Confirmation awaited for release of last American hostage Anderson

By EILEEN ALT POWELL
Associated Press Writer

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — A pro-Iranian Shiite Muslim group said today that Terry Anderson, the last American hostage in Lebanon, would be freed, but as darkness fell his whereabouts were unknown amid contradictory reports that he was on his way to Damascus.

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, who has been overseeing lengthy hostage-freeing negotiations, and the Syrian Foreign Minister expressed hope that he would be turned over to U.S. officials here by day's end.

Perez de Cuellar said in New York that he believed Anderson's arrival may have been delayed by snow on the road from Beirut to the Syrian capital.

"I am sure this is a technical problem, I think mainly due to snow, the usual road they use to go from somewhere in Lebanon to Damascus," Perez de Cuellar told The Associated Press.

"I am still hopeful that it will take place today," he said of Anderson's arrival in Damascus.

But a U.N. spokesman later said the secretary-general had no firm word on whether Anderson's captors had released him.

The roller-coaster reports about Anderson's release mirrored hopes and fears about his fate throughout his 2,455-day captivity. Anderson, chief AP Middle East correspondent, was the best known of the captives and came to personify the long-running hostage ordeal.

Anderson would be the third American hostage freed in three days.

His release was reported by Iranian, Syrian, Lebanese and U.S. officials, who said earlier today he had been turned over to Syrian troops and was en route to Damascus. But that could not be confirmed later.

Eight other Westerners have been freed since August, when the United Nations launched negotiations involving a complex swap of Western hostages, hundreds of Arabs held by Israel, and information about missing Israeli servicemen. Two German hostages are still being held.

In Wiesbaden, Germany, a U.S. military doctor said today that freed American hostage Alann Steen suffered brain damage from being kicked in the head during his captivity. Steen was freed Tuesday; American Joseph Cicippio was released Monday.

Other hostages have taken many hours to appear in Damascus after their release in Beirut. American Jesse Turner was freed Oct. 21 in the Lebanese capital, but was not turned over to U.S. officials in Syria until the next morning. A Shiite source said fighting along the route to Damascus delayed Turner's arrival.

Perez de Cuellar said he was continuing to work for the freedom of the two German hostages and the nearly 300 Arabs held in south Lebanon by the Israelis, and to get Israel information on its four missing airmen.

Perez de Cuellar told reporters at U.N. headquarters that no deal had been made by U.N. officials guaranteeing the hostage-takers immunity from retaliation.

In exchange for the hostage releases, the kidnappers were reported by Iran's Tehran Radio this week to have been promised that they would not be pursued by the United States, Germany or any other country.

Confusion about Anderson's whereabouts arose after a five-page Arabic-language statement from the Islamic Jihad group, which held Anderson, announced today that he would be set free, but its wording was unclear as to whether he had already been released.

Anderson, 44, said in the videotaped statement released today by his captors to the AP in Damascus that he was to be freed. The tape gave no indication of when that would happen.

American, Syrian and Lebanese officials initially said Anderson had been freed and turned over to Syrian troops in Lebanon. Later, however, Syrian Foreign Minister Farouk al-Sharaa said, "We hope he will be released this evening — the sooner the better."

Relatives were jubilant upon the early reports of Anderson's release.

"Oh God! Oh God!" Anderson's 36-year-old brother John cried when he heard of the initial reports of his release. "We're overjoyed... he's free at last. Nothing better could happen," he said at his Ocala, Fla., home.

"I am ecstatic," said Anderson's sister, Peggy Say, who was in Wiesbaden to await his arrival. In her dogged campaign to free her brother, Mrs. Say crisscrossed the globe meeting world leaders, diplomats, terrorists and spies.

"We are immensely relieved that Terry Anderson's 6 1/2-year nightmare is over," said Louis D. Boccardi, the AP's president and chief executive officer. "He has paid a terrible price for his commitment to stay with his story. We welcome him back with warmth, affection and the deepest respect for what he has endured."

In the AP's Beirut office, which Anderson headed from 1983 until he was kidnapped on March 16, 1985, champagne bottles were uncorked and staff members, some in tears, drank a toast to his freedom.

After the initial reports came into doubt, the uncertainty led to shock.

"The first thing that came to my mind is we are back on another roller coaster ride?" said Jack LaVriha, head of the Free Terry Anderson Committee in Lorain, Ohio, where Anderson was born.

Sheltered Workshop acts as Santa elves for Pampa

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Though this is the time of year normally dedicated to extolling the virtues of a certain workshop at the North Pole, employees at Pampa's Sheltered Workshop are doing their part to make the Christmas season bright as well.

City Manager Glen Hackler and Director of Community Services Bill Hildebrandt are heaping praises on the workshop, which hires the mentally handicapped, for rebuilding many of the city's street decorations.

"The Sheltered Workshop provided the labor for the refurbishing of 65 metal Christmas trees that go along highways 60 and 70 and in downtown along the light poles," Hildebrandt said. "The cost of completely replacing these trees would have been ... $307 each. The workshop was able to provide labor to do all the mechanical taking loose of old garland and putting new garland on and giving us a finished product that, for all intents and purposes, is brand new, for a third of the cost of replacement."

Hackler noted that the work is "nothing less than excellent ... as fine as you will find anywhere."

"That is a fantastic agency," Hackler said of the Sheltered Workshop. "People who aren't familiar with them should know they are one of Pampa's best kept secrets. I learned about them through United Way. When you realize what they can perform, they should be more utilized."

"It's very labor intensive," Hildebrandt said of rebuilding the Christmas trees. "We really didn't have the manpower to spare to do it and they were able to provide us with a good service at a good cost."

Money to do the work was provided by voluntary donations on the city water bill, 10 percent of which is allocated for seasonal decorations.

Bill Ripple, a supervisor at the workshop, said clients are paid minimum wage or better for all work they do, depending on what the market will bear.

"We had three staff who helped with the Christmas trees. They and the clients manufactured each one. It took us a month and a half to do it, stripping them all down to the bare metal and putting it all back."

The city is only one of Pampa Sheltered Workshop's clients who have discovered their top quality work.

Workshop employees are currently involved in box making, putting together picnic packs, stripping insulation off copper wiring and other labor intensive projects.

"I go out and talk to businesses and if they show an interest, I submit a bid to do any type of work they have that I feel our people could do," Ripple said. "We always have time for more work. We bid on a contract and do time/motion studies to see how much it would cost to do a job."

"The most important thing about our people is the pride they take in anything they manufacture. We teach them to do something a certain way and they will do it that way from then on."

Ripple observed, "They do not get tired of repetitive work like a lot of so-called normal people. And you can't tell a difference in the last one they did from the first one because they took just as much pride in each one."

Hildebrandt said he believes that working with the Sheltered Workshop, the city will be able to refurbish all Christmas decorations the municipality owns within a very few years and at a substantial savings to taxpayers.

"There are approximately 177 of these tree decorations in our inventory, which were donated by the Chamber of Commerce," Hildebrandt said. "There are over 20 candle displays in the downtown area that are lit. We are hoping in the future to refurbish the lit displays and the rest of the trees."

"This is our first year to utilize the fund for Christmas decoration renovation and a lot of citizens have already called us to comment on how nice the 'new decorations' look. They're not actually new, but they sure look brand new."

Board restricts McLean physician's license

By BETH MILLER
Staff Writer

McLEAN — The Texas State Board of Medical Examiners has taken disciplinary action against a McLean physician due to non-therapeutic prescribing, according to the fall newsletter of the board.

The license of Dr. Harold F. Fabian was restricted by the board after a complaint was received against the doctor and investigated. The doctor surrendered his DEA and DPS Controlled Substances Registration Certificates and was ordered not to attempt to reregister or otherwise obtain registrations without prior approval of the board. The order was effective Aug. 24.

A spokeswoman in the board's office said Dr. Fabian signed an Agreed Board Order after appearing before a two-member board in Austin.

In order to get the registrations back, the spokeswoman said the doctor would have to appear before the board and the board would then make a decision.

Dr. Fabian, in a telephone interview Tuesday, said he did not know if he would attempt to get the registrations back.

"I can get along fine without the damn thing," he said, adding that there are other prescriptions that he can rely on for his patients who need that type of medication.

The doctor said he disagrees with the board's ruling that he was using non-therapeutic prescribing. "I felt like it was therapeutic," he said of the incident for which his license was restricted.

He said the license restriction will really not harm his business or his patients. "There's nobody who uses less of those than I do. I still had about half the original tripartite prescription they issued me in 1980. Out of 200 blanks, I still had about 100 of them left and I sent them in."

The doctor, a general practitioner, has been a physician for more than 30 years, most of that time in McLean. He now keeps office hours three days a week.

"I just feel they're (the board) down in the basements stepping on p--- ants when they ought to be upstairs running the rats off," Dr. Fabian said.

According to the fall newsletter of the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners, protecting the public is the mandate of the board, while at the same time allowing a physician due process. Responding to complaints against physicians is a major part of the board's job, with about 1,800 complaints received yearly.

Of those 1,800 complaints, about 54 percent originate from patients, 23 percent are due to multiple liability suits, 5 percent are received from other physicians, 5 percent are from peer review reports, 5 percent are from other governmental agencies, 4 percent originate by the board itself and 4 percent are from other sources.

The investigative process begins with the physician and the complainant being notified in writing, according to the newsletter. The complainant, the physician and others are interviewed as needed. In cases of professional liability claims, a District Review Committee composed of four physicians and a lay member reviews each case and recommends further inquiry or dismissal.

After an investigation, a case can be dismissed due to insufficient admissible evidence or because the board lacks jurisdiction. On the other hand, an informal settlement conference may be set, or an emergency suspension of the license may occur. Certain corrective actions or procedures could occur, including remedial training courses, cessation of certain practices, limitations on areas of practice, probation for a period of time, and in some cases, psychiatric evaluation and treatment.

If an agreement is not reached and signed by the physician and board president, the board may proceed to an examiner's hearing or a full board hearing.

In the fall newsletter of the board, 77 doctors had disciplinary actions taken against them.

Wheeler grand jury indicts man in insurance con

By BETH MILLER

WHEELER — A Wheeler County grand jury on Monday returned indictments against seven people.

Charles Herbert Jones, 52, Graham, was indicted for the third-degree felony of securing execution of a document by deception.

However, Assistant District Attorney John Mann said that he will present evidence at a later meeting of the grand jury asking them to re-indict Jones on an enhanced first-degree felony based on prior felony convictions.

"He's been to the pen (penitentiary) two, maybe three times before and he's on deferred adjudication out of Gray County from last year," Mann said.

Mann said that in the Monday indictment, Jones is charged with conning a Wheeler woman out of $3,457 on Oct. 2, allegedly for health insurance coverage. Mann said Jones represented that he sold insurance through the Charles Jones Agency, but the assistant district attorney said Jones does not work for any insurance company. Jones then went to the woman's husband, a local businessman, and got him to obtain a $3,457 cashier's check payable to the Charles Jones Agency.

The assistant district attorney said Jones is currently at large. Bond has been set at $50,000 on the charge.

In an unrelated indictment, Cindy Lee Murphy, 30, Erick, Okla., was indicted on a third-degree felony charge of aggravated assault, which occurred on Nov. 9.

Mann said Murphy was walking to a Shamrock convenience store with two other women when a 16-year-old boy came out of a house where a loud party was going on and started yelling obscenities at the women.

As the youth started across the street toward the women, Mann said, Murphy pulled a knife and stabbed the youth in the back. The boy was hospitalized, but is doing well now, Mann said.

Murphy has been in jail in lieu of bond since her arrest. Bond was set at $2,000.

Other indictments returned Monday are as follows:

- Paul Luna Jr., 25, Shamrock, was indicted on an Aug. 3 charge of unauthorized use of a vehicle. Bond was set at $5,000.

- Creig Oden Maifield, 34, Watertown, S.D., was indicted on a Nov. 3 charge of interference with child custody. Bond was set at $5,000.

- Randy Lee Warrens, 28, Waterloo, Iowa, was indicted on a July 3 charge of possession of a controlled substance. Bond was set at $5,000.

- James Douglas Anglin, 44, Amarillo, was indicted on a July 12 charge of felony driving while intoxicated.

- Gerald Dean Stuart, 55, Wheeler, was indicted on an Oct. 11 charge of felony driving while intoxicated.

Toys for Tots aiding Christmas for children

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Officials with Toys for Tots in Pampa report they are still about $2,000 short of reaching their goal for helping 367 needy children in Gray County get at least one new toy for Christmas.

Jeannie Ritchie, coordinator of the Toys for Tots effort, said Cinema IV in Coronado Center is sponsoring a special fund-raising matinee for this Saturday, Dec. 7, at 2 p.m.

"We've got Cinema IV in Coronado Center, doing a special Saturday matinee with Ernest Scared Stupid, and it is a $2 admission donation or two cans of food or a new or like-new toy," Ritchie said.

She noted the money and toys will all go to Toys for Tots and the donated food will go to Good Samaritan Christian Services to help feed the poor in this area.

Ritchie said several local businesses have been very generous and that now Toys for Tots is seeking the assistance of community members.

"Pampa Mall has donated the space for our storefront," Ritchie said. "If there are any more businesses that want to donate and we have not contacted them for a donation, we are asking them to contact us at 665-7510, 665-7629 or 665-6268.

"This is a way of showing these children they are cared for," Ritchie said. "It's a way of letting them experience the magic of Christmas."

Assisting in this year's campaign are Gray County 4-H, the Pampa Firefighters Association and the City Limits club.

Drop-off points for toys also include Dunlap's in Coronado Center, Central Fire Station downtown, City Limits and KGRO/KOMX Radio. Cash donations may be made at National Bank of Commerce.

"There are four agencies through which those in need can go and request assistance," Ritchie said. "They are the Texas Department of Human Services, Good Samaritan's, the WIC office and Panhandle Community Services."

In addition to toys and cash, Ritchie said Toys for Tots needs gift wrap, tape and ribbon to allow parents to wrap toys when they pick them up.

"We also need volunteers to assist with manning the store front December 9 through 14," Ritchie said. "And we are asking that anyone having a garage sale this time of year, if they have toys left over when they're done, give us a call and we will pick them up."

"We are working to help our community. These children will not get any toys if we don't help them. Without the help of the community, Santa won't make it to these homes."

Sununu resigns chief of staff post

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — John H. Sununu, the combative White House chief of staff whose abrasive style earned him enemies in both parties, resigned Tuesday, telling President Bush he didn't want to be "a drag on your success."

The resignation came after weeks of rumors that Sununu was on his way out. The 52-year-old former New Hampshire governor had come under increasing criticism from Republicans for his role in what they saw as ineffective White House action on the faltering economy.

Speculation immediately centered on Transportation Secretary Samuel K. Skinner as a likely successor, although the White House said no decision had been made.

One GOP congressional source called the decision to give Skinner the job "definite but not official."

Sununu handed Bush a five-page handwritten resignation note on Air Force One while Bush was on a trip to Florida and Mississippi.

Bush accepted the resignation, effective Dec. 15, and said in a statement that Sununu would remain as a counselor with Cabinet rank through March 1.

Later, standing beside Sununu on Air Force One, Bush told reporters, "He has taken a lot of hard shots that would have landed on my chin."

Sununu noted that Bush was heading into his reelection campaign and said, "He doesn't need an extra political target folks will be shooting at."

Administration and Republican sources said they expected Skinner, a close political ally, of the president's who played an active role in his 1988 election effort, to get the top White House staff job.

However, White House spokeswoman Judy Smith said that as far as she knew, Bush had not offered Skinner the job.

Skinner is well respected by other Cabinet members, GOP members of Congress and Republican campaign workers.

Speculation that he would get the post was fueled by revelations that he had a private dinner with the president on Sunday and breakfast at the White House on Monday with Bush's son and chief political trouble shooter, George W. Bush.

In fact, it was Bush's eldest son — who is co-owner of the Texas Rangers' baseball team — who delivered the bad news to Sununu last Wednesday that there was wide opposition to him among Bush's top advisers, administration and Republican sources said Tuesday.

In his letter, Sununu said that until recently he had been convinced he could be a strong contributor to Bush's efforts.

"But in politics, especially during the seasons of a political campaign, perceptions that can be effectively dealt with at other times can be — and will be — converted into real political negatives," Sununu wrote. "And I would never want to not be contributing positively, much less be a drag on your success."

The controversy over what role Sununu would play next year had also held up Bush's naming of a reelection campaign team.

Charles Black, a GOP consultant expected to play a key role in that campaign, said Sununu's resignation cleared the decks for Bush to move on that front.

"I'm sure the president will pick a successor shortly. Surely, the campaign team is not far behind," Black said. He said he wouldn't be surprised if Bush filled all the posts within the next few days.

Earlier this year, Sununu was the subject of a White House ethics probe — and heavy outside criticism — for his extensive use of government jets and limousines for personal and political travel. Bush, clearly distressed, approved new rules sharply limiting Sununu's access to such travel perquisites.

White House aides noted that this time there had not been specific allegations for Sununu to address. Rather, they said, there was a general erosion of support for him.

Right up until the resignation, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater insisted that Bush had "full confidence" in his aide. But other officials, speaking on the condition of anonymity, had said they doubted that Sununu would survive the latest controversy.

United Way still short of its goal

The Pampa United Way is now at 94.8 percent of the $349,000 goal, said Katrina Bigham, executive administrator of the United Way.

"We still need $17,671.20," Bigham said Tuesday.

Money generated from donations to the campaign help fund 16 local service organizations.

The 16 agencies of the United Way this year are the American Red Cross, Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Pampa, Boy Scouts Golden Spread Council, Community Day Care Center, Genesis House, Girl Scouts Quivira Council, Gray County Child Protective Services, Gray County Latch Key, High Plains Epilepsy, Pampa Family Services, Pampa Sheltered Workshop, Pampa Meals on Wheels, Pastoral Counseling, Salvation Army, South Side Senior Citizens Center, and Tralee Crisis Center for Women.

Anyone who wants to donate to this year's campaign can contact Bigham at 669-1001.

Appraisal District board to meet

Gray County Appraisal District Board of Directors will meet in regular session at 5 p.m. Thursday to consider a contract for legal work in delinquent tax collection for the city of Pampa and Pampa Independent School District.

Other items on the agenda include consideration of office equipment, consideration of contract for industrial appraisal, consideration of records management officer and consideration of ment of Appraisal Review Board members.

Accounts to be added to the listing of doubtful accounts for the city of Lefors is also listed on the agenda.

Routine items of minutes of a prior meeting, expenditures for September and October and the chief appraiser's report are also listed on the agenda.

The board meets at 815 N. Sumner. The meeting is open to the public.

Peace talks start with Arabs, but no Israelis

By DALIA BALIGH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arab and Palestinian delegates gathered for a second round of Mideast peace talks at the State Department today. Israel, their negotiating adversary, was absent.

Promising to join the talks at the State Department next week, Israel offered last-minute concessions.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir, in a "good-will gesture" apparently intended to deflect criticism of Israel's absence, dropped his insistence that Middle East peace negotiations with each of the three Arab delegations be held on separate dates.

And Israeli Ambassador to the United States Zalmu Shoval said Israel will make far-reaching proposals on Palestinian self-rule when the Israeli delegation arrives next week. Previously the Israelis had said the Washington talks should be limited to procedural matters.

Israel said it would not attend because it needed until Monday to prepare for the talks with the Arab delegations. Benjamin Netanyahu, a Shamir aide, was to present Israel's position separately at a news conference in Washington.

The session began away from the scrutiny of television cameras. State Department spokeswoman Margaret D. Tutwiler Tuesday said cameras would be kept out because "we are not going to play the empty-chair game. ... We think that is below the belt, and we are not going to participate in that."

Syria's chief delegate Muwaffak Allaf was asked on arrival why he came to the State Department when there was no one to negotiate with. "We were invited to come on this day," he said. "We are coming because we are sincere in our quest for peace."

"We came all this distance in order to try to achieve peace and this is what we intend to do."

We came to discuss peace in all its aspects," he added.

Without the Israelis, there is not much the talks can achieve. But the Palestinians, Jordanians, Syrians and Lebanese intend to make the most of it as proof that the Jewish state is not serious about peace.

"If we don't find them, we'll have to discuss with the cosponsors what is the next step," Ghasan Khatid, a member of Palestinian delegation, said as he left for the State Department.

"We are here and we are ready to talk peace," Abdul-Salam Majali, head of the Jordanian delegation, said Tuesday. "We will be there tomorrow, December 4th. ... If we face an empty chair across the peace table, the responsibility will fall squarely on Israel."

Hanan Ashrawi, spokeswoman for the Palestinian delegation, and Muwafak Allaf, head of the Syrian delegation, echoed Majali's sentiments. They would not say how long they were willing to wait for the Israelis.

"We do not have time to waste and I think we have better things to do than sit around and wait. We are ready and willing to start negotiations. We will be there tomorrow," Ashrawi said.

The Bush administration tried with no result to resolve the standoff in a meeting Tuesday between Dennis Ross, a senior aide to Secretary of State James A. Baker III, and Netanyahu.

Netanyahu insisted that Israel had not been consulted before the United States scheduled the talks and that its three teams will be available starting Monday.

Until then, he said, lower-level Israeli officials will be in Washington should Arab delegates want to get in touch directly to discuss the procedure of the upcoming talks.

Netanyahu, speaking today on CBS This Morning, said, "the important thing right now is not to engage in trivial point scoring, going to an empty room knowing very well" the Israel delegation will not be there. "We're not interested in playing games, we're interested in talking to the Arabs directly to make peace," he said.

The Palestinians and Jordanians said they will not meet with the Israelis on Monday because that is the first day of the fifth year of the Palestinians intefadah, or uprising, in the occupied territories.

Israel previously said it wanted to stagger the talks so there would be an interlude between its negotiations with three Arab delegations. That was rejected by the Bush administration as well as by the Palestinians and Shamir's spokesman Ehud Gol said today. "We are willing to conduct all talks as of the ninth (of December)."

The first round of bilateral talks between Israel and the frontline Arab states took place in Madrid last month at the end of U.S.- and Soviet-sponsored Mideast peace conference.

When the Israelis and Arabs failed to agree on a date and place to resume the talks, Baker invited them to meet today in Washington.

The Israelis not only disagreed with the meeting date, but also on what was to be discussed. Israel wants to discuss the procedural matter of moving the talks to the Middle East. But Arab delegates want to talk about a halt of Israeli settlements on occupied Arab territories, Palestinian self-rule and an Israeli withdrawal from occupied territories.

But in another last-minute concession, Ambassador Shoval told Israeli army radio that the Israeli delegation would show up Monday with "quite far-reaching plans and proposals. ... The self-rule agreement that we are proposing to the Arab residents of the (occupied) territories ... as an interim stage will be very detailed." He would not elaborate.

Arab countries and the Palestinians have been strongly critical of Israel's stepped-up building of settlements in territories Israel captured in the 1967 Six-Day War.

Richards says no to special session

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards continues to reject a plea by Texas Attorney General Dan Morales to call a special legislative session to repair a state House redistricting plan.

Richards said Tuesday a special session would be too expensive, and wouldn't fix the problem in time for state House primary elections on March 10.

"This state apparently has some legal remedies available to it at this time and it is in our best interest to pursue all of those options fully," Richards said.

On Monday, a three-judge federal panel rejected a modified Texas House redistricting plan.

Meanwhile, Democratic and Republican party officials refused to accept filing fees from candidates wanting to run for state House seats, since in essence there are no new district boundaries.

Candidate filing began Tuesday and runs through Jan. 2 for the primaries.

Texas GOP Chairman Fred Meyer said he advised potential state House candidates to "move into mobile homes so they can be prepared to go where their district goes."

In another development, the Texas Supreme Court said it would consider the Republican Party's legal challenge of a proposed state Senate redistricting plan. The court will hear arguments Dec. 10, the same time a three-judge federal panel in Austin will consider the same question.

On Monday, the judicial panel in Washington declined to rule on a request by Morales to allow the revised state House plan to be used for 1992 elections.

The judges also rejected Morales' request to delay candidate filing for the primary.

Operation CARE takes aim at drunk motorists

Law enforcement agencies from all 50 states are to combine forces this week to reduce drunk and drugged drivers from the nation's highways, announced Jerry Bergtorf, Department of Public Safety safety officer of Amarillo.

In observance of National Drunk and Drugged Driving Week, Dec. 6-13, various law enforcement agencies are to combine efforts to enforce the nation's drunken driving and drugged driving laws, Bergtorf said.

To start the week's events, a 13-hour, nation-wide crackdown — dubbed Operation CARE — has been scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 6, and conclude at 7 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 7. Operation CARE stands for Combined Accident Reduction Effort, Bergtorf explained.

Luby's Cafeteria to reopen in Killeen

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

KILLEEN (AP) — When the cafeteria that served as the scene of the nation's worst mass shooting reopens next year, one of those wounded says he'll eat there "if nothing else, just strictly out of defiance."

"I want to be able to go eat anywhere I want to eat, anytime I feel like it. This is America," said Kirby Lack, pastor of a non-denominational church in Coppas Cove.

George Hennard, 35, drove his pickup through a front window at the cafeteria on Oct. 16, then began a shooting rampage that lasted about 15 minutes before he killed himself.

Before the rampage ended, 23 people had suffered mortal wounds and at least 20 others were wounded.

The cafeteria's dining room will be remodeled and it will reopen, possibly in February or March, in the wake of overwhelming community support, said Ralph "Pete" Erben, president and chief executive officer of Luby's Cafeterias Inc.

"Again and again, we have heard that Luby's is just more than a dining place in Killeen. It has been a gathering place — for meetings, for social occasions, for business people, citizens and families," he said Tuesday.

He added that a few people expressed concern about reopening the cafeteria, but that most supported the idea.

Lack said that if the cafeteria were closed, "It would give Hennard the memorial that he was looking for."

But he acknowledged that returning "probably won't be the easiest thing I've ever done. I lost one of my best buddies in there."

He said he had considered the possibility that someone with a "twisted mind" might decide to repeat Hennard's crime, but that he plans to go to anyway.

Killeen Mayor Major Blair added at the announcement of the reopening. "The overwhelming expression from Killeen and the surrounding communities, and from people across this country for that matter ... was that whatever you do, don't let 'em close Luby's."

Erben said that although the cafeteria's dining room would be redesigned and redecorated, the basic structure would stay much the same. He conceded the possibility that the cafeteria may not be financially viable.

"That's the risk we're willing to take for the support of the community," he said.

Nearly all the 44 people who worked in the cafeteria want it to reopen and want to go back to work there, he said. The workers are still on the payroll, although the cafeteria has been closed since the shooting.

Lawyer attacks witness for selling story to TV

Newsletter takes on age-old questions

By DOUG GLASS
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Who are we? Why are we here? Where are we going? And what can we learn from Elvis?

A philosophy professor is taking up such age-old questions in The Meaning of Life, a quarterly newsletter to help others think deep thoughts.

"I'm hoping that by writing about it, I'll keep people's interest alive ... and they'll find some help for themselves, and make the most out of their short, brief lives," said Loyola University Professor Robert Lichtenbert, who has been publishing the newsletter for almost four years.

About 50 people subscribe to the $10-a-year newsletter, including other educators, libraries, students and philosophy buffs, Lichtenbert said Tuesday.

In 16 pages they get essays on such topics as "abstract art and the meaning of life," "values and meaning" and "finding meaning in love."

Each issue closes with "nuggets of meaning," a selection of one- or two-sentence thoughts.

The 45-year-old professor conceded Elvis Presley "seems like an unlikely philosopher." "He is nevertheless, in a strong sense an existentialist because he was very alienated from society and did feel a sense of the absurd and anxiety in his dark side," Lichtenbert wrote in his summer 1991 issue.

Lichtenbert started the newsletter during a slow period in his academic career. It's now a break-even proposition, with his wife producing the copies on equipment at the law firm where she works.

Subscriber Frank Aguilar, 54, said The Meaning of Life has been a boon since he lost his engineering job several months ago.

"To listen to Bob Lichtenbert has been very helpful in keeping my emotional mind working and challenged," Aguilar said.

Hugh Moorhead, chairman of Northeastern Illinois University philosophy department, whose writings have been quoted in the newsletter, said Lichtenbert has "added insight into possible responses to that ultimate question."

So what is the meaning of life, according to Lichtenbert?

"In general, the meaning of life is to make the greatest social contribution you can and enjoy your own life fully, too," he said.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The woman who says William Kennedy Smith raped her was hysterical and disheveled when she left the Kennedy estate, a witness said. Smith's lawyer attacked the witness for selling her story to TV for $40,000.

"You realized you could cash in on the Kennedy name," defense attorney Roy Black challenged the witness, Anne Mercer.

"No, I did not," she said adamantly. Courtroom spectators gasped at the $40,000 figure, the amount she received for her appearance on the tabloid TV show "A Current Affair."

Ms. Mercer, a 33-year-old friend of Smith's accuser, was to continue testifying today.

On Tuesday, Ms. Mercer, who had gone out on the town with Smith's accuser the night of March 29, testified she saw the woman leave a disco with Smith about 3 a.m. She said she received a call from the woman about 4:15 a.m.

"What did she say to you?" asked prosecutor Moira Lasch.

"That she had been raped. She asked me to come and pick her up. She said she was at the Kennedy estate," Ms. Mercer said.

Ms. Mercer said she arrived with her boyfriend, whom the woman had asked her to bring "for safety."

When they arrived, she said, the woman was standing at the top of an outdoor staircase.

"She was literally shaking and she looked messed up," said Ms. Mercer. "Her makeup was running. She was hysterical crying."

"She had her knees up to her chest and when we tried to talk to her, she would jump like she didn't want someone to touch her," Ms. Mercer testified.

The 30-year-old woman says Smith, a 31-year-old nephew of Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., tackled and raped her on the lawn of the Kennedy family's Palm Beach estate March 30. The charges could bring 4 1/2 years in prison.

On cross-examination, Black asked Ms. Mercer why, if she believed

Smith was a rapist, she walked through the mansion alone with him, then down a dark stairwell onto a deserted beach in search of the alleged victim's shoes.

"You asked the rapist to help you find her shoes? Is that correct?" Black asked.

On cross-examination, Ms. Mercer acknowledged she was paid $40,000 for two "Current Affair" interviews but said, "I was fair to both parties involved."

More members of Smith's famous family turned up to support him on the trial's second day. His aunts Ethel Kennedy and Eunice Shriver were in the courtroom along with his cousin Chris Lawford.

1/2 cup seedless green grapes
1 cup fresh cranberries, washed
1 navel orange, peeled and sectioned with membrane removed
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
2 cups cranberry-juice cocktail
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/2 cup fresh-squeezed lemon juice

Step-by-Step Directions:

Peel, core, and chop apple; place in a large bowl. Cut each grape in half; add to apple. Grind cranberries in food processor; add to apple with grapes, orange segments, and walnuts. Toss well to mix; cover and set fruit mixture aside.

Sprinkle gelatin over 1 cup of the cranberry-juice cocktail. Let stand 5 minutes to soften. Stir over low heat until gelatin is dissolved. Add sugar to gelatin mixtures; stir to dissolve. Add remaining cranberry-juice cocktail and the lemon juice. Cool, stirring often, until cranberry-juice mixture is the consistency of unbeaten egg whites.

When gelatin mixture begins to thicken, pour into fruit mixture and stir to combine thoroughly. Gently pour mixture into a 5 1/2 cup mold. Chill in refrigerator for 4 hours or overnight.

To unmold: Wet top of the gelatin mixture lightly with water. Run a knife around edge of gelatin to loosen from mold; dip mold into warm (not hot) water for 7 seconds. Remove mold from water and tip to release gelatin. Place serving platter upside down on mold; invert both platter and mold; shake gently until gelatin mixture falls onto serving platter. Remove mold; slide salad into position on platter. Makes 8 servings.

Gingerbread: Austria's enduring edible art

By MARKUS FARBINGER,
Chef-Instructor
The Culinary Institute of America

HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AP) — Making confections like gingerbread — and decorating them — is a Christmas holiday tradition in Austria, where baking and patisserie are considered art forms.

The earliest Austrian gingerbread was developed by candle makers who wanted to use the honey they had left over from producing beeswax candles. Thus, the first gingerbread recipes traditionally used only honey as a sweetener.

Although most modern gingerbread contains sugar, honey is still included because it adds flavor and helps maintain moisture in the finished product. The gingerbread is also kept moist by the rye flour, which has less gluten than other types of flour.

If stored properly in cookie tins, gingerbread will stay moist and delicious for weeks. Those who discover their gingerbread has become dry and hard can take heart: Stale gingerbread can be revived by placing it in a plastic bag or other airtight container with fresh apple or orange peel.

Gingerbread
1 1/2 cups honey
2 cups granulated sugar
1/4 cup water

3 3/4 cups bread flour
3 3/4 cups rye flour
2 tablespoons gingerbread spice (recipe follows)
3/4 cup milk
4 teaspoons baking powder
Gum arabic (optional)

Combine honey, sugar and water in a saucepan. Heat until sugar is dissolved. Cool to room temperature. In a large bowl, combine flours and gingerbread spice.

In a separate bowl, combine 1/4 cup of the milk and the 4 teaspoons baking powder; stir to dissolve. Add milk mixture and sugar mixture to the dry ingredients; mix well. Cover dough and let rest in the refrigerator overnight. Turn dough out onto a lightly floured surface; knead 5 to 10 minutes.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. Lightly grease two large baking sheets. Roll out dough 1/8 inch thick and cut into shapes with a sharp knife or decorative cookie cutters.

Place gingerbread on greased baking sheets and brush lightly with remaining milk. Bake in a 375-degree F oven until browned, about 10 minutes. Remove from oven and, while gingerbread is still hot, brush with gum arabic if desired. Cool and store in an airtight container. Makes 15 gingerbread cookies.

Gingerbread Spice
4 teaspoons ground cinnamon
5 teaspoons anise

Gingerbread bears come in all sizes. They can skate or sled across your holiday table. (AP photo)

5 teaspoons fennel
3 teaspoons ground ginger
1 teaspoon cardamom
5 teaspoons coriander
1 teaspoon mace
2 teaspoons nutmeg
3 teaspoons ground cloves
1 teaspoon star anise
Combine all ingredients. Leftover spice should be kept in an airtight container. In addition to gingerbread, this spice may be used to flavor appauceau, spice cake and other baked items.

Note: Gum arabic is a colorless, flavorless, natural additive made from acacia bark. It is available in restaurant and bakery supply stores. In this recipe, it is used to give the finished product a glossy surface.

From one recipe comes three buttery shortbread cookies for the holidays. From Three-Way Shortbread comes Pecan Spice Shortbread, Thumbprints, filled with fruit preserves and Shortbread Wedges. (AP photo)

Butter adds rich taste to holiday shortbreads

By NANCY BYAL, Food Editor
Better Homes and Gardens Magazine

Hands down, Scottish shortbread wins as my favorite holiday cookie. You don't even need a mixer to make them, and each buttery bite just melts in your mouth.

With this particular recipe, you can make three different kinds: traditional wedges, individual thumbprints and pecan spice triangles. To make all three, I stir up one double batch of dough and divide into two portions for the wedges and the thumbprints. Then I make another single batch for the pecan spice triangles, substituting brown sugar for the sugar and adding apple pie spice.

I prefer butter for these cookies because it gives a richer flavor and a stiffer dough. You can substitute stick margarine, but you may need to chill the dough before shaping.

You can easily store the cookies in the freezer for last-minute entertaining. Transfer the cookies to a freezer container or plastic freezer bags. Seal, label and freeze the cookies for up to 12 months. Before you serve them, let them thaw for 10 to 15 minutes at room temperature.

Three-Way Shortbreads
1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
3 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup butter

In a large mixing bowl stir together the flour and sugar. Cut in butter until mixture resembles fine crumbs. Form mixture into a ball and knead until smooth. Follow the directions below for any desired shape.

Shortbread Wedges: On an ungreased cookie sheet pat or roll dough into an 8-inch circle. For a scalloped edge, with forefinger of one hand, crimp dough edge between forefinger and thumb of the other hand. Using a sharp knife, cut the dough circle into 12 to 16 pie-shape wedges. Do not separate wedges. Prick each wedge with a fork, making a design, if desired.

Bake in a 325-degree F oven for 25 to 30 minutes or just until edges are light brown. While warm, re-cut wedges. Remove from pan; cool on a wire rack. Makes 12 to 16 shortbread wedges.

Thumbprints: Prepare dough as directed; shape dough into 1-inch balls. Place balls 2 inches apart on an ungreased cookie sheet. Using your thumb, press an indentation in the center of each cookie. Bake in a 325-degree F oven about 18 minutes or until bottoms are light brown and edges are slightly golden. Immediately spoon 1/2 teaspoon fruit preserves (such as cherry, strawberry, or peach) into each indentation. Cool completely, then remove cookies from cookie sheet. Makes 20 to 24 thumbprints.

Pecan Spice Shortbread: Prepare the dough as directed, except substitute brown sugar for the sugar and add 1 teaspoon apple pie spice to the flour mixture. Pat the dough into an ungreased 9- by 9- by 2-inch baking pan.

Sprinkle dough with 1/4 cup chopped pecans; press nuts lightly into dough. Bake in a 325-degree F oven for 23 to 25 minutes. While warm, cut into sixteen 2 1/4-inch squares. Cut each square diagonally to make triangles. Cool in pan. Drizzle with Vanilla Icing. Makes 32 triangles.

Vanilla Icing: In a small mixing bowl combine 1/2 cup sifted powdered sugar and 1/4 teaspoon vanilla extract. Stir in enough milk (2 to 3 teaspoons) to make an icing of drizzling consistency.

Holiday baking hotline open

This year, home economists sponsored by Land O' Lakes, Inc., will be on call from Dec. 1 through 22, between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 6:00 p.m. (C.S.T.), to answer baking and candy making questions.

By dialing 1-800-782-9606, one will be connected to a team of home economists. They will send a free leaflet entitled "Sweet Treats," which offers recipes and photographs of holiday goodies.

Getting cookies to their destination in one piece

By The Associated Press

You've put effort and love into your homemade cookies, cakes and candies — and you want to make sure they get where they're going in one piece. The following are tips for packing and transporting your baked goods so they'll look and taste their best.

Packing Cookies, Cupcakes, Brownies

— For perfect arrival, wrap cookies individually with squares of plastic wrap.

— If wrapping more than one, use foil to wrap cookies in pairs (flat sides together) or in small stacks.

— Layer cookies in cans.

— Wrap soft cookies separately from crisp cookies to preserve freshness.

— A slice of bread stored with soft cookies, loosely covered, keeps them from drying out.

Packing Bar Cookies, Loaves, Cakes

— Wrap unfrosted cakes snugly in one or two layers of plastic wrap or in a layer of aluminum foil.

— Coffeecakes should be wrapped snugly in plastic wrap and eaten as soon as possible upon arrival. Before serving, rewarm in the oven on low heat.

— Cake layers, pound cakes, loaves and bar cookies are most conveniently stored and transported in their original baking pans, covered tightly with plastic wrap or foil.

— Pack crisp cookies in loosely covered containers. Pack soft cookies in tightly covered containers.

— Wrap cupcakes individually in plastic wrap. Plastic sandwich bags work well, too.

— If brownies are being packed for a long trip, place an apple slice in an airtight container for flavor retention and moistness.

Amidst breast implant controversy, area women say they would make the same choice

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
Lifestyles Editor

Amid the controversy about breast implants, two area women say they'd have silicon gel breast implants again. Both women, Nelda Dickman and Peggy Dennis, have the implants as the result of cancer-related mastectomies.

In 1986, Dickman underwent a mastectomy, followed by a year of chemotherapy. At the time of the mastectomy, she did not have breast reconstruction, but completed a round of chemotherapy first.

It took two tries and alot of discomfort to get an implant that her body accepted. The first implant was the type formed by silicon gel, with a top layer of saline. Her skin shrank around the implant which had to be removed and replaced with a new one.

She said the implant was very uncomfortable but she did not believe it was a threat to her overall health.

During day surgery, it was removed and replaced with another type implant which was covered with a textured surface. Excessive scar tissue is not noticeable, Dickman said.

"I have it, I'm going to keep it and I'd do it again, even amid the controversy," Dickman said. She explained that she likes to be able to choose any type clothing - even low-cut dresses and blouses are no problem.

Following a 1985 mastectomy due to cancer, Peggy Dennis of White Deer, tried the prosthesis route first.

"I didn't like laying part of me on the dresser at night," she said, "now I forget I've had surgery." She explained that the prosthesis was hot in the summertime, and made her more aware of her health problems.

The first implant was successful, and her recovery was routine. "After the surgery, I felt like a whole person again," she said.

Dennis said she was upset when she heard the implants might be banned. She believes that if women fear that their bodies may not be whole due to surgery, that they will avoid going for regular check ups. Dennis explained, "People don't need to be afraid to go in for a check ups. Surgery isn't as bad as what could happen if they don't go in."

"It should be a woman's choice whether they want to have this done," she said.

"I didn't want to wear a prosthesis the rest of my life. (The implant) makes you feel like a whole woman again. I feel good about myself," Dennis explained.

Both women said that they make routine check-ups a priority.

One of the primary reasons the FDA has chosen to review the safety of breast implant devices is the concern for clear mammogram x-rays which are considered to be the prime diagnostic tool for the detection of breast cancer.

Mary Stall is director of ultrasound and assistant director of radiology at Coronado Hospital. In a telephone interview recently, she said that while the same views of a normal breast and a breast with an implant are done during a mammogram, cranial caudad and lateral, on a breast containing an implant a portion of tissue is not visible. It is possible to miss something, she said.

After receiving an implant, the breast becomes hardened and difficult to compress for the mammogram views. Without proper compression, the breast might not be properly exposed for the X-ray, she said.

Food and Drug Administration commissioner David A. Kessler said in a new release, "I recognize that the implants have been beneficial to many women. But due to the fact that they can hide tiny tumors that might otherwise be visible on a mammogram, women who are at high risk for breast cancer, including women with a family history of the disease, should be especially cautious about electing to use the implants to enlarge their breasts."

Other immediate concerns include excessive hardening of tissue around the implant such as Dickman experienced, and rupturing of the silicon gel-filled sac.

Long term concerns include questions about minute quantities of silicon leakage, impact on fetal development and risk of autoimmune disease.

The implants have been on the market since 1963 and were originally developed for breast augmentation, but came to be used for breast reconstruction following surgery.

Proponents of breast implants say that their use imparts a sense of wholeness who lose breasts to disease, a sense of self-esteem to those who choose them for augmentation, and that the risks are minimal compared to the psychological benefits.

On Nov. 14, a federal advisory panel recommended that silicon gel breast implants be allowed to remain on the market while their safety is further reviewed by the FDA.

Scholarship offered by Duracell/NSTA

The tenth annual Duracell/NSTA scholarship competition, which offers $32,500 in prize money to high school students, begins this month.

Open to all ninth through tenth grade students in the United States and its territories, the Duracell/NSTA scholarship competition selects one first place, five second place and 10 third place scholarship winners each year. Cash awards are offered to another 25 students. Each entrant receives a gift from Duracell.

To enter, students must design and build a battery-powered device and submit a written description, a wiring diagram, and a photo of the device by Jan. 17, 1992. Entries are reviewed by an independent panel of scientists and teachers who judge the devices on creativity, practicality, energy efficiency and on the clarity of the written description.

The first and second place winners will be guests of Duracell at the annual convention of the National Science Teachers Association in Boston on March 25-26. Joined by their parents and sponsoring teachers, the first and second place winners will receive their awards at a luncheon hosted by NASA Teacher in Space Designee, Barbara Morgan, and attended by national leaders in education and science.

The first place scholarship is $10,000. Five second place scholarships are $3000 each and ten third place scholarships are $500 each. The 25 cash awards are $100 each. Among the top winners in last year's competition were a Talking Measuring Cup, an Auto Dent Detector, an Electrical Wind Speed Meter, and a Snow Machine.

The Duracell/NSTA scholarship competition was founded to encourage scientific investigation and problem solving among high school students and to serve as a way of rewarding the innovative activities of high school students both at home and in science and vo-tech classrooms.

Lifeline changes clients' numbers to 800 status

The ERS/Lifeline program sponsored by Northwest Texas Hospitals is in the process of changing all of its regional Lifeline clients to an 800 number according to manager, Linda Clayton. The new number will eliminate long distance charges for all regional Lifeline clients when they call for an emergency. Currently there are over 345 clients who in the near future will be able to use the NWT system without additional telephone charges.

The NWT Lifeline program is a non-profit program 10 1/2 years old, with over 745 clients. It is the largest hospital-based Lifeline program in Texas and is the 13th largest program in North America. The fact that the program is part of a well established hospital has been a major factor in its growth, Clayton said.

Lifeline subscribers wear a small personal waterproof "help" button around their neck, on their wrist or on a clip. When the subscriber pushes the button, it sends a message to the communication center at NWT. A file is kept on each subscriber, including name, address, telephone number, medical conditions, hospital preference and the names of people called "responders" who immediately check on the subscriber when notified. Responders are people the client tells Lifeline to call, such as a family member, friend or neighbor. If the paramedic taking the emergency call from a client feels that an ambulance may be needed, the communication center can also dispatch the appropriate service to the client's location.

Lifeline's office is located at the Center for Emergency Services, 4101 Mockingbird, Amarillo. For more information, call 353-4022.

Lines drawn at Kent State still divide today

DEAR ABBY: You recently published several letters on the Kent State killings that reflected your readers' prejudices, not the facts as determined by the official investigative bodies, particularly the President's Commission on Campus Unrest. Some of the myths your readers cling to cannot be adequately addressed in a short column, but I would, at least, like to set the record straight on a few points:

1. The anti-Vietnam War rally that the National Guard broke up at Kent State was peaceful until the Guard made what the President's Commission called a "highly questionable" decision to disperse the crowd. The President's Commission concluded: "There was no apparent impending violence. Only when the Guard attempted to disperse the rally did some students react violently."

2. Though the Guardsmen were subsequently subjected to some abuse, including some rock throwing, the notion that the Guardsmen had to fire because their lives were endangered by an uncontrollable mob was also disputed by every official investigation. The Justice Department concluded the shootings were "neither necessary nor proper." Similarly, the President's Commission concluded the killings were "unnecessary, unwarranted and inexcusable."

3. The students who were killed were not the same students who were responsible for the burning of the university's Army ROTC building or any other act of violence which occurred in the city of Kent the weekend before May 4, 1970.

4. On May 4, two of the four students who were killed had participated in the demonstration and may have at some point thrown rocks at the soldiers. The other two (an ROTC student and a coed carrying books to class) were strictly bystanders. The Justice Department concluded that because all four fatalities were located more than 300 feet from the firing soldiers, none were "in a position to pose even a remote danger to the National Guard at the time of the firing."

Dear Abby

WILLIAM A. GORDON, AUTHOR, "THE FOURTH OF MAY: KILLINGS AND COVER-UPS AT KENT STATE"
DEAR MR. GORDON: Thank you for setting the record straight. I bought — and read — your book, a fascinating as well as factual account of what really took place at Kent State.

DEAR ABBY: Could you please give me some advice on how to make restitution of a large sum of money and still remain anonymous?

I can't send a personal check or walk into my local 7-Eleven store with $4,000 and ask for a money order. And I certainly don't want to send cash anonymously through the mail.

Many years ago, I was reimbursed for a medical insurance claim that I had no right to. My conscience has bothered me for a long time, and I can't seem to come up with a workable solution. I am also uncertain about whom to send the money to. I thought perhaps if I addressed my letter to the president of the insurance company, it would eventually get into the right hands, but I don't want to tempt some other employee by sending some form of payment as good as cash. Any ideas?

GUILTY CONSCIENCE
DEAR GUILTY: I agree that sending cash through the mail would be unwise, but since you do not wish to be identified, advise your attorney to send the insurance company $4,000 with a cover letter to the president — explaining that it is from "a repentant client who wishes to remain anonymous."

PHS teams split vs. Plainview

Boys roll to 76-61 win, girls cold in 49-37 loss

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Writer

PLAINVIEW - In a battle between unbeaten teams in different classes, the Pampa Harvesters emerged as the best, racing to a 76-61 win Tuesday night. The Class 4A Harvesters upped their record to 5-0, marking their third win over a Class 5A school in this young basketball season. Plainview now has a 5-1 record. Neither team could gain much of an advantage the first half with the biggest lead no more than five points. But Pampa's quickness starting taking control in the second half and the Harvesters reeled off 13 consecutive points to take a 16-point lead midway in the third quarter. The Harvesters led, 20-19, at the end of the first quarter and 32-30 at halftime.

"We got out of our press in the second half and that helped us out. We decided to just spot press instead of pressing after every basket. That helped us get back on defense," said Pampa head coach Robert Hale. Jeff Young and Cederick Wilbon paced Pampa's scoring attack with 21 and 20 points respectively. Dwight Nickelberry contributed 11 points and Randy Nichols added 10.

"Plainview was dumping the ball inside the first half and getting easy baskets. We started getting some turnovers by breaking a man in from the backside and picking off those passes. I don't think they realized what was happening for a while," Hale said. "We were able to get our fast break going and getting some baskets off it."

Plainview was led in scoring by Ryan Dykes, who had 22 points. Steve Ridley followed with 15 points and Cederick Coleman had 12.

"I was impressed with Plainview," Hale said. "They have a well-coached ballclub that does a ton of good things. They were getting inside and rebounding real well against us."

The Harvesters shot 53.1 percent from the floor while the Bulldogs hit on 42.8 percent of their field goal attempts. From the foul line, Pampa was three of seven while Plainview was six of nine.

Pampa's Cederick Wilbon (25) almost loses the handle on a fast break while Plainview's Cederick Coleman (5) defends on the play. Wilbon's teammate, Jeff Young (23), moves into position for a pass as Plainview's Kevin Kauk (20) tries to block him out.

Others scoring for the Harvesters were Paul Brown with eight, Ryan Irwin adding four and David Johnson contributing two.

Pampa's Lady Harvesters suffered through a dismal shooting night in losing to Plainview, 49-37, in the girls' contest.

"We were six of 26 from the floor the first half and I don't think we shot much better the second half," said Lady Harvesters' coach

Albert Nichols. "We had only one practice during the layoff for Thanksgiving and you could tell that hurt us. I feel like once we get into the Hays Tournament we'll come around and play some good basketball."

Plainview, now 5-2, was entered in the Queens Classic during the Thanksgiving holiday and placed third in the tournament.

The Lady Harvesters, 2-2 on the season, never held a lead in the game and after Dalawana Meloy's bucket tied things at 6-all, Plainview ran off the next nine points to go up, 15-6, at the end of the first quarter.

Cindy Chapman was Plainview's high scorer with 21 points while Melissa Duckett tossed in 10.

Despite playing with a bandaged shooting hand, Pampa's leading scorer Nikki Ryan still finished with 20 points.

"Nikki jambed her thumb in practice yesterday (Monday) and it caused her some problems when she released the ball," Nichols said.

Amber Seaton and Meloy had six and five points respectively for Pampa while Kristen Becker and Alana Ryan had three points each.

Cowboys face tough trio to insure playoff berth

IRVING (AP) - When it comes to NFL playoff optimism, Dallas Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson is the conservative and owner Jerry Jones the liberal.

"If we can win 11 games, I think we have a good chance at winning the Super Bowl," Jones said of the Cowboys' playoff drive. "But the first thing you have to do is get out there where the big boats are."

Johnson, on the same topic, says: "You've got to concentrate on just one opponent a week. This week we play New Orleans."

Johnson only wishes last year was this year.

"A year ago, eight victories would have put you into the playoffs," Johnson said Tuesday. "Obviously, it's going to take more this year. We have a difficult schedule the last three games, but we knew how that was going to be before the season started."

The Cowboys were 7-9 in 1990, losing a playoff berth in the final game of the season to Atlanta.

This year, Dallas is 8-5 with a home game Sunday against New

Now, Johnson is worried a 10-6 record might not make it. The Cowboys can clinch a wild card by winning their last three games.

"Well, we've got two out of three games at home and that helps," Johnson said. "We've got to keep things going. Our players are feeling good about themselves."

"There are teams a lot less talented than we are who have played in Super Bowls. Why not us?"

The Cowboys will have to beat New Orleans without Troy Aikman.

"Troy will be out for the game, although he's trying to work," Johnson said. "He's done some throwing. We'll see if he could take a few snaps and be available in an emergency role."

Aikman has recovered rapidly from a partial tear in a lateral collateral knee ligament. Aikman has targeted the Philadelphia game in two weeks as his possible comeback game.

Steve Beuerlein, who has led Dallas to two victories since Aikman was injured, will start against the Saints, who have lost three consecutive games and are two-point underdogs.

Beuerlein was hampered by a sprained ankle in a 20-10 victory over Pittsburgh on Thanksgiving Day.

"Steve's fine now," Johnson said. Johnson said he's glad the Cowboys are catching an off-form New Orleans.

"I'd rather play a team that's struggling than one that's on a roll, playing extremely well," Johnson said.

Still, he called playing New Orleans "quite a challenge. They have the second-rated defense in the league. We'll have to play extremely well to move the ball on them. They got on a roll early and were playing with a lot of confidence."

"They've got a great kicking game, yet they've had two kickoffs returned for touchdowns against them in the last two games. They've had some bad breaks in their kicking game."

Pampa club professionals earn PGA chapter awards

I would like to start my column this week by congratulating our local professionals.

During the November meeting of the West Texas Chapter of the PGA, David Teichmann of Hidden Hills received the "Merchandiser of the Year" award for a public course.

Mickey Piersall of The Pampa Country Club was elected president.

Brian Noel of The Pampa Country Club was picked "Assistant Professional of the Year".

These are pretty big accomplishments considering how large of an area this chapter covers. Congratulations again.

On November 22, the Hidden Hills Seniors were out braving the elements again in a low net-handicap tournament. First place honors went to Wayne Jones with a low-net of 62, Second was Charles Terrell 64, Third was Buddy Epperson 65. Congratulations to all the seniors.

RULE CHANGE FOR 1992:
LINE OF PLAY AND LINE OF PUTT...Since they provide for the line to end at the hole, Rules 16-1c and 13-2 have been amended to prohibit repairing damage to the putting green, other than old hole plugs or ball marks, that might assist the player in the subsequent play of the hole. What this means, is that you cannot repair spike marks on either side of the hole before you putt. After you have holed-out, you can then repair the marks.

If you have any questions about this new rule, please contact your local PGA professional.

GOLFING FEATS:
PAMPA COUNTRY CLUB...Deck Woldt, eagle-2 on the sixth hole. Good shot Deck.

Hart Warren is making a habit out of shooting his age with another fine 73. Way to go Pro.

HIDDEN HILLS...Travis Johnston shot a 75, his best ever. Good round Travis.

Until next week, SEE YA IN THE ROUGH.

Nuggets end losing streak; Bucks drop Lakers

By The Associated Press

In different ways, the Denver Nuggets and Atlanta's Kevin Willis both were looking to rebound on the road.

The Nuggets, winless away from Denver since beating Milwaukee 126-122 on Jan. 29, snapped a 25-game road losing streak Tuesday night with a 110-100 victory over the Houston Rockets.

Willis, meanwhile, was rebounding in a literal sense.

Continuing his recent domination on the boards, Willis had a career-high 31 rebounds — the most in the NBA since the end of the 1988 season — and scored 29 points in Atlanta's 103-99 victory at Dallas.

"I'm thinking rebounding first, scoring second and defense third," said Willis, now averaging a league-leading 17.5 rebounds in his seventh NBA season. "I've never had a game like that. It's almost like a scoring thing. You get in a groove and everything works for you."

NBA Roundup

In grabbing 20 or more rebounds for the seventh time in nine games, Willis also had double figures in points and rebounds for the 16th time this season.

"Not since maybe Wilt Chamberlain and Bill Russell have I seen somebody dominate over an extended period of time like this," Atlanta coach Bob Weiss said.

"I knew I had a lot, but I didn't know how close I was to 30 until my teammates let me know," Willis said. "I can't be satisfied. I've got to keep going. This isn't anything that's surprising me."

Elsewhere in the NBA, it was New Jersey 88, Philadelphia 86; Portland 124, Miami 94; Indiana 108, Detroit 99; Phoenix 101, Minnesota 95; Milwaukee 126, the Los Angeles Lakers 94; Seattle 91, Washington 90; Golden State 108, Utah 103; and Sacramento 99, San Antonio 94.

Willis broke the Reunion Arena mark of 27 rebounds set by the Mavericks' James Donaldson on Dec. 29, 1989, against Portland. It was the most rebounds in the NBA since Charles Oakley pulled down 35 for Chicago against Cleveland on April 22, 1988.

Dallas, trailing by 10 with less than two minutes left, had the ball with a 101-99 deficit, but Herb Williams missed from 10 feet with 9.8 seconds left and Willis hit a pair of free throws to seal the victory.

Derek Harper led the Mavericks with 24 points and Williams scored 20. Nuggets 110, Rockets 100

Denver handed Houston its first home loss in eight games while snapping the 25-game road losing streak.

Chris Jackson scored 16 of his 22 points in the fourth quarter as the Nuggets rallied to improve its record to 1-5 on the road and 8-8 overall after finishing 20-62 in 1990-91. Jackson has scored 46 points in the last two games after averaging 9.6 in his first 14 outings.

Houston, playing without centers Hakeem Olajuwon and Larry Smith, was led by Kenny Smith and Vernon Maxwell with 20 points each and Otis Thorpe with 17 points and 15 rebounds. Reggie Williams led the Nuggets with 26 points.

Houston tied the score 92-92 with 5:04 remaining after scoring six straight points. But Denver responded with an 8-0 run, six by Jackson, to lead 100-92 at the 3:03 mark.

Jeff Grayer scored 21 points and Milwaukee opened a 20-point lead in the first half before beating road-weary Los Angeles.

The Lakers, playing their fifth game in eight days, got 24 points from A.C. Green and 20 from James Worthy. The loss, only their second in 12 games, was the most lopsided this season for Los Angeles.

When the Bucks outscored the Lakers 12-5 to start the second half, the Bucks led 74-50. It was 88-65 heading into the fourth.

Warriors 108, Jazz 103
At Oakland, Chris Mullin scored 34 points and Golden State hit six consecutive free throws in the final 16 seconds after missing eight straight in the third quarter.

Karl Malone scored 34 points and Jeff Malone 23 for the Jazz, who battled back from a 44-28 second-quarter deficit to take the lead.

The Warriors trailed 95-92 with 3:55 left before Mullin hit a 3-point and three-point play to key a 9-0 run.

Mitch Richmond scored 24 points and Spud Webb had 21, including two free throws, a steal and a fastbreak layup in the final 10.2 seconds as Sacramento won at home against San Antonio.

David Robinson had 30 points and a career-high 24 rebounds for the Spurs, who trailed by 13 points in the third quarter before taking a 92-91 edge with 54 seconds left, their first lead since the game's opening basket.

Richmond put the Kings in the lead with two free throws and then followed with a layup after Lionel Simmons' steal. A basket by Robinson left the Spurs behind 95-94 before Webb dominated the final seconds.

SuperSonics 91, Bullets 90
At Seattle, Gary Payton's fallaway 17-footer with 7.4 seconds left lifted the SuperSonics over Washington.

The lead changed hands three times in the final minute before Payton's basket. A.J. English, whose basket with 30 seconds remaining gave the Bullets a 90-89 lead, missed an off-balance one-hander with two seconds left.

Harvey Grant scored a season-high 33 points for Washington. Ricky Pierce led the Sonics with 26 points and Eddie Johnson had 23.

Nets 88, 76ers 86
At East Rutherford, N.J., Philadelphia matched its longest losing streak since the 1974-75 season with its seventh consecutive defeat.

Charles Barkley missed his fourth straight game with a bruised rib cage, and the Sixers were outbounded 68-43.

New Jersey, 4-12 for the season, never trailed after outscoring the 76ers 30-19 in the second quarter. Hersey Hawkins scored nine of his 26 points in an 11-2 burst to start the final period, closing Philadelphia to 79-78.

Drazen Petrovic scored 19 points for the Nets, who managed only 11 fourth-quarter points.

Pacers 108, Pistons 99
Rik Smits scored 24 points and Chuck Person 23 as Indiana snapped a nine-game road losing streak.

Joe Dumars scored 33 points for Detroit, 5-5 at home after going 32-9 at the Palace last season. Isiah Thomas took only eight shots and finished with six points.

There were three ties and three lead changes in the fourth quarter before the Pacers took the lead for good on Person's third 3-pointer with 4:43 remaining, giving Indiana a 96-94 edge.

Trail Blazers 124, Heat 94
Terry Porter scored 21 points and Portland shot 55 percent from the field to win at Miami.

The Trail Blazers hit 13 of 17 shots during an 11-minute stretch midway through the game when they outscored Miami 34-12 to take a 75-54 lead. Clyde Drexler and Buck Williams each sank four baskets during the run.

The Blazers' point total was the most given up this season by Miami, which has lost five of six games.

Grant Long and Glen Rice scored 17 points each for the Heat.

Suns 101, Timberwolves 95
Kevin Johnson scored 11 of his 30 points in the fourth quarter as Phoenix rallied against Minnesota, the Timberwolves' ninth consecutive loss to the Suns.

The victory snapped a six-game road losing streak for the Suns, who got 16 points and 14 rebounds from Tim Perry and climbed back to .500 at 9-9 after a 3-8 start.

The Timberwolves, who got 27 points from Tony Campbell and a season-high 24 from Gerald Glass, led 81-75 with 9:35 remaining before Phoenix rallied, holding Minnesota to one basket in the final 4:35.

Future of Steelers coach is in question

PITTSBURGH (AP) — No Noll?

It's a possibility that the Pittsburgh Steelers haven't faced since 1969, when Chuck Noll, then a relatively unknown NFL assistant coach, was hired as their coach. Twenty-two years later, his tenure ties as the third-longest in NFL history.

But Noll isn't saying if he plans to return in 1992, and team president Dan Rooney has declined to comment on his status. Even if Rooney decides to make a change, Noll said "it wouldn't be a big deal."

Actually, it would, because Noll's tenure is the longest of any current coach or manager in pro sports. Don Shula has been a head coach longer than Noll, but he joined the Miami Dolphins a year after Noll was hired in Pittsburgh.

However, a 5-8 record in what Noll said is his most disappointing season as a coach is raising questions not only if Noll will return, but if he wants to come back even if Rooney wants him back.

Pell Grant case is pending

MIAMI (AP) — Miami Hurricanes coach Dennis Erickson testified Tuesday before a federal grand jury hearing evidence about falsified Pell Grant applications submitted on behalf of athletes at the school.

Erickson confirmed his appearance concerned the Pell Grant investigation, but he wouldn't discuss what he said. "I answered everything," Erickson said.

The prosecutor who questioned Erickson was Marty Goldberg, who happens to have an undergraduate degree from Notre Dame, the Hurricanes' archrival.

Pell Grants are student financial aid based on need. Other witnesses, including Miami assistant basketball coach Scott Howard, also testified Tuesday. A spokeswoman for the U.S. Attorney's Office, Diane Cossin, would not confirm or deny the identity of any witnesses.

"The case is pending," she said. "There is an ongoing federal criminal investigation."

Erickson, Howard, golf coach Chuck Winship and assistant football coach Art Kehoe told the grand jury Tuesday that they did not know Pell Grant applications were being falsified for athletes by an athletic department employee, said University of Miami attorney John Thornton.

Center targets FTC, networks, others for ads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission got an "Egg-on-Your-Face Award" and the three television networks were presented with lemons from a consumer group issuing its annual raspberries for misleading advertising.

The Center for Science in the Public Interest cited the FTC for failing to apply the same standards to food advertising as the Food and Drug Administration applies to food labeling. It said the agency should have vetoed ads by the American Egg Board about the nutritional value of eggs.

The FTC and the networks defended their standards. The Egg Board denied its ads were misleading, as did other companies cited by the center at its seventh annual Harlan Page Hubbard Lemon Awards news conference Tuesday.

The awards are named for a pioneering advertising executive who historians say made misleading claims for Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a patent remedy of the 1890s.

The eggs ad, directed at parents and children, said "eggs have as much protein as hot dogs" and that "there are 25 vitamins and minerals in just one large egg." The center said hot dogs are not a significant source of protein and eggs don't contain enough of the 25 nutrients to meet FDA standards.

The center said it was giving the FTC "a special Hubbard Egg-on-Your-Face Award" for failing to apply the tougher standards.

Kathy McCharen of the Egg Board defended the hot dog analogy, saying "it's a food that kids eat frequently, and eggs are actually a better protein source than many things that kids do like to eat." She said no claims were made about the amount of protein in eggs, but they are a good source of quality protein.

Bruce Silverglade, legal director of the center, said ABC, CBS and NBC were given a rare Hubbard Double Lemmy, or two lemons, because they have reduced their budgets and lowered their standards for reviewing commercial advertising.

Rick Gitter, NBC's vice president for advertising standards and program compliance, said, "I believe we have consistently maintained very fair, reasonable, high standards in the review of advertising material."

The center said ABC had proposed new guidelines lifting a ban on actors in white coats impersonating doctors in non-prescription drug commercials. ABC said in a statement that this and other proposed changes were only offered to advertisers and regulators for comment and the action "by no means indicates that they have been put in force."

Also on the lemon list was the Coalition for Vehicle Choice, for an ad showing a small car being crushed and arguing that fuel economy standards would force manufacturers to build mostly smaller cars.

The private Center for Auto Safety, which nominated the coalition ad for recognition, said it was misleading because it did not reveal that the occupant of the car would survive and that auto companies provide the bulk of the coalition's budget.

Diane K. Steed, president of the coalition, responded, "Most people understand the laws of physics. When they see the car crash ad they know which car they would rather be driving."

Other "winners" included: Northwest Airlines, accused of scheduling its airplanes to arrive later so it can brag in ads that it has the best on-time performance of any major airline.

Amy Spreeman, a spokeswoman for Northwest, said, "What they are accusing us of is extending our block time, the time we are in the air from the moment we depart to the moment we arrive. It just wouldn't do us any good at all to do that. We will stand by our on-time performance."

General Electric, cited for commercials allegedly exaggerating the environmental benefits of its Energy Choice incandescent light bulb, which the center said wastes 90 percent of its energy as heat and is not as efficient as GE's compact fluorescent lights.

Jay Pomeroy, manager of marketing communications for GE Lighting, said it was true that incandescent bulbs don't save as much energy as compact fluorescents. Both bulbs are marketed as part of the company's Energy Choice line, he said, but many consumers prefer the incandescent because compact fluorescents cost a lot more.

Johnson & Johnson, for failing to inform women, in its advertising for Monistat 7 yeast infection medicine, that they should see their doctors if they are experiencing symptoms for the first time. The company said it did include such a caution in its advertising, but it was inadvertently omitted in one newspaper insert.
