The ordinance would take effect Sept. 1 and provides that no trash will be burned in the city limits and that nothing will be burned in a barrel or trash holder. The ordinance does allow the burning of tree limbs, grass clippings and leaves on the ground. The city of Pampa landfill will not accept burned trash.

Also under a related item, the City Council denied the mayor's request to open the landfill up fulltime until the end of the month to allow more access. The Council, however, unanimously voted to allow expanded hours at the landfill during the last week of its operation, from Aug. 26-31. From Aug. 26-30, the landfill will be open from 1 to 8 p.m. daily. On Aug. 31, the landfill will open at 9 a.m. stay open that day until people stop bringing trash. Commissioners to canvass results of recent election

By BETH MILLER Staff Writer

Gray County Commissioners Court is scheduled to meet in regular session at 9 a.m. Wednesday to continue discussions on the 1992 budget and to consider other items of business

The group is scheduled to canvass the election returns from Saturday's election, consider additions to the county's Safety Policy Manual and consider a request from County Clerk Wanda Carter to adjust an employee's salary.

The Commissioners Court is also scheduled to consider a letter from the State Highway Department regarding license tag fees, consider a rate increase for Texas Animal Damage Control Service, discuss office space in McLean with Sheriff Jim Free and consider a letter from the retirement district.

A closed meeting to "discuss personnel matters," is also scheduled. At a meeting last week, Sheriff's Deputy Lynn Brown met briefly with commissioners and was told he would be scheduled for an executive session on Wednesday to discuss the lawsuit he filed against the county. The lawsuit alleges that Brown, a black man, has been racially discriminated against.

County Judge Carl Kennedy told Brown that the Commissioners Court would meet with him individually or if he preferred to have an attorney, the Commissioners Court would also have an attorney pre-

The Commissioners Court will also consider routine items of salaries, bills, transfers and receive the county treasurer's report.

The meeting will be in the second floor courtroom of the Gray County Courthouse.

Drowned boy starts breathing after being involved in car wreck

BRYAN (AP) - A Waco man is crediting his car's plunge off a 35foot embankment with saving his son's life.

Dudley Allen, 38, was racing to a Brazos County hospital Sunday night after pulling his 3-year-old son Lance from a friend's swimming pool. The child had turned blue and was not breathing.

Cardiopulmonary resuscitation was performed, but Lance did not respond. Allen, a former ambulance driver, started for a hospital, but the car hit gravel, flipped and slid off an embankment and into a creek. Within seconds, Lance, who had been thrown from his seat, was knocked alert and began both breathing and screaming, authorities said. "When he hollered, I knew we were in a lot better shape than we'd started out," Allen said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Purging marxism is laughing matter

Ocassionally, Karl Marx hit the mark, as when he wrote: "The last phase of a world historical figure is generally comical. History takes this course in order that mankind may break away from its past in good spirits."

Marxism, which has caused so much tragedy (40 million killed in the Soviet Union, 100 million in China, 3 million in tiny Cambodia, millions more in Poland, Vietnam, Ethiopia, and so on), has finally faded, and its "world historical figure," Karl Marx himself, has become a worldwide joke.

The last laugh, perhaps, came recently when the world's top communist kimself, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, formally dumped Marxism. He called on the Communist Party to renounce the ideology that has dominated the Soviet Union for 73 years. He admitted, "Our experience and that of others does not give enough grounds to believe that the aim (biulding communism) can be realistically achieved in the forseeable future." Gorbachev's "program of the '90s" includes the restoration of a market economy and democracy.

Gorbachev must go much farther. He has yet to renounce, and in fact has often reiterated his faith, in Leninism. In fact, his program looks much like Lenin's New Economic Policy of the 1920s, which did revive the Soviet economy a bit, but continued central control, especially the terrorist security apparatus.

Leninism itself was a way of dealing with the obvious failures of marxist economics. Will Leninism-Gorbachevism mimic that development? We should remember that the core of Leninism was not Marxist economics, but simple amorality in achieving political ends.

How will we tell if Gorbachev is sincere? Capitalism means using the market to achieve the best results. Thus, we should judge Gorbachev by what he achieves, not by his words. He has instituted glasnost, allowing a measure of political freedom. Yet his perestroika economic program has sputtered along; the major industries remain under the control of the central government; private property rights remain meager. And the independent nations of the Baltics, Armenia, Georgia and Ukraine remain enslaved.

At any rate, we can laugh in good spirits, as Marx advised us, at his repudiation by the head of the socialist "paradise" created in his name.

Free choice - when it suits

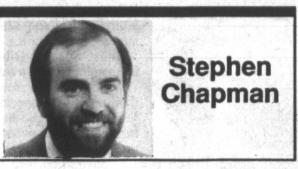

One January day in 1990, Linda Paquette walked into the Regal Art Press, a printing shop located in St. Albans, Vt. She wanted some membership cards made for a group called Vermont Catholics for Free Choice, which opposes the church's policy on abortion.

Regal Art Press is owned by Malcolm and Susan Baker, who like Pagette are Catholics and who unlike her think abortion is intrinsically evil. After seeing the order an employee had taken, Malcolm Baker had the employee telephone Paquette and tell her he wouldn't handle the job because he didn't think a Catholic could endorse "free choice" on abortion and because helping to promote abortion would violate his religious beliefs.

There are other printers in St. Albans, and Paquette could have gone to one of them. But force him to print whatever she demands. what's the fun in that? Instead, she went to a lawyer and filed a lawsuit agianst the Bakers, claiming they had broken a Vermont civil rights law which forbids discrimination by retail establishments on the basis of several factors, one of them being "creed." Paquette argued that she was illegally denied service purely because the Bakers disliked her particular brand of Catholicism.

In a better world, Paquette would have been laughed all the way to New Brunswick, but in this world, she has actually been humored and even taken seriously. A Vermont court has endured the usual blizzard of lawyers' documents, though no trial date has yet been set. The state human rights commission investigated the complaint and ruled grounds" that religious discrimination had her personally, but this particular order.

This is crazy enough. Crazier still is that the print anything promoting a pro-choice point of suppressed by a group calling for free choice.

American Civil Liberties Union of Vermont has entered the case - not on the side of the printer who thinks he has a First Amendment right to refuse to print materials that offend his religion, but on the side of the customer who thinks she has a right to Right now I can hear readers jumping out of their chairs to line up on either the pro-choice or the pro-life side of the abortion issue. The issue would be the same, though, if the Bakers ran a Catholic feminist press which refused to print material for a group supporting official church doctrine on abortion or for that matter on the ordination of women. In either case, the printers would be within their rights.

Nor is this a simple matter of access to commercial services. Paquette, unlike a black in the South looking for a restaurant meal during the Jim Crow era, wasn't barred from the door simply because of what she was. The Bakers would be happy to print any number of orders for her - say, against Regal Art Press, finding "reasonable birth announcements. What they rejected was not view - as they say they wouldn't - there would be no case, as the Vermont Human Rights Commission acknowledged. The law doesn't forbid discrimination on the basis of political beliefs.

If the Bakers had simply said they wouldn't

The Bakers' apparent mistake was bringing in their religious convictions, giving Paquette the chance to depict herself as the victim of religious discrimination. But here they enjoy the sturdy protection of two First Amendment shields - freedom of religion and freedom of the press.

As practicing Catholics, the Bakers have good reason to decline to help a group promoting "free choice" on abortion, particularly one representing itself as Catholic (though it has non-Catholic members). The U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops has said, "No Catholic can responsibly take a 'prochoice' stand when the 'choice' in question involves the taking of human life."

Malcolm Baker's priest said the printer"simply refused to be a party to the misrepresentation of the Catholic faith." Baker says he was also worried that if he printed the order, he might be disciplined by the church.

The Constitution gives special protection to people engaged in printing. It also gives special protection to people engaged in putting their faith into practice. Both protections stand for the proposition that the Bakers can't be forced to print material that offends their religious beliefs, even if someone is inconvenienced as a result.

In fact, Paquette could easily get her materials printed elsewhere. But then she would not have the satisfaction of compelling someone else to violate his own conscience. And the Bakers would not have the dubious pleasure of having their liberties

Going back to travel by train

I honestly think passenger trains are going to make a comeback in this country. I think that because commercial air travel has become what train travel became as it labored for its last breaths:

Now you don't have to take my word for it. There's a new ranking out for U.S. airline performance by Consumer Reports. Delta, my airline of choice when there isn't a train going there and I can't pull a John Sununu and get a corporate jet, was ranked as the second best U.S. airline in terms of service.

Good news. Or is it? Know what airline was Consumer Reports had more depressing news. In its July issue it said airline service is only a shadow of what it was before deregulation. Examples:

Seating is more cramped.

2. Nonstop flights are less common.

3. Delays are more likely. I can give other examples of my own:

1. The meals nay have gotten worse, if that is possible, and I'm sick of eating the alternative:

2. I haven't been on a flight in years when there weren't at least two screaming babies and a 4-yearold behind me kicking my seat.

3. More than one airliner has come apart in the sky, causing passengers to be sucked out (not an attractive alternative to having to eat and listen to screaming babies) in the not so distant past.

4. There was the case of the Northwest crew flying with buzzes from the bar the night before.

5. I seem to be flying on more and more flights with a New York-based flight attendant ("Can't you see I'm busy here?").

And know what else Consumer Reports has to say? It says service will continue to deteriorate. So what will air travel be like 10 years from now if the current trends continue? A Mexican bus ride. "Senor, you are seeting on Trains are the answer. Good trains. Clean trains.

Fast trains. Trains that are on time. Europe has trains like that. I've ridden all over Europe on trains. There's a train in France that goes 200 miles an hour and never has to circle the station for an hour due to bad weather or heavy traffic. And if there's a screaming baby on board, you can escape to the lounge car. Can't this country develop trains that will go 200 miles an hour? Of course we can. The only thing the French can do better than us is ruin perfectly good food by putting too much sauce on it.

Demand trains. And somebody will come up with the supply.

Public Notice

On July 22, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas for approval of two new optional services, Exchange Connection Service and Customer Alerting Enablement. Exchange Connection Service will permit a customer of the Telephone Company to provide voice messaging service, telephone answering service, or other services to itself or to patrons of the customer. Customer Alerting Enablement will permit residence and business lines to receive an alerting tone (intermittent dial tone) transmitted by an Exchange Connection Service customer. The proposed effective date for this offering is September 23, and will be available statewide where facilities permit.

The calling party's telephone number and other originating network call information will be delivered to the Exchange Connection Service customer when the calling number and the called number are served by the same switch. Additionally, the caller's telephone number and other originating network call information may be recorded and stored by the Exchange Connection Service customer. Customers may be able to identify the caller before the call is answered. All Exchange Connection Service customers will be required to sign a non-disclosure agreement prior to being provided service. In the agreement the customer agrees not to disclose the calling party's telephone number unless the customer has written permission from the

The Telephone Company estimates these new services will increase its annual revenues during the first year by approximately $1.2 million. Providers of voice messaging service and telephone answering services and their subscribers are the types of customers likely to be affected by approval of these services.

Exchange Connection Service is provided to customers in two parts: Local Serving Arrangement, which provides access to the exchange network; and Optional Service Features. The proposed rates, for both Exchange Connection Service and Customer Dependency on any of the drugs popularly called "tranquilizers" can become hard to break. But these medications remain an important tool in treatment of certain illnesses.

This family of drugs, known as benzodiazepines, include diazepam (marketed as Valium), lorazepan (Ativan), clorazepate (Tranxene), alprazolam (Xanax) and triazolam (Halcion).

Withdrawal from any of these drugs can bring on symptoms similar to those for which people started taking the medication originally.

"But the image of the nervous housewife or stressful executive dependent on tranquilizers that is familiar from books, movies and television, is sensationalistic and inaccurate," said Dr. Norman Sussman of NYU Medical Center.

"Contrary to these popular images," he added, "benzodiazepines are mostly taken by older people and by those who are ill."

There is a danger of tranquilizer dependency with these people, too, and Sussman cautioned that prescription and treatment should be carefully monitored by a physician who is experienced with using psychopharmacological agents.

Sussman said that when people abruptly go off this class of drugs "they often experience anxiety, insomnia, light and sound sensitivity, and flu-like symptoms. They generally feel rotten.'

To relieve these symptoms, some start taking the drug again.

"And once this cycle begins, it becomes more and more difficult to stop it," said Sussman, who is director of residency training in psychiatry at the medical center.

In many cases, Sussman noted, anxiety is chronic and has a biological basis, so psychotherapy alone is not necessarily an efficient alternative treatment for these patients.

These people often have a low threshold for symptoms such as heart palpitations, trembling, muscle spasms, sweating, tension and diarrhea, and benzodiazepines can be helpful in reducing or tolerating those symptoms.

Other people who are not chronically anxious may also becomedrug-dependent, Sussman said. But in many cases these people had problems with substance dependency before they began tranquilizers.

Most people use these drugs as prescribed, according to Sussman. But if there is a personal or family history of alcohol or drug abuse, there is a greater likelihood that there is going to be dependency or excessive use of tranquilizers — in some instances not just to relieve anxiety but to get a euphoric high.

Dear Abby Abigali Van Buren

Couple's 44 years of bliss began in ladies lounge

DEAR ABBY: Can you stand one more letter about crazy wedding nights? My mother and dad have repeated this story often. Dad had relied on close friends to reserve the bridal suite in the Mallory — a lovely old residential hotel in Portland, Ore. As it turned out, the friends didn't think it was necessary to make reservations, so they didn't bother. Well, as luck would have it, there was a plumbers' convention in town that week and, needless to say, every hotel was filled to capacity.

The manager of the Mallory was gracious enough to find them a place to sleep for the night. The first "room' they were offered was a closet under the stairs with no ventilation. The second option was the Women's Lounge located on the main floor of the hotel right off the lobby. They chose the lounge. The management brought in two roll-away beds and hung a "CLOSED" sign on the door. Dad said he unscrewed hundreds of light bulbs from around the vanity mirrors because he couldn't find the light switch to turn them off.

My folks said there were about eight toilets in the room, and they never used the same one twice.

All night long women were knocking on their door — trying to get in to use the restroom. They didn't get much sleep, but they had a lot of laughs and made the best of the

Their union produced five children, and lasted until mother's death six months ago — one month short of their 44th anniversary.

DEAR ABBY: I read with sorrow your reply to "Forever a Baby" who couldn't understand why parents worry so much. You said, "It's every parent's nightmare that their child will be badly hurt or killed in an automobile accident." How true.

We worried about our two sons. One was fairly cautious — the other was a speeder. We got them through high school and thought we were home free.

On April 8, our youngest son decided to ride to town with a friend who had been drinking. The friend drove too fast, and both were killed in a one-car accident. To "Baby" I say, "Be glad you have

It takes an unusually creative also a magnificent saga of men and crimes — she finds the courage to mind to extract humor from the workings of the government, but P.J. O'Rourke proves that nothing, not even Washington can crush his satiric spirit. Beginning with the timely question, "What the hell do these guys do all day, and why does it cost so much goddamn moeny?" O'Rourke explores the boondoggles and swindles, exposing the boondogglers and swindlers. In the grand tradition of Hunter S. Thompson and H.L. Mencken, the author again employs his razor-edges wit to deflate buraucratic gasbags and ridicule pompous politicians.

In this compelling tale of sex, sin and corruption, James O'Shea tells the story of the safe little Texas S&L that became the government's black hole. R.B. Tanner was an honest man to whom the folks of Vernon, Texas, entrusted their life earnings — unitl Don Dixon, a highrolling real estate developer, sweet talked him into selling out. From a moonlight cruise with beautiful young women hired for the evening to a $22,000 pastronomic Tour-de-France to the land deals that Dixon flipped like pancakes, Mr. O'Shea captures what will go down in history as in Edwin Gray's pricless term, lover, Kathe, a celebrated German - among them, Winnie's life-long "fiduciary pornography" with great

Marinovich throws TD for L.A. win

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

IRVING. Texas (AP) - Kenny Stabler became an NFL legend throwing left-handed passes for the old Oakland Raiders. Now the Los Angeles Raiders have another lefthanded quarterbacking wonder in the wings.

Todd Marinovich made a smashing NFL debut Monday night, even if it was an exhibition game.

He looked every nickel worth the three-year, $2.25 million contract he signed after being drafted in the first round by the Raiders.

Marinovich, of Southern California, threw his first professional touchdown pass early in the fourth period, and it was a game-winner in a 17-12 victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

"He can throw the ball on the money," said Los Angeles coach Art Shell. "For the first time out he did a very good job. He had good command in the huddle and he threw the ball well when he had to throw it. He can go deep and he has the touch for the intermediate routes.'

Marinovich took the Raiders 80 yards in eight plays, helped along by a 28-yard interference penalty against Robert Williams. After a yard loss, Marinovich hit Gregg Bell with a 2-yard scoring pass.

"That felt good, moving the team like that," Marinovich said. "It was a good way to break in.'

Marinovich hit 3 of 4 passes for 16 yards in his first NFL action.

"Our defense was fantastic," Shell said. "We held a good team to 12 points. I told the team before the game that we needed to start putting it together."

The Raiders (1-2) built a 10-9 that exempts the stadium from a 10 miles northwest of downtown halftime lead against the Cowboys (1-1) on a 6-yard scoring run by

Red Sox sweep Blue Jays

By BEN WALKER AP Baseball Writer

It happens every summer.

Sooner or later, the Toronto Blue Jays find a way to remind everyone they have a history of blowing big leads. And this year appears to be no different — after playing like world-beaters for the first half of the season, now they can't beat any-

SkyDome Monday night, stopping the Blue Jays 11-8 despite a bad outing by Roger Clemens.

The Red Sox, on the verge of falling out of the American League East race, are suddenly back in it, trailing Toronto by just seven games. The Blue Jays, meanwhile, have lost five in a row and 15 of 22, and their lead is only 3 1/2 games over second-place Detroit.

"We came in here and got what we needed," said Jack Clark, who drove in four runs, giving him 10 RBIs in the series. "But this sweep doesn't mean anything if we don't keep the momentum."

Historians: bones may be remnants of war experiments

By MARI YAMAGUCHI Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) - Dozens of fragmented skulls and thigh bones unearthed at a construction site are locked at an undertaker's storage area. Mysteriously, the government just wants to dispose of, not identify, the human remains.

Historians think they know the reason: The bones were uncovered where Japan's military medical school stood during World War II and could be the remains of prisoners who died in germ warfare experiments by the shadowy Unit 731 in northern China.

"Considering the cooperation between the medical school and Unit 731, the bones are highly likely to be the remains of Chinese and Russian war prisoners killed and shipped from China after the germ experiments," said Keiichi Tsuneishi, a history professor at Kanagawa University.

with typhus, cholera and other diseases as part of its grisly research into germ warfare, say historians and former members of the unit.

It also reportedly induced gangrene, performed vivisections and froze prisoners to death in endurance tests.

Tsuneishi and other researchers believe the medical school's Laboratory of Preventive Medicine was used to store documents and specimens from the unit's human victims.

Police investigator Kenichi Eguchi told Parliament earlier this year that the uncovered bones were of men and women who died at least 20 years ago. The remains were only checked to determine if they belonged to victims of violent crime, and he said no such evidence was found.

The Health and Welfare Ministry has twice refused requests from Shinjuku ward to conduct tests to identify the remains by sex, age and Asian nations have accused Japan race, said ward official Koichi of playing down or denying atroci- Negishi. Three research institutions, ties that Japanese soldiers commit-including the National Science Museum, also have refused.

"We thought it was only approtence of the unit, but has never priate for (the ministry) to investigate and react more seriously' because the bones may be related to the unit, Negishi said.

germ warfare experiments. Kazuyuki Kawamura, a socialist ward assemblyman from Shinjuku, will visit Harbin and Beijing this month with a citizen group demanding the government gather more evidence about Unit 731 and identify the bones.

Some group members visited China in June and returned with letters written by Chinese families who believe Unit 731 killed their relatives. The letters, handed to the Foreign Ministry, demand compensation and an investigation into the that Japan has concealed."

The group also brought back a research paper by Han Xiao, head of the Unit 731 museum in Harbin, that cites similarities in the Shinjuku bones and remains uncovered on the site of the unit's headquarters in the northern Chinese city.

The Chinese believe the bones discovered in Harbin are the remains of "maruta" - a derogatory Japanese word for prisoners of war - Unit 731 killed at the war's end in an attempt to wipe out evidence of the experiments, the Japanese quote Han as saying.
