attract people and businesses. That list of names is scheduled to be finalized tonight.

Regarding the landfill, the City Council will consider adopting an ordinance to prohibit burning trash in the city limits. The city will likely contract with the city of Pampa landfill after the Lefors' landfill is closed. The Pampa landfill does not allow burned trash to be placed in its landfill. Other procedures and items regarding the landfill closure will also be discussed.

In other business, a drug testing resolution is on the agenda for consideration. Also listed is the mowing of private owner's lots, the Aim High Program, reports from the mayor and the city marshal, and the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

The meeting, to be held at the Lefors Civic Center, is open to the public.

Anthony's promotion to benefit Salvation Army

Anthony's stores in 11 states, including the Pampa store, announce the kick-off of the new "We Buy the Shirt Off Your Back" promotion to collect clothing for charity.

The campaign began Sunday at the stores in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Montana, Kansas, Wyoming, Louisiana, Arkansas, Colorado, Arizona and Missouri.

The Pampa store will be donating its clothing to the Salvation Army, according to a news release from the corporate headquarters in Oklahoma City, Okla.

In exchange for the "shirt off your back," for one week (July 7-14), Anthony's stores chainwide will give each customer a $5 coupon to use toward the purchase of a new short- or long-sleeved dress shirt.

Stores will donate shirts taken in the trade to an area charity of their choice.

"Anthony's is very pleased to conduct this campaign," said John J. "Jack" Wiesner, Anthony's chairman and chief executive officer.

"We appreciate the business our customers bring and want to do something special in their respective Anthony's communities by helping a local charity through each of our 182 stores."

The 59 Texas stores will play an important role in the charity promotion, Wiesner said, because they are tied for the largest number of store locations with Oklahoma.

Maine and Connecticut end budget shutdown

By ARLENE LEVINSON
Associated Press Writer

Maine's governor signed a budget today, ending a weeklong government shutdown and sending 10,000 people back to work. Connecticut remained without a budget, but the governor ordered state employees back to work anyway.

Budget impasses also continued in Pennsylvania, North Carolina, California and Illinois, one week into a new fiscal year.

In Maine, all 13,000 state employees were expected to work today after Gov. John McKernan signed a $3.2 billion budget to end the shutdown that began July 1. All but about 3,000 workers deemed essential were off last week.

Under the deal the Republican governor cut with Democratic lawmakers, the new budget will be canceled Wednesday if the Legislature fails to approve cuts in workers' compensation.

"I think that the process is starting to work like it's supposed to work," McKernan said.

McKernan and his GOP allies wanted business insurance costs curbed as a condition for accepting nearly $300 million in income, sales and gasoline tax increases.

The governor wants Maine's insurance system covering on-the-job injuries scaled back by a third from an estimated $500 million. Democrats agree employers' costs need to be cut, but not by rolling back benefits for injured workers.

In Connecticut, Gov. Lowell P. Weicker Jr. last week ordered a partial shutdown - idling 20,000 of the state's 48,000 workers and closing most state parks over the July Fourth weekend - after lawmakers refused to bow to his demand for an income tax. Connecticut is one of 10 states without an income tax.

The state, with a budget last year of $7.5 billion, faces a projected deficit of $942 million for the last fiscal year and $1.8 billion for the current one.

The governor could have continued the shutdown until Tuesday, when a stopgap spending measure passed by the Legislature would have become law against his wishes and without his signature. But he said keeping the employees out another day was pointless.

"I think sound management practices would indicate that we get everybody back to work on Monday," Weicker said. "I don't see why the state should have to pay anything further in terms of the delay around here."

Weicker said a fiscal emergency remains in effect and agencies must keep spending to the legal and practical minimum.

In Harrisburg, Pa., negotiators resumed talks on a state budget Sunday after an Independence Day break. They said the negotiations could last another week.

Pennsylvania is struggling with a $467 million deficit in the old year. The budget impasse cost 10,000 employees their paychecks last week and left schools and social service agencies without money.

Nearly 10,000 more of Pennsylvania's 117,000 state employees will miss a payday Friday if a budget is not passed. The state is holding the paychecks; officials said they will be released when a budget is passed.

At issue are spending for education, mass transit, the lottery and children and youth programs and selling state liquor stores to private owners.

In Illinois, budget talks stalled on Saturday. Gov. Jim Edgar threatened to shut down some state services if the problem isn't solved but set no deadline.

California lawmakers are wrangling over their $55 billion budget. Gov. Pete Wilson gave the Legislature 12 more days to resolve the final $2.5 billion portion of the complex deal. Negotiations were planned for today.

In North Carolina, lawmakers adjourned budget negotiations for the weekend. Negotiators planned to focus on education spending today.

NAACP Executive Director Dr. Benjamin Hooks discusses the many issues impacting on African-Americans with reporters Sunday in Houston.

NAACP director calls for continued civil rights work

By SUSAN FAHLGREN
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - The executive director of the NAACP is calling for a renewed vigor in the battle for civil rights, saying the struggle is not over.

Benjamin Hooks opened the 84th annual NAACP national convention Sunday, saying American blacks have made strides in the organization's history, but there is still work to be done.

"I say to you, the new generation, that your parents and their parents have demonstrated that we have got something in us that police dogs can't bite out; police batons can't beat out; cattle prods can't shock out; bullets can't shoot out; water cannons can't drown out; mail bombs can't blow out; lies can't shut out; evil can't put out," he told some 12,000 delegates.

"We have faith in our future, faith in our children and faith in our God."

Hooks said it is important to remember the progress blacks have made in employment, public accommodations, education, housing and voting rights in only the last few decades. But he said blacks must ensure the advancements continue by backing civil rights issues.

"If we tell our children that nothing has changed, then we cannot prepare them for the struggle, for who wants to struggle if the struggle is in vain?" he said. "... We must say to a new generation: do not succumb to the prophets of gloom and doom and negativism."

Hooks challenged NAACP members to call for the adoption of the Civil Rights Act of 1991 and renew their efforts for educational opportunities, wage equality, affordable housing, better health care, anti-drug and anti-crime programs.

"As our forbearers have said: 'Nobody can save us from us but us,'" Hooks said.

"We cannot allow hatred, violence, drunkenness, dope dealing or gang warfare to do to us what slavery, segregation and discrimination failed to do: make us lose hope in ourselves and in our destiny as a people," Hooks said.

In addition, he said the NAACP hopes to ensure prosecution of police brutality cases by initiating a series of public hearings on the subject in five cities: Boston, Houston, Los Angeles, Miami and St. Louis.

"These cities are not selected because they are better or worse than other cities, but because they represent a cross-section of America," Hooks said. The hearings will be conducted by a team of NAACP officers.

"What we saw in the beating of Rodney King (by Los Angeles police officers) could have been replicated in any village, town or city in America if a television camera could be at the right place at the right time," Hooks said. "And just a few days ago, in the great Lone Star State of Texas, we saw again a prisoner handcuffed, being beaten with two hands holding a police baton."

Hooks referred to the beating last week of a black auto theft suspect by a black police officer. A videotape of the July 3 beating showed the suspect was hit at least 28 times with a baton. The officer has been suspended with pay.

Hooks said the recent retirement of U.S. Supreme Court Justice Thurgood Marshall brought a new challenge to the organization. The NAACP is expected to review the background of Bush's nominee to succeed Marshall, Judge Clarence Thomas, U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals judge for the District of Columbia.

While the organization has not dismissed an endorsement for Thomas, Hooks said he was unsure whether Thomas shared enough of Marshall's views to aid the nation's black population. Marshall is the only black ever to have served on the high court.

Japan's Finance Ministry punishes brokerages

By ELAINE KURTENBACH
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) - Finance Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto today ordered Japan's four leading brokerage houses to restrict business for four days as a penalty for shady dealings that have rocked the financial industry.

The ministry also directed brokerages to stop compensating wealthy customers for millions of dollars in investment losses. That practice - and financial dealings with gangsters - touched off the scandal, which involves Nomura Securities Co., the world's largest brokerage.

At the ministry's behest, Nomura said more than 30 Nomura officials, including the chairman and president, would take salary cuts for up to one year. Four other Nomura executives are to resign for dealings with gangsters.

Nikko Securities Co. said two of its officials resigned, 18 would take pay cuts and four were demoted.

Yamaichi Securities Co. and Daiwa Securities Co., the other big brokerages, also announced pay cuts.

"It's absolutely pitiful that this was going on in the market," a stern-faced Hashimoto said at a news conference.

But market analysts were skeptical the punishment would be any more than an ineffective slap on the wrist for the brokerage houses.

"These penalties will have no impact whatsoever. The securities firms must be very happy about it," said Hiroshi Okumura, economics professor at Ryukoku University in Kyoto. "This will do them no harm at all."

The disciplinary action came two weeks after the presidents of Nomura and Nikko resigned to take responsibility for the scandal.

It also came two days before Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu is to leave for a summit with President Bush in the United States, where the scandal has focused unflattering attention on Japanese business practices.

"These penalties will have no impact whatsoever. The securities firms must be very happy about it."
- Hiroshi Okumura, economics professor

Kaifu said today he was distressed by the scandal and he did not want to see a repetition. But a Foreign Ministry official quoted him as adding, "That kind of incident ... should not be misunderstood as a problem of Japan as a whole."

Under the Finance Ministry directives, the brokerages are not permitted to solicit business from corporate clients for four days beginning Wednesday.

The head offices of Nomura and Nikko also will be restrained from soliciting business during that period, Hashimoto said.

In addition, the Tokyo Stock Exchange announced fines totaling about $116,000 for the four brokerages, a tiny amount compared to their profits. Last year, for example, Nomura had a pretax profit of $1.74 billion.

The scandal continued today to dog Tokyo's stock market, whose key barometer tumbled 3.15 percent. In the past five trading days, the index has dropped 8.02 percent to its lowest level since Dec. 5.

Individual investors, irate at the preferential treatment given wealthier clients, have been pulling money out of the stock market in disgust, analysts have said.

While issuing directives to stop compensation in principle, the ministry fell short of seeking to legally ban the practice.

"Maybe it will be necessary to establish criminal penalties," Hashimoto said. He made no mention of withdrawing the business licenses of the brokerages, which earlier had been mentioned as a possible punishment.

According to Japan's national economic newspaper, the Nihon Keizai, the four brokerages withdrew a total of $37 million from their reserves in fiscal 1990 to compensate favored clients.

Nikko and Nomura also have been accused of making millions of dollars of loans to a former gangland boss and of pushing up prices of stock in which he invested.

Oklahoma luring Texas businesses across border

DALLAS (AP) - Oklahomans are crossing the Red River, promoting their merits in a bid to woo Texas businesses away from the Lone Star State.

Texas officials are not amused. "It's not an insignificant frontal attack on our business," Cathy Bonner, interim executive director of the Texas Department of Commerce, told The Dallas Morning News. "It should wake us up to the fact that the business climate in Texas needs some repair."

The two states have a long-running history of great football battles. And just like football, the weapon of choice for Oklahoma is recruiting - identifying Texas prospects and luring them across the border.

"I haven't seen as aggressive a marketing campaign to raid businesses from one of our border states quite like this," Ms. Bonner said.

Oklahoma's business and government leaders recently went on a four-day trip to Dallas to examine several business.

Gov. David Walters has made himself open to meetings with business leaders to show them Oklahoma's advantages.

"He's good. He's very good," said Bob Portiss, a member of Walters' Economic Development Team. "He'll convince you you need to come to Oklahoma. He'll convince you he'll personally help you - and he will."

Walters sent letters to Dallas companies focusing on the Texas worker's compensation disputes and the significantly lower worker's comp insurance rates in Oklahoma.

Oklahoma Property and Casualty Board records show about a 42 percent increase in worker's compensation insurance premiums in the state while Texas premiums have risen by more than 247 percent.

But Texas officials said they expect to solve the worker's compensation and tax problems in the Legislature in the next few months. Legislators have been called into a special session beginning July 15.

Government reports show Oklahoma also has lower costs in taxes and trucking, housing and living costs.

The Oklahoma Department of Commerce said dozens of Texas firms have relocated or expanded into Oklahoma in the last three years and officials said they are talking to 30 more firms about relocating.

American Airlines, Blue Bell Creameries Inc., and LTV have announced plans to expand in Oklahoma.

Some companies said Oklahoma's central location and access to a major east-west highway, Interstate 40, is a crucial consideration.

"When you have a Texas company calling you and saying he can move 20 miles across the border and save $800,000 a year on worker's compensation insurance, it's serious," Bonner told the News in Sunday's editions.

"If we don't see something this special session, we'll really have missed the boat," she said. "You're going to be seeing more interstate raiding on Texas."

Mother surprised to see new Miss Texas overcome shyness

By MARY MICKLE
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH (AP) - On the night she was crowned Miss Texas, Ronda Renee Morrison delivered a version of "I Will Always Love You" that was a shade more emotional than the one country singer Dolly Parton made famous.

Coaxing tears from the audience during Saturday night's final talent competition, Miss Morrison sang with sobs and catches in her voice, working up to belt out the final chorus of the love song.

Morrison's mother, Barbara Morrison, said she couldn't believe her eyes as she watched her once-painfully shy daughter entertain an audience of more than 3,000 people.

"I can't believe how she's improved, how she's become more extroverted," Barbara Morrison said. "When she was little, she used to sing through her nose and talk real high."

After the pageant, 21-year-old Miss Morrison recalled that she used to stand behind a chair when her family would gather to sing gospel music or entertain relatives.

"I thought that if they couldn't see me, they couldn't hear me either," she said.

She said her bashfulness about performing made growing up especially painful because her father, who once sang and played guitar for country stars Barbara Mandrell, Lorette Lynn and Charlie Pride, enjoyed performing.

Morrison said the tearful tune she delivered as Miss Lake O' The Pines was her way of communicating to the audience.

"Everyone has loved someone at one point in their lives ... and it is my job as an entertainer to get that feeling across to them," Morrison said of her selection.

Morrison, a junior at the University of Texas-Arlington, is majoring in communications and plans to pursue a career as a motivational speaker.

As Miss Texas 1991, she receives a $10,000 college scholarship, a wardrobe and other prizes. She said it was a Dale Carnegie course in speaking and human relations that helped her the most. She took the class in 1989, the year she first entered the Miss Texas Scholarship pageant and placed second.

"She's come a long way and she's worked for every inch of it," said her father, Kent Morrison.

Still, Mrs. Morrison said she couldn't help but feel anxious for her daughter at the Miss Texas pageant, and it will carry over to the Miss America pageant in Atlantic City in September.

"I still feel as if she's a little bit nervous," Mrs. Morrison said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Rights of people continue to erode

In another of its recent "police state" decisions, the U.S. Supreme Court again adjourned our Fourth Amendment "right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures." In Florida v. Bostick, it ruled that police may search a bus without a search warrant.

Police officers boarded a bus at a station in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., in 1985. They brandished guns, blocked the aisle, closed the bus door, did not have a search warrant and did not even have probable cause to suspect the defendant, passenger Terrance Bostick, was committing a crime. Bostick could have refused the search. But he was intimidated into opening his suitcase, where drugs were found. Bostick was later convicted of drug possession.

The Florida Supreme court wisely threw out the conviction. It wrote, "History demonstrates that the adoption of repressive measures, even to eliminate a clear evil, usually results only in repression more mindless and terrifying than the evil that prompted them." The state of Florida appealed. It noted that buses must stop at public facilities, such as the one in which Bostick was searched.

Justice Sandra Day O'Connor wrote the majority opinion for the U.S. Supreme Court. She said that the court had in the past allowed the police searches in such public places as airplane terminals, provided the person could refuse the search.

But just because a person uses something "public," he does not forfeit his rights. Otherwise, the Fourth Amendment would protect no one. Almost every home uses "public" water. Does that mean the government can search every home — or business — at will, without a search warrant, provided only that it intimidate home owners into compliance? Of course not.

The Constitution protects "citizens from the tyranny of being singled out for search and seizure without particularized suspicion," objected Justice Thurgood Marshall in his dissent. Passengers should be informed that they may refuse such a search "to dispel the aura of coercion and intimidation that pervades such encounters."

This ruling adds in some measure to the ongoing erosion of our rights. "Zero tolerance" edicts seize a person's property even before he gets his day in court. And on May 30 the U.S. Supreme Court allowed searches of a person's car without a warrant. It almost makes those of us concerned with individual freedoms long for a return of the liberal Earl Warren Supreme Court days. Conservatives have screamed the loudest about our freedoms, but with the decisions of the new Supreme Court justices installed by Reagan and Bush, one wonders if conservatives' concerns for our freedoms are merely words. Where will it end?

The crime bill, pro and con

WASHINGTON — Sen. Joe Biden's omnibus crime bill contains several sections that are good, several other sections that are mostly makeweight, and one section that is a real ringer. The senate is now working on the bill. A great deal of work needs to be done.

This indigestible piece of legislation (S. 1241) runs to 245 pages of text containing 27 different titles. Six pages are devoted just to an index. The bill deals variously with death sentences, terrorist activities, drive-by shootings, assault weapons, drunk driving, habeas corpus proceedings and the admissibility of evidence in federal courts. It all adds up to more than senators can chew.

First, the good provisions: The bill advances a plan to build 10 new regional prisons at a cost of $600 million, and to create 10 new "boot camps" on abandoned military bases. Sound reasons support both ventures.

The regional prisons would house convicts with a history of long-term drug abuse coupled with a record of serious criminal offenses. Such inmates would have less than two years remaining on whatever sentences they are serving. In the regional prisons, they would receive intensive treatment for their drug addiction.

Behind this expensive proposal is the valid idea of treating those inmates with the highest probability of committing new crimes on release. These are the hard-core drug offenders. If they can be turned around, society will save much more than the $100 million a year that would be required to operate the regional centers.

The boot camps are different. Each camp would accommodate 200 to 300 inmates for periods of three to four months. The inmates would be under 25 years of age; they would have been convicted of relatively minor drug offenses. In camp they would undergo "a highly regimented schedule of strict discipline, physical training, work, drill and ceremony characteristic of military basic training." They also would receive remedial education and treatment for drug abuse. Bost state and federal prisoners would be eligible.

Considering the magnitude of the drug problem, the regional prisons and the boot camps would have a limited effect, but the concepts make sense. Other provisions relating to the drug traffic also make sense. The bill authorizes another 350 agents for the drug Enforcement Administration, another 500 officers for the Border Patrol and 350 additional federal prosecutors. An excellent section would punish drug dealers who hire children to peddle their wares.

I am less enthusiastic about a long section of the Biden bill providing for the education of an elite corps of police officers. This has the sweet scent of some staffer's pet idea. The proposed scholarships need a great deal of thought and might better be considered apart from the omnibus measure. In any event, police training historically has been a state responsibility.

Several other provisions also trespass upon the sound principle of federalism. Drunk driving, for one example, is not a federal crime; it is a state crime, but Biden's bill would inject an element of federal punishment. The war on drug abuse, important as it is, ought not to provide a pretext for usurping powers of the states.

Large portions of the bill deal formidably and impressively with imposition of the death sentence, but the provisions are mostly bluster. The real ringer in the bill clanks to attention under the heading of the Racial Justice Act of 1991.

This is Sen. Ted Kennedy's baby. Its whole purpose is to prevent a death sentence from ever being imposed or carried out anywhere. Capital punishment could not be imposed under state or federal law in any jurisdiction where death sentences are disproportionately imposed upon blacks. It is lamentably true that in virtually every jurisdiction blacks are arrested in disproportionate numbers for serious crimes. It follows that convictions of blacks also will be disproportionate. Kennedy and Biden are here engaged in a grandstand play.

Senators will debate at length over the extensive provisions having to do with guns. These highly controversial sections, including the Brady Act's seven-day waiting period, may doom the whole measure.

I hope not. Crime in America has reached appalling levels. In my own observation, no other concern is of greater importance to so many people. We need a good bill, but in its present form, the Biden bill isn't it.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, July 8, the 189th day of 1991. There are 176 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
On July 8, 1896, William Jennings Bryan, the presidential nominee-apparent of the Democratic national convention in Chicago, captivated listeners with his famous speech denouncing supporters of the gold standard, saying, "You shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold."

On this date:
In 1663, King Charles II of England granted a charter to Rhode Island.
In 1776, Col. John Nixon gave the first public reading of the Declaration of Independence to a crowd gathered at Independence Square in Philadelphia.

In 1889, The Wall Street Journal was first published.
In 1907, Florenz Ziegfeld staged his first Follies on the roof of the New York Theater.

In 1919, President Wilson received a tumultuous welcome in New York City after his return from the Versailles Peace Conference in France.

In 1947, demolition work began in New York City to make way for the new permanent headquarters of the United Nations.

Playing games in churches

KILGORE, Texas — Baptist Pastor Pete Freeman, in his church study, heard familiar footsteps approaching outside.

Quickly, the pastor picked up his telephone and into the phone said, "Yes, indeed, I am looking for a new minister of education for our church."

At that moment, David Hampton, present minister of education, walked in ...

And pulled a pistol ...
And shot the pastor squarely between the eyes.
Water pistol.

It's a little game they play.

There is a community near Clovis, N.M., called Pleasant Hill.

At Pleasant Hill Baptist Church, the Rev. Gary Warren is pastor.

Home in bed, he was awakened at 2 a.m.

A man was standing over him with a gun. A real gun!

The minister got up, went to the closet and returned with his own gun. Also a real gun.

And he held the intruder for police.

The intruder, Jeff Scheidler, told police that he "merely wanted the pastor to hear his confession."

Then there's the sign in the window of the

Paul Harvey

Moody Bible Institute's bookstore in Chicago which says, "David and Bathsheba — you've seen the movie; now read the book."

This is fun; let's keep going:

Wedding in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Rabbi Loring J. Frank officiating. He was 90 minutes late arriving to perform the ceremony.

The two people being married, Christine and Russel Adler, are both lawyers.

They sued the Rabbi for $130,000 — seven times the cost of the wedding.

But they explained: Due to the Rabbi's tardy arrival, wedding guests ran up an enormous bar bill. Also, "as a result of the anxious wait, the groom suffered a back spasm on his wedding night."

Lefty Mitchell of Kilgore, Texas, went fishing and caught a minister.

They were in the same boat when his hook snagged Methodist preacher John Birkelbach. They had to cut the hook out. Lefty says, "The scrawny preacher was not a keeper so they threw him back."

Potomac (Md.) Presbyterian Church received a letter addressed to "Minister Potomac Presbyterian."

"Dear Mr. Presbyterian ... enclosed is your new VISA card ..."

Kate Mitchell, financial secretary at the church, says she used the credit card "and it works."

Chase Manhattan Bank blames a computer. Mitchell says, "Any credit goes to God."

More? All right, one more:

In Jesup, Ga., Mark and Matthew Allen, ages 3 and 2, were at a neighbor's house and wanted to play with their toy guns.

Their hostess said, "You know how your church feels about children playing with toy guns ..."

Mark (he's the one who is 3) said, "Me and Matthew is thinking about changing churches."

Build more prisons, save more money

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER

The next time your liberal brother-in-law starts sounding off about how expensive it is to keep a convict in prison for a year (and why, therefore, sentences should be shorter), ask him how much it might cost to release these wretched early.

We have all seen the kind of statistics splashed around by the liberals, indicating that it costs some huge amount — $40,000, or something like that — to house a criminal in a prison for just one year. Why this should be so is never explained. Presumably the figure is arrived at by simply dividing the number of prisoners into the total cost of the prison system, including administrative overhead, etc., for a year. Anyway, we are asked to accept the figure on faith, and to recognize it as a cogent argument against building more prisons.

We are all indebted, therefore, to Eugene Methvin, a senior editor of the Reader's Digest, for providing in its June issue some remarkable new statistics on a seldom considered aspect of this question. It turns out that releasing prisoners early may save a little money on their maintenance, but nothing like the cost of the damage they proceed to do to society in the extra free time.

Take the case of the state of Illinois. In the early 1980s it occurred to the authorities there that they could save $60 million by releasing 21,000 prisoners an average of three months early. No sooner said than done. But, according to James Austin of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency, these braves merely dashed out of the prison gates and committed 23 homicides, 32 rapes, 262 arsons, 681 robberies, 2,472 burglaries, 2,571 assaults and more than 8,000 other crimes.

What's more; Harvard researchers David P. Cavanaugh and Mark A.R. Kleiman have calculated the dollar value of the damage these crimes cost their victims, directly or indirectly. It adds up to $304 million — or $244 million more than the state of Illinois managed to save.

By way of contrast, consider the course adopted by the people of the state of California. During the 1980s, they voted to spend no less than $3.7 billion to build new prisons. As you might expect, the inmate population almost quadrupled, from 22,600 to 87,300.

But oddly enough, the murder rate in California declined 24 percent, rape 29 percent and burglary 37 percent. In 1989 alone, there were 16,000 fewer robberies and 255,000 fewer burglaries in California than there would have been if those rates had stayed at their 1980-81 peak. And 988 fewer people were murdered.

How can one calculate the cash value of avoiding almost 1,000 murders, 16,000 robberies and a quarter of a million burglaries every year? It's obviously impossible. Yet the point is certainly one to bear in mind the next time some bleeding heart starts bewailing the cost of more prisons.

Texas is one state that might pay particular attention to this point. It is famous for leading the nation in the number of death sentences it has carried out, but its record in the matter of less newsworthy prisoners is lousy.

Texas legislators were warned by a blue-ribbon commission in 1982 that the state would need prison space for 90,000 felons by 1990. But they voted facilities for only 46,000.

Inevitably, Texas felony convicts began to be released when they had served, not 55 percent of their sentences as before, but less than 15 percent. Today the average Texas prisoner actually serves only 51 days in prison for each year of his sentence.

And don't tell me the taxpayers aren't ready to pay for more prisons. If taxpayers knew the whole truth, there would be a prison cell for every felon in America.

Fruit drinks make healthy refreshers for hot weather

Homemakers' News

Donna Brauchi

The temperature is rising and you feel it's time to reach for a nutritional pick-me-up that's caffeine-free and virtually fat-free - a tall, cold, fresh fruit drink!

Juices from fruits (and vegetables) are frequently high in Vitamin C; juice from fruits like cantaloupe and apricots provide beta-carotene, a form of Vitamin A believed to lower cancer risk. Real fruit juices often serve as good sources of potassium and other nutrients.

Supermarket shelves are packed with drinks, ades, punches, cocktails, and nectars and their nutritional value varies widely. Keep in mind that fruit flavor doesn't always mean fruit nutrition.

Products that contain no juice (such as powdered fruit drinks), must be labeled "fruit flavored" or "contains no juice".

Beverages labeled as fruit drinks, drinks, nectars, punches, and ades are never 100 percent juice. They typically vary from 10 to 50 percent juice - the rest is added water and sweeteners. Some are fortified with Vitamin C, but other important nutrients found in 100 percent fruit juice may not be added back. Be sure to read the label carefully.

There is no requirement that labels on diluted fruit beverages indicate the percentage of juice, although many companies now offer this information voluntarily.

Several new beverages feature carbonated water - either seltzer or sparkling mineral water - with added fruit essence (oil from the fruit skin). While these drinks contain little nutritional value from fruit, they provide fluids without added calories or artificial ingredients.

Don't forget the cheapest, easiest refreshment - water. The body requires at least six to eight 8-ounce glasses of liquid a day. If you're watching your weight, water makes especially good sense; eight ounces of fruit juice may contain more nutrients than soda pop, but its calorie count is about the same. Drink past the point of quenching your thirst, especially on hot days. The extra water can help protect you from dehydration.

You can create your own refreshment by using your blender and imagination to make nutritious, thirst-quenching summer drinks. Try the following:

Fruits: Blueberries, strawberries, raspberries, cantaloupe, watermelon, honeydew melon, peaches, pears, apricots, plums, pineapple, banana, or cherries.

Mixers: Water, sparkling water, skim milk, fruit juices (such as orange, apple, cranberry, or pineapple).

Add-ins: Crushed ice, honey, sugar, cinnamon, vanilla extract, lemon or lime juice, nonfat yogurt, or lowfat frozen yogurt.

Add-ons: Mint springs, fruit kabobs, lemon, lime, or orange wedges. For more information on diet and nutrition, contact your Gray County Extension Office.

Doctor's hasty diagnosis is prescription for trouble

DEAR ABBY: I have been happily and faithfully married to my husband for 14 years. The problem is with our family doctor. Recently, my husband thought he had a bladder infection, so he went to our doctor, who ran one urine test that turned out negative. Then the doctor informed my husband that he had a sexually transmitted disease!

My husband asked if it was possible to have had this "sexually transmitted disease" for 14 years - or was there some other way of getting it? Also, wouldn't it be wise to run another test just to make sure?

The doctor insisted that his diagnosis was correct, then with a smirk he added, "I'm not suggesting that you run home and beat your wife, but you obviously got it from her."

Abby, no wife could be more faithful than I. I never even looked at another man in more than 14 years. My husband says he believes me, yet he's been having bad dreams ever since. I know I'd be accused of "protesting too much" if I confronted the doctor. This is a small town, and it could make matters even worse. Besides, I hear that this doctor thinks all non-churchgoers (like my husband and myself) are pretty much "scum" anyway. What can I do? I'm not taking this lightly.

BRISTLING IN ARIZONA
DEAR BRISTLING: First,

change doctors—even if it means getting your checkups in a nearby town.

According to Dr. Willard Cates Jr., director of the Sexually Transmitted Disease Division of the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta: "No diagnostic test is 100 percent accurate. Your husband should be retested to confirm the original test result." (Some sexually transmitted diseases can lie dormant for long periods of time; also you failed to mention which one your husband allegedly has.)

The doctor who accused you unjustly is guilty of unprofessional behavior. He was also in error in refusing to perform more definitive tests. Report him to your county medical society.

Fungicides prevent spring problems

I harvested my first fully ripe tomato on June 27. They have a real good load of fruit set and are requiring a lot of water from the drip system since the rains stopped. Don't let tomatoes get short of water as that will cause "Blossom End Rot".

TURF DEAD SPOTS

The first turfgrass disease making an appearance each year is Spring Dead Spot. This disease is considered the most damaging disease of bermudagrass and bermudagrass hybrids in North America. Spring Dead Spot is caused by the fungi, Letosphaeria horrae and Letosphaeria narmari. It occurs mainly in the northern limits of the bermudagrass range where it is cold enough for the turf to go dormant, like it does here.

Spring Dead Spot appears as roughly circular, bleached dead spots when spring regrowth occurs. These spots range in size from 2 inches to 3 feet in diameter. The spot may remain for a year or more but most often the turf grows over the spot by August. In some cases, seeds invade this area without competition from the turf. Sometimes the spots develop into rings, which may reappear and enlarge each year.

Spring Dead Spot is most common in hybrid bermuda lawns all though it does also occur in common bermuda. It is usually associated with compacted soil, close mowing, heavy nitrogen fertilization in the fall, heavy fall watering and potassium deficiency. High fertility and water in late fall delays dormancy and sets up the turf for severe damage with the first fall freeze. In addition to damage from the first freeze, it has been noted that very cold winters in general are associated with severe Spring Dead Spot.

Controls include aerifying the soil to reduce compaction, maintaining balanced fertility, avoiding high nitrogen application after late August, having well drained soil, using common bermudagrass and applying the fungicide, Rubigan in the fall. Apply a single application of Rubigan at 4 oz. per 1000 square feet in September. If you wait until October or November, make one application at the higher rate of 6 oz. per 1000 square feet. After applying the fungicide, thoroughly irrigate with 1/2 to 1 inch of water.

Remember, fungicide application is done in the fall. When you see the symptoms in the spring, fungicide applications will not be effective, and they will not last long enough to be effective the next fall.

I was told that Rubigan is not available for homeowner use, but only in large professional use sizes.

Umpire, former Dolphin shot during heroic effort

DALLAS (AP) — Friends of major-league umpire Steve Palermo say it was in character for him to forsake his own safety and help two waitresses who were being robbed in a restaurant parking lot.

But Palermo's heroics nearly cost him his life.

Former Miami Dolphins defensive lineman Terence Mann and Palermo were both shot early Sunday while trying to break up the robbery.

Palermo was in serious condition late Sunday after surgery, said Parkland Memorial Hospital spokeswoman Esther Bauer. He was shot once in the back, she said.

Mann suffered a gunshot wound to the neck and was listed in good condition late Sunday at Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas, said hospital spokeswoman Karen Harris.

Durwood Merrill, an American League umpire who works with Palermo, said the bullet passed through Palermo and that Mann was shot three times. Police, however, wouldn't confirm that Mann had been shot more than once.

Merrill said it is in an umpire's nature to help someone in distress.

"Knowing him, he would just react and not think about getting hurt," Merrill said. "Our disposition is so fearless that you don't think about what might happen."

"It's in our makeup. We've been pounded on and beat on to where we think we're immune."

Rich Garcia, Palermo's crew chief, spoke with him after the two-hour surgery and said there was concern that Palermo might be paralyzed.

"He has some feeling in both feet on and off. He's in a lot of pain from the catheter they put in," Garcia said. "He had spasms in his back from lying still so long. He had pain in his back and in his buttocks and that's a positive thing at this point."

But Bauer said Palermo didn't show any signs of paralysis.

"He has no paralysis at this point," she said late Sunday.

April Nickleberry, a child care specialist at Buckner Baptist Children's Home, confirmed Mann had played for the Dolphins (1987-88) and Southern Methodist from 1983-86.

Mann is a child care specialist at the home for troubled foster children and abused children. Mann was not taking phone calls to his hospital room and requested that no information about his condition be released.

Garcia said Palermo and Mann didn't know each other.

Palermo was at Campisi's Egyptian Restaurant, a popular hangout for sports figures, for dinner after working third base in Saturday night's game between the California Angels and the Texas Rangers.

Shortly before 1 a.m., a bartender noticed four men robbing the women at gunpoint in the restaurant's parking lot. Palermo, Mann and an employee rushed to help.

The robbers escaped with the purse of a woman who had been knocked down and punched in the face, said Dallas police spokeswoman Vicki Hawkins.

Three of the suspects drove off in a car, and the good samaritans chased the fourth across a highway overpass, Hawkins said.

While they tried to make a citizen's arrest — without any weapon of their own — the suspects returned in the car and one fired two shots, striking Palermo and Mann, Hawkins said.

The identity of the third man who tried to help wasn't released. He was not hurt nor were the robbery victims or suspects.

The quartet, three adults and a juvenile, was caught after running a red light in Highland Park.

Michael Stich(s) to his guns

Slams Becker for title win at Wimbledon

By JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A man on a mission has no time to consider the mission of others.

And so as soon as the bobbies finished pulling a protester from his perch atop the scoreboard on Centre Court, Michael Stich simply shrugged his bony shoulders, turned back to face the task at hand, and promptly slugged another ace.

Hammered toward countryman Boris Becker at a speed approaching 120 mph, the ball carried a message both short and sweet: Can't touch this. Can't touch this serve. Can't touch this focus. Can't touch THIS.

Not that Becker, already a three-time Wimbledon champion and a lion of concentration himself, didn't try. And there was a time not so long ago, when he would have almost surely succeeded.

As early as the eighth game of the first set, Becker had engaged himself in a raging dialogue that continued throughout the rest of the match and likely won't end for several more weeks. By the third set, when Stich's backhand clipped the tape and hopped over his racket, he stopped huffing and puffing just long enough to grouse aloud, "What else?"

And finally, after his attempt to catch up with a swerving Stich, he had skidded wildly off the frame of his racket, Becker took a seat on the railing behind him, crossed his legs, and looked to all the world like he might just stay there the rest of the afternoon.

"He started very cool ... he made the first break point he had. Then I had a break point in the next game and I didn't. And I knew from then on," Becker said, "that it's not going to be an easy match at all."

Stich had the same feeling at about the same time.

"It was very important that I broke him right away in the first game. From that point on, I served really well and I was returning a lot of serves when he put them in."

"And I got the feeling," he said, "that I could touch every ball I wanted to that was going into the court."

The 22-year-old Stich had come so far so fast that the most surprising thing about the final result — 6-4, 7-6, 6-4 — probably was that he didn't get dizzy.

Just six years ago, he was a talented but temperamental tennis junior in his native Hamburg who turned on the television one day just in time to watch Becker win his first Wimbledon. On Sunday, as the sun headed west on its lazy, late-afternoon arc, Stich was the only thing standing between Becker and his fourth.

"In the juniors, I was a really bad guy on the court," Stich recalled. "I really behaved really bad, and so everybody said, 'OK, that guy's never going to win anything,' and I believed it myself."

"I played soccer at the time, and it was just fun because it was a game where you play on a team and you always can play bad and the others can try to help you out. In tennis, when you play bad, there's nobody that can help you out."

"Like with Boris today," Stich added. "He would have liked to have maybe somebody to help him out of this situation."

No doubt someone like Mark Lewis. Lewis, the brother of 1983 Wimbledon finalist Chris Lewis of New Zealand, got hold of the temperamental Stich when the latter played for a club team in Munich.

The impetuous Stich and the analytical Lewis may have seemed a strange pairing, but the partnership produced results from its very beginning. The player climbed the rungs of the professional ladder — from No. 750 in the world to 130 in his first two years to No. 42 at the beginning of this one — and the coach made sure he didn't discard any important pieces of his game along the way.

"For me, it's very important that he is able to watch me on every surface — clay, grass, hard courts, carpet — so that he can see what changes should be in my game or that what is a bad shot, maybe on clay, is good on hard courts," Stich said.

On the hardcourts of the Australian Open, at the start of the Grand Slam season, he got knocked out in straight sets by Guy Forget in the third round. But by the time Stich reached red clay of the French Open, it took eventual champion Jim Courier four sets to accomplish the deed in the semifinal.

And while it was apparent his game had rounded into top form by the time Wimbledon dawned — Stich was seeded sixth, after all — few people beyond Lewis would have believed his head had progressed as far.

"This title, I would say, is half his," Stich said with a nod toward Lewis, "because he was the one who really believed in me all the time."

By now, however, the converts are many.

"Really, in a final at Wimbledon, the tactics are not that important. It's really who has the stronger mind," Becker said. "And today was his day."

Rapper's Lite Light may try to hammer colts in Haskell

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Racing Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Many brilliant performances, such as Lite Light's in the Coaching Club American Oaks, have occurred at Belmont Park throughout the century.

As for the scene in the winner's circle Saturday — well, that probably was a first.

There was a bare-chested M.C. Hammer, the rap star, holding the filly's bridle and flashing a "V" for victory after Lite Light turned her highly anticipated rematch against Meadow Star into a mismatch.

It was a hectic scene.

"Wherever Hammer goes, a lot of people follow," said Jerry Hollendorfer, who trains Lite Light for the Burrell family, including Stanley Burrell — known to his fans as M.C. Hammer.

"There's a lot of noise," Hollendorfer said. "I'm not used to it, but I hope I can get used to it."

Hollendorfer should get a lot of practice, because there appear to be a lot of victories in the filly's future — and Hammer is not likely to let his first live view of winning be his last.

As Lite Light ran away from Meadow Star in the stretch, Hammer stood shirtless in his box, waving his aquamarine leather jacket in triumph.

"I can't remember a more exciting moment," Hammer said of Lite Light's seven-length victory in a stakes-record 2:00 2-5 for the 1 1/4 miles under scale weight of 121 pounds.

Adding to the moment was a side bet Hammer made with Meadow Star's owner, Carl Icahn, the board chairman of Trans World Airlines.

Hammer bet $200,000 to win $150,000, which he said would be donated to the Help The Children Foundation in his hometown of Oakland.

Hammer had lost a $35,000 side bet when Meadow Star beat Lite Light by an official nose, which was more like a nostril, in the 1 1/8-mile Mother Goose on June 9 at Belmont. So close was the finish that it was declared official.

Lite Light bled a little from the lungs after the Mother Goose. She had no problem Saturday, however, despite again racing without the diuretic Lasix. No medication is allowed for racing in New York.

Meadow Star, ridden by Jerry Bailey took the lead from pacesetter Car Gal with a little more than a quarter-mile remaining. A few strides later, however, Corey Natatani sent Lite Light through a hole on the rail, and the match never materialized.

"We're going to have a real shocker for you in the next couple of days," Hammer said.

It seemed, however, the cat already was let out of the bag by Louis Burrell, who manages the family's Oaktown Stable.

"This filly is for real and if Strike the Gold doesn't go to the Haskell, that's where we're going next," said Burrell. That means Lite Light could make her debut against colts in the 1 1/8-mile Haskell Handicap July 27 at Monmouth Park.

The Burrells — father Lewis and brothers Louis, Stanley and Christopher — tried to buy an interest in Kentucky Derby winner Strike the Gold in April. They apparently remain interested.

Lite Light's time of 2:00 2-5 broke the stakes record of 2:01 4-5 set by Dark Mirage in 1968.

The winning payoff was $3.80 and the first-prize money of $150,000 pushed Lite Light's career earnings past the $1 million mark. She has five wins in seven starts this year and a career record of eight victories in 16 starts.

Meadow Star lost for the second time in 13 career races. Her other defeat was against colts in the Wood Memorial April 20.

Car Gal finished third and was followed by Shared Interest, Risen Colony and Outlasting.

In races on Sunday, Olympio ($4) chased down Richman to win the $250,000 Minnesota Derby by a nose at Canterbury Park. The winning time of 1:46 2-5 for 1 1/8 miles bested the previous track record of 1:47 4-5 by Present Value in 1989.

With Eddie Delahoussaye aboard the Arkansas Derby winner, Olympio trailed by 2 1/2 lengths at the half-mile mark before closing the gap at the top of the stretch to 1 1/2 lengths.

With only 20 yards to go, Olympio appeared beaten but he accelerated in a flurry to edge Richman at the wire.

At Belmont Park, Lost Mountain ($19.20) came from last place among seven to win the $200,000 Dwyer Stakes by a length over Smooth Performance. It was the second straight stakes win at Belmont for Lost Mountain, who won the Peter Pan in May.

Lost Mountain ran wide on the turn to join the leaders and edged ahead in the final yards to cover 1 1/8 miles in 1:49 1-5.

At Toronto's Woodbine Race-track, Dance Smartly ($3.10) won the 132nd running of the $391,400 Queen's Plate, the opening leg of the Canadian triple crown. Ridden by Pat Day, the granddaughter of Northern Dancer went 1 1/4 miles in 2:03 2-5.

Cochran notches 1st PGA Tour victory

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

LEMONT, Ill. (AP) — Russ Cochran now has an answer for his sons. Greg Norman has more questions.

"I have three boys. When we go to a Tour function and we're sitting with other players, the boys will ask me, 'Daddy, has Mr. So-and-so won?' And I say yes. "Then they'll see somebody else and ask 'Has Mr. So-and-so won?' And I'll say yes."

"Then they ask me, 'When are you going to win, Daddy?'"

"Now," Cochran said Sunday after his 2-stroke victory over Norman in the Western Open, "I have an answer."

first victory of his 9-season PGA Tour career when Norman blew a 5-shot lead with eight holes to go, playing the back nine in 40 and making bogey on five of the last six holes.

"I feel like I gave it away," Norman said.

Cochran could only agree. "Right about at the turn, with Greg so far in front and playing so well, I was just trying to hang on for second place," Cochran said.

Instead, however, it was Norman who could not hang on. Frequently the victim of last-hole heroics by other players, Norman's undoing this time was by his own hands.

Four ahead with six holes to go, he reeled off a string of four consecutive bogeys and made another — this one without real meaning — on the final hole.

"I stubbed my toe a bit coming home," he said. "This is one I should have won."

He three-putted. Once he hit into the gallery, with the ball coming to rest under a woman's purse. Twice he hit deep into bushes and trees. One of these was unplayable. On the other, he emerged from the underbrush brushing twigs and leaves from his hair.

Cochran, meanwhile, was playing along steadily, hitting fairways and greens, getting the pars that became more valuable as Norman whittled away at his own lead.

Cochran made up two shots by getting up and down from a green-side bunker for birdie-4 on the 15th while Norman was having one of his woody adventures.

He made up two more, vaulting into the lead, on the 16th where Norman's approach ended up under the purse and Cochran sank a 30-footer.

Cochran won it with a closing round of 3-under-par 69 and a 275 total. Norman, still trying to snap a year-long non-winning string, struggled to a 71 for 277. Fred Couples, the winner last week in Memphis and the only other man in title contention here, shot a 72 and came in at 278.

The three were tied for the lead going into the final round at Dubs-dread at Cog Hill, but Norman quickly pulled away.

He opened up birdie-birdie, hit a 5-iron shot 179 yards and into the cup for an eagle-2 on the fourth and was 5-under for the day after five holes.

"To be honest with you," Cochran said, "it was a little intimidating."

"I feel very fortunate to come out on top against such great players," Cochran said. "And I'm a little proud of myself, too."

Norman had no excuses for his collapse.

"I was very relaxed, very composed," he said. "Things just happened."

And he found a positive note.

"I can't be too disappointed," said Norman, who was making his first start since withdrawing from the U.S. Open with a hip ailment.

"I just came here to play, to try to play myself back into the game, and I had a chance to win. You can't be disappointed with that," he said.

"This gives me a good confidence boost going into the British Open, makes me like my chances there much, much more."

Finally, it's Miller's time

SYLVANIA, Ohio (AP) — After 5 1/2 years of frustration and doubt, the winning touch she thought might never return came back to Alice Miller.

"I could remember the old feelings, the old memories," she said. "Yet it's been a long time. I've had a lot of brain damage to overcome."

Miller rolled in a 14-foot birdie putt Sunday on the third hole of sudden death to beat Deb Richard and win the Jamie Farr Toledo Classic.

Once upon a time, Miller was a rising star on the LPGA Tour.

Then her game turned to ashes. In 123 tournaments over the last six years, she finished no better than a tie for 10th. Her earnings plummeted from $334,525 in 1985 — when she won four tournaments, including a major — to $4,651 last year.

That's why she said a victory — any victory — was particularly sweet.

Ryan pitches no-hitter through seven innings

By The Associated Press

Nolan Ryan showed again why he's the most exciting pitcher in baseball.

Ryan took a bid for his eighth career no-hitter into the eighth inning and wound up allowing two hits in 8 1-3 innings as the Texas Rangers beat the California Angels

7-0 on Sunday night. Ryan (5-4) struck out 14 and walked one, the 211th double-digit strikeout game of his career. Dave Winfield, 1-for-22 with 13 strikeouts lifetime against Ryan, ended the right-hander's bid for his second no-hitter of the season with a clean single to center to open the eighth inning.

"I wasn't going to get punched out again," Winfield said. "There was no way I wasn't going to swing. This is one of the better games you'll ever see pitched. One of the best games I've ever participated in. Unfortunately we lost."

"I was trying to keep it off the plate, hoping that maybe he'd chase it," Ryan said of the 0-2 pitch that Winfield hit back through the middle. "But it came in over the plate."

Gary Gaetti, the only starter who didn't strike out against Ryan, led off the ninth with a double to left-center and Ryan was removed after Donnie Hill lined out to first.

"I think he was pretty spectacular tonight," Rangers manager Bobby Valentine said after his club moved into first place in the AL West, five percentage points ahead of Minnesota.

The 44-year-old Ryan, who went to a hospital emergency room Wednesday when he thought pain from a pulled chest muscle might be a heart attack, had a perfect game until he walked Luis Polonia leading off the seventh. Polonia was erased when Wally Joyner hit into a double play.

Ryan said he never thought about a perfect game. "Not with the history of control I have," he said.

In other games, Kansas City beat Oakland 7-5, Toronto beat Seattle 5-2, Milwaukee beat Cleveland 10-6, Detroit beat Boston 7-6, Baltimore beat New York 5-3 and Chicago beat Minnesota 4-3.

Chuck Finley (12-4) gave up six runs and four hits for the visiting Angels.

Royals 7, Athletics 5

Danny Tartabull hit his fourth home run in two days and Kansas City ended an eight-game home losing streak.

Tartabull, who hit three homers on Saturday, hit his 20th of the season in the seventh, chasing Dave Stewart.

American League

art (6-5), who allowed seven runs and six hits in 6 1-3 innings.

Mark Gubicza (4-5) allowed two runs and six hits in five innings and improved to 11-5 lifetime against Oakland.

Blue Jays 5, Mariners 2

Juan Guzman (3-2) allowed three hits in eight innings and John Olerud hit his second home run in two games as Toronto completed a three-game sweep at the Kingdome.

Olerud, whose 10th-inning home run gave the Blue Jays a 4-3 victory on Saturday night, hit a two-run homer in the second inning off Erik Hanson (4-4).

Toronto has won eight of nine and 15 of 18. Seattle has lost eight of nine.

Brewers 10, Indians 6

Dante Bichette drove in five runs with a two-run, game-tying single off Jeff Shaw (0-2) in the seventh and a ninth-inning homer as the visiting Brewers won for only the second time in nine games.

Cleveland, which had 18 hits, dropped to 1-1 under new manager Mike Hargrove. The Indians have lost 9 of 11 and 25 of 30.

Chuck Crim (5-4) pitched two scoreless innings and Dan Plesac got four outs for his seventh save.

Tigers 7, Red Sox 6

Bill Gullickson (11-4) won for the sixth time in seven starts and Skeeter Barnes hit a three-run homer for a split of the four-game series at Fenway Park.

Wade Boggs had four hits for Boston, which lost for only the second time in seven games.

Tom Bolton (7-6) allowed five runs and eight hits, but four runs were unearned. John Cerutti finished for his first save.

Orioles 5, Yankees 3

Jeff Ballard (5-9) allowed four hits and two runs in seven innings, and Mike Devereaux hit a two-run homer as visiting Baltimore sent New York to only its second loss in nine games.

Gregg Olson finished the seven-hitter for his 17th save in 21 chances. Wade Taylor (4-3) gave up four runs and 11 hits in five innings.

White Sox 4, Twins 3

Dan Pasqua hit a tie-breaking home run in the eighth off Mark Guthrie (5-5) as Chicago sent the visiting Twins to their ninth loss in 12 games.

Ken Patterson (3-0) pitched 1 2-3 innings and Bobby Thigpen finished for his 18th save in 23 chances.

Mets down Phillies; Cardinals edge Cubs in extra innings

By CHRIS-BERNUCCA Associated Press Writer

Earlier this year, Doug Drabek had trouble stopping his own losing streak. Now Drabek is stopping Pittsburgh's losing streaks, which means trouble for the rest of the National League East.

The 1990 Cy Young Award winner, who lost six of his first seven decisions, improved to 8-8 by allowing five hits over seven innings on Sunday as the Pirates defeated the visiting Montreal Expos 6-1. He struck out a season-high 10 as Pittsburgh avoided its first four-game losing streak of the season.

Drabek, 22-6 last season, was 1-6 on May 11. But he has turned it around, winning six of his last seven decisions while lowering his ERA to 2.94.

"Considering where I was, I'm definitely glad to be at the .500 mark," said Drabek, who also keyed a three-run fifth with an RBI single. "When I was 1-6, I was trying to go out and win two or three games in one night. The last few weeks, I've been able to get back into a groove, get some rhythm."

In other NL games, it was Los Angeles 5, Atlanta 3; New York 8,

Philadelphia 2; Houston 7, Cincinnati 3; San Francisco 3, San Diego 0, and St. Louis 8, Chicago 7 in 12 innings.

Drabek was 12-3 last year following Pirates' losses. Sunday's win allowed Pittsburgh to maintain a 2 1/2-game lead over the New York Mets, who were 6 1/2 behind one week ago. The Pirates led the Mets by one-half game at the All-Star break last season and went on to win the East.

"This team is relaxed — it's always relaxed — and we're not going to put any pressure on ourselves," outfielder Barry Bonds said.

Ron Hassey gave the Expos a 1-0 lead with a home run in the fifth, but Drabek got the run back with his bat in the bottom half.

Oil Can Boyd (4-8) walked Mike LaValliere, who moved to third on Jose Lind's double. Drabek, who hit .214 with six RBIs last season, scored LaValliere with a single up the middle.

Orlando Merced's high fly then popped out of left fielder Ivan Calderon's glove for a double, scoring Lind and advancing Drabek to third. Andy Van Slyke's sacrifice fly made it 3-1.

Pittsburgh added three runs in the eighth on second baseman Delino

DeShields' bases-loaded throwing error and two bases-loaded walks by reliever Doug Piatt. Stan Belinda, who pitched the last two innings for his seventh save, received one of the walks for his first major-league RBI. Dodgers 5, Braves 3

Brett Butler had three hits to extend his hitting streak to 21 games as Los Angeles finished its best first half since 1977 with a victory over visiting Atlanta, which has lost seven of nine.

National League

Ramon Martinez (12-3) moved into a tie for the NL lead in victories before leaving in the sixth inning with a strained hip. Team doctor Frank Jobe examined Martinez when he returned to the clubhouse and advised him not to pitch in Tuesday's All-Star game.

"I would like to pitch, but Dr. Jobe recommended that I shouldn't pitch," Martinez said. "But I don't think I'll miss a start."

The Dodgers are a league-best 49-31 and are in first place at the All-Star break for the 10th time since moving west in 1958. They lead second-place Cincinnati by five games. Mike Morgan allowed an unearned run in the eighth but got the final seven outs for his first save since 1988, when he was with Baltimore. It was the first relief appearance in two years for Morgan, who has three career saves.

Mets 8, Phillies 2

David Cone allowed five hits over 8 2-3 innings as New York won its seventh straight, all on the road.

Cone (8-5) struck out eight to regain the league lead with 113 as the Mets swept the three-game series, holding Philadelphia to four runs.

Kevin McReynolds had three RBIs for the Mets, who have won 11 of 13 overall and are 26-16 on the road, best in the majors. McReynolds had an RBI single off Tommy Greene (5-3) in a four-run third and added a two-run double in the fourth off Amalio Carreno, making his major-league debut.

Ricky Jordan homered for the Phillies, who have lost 12 of 15.

Astros 7, Reds 3

Mark Portugal became the first Houston pitcher to win eight games this season as the host Astros won for the fifth time in six games.

Portugal (8-4) pitched 6 1-3 innings, allowing three runs on six hits. He struck out three and walked three.

Jeff Bagwell had three hits and scored three times as the Astros roughed up All-Star Tom Browning (10-5). Browning went just 2 1-3 innings, allowing four runs on eight hits.

With starters Jose Rijo and Norm Charlton on the disabled list, Reds manager Lou Piniella is having a hard time juggling his staff and suggested that the club make a deal.

"We just can't continue to bring back people on three days rest," Piniella said. "If we don't have starters here, let's go get one."

Glenn Braggs had a homer and RBI double for the Reds.

Giants 3, Padres 0

John Burkett pitched a five-hitter for his first major league shutout and Will Clark homered for the second straight day as San Francisco defeated San Diego.

Burkett (5-5) struck out nine and walked four in his second complete game of the season, both against the Padres. San Diego totalled just seven hits in losses Saturday and Sunday.

Clark homered in the sixth off Dennis Rasmussen (3-4). It was his 15th of the season and 12th at Candlestick Park, the most homers by a National League pitcher at home.

San Diego's Tony Gwynn went 1-for-3, dropping his major league leading average to .358.

Cardinals 8, Cubs 7, 12 Innings

Tom Pagnozzi's RBI single over a drawn-in outfielder in the 12th inning scored Pedro Guerrero as St. Louis came from behind twice to beat visiting Chicago.

The Cardinals, who overcame a 6-1 deficit to force extra innings on Guerrero's RBI single in the ninth, had lost three straight before registering their 20th come-from-behind victory this season. The loss snapped the Cubs' three-game winning streak.

Chris Carpenter yielded Doug Descenzo's RBI double in the top of the 12th before the Cardinals came back to win.

Todd Zeile, who had a career-high four hits, started the winning rally by doubling off Laddie Renfro (0-1), Chicago's fourth pitcher. Guerrero's single scored Zeile. Felix Jose singled Guerrero to third and Renfro intentionally walked Geronimo Pena to load the bases before Pagnozzi's hit.

Willie Fraser (1-0) pitched one-third of an inning for the victory.

Rotary knocks off Glo-Valve Service

Rotary dethroned Glo-Valve Service as City Champions of the Optimist Major Bambino League, 6-5, Saturday with a dramatic sixth-inning rally.

Glo-Valve had won the City Championship in 1989 and 1990. It was the ninth time in the 15-year history of the City Tournament format that Glo-Valve played in the championship game.

Glo-Valve had gone ahead 5-3, in the top of the sixth when Aaron Davis opened the inning with a single. He moved to second on an error and scored on a single by Efen Jimenez. Jimenez took second on the throw to home plate. He scored on a double by Lee Williams. Williams moved to third on a sacrifice bunt by Bryan McCormick and scored on an infield out by Matt Evans.

Rotary tied the score in the bottom of the sixth inning on five walks and scored the winning run when Seth Haynes was safe on a bases loaded error. Aaron Whitney was the winning pitcher, despite giving up three runs and three hits in the only inning he pitched. He struck out one batter.

Augie Larson pitched the first five innings for Rotary, giving up two runs on four hits. He struck out seven and walked one.

Mike Weatherly absorbed the loss for Glo-Valve to make his season record 4-2. He has three saves. Weatherly struck out eight and didn't give up a hit. He allowed two earned runs and one unearned run. Aaron Davis pitched one inning for Glo-Valve, giving up three unearned runs on two hits. He struck out three. Ryan Schumacher pitched one inning plus, giving up two hits and no runs. He struck out one.

Glo-Valve took the lead in the first inning when Kris Davis was safe on an error and continued to third on another error. He scored on a single by Weatherly.

In the third inning, Kris Davis, Glo-Valve's leading hitter with two hits, singled. He advanced to second and third on wild pitches and scored on another single by Weatherly to provide Glo-Valve with a 2-0 lead.

Rotary gained the lead in the bottom of the third inning when Josh Harper got the first of his two hits for the evening. Augie Larson was safe on an error. Seth Haynes followed with a three-run homer. Chad Epperson also had a hit for Rotary.

The score remained the same until the sixth inning fireworks brought an end to Major Bambino play for the year.

"We deserve to be the City Champions," said Ronnie Haynes, manager of Rotary. "We beat the

Elliot wins Pepsi 400

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The familiar face in the winner's circle looked more pale than normal.

Drained by a malfunctioning cool suit on a 95-degree day, Bill Elliott collapsed after getting out of his Ford as the winner of the Pepsi 400.

Crew members quickly revived him, and Elliott accepted the 34th first-place check of his career on Saturday wearing a wobbly smile.

"With 20 laps to go, I couldn't have felt worse if I'd had boiling water poured on my back," he said. "The water kept getting hotter and hotter in the cool suit, and I couldn't get it unhooked."

For a guy in hot water — he drove with one hand while trying unsuccessfully to disconnect the hose to the cool suit — Elliott managed some slick driving. He took his only lead with 12 laps to go and first place team in the American League three times, the first place team in the National League three times and also beat the team which was tied for first place in the National League.

Rotary ended its season with a 14-4 record.

Glo-Valve was 12-7. The Pampa American Major Bambino All-Stars will play the Pampa National Major Bambino All-Stars in the West Texas State Tournament, Thursday, Friday and, if necessary, Saturday. Gametime is 8:30 p.m.

The winner will advance to regional competition in Boerne, Texas where they will compete with state champions from Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and other regions in Texas.

'Rocket' countdown delayed

TORONTO (AP) — The first flight of The Rocket may be delayed.

While his Toronto teammates prepare for their Canadian Football League opener, Raghob "Rocket" Ismail is in Los Angeles seeing a doctor about his injured left leg.

Ismail, who forsook the NFL and signed a contract worth $18 million with the Argonauts, won't return to Toronto until Tuesday night. The delay means it's unlikely the wide receiver-kick returner from Notre Dame will make the season opener in Ottawa on Thursday.

The Argonauts travel to Ottawa on Wednesday and conduct a informal workout, meaning Ismail will have no full practice before the season-opener game. The team said Sunday that Ismail's status for the opener will be evaluated when he returns to training camp.

Ismail hasn't practiced in more than three weeks while nursing a strained left quadriceps. Because the injury is taking longer than normal to heal, the 21-year-old decided to seek a second medical opinion, the team said in a statement released on Sunday.

LeMond retakes yellow jersey

LeMond has struggled all season. But no sooner did he give up the leader's yellow jersey at cycling's biggest event than he retook it in the race's first stage before finishing the opening weekend within seconds of the overall lead.

The three-time Tour de France winner worked hard all year to begin this year's race in top shape and said he was confident despite a number of poor showings in his prep races.

He had an attack of anxiety just before the start of this year's Tour de France, but showed he was ready when the race started.

After coming in third in the prologue, he was confident enough to make the first breakthrough in Sunday's first stage around Lyon.

LeMond rode away from the main pack with a group of 11 to finish almost two minutes ahead of the field.

"The pack was very nervous at the start this morning so I told myself that I had to take the opportunity as soon as possible," LeMond said.

Although Soviet Djamoline Abdoujaparov won the 71.5-mile stage in 2 hours, 28 minutes and 54 seconds, LeMond came in third and captured the yellow jersey.

LeMond has gained a reputation of being a Tour de France specialist, although some did not take him too seriously this year.

Claudio Chiappucci said in an interview last Saturday in the French sports magazine L'Equipe: "LeMond can't win the Tour this year. He's 30 years old. He's too old."

Chiappucci, 28, made a name for himself by holding on the overall lead last year until the last individual time trial, when LeMond passed him.

Now Chiappucci is more than two minutes behind LeMond.

Although LeMond's advantage looked comfortable, later in the afternoon the American gave up the yellow jersey to unknown Dane Rolf Sorensen, whose team won the time trial.

At the beginning of the 23-mile time trial, Lemond's bike had a puncture. His Z team lost crucial seconds and finished seventh behind the Ariosto team, which won the trial in 41:23.

Sorensen went ahead in the overall standings and relegated LeMond to second position, 10 seconds behind, with Breukink third.

A jury will decide whether evangelist Jimmy Swaggart, left, conspired to ruin the ministry of Marvin Gorman, right, a rival evangelist, who two years later helped to bring down Swaggart in a sex scandal.

Rival preachers head to court in $90 million defamation suit

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The man who helped bring down rival evangelist Jimmy Swaggart in a sex scandal finds his own love life in the spotlight as a $90 million defamation lawsuit against Swaggart goes to trial.

The trial of the 1987 lawsuit was to begin today.

Marvin Gorman accuses Swaggart of conspiring to destroy his smaller, but successful, New Orleans television ministry by falsely accusing him of numerous adulterous affairs. He has admitted to a single "immoral act" with a woman.

Gorman says Swaggart wanted to take over his congregation.

Gorman was dismissed in 1986 from the Assemblies of God, the nation's largest Pentecostal denomination, after Swaggart and others confronted him about alleged sexual indiscretions. He is no longer on television but has established a storefront church in suburban Metairie.

Swaggart's fall came in 1988, with his tearful confession to his Baton Rouge congregation that he had sinned. Swaggart did not specify the sin, but his confession came after Gorman gave church officials photographs of Swaggart outside a motel with a prostitute.

The Assemblies of God expelled Swaggart after he refused to accept a one-year suspension from the pulpit. Swaggart's ministry has since dropped in the ratings from No. 1 in the nation to about fourth, according to Arbitron.

Gorman's lawyers claim there are more than 100 "disputed facts" in the case, including whether Swaggart and others told people that Gorman had sex with 100 women, fathered illegitimate children, was possessed by a demon or is Satan.

During the trial in Civil District Court, Gorman will be barred from bringing up Swaggart's sex life — although his own is central to the case. A state appeals court upheld Judge Julian Bailes' ruling that Swaggart's sex life is irrelevant.

The photographs of Swaggart that Gorman supplied to church officials were broadcast nationwide and the woman, Debra Murphree, said Swaggart paid her to pose naked and talk dirty to him.

The two television evangelists have accused each other of sexual indiscretions for years. Their problems followed the sex scandal that brought down fellow TV evangelist and PTL founder Jim Bakker.

Women who Swaggart claims had sexual encounters with Gorman are among hundreds of witnesses expected to testify.

Swaggart said in court papers that a married woman who attended Gorman's First Assembly of God Church in New Orleans claimed to have had a two-year affair with Gorman.

A second woman claimed she went to Gorman in 1975 for advice on how to handle the stress of being a minister's wife.

"After 45 minutes, he stated that he knew what my problem was. He said that my No. 1 problem was sex. He stated that my problem was that I had never climaxed sexually," the woman said in a deposition. She said she later had sex with Gorman.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused to dismiss the lawsuit. Swaggart claimed the lawsuit unconstitutionally entangles Louisiana courts in matters of church doctrine and discipline.

TED crackdown begins as shrimp season opens

HOUSTON (AP)— Federal and state officials began a crackdown on shrimpers over the weekend, checking to see if all boats were equipped with the controversial Turtle Excluder Devices or TEDs.

The U.S. Coast Guard boarded 126 shrimpers and issued seven citations for failure to use appropriate TEDs, Don Mervin, a Coast Guard spokesman in Galveston, said Sunday.

Joining the Coast Guard were the National Marine Fisheries Service, the U.S. Customs Service and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

Shrimping season reopened at 8:46 p.m. CDT Saturday.

Many of the boats were cited because the holes or turtle escape hatches were smaller than required on nets.

They are supposed to range from 32 to 35 inches, depending on the type of TEDs used.

A maturing ANC seeks a broader base

DURBAN, South Africa (AP) — The African National Congress says sanctions, strikes and protests remain potent weapons to force reform, but the prospect of black-white negotiations also looms large on the horizon.

The ANC, the country's leading black opposition movement, wrapped up a week-long conference Sunday by reasserting its intentions to press ahead with confrontational policies such as backing international economic sanctions.

"Our position is very clear: sanctions must continue to be maintained," ANC President Nelson Mandela told delegates Sunday in this Indian Ocean city.

At the gathering — the ANC's first legal national conference inside South Africa — the group announced no major policy changes.

But the conference, attended by more than 2,200 delegates, ran smoothly and was seen as an important milestone in the group's transition from an often-disorganized liberation movement to a more coherent and focused political party.

"Our conference is more representative and has greater authority than the illegitimate ... Parliament," which excludes blacks, Mandela told an enthusiastic rally that drew 30,000 supporters to a soccer stadium Sunday afternoon.

The ANC again said it would not open formal constitutional negotiations with the government until the white authorities do more to stop the black township violence and release hundreds of inmates considered political prisoners by the ANC.

For its part, the government said it believed the conference would help lead to constitutional talks proposed by President F.W. de Klerk.

"Despite negative and worrying aspects, the government is of the opinion ... that this conference could usher in a new period in the negotiation process," Gerrit Viljoen, the constitutional development minister, said in a statement.

The election of Mandela, 73, as ANC president, and Walter Sisulu, 79, as his deputy placed two aging moderates in the top leadership positions. The moderates favor negotiations with the government on forging a non-racial constitution that would give voting rights to the black majority.

"We must ensure the transfer of power to the people is a peaceful one," Mandela said.

But some ANC hard-liners distrust de Klerk's governing National Party and fear negotiations would require too many concessions.

On sanctions, Mandela noted that many countries were lifting the punitive measures, and said that "unless there is a great deal of flexibility and imagination we will be left holding a shell and nothing else."

Sanctions have been crumbling in the wake of de Klerk's reforms, which include the abolition of all major apartheid laws. However, the 30 million black majority still has no vote in national affairs.

Most African nations are now trading with South Africa, and Europe and Japan also have eased sanctions recently.

President Bush has indicated he would like to lift 5-year-old limited trade sanctions, possibly this month. U.S. officials must first certify that South Africa has released all political prisoners.

The government says virtually all such prisoners have been freed, but the ANC contends about 900 remain jailed.

While moderate, old-guard figures filled the ANC's top leadership, the delegates picked younger and more militant members for the 50 elected seats on the 90-member National Executive Committee.

Chris Hani, leader of the ANC's armed wing, was the top vote-getter.

Mandela's controversial wife, Winnie, also was chosen. Mrs. Mandela was convicted in May of four counts of kidnap and four counts of being an accessory to assault. She has a strong following among ANC youth, but her militant statements and legal troubles had isolated her from some moderates.

The National Executive Committee, which sets ANC policies, was expanded from 35 members. Thirty people who belong or have strong ties to the Communist Party were among the 50 selected.

Most of the incumbents are older leaders in their 50s and 60s who left South Africa or were jailed during the period when the ANC was banned, from 1960-90. Most of the newly elected members gained their political education by building the anti-apartheid movement inside South Africa.

The elected members of the national executive committee include nine women and seven whites. However, virtually all the top leaders are black men, and Mandela said the organization needed to broaden its base.

"We can ill afford to be content with the relatively low level of success that we are making with regard to drawing whites, coloreds (mixed-race people) and Indians into the organization," he said.

Those racial groups account for about 9 million of South Africa's 39 million people.

If your car is cracked up, what about your body?

After an auto accident, you automatically bring your car in for repairs, but what about your body? Chances are, if your car was damaged, so were you.

Auto accidents frequently cause whiplash, back and neck injuries. A chiropractic examination will identify any injuries you may have sustained. In many cases, through chiropractic treatment, unnecessary pain — even surgery — can be avoided.

If you've been in an auto accident and are hurting, we urge you to give us a call and make an appointment for an initial exam. Our patient list includes many people who have found relief through the natural, chiropractic approach to health care. We can help you, too.
