County considers taking concession at Lake McClellan

By BETH MILLER
Staff Writer

A U.S. Forest Service representative, meeting with Gray County Commissioners Court on Friday, said the Forest Service is looking for a partner in making improvements at Lake McClellan.

The lake, in the southwest part of Gray County, is in need of major renovations including dredging.

District Ranger Reggie Blackwell with the Forest Service met with the Commissioners Court to discuss the possibility of the county taking over the concessions at the lake. No decisions were made, with the matter to again be considered on Nov. 15.

Precinct 3 Commissioner Gerald Wright, who was instrumental in forming Lake McClellan Improvement Inc., said there could be certain advantages for the lake's improvement if Gray County was the concessionaire.

"There are strong possibilities that Texas Parks and Wildlife might be willing to consider Lake McClellan for some grant money if Gray County was the concessionaire," Wright said, adding that the state does not give money to non-profit organizations.

Wright said that ideally, the lake concessions would be a break-even proposition for the county and that any profits would go toward improvements at the lake. The concession currently sells permits for fishing, boating, motorcycle riding and picnicking. It also sells bait, picnic supplies, food, soft drinks and fishing equipment.

Nancy Etchison, who with her husband, John Etchison, operates the concession now for Dan Lewis of Clarendon, attended the Friday meeting and said, "Talking about profits not being turned back into the lake ... last year there was an $18,000 loss. I don't care who gets the lake, it needs to be understood that lake is not paying for itself now."

Precinct 4 Commissioner Ted Simmons said, "If some improvements were made at the lake, it could be better."

Blackwell said, "Most of these small recreational areas don't have any way to make a profit. Lake McClellan is an exception. It could pay for itself with the right amount of improvements made."

Blackwell also said that it appeals to the Forest Service that any profits made would be turned back into improvements at Lake McClellan. "That would help provide a higher quality recreational experience for the public," he said.

Wright said that he believed that if Gray County did become the concessionaire at the lake, it would be a large responsibility and that one member of the Commissioners Court might need to be appointed to oversee the area.

"It is a lot of work and responsibility on someone's part," he said.

Simmons said he would like to see private industry continue to operate the concession at the lake, but said that he can see an advantage for the county to take over the operation. "There are many things we could do in the recreational area, maintenance and cleanup," he said.

Wright said that in the mid-1980s, the Forest Service was trying to decide whether to save Lake McClellan as a recreational area or whether to let it go.

Wright and Blackwell both said that the U.S. Forest Service's position on Lake McClellan now is to try to improve its recreational status.

"There has definitely been a turn around as far as the Forest Service and saving the lake," Blackwell said.

He added, "We're looking for a partner, a long-term commitment."

The present permit for the concessions expires on Dec. 31.

Precinct 2 Commissioner Jim Greene said, "The county was in the hospital business and we got out of that because we weren't making any money. We gave money for the golf course and we got out. I don't think it's the county, state or federal government's charge to be in a business that a private entity could be in."

Greene said he could understand how the lake might be in a better position to receive grants if the county operated the concessions, but he added, "Grants are getting harder to get all the time."

Simmons, again said, "I'd still rather see this in private enterprise, and once it gets going I think you're going to have a lot of takers."

But Simmons also said, "If we (the county) don't do it, it's the last alternative that lake's going to have for rehabilitation ... I think we can do what we did on the golf course and benefit as many people. But I don't want to see the county get in the recreational business either."

The county gave $300,000 to help build Hidden Hills Golf Course. Simmons said he did not believe the county would have to spend that much money at Lake McClellan, but could contribute to some of the improvements with in-kind work.

In other business, the Commissioners Court:

- approved the sale of delinquent properties at 840 E. Gordon, 1041 S. Clark and 1001 Brunow.

- approved authorizing newly-appointed District Clerk Yvonne Moler to open new checking accounts at the county depository bank.

- approved the payment of $149,820.44 in salaries and bills.

- approved the following transfers: $55,886 from the general fund to the salary fund; $6,828 from FM&LR to Precinct 1 R&B; $12,161 from FM&LR to Precinct 2 R&B; $13,082 from FM&LR to Precinct 3 R&B; $8,178 from FM&LR to Precinct 4 R&B; $1,704 from Highland General Hospital fund to Court-house and Jail; $1,431 from the general fund to the law library; $3,137 from Highland General Hospital fund to the general fund; $2,000 (as a loan) from Highland General Hospital fund to the jury fund.

- approved the wording of a plaque that will be put in the new Gray County Jail and Sheriff's Office, scheduled to be completed in January.

- discussed various items involving the new jail.

Chilly cheerleaders

Pampa High School varsity cheerleaders Leigh Ann Lindsey, Julie Montoya and Callie Babcock huddle in front of a heater Friday evening during the Harvesters 18-9 upset loss to Dumas. Temperatures hovered in the mid-20s, with single-digit wind chill factors, chilling the bodies but not the enthusiasm of the Harvester fans. For more on Friday night's game, see page 7.

Sheriff Free throws hat in ring, names brother campaign treasurer

By BETH MILLER
Staff Writer

Incumbent Gray County Sheriff Jim Free designated his campaign treasurer for the 1992 election on Friday, according to records in the Gray County Clerk's Office.

Free named his brother, Glenn Free, as his campaign treasurer. The sheriff is in his first four-year term, after being elected in November 1988 as a write-in candidate. He defeated longtime sheriff Rufe Jordan in that election.

Three others have shown intentions to run against Free in the election, by also filing their campaign treasurer's statements. Randy Stubblefield filed his paperwork on Sept. 17 and Fred Brown filed his campaign treasurer statement on Oct. 4. Kenneth Kieth, former chief deputy of the sheriff's office, filed his paperwork on Oct. 7.

Although the campaign treasurer's statement is an indication of intent to run for the office, actual filing dates for getting on the primary ballot are Dec. 2 to Jan. 2. Anyone who plans to run for an office must file a campaign treasurer's statement prior to accepting any campaign contributions.

Others who have filed their campaign treasurer's statements for other offices in Gray County are incumbents County Attorney Bob McPherson, Tax Assessor/Collector Margie Gray, Precinct 2 Constable Chris Lockridge and District Clerk Yvonne Moler.

Offices up for election in 1992 in Texas include all district attorneys, sheriffs, tax assessor/collectors, county attorneys, public weighers, county commissioners in Precincts 1 and 3 and all constables.

Nationwide, the country will elect a president in 1992. All 30 U.S. representatives positions will be up for election.

Statewide offices on the ballots will be Railroad Commissioner Lena Guerrero's spot; three Supreme Court positions, currently held by Jack Hightower, Oscar Mauzy and Eugene A. Cook; and three Court of Criminal Appeals positions, currently held by Morris L. Overstreet, Charles F. (Charlie) Baird and Fortunato P. Benavides.

All 31 state senator positions and all 150 state representative positions in Texas will be on the ballot. All 15 positions of the State Board of Education will be up for election.

Various district judges, criminal district judges and court of appeals judges will also be up for election.

Lottery likely to spur voters to polls

Tuesday's constitutional amendment election will likely have a heavy voter turnout, thanks in part to the lottery issue which continues to draw criticism and support as the election draws nearer.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Tuesday statewide for people who have not voted early.

Early voting tallies in Gray County show 674 people took the opportunity to express their opinions in the constitutional amendment election, said Gray County Clerk Wanda Carter.

Early voting ended at 5 p.m. on Friday. The voting machines were also tested on Friday and Carter reported they are in good working condition.

Carter said there are about nine ballots still out in the mail. Six people voted early on the question of the consolidation of Alanreed, Lefors and McLean independent school districts. Only registered voters in those school districts are eligible to vote in that election.

Carter said that the number of people who took advantage of early voting is good for Gray County. She said the lottery issue - Proposition 11 - probably helped draw more people to take advantage of early voting. She also said that last Sunday, when the clerk's office was open for voting, there was a good turnout with 249 people casting ballots.

Local voters to decide on Sunday beer sales in Tuesday election

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Pampa voters will decide this Tuesday, Nov. 5, whether to lift a 45-year-old ban on Sunday beer sales in the city.

A group led by convenience store owners Allan and Jesse Whitson are arguing that the ban is unfair to local businesses since stores just outside the city limits can sell beer seven days a week.

Supporters of the prohibition, led predominantly by evangelical Christian ministers, have countered that any loosening of liquor ordinances equates to moral erosion and "mixed messages in the age of 'Just say no to drugs.'"

Voters can express their will at the following locations from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.:

Ward 1, Travis Elementary; Ward 2, Austin Elementary; Ward 3, Lovett Library auditorium; and Ward 4, Horace Mann Elementary.

When city commissioners voted 4-1 in August to support the ban and take the issue to voters, outraged opponents of the prohibition accused the city of moralizing.

Mayor Richard Peet joined commissioners Jerry Wilson, Gary Sutherland and Ray Hupp in supporting the Sunday beer sales ban, while Commissioner Robert Dixon has opposed it.

The Whitsons, who own the Harvey Mart stores in Pampa, and Roy Feazel, owner of Minit Mart, have insisted morality and moral erosion have nothing to do with lifting the beer ban, which they see as good for local retail stores.

"All we want is for it to be fair," Jesse Whitson has said. "We're going to get this thing equal for everybody."

Even if the beer ban is lifted in Tuesday's election, it may not settle the issue for good.

Several ministers have said they support letting voters decide the issue on a countywide basis in the form of a wet/dry election.

If the beer ban is maintained Tuesday, Jesse Whitson has said he would prefer the entire county go dry.

News analysis

"We're just asking for a fair shake," Allan Whitson said. "We're not asking those guys in there (commissioners) to change their personal beliefs."

Jesse Whitson said, "When you have a city commission like this, you ain't got nothing. If Pampa wants to move forward, we have to change some of these old laws passed back in 1940-something. If not, we'll just all stop selling it completely."

"We can compete with these guys (convenience stores outside the city limits) if everything is equal.

But if the city commission ties your hands behind your back, what can you do?"

Mayor Peet has made no apologies for his stand, in spite of criticism that it is based on his religious convictions.

In public meetings he has said "there is more to consider than just economics" where alcohol is concerned.

"I don't think this (ordinance) was wrong in 1946 and I don't think it is wrong today," Peet said.

He stated any vote in favor of loosening liquor laws sends "a message to kids that we endorse alcohol and that alcohol is OK. I don't think that's the message this commission wants to send."

Commissioner Dixon has said while he does not drink alcohol, he can't push that belief off on others.

"This is ludicrous," he complained in an public exchange with Peet in August. "I cannot feel that outlawing beer sales for local businesses on Sunday is making a stand when it's allowed virtually right across the street."

Nonetheless, Southern Baptist ministers Lyndon Glaesman of Calvary Baptist, Norman Rushing of Central Baptist, Steve Smith of Hobart Baptist and Darrel Rains of First Baptist have joined other evangelical pastors in encouraging Pampa voters to disapprove the issue because of its moral implications and the message it sends about the acceptability of alcohol consumption.

Gov. Richards names former Pampan to Punishment Standards Commission

Former Pampa resident Steve J. Martin has been appointed to serve on the 25-member Texas Punishment Standards Commission by Gov. Ann Richards.

The new commission, created by House Bill 93 during the second special session of the 72nd Legislature, is charged with overhauling Texas laws on crime and punishment, basically rewriting the Texas penal code.

The commission will be co-chaired by Sen. Ted Lyon and Rep. Allen Hightower. Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Gib Lewis named 10 legislative members to the commission, with Gov. Richards appointing 15 members-at-large, including Martin.

Martin, a 1966 graduate of Pampa High School, is the son of Bill and Naomi Martin of Pampa. He has a bachelor of science and master of arts in correctional administration from Sam Houston State University and a law degree from the University of Tulsa School of Law.

He worked at the maximum security prison in Huntsville and later at the state prison for female felons. He has also worked for the Federal Bureau of Prisons in Fort Worth.

After completing his graduate work, Martin was appointed as a U.S. Probation and Parole officer in McAllen. He also worked in Tulsa as a probation officer and, after completing his law degree, was a legal counsel for the Texas prison system. He later became general counsel of the system and chief of staff to the prison director.

In 1985, he was named a special assistant attorney general and received a visiting faculty appointment at the University of Texas School of Law. While at the school, he co-authored Texas Prisons: The Walls Came Tumbling Down.

Since 1986, Martin, 43, has been engaged in the private practice of law and corrections consulting in Austin. He has been involved in litigation and consulting work for various prisons and jails and served on the Texas Council for Mentally Impaired Offenders in 1986, appointed by then-Gov. Bill Clements.

He is a member of the State Bar of Texas and the American Society of Criminology and serves in a volunteer capacity to the Association of Retarded Citizens.

Richards said the commission's charge will be to improve public safety in Texas.

"Our criminal justice system is broken," she said. "Texans are fed up with the spectacle of violent offenders being released from prison after serving only a fraction of their sentence. They are frustrated and angry with the revolving doors in our prison system.

"The emphasis must be on reserving our maximum security prison space for the most violent offenders."

The governor said the state must increase its overall capacity in the criminal justice system, with more prisons built to hold an additional 25,000 inmates. She said the state also needs to increase the number of criminals placed under intensive supervision and in alternative sentencing programs.

"Violent criminals must serve their full sentence," Richards said. "And that must be the primary focus of the Punishment Standards Commission."

By statute, the commission is charged with studying the punishments prescribed for criminal offenses in Texas, sentencing practices in criminal courts, costs related to prison construction, and the effect of jail and prison overcrowding and lenient parole laws on sentences actually served by defendants convicted of criminal offenses.

After completing its study, the commission, organized fully in October, will propose legislation. The commission will be abolished on Sept. 1, 1993.

Funds sought to help family of accident victim

MIAMI - Funds are being sought to help a former Miami, Texas, resident get to North Carolina where his son has been critically injured in a car accident, said Valda Traugber, publisher/editor of the Miami CHIEF.

Traugber said Saturday word was received of the Thursday hit-in-run accident which left 20-year-old Reggie Wright critically injured. He is in the Intensive Care Unit at Craven Regional Medical Center in New Bern, N.C., and has reportedly gone into septic shock, Traugber said.

Wright, who is to be 21 on Monday, went to school at Miami for a time, Traugber said. His legs were reportedly crushed in the accident. His father, Ron Wright, a former Roberts County deputy sheriff, is in need of funds to get from his home in Fort Mohave, Ariz., to North Carolina, she said.

Ron Wright is married to Sharon Wright, who is the daughter of Don and Barbara Philpott of Miami.

Traugber said announcements will be made in Miami churches today about the situation and money is being collected at the Bailey Grocery store in Miami. Money can also be taken by the Miami CHIEF office at 401 E. Commercial St. in Miami or mailed to the newspaper office at Box 396, Miami, Texas 79059.

For more information, contact Traugber at 868-2521 or call the Roberts County Sheriff's Office at 868-3121.

Pampans to be honored at State Center award banquet

The Amarillo State Center will conduct its annual awards banquet for workers at their center and the Pampa Sheltered Workshop on Friday, Nov. 8.

Sue Lutes, director of volunteer services for the Amarillo center, said the dinner will be in the Amarillo Civic Center grand plaza room, located at 3rd and Buchanan.

Dinner will begin at 6:30 p.m. and awards will be presented beginning at 7:15, Lutes stated.

She said outstanding workers from the Pampa center will be honored during the evening.

Those seeking more information can call 1-358-1681 ext. 201 for details.

18 killed in new surge by rebels in northeast India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Rebels in Assam state killed at least 18 people in a 24-hour wave of bombings, stabbings and shootings, news agencies said Saturday.

At least a half-dozen other people were wounded in shootings and stabblings, according to United News of India and Press Trust of India.

The army moved into the area to try to quell the surge of violence, United News said.

The attacks appeared to be the work of two separate groups, the United Liberation Front of Assam and the Bodo tribal rebels. The two organizations are drawn from different ethnic groups, each one fighting for more power for its own people.

Governor urges support for bond issues

McALLEN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards on Saturday urged voters to get to the polls in support of four bond issues she said would prove crucial to the state's future.

Just days before voters decide what to do with millions in state funds, Richards toured Texas to muster support for issues she acknowledged were very important to her.

The governor was joined in McAllen by a host of Rio Grande Valley politicians in supporting propositions 4, 11, 12 and 13, which will do everything from providing money for education to creating a state lottery.

Prop. 4 is a referendum that allows the issuance of $1.1 billion in general obligation bonds to build new prisons.

Prop. 11 calls for the creation of a state lottery. Prop. 12 would allow the Texas Water Development Board to shift $150 million in bond money that was approved in 1989 to finance colonia improvements. A total of $500 million was approved in that election, with $100 million then set aside for loans and grants for colonia improvements.

Prop. 13 would authorize the issuance of up to $300 million in general obligation bonds to finance education loans to resident students attending Texas colleges and universities.

Richards said the Prop. 4 money would be crucial in alleviating the ongoing crisis in the state's jails, which are perpetually filled to overflowing.

"We have created a revolving door system in which we are letting people out before they have served their full term," the governor said.

The state lottery is necessary because it will provide about $500 million in revenues. "And if you don't get that half billion dollars from the lottery you're going to get it from taxes," Richards said.

The governor's statements were echoed by Valley politicians gathered around her, among them state Rep. Roberto Gutierrez, D-McAllen. "It's very important," Gutierrez said. "I will also urge you to vote for the other nine (propositions). All of them are good."

About 30 protestors gathered outside the Fairway Hotel with signs accusing Richards of abandoning Valley voters.

Most of them were opposing high auto insurance rates.

"We are not against the insurance. We want insurance," said Carlos DeLeon, a Weslaco resident holding a sign that read: "Only when you need votes you remember us."

DeLeon said the protestors were there "to show the governor that she can do something for us."

Earlier in the day, Richards appeared in San Antonio with police officers to urge voter support for Prop. 4, which would lead to 25,000 additional prison cells for violent offenders.

"These officers here with me today agree that until we build these cells, we're going to continue to see these offenders on the street," she said.

Let the grading be fair to all students

It's amazing how comments by one person (who may well be suffering from lethal doses of high school football) can do so much to discredit all ties between sports and academics.

A teacher at Bastrop High School, southeast of Austin, has been caught doctoring the math grades of an athlete so he wouldn't be ruled academically ineligible.

Once the University Interscholastic League and Texas Education Agency got wind of it, they took away two Bastrop victories.

Now the top-ranked 4A team in the state may not even make the playoffs.

BHS Principal James Richardson could have expressed deep regret that one of his teachers would actually change a child's grade after it had been posted so that the young man could continue to participate in an extra-curricular activity.

Instead, he defended the teacher's action. "Our contention is the teacher is in control of grades," Richardson said. "We don't try to regulate why teachers give the grades they give. It's a common practice for teachers to give students the grade they think they are worthy of. I support the teacher."

Hold on a second. That kind of thinking perfectly defines what's wrong with high school football in Texas.

I love football, but it's not a religion. We've got to remember it's just another thing you do after your homework, like drama club or student newspaper.

Mr. Richardson, you and those like you are the reason Texas had to institute no pass/no play.

What's really important here? What's going to carry this young man through life? Football? Highly unlikely. Precious few high school athletes ever make a college team, and then many of them quit because it's no fun anymore.

Of those who stick it out, only the top one or two percent make pro ball. Everybody else has to get "real jobs" in the real world.

And in the real world, math matters. Football is only a diversion.

Let's take this principal's statement to its logical conclusion. Is he really saying grades reflect no objective standard, only subjective decisions about worthiness? Whatever happened to students EARNING their grades through performance?

I haven't noticed the TAAS, SAT or ACT upping any scores because a kid brought extra pencils with him or showed up 20 minutes early with an apple for the teacher and an earnest desire to fake his way through the math section.

Those tests only reflect if you know the answer,

Off Beat By Bear Mills

not your worthiness.

If it is totally up to teachers what grades they give, with no sort of checks and balances based on objective standards, can a male teacher give better grades to the girls with the shortest skirts and best legs?

To say students should be graded on their "worth" rather than their performance is to say that good intentions, a pleasant personality and a great excuse for why you didn't turn in your homework will carry you through life.

Hardly. In the real world it is your performance that counts, not your intentions or your worthiness.

Mr. Richardson's comments go way past indicting high school football. They bring into question the entire academic system in Texas. Do teachers as a whole really give students the grade they are worthy of, rather than the grade they earn?

Maybe that explains why standardized tests continue to chart a downward trend in academic performance by students over the past two decades. (It is a trend, by the way, with no end in sight.)

I'm told that teachers subjectively changing grades for selected "worthy" students is commonplace, and not just in Bastrop. If it is, it's wrong.

Parents of non-athletes must know that in academics it doesn't matter how well (or even if) you compete on the football field, it only matters how you perform in class.

Why should a jock get a break that every other kid with a 68 in class didn't get?

And what does it do to an athlete's self image to know he didn't earn a grade like the other kids? His was a gift because he apparently isn't bright enough to work for it.

If grading is really just a study in blatant subjectivity, we can stop pretending to be fair. Let's be honest and tell all the guys they better go out for sports if they want any favors. As for the girls, they can choose between volleyball and the shortest skirt in school.

House Committee on Agriculture, Livestock tours businesses, A&M experimental stations

AMARILLO — The Committee on Agriculture and Livestock of the Texas House of Representatives will get a firsthand look at Panhandle agriculture and at local units of the Texas A&M University System during a tour here Nov. 7.

Members of the committee are coming here primarily to look at the facilities and services of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station and Texas Agricultural Extension Service, agencies of A&M. The tour will begin with breakfast and briefings at 7 a.m. at the A&M Agricultural Research and Extension Center, 6500 Amarillo Blvd. West.

State Rep. David Swinford of Dumas was appointed to the House Agriculture and Livestock Committee at the beginning of his term. The legislative committee is chaired by L.P. "Pete" Patterson, D-Brookston, a farmer and rancher. Other members are Charles Fennell, D-Holliday; Renato Cuellar, D-Weslaco; Layton Black, D-Goldthwaite; Tom Cate, D-Lytle; Bob Glaze, D-Gilmer; Jerry Johnson, D-Nacogdoches; and Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale.

They also will visit and receive briefings by leaders of the Texas Veterinary Medical Diagnostic Laboratory, West Texas State University, the U.S. Department of Agriculture-Agricultural Research Service facility at Bushland, several Panhandle commodity organizations and the Ag Council of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce.

Tour stops will include the Iowa Beef Packers plant, the Texas Cattle Feeders Association and American Quarter Horse Association in Amarillo, Panhandle Milling Co., Southwest Feedyard, Arrowhead Mills and Holly Sugar in Hereford.

The following day the committee will travel to Plainview and Lubbock to tour Experiment Station and Extension Service facilities and visit other commodity and agribusiness enterprises and leaders.

Record heroin seizures in Houston spark concern

HOUSTON (AP) — U.S. Customs officials, who have seized record amounts of heroin in Houston, believe more dealers are getting involved in heroin trafficking because it is so lucrative.

The 2.8 pounds of heroin found in the false bottom of a suitcase Friday at Houston Intercontinental Airport increased last week's total to 15 pounds worth $1 million a pound, authorities said. That amount is almost double the amount of heroin seized in Houston in an entire 12-month period ending Sept. 30.

"We're hitting hard," Customs District Director Patricia McCauley told the Houston Chronicle. "But, of course, we'll never know how much we're missing."

In Friday's seizure, the drugs were spread in a wafer-thin layer beneath the original lining. The 2.8-pound weight difference between the top and bottom of the case tipped off the agent.

A 32-year-old Detroit woman returning to Houston from Lagos, Nigeria, was arrested in the case.

In another seizure last week, a Customs agent suspicious of a man returning from Amsterdam, Holland, found 12.65 pounds of heroin. The man told the agent he had gone to see the tulips, Ms. McCauley said. Tulips bloom in spring, not fall.

Customs agents believe heroin may overtake cocaine as the drug of choice for dealers because it is so lucrative. Street-quality cocaine must be about 25 percent pure, but street-sold heroin need be only 3 percent to 5 percent pure.

One pound of 90 percent pure heroin can be diluted into 20 pounds of street quality drug, meaning a $1 million investment can bring a $20 million return.

Such staggering potential profit has caught the eye of the Columbian drug cartels, which are now producing some heroin and shipping it with their more traditional product, cocaine, agents said.

Judge refuses to halt Sawyers execution

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has refused to postpone the scheduled execution next week of a former sawmill worker convicted of beating an elderly woman to death.

U.S. District Judge Lynn Hughes denied the stay Friday for John Christopher Sawyers, 36, who is scheduled to die by injection early Wednesday for the 1983 slaying.

Ethyl Delaney, 67, of Houston was beaten so severely with a cast-iron skillet that the handle broke on the fourth blow to her head, according to court records.

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers

WASHINGTON — A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "hi-tech" food tablet would help erase world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.

Although other studies and scientists may not agree, researchers in Europe found that the ingredient, a natural plant colloid, actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to one study published in the prestigious British Journal of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calories.

While the project of National Dietary Research, aptly named Food Source One, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the formula which has since been improved with other natural colloids has been a windfall for some overweight people. A Daytona Beach, Florida woman fighting a weight battle for 12 years used the product on the recommendation of her physician and lost 30 pounds. She stated, "Not only have I lost 30 pounds but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two closets full of clothes which have not fit me in two years that I can now wear." In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in 3 weeks on the product and was never hungry.

Food Source One tablets are part of National Dietary Research's comprehensive plan to bring a rapid end to obesity in this country. A variety of nutritionally sound diet plans, specially prepared by NDR, accompany each bottle and provide a natural, drug free alternative for confronting the problem of obesity.

Automakers want to have own way

American consumers shopping for a new car will face higher prices and fewer choices, if Rep. Richard Gephardt and Sen. Don Riegle have their way. Of course, Gephardt, D-Mo., and Riegle, D-Mich., would deny the charge, but their proposal to strictly limit the number of foreign-brand cars sold in the United States would have a negative impact on American consumers.

Under the short-sighted theme of "saving American jobs," the two lawmakers want to impose a formal limit on the number of cars non-American automakers can sell in the United States. Their proposal would replace the system of "voluntary quotas" that have governed Japanese automobile imports since 1982.

The proposal itself reveals the phonyness of the "saving jobs" argument. Gephardt and Riegle would not only restrict imports but also the sale of automobiles made in American factories owned by overseas automakers. These plants, built by Honda, Nissan, Toyota and other foreign automakers, largely employ American workers. Yet Gephardt and Riegle would restrict their sales, too.

As with all forms of protectionism, consumers would be the real losers if Riegle and Gephardt get their way. Restricting the availability of foreign-brand cars, whether made abroad or in the United States, will limit the choices for consumers looking for a new car. The quotas could make it difficult or even impossible for a consumer to buy the brand of car he or she may want.

This artificial scarcity will then drive up the price of a new car for all consumers — whether they buy a foreign or American make. The quotas will in effect be a forced transfer of income from domestic consumers to domestic automakers.

The U.S. automakers' seeking of protectionism resembles that of other American companies, from computer products to television makers to developers of recording equipment, who try to obtain government protection for their products at the expense of the consumer. It's ironic to hear them praise our nation's free-market and free enterprise system while at the same time they go running to Uncle Sam to save them from the often-better, less-expensive products coming from overseas markets. They cover up the scam by yelling about "saving American jobs." Consumers, though, should have the choice of being able to purchase any product that proves to be better quality and less expensive, whether it's American-made or made in Japan, Taiwan, Germany, France, Mexico or wherever.

If American automakers are worried about the growing market share of foreign models, they should meet the challenge through free-market competition, not government protection.

Market miracles aren't ruled

Here's something to think about when politicians talk about regulating economic activity.

Computers are used for everything from hotel reservations and accounting to magnetic resonance imaging and space travel. Let's do the following mental experiment. Put yourself back in the late 1940s when computers began to be developed. Then ask: Was it humanly possible for anyone to anticipate all of the possible development and uses? The answers are no, never.

It's not because people are dumb. Even the men themselves, who were engaged in the early development of computers, could not have possibly anticipated the results of their actions. It is inherently impossible to significantly understand the unanticipated consequences of human action.

Economic regulation assumes a level of knowledge and information that no person, or group of persons, can ever have. Imagine that our 1940s Congress had the power to regulate computers the way they regulate radio, telephones and television through the FCC. People with ideas for better computers would have to go through lengthy and costly procedures to enter the market or introduce a new product. Computer firms already in the market would make political payoffs to congressmen to keep out competitors.

As a result of stifled competition, not only would we have lower quality computers, at a higher price, but there would not be the development of the huge aftermarket — the software market.

For several years, local telephone companies have had the technology to bring television to our homes through telephone wires. Guess why we don't have it. The primary reason is that cable television companies have made large donations to the campaign pockets of congressmen and local politicians to keep the "baby Bells" out of the television business. Why? So that the cable companies can have a monopoly and raise prices whenever they wish.

There's another upside to unfettered competition; it exacts a high cost to discrimination. We see this especially in the case of women. Since entry is unregulated, there are more women executives in the computer and computer-related industry than in any other industry. Success depends more on performance than who you know. A word-processing proprietorship, for example, lends itself to the demands of women who are also wives and mothers.

To get in business is not prohibitively costly. But no sweat, ladies. The Communication Workers of the World union has been trying to prevent firms from contracting out for years.

What about mistakes in a free market? Being human means making mistakes, but there's a difference between government mistakes and private ones. According to one estimate, by the FDA delaying the introduction of a beta-blocker, 10,000 Americans died unnecessarily from secondary effects of heart attacks. But when Coca Cola made a mistake with the new Coke, or IBM's mistake with PCjr, or Ford's mistake with the Edsel, declining profits lead to heads rolling.

The bottom line is regulation and planning implies a level of knowledge that is impossible. Wisdom held by the many (in the market) is far superior to that held by the few. So whenever a politician suggests government regulation of some activity, you tell him, "I prefer regulation through the market because the market doesn't look kindly upon stupidity and mistakes."

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Nov. 3, the 307th day of 1991. There are 58 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 3, 1900, the first automobile show in the United States opened at New York's Madison Square Garden under the auspices of the Automobile Club of America.

On this date:

In 1839, the first Opium War between China and Britain erupted as two British frigates and a fleet of war junks clashed off the Chinese coast.

In 1868, Republican Ulysses S. Grant won the presidential election over Democrat Horatio Seymour.

In 1896, Republican William McKinley defeated Democrat William Jennings Bryan for the presidency.

In 1903, Panama proclaimed its independence from Colombia.

In 1908, Republican William Howard Taft was elected the 27th president of the United States, outpolling William Jennings Bryan.

In 1936, President Franklin D. Roosevelt won a landslide victory over Republican challenger Alfred M. Landon.

In 1957, the Soviet Union launched Sputnik II, the second manmade satellite, into orbit with a dog on board named Laika.

Back to the paws that refresh

I had been on the road for several weeks and had been separated from my dog, Catfish. It was the longest Catfish and I had ever been away from each other in the seven (49 dog) years we've been together.

I missed him. I wondered if he missed me. I wondered if he were angry that I'd been away so long.

"Dogs have no sense of time," someone reassured me. "They don't know if you've been away ten minutes or ten weeks."

I suppose that's why dogs seem to be just as glad to see you when you've been to the Waffle House for a cup of coffee as they are when you return from a fact-finding trip to the Gulf of Mexico. I'll take Panama City over Basra any day.

The lady from the kennel brought Catfish home. "He's been a good boy," she said "He's always a pleasure to keep."

I felt proud. Catfish hit the open door, running. He ran into the living room and sniffed the carpet a couple of times.

I was sitting at the kitchen table. He circled around me and then ran upstairs to my (our) bedroom. He came back downstairs and finally stopped at the door to the cabinet where

Lewis Grizzard

I keep his dog biscuits.

He pawed the door and whined. "I've been away all this time" I said to him, "and the first thing you do is whine for a biscuit."

I don't know what I expected. Yeah, I do.

I expected him to leap into my arms in a thank-God-you're-finally-home scenario.

I walked to the cabinet and gave Catfish a dog biscuit. He ran directly to the living room to eat it.

Over the years I have noticed that, given a choice between carpet and any other household surface, he will pick the carpet off which to eat every time.

After finishing his biscuit, Catfish finally came to my chair and allowed me to pet him.

At least he didn't seem angry. As a matter of fact, as had been pointed out to me, he seemed to be acting just as he would have if I'd been gone ten minutes.

He found a golf ball on the floor and chewed it for a while. Bored with that, he went outside in the yard, sniffed a few times and did his business.

He barked at a bird. He scratched in the grass. He came back inside and whined for another biscuit.

I gave him one and he went back to the carpet to eat it.

Catfish sleeps — in a sort of bean-bag bed I bought him — at the foot of my own bed. When I'm on the road, I miss the comfort and security he affords me at night. There's something about hearing his tags around his neck jingle when he changes sleeping positions.

I've got an alarm system. I've also got a backup — Catfish. Anything moves around a door and he immediately alerts me with fearsome growling and barking.

I turned off the light and got under my covers. Catfish circled around his bed and when he was finally comfortable, he sort of sighed and stretched out for the night. I dropped right off to sleep.

Damn, hotel rooms.

Lawyers taking us to the cleaners

Here's a depressing thought: With 5 percent of the world's population, the United States has 70 percent of the world's lawyers. That's one lawyer for every 300 normal people — more than twice the number in Britain, and 25 times that in Japan.

The results are predictable. The nation is awash in laws that are barely understandable and frivolous court cases that benefit no one but the lawyers. Last year, some 18 million lawsuits were filed in U.S. courts. The annual cost: more than $80 billion — including $22 billion in attorneys' fees alone. (For the record, the average attorney makes $168,000 a year.)

Our legal system no longer is designed to serve the common man, but to provide more jobs and more money for lawyers. That's why laws now are written so that no one but attorneys can understand them. It's no coincidence that 224 of the 565 members of congress — including 60 of the 100 Senators — are lawyers.

Even if we're lucky enough to keep out of the grasp of the legal lepers, we all pay for this mess in higher prices and higher taxes. Companies and state and local governments spend millions hiring teams of legal advisors and paying huge insurance premiums as protection against lawsuits.

Lawyer-driven court cases are becoming more ridiculous every day: After injuring himself badly in a botched subway suicide attempt, one man sued New York City for failing to have adequate safeguards. And in Cincinnati, umpire Gary Darling recently filed a $5 million suit against Reds manager Lou Piniella for accusing him of bias (what baseball manager has not accused an umpire of being blind and stupid?).

There are other costs as well: According to one report, fear of lawsuits has prompted 47 percent of U.S. manufacturers to withdraw products from the market. Some companies have been driven completely out of business by packs of ravenous lawyers.

It's clear that the once-honorable law profession has degenerated into a miasma of greed and parasitic self-interest. The question is what to do about it.

Vice President Dan Quayle has answers. As Chairman of the President's Council on Competitiveness, Quayle — a lawyer himself — has developed a 50-point program to resolve the nation's litigation crisis. Among his recommendations:

- Limit punitive damages so they do not exceed the actual damages suffered. This would eliminate silly multi-million dollar awards for things like "emotional distress."

- Discourage frivolous lawsuits by making losers in a suit pay the winners' legal fees.

- Limit "discovery," the pretrial search through the opposing side's records that results in most of the costs in civil cases and which can tie up cases for months, or years.

Not surprisingly, the nation's lawyers see reform as a threat to their livelihood. Since lawyers take home 30 to 40 cents on every dollar awarded in civil cases, attempts at reform cut into their profits.

This sort of self-serving, money-grubbing behavior has to be stopped, and Vice President Quayle's recommendations are a good place to begin. The nation simply cannot afford the legal profession's brand of justice anymore.

Appreciates stand made by Pampa Ministerial Alliance

To the editor:
I appreciate the stand the Pampa Ministerial Alliance, other pastors and people have taken against Proposition 11 - Texas having a state lottery.

In 1975, my family and I moved from Texas to Ohio. At that time, Ohio had state-owned liquor stores, horse racing, bingo, state lottery, state income tax, city income tax, etc.

As we watched TV, we began to see high tech TV commercials encouraging ones to play the lottery. They had all types of lottery games to entice ones to play. Each week on TV they had a lottery program. The lottery was referred to as the "Lotto," lotta-money if you win. The advertisement I heard was, play the Lotto and support the public schools. Boy, did that sound great, until four years later, living in a suburb of Cleveland, Ohio, called Brunswick, Ohio.

The school districts were voting down school tax levies and saying "it is not our responsibility, that's what we were told the lottery money was going for." The state lottery was not keeping its promises. Across the state, teachers were being laid off, subjects were cut, materials and supplies dwindled, sports programs were cut out and busing stopped. The Brunswick school district had voted down these very needed tax levies. Our daughter never got to complete her two-year French course she signed up for. Other classes she wanted to take were no longer available either.

The superintendent approached the Brunswick Ministerial Alliance and other pastors asking for their help. He was concerned that the students would not have the necessary requirements to get into college.

The Brunswick school district had borrowed all the money from the state that was allowed. The lottery wasn't supporting the schools, and now the Brunswick schools were in need of $3.1 million to keep going.

One might want to blame the school administration for mismanagement. I did. Until I sat down with the superintendent and heard what he thought of the lottery support. And what I saw happening to other school districts across the state.

The consensus of the people was: It is no longer my responsibility to educate my children, it's the state's. We were told the lottery would support education and we would not have to pay any more school taxes.

The pastors pleaded with the people. There were rallies and meetings giving support to the passing of a tax levy. With the pastors pleading and the busing stopped, the people voted to pass a $3.1 million tax levy to support the Brunswick schools.

After having been there, I say the lottery is not the answer, nor do I think higher taxes are the answer. I believe the answer is for Texans to begin holding their elected officials accountable for the way they spend our money.

I am not one to tell others how to vote. But I am convinced that it is time for Texans to get the message across to our leaders in Austin that we do not want gimmicks, we want action. And just maybe they will once again hear the voice of the people.

Former patient becomes 'expert' on level of care at local hospital

To the editor:
I have just been discharged from our hometown hospital after a time in the emergency room, two trips to the operating room and ten days on the third floor. Also, I underwent several diagnostic procedures. I am now an expert on Coronado Hospital care. Understanding that my self-declared "expert" status is temporary at best, I thought I'd pass along my knowledge while it is fresh.

The care one can expect at Coronado is professional, compassionate and first class in every way. They are working short-handed. There are some employees who need additional training, but they are trying hard! The Operating Room folks are calm and thoroughly professional.

The hospital and Dr. Grabato, working together, offered a free prostate screening September 28. It was through that screening that Dr. Grabato discovered my cancer. He has been straightforward, concise, patient in explaining options, decisive and quick to take action when I understood and agreed to the procedures required.

My wife suggests, quite accurately I think, that good hospital care is a shared responsibility between hospital, doctor and patient with the patient's family. "Please," "Thank you," patience and understanding go a long way toward insuring a helpful, caring response from busy and perhaps over-worked and underpaid health care professionals.

If hospital care is needed by Pampans, we should elect to get that care at home unless the Pampa medical complex does not offer the procedures required. It is good to be at home. It is far more convenient for families. It is good to have a first class medical facility at home. We have one now. As the current widely held wisdom suggests, If we don't use it, we might lose it!

Landscaping changes character of Pampa High School campus

To the editor:
For several years I had been complaining about the appearance of campuses at the various schools in Pampa. Thanks to the effort and hard work of the Pampa Class of '44, the campus at the Pampa High School now is beautifully landscaped.

The campus, in only a short time, has become very attractive, and with the lawn watering system, it will continue to be one of the more attractive areas in the city. Thanks to the Class of '44, the PISD maintenance force, the City of Pampa Parks Department and the many contributors, at least one school will be an area for which we can be proud.

It is hoped a plan will be prepared to landscape the campuses of all the other Pampa schools, as on-going projects.

Lottery may be costly

To the editor:
The governing body of the State of Texas could have added a 2 percent tobacco tax and made more money than we will ever make out of a lottery, and here is why: No additional costs to collect them.

The places that will sell lottery tickets will have to hire at least 10,000 more people to handle same, and that means higher grocery costs. The state will have to hire at least 5,000 to 10,000 more people to oversee it.

The State of Texas will have to pay all advertising for the same. TV time is an enormous cost, along with radio time costs, plus newspapers and magazines.

By the time we pay all the cost of a state lottery, we will not have any tax money left.

Before you vote for a state lottery, it could cost you as a taxpayer, instead of making any money.

Sunday beer sales equalize small business opportunities

To the editor:
On November 5, vote for Sunday beer sales inside Pampa city limits. This will make it fair for all retail store owners to compete in everyday sales.

Without beer sales, we are losing sales on groceries, cigarettes, gas, and many other items. Voting for beer sales will also raise sales tax collections for Pampa, help the overall economy and help keep small convenience stores in business.

Man says he wanted to shoot TV set, not his wife

LAPLACE, La. (AP) - A man accused of killing his wife said he meant only to shoot out the television set.

"He had cocked it and waved it at the TV. It went off and he saw his wife fall. He saw her lying there and not moving and he called us," said Joe Oubre, a sheriff's detective. Clarence Lewis, 49, of LaPlace was booked for manslaughter and jailed in lieu of $500,000 bond.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

By Danny Bainum

Veal chops are a special treat - and even better topped with a tasty combination of chopped plum tomato and sun-dried tomatoes, plus minced garlic, basil, olive oil, a little wine or balsamic vinegar, and just a splash of hot pepper sauce.

Here's a healthful, delicious sandwich spread: mashed avocado, instead of mayonnaise. It's a treat with sliced turkey, tomato and red onion rings.

If you can't use meat or fish soon after you buy it, it's smart to freeze it until you can. Ground meat, for example, keeps only a day or two in the refrigerator, three or four months in the freezer.

Turn deviled eggs into cocktail snacks with plenty of flavor. Add mustard, chopped olives, capers, anchovy and hot pepper sauce.

Ordinary whipping cream, boiled down with herbs and other seasonings for five minutes, thickens into an elegant sauce for sauteed chicken breasts or poached fish.

There's nothing ordinary about the food at

SPS announces wholesale power agreement

Southwestern Public Service Company and Cap Rock Electric Cooperative Inc. today announced an agreement in which SPS will provide wholesale power to Cap Rock, which serves 17 West Texas counties.

Delivery of electricity under the agreement will become effective upon completion of transmission lines between the two companies, expected in mid-1993.

Cap Rock is headquartered in Stanton, 18 miles northeast of Midland, and serves more than 20,000 customers. SPS is a regional, investor-owned utility serving about 350,000 customers in the South Plains and Panhandle of Texas, eastern New Mexico, the Oklahoma Panhandle and southwestern Kansas.

Cap Rock will become the 17th rural electrical cooperative to which SPS provides wholesale power.

Under the contract, SPS will supply between 70 percent and 100 percent of Cap Rock's power needs. Electricity will be delivered at two points, one located near the community of Vealmoor, near Big Spring, and the other near Midland.

SPS Vice President of Marketing Gary Gibson said sales to Cap Rock are expected to reach 70 to 100 megawatts by the end of the decade.

Cap Rock Electric Cooperative Inc. was formed in 1939 and serves Andrews, Borden, Dawson, Ector, Fisher, Glasscock, Howard, Irion, Martin, Midland, Mitchell, Nolan, Reagan, Scurry, Upton, Sterling and Tom Green counties.

The wholesale power arrangement must be approved by the Federal Energy Regulatory Agency, the Public Utility Commission of Texas and the New Mexico Public Service Commission prior to delivery of power.

Open tanks must now be covered with net

As of Nov. 1, operators must put nets over all open tanks eight feet in diameter or larger, following an update of Texas Railroad Commission Rule 22, passed in August, which calls for tanks larger than 16 feet to be covered.

The netting must have a mesh of one inch or smaller and cover both the tops and sides of the pit, according to Texas Department of Parks and Wildlife regulations.

"In today's business environment, any increase in costs represents a burden," said Brent Allen, president of the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association, "but we strongly recommend that our members take all precautions necessary to observe the law."

Demons whitewash Harvesters in shocking 18-to-zero defeat

Dumas ties Pampa for 1-4A lead

By J. ALAN BRZYSA
Sports Editor

DUMAS — In a stunning Friday-night upset, the underdog Dumas Demons plowed past the snowbound Pampa Harvesters, 18-0.

Several hundred PHS fans braved temperatures hovering in the mid-twenties and a single-digit wind chill to watch the contest which left District 1-4A standings in a muddle. The Harvesters, 7-2 overall and 3-1 in district, are tied for first in league action with the Dumas Demons (5-4 and 3-1).

"We were completely outdone by the Demons," said Pampa head football coach Dennis Cavalier after the disappointing loss. "They just took it to us in every category. We were unable to sustain anything offensively for any amount of time."

Pampa was out-rifled in every category and Dumas made the most of the Harvesters' many turnovers and cold-weather miscues. Pampa was held to two first downs in the first half, six for the game.

The Harvesters took the opening kickoff at the south end of the snow-shrouded field with strong and bitter winds at their back.

It was three and out for Pampa and Dumas took over after the punt. The Demons wore down the clock by driving the ball from their 15 to the Pampa 40, but the Harvesters took over when Pampa defensive standout Phil Sexton forced Dumas punter Paul Dobbins to bobble the ball on the attempted punt. Sexton nailed Dobbins on a fierce tackle and the Pampa offense took over on its own 45.

Seconds later, Dumas owned the ball after recovering Pampa's fumble on the snap, but gave up possession on a punt.

Pampa's main bright spot in an otherwise chilly performance was an exceptional goal-line stand six minutes into the second quarter. The Harvesters defense stopped the Demons at the half-yard line and took possession of the pigskin.

However, only able to advance the ball to the 2 1/2-yard line, Pampa was forced to punt and the Demons' crushing defense blocked a Sammy Laury punt attempt and recovered it for a touchdown.

The successful PAT gave Dumas a 7-0 lead, enough to clinch the victory.

Dumas' James Charles kicked a 27-yard field goal with 13 seconds remaining in the first half for a 10-0 Demons advantage.

Pampa's Justin Johnson intercepted a tipped Dumas pass late in the third quarter and returned it 12 yards to the Pampa 45. However, the Harvesters again spit up the ball and lost it to the Demons.

In its only sustained drive, Pampa marched in the fourth quarter from its own 28 to the Dumas 8-yard line. With four minutes remaining in the game, the Harvesters' offense coughed up the ball on third-and-goal at the 8.

Dumas recovered and several plays later, the Demons' Paul Legg took off on a 72-yard, cross-country jaunt for a TD with 3:41 remaining in the contest. Dumas made the two-point conversion and led 18-0.

Pampa's ensuing drive failed and Dumas ran out the clock to record the hard-fought win.

"I think they were much better prepared from a coaching standpoint, both for the conditions and their game plan. I was outdone."

"They (Dumas) did a great job defensively too, controlling the ball. They took advantage of their opportunities and certainly deserved to win the football game."

Asked about Dumas being up for the game, Cavalier said, "Yes, I anticipated that. I knew they would be. (But) knowing about it and doing something about it is two different things."

Concerning fumbles, he said, "Yes, our turnovers hurt us. But that's to be expected in a situation like this. It's nobody's fault. We'll have to learn from our mistakes, come back (against Caprock) and do better."

Laury led Pampa's offense with 99 yards on 22 carries. Zach Thomas rushed seven times for eight total yards and Andy Cavalier carried for 26 yards on six attempts.

Pampa greets Caprock at home and Dumas travels to play Randall in crucial Friday games.

Groom Tigers rip Miami Warriors in playoff quest

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Writer

GROOM — Groom's quest for a post-season playoff spot became a firm reality after downing Miami, 56-24, Friday night in a District 1-1A six-man contest.

Groom's win, coupled with McLean's 50-6 rout of Follett Friday night, gave the Tigers sole possession of second place in the district standings. Groom, Miami and Follett were tied for second and the No. 2 playoff seed going into last week's action. McLean has clinched the district championship with the win over Follett.

Leading by only 22-16 at intermission, Groom converted three Miami turnovers into touchdowns the second half in breezing to victory.

"It was a tremendous win," said Tiger head coach Terry O'Dell. "We only made some minor adjustments at halftime. Our players wanted to win this one bad and they just went out and did what they were told. All of our kids did an outstanding job."

The game started out like it was going to be one of those up for grabs type of thrillers as the two teams kept trading touchdowns for most of the first half.

Matthew Neighbors' six-yard touchdown pass to Aaron McReynolds and Jason Stauff's conversion kick gave Miami a 16-14 lead with 4:25 to go until halftime.

However, Groom took control of things from that point on and Miami wouldn't score again the closing minutes of the fourth quarter.

The Tigers jumped on top to stay on Paul McLaughlin's 28-yard run with 1:27 to go in the first half. Kirk Webb's conversion kick gave Groom a 22-16 advantage.

Brian Baker scored the first of six consecutive Tiger TDs in the second half, plunging over from one yard out at the end of an 11-play drive with 6:15 to go in the third quarter.

Baker and Bruce Britten sparked Groom's offensive attack while Corkey Hickey on defense recovered three fumbles in the second half, two leading to TD's.

Baker rushed for 115 yards on 22 carries and scored three times on runs of six, one and three yards. Baker also pulled in two passes for 57 yards.

Britten completed eight of 14 pass attempts for 178 yards and a pair of touchdowns. Britten did most of his damage in the second half, connecting on six of eight attempts for 121 yards.

Leading Groom receiver was Daryl Homer, who snared three passes for 73 yards. Homer also scored the game's first TD on a one-yard run in the first quarter.

Britten's TD tosses went to Webb for 24 yards and Hickey for five yards.

McLaughlin contributed to Groom's 345 yards total offense with 48 carries on 11 totes.

Matthew Neighbors provided much of Miami's offensive punch. He completed 14 of 23 pass attempts for 147 yards and two touchdowns. His TD tosses went to Andrew Neighbors (36 yards) and Aaron McReynolds (six yards). Aaron McReynolds led Miami receivers with five catches for 56 yards.

Matthew Neighbors also picked up 43 yards on the ground on just five carries while teammate Melvin Seymour added 42 yards on eight carries.

Groom is now 3-1 in district play and 7-2 for the season. Miami is 2-2 in district and 4-5 overall.

Groom can go to the playoffs with a win at Follett next Friday night.

'Stangs cruise past Shamrock

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

WHEELER — The second-ranked Mustangs cruised, or slid, to an easy 42-6 victory Friday night over county rival Shamrock, claiming their ninth victory of the year against no defeats.

In spite of icy conditions and a few surprises by the Irish, Wheeler scored three touchdowns in the first quarter.

The first came three plays and 72 seconds into the action when Mark Marshall went off right tackle from the 1.

The play was set up by a 34-yard Jarrod Ledbetter sprint to the 5. Shamrock's Lynn Mills saved a touchdown on the Ledbetter run with a great come-from-behind tackle.

Marshall scored again on the Mustangs' next possession, going in untouched from the 10 with 6:56 left in the first.

Thirty-two seconds later Danny Brinkley scored again for Wheeler on the third play of their drive, which followed three-and-out by Shamrock.

With the score 21-0, the Irish shocked Wheeler's highly touted defense on a huge pass play.

After marching backward and taking themselves out of good field position, Shamrock quarterback Shane Dougherty faced a third and 25 at his own 15.

He unloaded a long ball to Darren Biggers for an 84-yard pass play. Jason Beers chased Biggers to the 1, apparently knocking the ball out of his hands and falling on it in the Mustangs' end zone.

But officials said Biggers was down before the ball came loose and Shamrock had a first and goal.

The 'Stangs buckled down and held Shamrock out for three plays before Mills went in on a fourth and 1. A two-point PAT failed and the score was 21-6 with nine seconds left in the first stanza.

Jason Judd scored for Wheeler on their next possession on a 20-yard pass from Beers, capping a six-play drive.

A high snap on the extra-point kick forced holder Beers to scramble into the end zone for 2, making the score 29-6.

Shamrock attempted a variety of trick plays including flea flickers, quick kicks and double reverses to offset the swarming Mustang defense, but few of the plays produced results.

One that did was a fourth quarter flea flicker with the Irish trailing 42-6.

On fourth and 11 at the Wheeler 24, Shamrock's QB led a reverse flea flicker that got the ball to Mills just inside the 14.

However, four plays later the drive stalled out at the 9 when a Joey Place field goal was wide right.

Before that play Marshall had collected two more TDs for the Mustangs.

While Shamrock falls to 0-9 and 0-4, the game was considered a moral victory in that the rival Mustangs were kept guessing all night and never could let up the pressure.

Next Friday the Mustangs travel to Memphis to take on the Cyclones, who won their game against Booker, for a contest that promises to decide the 1-1A championship.

PHS runners excel at finals

LUBBOCK — Three Pampa High cross country runners advanced to regional competition and the varsity boy's team turned in a strong performance Saturday at District 1-4A finals competition.

The Harvesters squad finished in a tie for third with Borger High, but was placed fourth in a tie breaker, according to PHS cross country coach Mark Elms.

Paige Bass, Marcy Leal and Alberto Carrillo qualified for regionals scheduled for Saturday at Lubbock.

"I was very pleased with the team and individual performances," said Elms, explaining the outdoor meet was run in 25-degree temperatures and a 9-degree wind chill.

Bass took first place in varsity girl's competition, stopping the timer at 12 minutes and 33 seconds. Leal, timed at 12:46, finished 4th and Brooke Handy placed 20th. Corey Alfonsi finished 9th in JV competition.

Boy's varsity results included: Carrillo-4th, 17:03; Luis Resendiz-7th, 17:17; David Borsheim, 16th; Jeremy Tracy, 17th; Jason Huckins, 22; Richard Williams, 27th; and Jason Hubbard, 30th.

Lefors whips Higgins; McLean stuffs Follett; White Deer, Canadian lose

Lefors 30, Higgins 12
LEFORS - Lefors offense came alive in the second half as the Pirates rolled by Higgins, 30-12, in District 1-1A six-man action Friday night.

With Higgins ahead, 6-0, at halftime, the Pirates erupted for all their points in the second half for their first district win compared to three losses. Lefors is 4-5 on the season.

Pirate quarterback Dennis

Williams completed six of 12 passes for 119 yards. His TD throws went to Gary Wyatt for 40 yards and Andy Swires for 39 yards.

Williams also gave Lefors a lift on defense as he intercepted two Higgins passes.

Wyatt also scored on a 29-yard run and Swires went across the goal line from 16 yards to cap Lefors scoring. Swires led the Pirates in rushing with 99 yards on seven carries.

Higgins falls to 1-7 overall and 0-4 in district.

McLean 50, Follett 6
McLEAN - Tuffy Sanders scored four touchdowns as McLean posted a 50-6 win over Follett Friday night in a District 1-1A six-man contest.

The win gave the Tigers the district championship.

Sanders scored twice on two-yard plunges and picked off a Follett pass and went 45 yards for the TD.

 Canadian quarterback Shad Jergenson (10) appears to flee for his life and a short gain as a swarm of Clarendon defenders take pursuit. Jergenson's teammates Chris Lee (22) and John Sam Krehbiel (21) try to assist in the Friday game.

 White Deer Bucks running back Ashley Sandlin (24) runs a sweep Friday night in fourth-quarter action against Clarendon.

He also caught a seven-yard TD pass from Daniel Harris.

Harris scored on a two-yard run and caught a 16-yard scoring pass from Sanders.

McLean's final TD came on a 55-yard punt return by Christian Looney in fourth quarter.

The Tigers had 247 yards total offense, including 224 on the ground.

McLean is 4-0 in district play and 8-1 overall. Follett is 2-2 and 5-3.

Clarendon 6, White Deer 0
 WHITE DEER - Rickey Smith

scampered 50 yards for a touchdown and that score held up the rest of the way as Clarendon blanked White Deer, 6-0, Friday night.

Clarendon had 174 total yards compared to 111 for White Deer.

Clarendon is 2-2 in District 2-2A and 3-6 overall.

White Deer is 0-4 in district play and 1-8 for the season.

Panhandle 27, Canadian 13
PANHANDLE - In a showdown to determine District 2-2A's No. 2 playoff seed, Panhandle came out on top of Canadian, 27-13, Friday night.

Panhandle is 7-2 overall and 3-1 in district play while Canadian is 6-3 for the season and 2-2 in district.

Panhandle never trailed, jumping ahead of Canadian, 14-0, in the first quarter.

Both of Canadian's TDs came on quarterback Shad Jergenson's passes to Trent Butcher (24 yards) and J.K. Hester (9 yards). Jergenson completed 10 of 18 passes for 163 yards.

Top rusher for Canadian was J.K. Hester with 64 yards on six carries.

Panhandle quarterback Stan Kotara threw three touchdown passes and scored himself on a one-yard run.

Longhorns squeak by Red Raiders, 23-15

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD
 Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Running back Butch Hadnot rushed for a career-high 166 yards and two touchdowns Saturday as Texas held on to beat Texas Tech 23-15 Saturday.

Down by eight points with 57 seconds left, Tech's Robert Hall drove the Red Raiders 74 yards to the Texas 13, but the drive stalled when Byron Hooper dropped a pass in the end zone and Texas broke up three passes.

The Longhorns, last year's SWC champion, improved to 4-3 overall, 3-1 in league play. The Red Raiders fell to 3-5 and 2-3.

Hadnot, a sophomore, scored twice in the second half, on runs of 26 and 34 yards.

Plagued by an ankle injury since the season's second game, Hadnot took control late in the third quarter, carrying for 62 yards in a 98-yard drive. His 26-yard touchdown run gave Texas a 13-12 lead.

Hadnot added a 34-yard TD romp with 4:02 remaining for a 23-12 lead.

The Red Raiders erased a 7-6 halftime deficit on a halfback option pass with 8:41 left in the third quarter. Hall pitched to Anthony Lynn, who passed to Anthony McDowell for a 12-7 lead. The two-point conversion bounced incomplete.

The score was set up by a 46-yard pass to Rodney Blackshear from Hall, who started for the second straight game in place of Jamie Gill, who is out with a sprained arch.

After Hadnot's third quarter touchdown, Tech's Lin Elliott missed a 52-yard field goal that would have given the Red Raiders the lead.

Elliott put Tech on top 3-0 with a 48-yard field goal with 4:41 left in the first quarter.

Tech junior Tracy Saul intercepted two passes off Peter Gardere. The second one, in the third quarter, was Saul's 18th career pickoff, breaking a team record set by Elmer Tarbox in 1936-38.

Saul accumulated 144 return yards on punts, kickoffs, and interceptions.

Texas' defense helped the Longhorns grab a 7-3 lead with 1:03 left in the half. Hall fumbled after being hit by defensive end Shane Dronett.

James Patton recovered the ball on the 2, and three plays later Shane Childers dived in from the 1 with 1:03 remaining.

Hall led the Raiders back, however, scampering 44 yards to bring Tech down to the Texas 8. Three passes into the end zone fell incomplete, however, and Elliott hit a 25-yarder to pull Tech to within one point at the half.

Stadler, Cochran lead 'Tour'

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) - Craig Stadler relinquished his advantage on the scoreboard but may have one in the weather.

Stadler's last-hole, three-putt bogey dropped him back into a tie with Russ Cochran for the lead Saturday after three rounds of the season-ending, $2 million Tour Championship.

They shared the top spot at 208, five under par, going into Sunday's final round of the tournament that replaced the Nabisco Championship as the big-money climax of the official portion of the PGA Tour.

Cochran, one of the rare left-handers on the PGA Tour, was bemoaning the weather forecast, however, after his round of par 71 on the famed old No. 2 course at Pinehurst. It called for an overnight low in the 30's and a high Sunday in the 50's - precisely what Cochran did not want in the chase for a $360,000 first prize.

Richardson double-times Aggies past Rice Owls

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
 AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - Bucky Richardson is making the most of his last chance as the quarterback of No. 12 Texas A&M.

Plagued throughout his career by injuries, Richardson double-timed his way through the Rice Owls on Saturday with 359 total yards, the second highest total in school history, leading the Aggies to a 38-21 victory.

Richardson led the Aggies to a 28-14 halftime lead as the quick striking Aggies (6-1, 4-0, in the Southwest Conference) won their fifth straight game. Rice (3-5, 1-4) lost its third in a row and 11th straight to the Aggies.

Richardson completed 12 of 21 passes for 231 yards and rushed 19 times for 128 yards. Edd Hargett gained 418 yards against SMU in 1968.

"That was vintage Bucky out there today," A&M coach R.C. Slocum said. "He was running and passing but the team was kind of stallings. We needed to make something happen and he was the one who stepped up and made it happen."

Kevin Smith returned a punt 71 yards for another score in A&M's first half.

The Aggies pounded Rice with its running game in the first half and Richardson did most of his passing damage in the second half.

"We felt we could run the option today and establish the running game," Richardson said. "I can't say enough about our receivers. We knew we wanted to build up our passing game. It was just a matter of time before coach started emphasizing that part of the game."

Texas A&M, which has outscored the opposition 190-27 in the first half this season, took a 28-14 lead on Richardson's runs of 1 and 6 yards, a 6-yard run by Greg Hill and Smith's return, the longest punt return for a touchdown in the SWC this year.

"We came here and did what we had to do to win," Richardson said. "It was a big win for us."

Fullback Doug Carter scored on a 12-yard run and Terry Venetoulis kicked a 26-yard field goal for the Aggies in the third quarter and Rice freshman quarterback Josh LaRocca completed his second touchdown pass to Eric Henley for 27 yards.

Rice's Trevor Cobb, the nation's No. 3 rusher, gained 111 yards on 31 carries and Hill, No. 6 nationally, rushed for 109 yards on 18 carries.

Despite the loss, Rice coach Fred Goldsmith said he was happy with the Owls' effort.

"I feel much more differently about our team today than I did a week ago," Goldsmith said. "We played a physical game. Overall, we lined up and played evenly. I felt we had a chance to win this ballgame."

Richardson got the Aggies on the scoreboard on the first drive of the game with a 41-yard run to the Rice 1 and then leaped into the end zone for the score.

Rice rallied for its only lead on LaRocca's six-yard touchdown pass to Eric Henley, which he set up with a 46-yard pass to Louis Balady, and a 2-yard touchdown run by LaRocca with 3:37 left in the first quarter.

LaRocca's touchdown run was set up by a 33-yard interception return by Tony Barker, who then lateraled to Antonio Wilson for another six yards to the A&M 14. A 14-yard pass interference penalty against Smith preceded LaRocca's score.

Another big play set up Hill's six-yard touchdown run. Hill took a handoff from Richardson, then flipped the ball back to Richardson, who completed a 47-yard pass to Brian Mitchell, at the Rice 6.

The Aggies sacked LaRocca two straight times and Smith took the Owls punt down the sidelines for a 71-yard touchdown. Richardson extended the Aggies' lead to 28-14 with a six-yard run with 1:01 left in the half.

Sampras wins at Paris Open

PARIS (AP) - Pete Sampras came from behind to defeat Michael Chang 2-6, 6-4, 6-3 Saturday in an All-American semifinal at the Paris Open and will meet Guy Forget of France for the title.

Forget beat Sweden's Jonas Svensson 7-5, 6-4, in the other semifinal.

With the top four seeds gone by the third round, Forget, No. 5 seed, and Sampras, No. 6, were the highest-ranked players in the field.

Forget beat Sampras earlier in the year in the final at Cincinnati, one of the five tournament he won this year. Forget also won in Bordeaux and Toulouse in France, plus Sydney and Brussels.

Sampras has victories in Los Angeles, Indianapolis and Lyon.

Sampras' victory was his first over Chang in their six official tournament matches, though he beat Chang in the Grand Slam Cup last December.

Chang defeated No. 1 seed Stefan Edberg on Thursday.

No. 4 Michigan State routs Purdue

By The Associated Press

With Desmond Howard turning in another trophy-worthy performance, Michigan took a giant step toward a Big Ten title and a Rose Bowl berth on Saturday with a 42-0 thrashing of Purdue.

The fourth-ranked Wolverines (7-1 overall) are 5-0 in the Big Ten and already own victories over their nearest pursuers, Iowa and Indiana.

Howard, a leading Heisman Trophy contender, caught seven passes for 108 yards, ran one end-around for 8 yards and returned two punts for 53 yards.

Elvis Grbac completed 11 of 16 passes for 175 yards, including scoring tosses of 47 and 17 yards to Howard. Ricky Powers carried 23 times for 118 yards, including touchdowns of 11 and 7 yards; and Tyrone Wheatley had two 1-yard TD runs.

College Roundup

No. 13 Ohio State, which had been hoping for a chance to derail Michigan's Rose Bowl Express on Nov. 23, instead had its Rose Bowl hopes dashed 16-9 by No. 11 Iowa. The Buckeyes are now two games back of Michigan.

If the Wolverines get to the Rose Bowl, it looks as if No. 3 Washington will be on hand to greet them. The Huskies retained a stranglehold on first place in the Pac-10 with a 44-16 mauling of Arizona State.

In other Top Ten games Saturday, it was No. 5 Notre Dame 38, Navy 0; No. 6 Florida 31, Auburn 10; No. 7 Alabama 13, Mississippi State 7 and No. 10 California 52, Southern Cal 30.

In the Second Ten, it was No. 12 Texas A&M 38, Rice 21; No. 14 Tennessee 52, Memphis State 24; No. 16 Clemson 28, Wake Forest 10; No. 17 East Carolina 38, Tulane 28; No. 18 Syracuse 27, Temple

6; No. 19 North Carolina State 38, South Carolina 21, and No. 20 Oklahoma 28, Kansas State 7.

Also, it was No. 21 Baylor 9, No. 24 Arkansas 5 and Utah State 20, No. 25 Fresno State 19.

In later games, No. 1 Florida State was at Louisville, No. 9 Nebraska was at No. 15 Colorado and Washington State was at No. 23 UCLA. No. 3 Washington 44, Arizona St. 16. No. 5 Notre Dame 38, Navy 0.

At South Bend, Rick Mirer threw for 303 yards and three touchdowns as Notre Dame (8-1) buried the hapless Midshipmen (0-8). Mirer set a school record with his 17th TD pass, breaking the record set by Bob Williams in 1949 and tied by John Huarte in 1964 and Joe Theismann in 1970.

No. 6 Florida 31, Auburn 10. At Auburn, Ala., Shane Matthews threw for 264 yards and two touchdowns and also ran for a score as the Gators (7-1) moved closer to the schools' first official Southeastern Conference title. Auburn (4-4) lost its third straight at home.

No. 7 Alabama 13, Miss State 7. At Tuscaloosa, Ala., Stacy Harrison scored on a 64-yard interception return and ended Mississippi State's last drive with an interception in the end zone. Two field goals by Matt Wethington in the fourth quarter field goals provided the difference for Alabama (7-1), which remained a game back of Florida in the SEC.

No. 10 California 52, USC 30

At Berkeley, Calif., Russell White rushed for a career-high 229 yards, the most ever allowed by USC, and scored three TDs. The nephew of USC's 1979 Heisman Trophy winner, Charles White, surpassed the previous best against USC of 224 yards by UCLA's Gaston Green in 1986. Mike Pawlawski threw touchdown passes of 33, 11 and 5 yards to Sean Dawkins, and Doug Brien kicked field goals of 19, 23 and 37 yards as Cal scored the most points ever against a Southern Cal team.

Irish-bred Black Tie Affair takes lead, wins $3 million Breeders' Cup Classic

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
AP Racing Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Breeders' Cup Classic at Churchill Downs on Saturday was a Black Tie Affair for jockey Jerry Bailey.

Bailey put the Irish-bred 5-year-old horse on the lead at the break and he stayed there every step of the 1 1/4 miles, giving Bailey his first Breeders' Cup victory.

The win was the first in the Breeders' Cup for 65-year-old trainer Ernie Poulos and owner Jeffrey Sullivan, a 44-year-old from Arlington Heights, Ill.

Black Tie Affair's sixth straight victory put him in the Breeders' Cup winner's circle for the first time in three tries. He finished eighth in the 1989 Sprint and was third in the Sprint last year.

Black Tie Affair completed the distance in 2:02 2/5 for a 1 1/4-length victory over Twilight Agenda, who was bidding to give trainer D. Wayne Lukas his first win in the Classic and his 11th in the Breeders' Cup.

Twilight Agenda finished 2 1/2 lengths ahead of 1990 Classic winner Unbridled, who also won the Kentucky Derby that year.

Stirke The Gold, this year's Kentucky Derby winner, finished fifth in the 11-horse field, a neck behind Fly So Free, while favorite Festin finished sixth.

Black Tie Affair turned back several challenges on the turn and through the stretch to earn $1,560,000 from a purse of $3 million. He paid $10, $5.40 and $4.20. Twilight Agenda, ridden by Chris McCarron, paid $12.20 and $7.80, while Unbridled, ridden by Craig Perret, was $4.60 to show.

Black Tie Affair was able to set his own pace.

"It was pretty simple," Bailey said. "Nobody seemed to press me too much, which was fine. He had a lot left when we headed home."

(AP Laserphoto)
Jockey Jerry Bailey celebrates after leading Black Tie Affair across the finish line Saturday.

Star of Gdansk, an extreme long-shot, ran second to Black Tie Affair from the time the field reached the clubhouse turn until just before the quarter pole. He then had enough and faded to 10th, behind Summer Squall.

Despite a five-race winning streak going into the Classic, Black Tie Affair was overlooked in pre-race hype, which centered on Festin, Unbridled, Summer Squall and Strike The Gold.

Parks, Williams place at USGF meet

Mandy Parks of the M.G. Flyers Gymnastics Team of Pampa is the 1991 District Champion on the beam.

Mandy, 11 years old, had the highest beam score (9.10) at the USGF District Championships held last weekend in Odessa. Her other scores in Level Six were bars, 8.45; vault, 8.00, floor, 8.95 and fourth, all-around.

There were 16 gymnasts competing in Mandy's age division.

Mandy, who has been active in gymnastics the past three years, qualified for the North State Meet to be held in the Dallas area Nov. 16.

In Level Five, Brooke Petty, Jennifer Brewer and Mandy Tyrrell of M.G. Flyers qualified for the North State Meet to be held at Lone Star Gymnastics in Fort Worth.

Brooke qualified by placing sixth in all-around. Her other scores were bars, 8.60; vault, 7.85; beam, 8.60 and floor, 8.25. Jennifer qualified by placing eighth in beam and her other scores were bars, 8.05; vault, 7.00; beam, 8.40 and floor, 7.40. Mandy had a sixth-place in beam and second-place on floor. Her other scores were bars, 8.45; beam, 8.05; vault, 7.65 and floor, 8.75.

Sarah Maul also competed in the district meet and her scores were bars, 6.70; vault, 7.15; beam, 6.25 and floor, 7.25.

Jamie Smith was injured and could not compete.

Melissa Williams, an 8-year-old

Level Five gymnast from Pama, has won the Charley Aarons Scholarship Award. She received a $250 check to further her studies in gymnastics.

Both the gym and Melissa received a plaque. She is the daughter of Mike and Shana Williams.

Baylor beats Razorbacks

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Even after a victory, Baylor coach Grant Teaff was sorry to see the last of Arkansas.

"This is a sad one for me in many ways," Teaff said after quarterback J.J. Joe's first-quarter touchdown was good enough to lift the No. 21 Bears to a 9-5 victory over No. 24 Arkansas on Saturday.

"It's the end of 70 years of football and that saddens me greatly," Teaff said. "I have always enjoyed playing Arkansas both here and in Waco. I can truly say that Baylor football won't be the same without this rivalry."

Arkansas is leaving the Southwest Conference for the Southeastern Conference and Baylor was the final SWC opponent in Razorback Stadium. The Bears' victory knocked Arkansas out of first place in the SWC.

The Bears (7-2) improved to 4-2 in the SWC. The Razorbacks (5-3) dropped to 4-1 in the league. Teaff said the Bears are now in good position for a major bowl. Representatives of the Liberty, Peach, Copper and Independence bowls were on hand to watch.

'The sea won this round,' Bush claims while surveying damaged home

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AP) — President Bush surveyed the devastating damage that a fierce Atlantic storm dealt his turn-of-the-century oceanside home on Saturday and proclaimed: "The sea won this round."

But as he stood in a yard littered with stones, mud, broken glass and overturned furniture, the president vowed to rebuild the three-story home that has been in his family since 1903.

"It's devastating... but everything can be repaired," Bush said as he led a group of reporters on a tour of the damage.

He said he had some insurance, but it wouldn't come close to the amount needed to restore the imposing house and its furnishings. The home was assessed last year at $2.2 million. Local realtors, however, have said it is worth considerably more.

Bush said many years' accumulation of books and personal belongings had been destroyed or washed out to sea entirely in the storm that ravaged the Atlantic seaboard on Wednesday and Thursday.

At the height of the storm, 30-foot waves crashed over the house and the rocky point on which it sits, the president said.

The front, first floor of the three-story stone-and-shingle home was ripped open to the sea, revealing the remains of what had been the Bushes' living room, a bedroom and a family sitting room.

"The main part of the house is severely damaged," Bush said as he and a group of reporters stepped gingerly over broken glass and twisted pieces of wood and metal that had once been the Bush's living room.

"All that nice living room went out to sea," an obviously pained Barbara Bush told reporters.

But, she added philosophically: "We are very lucky, we Bushes. A lot worse things happen in life."

The president said he couldn't believe the extent of the damage

"and I've been around the ocean a long time. Those who have lived around here all their lives have never seen anything like it."

"Unfortunately, the sea won this round. We'll see how we go on the next one," he said.

Bush said his "heart went out" to others up and down the East Coast whose homes were also ransacked by the fierce storm, including some he said fared a lot worse.

The president said that as soon as the governors submit the appropriate paperwork, he would declare the coastal areas of Maine and other affected states a disaster area, enabling people to get low-interest loans for repairs. He said he did not know if he would be eligible for such a loan.

At one point, Bush ducked through a bent, open French door between jagged shards of glass to get from one room to the other.

Outside, he looked for personal belongings in the littered yard. He picked up a soggy book, looked at it and shook his head. Earlier, he had found a small framed picture of his father, the late Sen. Prescott Bush of Connecticut, laying in the mud. "I had four pairs of binoculars that I had for years. I found one of them — and it was full of water," Bush said sadly.

"This was solid water. It looked like part of the ocean," Bush said, standing on his debris-strewn lawn.

The stone pier Bush uses as a boat dock lay in ruins. But, oddly, the swimming pool near it was left intact, as was a fragile-looking wooden fence that borders the pool.

Asked if he planned to rebuild the house exactly as it had been, Bush said: "I don't know. We're waiting to talk to the adjusters and the building guys."

A similar storm had damaged the house in 1978, But Bush said the damage this time was far worse.

Nevertheless, there are no plans to move to higher ground.

"It means something to us," Bush said of the house. "It's our family strength."

Bush has spent every summer of his life at the Walker's Point house except 1944, when he was a Navy pilot in World War II.

The house was built by his mother's father, George Herbert Walker, in the winter of 1902-03. Bush bought the property in 1981 from his aunt Mary Walker for $800,000.

New Jersey high school's class of '56 holds senior prom 35 years later

TENAFLY, N.J. (AP) — Members of the Tenafly High School class of 1956 draped a ballroom in orange and black Saturday for the senior prom they never had.

The prom was canceled after beer bottles were thrown from a bus during a class trip to New York City. The culprits remain a mystery 35 years later.

"It was a very big deal. I think all of us felt it was one of those things in life that we missed and could never recapture," class secretary Florence Moschella Faith said.

Organizer Jeanette Siever Hoffman of Woodcliff Lake said her date Saturday night is the same as it would have been in 1956 — Kermit Hoffman, now her husband.

"It's wonderful. People are coming from California, from all over the country. And one fellow did fly in from Europe," she said, taking a break from decorating a ballroom in the school colors.

The class had 10th and 25th reunions, but organizers said the prom-theme drew more than 100 of 232 surviving members of the class.

"When we sent letters out, our theme was, 'the senior prom we never had,' and people really reacted," Mrs. Hoffman said. "I guess people kept this in the back of their minds."

The prom was canceled after the senior trip in May 1956.

"The incident was there was some beer bottles thrown off the bus in the Lincoln Tunnel, four at the most," Mrs. Hoffman said. Parents and students met with administrators to plead for the prom, "but they were adamant," she said.

Graduation went off without problems, but many seniors boycotted the official reception and went to a bar in New York state, where the drinking age was 18, Faith said.

The class yearbook was dedicated to a Spanish teacher, Randall Marshall, who tried to help the students get their prom back.

Beginning November 8, Area Community Theatre, Inc., (ACT I), will present "Our Town", a three act play by Thornton Wilder. The play continues on Nov. 9, 15, and 16. Dinner, catered by J.C.'s Family Restaurant, will be served beginning at 6:30 p.m. and the show starts at 8 p.m. For reservations, call 665-3710.

Sandy Crosswhite is directing the play which opens the 1991-1992 season for ACT I. She explained the process followed in selecting and staging a play.

First, she said, there must be a production idea. Ideas for season productions may come from many sources - actors' and audience suggestions, as well as ideas that a director may have.

In this case, Crosswhite said, "Our Town" piqued her interest because of her boss, Bill Bailey. Bailey, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, quoted the play during sermons and around the office, and it caught her attention, she said. After re-reading "Our Town", she began to think of ways to put it together and adapt it to the ACT I facility. Having thought it through and formulating a production plan, she said she presented "Our Town" to the play selection committee of ACT I.

The committee, comprised of several ACT I board members, made the final selections for the season's performances.

The play selection committee,

Crosswhite explained, based their choices on several criteria. What type of play is it? For example, is it a western, comedy, mystery, or drama? How many actors are needed? Are they male or female? Is the play adaptable to ACT I facilities or does it require more complex staging than is available?

Once the season selections were made, Crosswhite said, scripts were ordered from distributors at an average cost of about $4.50 each.

With the script in hand, Crosswhite said, the next step was "blocking", or envisioning how the actors should move on the set. The director must decide on entrances, exits, and movements right and left. She said that while scripts contain directions, they must be adapted for local stages.

In the case of the ACT I stage, Crosswhite explained that it is smaller than average with no side wings and no curtain. The stage floor is 13 inches off the floor; in other theatres, the stage might be three or four feet higher than where the audience is seated.

Once the director blocked the play in his mind, Crosswhite said, casting began. Sometimes a director has a specific individual in mind for a role while other parts are cast by audition.

When an individual came to audition in August, he or she filled out a form detailing theatre experience. Crosswhite asked them to read a part and based on the reading, she assigned parts.

For those who did not win parts, Crosswhite said, other opportunities existed to work in the play - costumes, lights, props.

"Those who love theatre help in other ways," she said.

In "Our Town", there are 34 characters on stage. Four of the parts are for pre-teens. The adult roles are for ages 20-100. While some of the roles are small, Crosswhite said, they are crucial to the performance.

Once the parts were cast, the actors rehearsed and participated in developing the role and making it believable. During September rehearsals, they learned blocking, cues, entrances and exits. They used the script to memorize their lines.

By October, the actors didn't need scripts and characters were more fully developed. Crosswhite said they used body language and facial expression to convey their character's personality.

Initially, rehearsals began with small sections of the play, but by the end of October, the entire play was rehearsed. Lights were added and adjusted so that no matter where an actor stood, he was never in shadow. Crosswhite said that "Our Town" has several lighting changes.

Another part of blocking, Crosswhite said, is picking up sound cues. Tapes were prepared for train whistles, rooster crows, and cricket chirps. A sound crew learned when to give the proper cue during the performance.

Costuming is integral to the performance also, because authenticity lends credibility to the production. Library research showed the cast what was correct in the way of hair and clothing for the early 1900's.

Makeup and hairstylists came in for the full week of dress rehearsal.

In "Our Town", most props are imaginary and the set is blank. Those which are needed must be authentic to the period, Crosswhite said.

Keeping props, set pieces, and actors ready to appear on time is the stage or set manager. In "Our Town" three set managers are used, because actors enter from three different places in the theatre.

About being a set manager, Crosswhite said, "It is a position which is a huge responsibility with very little glory."

The final step in the process of production is the full dress rehearsal. Everything is done just like opening night, Crosswhite said. The actors are particularly nervous because they know a reviewer will be present.

Opening night is a time of high energy. While the director is in control during rehearsals, Crosswhite said, on opening night putting on the show is now up to the cast and crew. While the director tried to look ahead for things that might go wrong, the cast member must know what to do in an emergency. The audience need never know that something didn't go as planned.

"Live theatre is always fun because you have to expect the unexpected," she said.

After the final performance, the cast and crew "strike", or in a frenzy of work, take down and put away props. The theatre is tidied up, ready for the next time.

It is a time of relief and sadness, Crosswhite said.

Some gifts will be sent to Haiti with a family traveling there and other gifts will be sent commercially.

A house's foundation is basic consideration in purchase

FOUNDATION PUBLICATIONS OFFER TIPS FOR HOMEOWNERS, BUYERS

Cracked walls and unexpected split level floors have prompted the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and the College of Architecture at Texas A&M University to do some groundwork for the state's consumers.

Foundation problems in many Texas homes can cause damage and loss of property value, but there are more alternatives and solutions for consumers.

"Aesthetic qualities attract many buyers to a home, but a stable foundation is the most important," said Susan Quiring, housing specialist with the Extension Service.

"Buying a home is the largest single investment that many people will ever make," she said. "And a home is only as good as its foundation."

"A house with a cracked foundation decreases in value—sometimes overnight," said Dr. Charles Godwin, structural engineer and senior lecturer in the construction science department at Texas A&M. "It's like a big broken cookie and those pieces have little resistance to external forces. Once a foundation cracks, it's difficult to recover."

The Extension Service and the construction sciences department have produced three publications with basic information on foundations to assist homeowners, potential homebuyers and homebuilders:

"Maintenance of Existing Foundations on Expansive Clay Soils" includes information on foundation construction on clay soils, with watering, landscaping and drainage tips for newly constructed or older homes.

"What Prospective Custom Homebuyers Should Know About Foundations" discusses foundation problems which may arise in areas which have expanding clay soils and offers tips for avoiding pitfalls

For Horticulture

with sites, builders and maintenance.

Homebuilder Recommendations for Slab-on-Grade Foundations—outlines technical details involved with slab-on-grade foundation systems; provides information on site work, concrete curing and late foundation systems.

These articles warn the homeowner, buyer and builder to upgrade the design, construction and maintenance of foundations so that they will have a better chance of avoiding frequently experienced problems.

Much of the state has clay soil which expands with enormous pressure when wet and shrinks when drying. This causes foundations to settle and crack, buckle in the middle or more laterally.

Distress cracks in brick veneer exterior and gypsum board interior wall surfaces are usually the first indicators that foundation movement is occurring. Signs inside the house include cracked floors, wall and ceiling, door and window jamming and many other problems.

Clay soil is not the only culprit of foundation problems the publications indicate. Newer methods of construction also contribute to the woes of homeowners.

Difficulties with residential foundations have plagued Texans for years, but problems associate with foundation movements have intensified since the introduction of the slab-on-grade foundation in the later 1940's.

Today most builders in the state have accepted this standard type of foundation designed to support heavy brick exterior walls and resist the movement of the soil under the foundation. However, some "slab-on-grade" foundations are built to minimal standards only. In areas with expansive clay soil, this can result in problems for the homeowner long after the builder has finished and warranties, if any, have expired.

Godwin said, "If we do nothing else, we need to upgrade the codes to better prepare the site and make the foundation, itself, sufficiently stiff with good construction to better resist inherent soil movement."

Slab-on-grade foundations are more economical and quickly constructed. But modern heavy brick exteriors and gypsum wall and ceiling coverings crack when foundations shift. Many of the older wood frame homes in Texas were made with wood sheathing or siding that were more flexible. The wood frame homes were built on short masonry piers or wooden posts and could be re-leveled and repaired much easier than those on concrete slab foundations.

The single most important thing to remember in maintaining foundations on grade is to keep the moisture content in the bearing soil constant all-year round. During long, dry summers, foundations crack due to soil shrinkage because the owners fail to keep the areas adjacent to the foundation continually damp—a critical factor.

The foundation publications can be ordered through the Gray County Extension Office at a cost of $1 to $2 each.

RECYCLE WASTE

The general awareness of people to our environment is increasing. To help further this education, the Gray County Extension Service has a "Recycling" exhibit at the Lovett Memorial Library. I encourage you to go to the library, view the exhibit and pick up literature that is of particular interest to you on recycling ideas.

Slow progress is being made towards being able to recycle more of our "Trash" all the time. There are still waste products, such as newspapers, that do not have places which are able to accept them for recycling. However, in a few years and more and more products will have local outlets or places which accept them for recycling.

Boy Scouts receive donation

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Story of dog's bee stings sets readers to buzzing

DEAR ABBY: Please don't steer any more business to those bleepity-bleepin' lawyers. The lady whose dog got multiple bee stings should have had her dog fenced in — or on a leash. He was obviously in bee territory — not vice versa.

TREVA ANDREA, POQUOSON, VA.

DEAR TREVA: Since that letter appeared in my column, I learned more about bees than I bargained for. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Did that woman get the license number of that bee? Or did she read its identification tag on its collar?

Bees are either directly or indirectly responsible for the pollination of two-thirds of all the food we eat. Alfalfa and many grains that feed our livestock are immensely dependent on bee pollination. The bee-keeping industry is already suffering from below-profit honey prices and the overuse of pesticides. In the next few years, the Africanized (killer) bees will reach our temperate climate, causing even greater mass hysteria among our citizens.

OLIVER D. FRANK,
SAN MATEO, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: I can sympathize with the reader whose puppy was stung. It happened to our puppy a second time, and I thought she would die! She's 9 years old now and has learned not to snap at anything that buzzes.

Did that woman see the insect that stung her dog? Was it a wasp, bumblebee, hornet or yellow jacket? And if she could identify the insect as a honeybee, can she prove it came from the hive next door?

JEAN MEAD, WINFIELD, W.VA.

DEAR ABBY: You were right about one thing — the honeybee stings only once and dies. Proving that the bee came from the neighbor's beehive is another thing. There are more wild bees in tree hollows and people's backyards than there are in all the commercial or controlled hives put together.

CARL E. LOWMAN,
COLUMBIA, S.C.

DEAR ABBY: In case you have forgotten, back in April 1988 you ran the following in your column:

DEAR ABBY: If you're not too tired of the bee issue, here's a little poem for you:

"The sex of a bee is hard to see
"But he can tell, and so can she.
"The queen is quite a busy soul
"She has no time for birth control.
"And that is why, in times like these,
"There are so many sons of bees."
(Submitted, but not originated, by)

JIM HARVEL,
ARIZONA BEEKEEPER

P.S. Abby, this poem has been around for a long time, but I doubt if it has a title.

DEAR JIM: Let's call it "To Bee or Not to Bee."

Problems? Write To Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. All correspondence is confidential.

Hospice offers holiday grief support group

Hospice of Pampa will sponsor a grief support group, "Holidays and Grief", 2-3:30 p.m., Thursday, Nov. 7 and Thursday, Nov. 14. The sessions will be held at St. Paul's United Methodist Church, 511 N. Hobart.

Participants will have the opportunity to share their grief story as well as receive practical suggestions on ways to deal with the pain of grief during the holidays, according to hospice director, Sherry McCavit. Group facilitator is Ellen Corcoran, bereavement coordinator of Hospice of Pampa. The sessions are open to the public and anyone wanting to learn about dealing with grief.

For more information, call the Hospice of Pampa office, 665-6677.

Know the five R's of enviro-shopping: Reduce, re-use, recycle, reject, respond

Each week, a ritual called "taking out the garbage", is repeated in nearly every household in the land. Texans throw away about 5-8 pounds of garbage per person each day, while the national average is about 3.5 pounds per person per day.

Many communities, including our own, are finding creative solutions to their waste problems. Many are implementing "integrated waste management systems", a complementary mix of solutions to handle their community's trash including source reduction, recycling, combustion and landfilling.

Source reduction is any practice that reduces the amount or toxicity of a waste, and includes making goods last longer, reusing products, and reducing packaging. It is a preferred waste management option since it actually prevents the generation of waste in the first place. Source reduction can be as simple as reaching for a sponge instead of a paper towel, or as complex as redesigning a product so that less packaging is needed.

The easiest, most direct way for citizens to make a difference to watch what they buy and throw away. Follow the five "R's" of Enviro-shopping:

Reduce the amount of packaging you buy and throw away.

Re-Use containers and products.

Recycle whenever possible.

Reject packaging that is unsatisfactory.

Homemakers' News

Donna Brauchi

Respond to the solid waste dilemma by reassessing your waste-producing activities and by expressing your preferences for less waste.

Here are some tips for the environmentally aware consumer:

(1) Buy reusable products and avoid disposables.

(2) Buy, maintain, and repair durable and fixable products.

(3) Reuse bags, containers, paper, boxes, and other items.

(4) Select products with the most purposeful, least wasteful packaging.

(5) Buy concentrates, larger sized containers, or products in bulk.

(6) Buy products that can be recycled and make sure to recycle them.

(7) Buy products made of recycled materials.

(8) Buy nonhazardous products for use around the house.

(9) Compost food and yard wastes.

(10) Borrow or rent things you use infrequently

(11) Buy, sell, or donate used and secondary goods such as clothes, furniture, and appliances.

(12) Make your preferences known to merchants and politicians.

(13) Be creative-look for opportunities to practice source reduction.

Enviroshoppers can play an important role in reducing the solid waste problem. When you spend your money you support the products that reflect your values. To actively support the environment in the marketplace, make choices according to the 5 R's. Every individual's participation is important and does make a difference.

The Gray County Extension Program Council Executive board invites you to drop by the Lovett Library in Pampa and view the recycling exhibit. In addition, a new series of fact sheets called "Waste Facts" are available. "Waste Facts" publications include: Waste Not...Reduce; Reusing; Recycling Glass; Recycling Aluminum; Recycling Plastics; Recycling Paper; Enviroshopping...The Five R's; Enviroshopping...Buy Smarter; Enviroshopping...Energy Considerations; Integrated Solid Waste Management; and Recycling Strategies. To obtain a copy of these publications, call the Gray County Extension Office at 669-8033.

Travis booster club initiates birthday book club

The Travis Booster Club has provided start up funds for the Travis Birthday Book Club. The books, which became available on Oct. 1, are those which parents may purchase and donate to the Travis Library in honor of their child's birthday.

Librarian, Marilyn Kirkwood, has selected books for the Birthday Book Club Shelf which range in interest and reading ability, according to information from the school.

Once the parents and child have selected a book, a bookplate with the child's name will be placed in the book. The book will be shared with the child's class and the honored child may check out the book first. It will then be added to the circulating library collection.

For more information, contact the school office or Kirkwood at 669-4950.

Newsmakers

The 1992 edition of Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges includes Pampa Tracy Lynn Bezner, a senior at Oklahoma Christian University of Science and Art.

Recipients are chosen by faculty and staff based on academic achievements, service to the community, leadership in extracurricular activities and potential for continued success.

Courtney Egerton was inducted into the National Honor Society at Randall High School on Oct. 21.

NHS members must maintain a 91.5 grade point average, complete a leadership and service form, and receive above-average ranking in leadership, service and character based on faculty ballot.

Egerton, a junior, is the daughter of David and Ann Egerton, Amarillo, former of Pampa, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Don Egerton, Pampa.

L. Nick Gage has been named a recipient of a scholarship from the Golden Spread chapter of the Data Processing Management Association. The D.P.M.A. is a national association for computer professionals.

Gage, who is majoring in computer science, was also named to the president's honor roll for the summer quarter at Texas State Technical College after achieving a 4.0 grade point average.

He is the son of Lyle and Doris Gage.

Marine PFC John K. Grimsley, son of Charles W. Grimsley, Miami, and whose former guardian is Margaret Brown, Pampa, completed recruit training and was promoted to his present rank. During the training cycle at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, recruits are taught the basics of battlefield survival, introduced to military daily routine and personal and professional standards. The recruits learn first aid, rifle marksmanship and close-order drill.

Navy seaman recruit John F. Haag, son of John F. and Martha A. Haag, Pampa, recently completed training at Recruit Training Command, San Diego, Calif.

During the training cycle, recruits are taught general military subjects, seamanship, close-order drill, naval history and first aid. The 1988 graduate of Pampa High School joined the Navy in June 1991.

Cheryl McFall, Pampa, was awarded an associate in science in nursing from the University of the State of New York, Regents College.

Stacie Delaine Neff, a government major from Pampa, has been inducted into Alpha Chi Honor Society at Angelo State University.

Alpha Chi is an honor society that inducts the top five percent of the junior class and the top 10 percent of the senior class. A junior must have at least a 3.8 grade point average and seniors require a 3.72 grade point average or better to be inducted.

Bill Potts, math teacher at Pampa High School, was named by former student Shannon Schorn as a one who goes 'well above and beyond the basics for students', during a reception for scholarship recipients at Texas Christian University.

William Brian Smith, Beaufort, S.C., was promoted to staff sergeant in the United States Marines in Sept., 1991. Prior to promotion he received the Navy Achievement Medal Citation for leadership abilities and superior performance of duties while serving as ordnance man, Marine Fighter Squadron 451, Marine Aircraft Group 11, 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing, in support of Operation Desert Shield and Desert Storm from Aug. 1990-March 1991.

The citation states, "SSgt. Smith's superb leadership abilities were evidenced when the squadron commenced surge operations involving aircraft ordnance loads and the expeditious turnarounds which contributed to the squadron's 763 combat missions and the delivery of more than two million pounds of ordnance against enemy targets."

Smith is a 1981 graduate of Pampa High school and son of Mr. and Mrs. C.J. Seals. His grandmother is Chris Romines. His wife, Nancy, is the daughter of Bill and Naomi Martin, all of Pampa.

your lambs again to determine their rate of weight gain.
Also, on November 16, we will work on lamb showmanship and how to prepare you lambs for show. This is especially needed for first year lamb feeders. We will give all kids a chance to practice showing a little.
Advice on feeding and management practices will also be passed along for individual lambs.
Mark Saturday, November 16, on your calendar. We will start at 9:30 a.m. at either McLean or the Pampa-the location and transportation details remain to be determined. If you are going to need help with hauling your lamb (s) to the workshop site, call one of your 4-H lamb leaders or the County Extension Office, 669-8033. If you are on our list of lamb feeders, you will get a letter with all the details when we have them determined.

FOOD SHOW WORKSHOP
All 4-H Foods Project members and their parents are invited to participate in a food show workshop on Saturday, Nov. 9, from 1:30 p.m.-2:30 p.m. at the Gray County Annex. The purpose of the workshop is to help 4-H'ers and their parents understand the following aspects of the 4-H Food Show Entry:
-How to select a recipe
-Writing a day's menu
-Completing a 4-H foods project record form
-4-H Food Show Interview

WILSON ELEMENTARY AREA CLOVER KIDS

The 4-H Clover Kids program for boys and girls in Kindergarten through second grade will officially get underway Monday, Nov. 4, at 7:00 p.m. in the Lovett Library meeting room. Interested boys and girls and their parents are invited to attend. For more information, call Linda Justice at 665-3086.

4-H ELEMENTARY AREA CLOVER KIDS

Plans are being developed to have one or two lamb project meetings on Saturday, November 16. Arrangements have been made for Tom Swigart of Mobeetie to shear our lambs for $1.50 per head on that day. Our show lambs need to get sheared at this time, especially if they have not been sheared before. It would be good to shear lambs that have 2 to 3 month old wool also.
In addition to getting lambs sheared, everyone needs to weigh each lamb at this time. Come December, you will need to weigh

4-H SWINE

The county show deadline for having your show pigs on feed has already passed, it was November 1. 4-H members need to be making sure your pigs have a warm, air-tight shed with lots of bedding for them to stay warm in. Also, plenty of fresh feed needs to be self fed a this time. Warm water should be given to them twice a day during cold, freezing weather.

If you need help in getting your pigs castrated, then be sure and call the County Extension Office or a 4-H swine leader. This is one job that I don't want to see put off until it is too late. All pigs need to be castrated sometime in November if not already done.
It is also good to get your pigs weighed sometime in November. Call the office if you need to borrow the scales.
Any pigs with rough ends on the hair coat need to be wormed immediately for sure. If you have not wormed your pigs since you got them on feed, their worming should be done sometime in November.

Even in the cold, Pampans are on the go!

A good blast of Old Man Winter resulted in hibernation for some while others were forced to face the weather. Here's what they did.

Marilyn Butler recently spent two weeks in Ft. Wayne, Ind., with family. While there she attended a nephew's wedding and helped with a birthday party for her father, Ralph Richard. Her dad, who has been a Pampa visitor several times, at age 85 still maintains his own home down to the grocery buying and cooking.

Sgt. Donald and Charlene Morris and children Tres, 5, and Tyler, 2, are moving to El Toro, Calif., where Donald will be stationed with the Marine Corps. He recently returned from a one-year tour of duty in Japan. Good luck to the family!

Ken and Carol Fields attended the Bob Dylan concert in Lubbock a few days ago.

Jewel Judkins just returned from a 10-day stay with her daughter Doris Epps in Levelland with time out for a shopping spree in Lubbock.

Alpha Bradley enjoyed weekend guests of nieces and nephews Donna and Martha Payne, Lone Grove, Okla., and Mark and Sue Ellis of Chandler, Okla. Alpha, affectionately called Mitch by many of her long time friends, possess a rosy attitude and a bright outlook to share.

The Sonshiners Choir, about three dozen strong, of First Baptist Church took a bus trip to Granbury, attended a Little Theatre production, then went to Ft. Worth for more fun and shopping. On the way to and from, the seniors, some in their 80's, cracked jokes and laughed a lot. They missed Charlie Powell, 90(?) on this trip. John and Virginia Glover put it all together. Sunday evening the Sonshiners filled the choir loft. Paul Barrett in a rich deep bass voice sang "The Wonder of it All" as if it were written for him.

After being a Pampan for about 25 years, Wyolene Curtis will be leaving Pampa to make her home near Boulder, Colo., where a daughter lives. While she will be greatly missed, good wishes of her many friends go with her. Vernon and Fran Stellman have purchased her house.

Peeking at Pampa By Katie

Joe and Pat Griffin took a foliage tour to Arkansas and Missouri before heading for Topeka, Kan. There they visited Pat's sister, Nell Everett, a former Pampan.

It's good to see Georgia Mack out and about and enjoying every minute after an illness of several weeks. Members of Rho Eta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi gave her a birthday party last Monday evening to celebrate an important birthday.

Wedding congratulation to the former Priscilla Alexander and Jerry Norris, who were married a couple of Fridays ago in the home of Priscilla's sister and husband, Betty and Clarence Marak. Her sons Mark and Chris came from Dallas and Lubbock for the family wedding. Friends of the fine couple consider it wonderful.

For several years Estelle and Skip Montgomery, Clyde and Vivian White, Earlene and Wilburn Earp and Dorothy Jeffries celebrate each birthday with a dinner. Estelle's had to be postponed but not cancelled because of Wednesday's weather. Belated wishes, Estelle!

Shortly after Paul and Ione Simmons arrived home after church, last Sunday evening, a whole houseful of guests arrived with refreshments for a housewarming. They recently moved into town after several years of country living. Pat Porter put it together.

Congratulations to Dorothy and Doug Ware on the birth of Kayla Jo. Her big little brother is Jack.

Judy Clendennan received a lovely surprise on Mother-in-law's Day. Daughter-in-law, Jody, sent a lovely bouquet as a love offering to a wonderful mother-in-law. They have a mutual admiration society going.
After 31 years at Celanese, Harold and Lela Beckham are enjoying retirement by doing the things they want to do when they want to do them. Harold does crafts in his shop and gives most away. He made nine doll rockers requiring 36 angles. Lela paints many hours away. Harold made three dulcimers and has another in the making. Dulcimer making started when John Glover casually mentioned he would like to have one. Retirement can be a wonderful phase in life.

With the freeze Kay Roberts' voice came out of retirement after several weeks of whispering.

A warm Pampa "Welcome!!!" to JoAnn and C.E. Fenno who have moved from Lefors after having lived there for 61 years. They will be welcomed by their many friends at Mary Ellen and Harvester, where their son, Wyatt and daughter-in-law Thu, were members when Wyatt worked at Titan and Thu taught at Pampa High School. JoAnn has been a member of the Lefors Church of Christ since she was one year old. All her adult life she has been very active and taught Ladies Bible class many years. They felt the need to be nearer their doctors and C.E.'s job at Titan. Their Lefors friends will miss them.

Joy and Denny Lambert of Kingfisher, Okla. visited her parents, Ben and Mary White, last weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bertram of Lexington, Ky., have been visiting in the community to get acquainted with the membership of the Church of Christ where he preached last Sunday. The church has been without a regular pastor since the Ross Blasings returned to White Deer. The Bertrams will soon move to Lefors.

Ona Hubby of California, Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Burks, and Blake and Lois Campbell, Abilene, have been visiting the Walter Elliotts.

Ooops! Last week, Zeda Harkrader-Brooks was incorrectly named as Veda. Sorry!

See you at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church parish hall in White Deer for a Polish sausage feast and back here next week. Katie.

Council of Garden Clubs to present holiday festivities

The Amarillo Council of Garden Clubs, Inc. will be presenting their 27th Annual Festival of Trees on December 7 and 8, 1991 from noon to 6 p.m. at the Amarillo Garden Center 1400 Street Drive in the medical center.

The theme for this year's Festival is "A Magical Christmas." Club members are responsible for making handmade ornaments which will adorn the 10-foot trees. There are as many as 200 ornaments on a tree and the nine "theme" trees are pre-sold to sponsors for $1,000 each.

The proceeds from the Festival will go toward the support of the Garden Center and its work with the handicapped in horticultural therapy.

Chances will be sold to win a Victorian "Memories" quilt and a wooden sleigh and reindeer decorated with Christmas packages.

Also available is a 7-foot artificial tree decorated with Wizard of Oz ornaments.

Granny's Kitchen will serve lunch items, and the gift shop will offer gifts. Grab bags will be available for children and adults, and the sweet shop offers a wide variety of homemade items.

History buff Richard Dreyfuss in HBO movie

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If Richard Dreyfuss weren't an actor, he says he'd be a history teacher. He was able to merge his passions in Prisoner of Honor, an HBO movie that began airing Saturday about a French captain wrongfully accused a century ago of spying.

Dreyfuss plays Col. George Picquart, an anti-Semitic French army colonel who believed in the innocence of convicted spy Capt. Alfred Dreyfus. The case was a public sensation in late 19th century France. "One of the main reasons Dreyfus went to prison was the fact that he was a Jew," Dreyfuss said. "People assumed he was guilty. He was Jewish — who else would do such a thing?"

Picquart was appointed head of counterintelligence in the French army after Dreyfus was sent to solitary confinement on Devil's Island in 1894, accused of giving military secrets to the Germans. Picquart quickly learned the evidence had been forged and that the traitor was an officer named Esterhazy.

"It's been a pet project," Dreyfuss said. "I've been aware of it because of my name my whole life. "My family is of two minds about kinship. I've always thought we were related. But it doesn't matter, because I created the kinship in my mind as a kid. I thought it was romantic and fun. The Dreyfus Affair was so much a part of what became my political viewpoint, it was too good to deny."

Dreyfuss said he was asked to play the convicted spy about a decade ago.

"I said I wanted to play Col. Picquart," he said. "His evolution from anti-Semite to defender of Dreyfus was so interesting to me. ... He simply stepped aside and allowed this change to happen."

The Dreyfus Affair was a notorious political scandal kept simmering by Picquart and author Emile Zola, who wrote "J'accuse." Even after Picquart proved the evidence was phony, the generals kept Dreyfus in prison rather than admit error. They did not think one Jewish officer was worth the embarrassment.

Prisoner of Honor, directed on location in London by Ken Russell and written by Roy Hutchinson, also stars Oliver Reed, Peter Firth, Jeffrey Kemp and Brian Blessed. Dreyfus is played by Kenneth Colley. "Picquart was an aristocrat, a Catholic, ambitious and believed in the army," Dreyfuss said. "He thought when he first presented the news about Esterhazy, he would be promoted. He was quite taken aback by their revelation that they preferred him to shut up."

"He had to do this dance with himself. He believed strongly in the army and his country. He hoped the army could come around. When they finally tried Esterhazy, the trial was a mockery. He was acquitted, and the generals who knew he was guilty shook his hand. Such moral blindness made Picquart feel free to speak out."

Picquart's outspokenness sent his own career into decline, and he too went to prison. Eventually, Dreyfus was exonerated and both men were returned to duty. Dreyfus served in World War I; Picquart became minister of war, but died in an accident just before the war began.

"The two men had a falling out," Dreyfuss said. "After Dreyfus' second court-martial, he was offered a pardon. He accepted it rather than go back to Devil's Island to wait for an acquittal. Picquart believed accepting the pardon was a betrayal of everything they had fought for. He found it difficult to forgive Dreyfus.

"That's the second most interesting thing about this. When we create theater, we often create heroes with no flaws. Here was a man with many flaws. He would not shake Dreyfus' hand. It took him many years to forgive Dreyfus for being human."

Dreyfuss said he took the idea to HBO because cable television, particularly HBO, has been receptive to ideas that could not be made into feature films or network television movies.

Nevertheless, Dreyfuss, whose film career has flourished since his comeback in Down and Out in Beverly Hills, said he didn't think it would be "too smart" to do another TV movie soon. He said he wanted to take some time off, find a play, then do another feature film.

Prisoner of Honor is the first television Dreyfuss has done in many years. His last dramatic appearance was in the 1987 NBC movie Victory At Entebbe, which also starred Kirk Douglas, Burt Lancaster, Helen Hayes, Elizabeth Taylor, Anthony Hopkins and Julie Harris.

In 1973, he had a small role in an episode of Gunslinger. Then his career skyrocketed. Later that year, he was in American Graffiti and Dillinger. He was a hit in Jaws in 1975 and won an Oscar as best actor for The Goodbye Girl in 1977.

What's new in books ...

THE LIES BOYS TELL. By Lamar Herrin. Norton. 256 Pages. $19.95.

If you had terminal lung cancer, how would you spend the remainder of your life?

It's a question to ponder while reading Lamar Herrin's novel, The Lies Boys Tell. The deadly disease is the plight of the book's main character, Ed Reece, and the protuberant battle with his decaying health will leave anyone who dares to tag along riveted, if not gasping for breath.

For most people, death is a subject not to be taken lightly. In this story, it's the continuous focus. Reece, long-time smoker and avid golfer, is dying, the cancer hollowing out his body and limiting his breaths to sharp, quick pants for air. He conjures up an idea of how he wants to finish out his life, where he wants to go and what he wants to see.

He calls upon his oldest son, Larry, to buy a van and drive him across the country to his final destination. The two must then find one another through a stormy relationship that has forced apart their lives and those of the rest of the family. Many loose ends need to be tied up along the way, and time is not on their side. The two men travel together back over the many bumps in life's roads, accelerating through a journey filled with dire love and excruciating pain.

After following the story's twists and turns, across highways and back roads, through actual cities and small towns, with a withering man gagging through congested lungs, you might need an upbeat party or some quick-tempo music to restore yourself.

The book contains brilliant descriptions of each character's thoughts and emotions amid the frightening obstacle of death in a race against the clock. And, there's the feeling that Herrin at one time may have traveled these roads himself.

Time takes on new meanings with advanced atomic clocks

By JAMES CORNELL
Smithsonian News Service

Blip, brrrip, beep! Whirrr. Click. Clack. Tick. Tock. Bong!

On Dec. 31, millions of clock-watches will need to reset their watches by one second as the national time standard makes one of its annual adjustments.

Digital, analog, stem-winder or quartz. Heirloom, throwaway or sport. Solar powered, spring wound or pendulum. It makes no difference. Every clock will be one second out of whack with the real world of time. It's enough to give devoted horologists nightmares!

If you want someone to blame for this mass movement of clock hands, Dr. Robert, F.C. Vessot, an astrophysicist at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory, will be happy to accept at least part of the responsibility.

In a cluttered basement laboratory at the observatory's Cambridge, Mass., headquarters, Vessot and a small group of scientists and technicians turn out hydrogen-maser time-keeping devices so stable they gain or lose only a second in 40 million years. Indeed, these so-called atomic clocks are so stable they are used to help determine the almost infinitesimal slowing of the Earth's rotation, which accounts for this year's "leap second."

But keeping our clocks and watches apace with the true length of day is not the only reason Vessot and others around the world are creating ever more precise timekeeping devices.

"Time has become the foundation of all metrology," says Vessot, referring to how the current international time standard, based on the speed of light, has become the preferred way to measure almost anything — from the duration of a foot race to the length of a foot bridge.

Moreover, super accurate clocks have become absolutely essential to air and sea navigation, space exploration and astronomical observations, as well as to understanding the most basic processes of nature.

Measuring time by billions of a second is not an easy task. Vessot and his team have developed devices known as atomic hydrogen masers in which the magnetic oscillation between the positive nucleus and negative electron of hydrogen atoms produces a time signal of unusually high stability.

Although the Smithsonian's masers are often described as clocks, they bear little outward resemblance to traditional timepieces, or even to the digital readout on a microwave oven. Rather, maser have all the esthetic appeal of mechanized filing cabinets — or small refrigerators.

"The feature they have in common with clocks is that something is oscillating," says Dr. Edward Mattison, a Smithsonian physicist. "In ordinary clocks, a pendulum may swing back and forth or a quartz crystal vibrates; in an atomic maser clock, what's oscillating is a hydrogen atom."

A constant supply of these atoms, selected for their tiny amounts of excess energy, is pumped into a Teflon-coated quartz bulb inside a precisely machined, metal-coated cylinder, where they are all stimulated to oscillate at the same frequency — a mind-boggling 1,420,405,751.68 times per second.

The faint hum of spinning atoms produces a microwave radio signal that can be used as a highly predictable time standard. The process is called Microwave Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation, hence the term "maser."

To maintain signal stability, the temperature of the entire system is held constant to within one ten-thousandth of a degree. Thus, the oscillation rate varies by less than three-trillionths of a second per hour.

For more than 20 years, Vessot and Mattison, with assistance from Smithsonian master time technicians Donald Graveline and Richard Nicoll, have been turning out clocks for a host of applications.

For example, atomic clocks have been vital to NASA's exploration of the outer planets. Precise timing by masers allowed the tiny Voyager spacecraft to be accurately tracked and guided across millions of miles, where even a one-hundredth-of-a-second error can mean a 2,000-mile error in position.

Such hydrogen maser clocks also help radio astronomers produce extraordinarily high resolution images through a process known as Very Long Baseline Interferometry. In this technique, two or more radio telescopes, often separated by thousands of miles but linked by a common time standard, can act like a single instrument as large as the separation between the two most distant antennas.

When radio waves from a far galaxy are received by the separate antennas, the synchronized clocks assure that the distinctive patterns produced by the slight differences in arrival times can later be combined into a single image.

Atomic clocks using cesium and rubidium atoms also form the heart of the Global Positioning System, a worldwide navigational system using satellite-borne clocks synchronized with an international time reference maintained by the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) at Boulder, Colo.

In perhaps their ultimate application, atomic clocks are used to study the very nature of time. A cornerstone of Einstein's theories of relativity is the idea that time can be distorted by gravity. Einstein predicted that, free from the Earth's gravity, a clock in space would run faster than one on Earth.

In 1976, Vessot and his colleagues tested this principle by sending one clock on a rocket flight some 6,200 miles into space and comparing its frequency against the signal of others left on the ground. As predicted, the space clock went into a time warp, minutely speeding up as it reached the top of its trajectory.

"The experiment showed that our space-borne clock ran within .0007 percent of the rate predicted by Einstein," Vessot says. "This was a factor of about 100 times better than had been done before."

Vessot believes that a test almost a million times more accurate would be possible with a clock in orbit around a truly massive object where the strong gravitational field could produce a measurable bump in time. In lieu of a nearby black hole, Vessot hopes to put an experiment aboard NASA's proposed Solar Probe to see how a fiery flyby just over the sun's poles will affect the clock's rate.

Of course, clock-watching is not a uniquely American preoccupation. For about a decade, the Gorky Research and Development Scientific Instrument-Making Institute in the Soviet Union has been mass-producing its own hydrogen masers for both military and domestic applications.

In September 1990, as a most positive expression of the East-West thaw, Dr. Nicolai Demidov and two technicians from the Soviet facility brought their clocks to Cambridge for comparison with the U.S. standards.

This first-ever Western demonstration of Soviet clocks was most revealing, according to Vessot. "Their masers are quite impressive," he says. "Although in the past they have often followed the U.S. lead, the clocks are now approaching state-of-the-art technology and are very marketable."

One application Vessot and Mattison hope will result from such cooperation is a joint U.S.-Soviet clock experiment in space, thereby extending potential radio-telescope baselines to millions of miles and perhaps detecting gravity waves produced by exploding stars and black holes.

"Black holes and the warping of space time are pretty exotic stuff," Mattison says. "But our real bread and butter is keeping clocks accurate here on Earth."

In agriculture — Joe VanZandt

BRRRRR!
What a change in our weather. Yes, the Panhandle is a land of contrasts — from hot to cold; from dry to at least wetter than it was.

Do you remember the fall of 1972 and winter of 1973? I do fairly well, as some things were etched in my aging mind.
We have been hearing the usual predictions about what kind of winter we were going to be in for, for the last month or two. Most of these predictions were talking about it being a cold and snowy winter — at least the ones I heard.

Back on October 16, we set a record high temperature for that date — for which the old record was set in 1972. That triggered memories of the fall of 1972. Now, as I write this the day before Halloween more memories come back. The Halloween of 1972 was so bad the little kids in my house stayed home and enjoyed our own Halloween treats. No one in their right mind got out that evening, at least in Spearman, Texas — snow, ice and a very cold wind.

Are you ready for this — from about November 10 to about December 23 — a period of six weeks — the ground was covered with snow and ice. Cattle did not see bare ground until Christmas. The ground cleared off for just a few days and then around January 1 it came another snowy spell. The rest of the winter had snow on the ground off and on, as I vaguely remember.

I guess you might say I'm predicting a somewhat repeat performance — although I certainly hope it doesn't repeat itself. I do remember that several stocker cattle operators didn't operate very well after that winter. Wheat pasture conditions looked good and truck loads of "Southern Selects" arrived about the time the winter weather arrived. The "Dead Wagons" had lots of business all fall and winter.

We have had an excellent summer forage producing season and thankfully so. Our area hay supplies were basically zero this spring when our May rains finally came. As a result of timely summer rains, most cattlemen do have good grass reserves and a good supply of hay or at least neighbors with excess hay for sale at the present time. If you own cattle and don't have a hay supply on hand, you better make quick arrangements to start hauling hay.

WHEAT SEEDING RATE

Brent Bean, our Extension agronomist, sent me an article from the Nebraska Farmer that contained research results conducted by Jim Echols and Jim Quick of Colorado State University.

They conducted yield trials for several years, with several different varieties at different locations. They found out that a seeding rate of approximately 40 pounds per acre proved to be the most efficient for all of the varieties at all locations in Colorado.

The fact that all seed size varies a lot today makes it difficult to plant 40 pounds per acre at times. Echols and Quick did their arithmetic and found that 40 pounds of seed an acre came out to 522,000 seeds per acre, which equals to 12 seeds per square foot. This makes it fairly easy to calibrate a drill. If you are using a 12-inch drill, you would want to plant 12 seeds per foot of row to equal 12 seeds per square foot of surface area.

The simple arithmetic works out to 10 seeds per foot of row for a 10-inch drill spacing and 8 seeds per foot of row for an 8-inch drill spacing.

In addition, the two researchers have become convinced that seed size as well as plant population play an important role in yield results — particularly in years of weather stress. They separated TAM 107, Hawk and Thunderbird seed into batches of large, medium and small sizes and tested them at several locations. They found out that the large seed always produced the best results and the small seed was always significantly less regardless of which variety at each location.

This led the Colorado researchers to recommend that the smallest seeds should be screened out in the seed cleaning process. Echols says the bottom screen in the cleaner should be at least "1/12th inch or larger, probably even a 6/24s."

WASTE AND RECYCLE

Environmental awareness is something our farmers and ranchers are getting on their minds. A lot of press is helping to make us all aware of how each one can impact our own environment.

I encourage you to go by Pampa's Lovett Memorial Library and view our Gray County Extension exhibit on "Recycling." Hopefully some of the available publications with the exhibit will assist individuals as we all strive to improve the effect of waste on our environment.

Additional information is also available in the Gray County Extension Office.

Agricultural Forum schedules meeting Monday in Lubbock

LUBBOCK — Issues of concern among farmers, ranchers, agribusinesses and governmental officials will be discussed during a meeting here Monday of the Texas Agricultural Forum.

The meeting at the Holiday Inn-Civic Center, 801 Avenue Q, is one of a series held each year for leaders of government, business and all facets of agriculture. It will begin at 7:45 a.m. and adjourn at 4 p.m.

The sessions, open to anyone, provide an opportunity to exchange views on current issues, said Dr. Ed Smith, forum coordinator. He is an agricultural economist and specialist in marketing and policy with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in College Station.

Four legislative leaders, a banker and two executives from business and grower organizations will lead the day's discussions.

Following a welcome by Dan Pustejovsky, Hillsboro producer and Texas Ag Forum chairman, State Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, will discuss financing of state agricultural programs.

The prospects for a boll weevil eradication program in Texas will be examined by State Sen. Steve Carraker, D-Roby, and Jim Ed Miller, chairman of the Texas Cotton Producers boll weevil eradication commission.

The economic impact on Texas from proposed free trade agreements with Mexico will be analyzed by Harvey Rosenblum, senior vice president and director of research with the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas.

At the luncheon, State Rep. James E. "Pete" Laney, D-Hale Center, will provide a legislative update. A panel of Laney, Carraker and State Sen. Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, will respond to questions from the audience.

Issues of animal and property rights will be addressed by Sims. Concerns about seed labeling will be the topic of Buz Poage, All-Tex Seeds, Levelland, and Lois Wales, vice president of Texas Women in Farm Economics (WIFE) and a member of the Texas Corn Producers Board.

Registration for the forum is $25, payable at the door.

Proposition 10 issue of concern for farmers

By STEVE HILL
Extension Service

COLLEGE STATION — Rural communities served by non-profit water suppliers have a stake in Proposition 10, one of the proposed constitutional amendments that goes before Texas voters Nov. 5.

Passage of the amendment would exempt non-profit water suppliers from local property taxes.

Supporters, such as the Texas Rural Water Association, say Proposition 10 would equalize treatment of water-supply entities and support rural economic development efforts. Opponents say it will reduce tax revenues in some areas.

Passage of the amendment would exempt non-profit water suppliers from local property taxes. Supporters, such as the Texas Rural Water Association, say Proposition 10 would equalize treatment of water-supply entities and support rural economic development efforts. Opponents say it will reduce tax revenues in some areas.

Vote approval of the measure could help non-profit water systems serving small rural communities, said Dr. Jack Thigpen, an economic development specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University. Thigpen added, however, that he is neither supporting nor opposing the amendment.

"Smaller communities are being hit hardest by the fiscal burden of increased environmental regulation of water," Thigpen said. "They need some relief from somewhere."

Many smaller water suppliers have difficulty spreading the costs of complying with government requirements for testing and monitoring water over a small customer base, he explained.

A good water system is also an important ingredient for rural economic development, he said.

"The bottom line is that infrastructure, including these water systems, is necessary for economic development, although water is not sufficient to bring business in by itself," Thigpen said.

The proposed amendment would end a decade of ambiguity about whether non-profit water supply systems, primarily in rural areas, are exempt from paying taxes to local taxing authorities. The Texas Legislature granted the exemption in 1980, but the state supreme court struck down the law last March, saying that a constitutional change was required.

Tom Duck, executive director of the Texas Rural Water Association, said unequal tax treatment under current law means higher water rates for rural families and businesses.

"About 2.5 million rural Texans are served by non-profit water suppliers," he said. "In their absence, the state would surely have to finance the provision of water and wastewater service."

"As we see it, non-profit suppliers meet a need that is critical not only to their customers, but also to the state. We think they should be given property tax exemptions just like cities, water districts and other entities that provide similar governmental services at no profit."

There are some 900 non-profit systems serving an average of 700 to 800 customers apiece, Duck said. Some have as many as 12,000 customers connected, but many serve as few as 25 to 50 customers, he said.

Duck said the intent of the Texas Legislature is clear on the issue, as evidenced by the 1980 tax code revisions and legislative support for placing the issue on the Nov. 5 ballot.

"There really is no organized opposition to this amendment. About half of the appraisal districts in Texas are already granting exemptions to water-supply systems," Duck said.

However, he said, some scattered taxing authorities will miss the revenue they currently receive from water-supply systems. Several are in the Rio Grande Valley, where the lawsuit that led to the supreme court decision on the issue was filed.

The suit was filed by non-profit water supply systems in Shaviland and North Alamo against the Hidalgo and Willacy county appraisal districts. Those districts had continued to tax the supply systems because of ambiguity about the validity of the 1980 tax code revisions.

Daniel Boone, Hidalgo County's chief appraiser, said the appraisal district does not presume to answer the question of whether it is fair or right for water systems to be taxed.

"We only attempt to answer whether property is exempt or not," he said. "And the court has supported our view."

He said the district's responsibility is to taxing authorities, such as the Donna Independent School District. That district says it could be hit hard by Proposition 10.

Dr. Ignacio Guerra, superintendent of schools for the Donna school district, said the district would lose $37,000 in general revenue from the water supply corporation.

"It would have a great impact, because for every $25,000 in local revenue we collect, we get about $180,000 in state aid," he said. He estimated that the district next year could lose a quarter-million dollars in state aid. Its current budget totals about $31 million.

Duck said he understands why some taxing authorities would oppose the proposition.

"They're in property-poor school districts, so they're looking for every nickel and dime they can get," he said. "Those school districts are really hurting."

However, he said, most taxing authorities that collect from non-profit water systems receive very little revenue.

"We don't have any numbers, but most of them are going to be $1,000 to $1,500 a year," he estimated.

"We argue that these water systems stimulate growth of the tax rolls by improving the value of the lands," he added. "It's conceivable that some taxing units could lose revenues; but we think economic development will offset any revenue loss."

An additional benefit, Duck said, is that tax-exempt status would require all non-profit water supply systems to comply with state open meetings and open records acts. Although many already do comply, he said, the public will benefit by having access to records for the non-profit corporations and by being able to monitor corporate decisions more easily.

FmHA modernization under fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Farmers Home Administration's efforts to modernize and improve services to farmers and rural communities are coming under fire on Capitol Hill.

"I don't believe Farmers Home has a good handle on exactly what they're trying to do," said Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., chairman of the House Agriculture subcommittee on conservation, credit and rural development.

"The Congress is criticized by the administration for micromanaging programs, and unfortunately, this appears to be one of those areas in which Congress will have to get involved ... simply because it appears Farmers Home is either unwilling or incapable of doing it for themselves," English said.

The General Accounting Office and the Agriculture Department's office of inspector general also have identified several concerns about FmHA's $520 million automation program and have suggested ways to improve planning and oversight.

"We generally have agreed with these concerns and have put a hold on major purchases of equipment relating to the automation program," FmHA Administrator Lawrence Ausman said in written testimony to English's committee last week.

He said oversight of the automation program has been elevated "to the highest levels of the agency" but conceded FmHA has run into some problems moving into a modern, technological environment.

According to the GAO, the investigative arm of Congress, FmHA plans to modernize the automated systems used to make and collect loans. The effort started in 1987 and is intended to put the agency in a position to minimize loan losses.

It is the third modernization attempt since the mid-1970s, the GAO said. Inadequate planning, combined with ineffective management and oversight, contributed to the failure of the first two efforts, it said.

As it attempts its third modernization, the GAO said, FmHA has not resolved its longstanding planning and oversight problems.

"This casts serious doubt on FmHA's ability to achieve its goal of dramatically improving its information systems by 1995, so that these systems can better support the agency's loan programs," the report said.

The GAO also said FmHA's modernization is not based on a strategic business plan that clearly articulates how the agency will operate in the future.

Unemployment rate climbs to 6.8 percent in October

By KAREN BALL
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate climbed to 6.8 percent in October as factory and construction workers suffered massive layoffs, the Labor Department said Friday. A separate report showed a decline in the government's chief economic forecasting gauge.

The 0.1 percentage point rise in the jobless rate, up from September's rate of 6.7 percent, marked the first increase in the unemployment rate since June, when it hit a five-year peak of 7 percent, the Labor Department said.

The Commerce Department said the Index of Leading Economic Indicators slipped 0.1 percent in September. The index, designed to project the economy six to nine months into the future, had grown an average of 0.8 percent a month from February through July. It was the first drop in eight months and raised new fears the economy could stall or even fall back into recession. The unemployment rate had inched down over the summer, but analysts attributed that improvement more to statistical flukes than any hiring rally.

A separate payroll survey in Friday's report showed that U.S. companies cut another 1,000 jobs in October, a far worse performance than the jobs gain analysts had predicted for the month.

The weak news could prod the Federal Reserve to provide a fresh round of interest rate cuts to spur the sagging economy, analysts said. The dreary jobs report follows other recent data showing home sales, consumer confidence and factory orders are still tumbling.

At the White House, where President Bush faces new polls that show swelling discontent with his handling of the slumping economy, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the Fed last week apparently cut short-term interest rates and "there could be other cuts to come."

The bleak unemployment report raised fresh doubts about whether the economy actually pulled out of the recession in May or June, as earlier government numbers indicated. Later statistics have shown economic activity sputtering again.

The earlier rebound now appears to have been related to the allied victory in the Persian Gulf war and wasn't a signal that "the economy's fundamental problems had been licked," said Robert Dederick, chief economist at the Northern Trust Co.

"The economy is wallowing around. It's trying to make up its mind whether to resume the advance or call it quits," Dederick said. "It's sort of balanced on a knife's edge — it's not turning down but it's not going forward."

The Bush administration had a more upbeat assessment. Labor Secretary Lynn Martin said the numbers show "the recovery continues to move forward," but she conceded that it is "frustratingly slow."

Congressional Democrats, trying to draft a compromise on extending benefits to the long-term unemployed, said the report was discouraging.

"Devastating news for American workers," said Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., chairman of the Joint Economic Committee. "The employment figures strongly suggest ... the economy is heading back into recession."

Another 140,000 Americans were added to unemployment rolls in October as the jobless numbered 8.6 million, the Labor Department said. There are now 1.8 million more people without jobs than there were when the recession started in July 1990.

The unemployment report contains data from two different government surveys. A household survey showed 140,000 people added to unemployment lines while the business survey showed another 1,000 jobs lost. The numbers can vary widely because the household survey includes both job losers and people who enter the work force but can't find employment.

The two surveys show "continued weakness in the demand for workers," said Janet Norwood, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

She noted that there were massive layoffs in construction, manufacturing and retail trade last month.

Factories lost another 32,000 jobs in October, on top of a similarly severe 31,000-decline in September. Mrs. Norwood said manufacturing "had shown some resurgence this past summer, but the losses in the past two months have erased those gains."

Construction jobs plunged by 29,000 last month. The industry has now lost 10 percent of its employment since May 1990, Norwood said.

Retail trade employment fell by 47,000 in October, after seasonal adjustment. Hiring for the upcoming holiday season fell short at department stores, Norwood said, bringing total job losses in that sector to 425,000 since February 1990.

In a bright note, the services sector added 99,000 jobs, continuing a six-month streak of growth. But those job gains have been offset by the other losses.

On another positive note, the Labor Department revised its job growth figures for September, saying 48,000 jobs were added, rather than the 24,000 originally reported. Still, that is far below the 200,000 jobs usually added in the first few months after a recession has ended.

Big Three enlist government help in auto war with Japanese

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — An investigation of alleged misdeeds by a U.S.-based Toyota affiliate is the latest salvo fired by members of Congress who blame the Japanese in part for the domestic automobile industry's mounting woes.

House Energy and Commerce Committee Chairman John Dingell, D-Mich., said his panel would look into allegations that the distributor of Toyota automobiles in five Southeastern states had committed numerous wrongdoings, including falsifying sales reports to evade import limits.

Dingell, widely known for hard-hitting investigations and loyalty to the automakers and workers in his suburban Detroit district; promised to treat Toyota fairly "while at the same time being most diligent in finding out if there's wrongdoing here."

But he said if the allegations against Southeast Toyota Distributors Inc. are true, "it is possible that there was significant hurt to American companies and American workers."

The company denied the accusations and said they were made by disgruntled former dealers and employees.

Dingell's probe comes as the Big Three U.S. automakers, despite their ever-fierce rivalry, team up to enlist Washington's help in challenging Japanese trading practices and warding off more stringent safety and environmental regulations.

"There's definitely an unprecedented level of activity with the government," General Motors Corp. spokesman Bill Noack said. "It's a sign of the times."

Another sign — a big one — was posted last month as GM, Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. reported a combined $4.9 billion in losses for the first three quarters of the year.

Earlier, the Big Three reported a 12.4 percent drop in sales for the 1991 model year. Japanese sales fell 5.9 percent in the United States.

U.S. automakers acknowledge they need to continue improving their cars and trucks. But they insist the quality gap has narrowed significantly and say the Japanese raise the issue to divert attention from their refusal to play fairly.

"The American companies are turning to the government because they have to," said Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich. "The fact is that Japan has been carrying out an economic invasion of the United States and it is being largely directed by the government of Japan."

The events are different from World War II, but the effects are the same. "Fiddlesticks," retorted Jim Olson, spokesman for Toyota Motor Sales, the U.S. sales arm of Toyota. "What this country needs to be effective against the Japanese is competitive companies."

The Big Three have worked together this year to generate support in Washington.

They filed a petition accusing the Japanese of selling minivans in the United States for below production costs to boost their market share. A preliminary Commerce Department ruling is expected this month.

The Big Three chairmen — Chrysler's Lee Iacocca, Ford's Harold Poling and GM's Robert Stempel — met with President Bush and granted their first-ever joint interview on the ABC-TV program Nightline. They hosted a 40-member House delegation in Detroit and warned that the U.S. auto industry was fighting for its life.

Meanwhile, their congressional allies are becoming more aggressive.

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., is pushing a bill aimed at Japan that would force the Bush administration to retaliate against countries that discriminate against U.S. products. A House committee approved similar legislation this week.

Names in the news

LAS VEGAS (AP) — George Burns says he signed a five-year deal with the Riviera Hotel — instead of one for 10 years — because he wasn't sure the resort would last until 2001.

"They wanted to make it 10 years, but I said 'What's the hurry?' " the 96-year-old comic said. "I told them 'If you're still around, we'll talk.' "

Burns opened at the Riviera last week with singer Pia Zadora.

He said his contract is for about 35 shows a year. "Why would anybody want to retire?" asked Burns.

SAN FERNANDO, Calif. (AP) — A judge has put Adam Rich on probation after his arrest on shoplifting charges and ordered the former Eight Is Enough star to complete a drug rehabilitation program.

Judge Nora Manella on Thursday also fined Rich $250.

Rich, 23, was charged with taking $29.75 worth of socks and sunglasses from a department store in April. He pleaded no contest to trespassing.

He still faces burglary charges stemming from a break-in at a pharmacy, also in April. Police said he was trying to steal drugs.

Rich, who played Nicholas Bradford on the ABC series that ran from 1977 to 1981, was treated at the Betty Ford Center in 1988 and earlier this year for drug and alcohol abuse.

NEW YORK (AP) — Pop star Prince battles his evil alter ego Gemini in a comic book which arrived in stores Friday.

The battleground isn't the Metropolis of Superman fame or Batman's Gotham City. It's Minneapolis, the 33-year-old singer-guitarist's hometown.

The comic book is published by DC Comics, which is owned by Time Warner Inc., Prince's record company.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Opera star Robert Merrill says he owes his success to his teacher of four decades.

"When I was 17 or 18 years old, I found this wonderful teacher in New York ... and I stayed with him for 40 years," the baritone said in the Nashville Banner.

Merrill, who sung Saturday with the Nashville Symphony Orchestra, said Samuel Margolis' training was the decisive factor in his career.

"God gave me a voice, but I knew immediately that Margolis' training was right for me," he said.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Jim Belushi says his producers are filming Beyond Suspicion in Palm Beach County because "there's a sensuality in Florida we need for the movie."

"This is a sexy state ... and you have Pee-wee Herman," said the actor, referring to comic Paul Reubens' arrest earlier this year on an indecent exposure charge.

"I told my wife when she comes here, we aren't having sex here. We don't want to get arrested," said Belushi, who plays a detective in the police yarn about a murdered waitress whose lover is running for mayor.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush can add a Minnesota Twins team jersey that says No. 1 to the well-oiled glove he keeps in the Oval Office from his days as captain of the Yale baseball team.

Twins owner Carl Pohlad and manager Tom Kelly gave Bush the pinstriped jersey and a Kirby Puckett-model Louisville Slugger bat in a White House Rose Garden ceremony to honor the World Series champions.

"You showed why baseball is the most democratic of sports," the president said in remarks that also praised the losing Atlanta Braves. "What counts is the size of your hearts and your dreams."

After Keating verdict, Michigan's Riegle battles to restore popularity

DETROIT (AP) — Coat off and tie loosened, his face flushed and voice hoarse, Sen. Donald W. Riegle grasped the lectern with his left hand and jabbed the air with his right.

"This administration has a jobs program for every country in the world except our own," he boomed, bringing the audience of labor union leaders to its feet. "Now they want to send thousands of our good jobs to Mexico, where they pay 50 cents an hour. ... It's just not right."

The fiery rhetoric, cheering crowd and huge American flag backdrop gave Riegle's appearance before the state AFL-CIO convention the feel of a campaign rally. And in a sense it was, although the three-term Michigan Democrat doesn't face re-election until 1994.

Riegle, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, is running hard to restore popularity and a political base that polls indicate eroded badly during the Senate Ethics Committee's nearly 18-month Keating Five investigation.

The committee ruled in February that Riegle showed poor judgment but broke no law or rule in his dealings with Charles H. Keating Jr. The former owner of a collapsed savings and loan is on trial in California, charged with securities fraud.

Interviewed recently in his Washington office, Riegle was reluctant to speculate on whether Michigan residents were ready to forgive and forget.

"I don't know that anybody can judge that," he said.

But, he said, he expects to seek a fourth term and that voters will base their decision on his entire 24-year record in Congress.

Riegle, 53, says he's spoken to hundreds of people in the last two months and that none has raised the Keating affair. But political foes say Michigan residents haven't forgotten it.

"He comes home and tries to talk about other things, but in the radio and TV coverage and the local papers it's always 'Don Riegle of Keating Five fame visited here today,'" said state GOP Chairman David Doyle. "He's not going to shake it that easily."

In an April survey, the most recent taken, 35 percent of the 800 people interviewed said Riegle should resign immediately. Only 29 percent said they would vote for him again.

William Ballenger, editor of the newsletter Inside Michigan Politics, says the GOP may be miscalculating if it considers Riegle "a bleeding duck, just waiting for the vultures to pluck his carcass."

Riegle has survived previous crises, including an extramarital affair that made headlines shortly before his first Senate election in 1976. He's a resourceful and skilled campaigner who relishes the heat of battle.

The Keating affair began in 1987, when Keating and four other senators met with federal regulators who were on Keating's trail. The ethics panel investigated whether the senators improperly pressured the regulators to back off — and whether their intervention was linked to campaign contributions from Keating and associates.

Riegle insisted throughout he had done nothing wrong. But he accepted the committee's rebuke and apologized for what he described as creating an "appearance problem."

Since then, he has worked on two fronts to repair the damage.

In Washington, he's charted an ambitious course for the Banking Committee and the Finance Subcommittee on Health, which he also heads. He has conducted hearings or introduced legislation on matters as diverse as electric utility reform and the Bank of Credit and Commerce International scandal.

He is battling efforts to negotiate a free-trade pact with Mexico, he excoriated President Bush for rejecting extended unemployment benefits, cosponsored legislation to create a national health plan and is gearing up to fight against mandating significant improvements in automobile fuel economy, which the industry bitterly opposes.

"I've always said about Don that long after we're gone, he'll still be there," said former Gov. James Blanchard, sometimes mentioned as a potential challenger for the Democratic nomination if Riegle appears vulnerable. But in a recent interview, Blanchard said he wasn't interested.

"My sense is that he (Riegle) will be in the Senate as long as he wants to."
