Bush asks U.N. to repeal Zionism resolution

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — President Bush today called on the United Nations to repeal its 1975 resolution equating Zionism with racism, and told the General Assembly, "we cannot compromise" U.N. demands that Iraq destroy its nuclear weapon capability.

In a speech designed to outline the opportunities for peace in the post-Cold War era, Bush spoke up on behalf free economic markets and cautioned against the threat posed by "suppressed ethnic rivalries" in Europe.

Bush spoke hopefully of a world "leavened by the Cold War's end," and called on all nations to work to resolve border disputes peacefully.

He said the United States had no desire to impose a "pax Americana" on the world. At the same time, he said, "We will not retreat and pull back into isolation ... we will offer friendship and leadership."

He spent much of his time discussing the ticklish diplomatic matters of the Middle East, calling for the release of the western hostages being held in Lebanon. "Let's put the law above the crude and cowardly practice of hostage holding," he said.

Bush said it was time to address old feuds that bedevil world peace, and asked the U.N. to repeal its anti-Zionism resolution.

"Zionism is not a policy, it was an idea that led to the home of the Jewish people in the state of Israel," he said.

To equate Zionism with racism "is to reject Israel itself," said Bush, who has angered Israelis in recent days by calling for a delay in consideration of housing lona guarantees for the Jewish state.

Israel hailed Bush's call for a repeal of the resolution. "It's very encouraging to hear the president did it," said Yossi Ahimeir, a top aid to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

Bush said Iraq was contemptuous of U.N. resolutions that require cooperation with U.N. inspection teams looking for mass weapons. "His contempt continues even as I am speaking," Bush said of President Saddam Hussein.

"We cannot compromise for a moment in seeing that Iraq destroys all its weapons of mass destruction and the means to deliver them, and we shall not compromise."

Bush was asked later, at the start of a meeting with Brazilian President Fernando Collor de Mello, if he was going to send additional U.S. troops to the gulf.

"We're trying to sort all this out. ... I'm determined that the resolutions will be implemented fully," Bush said.

"Until we know a little more, there's going to be no decisions on what the United States is going to do," he said.

Bush spoke as U.N. officials disclosed that Iraq had detained a team of U.N. nuclear weapons inspectors in Baghdad who had found documents apparently proving that Iraq was developing nuclear weapons.

Bush said last week he would send U.S. warplanes back to the Persian Gulf if necessary to protect the U.N. inspectors and their helicopters. Britain and France said they would take like measures. At the United Nations today, diplomats said the warplane flights could come as early as this week.

A year ago, Bush used his U.N. address to demand Iraq's withdrawal from a neighbor it invaded, Kuwait, and again this time Iraq demanded the president's immediate attention. A sense of urgency arose with disclosure that Iraq had detained a team of U.N. nuclear weapons inspectors in a building in Baghdad today after they seized documents.

The Security Council has ordered the destruction of Iraq's nuclear and chemical arms capability.

However, Bush's U.N. address contained "no ultimatum" for Saddam.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III deplored Iraq's latest action.

"I think it's extraordinarily regrettable," Baker said. "The Security Council resolutions that call for inspections are unconditional."

In a hint that the allies might use force again against the Iraqi president, Baker added: "We saw earlier the tragic consequences of failure to comply with Security Council resolution."

Baker, just back from the Mideast, said before the latest development that Iraq was "not as cooperative, frankly, as the international community has every right to expect."

Authorities questioning suspect in $4 million thefts of radio parts

By DEE DEE LARAMORE
News Editor

Area law enforcement authorities are checking past reports of electronic parts thefts to see if the thefts could be connected to a Granbury man currently held in Hemphill County Jail. The man has reportedly admitted to thefts of at least $4 million worth of electronic communications equipment in nine states.

Texas Ranger Gary Henderson of Pampa said today that Chief Deputy Terry Cox of the Gray County Sheriff's Office is going back to a theft near Pampa that may be related to other area thefts for which the 36-year-old man has been charged. Cox was unavailable for comment this morning.

Alan Lee Sherrer of Granbury remained in Hemphill County Jail this morning on a charge of burglary of a building.

Sherrer's arrest was the result of Henderson, Hemphill County Sheriff Billy Bowen, Sgt. Bill McMinn and Ochiltree County Deputy Terry Busshard traveling to Granbury late last week to question Sherrer. Sherrer had been arrested by Granbury authorities in connection with similar thefts in New Mexico, Henderson said. After questioning, the local authorities were able to obtain a warrant from Assistant District Attorney John Mann.

After the suspect was arraigned in Granbury, he was returned to Hemphill County where Justice of Peace Frankie Hill set bond at $50,000 on a charge of burglary of a building.

Sheriff Bowen said today that 11 different charges come from the burglary of the one building. Investigation of the Hemphill County thefts is continuing today with more charges possible, he said.

Ochiltree County authorities have also placed a hold on the suspect in connection with electronic parts thefts in that county. Sheriff Joe Hataway said this morning.

Hataway said he believed his office had enough evidence for a warrant to be issued, but that he was waiting for Sept. 30 when District Attorney Bruce Roberson returned. His office is also preparing the evidence for presentation to a grand jury meeting set for early October, he said.

The suspect has admitted to stealing electronic communications equipment from as many as nine states, Bowen said today. Originally the man admitted to thefts at at least 67 locations in Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Kansas, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia and Florida, according to the sheriff. Earlier today, the state of Colorado was added to the list, Bowen said.

Sherrer operated an electronics business in Granbury, Bowen said. Prior to his arrest on the New Mexico and Hemphill County charges, Sherrer's only other police record concerned a traffic offense, Bowen said.

Wheeler sheriff ordered to pay back $86.91

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

WHEELER — Sheriff Jimmy Adams was ordered Monday by Wheeler County Commissioners Court to pay the county $86.91 he could not account for from his drug money fund.

The action came during a meeting at the county court house.

County Judge Wendell Morgan said, "The county commission ordered that he repay it out of his personal money. According to our county attorney, all other expenses (charged against the drug fund) are legitimate."

Almost $4,000 in drug funds were being questioned by the court when Adams could not come up with receipts for much of it.

During their last meeting, Adams apologized for buying a rifle and camera and giving $1,200 to an undercover officer for living expenses.

However, Wheeler County

Attorney Steven Emmert told commissioners Monday that the three items were legitimate expenses and that he could account for all but $86.91 of the drug money.

The court also asked Adams to sit down with two former deputies, Dennis Hilburn and Robert Judd, to discuss alleged overtime and vacation payments they are claiming for a period covering "two or three years."

Hilburn and Judd were two of four sheriff's office employees who were dismissed in August amidst allegations of promiscuity in the department.

While Adams declined to comment on the circumstances surrounding the firings, Hilburn confirmed that moral concerns within the sheriff's department may have been a contributing factor.

"But that was four or five months ago that that went on and we thought everything was just fine now," Hilburn told the Pampa News during an August interview. "He (Adams) just didn't have the guts to do anything about it at the time."

Judge Morgan said the overtime and vacation pay that Hilburn and Judd are claiming "don't agree" with county records.

"We have received correspondence from Mr. Hilburn's attorney asking for the overtime," Morgan said.

Commissioner Edwin Harrison told reporters the court has not agreed to pay any vacation or overtime pay, but wants to see what the county can determine is owed to the pair, if anything.

Asked if this would resolve a string of controversies involving the sheriff's office, Morgan said, "I've been at this a long time and I've learned that every time you settle one thing, something else comes up."

Adams took office after Sheriff Lonnie Miller was killed in a 1989 traffic accident. Alcohol consumption by Miller was listed as a contributing factor in the late-night collision.

CED 14 units to pay own tax collection costs

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Board members for County Education District 14 voted Tuesday night not to have the CED pay expenses associated with collecting the new education tax which funds education in six northeastern Panhandle counties.

During a meeting at Pampa Middle School, board member Tom Grantham of Miami moved to allocate CED tax collection funds back to the education district, with each individual district then billed based on their average daily attendance to cover that expense.

However, Grantham could muster only five of the 15 votes on hand, with nine representatives voting nay and the board member from Alanreed abstaining.

After the meeting Phil Vanderpool, the CED representative from Pampa, said, "We are all concerned about losing local control of education and one of the ways we can maintain what little control there is left in the system is to govern our own costs of collecting the CED tax."

He also said, "We are concerned about the CED becoming a boondoggle and my feeling is the more complicated you make it, the more it costs the taxpayers."

Vanderpool said without the vote, each of the 16 school districts in CED 14, which includes schools in Gray, Hutchinson, Roberts, Hemphill, Ochiltree and Lipscomb counties, will pay their own tax collection costs.

Alanreed, Lefors, Grandview-Hopkins, Canadian, Plemons-Stinnett-Phillips, Spring Creek, Follett, Darrouzett and Miami school systems will then turn over a portion of the funds they collect through taxes for re-distribution in less property wealthy districts.

CED 14 trustees also accepted $5 million in pledged securities from Amarillo National Bank, the depository agent for the education district.

Dr. Dawson Orr, Pampa superintendent and CED 14 administrative agent, said that automated transactions through Amarillo National would allow disbursements to "non-provider" districts each time at least $50,000 was collected in the CED account.

Board members did not schedule another CED 14 meeting for the immediate future, saying all business was now taken care of in preparation for tax collection this year.

Rolf Ekeus, head of the U.N. special commission in charge of finding Iraq's weapons of mass destruction, confirms to reporters Monday at the U.N. that U.N. inspectors were being detained by Iraqis in Baghdad.

Iraqis detain 44 U.N. inspectors; want return of video, documents

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Iraqi troops detained 44 U.N. nuclear weapons inspectors in Baghdad again today and demanded they turn over a videotape made and documents collected in a search of a records building.

The same team was detained for more than 12 hours Monday when they found and copied secret documents they said proved Iraq has been developing nuclear weapons. Iraqi soldiers seized those papers.

President Bush urged Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to free the inspectors and comply with U.N. cease-fire resolutions allowing U.N. teams free access to Iraqi nuclear and weapons facilities.

"This is unacceptable behavior and I would not want to see Saddam Hussein miscalculate once again," Bush told reporters at a hotel in New York.

"We don't want to see any more anguish inflicted on the Iraqi people, but overriding that is the international community's determination that these resolutions be fully complied with," Bush added.

Iraq has denied repeatedly its nuclear program is intended to produce weapons, but U.N. inspectors have found evidence that Iraq lied about its nuclear, chemical, biological and ballistic missile capabilities.

Asked about the detention of the U.N. inspectors, Iraqi Ambassador Abdul Amir al-Anbari, said at the United Nations: "They could be spies. They could be traitors." When a reporter said the men were U.N. inspectors, al-Anbari retorted that even U.N. experts "could be spies or traitors."

Iraq was expected today to give the United Nations its first written statement outlining its position on U.N. aerial searches for weapons left after the Gulf War.

Bush has warned that the United States will send warplanes to escort the U.N. helicopters on the inspection missions, which Iraq has refused to permit on the ground that they violate Iraqi sovereignty.

David Kay, head of the U.N. inspection team in Baghdad, said 60 armed Iraqi security men were surrounding the U.N. team in six cars and a bus outside the building where they examined documents on Iraq's nuclear program today.

"There is a roadblock of three Iraqi security vehicles and a steel barricade," he said. "There are enough weapons to give one pause," he added, but said he did not feel the inspectors were in danger.

The Iraqis said the team could not leave without giving up the records taken or videotape shot during the search, Kay reported, but he said the team had "no intention of giving up that film." The inspection teams routinely videotape the buildings they inspect and the documents they examine.

Kay spoke in live interviews with CNN from Baghdad, using a portable satellite telephone. The unusual blow-by-blow account of a developing international incident might have been intended to pressure Saddam's government to accept U.N. demands for free inspection.

"It's essential for the international community's long-term stability that inspectors have the right to freely inspect, to collect data, to remove it for analysis," Kay said.

"Without that, arms control agreements around the world that I think we all want to see progress simply cannot go forward. So we're very firm in our position," he said.

Kay said the team also was in phone contact with U.N. officials in New York and Vienna, Austria, and radio contact with other U.N. personnel in Baghdad.

With nightfall approaching, Kay said the team had been detained since about 6 a.m. "We don't (have) freedom of movement," he said.

"We certainly would rather be somewhere else," he said.

David Kydd, chief spokesman of the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna, said the team was examining personnel records to learn who is in charge of Iraq's nuclear program. That would make it easier to monitor future Iraqi nuclear activities, he said.

Kydd said the Iraqi position was that personnel files were confidential and not covered by the cease-fire agreement.

Rolf Ekeus, chairman of the U.N. Special Commission in charge of finding and destroying Iraq's weapons of mass destruction, said the team also examined documents on Iraq's purchases of nuclear material abroad.

"Our inspectors have found some very important documents relating to the organizational setup and nuclear program," Ekeus said.

Earlier in the day, Iraq returned to the team some of the documents its troops confiscated Monday, but U.N. officials said key information on Iraq's nuclear weapons program appeared to be missing.

"We suspect that important documents have not been given back to us," said Hans-Friedrich Meyer, a spokesman of the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna.

U.N. inspectors found the documents, which they said provided strong evidence Iraq has been developing nuclear weapons, during a surprise search Monday. The inspectors were held for about 12 hours before the papers were seized by soldiers in another show of Iraqi defiance to the United Nations.

Bush

"The issue is getting adequate inspection access and it appears at least that some sort of protective military action may be the only response," added White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater.

Both statements suggested the Bush administration was still considering the use of armed escorts for U.N. helicopters on missions to inspect nuclear, chemical and biological weapons facilities in Iraq.

"The United Nations Security Council talks about unqualified compliance. There are no conditions in there," Baker said during a photo session with the Japanese foreign minister, Taro Nakayama.

Saddam had agreed at the end of the Persian Gulf War to permit U.N. access to an arsenal considered still to be potent despite heavy allied bombardment during the Persian Gulf War which led to Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait.

Moldavian mayor begins visit to U.S.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Mayor Nicolae Costin from the break-away Soviet republic of Moldavia says he'll spend the next month learning about free enterprise and meeting American political leaders.

Costin and his economic adviser, Victor Albina, began the public part of their Texas visit Monday after arriving here over the weekend.

"I'm hoping that myself and my colleague can familiarize ourselves with major directions of free marketing ... and maybe a few secrets of the business world," said Costin, mayor of the capital city of Kishinev.

After the failed Soviet coup in August, Moldavia declared its independence.

Kishinev now is known as Chishinau and Moldavia is called Moldova. Those were their names before Russia divided the republic from Romania in 1912, said Costin, who spoke with reporters in Romanian through an interpreter.

Costin plans to travel to Washington, D.C., this week to meet with senators about his country's independence from the Soviet Union.

The visit was arranged by the San Antonio group God's Love in Action and the Rev. Sammy Tippit, who helped Costin set up meetings with business and political leaders.

Costin plans to study the theory of free enterprise for a week at Baylor University and visit H-E-B Food Stores, Kinetic Concepts, Frost National Bank and other Texas companies.

Costin, also a leading member of parliament, said even though his country is rich in agriculture, its 4.5 million people still feel the effects of food shortages and other economic problems plaguing the Soviet Union.

"The crisis that surrounded this country is expanding over Moldova also. This small country is very rich with natural resources. It's the major resource for agriculture items — the shortage of food was felt a little," Costin said. "But we have problems. We had to introduce coupons for certain kinds of goods. This speaks about the problems that we have."

As the republic converts to a free-market system, Costin said, times will get even tougher.

Air attacks reported in Croatia as cease-fire enters its third day

By SLOBODAN LEKIC
 Associated Press Writer

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP) — As a cease-fire in Croatia entered its third day today, warplanes from the Serb-dominated army bombed two strategic cities in the secessionist republic and heavy fighting was reported in one of the cities. However, battles in the 12-week-old civil war were less widespread than before Croatia and the army signed a cease-fire on Sunday.

As the people of Croatia waited to see whether the latest cease-fire would hold, another Yugoslav ethnic group prepared to vote for independence, and the U.N. Security Council was to meet in New York on the Yugoslav crisis.

In addition, the eight-man federal presidency, which has been paralyzed by warfare and feuding among the republics, was to meet late today. Yugoslavia's Tanjug news agency reported. There was no immediate word on who would attend.

Defense officials in Vinkovci, a Croatian stronghold near the Danube River border with Serbia, said waves of airplanes began bombing the city this morning. They said several bombs hit the city and that three people died.

The republic's Defense Ministry in Zagreb confirmed the air attack, as well as one on Vukovar, northeast of Vinkovci on the Croat-Serb border.

A ministry spokesman said there was considerable damage in Vinkovci.

Pampa man arrested on charges of forgery

A 20-year-old Pampa man was arrested at the police department Monday afternoon on charges he forged $840 worth of personal checks.

Cornelius "Corny" Dewayne Landers, 20, who listed his address as 1053 Neel Rd., is charged with forging the signature on eight checks from July 26 to August 7 of this year at a local grocery store.

He remained in city jail through press time today in lieu of $4,000 bond.

Police Chief Jim Laramore said reports indicate the checking account belonged to someone else and Landers was using it without permission.

Laramore said because the amount of checks exceeds $750, the case is a felony.

Lefors ISD trustees plan special session

LEFORS — Lefors Independent School District board of trustees are to meet in special session at 7 p.m. today at the Lefors Elementary School library.

Items scheduled for discussion in the meeting tonight are to be the school district's tax rate for the coming year and collecting taxes for the county education district.

A 30-minute visitors presentation is also scheduled.

Tanjug quoted military sources as saying army barracks in Vinkovci were attacked overnight by Croats. The news agency said the fiercest overnight clashes were in the two eastern cities.

Belgrade radio, in the Serbian and federal capital, reported fierce fighting in Vukovar and said without giving specifics that many were killed.

It also said Tovarnik, a town 15 miles southeast of Vukovar, was under heavy mortar fire. Croatian fighters there last week had bottled up an advancing armored column of the federal army.

The radio gave no further details of the fighting, and its report could not be confirmed independently.

More than 500 people have died in fighting in Croatia involving republican militias, Serbian insurgents and the federal army since Croatia declared independence on June 25. The most recent fighting has been between army and Croatian units, after the Croats blockaded federal barracks earlier this month and cut off their supplies.

But even before that, Croatian authorities and a growing number of foreign governments said the Serb-dominated army was actively helping the Serb insurgents, a charge denied by the generals.

Croatians claim Serbia seeks to expand its borders before sitting down to peace talks with Croatian secessionists. Serb insurgents have taken control of one-third of Croatia's territory since June 25.

Suspect

Bowen said Sherrer told him that he estimated he had taken approximately $4 million worth of equipment over a period from 1985 to present. The Hemphill County charge involves equipment valued at approximately $100,000, according to the sheriff.

Bowen said the suspect told authorities he did not have a specific method. "He'd see a site and if he'd like it, he'd go hit it," Bowen said. Primarily Motorola and GE repeater tower radios were taken in the thefts, he said.

Hataway said that from the sites of the alleged thefts, it appeared the suspect liked to travel down Texas 83 and Interstate 40. The thefts in Ochiltree County, in which Sherrer is suspected, involved the thefts of three radio base stations from one location, another base station from a second location, and the theft of serial numbers from radios at a third location.

Hataway said he believed the suspect was taking the serial numbers from radios that were not stolen and applying the numbers to stolen radios. Then if the numbers were ever checked, he said, they would not come up as being stolen.

Sherrer has been extremely cooperative with authorities, Bowen said. Six hours of statements were recorded by a court reporter in Granbury before Sherrer was brought to Hemphill County, he said.

However, Bowen said he doesn't believe Sherrer is telling all he knows. "I think he's probably covering for someone else. With that many states and that much equipment, there's got to be others involved," the sheriff said.

Houston society set for courtroom battle over Sakowitz will

By WENDY BENJAMINSON
Associated Press Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — A courtroom battle over the multimillion-dollar estate of department store magnate Bernard Sakowitz has brought Houston a high society drama that could rival J.R. Ewing's exploits.

The lawsuit, which comes to trial Sept. 30, involves family fortunes, strained family ties and a gay, neo-Nazi cult.

Doug Wyatt, 33, son of international socialite Lynn Sakowitz Wyatt, is suing his uncle, Robert Sakowitz, who owned the now-defunct upscale clothing store Sakowitz Inc. Wyatt claims Sakowitz mismanaged the estate of Bernard Sakowitz, Wyatt's grandfather, who died in April 1981.

The Wyatts and the Sakowitzes have been a wealthy version of the Hatfields and McCoys for several years, despite the marriage between Lynn and oilman Oscar Wyatt, who adopted Doug.

Oscar Wyatt, over Lynn's objections, sued brother-in-law Robert Sakowitz in 1986, claiming Sakowitz had run the family clothing store into the ground. The lawsuit was settled out of court, but Lynn has said she and her brother still don't speak because of it. Their mother, Ann Sakowitz, sided with Robert.

Doug Wyatt, whose portion of the estate is in a trust, contends in his lawsuit that Sakowitz, the sole executor of his father's estate, used the estate to "engage in transactions which benefited himself to the detriment of the shareholders and creditors of (Sakowitz) Inc."

The lawsuit, which will be heard by Judge Pat Gregory who also presided over Howard Hughes' estate, claims Sakowitz also used about $2.6 million in the estate after his mother received her share of community property, to "phenomenally increase his personal wealth."

Income from oil and gas producing properties alone have earned Sakowitz $6 million in 10 years, the lawsuit says.

Sakowitz has denied wrongdoing and has counter-sued his sister, Lynn, arguing she was on the Sakowitz board and is as liable as he if there was wrongdoing.

Sakowitz today said he wasn't able to discuss the lawsuit.

Wyatt, an attorney, wants Sakowitz to reimburse the estate for millions that Sakowitz allegedly misappropriated. To do that, Wyatt asks the court to seize Sakowitz's River Oaks home, his furniture, his multimillion-dollar art collection and "one of the most extensive wine cellars in the country."

Ann Sakowitz, 78, is siding with Robert again in the lawsuit filed by Doug Wyatt, said Wyatt's lawyer, Andy Vickery.

"Ann Sakowitz disowned all her grandchildren over this," Vickery said. "She has estranged them and aligned with her son as any good mother would."

Adding more spice for observers is a deposition from Wyatt's friend, Roger Hall, alleging Wyatt belongs to a New York-based cult, Eternal Values.

The group hates women and Jews and believes homosexual men are the highest form of human evolution, with Jewish women the lowest.

The deposition has been especially embarrassing for Lynn and the Sakowitz family, who are Jewish.

Gregory ruled in August, however, that Sakowitz's lawyers could use testimony about Eternal Values in the discovery process, but any testimony before the jury would have to be cleared by the court first.

"It's a non-issue," said Vickery. "It's as relevant as what church I belong to or what hobbies Mr. Sakowitz has."

David Berg, Sakowitz's lawyer, declined to discuss how he plans to use the information in the trial, but said he was pleased Gregory will allow the deposition to be used in pretrial activity.

Lynn Wyatt said in her deposition that she hopes the lawsuit resolves the charges and countercharges.

"If the Wyatt lawsuit is wrong and ... it comes out that my brother is vindicated ... I would expect my son and my husband to apologize," she said. "If it is prove that he (Robert) did all these things, then he was a bad boy, but I still love him."

Mother says boy with ponytail committed to battle in court

BASTROP (AP) — The mother of a 9-year-old boy who refuses to cut his ponytail said he remains committed to fighting school officials in court.

"He says he probably will have long hair when he dies," September Toungate, the mother of Zachariah Toungate, said after a court hearing Monday.

"If he decides some day he wants to cut his hair, that's perfectly all right. It is his hair. I believe that as long as it is not obscene or a safety or health hazard to him or anyone else, he has a right to decide how he wants to wear it," she said.

"He doesn't understand why it's OK for all the female students to wear their hair any length they choose, and it's not OK for the male students," she said.

The Bastrop school district is seeking to have Zach's lawsuit against the district dismissed. After hearing arguments from attorneys on both sides, State District Judge H.R. Towslee said he would need a week or two before deciding whether to grant the school district's request.

The dispute, which has drawn national attention, is over Zach's ponytail. Last year, school officials gave Zach, who was then in the third grade, "in-school suspension" because he refused to cut the wispy "rat-tail."

The school taught Zach in isolation and did not allow him to come into contact with his fellow students.

Toward the end of the school year, Ms. Toungate removed him from school and taught him at home. Now in fourth grade, Zach attends a private school in Austin, a nearly 100-mile roundtrip from his home in Bastrop.

Attorney Paul Hunn said the school district's hair-length rule — which prohibits boys from wearing hair below the shirt collar — instills discipline and helps make students become productive members of society.

Hunn said the school took the appropriate action, arguing that children do not have the same rights as adults, and that Texas courts have given schools wide authority in setting rules for their students.

He said the hair rule helps prepare children for the adult world. "If you want to pitch for the Texas Rangers, you have to have a haircut," he said.

But attorney Charles Beall, who represents Zach and his mother, September, said the hair rule is sex discrimination and violates the state constitution.

Police: Gunman's wife demanded divorce before seige

By MIKE CARTER
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Police described a man accused of killing a nurse and holding nine people hostage in a hospital maternity ward as a "control freak" whose hair-trigger temper was set off when his wife asked for a divorce.

Richard L. Worthington stormed the Women's Health Center at Alta View Hospital in suburban Sandy around midnight Friday, armed with a shotgun, a handgun and dynamite, police said.

Worthington, 39, allegedly killed a nurse, then barricaded himself and the hostages in a suite of offices. He surrendered 18 hours later. He was in jail Monday awaiting charges of aggravated murder and aggravated kidnapping.

His wife, Karen, had received a tubal ligation at the hospital two years ago, against his wishes, to prevent further pregnancies. She reportedly told him just hours before the rampage that she wanted a divorce.

"That's my understanding," Sandy police Capt. Robert Wright said when asked about the reports.

Attempts to reach Mrs. Worthington were unsuccessful Monday. She was not taking telephone calls at LDS Hospital, where her 16-year-old son Aaron was in critical condition, said hospital spokeswoman Lynette Butler.

Aaron suffered head injuries in a motorcycle accident four hours after his father's arrest, Butler said.

Neighbor Karen Kadleck, a long-time friend of Mrs. Worthington, said the marriage "was just boiling for two years."

Most agreed the trouble started when Mrs. Worthington decided to have the tubal ligation after she gave birth to their eighth child in 1989. Two other children died shortly after birth and friends say she experienced several difficult pregnancies.

Worthington reportedly was looking to kill the doctor who performed the operation when he forced his way into the hospital.

Salt Lake police Sgt. Don Bell, who negotiated with Worthington during the standoff, described him as a "very intelligent man" whose moods "changed in a millisecond."

"He'd go from A to Z very quickly," Bell said. "One minute he'd be emotional, talking about one of his kids, and the next he'd be back ordering, threatening to blow people up."

"He was a major control freak," Bell said.

That apparently led to a widening rift with his family, said Bell, who spent several hours talking separately to Worthington and his wife.

"When the kids started growing up, they began to assert themselves," he said. "They made demands. They defied him. And he didn't know how to take it. After two or three of them grew up, the balance of power began to sway."

Last summer, he made his two teenage sons quit a junior football league after he allegedly attacked a coach who had pulled them from the lineup, said another coach, Barry Grant.

Early Sunday, Worthington suffered a minor cut on his head after he jumped backwards off a table in his cell in what sheriff's deputies said was a suicide attempt.

Members of the Worthingtons' Mormon ward, or congregation, planned a fast today for Aaron and the family of the slain nurse, Karla Roth, said Leslie Layton, wife of the Granite View Stake's president. A stake is similar to a diocese.

Worthington's father, Allen Dale Worthington, was shot to death seven years ago by his wife's former husband. The former husband, who later was acquitted by a jury, testified that he shot the elder Worthington in self-defense after being threatened with death several times.

State wants quick court action on redistricting plans

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Dan Morales asked the Texas Supreme Court to avert "electoral chaos" by quickly ruling on whether the state properly used census numbers that undercounted Texans for its redistricting plans.

Candidates for the 1992 elections must file for office between Dec. 3 and Jan. 2 of next year.

"There is no time to wait ... if the next round of elections is to come off as state law contemplates it," Morales told the court in a statement filed Monday with the court.

In his motion, Morales also asked the Supreme Court to halt trial court proceedings until the issue is decided.

A lawsuit challenging the state's redistricting plans for Congress, the Legislature and the State Board of Education is scheduled to go to trial on Oct. 1 in Edinburg.

State District Judge Mario Ramirez of Edinburg last month issued a preliminary injunction declaring the state's plans unconstitutional.

Ramirez said the plans violate minority voting rights because they relied on the 1990 federal census, which missed about half a million Texans, particularly minorities.

The judge gave the state until Sept. 30 to submit new plans to the court based on adjusted census figures that would compensate for the undercount.

But Morales said in a motion filed with the Supreme Court that Ramirez did not give the state any standards to use, other than not undercounting minorities.

He suggested that a trial may not be necessary if the Supreme Court agrees with Ramirez that the state may not use the official 1990 census numbers.

"The state in all likelihood will simply have to start over in the process, first with devising brand new population numbers, then with redrawing new redistricting plans based on the new numbers," Morales said.

State officials contend that the Texas Constitution permits the use of official census data, Morales said. He earlier noted that the state is pursuing an official readjustment of the numbers by the federal government.

But Morales said that according to expert testimony, a state adjustment of the numbers could take months, cost millions of dollars, and result in a count that is possibly less accurate than the official federal numbers.

"The questions raised in this appeal are of vital importance to the functioning of democracy in this state for the next decade," Morales said. Lawmakers draw new districts every 10 years to take into account population changes as reflected in the federal census.

The state's redistricting plans also are being challenged in federal court.

The U.S. Justice Department has not yet ruled on whether the plans comply with the federal Voting Rights Act. Justice Department preclearance is necessary to ensure the plans do not dilute minority votes.

Morales last week asked a federal court in Washington to allow the state's redistricting plans to take effect for 1992.

Toole gets life for four murders; Lucas going back to Texas

MARIANNA, Fla. (AP) — Frustration was the outcome of four Florida Panhandle murder cases for Jackson County Sheriff Johnny McDaniel, whose father was one of the victims.

Prosecutors agreed to four life prison terms instead of a death sentence in exchange for guilty pleas from Otis Elwood Toole.

They declined to prosecute co-defendant Henry Lee Lucas, who once claimed he had killed 600 people, because the state cannot afford to pay his legal expenses. He will be returned to Texas to face possible execution in a slaying there.

Circuit Judge Russell Cole sentenced Toole and ordered Lucas back to Texas last Friday. Lucas remained in jail here Monday awaiting his transfer.

"I don't think any serial killer should live," McDaniel said of Toole's multiple life terms.

McDaniel found his father, former Malone Mayor John P. McDaniel Sr., shot to death Dec. 15, 1980. He was sheriff-elect when he answered a robbery call at a gas-line station where his father worked as an attendant near Campbellton.

The state, which has been plagued by a series of revenue shortfalls, has been unwilling to pay the cost of defending Lucas in the Florida cases, said State Attorney Jim Appelman.

He added that the three small counties where the slayings took place don't have enough money to give Lucas an adequate defense.

"How do you put a price tag on a murder case?" McDaniel asked. "It's unreal ... I'm a taxpayer here, too."

The other victims were Mary Ruby McCary of Washington County and Jerilyn Murphy Peoples and Brenda Jo Burton, both of Holmes County.

Lucas, who later recanted his confession about killing 600 people, was sentenced to death for the 1979 slaying of an unidentified woman in Texas. He came within a few days of execution there last November before being granted a stay.

"What we anticipate is he'll be executed in Texas," Appelman said.

Toole must serve at least 25 years of each consecutive life sentence, a total of 100 years, before becoming eligible for parole.

"He has in fact received a death sentence," Appelman said.

Opposition seizes supporters of Georgian president

By DEBORAH SEWARD
Associated Press Writer

TBILISI, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Four armed supporters of Georgian President Zviad Gamsakhurdia fired shots into the air early today as they were seized by national guardsmen loyal to opponents of the president.

The four, armed with pistols, machine guns and hand grenades, were being held by opposition groups occupying Georgia's broadcasting center, said Tengiz Kitovani, commander of the maverick guardsmen.

"These people also wore bullet-proof vests and had a car without license plates," Kitovani told the Soviet news agency Tass.

He said the incident took place at 2:55 a.m. in front of a hotel near the television and radio center taken over by armed opposition groups on Sunday. The building is guarded by at least two armored personnel carriers, other vehicles and an unknown number of national guardsmen.

Kitovani said the four apprehended men were members of the Georgian militia who remain loyal to Gamsakhurdia and who claimed they were searching for stolen cars. He claimed they were trying to provoke opposition members and ruled out any possibility of exchanging them for three guardsmen detained the previous day.

Georgian opposition groups and Western officials say that Gamsakhurdia has acted like a dictator and acted against democratic principles since he won the republic's first popular presidential election in May. Gamsakhurdia claims the opposition is inspired by Kremlin and foreign agents intent on crushing Georgia's independence drive.

At least one person has died and 41 have been injured in the southern republic since Sept. 2 when Georgian Interior Ministry troops opened fire to disperse thousands of anti-government protesters in central Tbilisi.

Eldar Shengelaya, a Georgian filmmaker and Gamsakhurdia opponent, said the opposition wants the president to release political prisoners, allow the opposition access to television, and convene an extraordinary session of parliament that would be broadcast live on television.

"He's violated the laws. He's blocking free access to television and only allows his views in the media," Shengelaya said.

He said Gamsakhurdia had refused all opposition attempts to open negotiations to resolve the situation. Parliamentary factions met Monday but failed to reach any agreement to end the standoff.

Gamsakhurdia issued a decree today to set up a National Security Council to control armed forces, settle ethnic conflict and enforce law and order, Tass reported. The council will be headed by Gamsakhurdia, the republic's prime minister and its parliamentary speakers, Tass said, quoting the Georgian Sakinform news agency. It did not say what the total membership would be.

Tass said the council would also be responsible for emergency situations caused by natural disasters and other unspecified matters related to Georgia's "territorial integrity, independence and sovereignty."

Inside the four-story glass and concrete broadcasting center, dozens of armed national guardsmen were in the halls checking their rifles and automatic weapons.

People were bringing bread, grapes and tomatoes to the opposition leaders, many of whom have remained in the building around the clock.

Several miles away on Rustaveli Prospekt, national guardsmen loyal to Gamsakhurdia could be seen hanging out the windows of the former Communist Party building. Crowds of people milled around the parliament.

Top CIA analyst details suspicions about North

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top CIA analyst today laid out the evidence that led him in 1986 to believe money from Iranian arms sales was being diverted to Nicaraguan rebels — evidence he presented to Robert Gates, the man now in line to head the CIA.

Gates has testified that he viewed the suspicions of the official, Charles E. Allen, as "extraordinarily flimsy" and did not give them a high priority.

Allen told the Senate Intelligence Committee that he had strong indications, including a weapons price list, that Oliver North and his associates were marking up the arms by 500 percent to 600 percent.

Allen said he also told Gates, then the agency's deputy director, in an Oct. 1, 1986, meeting about North's reference in September to a "reserve" of $4 million, and of his concern that North and two others, businessman Albert Hakim and retired Gen. Richard Secord, were running both the Iran initiative and a resupply effort for the Contra rebels.

"Mr. Gates appeared startled and disturbed that the White House would involve itself in such a dubious activity" and directed Allen to brief then-CIA Director William Casey, Allen testified.

Allen also seemed to shoulder some of the blame for misleading testimony about the Iran-Contra affair delivered by Casey to Congress, saying he and other agency officials "served Mr. Casey and Mr. Gates poorly."

And he said he had "no knowledge and no indication whatsoever that either Mr. Casey or Mr. Gates were at the time deliberately withholding information relating to the Iran-Contra affair."

Also to testify today about Gates' knowledge of the Iran-Contra affair was Richard Kerr, the CIA's acting director. Kerr has said in sworn testimony that he first told Gates of the possibility of a diversion in August 1986, but Gates says he can't remember that exchange.

Both Allen and Kerr would be subordinate to Gates if he is confirmed.

In an earlier sworn statement to the committee, Allen said he told Kerr of his suspicions in mid-August of 1986. Later, sometime after the diversion of funds was made public on Nov. 25, Kerr came back to him, Allen said.

"Kerr told me that he had raised the matter with Mr. Gates, including the possible diversion of funds. He added that Mr. Gates could not recall this conversation," Allen added.

Another CIA official, John Helgeson, has testified that Kerr also told him at the time of having brought the matter up with Gates.

Gates says he first recalls hearing about the possibility of a diversion on Oct. 1, 1986, when Allen himself briefed Gates, then deputy CIA director.

In his testimony in 1987, when he was previously nominated to be director but was forced to withdraw because of Iran-Contra fallout, Gates said he regarded Allen's information as "extraordinarily flimsy."

But in his sworn statement to the committee, Allen detailed the evidence that led him to believe a diversion of funds may have occurred.

Social Security to change its toll-free telephone number

The Social Security Administration (SSA) will change its toll-free telephone number as of Oct. 1, 1991. The new number is 1-800-SSA-1213 (1-800-772-1213).

SSA is giving early notice so that people will not be taken by surprise when they call.

"We want people to be on the lookout for it and note the change before they have to use it," said Virginia De Witt, branch manager of the Pampa Social Security Administration office.

The SSA number change resulted from congressional legislation that requires federal government agencies to convert to a new telecommunications system called "FTS 2000." Since the new system is managed by a different service carrier than the agencies had used in the past, SSA had to change its toll-free number.

Since its nationwide implementation two years ago, the 800 number service has become a popular option for people who have Social Security business. Callers find that their requests can be handled easily, conveniently and expeditiously by phone. In many instances, their business can be completed at the time of the initial call, De Witt said.

Recent studies show that more than two-thirds of the 800-number callers prefer using the telephone over having to visit a Social Security office in person.

SSA also offers a telephone response unit that uses an automatic script to speed the processing of certain routine requests. Using a push button telephone, you can: request an application for a Social Security number; obtain a request form for a Personal Earnings and Benefit Estimate Statement; request written verification of the amount of your Social Security benefit or Supplemental Security income payment; order publications; and listen to general information about Social Security programs.

With the assistance of a teleservice representative at the 800 number, you can change a mailing address, make an appointment to apply for benefits, report a missing check or simply ask a question, De Witt explained.

Service on the 800 number is available weekdays from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. But the best times to call are early in the mornings or late in the afternoon, Wednesday through Friday, after the first week in the month.

The local Social Security office is located at 125 S. Gillespie, Pampa. Office hours are 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. Monday through Friday except on national holidays.

Kidnappers say they will free Jack Mann today

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Pro-Iranian kidnappers today promised to free British hostage Jack Mann, saying U.N. mediation has broken a logjam in the prisoners-for-hostages negotiations.

An initial statement from the Revolutionary Justice Organization, which holds Mann, said he would be freed within 48 hours. But a second statement said his captivity would end today at 8 p.m. (1 p.m. EDT).

The later statement said Mann would be freed at the Beau Rivage hotel in west Beirut. It called on U.N. envoy Giandomenico Picco to go to the hotel.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said earlier that Mann would be released by midnight (5 p.m. EDT), and the Tehran Times reported an American hostage also would be set free this week.

The news agency said last week that a Briton, probably Mann, would be released within hours, but no hostage was freed. Eleven Westerners are missing in Lebanon, and most are believed held by Iranian-allied factions.

In Cyprus, Mann's wife Sunnie said: "The news is absolutely fantastic. But I still have that small feeling in the back of my mind that something will hold it up again."

The first statement from the Shiite Muslim kidnappers, the Revolutionary Justice Organization, said Mann, at 77 the oldest hostage, would be released within two days. He was kidnapped May 12, 1989.

The statement said the decision to free Mann resulted from "immense efforts" by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who has been trying to arrange a swap of hostages, Arabs held by Israel and Israeli soldiers missing in Lebanon.

Revolutionary Justice did not specify what Perez de Cuellar had accomplished. The group said last week it would not release either of the hostages it holds — Mann and American Joseph Cicippio — because Israel had reneged on a promise to free more detainees. Israel freed 51 Arab prisoners on Sept. 11 in what it said was a goodwill gesture aimed at freeing hostages.

Although Israel has not released any prisoners since then, it was possible the kidnappers obtained assurances in the secret talks.

In a brief dispatch from Beirut attributed to informed sources, the Iranian news agency said Mann would be freed by midnight.

In another report, it quoted Iranian

Deputy Foreign Minister Ali Mohammad Besharati as saying: "By January, all hostages irrespective of their nationalities will be able to go home."

Meanwhile, the report scheduled for publication Wednesday in the Tehran Times, said: "Two (hostages), one British and one American, will be released this week." The newspaper said one captive "may be released within hours and the second later in the week, possibly during the weekend."

The Tehran Times is believed to reflect the views of Iranian President Hashemi Rafsanjani, who apparently hopes helping to end the hostage ordeal will improve Iran's image and pave the way for Western economic ties.

On Sept. 11, after receiving definite word one of its missing soldiers was dead, Israel freed the 51 Arab prisoners. The next day, Revolutionary Justice prompted speculation Mann might soon be free by issuing a photograph of the Briton and saying he was well.

Then, on Sept. 13, the body of a missing Israel soldier was returned to the Jewish state — leaving five Israeli servicemen unaccounted for. But in the ensuing days, Shiite clerics differed over whether Israel had done enough to warrant freeing another Westerner.

Both statements issued today by Revolutionary Justice statement were accompanied by photographs of Cicippio.

The first statement said: "Tough negotiations occurred in which the United Nations and its delegate displayed a high degree of diplomatic finesse that led to renewed progress and solving the difficult problems toward attaining satisfactory and convincing results."

"We declare to the secretary-general that his adoption of useful methods has produced results and his tireless efforts have borne fruit. We shall release within 48 hours the British hostage, the pilot Jack Mann," it said.

The statement said his release would be "the prelude to the next stage to speed up the closure of the file of the prisoners and the hostages."

Missing in Lebanon are five Americans, three Britons, two Germans and Italian. Shiite sources have said one of the Britons and the Italian are dead.

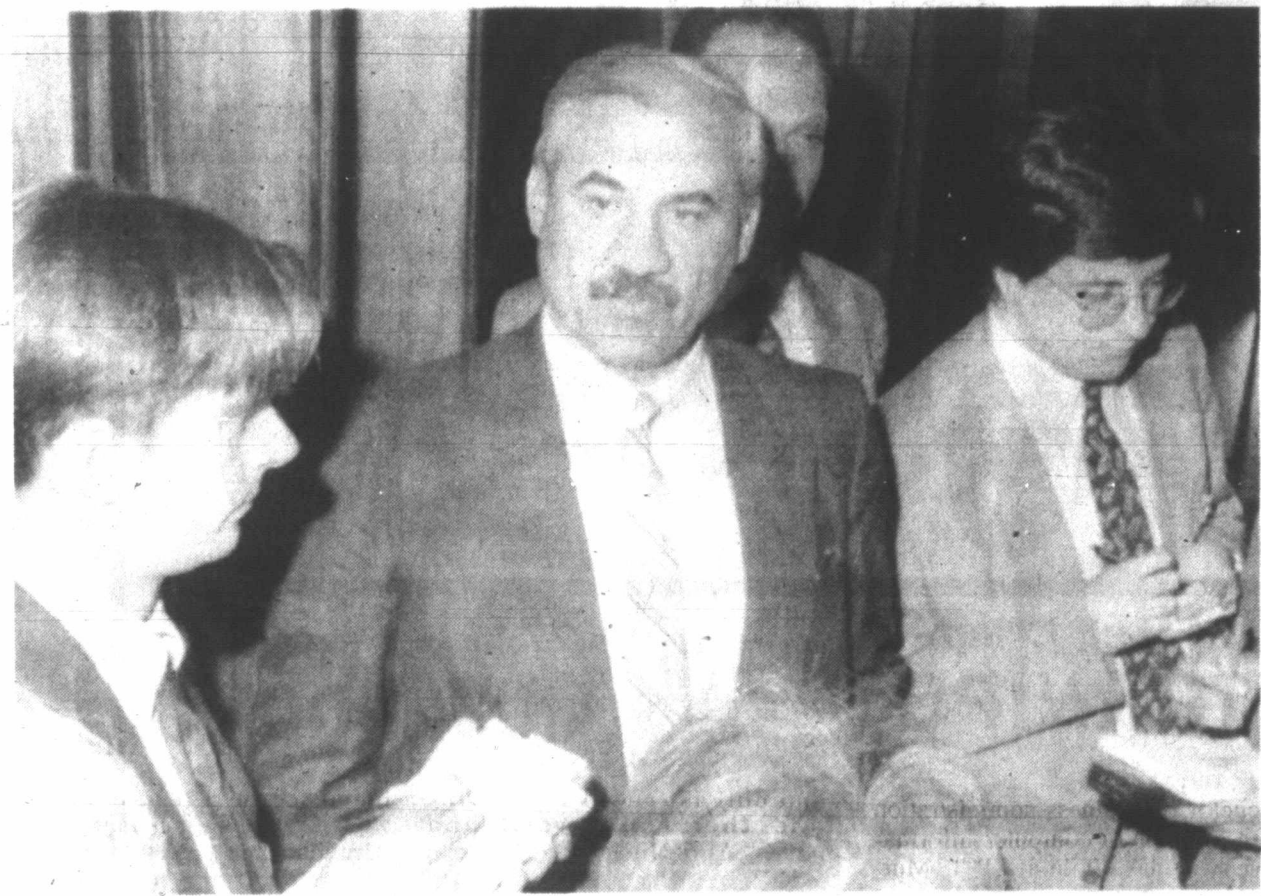

The longest-held hostage is American Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press. He was kidnapped March 16, 1985.

Iraqi Oil Minister Osama Abdul Razzak al-Hiti, center, speaks to the media after arriving in Geneva for meetings of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting countries set to begin today. Al-Hiti said his country could immediately begin exporting as much as 1.5 million barrels a day of crude oil provided a U.N. trade embargo was eased so it could purchase needed spare parts.

Educators: Black students often fear they will be accused of 'acting white'

DETROIT (AP) — Black students who accuse studious classmates of "acting white" are victims of self-hatred and racist stereotypes that equate blackness with lack of achievement, educators say.

"It's frightening," said Mignon Oldham, an English teacher at Renaissance High in Detroit.

Oldham taught black urban youths in a summer Upward Bound program and bickered with a few students who doubted the benefits of speaking with proper grammar.

They said, "Black people don't talk like that." Oldham responded: "Yes, I have been black all my life. And yes, I talk like that."

"I'm not trying to demean or belittle them, I'm trying to give them options in language," she said. "Call it what you will, grammatically correct English in many instances opens doors."

Jawanza Kunjufu, a Chicago educator and author of "To Be Popular or Smart: The Black Peer Group," said hazing exists because too many black youngsters have not had the positive aspects of black culture and the value of education reinforced. Instead, they follow stereotypes.

Dr. Alvin Poussaint, a black psychiatrist at Harvard Medical School and a consultant on "The Cosby Show," said clouded thinking comes from self-hatred.

"Children learn all kinds of ways, most likely by imitation. So if they grow up in a household where education is valued, they're much more likely to value it."

— Noelle Clark
Detroit psychologist

"That is, there is some association that black is bad and dumb and that white is smart. And there's also some feeling that in order to achieve, that somehow you have to adopt white styles," he said. "Achieving and doing well is not white; they need people to say that over and over again, to counter the opposite in every way that they can."

Detroit psychologist Noelle Clark said it's not just attitudes in schools that need to be changed.

"Children learn all-kinds of ways, most likely by imitation. So if they grow up in a household where education is valued, they're much more likely to value it," Clark said.

Rutgers University anthropologist Signithia Fordham, who is writing a book on "acting white," said black students "have a difficulty that is endemic to their lives as African-American people."

"They have to give up a part of who they are in order to be successful, as defined by the white American community."

Tamala Evans, 17, a student at Lathrup High in Southfield, said she gets harassed because she gets good grades.

"They say I act white because I study a lot and because of the way I speak. They say I speak properly," Evans said.

"They're caught up in being cool and hanging out," she said. "But I have to be the best that I can be, no matter what those people say."

Deaths by overdose jump, despite decline in other accidents

CHICAGO (AP) — A rise in the number of unintentional drug overdoses drove death rates from accidental poisonings to record levels during the past decade, the National Safety Council said.

The increase came during a decade of steady drops in the overall accidental death rate.

Overall accidental deaths declined 21 percent from 1980 to 1990, despite a 64 percent jump in the death rate from accidental poisonings, the non-profit safety advocacy group said in a report released Monday.

"Most of the increase in poisonings occurred in the adult years, ages 25 to 44, and in the categories that include the illegal drugs cocaine and heroin," said Alan Hoskin, the council's statistics director.

Poisonings were the third most common form of accidental death in 1990, after motor vehicle crashes and falls. The report said 2.3 of every 100,000 people died by accidental poisoning in 1990.

The increase in overdose deaths reflects increased drug use during the early and mid-1980s, said Joseph Gfoerer, a researcher at the National Institute on Drug Abuse in Rockville, Md.

"It could also be that people are using more often or more intensely," Gfoerer said. "Also, there could be more use of drugs in combination."

Each year the NIDA surveys medical examiners in 27 metropolitan areas to assess the numbers of drug-related deaths, Gfoerer said. In 1990, the coroners reported 5,830 drug-related deaths, most involving cocaine, heroin, or a combination of alcohol and other drugs, he said.

Although the NIDA survey doesn't include the rest of the country, drug-related deaths in those 27 cities account for a large portion of the national total, Gfoerer said.

Original 'Paladin' wins decades-old battle with TV industry

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A former rodeo rider who claimed CBS usurped his mustachioed cowboy persona for the 1950s series "Have Gun, Will Travel" won his decades-old battle with the television industry.

A federal jury on Monday determined Viacom International, a CBS subsidiary, was using Victor DeCosta's trademark without his consent by distributing the series. DeCosta was awarded $3.5 million.

"I feel that I finally got justice," DeCosta, 83, said. "This will show them who's who."

But DeCosta, dressed in his trademark black silky shirt and cowboy hat and giant silver belt buckle, said he won't feel vindicated until the show is shelved once and for all.

"The money to me is secondary at my age. Most of all what I want is knock it off the air," DeCosta, of North Scituate said. "I've been called an impostor and a phony long enough."

U.S. District Judge Ernest C. Torres was to decide Friday whether to prohibit Viacom from distributing the series, which ran from 1957-1964 and has aired in syndication ever since.

A telephone message to Viacom's legal office was not immediately returned.

The son of Portuguese immigrants, DeCosta said he first strapped on his gun belt and saddled a black stallion as Paladin in 1947, performing at rodeos and later in television commercials.

He said he was shocked a decade later when, while working as a crane operator, strangers began telling him they'd seen him on television.

"I said, 'What are you talking about? These people are crazy,'" DeCosta said.

When his sister became angry with him for not telling her he had a television series, he decided to tune in. That began his 34-year battle with the network.

Panhandle Bird Watch

by Jan Elston

Watch for southbound migratory wrens

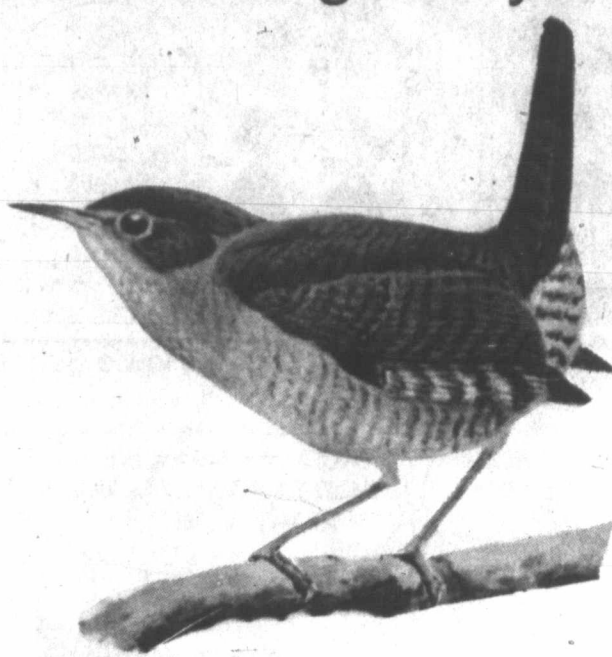

One of the most interesting fall migrants we have seen around our house during the month of September, is a House Wren. One thing that makes them so entertaining to watch is their constant activity. They are inquisitive little birds moving from quickly from one place to another—crawling into a knot-hole into a storage house, or creeping on the ground like a mouse, or examining the wood-pile, so it is unusual to get more than a fleeting glimpse of them.

This is one of the birds which is most easily identified by its profile. It has a relatively short tail, which it holds almost vertically, and it has short little wings. It is virtually impossible to tell the male from the female, because their coloring is essentially the same—grayish-brown on the back, whitish underneath. There is faint darker barring toward the back and tail. One identifying mark is an eye line which extends back from the beak. A narrow eye ring is visible on mature adults.

From the shape of its sharp beak, you can tell that it is an insect eater; and since insects are almost its only food source (97%), it spends the winter in the southland, where a good supply of insects abound. This bird is always welcomed by people who have orchards, because it devours so many of the insects which seem to like fruit.

The House Wren has a LOUD song, especially very early in the morning, when you're trying to sleep. But once you're awake, you realize it is such a happy melody, that makes up for its being so loud. In one bird book, it is reported that the House Wren's song can be easily heard for a quarter of a mile.

If you don't want very many birds nesting in your yard, try to attract to House Wren family. They seem to tolerate other birds entering their territory; but they don't want them nesting there, and have been known to peck holes in the eggs of other birds. One family of House

House wren

Wrens per yard seems to be the limit. Because they are small birds, it is easy for these little Wrens to get into the unguarded nests or houses of other birds. To prevent their arch-enemies, the House Sparrows, from invading their houses, it is important that the entrance hold for a Wren house be no larger than a pencil line drawn around a quarter.

House Wrens (which are called Jenny Wrens by some folks) are well known for the peculiar nesting sites some of them have chosen, and once home, it's always home to them, as they return year after year. If, for some reason, there have been changes in the accommodations, they will just scout around until they find another suitable place, which might be a glass jar, an old shoe, a crevice in the barn, or some lady's discarded purse. One couple built their nest in one of the hip pockets of a pair of fishing pants which had been hung out on the clothesline. (It is a safe conjecture that the owner of those pants probably had to do his fishing wearing another pair of pants, until those eggs hatched and the baby birds learned to fly).

Another interesting migrant we have seen is a Green-backed Heron—not really rare, but not commonly seen.

One morning last week, when I went out to get the newspaper, I thought I heard the "whit, whit" call of Western Kingbirds. Thinking surely I must be imagining that, I went back inside, only to look out a window later that day to see a family of Western Kingbirds on the wire behind our neighbors' house.

About a dozen White Pelicans were reported, on a playa lake just east of the Clarendon Highway and I-40 intersection.

One family who lives about three blocks from us is still having a Hummingbird at their flowers, but they haven't seen it around their feeder. We still haven't had any Hummingbirds, and I haven't talked with very many people who have. If you're not having any by the end of September, go ahead and send in your 1991 hummingbird survey.

Video game is addiction for boys young and old

DEAR ABBY: Last Christmas we purchased a video game for our sons, ages 8 and 10. At first it was fun, but now I am sick of the hours wasted in front of the television set. If the boys aren't playing it, their father is, and the arguments and hurt feelings are not worth the money invested. We used to go to the parks or beaches, or just spend time barbecuing after work. Now it's, "What game should we rent tonight?" followed by an evening of no communication.

I swear, they are addicted to it! Am I wrong? Has this happened in other households also?

MAD AT THE VIDEO GAME, LACEY, WASH.

DEAR MAD: You are not wrong. But who makes the rules at your house? You should allow your sons to play their video game only as a reward for having done their homework and chores. And there should be a limit on how much time they can spend in front of the television set. Kids can get hooked on a video game—but wise parents can turn that addiction into a bargaining chip.

DEAR ABBY: I have a lovely daughter—intelligent, well-educated, attractive, a kind and caring person. She has not married. Every now and then, some stupid jerk asks me, "Why hasn't your daughter married?"

I respond in a civilized manner, although I consider the question none of his or her business and think that only a clod would ask such a question. Can you think of any remark to put such people in their place?

OGDEN, UTAH, MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Try this: "Why don't you ask her?"

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about the mother of the bride who was much disturbed—and properly so—because of the "no-shows" at her daughter's wedding. She paid $25 per person, and there were eight guests who accepted but did not call to cancel and didn't show up.

Is there any reason why the parents of the bride who paid for the reception could not have asked the caterer to pack up the $200 worth of food so they could take it home?

Also, would it be a breach of etiquette for the parents or the newlyweds to call the no-shows and ask why they didn't attend the wedding after having accepted? (Am I the only one who thinks a telephone call or a note to the no-shows would be in order?)

A.F.S.

DEAR A.F.S.: There is no reason why the parents of the bride shouldn't have asked the caterer to pack up the no-shows' dinners to be taken home and placed in their freezer to enjoy later.

However, I would neither call nor write the no-shows, asking why they didn't cancel when they knew they couldn't attend. Explanations (and apologies) are in order, but the no-shows should initiate them.

Planning for college costs takes some research

DENVER (AP) — For parents of high school seniors, "back-to-school" launches a season of preparing family finances for the rigors of college financial aid reviews.

"College aid applications for the 1992-93 school year are due after the first of January, so now is the time — if you haven't done so already — to review your family's assets and liabilities in terms of financial aid," says Keith Fevury, director of the College for Financial Planning Certified Financial Planner Professional Education Program and Institute for Tax Studies.

Tuition and fees are up throughout higher education, from community colleges to private universities.

With complete costs at well-regarded private colleges tipping the scales at more than $100,000 for a four-year program, there is no question that college costs can take the comfort out of an otherwise ample family budget. Yet many parents may assume wrongly that their middle-class means preclude financial aid.

While the best college planning starts when the child is small, you may still be able to optimize your family finances for financial aid review.

"Financial planning tools — rearrangement of assets or deferral of income — can help make a difference," says Fevury. "First, you need to review your finances in terms of financial aid guidelines. Then, you should look at any potentially beneficial moves in terms of their effects on the rest of your financial situation, especially your tax liability."

How much do you know about applying for financial aid? Complete this quiz prepared by Fevury to gauge your readiness to fill out a financial aid application.

1. According to "expected family contribution" guidelines, how much of your disposable income and assets should be available to pay for college expenses?

a. 10 percent of disposable income and 5 percent of assets.

b. 25 percent of disposable income and 15 percent of assets.

c. Your assets are not included, but financial aid reviewers expect you to contribute 30 percent of disposable income.

d. 22 percent of disposable income and 12 percent of assets.

2. Is your child expected to contribute?

a. No, money earned from summer and after-school jobs is not considered for college expenses by financial aid offices.

b. Yes, but the student must submit a separate application.

c. Yes, 70 percent of the student's income and 35 percent of the student's assets are expected to be used for college expenses.

d. Yes, 50 percent of the student's income and 25 percent of the student's assets are expected to be used for college expenses.

3. You are more likely to receive financial aid if:

a. You have two or more children in college.

b. You earn less than $50,000 a year.

c. Your consumer debt accounts for more than 25 percent of your net income.

d. Your home is placed in your child's name.

e. All of the above.

4. Moving assets to your child's name:

a. Can save taxes if interest income on the amount is less than $1,000 a year.

b. May increase your family's expected contribution to college expenses.

c. Puts 35 percent of these assets in the "family contribution" column.

d. Can make it more difficult for the student to obtain college aid.

e. All of the above.

5. Many student loans are:

a. Available to everyone, regardless of need.

b. Attractive if they have low interest rates and long repayment periods.

c. A source of financial help even to families that don't qualify for financial assistance.

d. All of the above.

6. Retirement assets:

a. Are counted with other household assets in assessing "family contribution" amounts.

b. Can be held out of aid calculation by a family until the last year of college.

c. Are not considered in the estimation of available assets, although current contributions to retirement programs are.

d. None of the above.

7. An excellent way to shield assets or income from "family contributions" calculations is to:

a. Take out a home equity loan.

b. Make additional real estate investments to decrease your liquidity.

c. Divert funds to retirement-oriented insurance programs, such as annuities or life insurance policies.

d. b. and c.

8. Other ways to optimize your finances for review include:

a. Taking any unrealized capital losses to the extent they offset gains and reduce adjusted gross income.

b. Accelerating deductions and deferring income.

c. Using excess cash in the bank to buy a needed new car.

d. All of the above.

e. None of the above.

9. Establishing "independent" status for your student can help to improve his or her chances to receive financial aid. This is possible if he or she:

a. Lives away from home for nine months each year.

b. Has not been claimed as a dependent for the preceding two years and has earned at least $4,000 in each of those years.

c. Is 24 years old or married.

d. All of the above.

e. b. and c.

Answers: 1. d; 2. c; 3. a; 4. e; 5. d; 6. c; 7. c; 8. d; 9. e.

Test your knowledge of the U.S. Constitution

By The Associated Press

For this bicentennial of the ratification of the Bill of Rights, the National Constitution Center, in Philadelphia, has prepared the following quiz to test your "Constitutional IQ":

1 — Which amendment in the Bill of Rights prohibits slavery?

2 — Which state, that was not one of the 13 original colonies, ratified the Bill of Rights before Virginia?

3 — An ill and senile Franklin attended the Constitutional Convention and contributed very little to the writing of the Constitution. True or false?

4 — Most modern civil liberty cases rest on the 14th amendment. True or false?

5 — Can payment of a tax be a condition for voting in the United States?

6 — Is there anything in the Constitution that gives Congress the authority to support the costs of health benefits for the elderly?

7 — On what basis is a prayer in school prohibited even if it is non-denominational?

8 — Do students have the right to wear political symbols in school providing they do not disrupt school discipline?

9 — How did the rejection of this plan reinforce the system of checks and balances?

ANSWERS

1 — Slavery is not prohibited in the Bill of Rights. It was not prohibited by the Constitution until the 13th amendment was passed on Dec. 6, 1865.

2 — Vermont ratified the Bill of Rights on Nov. 3, 1791. Virginia ratified them on Dec. 15, 1791.

3 — False. While Benjamin Franklin was elderly and not well at the time of the convention, he was not senile and contributed a great deal to the Constitutional Convention and to the success of the writing and acceptance of the Constitution.

4 — True. The 14th Amendment, ratified July 9, 1868, Sec. 1 states, "All persons born or naturalized in the United States and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens; nor shall any state deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

5 — No. Poll and other taxes are forbidden by the 24th amendment passed in 1964.

6 — Yes. The Preamble: "To promote the General Welfare."

7 — The Supreme Court has ruled that school prayers are "establishment of religion."

8 — Yes. The Supreme Court has ruled that under the First Amendment, freedom of expression does not stop at the school house gate.

9 — By refusing to do this, Congress prevented what seemed to many a plan that threatened the fundamentals of the Constitution. The framers' system of checks and balances between the executive, legislative, and judicial branch of government remained intact.

A more exciting social life could be in the offing in the year ahead.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It might be wise to avoid all types of speculative risks today, but if you have to take a gamble, bet on yourself and your abilities and not those of others. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for Libra's Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A partnership might not work out as well as you had hoped today. The fault may not lie with your cohort, but with the way you manage things from your end.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you are overburdened with self-doubts, you won't be able to inspire others today. Regardless of how bubbly your facade may be, associates will perceive your fears.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This might not be one of your better days for managing your material affairs or the material affairs of another. To be on the safe side, tread warily in both areas.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may have some difficulties to contend with today, but they are not insurmountable. However, the ingredient that could make them so is a defeatist attitude.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In conversations with friends today, if you don't have anything nice to say about pals who aren't present, it is best to say nothing. Caustic comments, could do you more harm than your targets can.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A pessimistic attitude could severely lessen your probabilities for fulfilling your expectations today. You can't think negatively while attempting to court success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're not likely to be too effective today in overcoming traditional obstacles with traditional methods. Use your imagination and resourcefulness to circumvent complications.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You might not expect help from a certain individual today, but if this person offers it, don't interfere. This individual knows what to do better than you do.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be realistic regarding your financial involvements at this time. Don't expect a profit where there isn't any real basis for generating one.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A difficult objective can be attained today — if you combine assertiveness with patience. Follow your intuition as to when to be laid-back and when to growl like a tiger.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) When seeking advice from another today, you might hear only what you want to hear, while the essence of the wise counsel is ignored.

Blue Jays, Red Sox can't win for losing

By The Associated Press

Not that it's on purpose or anything, but the Toronto Blue Jays seem intent on making a race of it in the AL East.

The Blue Jays continued to self-destruct on their West Coast trip, losing 10-9 to California on Monday night. Boston lost 4-3 at Baltimore and remained 1 1/2 games behind Toronto.

The Angels had no problems with Tom Candiotti's knuckleball and scored seven runs in the first inning, all with two outs.

Give the Jays credit, though, they showed some heart.

Candy Maldonado drove in four runs, with a two-run homer and a two-run double, and Kelly Gruber hit a two-run homer, singled and scored twice to rally the Blue Jays.

Maybe a sign of Toronto's luck came in the ninth inning when Dave Parker singled with one out to left-center field off reliever Bryan Harvey and was thrown out trying to stretch it into a double. TV replays showed Parker was safe.

"I knew I was safe," Parker said of the call by second base umpire Jim Evans. "He blew the call. I was on the corner of the bag and I wasn't even tagged the first time. It's an important time of the year and I hate to see that happen, but you can't take out the human element."

Max Venable had three hits, including a three-run triple in the seven-run first inning. Lee Stevens also had three hits and three RBIs in California's 14-hit attack.

Boston's problem wasn't an umpire's call, but great relief pitching by Jim Poole.

Poole (2-0) retired 14 of the 15 batters he faced after entering the game with the bases loaded in the fourth inning, allowing only a two-out single to Jody Reed in the eighth. Gregg Olson got the last three outs for his 30th save.

American League

Poole came into the game in the fourth with the bases loaded and no outs. He got Tom Brunansky to ground into a game-tying double play.

The Orioles made it 4-3 in the bottom of the inning against Mike Gardiner (9-8) when Leo Gomez doubled and Mike Devereaux singled him home.

"I was pumped up to play against a team in the pennant race," Poole said. "The adrenaline was flowing, and I almost hyperventilated."

Elsewhere in the AL it was Detroit 2, Cleveland 1; New York 9, Milwaukee 8; Oakland 7, Kansas City 6; and Texas 11, Seattle 4 in 11 innings.

Tigers 2, Indians 1

Bill Gullickson became the AL's first 19-game winner as Detroit beat visiting Cleveland, breaking a six-game losing streak. Gullickson (19-9) is the Tigers' first 19-game winner since Jack Morris won 21 in 1986.

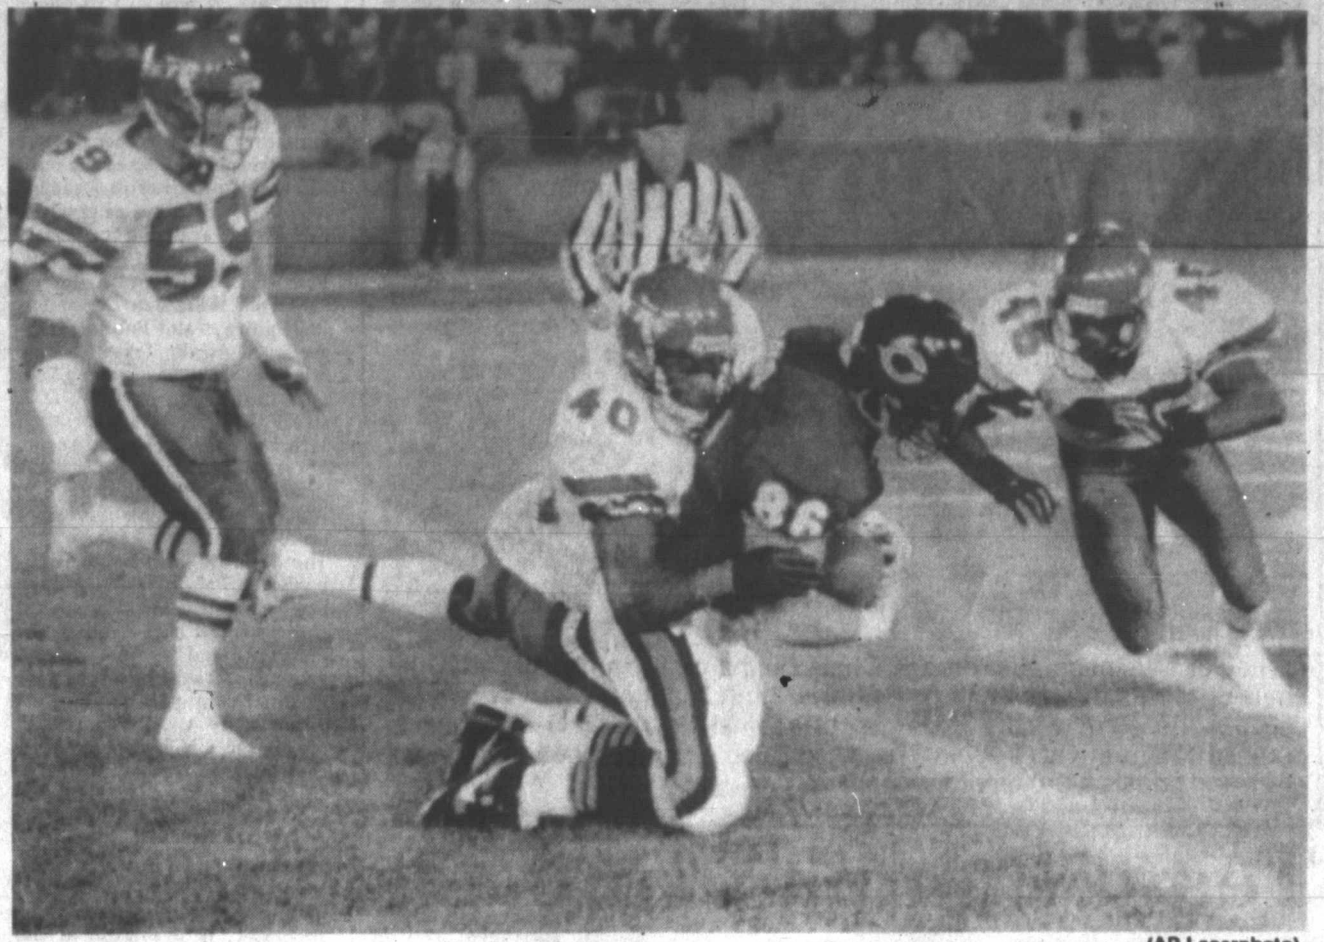

Yankees 9, Brewers 8

Matt Nokes hit a grand slam to key a five-run seventh inning and Roberto Kelly drove in four runs as New York rallied from a six-run deficit to beat Milwaukee at County Stadium. Athletics 7, Royals 6

Harold Baines had four hits and drove in three runs as Oakland beat visiting Kansas City, despite 16 hits by the Royals. George Brett had three hits for Kansas City.

Rangers 11, Mariners 4

Pinch-hitter Julio Franco's bunt single scored the go-ahead run in the 11th inning and sparked an eight-run rally as Texas beat Seattle at the Kingdome, snapping a four-game losing streak. The eight runs in the 11th tied a modern major-league record last accomplished by Pittsburgh in 1984.

Snakebit Jets lose heartbreaker in overtime to fortunate Bears

By HERBERT G. McCANN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The New York Jets just couldn't put the Chicago Bears away. Not that they didn't have their chances.

The Jets had Monday night's game under control, leading 13-6 and running down the clock behind Blair Thomas. Chicago had used its last timeout when Thomas took a handoff into the line on a routine run — only to come out without the ball.

Bears defensive tackle Steve McMichael stripped the ball from Thomas with 1:54 remaining and recovered it on the New York 36. The Bears tied the game on Jim Harbaugh's 6-yard TD pass to Neal Anderson as time expired, then won it 19-13 in overtime.

Thomas, who gained 125 yards on 27 carries, still doesn't know how the ball came out.

"They were going after the ball, that was their job," Thomas said. "I had two hands on the ball, but McMichael still stripped it. I thought I was down, I don't know."

The Jets could have used up most of the remaining time simply by falling on the ball. But coach Bruce Coslet said the team "calculated the formula and it said the Jets needed a first down."

"We didn't want to punt," he said. "We didn't want to take the chance and have it blocked."

That turn of events came after Jets safety Brian Washington stopped Harbaugh at the goal line with 3:32 left in the game when the quarterback ran up the middle on fourth-and-goal.

The Jets missed their final chance to win the game in overtime.

Pat Leahy, one of the NFL's best kickers over the past two decades, was wide left with a 28-yard field goal on first down with 3:50 left in the extra period. The ball slipped outside the left goal post by inches.

Leahy, who missed a 37-yarder earlier in the game, had missed only seven of his last 105 inside the 40 entering Monday night's game.

"We were there to win," Leahy said. "I didn't do it, simple as that. It was all my fault."

What followed was a demonstration of why the Bears are 4-0 and the Jets are 1-3.

Harbaugh, given another chance from his own 20, led the Bears steadily downfield. It looked like he had thrown the game-winning TD pass when he hit tight end Cap Boso — only to have the play ruled dead inside the 1 by instant replay.

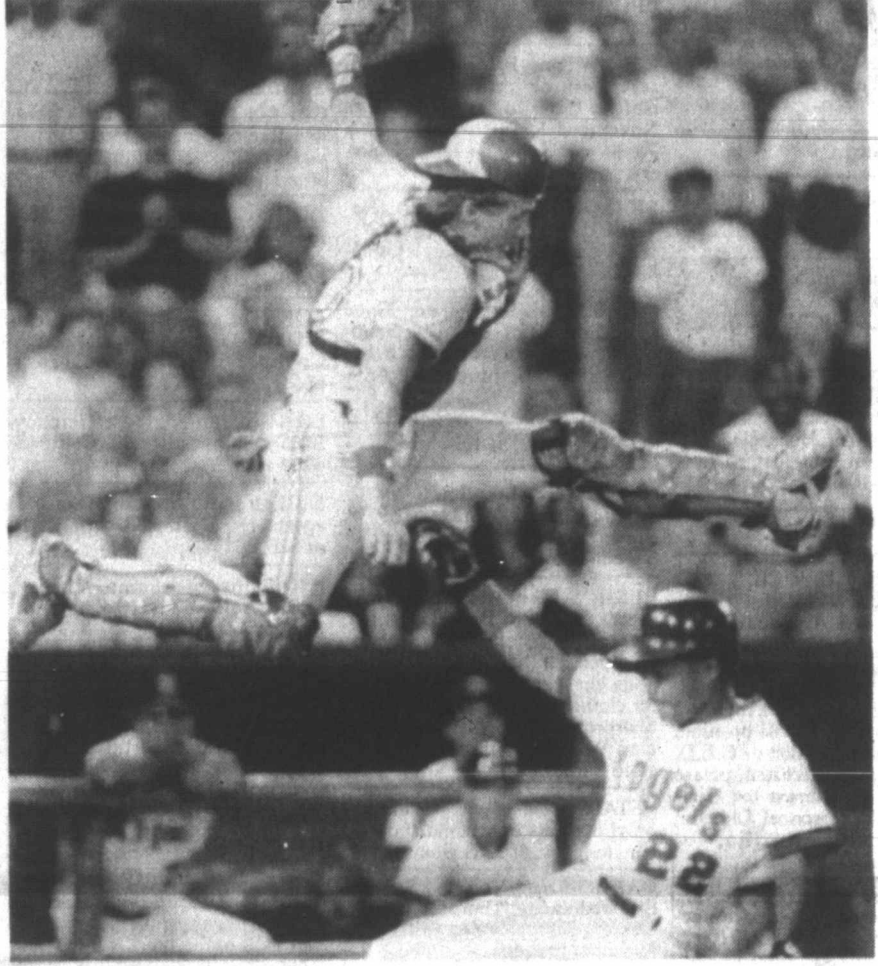

No matter: Harbaugh scored on a sneak up the middle on the next play.

"We decided to go with our two minute drill because that's what was working," he said. "Tom Waddle (and) Wendell Davis made some big catches. And Cap Boso made a big catch."

"I got to thank the good Lord tonight. It seems like he was smiling down on us tonight."

And the Jets are beginning to wonder if they are snakebit. Monday's was the second heartbreaking loss to an unbeaten team. Last week, they fell 23-20 to Buffalo after leading 20-16 in the final quarter.

"Anyone who has seen our games is I'm sure baffled by it," guard Dave Cadigan said. "It's a long season. Thank God in the NFL you get 16 games. We have a lot of pride, a lot of good players. We will come back."

It's true, Expos can't go home again

By The Associated Press

The Montreal Expos are currently a team without a home, but things could be worse.

"We've won 16 out of our last 23 and we feel we're on a roll," said pitcher Mark Gardner.

That included a split of a two-night doubleheader in St. Louis on Monday, when the Expos lost the opener 10-1 and won the nightcap 5-1. That gave the Expos a 9-6 record since their home games were switched from Olympic Stadium after a 55-ton concrete beam fell from the side of the stadium on Sept. 13.

"It's been a crazy schedule," Gardner said. "None of us have gotten any sleep. You get up early. You go to bed late because we have to fly around so much. Nobody likes what's happened in Montreal, but there are certain things in life you have to accept, and I could understand the reasoning for not being able to play there."

In other NL games on Monday night, it was Chicago 10, Philadelphia 3, and Houston 8, San Francisco 0.

Todd Zeile hit a three-run double to lead St. Louis out of a prolonged scoring slump and Bryn Smith pitched a three-hitter in the Cardinals' first-game victory.

Ozzie Smith added a two-run homer, Pedro Guerrero had a two-run double for his first extra-base hit since July 4 and Ray Lankford had a two-run single for the Cardinals.

Entering the game, St. Louis had scored only 13 runs in its previous six games and was 1-5 in that span.

Bryn Smith (12-8) struck out six and walked one for his first victory since Aug. 21. Loser Dennis Martinez (14-11) allowed only three hits in 3 2/3 innings.

In the second game, Montreal's Chris Nabholz worked seven shutout innings to raise his record in September to 5-0 and Tim Wallach broke out of a slump with two RBIs.

Nabholz (7-7) gave up three hits, struck out six and walked two. Wallach, hitting .220 with only 15 hits in his previous 100 at-bats, snapped a scoreless tie with a sixth-inning sacrifice fly off reliever Mark Clark (0-1), and had a run-scoring single as the Expos broke the game open with four runs in the eighth.

National League

"I don't mind this at all," Nabholz said about the Expos' prolonged road trip that will take them to the end of the season. "As long as you're out there pitching, it's a good sign."

Nabholz's last three victories have come on the road.

"He's really turned the corner," Expos manager Tom Runnels said. "He was in command of all his pitches."

Cubs 10, Phillies 3

Luis Salazar hit a three-run homer during a five-run first and Greg Maddux (13-10) pitched seven-hit ball over eight innings as Chicago routed visiting Philadelphia.

Ryne Sandberg had two singles and a double with three RBIs and Mark Grace, saddled in a 16-for-76 slump, had three of the Cubs' 14 hits as Chicago moved two games ahead of Philadelphia in their battle for fourth place in the NL East.

The Cubs, after suffering a doubleheader loss to Montreal on Sunday, took out their frustrations on Terry Mulholland (15-12), who lasted just two innings.

Philadelphia's Von Hayes said Maddux "has lost something off his fastball, but got us to hit a lot of groundballs on his off-speed stuff."

Astros 8, Giants 0

Pete Harnisch held San Francisco to two hits over six innings and Jeff Bagwell had three of Houston's 16 hits as the Astros defeated the Giants at the Astrodome.

Harnisch (11-9) retired 17 of the first 19 batters he faced and allowed two infield singles, while striking out six and walking none.

Curt Schilling earned his eighth save with three innings of scoreless relief. Trevor Wilson (11-11) was the loser, lasting only 1 1/3 innings.

Harnisch unveiled a new pitch Monday night — a split-finger fastball.

"I had a pretty good split finger. I thought I'd break it in tonight. That's something they haven't seen," Harnisch said. "I had thrown only one split finger all year, but I threw 12 or 13 tonight and I got six or seven outs with it."

Spurs look to improve with Carr

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The San Antonio Spurs, seeking immediate help up front, think they have their man in forward Antoine Carr.

The Spurs traded center Dwayne Schintzius and a 1994 second-round draft pick to Sacramento on Monday for Carr, a 6-foot-8 seven-year NBA veteran from Wichita State who led the Kings in scoring last year with a career-best 20.1 points per game.

"We acquired a player that will help up immediately," said Bob Bass, Spurs vice president of operations. "For a man his size, he has shown that he can shoot from outside and he can play either forward position."

Bass said Carr, 30, will be an offensive threat.

The 7-2 Schintzius, 22, averaged 3.8 points and 2.9 rebounds in 9.4 minutes per game in his rookie season last year as a backup to starting center David Robinson. He was a 1988 Olympic team finalist from the University of Florida.

Schintzius was the Spurs' first-round draft pick and the 24th selection overall in 1990.

Spurs coach Larry Brown, who at times criticized Schintzius' work habits, said the trade will be beneficial for both clubs.

"We need to be as competitive as possible this season and in Sacramento Dwayne will have the time he needs to fully develop his potential," Brown said.

Jerry Reynolds, the Kings director of player personnel, said giving up Carr was difficult, but that the Kings have "an abundance of forwards." He described Schintzius as "a highly skilled young big center."

"In addition to Duane Causwell, this clearly gives us over 14 feet of very young centers," Reynolds added.

Carr was a 1983 first-round pick, eighth overall, by Detroit. He opted to play in the Italian League his rookie year.

Volleyballers beat Lubbock Dunbar

LUBBOCK — Pampa High varsity and junior varsity volleyball squads defeated Lubbock Dunbar Saturday at Lubbock.

The varsity won, 15-11 and 15-4.

The junior varsity topped their opponents, 15-6 and 15-6, according to volleyball coach Denise Reed.

Reed said the varsity players overcame poor serving with good passing to record the victory. She said Leigh Ann Lindsey, the team's setter, did a good job running the offense.

PHS varsity scorers included: Kasey Bowers, 9 points; Amber Seaton, 6; Kristen Becker, 4; Jodi Millican, 3; Lindsey, 3; Shelly Young, 2; Elasha Hanks, 2.

The varsity record is 9-6 overall.

Junior varsity scorers included: Courtney Smith, 8; Lara Adams, 8; Tammy Chesher, 6; Jessica Garren, 3; Misti Plunk, 3; Candi Atwood, 2.

The JV record is 6-1.

The Lady Harvesters square off against Palo Duro beginning at 6 p.m. today.

Team Pampa gymnasts triumph at San Angelo

Team Pampa had three gymnasts finish first in the USFG District Qualifying Meet held last weekend in San Angelo. Level 4, 5, 6 and 7 gymnasts competed in the meet.

Katy Cavalier won vault in Level 7 with a 9.4, the high event score of the day. She also placed second on bars (8.75) second on beam (7.4); fourth on floor (8.8) and second all-around (34.35).

In Level 6 (8-11 age group), Aubrea Ward won first on vault (8.8) and first on beam (9.1). She also won all-around with a 35.35 and placed fourth on bars (8.35) and third on floor (9.1). Aubrea's all-around score was second high all-around of the day.

Team Pampa is coached by Fred & Lola Hughes at Gymnastics of Pampa. The next meet will be held Oct. 12 in Big Spring.

PMS volleyball teams beat Borger

Pampa's undefeated 8th graders downed Borger, 15-7, 15-0, in district volleyball action Monday.

Danielle Moore and Amanda Kludt were outstanding servers for Pampa, but coach Sandra Thornton said an overall team effort contributed to the victory.

Other team members were Serenity King, Jane Brown, Laura Marie Imel, Stacy Sandlin, Lillie Ramirez and Tamikay Calloway.

Pampa B team also defeated Borger, 15-8, 15-10.

Laura Miller and Angie Downs were outstanding servers for Pampa.

In seventh-grade play, Pampa lost to Borger, 11-15, 12-15.

Amy Morgan and Tina Dwight were outstanding servers for Pampa.

Pampa's B team lost, 13-15, 5-15. Both Pampa A teams will compete in the Borger Tournament this Saturday with matches starting at 8 p.m.

The next district matches for Pampa is Monday against Canyon.

Mike Wallace, right, of '60 Minutes' fame and Lucie Arnaz, daughter of Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, share a moment Monday night prior to an induction ceremony for the Television Academy Hall of Fame.

Mike Wallace, 'I Love Lucy' inducted into Television Academy Hall of Fame

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — The 'I Love Lucy' television series and its star, the late Desi Arnaz, were inducted into the Television Academy Hall of Fame during a ceremony at which his children accepted his award.

James Garner, the late Leonard Bernstein, the late Danny Thomas and Mike Wallace also were honored Monday as new TV Hall of Famers.

Lucie Arnaz and Desi Arnaz Jr. were misty-eyed as they accepted the honor for their father, said Tony Angellotti, a spokesman for the television academy.

The brother and sister recounted how their own childhoods were reflected on their parent's show when the "Little Ricky" character was introduced, he said. Their mother, the late Lucille Ball, previously was inducted into the Hall of Fame.

Vintage footage of the legendary Lucy show, including snippets from the pilot, and other moments from the careers of the five honored were shown at the ceremony at the Regent Beverly Wilshire hotel.

'I Love Lucy' producer Jess Oppenheimer's widow Estelle and original writers Madelyn Pugh-Davis and Bob Carroll Jr. accepted the award for the CBS show. It was the first show ever inducted into the Hall of Fame.

Tears welled up in James Garner's eyes as he accepted the honor from Rod Steiger and looked back on a much-loved career, Angellotti said. Garner, currently starring on NBC's Man of the People, is best known as Jim Rockford of The Rockford Files, the NBC series about a tough but tender private eye.

Morley Safer gave TV reporter Mike Wallace his award and Wallace gave conductor Bernstein's award to daughter Jamie Bernstein.

Celebrities who attended the ceremony included Sid Caesar, Dom DeLuise, Bill Bixby, Michelle Lee and Barbara Eden.

Marlo, Terre and Tony Thomas accepted their father's award from Sheldon Leonard.

Russia OKs restoration of old names of cities

MOSCOW (AP) — The northern industrial city of Sverdlovsk, where the last czar and his family were executed, can take back its pre-revolutionary name Ekaterinburg, the Russian government has decided.

Sverdlovsk city council members voted earlier this month to restore their name given in honor of Russian Empress Catherine I. The presidium of the Russian Supreme Soviet legislature on Monday approved the decision, the Interfax news agency reported, without saying when the change officially would take effect. The 270-year-old city had been renamed for Bolshevik revolutionary leader Yakov Sverdlov after his death in 1919.

The Russian leaders also approved restoration of the pre-revolutionary name of Sergiyev Posad to the town of Zagorsk, home to several historic cathedrals and a working monastery built by Russia's rulers as part of a ring of religious centers around Moscow.

Also Monday, a city commission in St. Petersburg decided to restore czarist-era names to 34 streets, squares and buildings in the city, which itself was renamed from Leningrad earlier this month.

The city name change officially takes effect Oct. 1 but officials already have begun changing everything from stationery to street signs, and the name St. Petersburg already has been adopted for most uses.

The renamings were the latest in a widespread effort in recent years to strip away the legacy of Communist rule, a process accelerated since last month's failed hard-line coup.

HUD homes offer bargains for buyers

Saving money for a down payment is one of the biggest obstacles many first-time homebuyers face, according to Becky Baten, president of the Pampa Board of Realtors.

"Time and again our members encounter prospective homeowners whose only reason for renting is their inability to come up with a 10 to 20 percent down payment," said Baten. One option for these individuals is to consider a HUD home, which may require a down payment of as little as $100.

HUD (Department of Housing and Urban Development) holds title to many foreclosed homes previously insured by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA). In these cases, the mortgage lender seeks from HUD the balance due on the mortgage. In turn, HUD takes title to the property and offers it to the public at a fair market value.

"Although the homebuying process with HUD homes is similar to that of homes owned by individuals, there are some important differences," Baten said. "Most notably, many HUD homes require only a 3 percent down payment. In addition, HUD may pay the closing costs charged by your mortgage company. Since these costs average 3 to 4 percent of the price of a home, this can be a significant amount."

"To purchase a HUD home, buyers must work with a real estate broker," continued Baten. "However, HUD will pay the real estate broker's commission on the sale price."

HUD homes come in all shapes and sizes, and may be located in any area. Look in the real estate section for a listing of HUD homes or contact a real estate professional who participates in the HUD home sales program, Baten advised.

"A real estate agent will explain the procedure and your loan options," she said. "The agent can also pre-qualify you in order to speed the loan process. This is important because on a HUD home, you must close the sale within 60 days of the acceptance of your offer."

"Unlike traditional homebuying, no bargaining is involved in making an offer on a HUD home," Baten said.

HUD homes are sold in what's known as an "offer period," during which an offer must be made. If you offer the full asking price, your bid may be accepted immediately, even before the offer period is over. If you offer less than the full price, your bid will be opened with all other bids at the end of the offer period. You may attend the opening of the offers, and your broker will be notified if yours is accepted, Baten said.

Other HUD homes are listed on an "extended" basis, which means offers may be submitted any business day. If your bid is accepted, your broker will generally be notified within 48 hours of HUD's receipt of the offer.

Are HUD homes for everybody? Probably not. "Buyers must remember that they are buying the home 'as-is,'" Baten said. "Some homes may need repair, but this can be a great opportunity for the fixer-upper. HUD may lower the price of a home knowing the buyer will need to invest money to make improvements."

A professional inspection is recommended before making an offer because HUD provides no warranties with its homes.

"If you're having trouble saving for a down payment, or are just looking for an alternative to the traditional homebuying process, contact a real estate agent and inquire about HUD homes," she said.

The Pampa Board of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 boards of Realtors that comprise the National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association and voice for real estate.

'Freddy' continues top run at box office

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The steel-fingered slayer of Elm Street slashed his way to the top box-office spot for a second straight weekend as Freddy's Dead: The Final Nightmare made $6.6 million.

Meanwhile, early summer entries such as Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves and Terminator 2: Judgment Day held on to top 10 box office slots in a season where hits have been few.

Overall, business was sluggish. According to figures released Monday by Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc., the promised final sequel of the Nightmare on Elm Street movies has now made $22.2 million. But its weekend take was down almost 50 percent from a week ago.

Late for Dinner, a new movie about a frozen person and time travel, debuted in second place with ticket sales of $3.6 million. It was followed by Dead Again, the Kenneth Branagh murder mystery, which earned a lively $3.2 million.

Fourth place went to Living Large, a new comedy about a clothes presser turned television journalist, on proceeds of $2.13 million. Terminator 2 was fifth on a gate of $2.06 million. Doc Hollywood, with Michael J. Fox, claimed sixth with revenues of $1.78 million.

On collections of $1.75 million in seventh was The Commitments, a story about an Irish rock band. The flyboy spoof Hot Shots! landed in eighth with receipts of $1.65 million.

Kevin Costner in Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves was ninth with $1.58 million and The Doctor was 10th on $1.4 million.

In limited release, The Fisher King and Rambling Rose played well, but Sean Penn's directorial debut in Indian Runner played to only average crowds.

Here are the top movie ticket sales Friday through Sunday according to Exhibitor Relations Co. Inc., with distributor, weekend gross, number of theater screens, average per screen, total gross and number of weeks in release.

Figures are based on a combination of actual box-office receipts and studio projections where actual figures are not immediately available.

1. Freddy's Dead: The Final Nightmare, New Line, $6.6 million, 1,860 screens, $3,563 per screen, $22.2 million, two weeks.

2. Late for Dinner, Columbia, $3.6 million, 1,013 screens, $3,561 per screen, $3.6 million, one week.

3. Dead Again, Paramount, $3.2 million, 940 screens, $3,407 per screen, $27.2 million, five weeks.

4. Living Large, Samuel Goldwyn, $2.13 million, 825 screens, $2,581 per screen, $2.13 million, one week.

5. Terminator 2: Judgment Day, TriStar, $2.06 million, 1,592 screens, $1,296 per screen, $193.6 million, 12 weeks.

6. Doc Hollywood, Warner Bros., $1.78 million, 1,617 screens, $1,103 per screen, $48.6 million, eight weeks.

7. The Commitments, 20th Century Fox, $1.75 million, 560 screens, $3,129 per screen, $9 million, six weeks.

8. Hot Shots!, 20th Century Fox, $1.65 million, 1,536 screens, $1,075 per screen, $63.9 million, eight weeks.

9. Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves, Warner Bros., $1.58 million, 1,431 screens, $1,107 per screen, $157.7 million, 15 weeks.

10. The Doctor, Disney, $1.4 million, 958 screens, $1,495 per screen, $33.2 million, nine weeks.

Traditions don't just happen. People are drawn by a tradition's value, uniqueness, and what it does for them. Chiropractic Care is a case in point.

CHIROPRACTIC CARE: THE TRADITION CONTINUES WITH ADVANCES IN LAW AND SCIENCE

Chiropractic patients understand this. For decades, patients utilized Chiropractic because of unique procedures. Friends and family members have been drawn by the experience - now every year millions of Texans enjoy and value the tradition. With the passage of the updated Chiropractic Practice Legislation, the advances in Chiropractic Care are now reflected in Texas Law.

The British Medical Journal also reflects the unique value of Chiropractic. In a recent scientific study, the Journal documented that patients treated by Doctors of Chiropractic experienced a higher degree of recovery than those treated in traditional outpatient clinics and remained so during a two-year follow up.

Both of these sources recognize that Chiropractic Care offers treatment that works with a patient's natural structure, balance and recuperative powers to relieve pain, restore motion and help patients stay well.

Put the tradition of Chiropractic Care to work for you and your family today.
