sible for following the 24th Infantry Division, containing approximately 25,000 troops, and handling incoming and outgoing emergency messages.

They would receive 60 to 70 messages at a time that would have to be sorted, distributed and delivered, Savoie explained.

Initially, the Red Cross workers attempted to handle loans and grants for servicemen for emergency situations. Savoie said it soon became evident that that service was impractical since there was no time or place to spend the money.

The Red Cross workers were in a convoy following the division as it moved into Iraqi territory, Savoie said. Despite the danger of being so near the front lines, he said he was more frightened the first night he arrived in Saudi Arabia when he witnessed the SCUD attacks at Dharan

"I wanted to go out to the desert where it was safe," he laughed.

When the ground war started and his division began to move into Iraq, Savoie said they received 333 messages when they first stopped. "We got them logged in and delivered either by phone or through the military within two days," he said proudly.

"The civilians were the ones that really got hurt more from what we saw," he said, adding that more than 1,100 civilians were assisted by the 24th Infantry alone. The civilians were given 1,000 blankets, 120,000 meals and 550 cases of water, he said.

"We were the only (Red Cross) team that went to war with our division," Savoie said.

Red Cross communications workers delivered 150,000 messages from the start of the Gulf War through Aug. 30, Savoie reported. Of those, 90,000 concerned health and welfare, 10,000 were birth announcements and 31,000 resulted in emergency leaves, he said.

The local chapters were invaluable in helping families communicate with their loved ones in the Gulf and in boosting the morale of the soldiers, he said.

Local chapters assisted in delivering messages, easing the adjustment for the children whose parents were in the Gulf and for forming support groups for military families. They also provided loans and grants for emergency situations, he said.

The Red Cross shipped 235 tons of morale building supplies to the Gulf during the war, he said. These included packets of toiletries, games and mail that the soldiers would not have otherwise had, Savoie explained.

'I hear that the morale snack bags are still being delivered, which makes me glad to know that the ones in the Gulf are still being taken care of," he said.

Yugoslav forces move against Croatian towns

By TONY SMITH Associated Press Writer

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) -Federal tanks and artillery roared into Croatia today and attacked troops from the secessionist republic that have surrounded army barracks and cut off their supplies, Croatian officials said.

The sharp escalation in the 2month-old fighting also appeared aimed at knocking out the few remaining Croat strongholds in the republic's east, which is dominated by ethnic Serbs.

Nearly 500 people have died in battles between the republic's forces backed by the Serb-led federal army. day. The violence began after Croatia declared independence June 25.

If the federal military offensive succeeds in gaining control of all Serb-dominated areas, it would reduce Croatia to a smaller and weaker republic.

After crossing the border, the federal forces first turned their guns and cannons on the border villages of Nijemci, Lipovac and Tovarnik, said a Croatian Defense Ministry spokesman, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Federal units then moved toward other Croat-held areas, including the besieged cities of Vukovar and Osijek, where army barracks were surrounded by republic forces. The blockades have cut off food, water diers and forced some of them to condition of anonymity.

LUBBOCK (AP) - The sisters of an infant girl who died in 1955 in what was ruled an accidental fall say they have lived most of their lives knowing their baby sister was murdered and have come forward to let "the justice system work," according to police reports.

The sisters' testimony resulted in a grand jury indictment Thursday against Colleen Parker McMorris on charges that she killed her 23-monthold stepdaughter 36 years ago.

Mrs. McMorris, 60, now living in the Oklahoma City suburb of Nicoma Park, waived extradition and was expected to be brought to Lubbock today, said Lubbock County District Attorney Travis Ware.

Mrs. McMorris was arrested Wednesday and charged with one count of murder. Bond was recommended at $250,000.

Carolyn Yvonne McMorris died Dec. 5, 1955, in West Texas Hospital in Lubbock of a cerebral hemorrhage. Doctors determined the 23-month-old infant's death was accidental after Mrs. McMorris told them the baby fell from her crib, Ware said.

But Carolyn's sisters, Anita Kay Clark, 41, and Debra Callarman, 39, came forward Tuesday, saying they witnessed Colleen McMorris kill their baby sister when they were 5

Heavy rains have border residents on alert

By KELLEY SHANNON Associated Press Writer

Water officials on the Texas-Mexico border near Del Rio are closely monitoring the level of Lake Amistad after heavy rainfall caused rivers emptying into the reservoir to rise.

The International Boundary and Water Commission said Thursday if heavy rains persisted in the Rio Grande watershed, water releases from Lake Amistad might have to increase.

Val Verde County emergency workers prepared for that possibility and urged residents of the Vega Verde and Chaparral Hills communities just below the lake on the Rio Grande to leave for higher ground.

"We've got quite a bit of flooding," said sheriff's communications officer Ray Hernandez. "It hasn't really flooded any residences out, but it's pretty close.

The sheriff's department helped at least five families evacuate with the help of four-wheeldrive vehicles. Several roads in the two neighborhoods were closed because of high water.

The rains tapered off by Thursday afternoon and the roads were reopened by early evening, said Lt. Leon Skeleton, of the Val Verde Sheriff's Department. "It's under control," Skeleton said. But Skeleton said water releases were contin-

Testimony: Braun killed clerk to eliminate witness

By DEBORAH BAKER Associated Press Writer

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) - Hours after he killed a store clerk, Gregg Francis Braun told a police officer he did it to eliminate her as a robbery witness, a jury in Braun's death penalty trial was told.

Prosecutors hope the statement Thursday from a Colfax County sheriff's deputy will be sufficient to convince jurors to sentence the Kansas man to death for the 1989 murder of Geraldine Valdez of Springer.

Testimony was to continue today in the proceeding, which will determine whether Braun should be executed or sentenced to life in prison.

Sunday debates idea is intriguing

During the last presidential election, only about half of the nation's registered voters bothered to go to the polls. That was the poorest turnout since 1924.

When asked why they stayed home, respondents cited a variety of reasons, ranging from negative campaigning to the belief that the candidates simply could not be trusted. This cynicism helps explain the disturbing decline in voter participation during the last three decades.

Several recommendations have been advanced to reverse this trend. And one of the most intriguing is the "Nine Sundays" plan proposed recently by a Harvard University research team.

The plan stems from a 30-month project undertaken by the Joan Shorenstein Barone Center on the Press, Politics and Public Policy. It calls for three different forms of nationally televised political discussion during then nine Sundays between Labor Day and election day.

Specifically, major TV networks and other news organizations would broadcast two 90-minute presidential debates and one vice presidential debate. Coverage of five issue-oriented conversations with the presidential candidates would be rotated among the major networks but would be carried live by the cable news organizations and public broadcasting stations.

To offset their costs and lost revenues, the networks would be allowed to sell advertising time to be aired before or after the conversations. On the Sunday night before election day, each presidential candidate would be granted television time to address the nation.

This more substantial coverage could help elevate the televised political discourse between the candidates and voters. At present, television coverage too frequently is dominated by 10-second sound bytes and photo opportunities.

Another good idea is to change the debate format to encourage candidates to match their ideas against those of their opponents. In recent years, most of the presidential debates have resembled paralleled press conferences. It also makes sense to eliminate the live audience that has created a game-show feel to the proceedings.

Americans increasingly have come to view presidential politics as boring; duplicitous and irrelevant to their lives. One reason for this is that candidates are packaged by their professional handlers and presented to voters like boxes of sugar-coated cereal.

The print and electronic media need to do a better job of preventing the political process from becoming even more tainted in the minds of voters. Toward that end, journalists should help set the agenda by focusing more on issues and less on personalities.

At a time when democracy is being embraced in every corner of the globe, the United States should be seeking ways to re-invigorate voters' interest and confidence in the electoral process. The "Nine Sundays" plan might not be the ideal vehicle, but it nonetheless is an interesting starting point.

Women and the glass ceiling

WASHINGTON - In recent weeks we have heard a great deal about the dismal prospects of the United States in the next century, Our high school students fare poorly in international competition. Their Scholastic Aptitude Test scores are dismal. Everything is getting soft, and the country is going to the bow-wows.

Maybe so, but a couple of reports from the U.S. Department of Labor suggest that not all is lost. American employers, for the most part, are overlooking a resource that could make a tremendous ing women. This is, when you think about it, a thoroughly dumb thing to do.

Last month's report on the "glass ceiling" in business and industry has been well-publicized. An earlier report by Clifford Adelman, "Women at to support this thesis. For a variety of reasons, large corporations depend upon executive commitwell-qualified women tend to rise to a certain executive level – and there they stop.

The glass-ceiling study looked closely at nine Fortune 500 companies. These were scattered across the United States. They ranged in size from 8,000 employees to more than 300,000 employees, but they showed an identical pattern. Within these companies, qualified women run into artificial barriers that prevent them from advancing to top positions in mangament.

Some of the barriers are organizational. Most top executive jobs are filled from within, and most promotions depend heavily on tenure. Typically, a Networking is a practice that works against women; this is the informal system by which top jobs result from word-of-mouth referrals. There is Thirtysomething," provides an abundance of facts a network of old boys, but not of old girls. Many tees at lower levels of management; if women are not named to these committees, they lose the experience that goes into promotions and raises.

> Other barriers are attitudinal. Sexual sterotypes exsist. Justice William Brennan described them two years ago in the case of Ann B. Hopkins of Price Waterhouse. After five years with the company, her name was put up for promotion to partner. Thirteen of her evaluations were excellent; she had landed a fat contract for the firm, her work was outstanding and so on.

But "on too many occasions Hopkins' aggressiveness apparently spilled over into abrasiveness." She was criticized for being brusque, profane, high-ranking executive will have served 25 years unduly harsh, difficult to work with; in sum, she with the company. Whatever the causes, the evidence is clear. In the admittedly limited sample of the glass-ceiling study, only 6.6 percent of top executives were women. In Charleston, S.C., two women reporters for the Post-Courier took a look locally. At South Carolina Electric & Gas, only one of 18 top executives is a woman. At publicly owned Santee Cooper, women held two of 11 top spots. At South Carolina National Bank, the score was two to 40. At the College of Charleston, two of 13.

Are women, as a class, less qualified? The Adelman study looked at the high school class of 1972 and followed graduates for 14 years. Both in high school and in college, women's academic perfomance was superior to men's. Women went on to college at the same rate as men; they won more scholarships, completed degrees faster and had higher grade-point averages. Their achievements in mathematics were notably higher than men's.

Why aren't these findings reflected in the executive suite? The defensive response of management is that in time, they will be reflected. Women will be brought increasingly into lower management levels, and will be pushed toward the top. "Yeah," says the vice president of my own corporation, with a small note of weariness in her voice,

Biden says he doesn't know whether to believe in Thomas' changed views

By JAMES ROWLEY Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee says he is in a quandary over whether to accept Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas' disavowal of views he expressed as a Reagan administration official.

"I'm wrestling with what you have all said, in one form or another - the issue of credibility," Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del., on Thursday told a group of civil rights leaders who testified against Thomas' nomina-

At the same time, Biden said he was not persuaded by arguments that the conservative nominee showed opposition to abortion in speeches and writings as chairman of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in the Reagan administration.

Biden, who says he is undecided on Thomas' nomination, made his comments as the Judiciary Committee continued to hear from public witnesses on both sides

The panel planned to take testimony from more than 30 witnesses today on the final day of confirmation

A committee vote on Thomas' nomination to be the nation's second black Supreme Court justice could come as early as next Thursday, with action by the full Senate the following week.

Democrats and Republicans alike are predicting that Thomas will win confirmation.

Critics contend that Thomas misled the committee by denying that he ever spoke out against abortion and insisting he advocated natural-law principles as political theory not as a method of interpreting the Constitution. But Biden said abortion-rights activists showed a Chambers.

"failure of logic" by arguing that a 1987 speech by Thomas was evidence that he opposed abortion.

"I did not find anywhere in the record on that issue where he evidenced extreme views," the chairman said. In the speech to a conservative audience, Thomas praised an anti-abortion article as a "splendid example of applying natural law."

Biden's comments Thursday indicated that he accepted Thomas' explanation that he had mentioned the anti-abortion article by businessman Lewis Lehrman only to sell his audience on his theories of natural law law inherent in humanity.

"I am trying to decide with some precision about what he did say and what he didn't say," Biden said. "The worrisome parts of all of his speeches have been throwaway lines.

That task wasn't made easier, Biden said, by Thomas' refusal to state his views about abortion and other issues when asked about it during five days of testimony

Julius L. Chambers, director of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund Inc., argued that Thomas' testimony showed that "fits substantive views are too extreme for the Supreme Court" and that he "is not qualified to sit on the court.' But Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said he didn't find Thomas' views as extreme as those of Robert Bork, whose nomination to the high court he opposed four

"Unlike Bork, Judge Thomas stated he recognized a constitutional right to privacy," DeConcini said. "I find that a big difference.'

"I wonder ... if President Bush can really support anyone you could support, based upon President Bush's very strong conservative philosophy," DeConcini told

The Bible Church of Pampa, 300 W. Browning, celebrates its 10th annual Fall Bible Conference this year with guest speaker the Rev. Marvin J. Rosenthal, executive director of Zion's Hope Inc.

Zion's Hope is a non-profit faith mission dedicated to delivering the gospel of Jesus Christ to the Jews.

The conference will begin at 7 p.m. Saturday when Rosenthal will teach "Jesus Christ: Prophet, Priest and King." On Sunday, the conference meetings will continue at 10 a.m. with "The Emergence of the Modern State of Israel, and the Biblical Implications." At 11 a.m., Rosenthal will lecture on "Iran, Iraq and the Middle East Crisis," and the 7 p.m. lesson will be "The Prewrath Rapture of the Church."

Roger A. Hubbard, pastor fo the Bible Church of Pampa, invites the public to attend each of the services. A separate conference designed just for the children will be held in the church's Fellowship Hall during all of the services, and a nursery will be provided.

Rosenthal is general editor of Zion's Fire, a monthly magazine dealing with Israel, the prophetic Word, Bible teaching and evangelism. His articles have appeared in many Christian publications, and he is the author of the book, Not Without Design. A second book on prophecy, The Prewrath Rapture of the Church was recently published by Thomas Nelson.

Rosenthal served in the pastorate for six years, and for 16 years was the director of the missionary organization, Friends of Israel, before assuming his duties with Zion's Hope.

Religion roundup

BRIGHTON, England (AP) – Archbishop of Canterbury George Carey has praised the charismatic movement, saying it brings "great blessings to us all."

At an ecumenical convocation on evangelism, Carey noted the growth of Pentecostalism with its expressive emotions, and urged church leaders not to ignore it.

"It's the fastest-growing section of the religious community," he said later in a BBC interview. "We must listen to what it's saying to us."

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) – Under a directive adopted by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), a meeting here of an investment committee singled out 12 tobacco companies subject to divestment by the church.

They are American Brands (American Tobacco Company), BAT Industries (Brown and Williamson), Culbro Corporation (General Cigar), Dibrell Brothers, Imasco Ltd., Liggett Group, Philip Morris, Rothmans Inc., RJR Nabisco, Standard Commercial, UST Inc. and Universal Corporation (Universal Leaf).

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) – A petition by a group of pastors and lay people asks the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America to reject a commissionproposed resolution on abortion and take a stronger stand against it.

The commission proposal, scheduled for the denomination's assembly in Orlando, Fla., Aug. 28-Sept. 4, would approve abortion only when a pregnancy threatens the mother's life, when the fetus is fatally deformed, or in the case of rape or incest.

The proposed substitute would reject abortion "for any reason other than saving the life of the mother."

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) - The Rev. Robert Williams, a sexually active gay priest who was suspended after he made disparaging remarks about Mother Teresa's lack of an active sex life, has renounced ties with the Episcopal Church.

He so notified Newark Bishop John Spong in a letter after telling a group in Provincetown, Mass., where he now lives that he is "completely through with the Episcopal church" and had renounced its 'doctrine, discipline and worship."

Williams said in an interview he assumed the Newark diocese now would act to depose him. He said he still would remain a Christian priest, but "as far as official affiliation, I am out."

Smoking is not the cause of all lung cancer deaths

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the public has the right to know the some prominent people who had died person dies. of lung cancer, struck a very painful chord within me.

Dr. Leaf mentioned Steve Mc-Queen among those who had died as a result of smoking. Abby, Steve McQueen died of a malignant pleural mesothelioma, which is almost always due to long-term exposure to asbestos and is completely unrelated to smoking. I understand that Mr. McQueen at one time worked as an automobile brake repairman, which would have exposed him to asbestos on a daily basis.

My mother was a physician and the director of health for Alamance County, North Carolina. She was also a tireless crusader for good health habits. Two years ago, she died of malignant pleural mesthelioma. My mother never smoked nor was she exposed to aspestos, and we have no idea why she developed lung cancer.

I certainly do not appreciate Dr. Leaf's implication that all lung cancers are the result of smoking and should be so publicized in the obituaries of the deceased.

You will no doubt hear from many other families who were equally offended by Dr. Leaf's misinformation, and I am sure that as usual you will set the record straight.

JILL B. KOURY, M.D.

DEAR DR. KOURY: Thank you for writing. I tried to locate Dr. Leaf, who is now retired and has an unlisted telephone number. I hope that after this appears in my column, he will write again and set the record straight.

Dodgers, Braves to duel in critical series

By BEN WALKER AP Baseball Writer

Even at Dodger Stadium, the fans might be in their seats early and stay late this weekend.

'In a very California way, it's going to be an exciting time," pitcher Jim Gott said, looking ahead to the NL West showdown with Atlanta. "These people in LA are very used to winning. We've had great crowds all year long. I think you're going to see the volume turned up.'

The Braves and Dodgers each won Thursday, meaning Los Angeles takes a one-half game lead into tonight's opener of a three-game series. The Braves went into last weekend with a one-half game lead and then beat Los Angeles two of three in Atlanta.

"I think being a half-game out, the players will tend to be a little more relaxed and a lot more confident," said Lonnie Smith, who scored the go-ahead run in the 10th inning Thursday night as Atlanta won in San Diego 4-2. "Our goal right now is not to sweep them, but at least to win two out of three."

The Dodgers are the best home team in the majors at 48-24 after beating Houston 4-3. The Braves are the league's second-best road team, next to Pittsburgh, at 39-33. Los for his 10th save. Angeles is 9-6 against Atlanta this

Andy Benes, with an NL-best Dodgers 4, Astros 3 nine-game winning streak, held Atlanta hitless until Smith homered in the sixth inning to tie it at 1. After Fred McGriff's RBI double put the Padres ahead in the bottom of the sixth, Smith singled home the tying run in the seventh.

San Diego threatened in the ninth, even after a disputed interference call cost it a runner at second base. The Padres went on to load the bases with two outs, but Mark Wohlers (2-1) got pinch-hitter Tom Lampkin on a sharp grounder.

Smith singled off Craig Lefferts (1-6) to start the 10th. Vinny Castilla's sacrifice bunt was mishandled by McGriff for one error, and runners at second and third. After Terry Pendleton was intentionally Atlanta. walked, David Justice hit an RBI sacrifice fly.

Darryl Strawberry again haunted Houston, this time with a two-run homer in the first inning that sent Los Angeles to its fourth straight victory.

Strawberry has 10 home runs and 27 RBIs in 18 games against the Astros. He has 25 homers and 92 RBIs overall. He is tied with Dale Murphy for the most home runs in a season against Houston.

Kevin Gross, pitching in place of St. Louis. Tim Belcher, helped the host Giants 4, Reds 1 Dodgers win for the 16th time in 21 games. Rookie Omar Olivares (9-6) took a two-hit shutout into the ninth. But singles by Cecil Espy and Bobby Bonilla brought on reliever Bob McClure, who gave up Barry Bonds' RBI grounder.

Wilkerson, hitting .185, batted for reliever Stan Belinda and connected on the first pitch from Lee Smith for his first home run since April 29, 1989. Wilkerson's slam was the first by a Pirates pinch-hitter since Richie Hebner's homer on Sept. 15, 1983, also against Smith.
