SUNDAY

Sunny skies, parade herald holidays here

Mild, sunny weather with only a strong breeze helped the enjoyment of a Christmas parade featuring floats, classic cars, classic farm equipment, politicians and a marching band.

But the enjoyment was marred for some when the parade took a different route than had been published in The Pampa News, causing many waiting from Somerville to Ward and along Ward and Hobart to have to try to rush to catch up with the parade which was instead heading north on Somerville.

And a Santa Claus giving children a "train" ride, followed by a wide gap, convinced many the parade was over, with motorists pulling out onto Somerville and Hobart streets. But marching steadily along a distance behind were the Pampa Middle School Band, with the official Santa Claus following.

Pampa Mayor Richard Peet exercised some mayoral authority and stepped out into Somerville by Coronado Center to direct motorists out of the way to allow the band and Santa to continue their journey to the disbanding point at the M.K. Brown Civic Center parking lot.

Chamber officials said a printed leaflet containing the Somerville route was distributed to the radio station and The Pampa News. But Managing Editor Larry Hollis said the leaflet never arrived at The News and added that he had been told the parade would follow "the old route," which in years past had proceeded to Ward Street before turning north.

"It was just an unfortunate lack of communications," Hollis said.

He noted that the newspaper had run the old route twice before repeating it in Friday's edition and no one had contacted the paper to correct the route error.

"We're sorry about the error," he said. "We know it created confusion for a bunch of people and detracted from the enjoyment of the parade."

The several-minute gap between the major portion of the parade and the band and Santa Claus which were to conclude the parade resulted from miscues at the parade origin. The band had proceeded to file into the route to march at the beginning of the parade, then had to withdraw and reform to take their post in front of the official Santa Claus.

The reorganization separated the band and Santa from the rest of the parade, and the gap was never closed.

But still, the parade, with the theme "An Olde Fashioned Christmas," offered the usual delights and visions for spectators, with scouts, churches, clubs, bicycles, cars and antique farm tractors providing decorated floats and vehicles for the procession.

A crowd-pleasing attraction was the Cabot Pampa Plant entry, which featured Santa Claus on a "reindeer"-led garden tractor pulling a group of children on a "train" fashioned from cut-out and renovated oil barrels.

Prior to the parade, the Greater Pampa Area Chamber of Commerce awarded the first-place ribbons for the winning entries to display during the parade. Sponsoring the parade was the Christmas Parade Committee of the chamber's Retail Trade Committee.

Winners were named in the following categories:

Non-Commercial: First - Pack 413 Cub Scouts; second - White Deer Brownie Troop 67; third - Girl Scout Troop 102.

Viewers gaze at the beautiful decorated Christmas trees on display in the M.K. Brown Civic Center foyer on the opening night of the Festival of Trees and Gift Boutique.

Visitors crowd Festival of Trees

While residents can view the city's street decorations, Christmas tree and Nativity scene as they drive along the streets and thoroughfares, some of the best sights for the opening weekend of the holiday season are inside - at the Festival of Trees and Gift Boutique.

Individuals, clubs, students and businesses have 21 decorated Christmas trees on display in the foyer of the M.K. Brown Civic Center, with clients of the Pampa Sheltered Workshop decorating an additional 27 miniature Christmas trees for the viewing delights of people attending the show.

And inside the Heritage Room, more sights and visions abound as arts and crafts people from Pampa, the Panhandle and surrounding states display their wares for those looking for Christmas gifts or for items to decorate their own homes for the holiday.

Items for sale include calligraphy, oil and water color paintings, dolls, jewelry, wood crafts, ceramics, clothing, clocks, country crafts, Christmas ornaments and wreaths, and numerous others offering a wide variety of choice.

Pampa Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association is selling food and snack items, with proceeds benefiting the group's scholarship fund.

Adding to the enjoyment of people browsing while viewing the trees or checking out the arts and crafts is a variety of entertainment as school and church choirs and individuals sing the songs of the holiday season or tell the Christmas story.

The Festival of Trees and Gift Boutique concludes its three-day show by opening from 1 to 5 p.m. today.

The decorated Christmas trees were judged in four categories. Following are the winners:

Adult: First - May Davis and Jeanne Davis, "Victorian Reflection"; second - Dale Grayum.

Children: First - Austin Clover Kids 4-H Club (kindergarten through second grade); second - St. Vincent de Paul School.

Clubs/Organizations: First - Lefors Art and Civic Club; second - Pampa Garden Club.

Commercial: First - The Christmas Shop; second - The Hobby Shop.

The Pampa Sheltered Workshop clients each received special ribbons for their miniature trees. A part of the proceeds from this year's Festival will go to the workshop.

Arts and crafts booths also were judged for their appearance and appeal. Winners were Don Jonas Calligraphy, first; Becky Norton, dolls and country crafts, second; and Lazy M Ceramics, third.

Attack on Pearl Harbor jars season of peace for Pampans

By LARRY HOLLIS
Managing Editor

Fifty years ago in Pampa began almost as it does today, with businesses and shoppers beginning to look forward to the Christmas season, the annual celebration of peace on earth.

Saturday, Dec. 6, 1941, residents were busy with Pampa's Santa Day Parade, which began at 4:30 p.m. Earlier, children had been entertained with free movies at 11 a.m. at the LaNora and Crown theaters, young stomachs filled with treats from the more than 5,000 sacks of candy that had been distributed by the Pampa Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the event.

Pampans knew, though, that this season of peace might not last long that year.

Earlier in the week, the Christmas season observance had begun with residents gathering in front of the LaNora for singing of carols and the lighting of the downtown Christmas lights on Wednesday evening.

As noted in the Dec. 3, 1941, issue of The Pampa News, in an article inviting people to attend the community gathering that night, "Come, and bring somebody with you, for in our war-menaced nation you may never have quite another Christmas as joyous and thankful as the present one."

That was the general message of Charlie Lamka, general chairman of the Jaycee Santa Day committee, urging people to be present for the caroling.

And they came, some 500 estimated to be crowded in front of the LaNora. In addition to the community caroling, the highlight of the evening was the turning on of the brilliant Christmas lights in downtown Pampa, the first time for that event.

Preparations continued for the Santa Day Parade, which was being billed as the "greatest since the annual event was started a decade ago." The parade featured eight floats, seven bands from Pampa schools and several bands from out of town. Children from 27 surrounding towns were invited to attend the event, waiting for Santa Claus to pass by on his truck.

Pampa streets began filling up in the early afternoon, with constant streams of cars driven down the principal thoroughfares, according to an article in the Dec. 7, 1941, Pampa News. The event proved to be quite an area attraction, with the crowd on hand for the parade estimated to be between 12,000 and 15,000 people.

With Christmas thoughts on their minds, the area residents went home that night, little knowing what news they would be hearing the next day.

News of the war already going on in Europe, North Africa and the Orient was dominating the national and international stories, with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull awaiting a message from Japan that would give the answer to the question of war or peace in the Pacific.

But Pampans were reading about news events of local happenings that, come Sunday afternoon, would seem to pale in significance to the events already gathering force in Pearl Harbor and Manila.

In addition to the Santa Day preparations, Pampa News readers had been interested in stories about the upcoming McLean-Floydada bi-district game held Friday, Dec. 5, 1941, in McLean, with a record crowd expected for the clash; 150 tickets were sent to be sold in Pampa. McLean won 43-25, gaining the Districts 3A and 4A championship and the right to battle the Phillips Blackhawks in the regional championship game.

A Pampa "Keep 'Em Flying Club" organization was approved by civic, luncheon and veterans clubs the first week of the month. The purpose of the club was to offer a refresher course for youths of this area interested in joining the air corps. A ground school for youths desiring to take a Civilian Pilot Training course was scheduled to begin in Pampa on Jan. 2, 1942.

A meeting was being planned for Monday night, Dec. 8, to discuss efforts to obtain transportation to the high school for children living in south Pampa.

The Business and Professional Women's Club in Pampa was considering sending a letter to Congress protesting against strikes being held in various parts of the nation "as a menace to national defense."

The Harvester basketball team opened its season Thursday night in a scrimmage against the Lefors Pirates, winning "overwhelmingly," according to the news report, then prepared to begin its conference season against a tough opponent, Memphis.

The Pampa Chamber of Commerce was planning to hear a speech on Tuesday, Dec. 9, at its monthly membership luncheon on "The Importance of Aviation as Related to National Defense," presented by aviation recruiter Capt. Perry C. Euchner of El Paso.

Burglars looted the safe of the First Baptist Church on Thursday night, as well as emptying every drawer in the pastor's desk and filing cabinets looking for collections received for foreign and home mission work. But the money had already been deposited and the burglars got away with less than $10 in cash.

Pampa High School seniors were rehearsing for their senior play, Ever Since Eve, to be presented Dec. 11-12 in the junior high auditorium. Four journalism students had left Thursday morning to attend the annual Texas High School Press Association meeting in Denton. The Harvester football banquet was scheduled for Wednesday, Dec. 10, featuring Coach "Dutch" Meyer of Texas Christian University.

Shoppers could look for bargains in the advertisements. A "new, modern electric roaster" was being suggested as a gift item by Southwestern Public Service Co. Levine's Department Store was offering men's suits and topcoats for $11.77 and ladies' dress shoes for $2.57. RCA Victor radio sets were on sale for $16.95 and $19.95.

Cretney's was offering P&G soap at two bars for 5 cents, rubber gloves for 12 cents, a three-piece shaving set for $1.35, manicure sets in leather case for $1.19, fresh Whitman candy at $1 for one pound and Walt Disney's Dumbo Circus Racer toy for 59 cents.

Those looking for grocery items could go to Furr Food Store and purchase such items as a dozen apples for 19 cents, two pounds of grapes for 15 cents, a 24-pound sack of flour for 79 cents, a pound of Maxwell House coffee for 29 cents, a one-pound can of Calumet baking powder for 15 cents, hens at 27 cents a pound, bacon at 24 cents a pound, hams at 25 cents a pound or prime rib roast at 27 cents a pound.

Those wanting to attend a movie after Saturday's parade activities could catch Betty Grable, Carole Landis and the new "IT" man, Victor Mature, in I Wake Up Screaming at the LaNora; Bill Cody in The Reckless Buckaroo at the Crown; The Lone Star Ranger and Riders of Death Valley at the Rex; or Thundering Frontier and Mysterious Dr. Satan at the State.

Sunday morning, News subscribers picked up their copies of the paper and read the banner headline, "FDR Sends Direct Message To Emperor In Jap Crisis," with the sub-headline, "Note Seen As Last Resort To Avoid War."

But by that afternoon, it was too late to avoid the war many had been expecting and fearing. At noon, the Associated Press wires were pounding out the news from Pearl Harbor and Manila, and The Pampa News and Radio Station KPND news staffs were busy bringing the tragic message to Pampa area residents.

War had begun. The season of peace was over.

Emotional President Bush joins veterans 50 years after 'Day of Infamy'

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (AP) - Half a century after Japan's sneak attack awoke the United States to the inevitability of World War II, an emotional president led the nation in remembering those who died in one horrific day that changed the world.

"Look at the water here, clear and quiet, begging us to sum up and remember," said Bush, his voice choked. "One day, in what now seems another lifetime, it wrapped its arms around the finest sons any nation could ever have and carried them to a better world."

The USS Arizona ceremony climaxed months of events in remembrance of the Dec. 7, 1941, attack that killed 2,403 men, thrust a once-reluctant America into global war and triggered five decades of soul-searching on both sides of the Pacific Ocean.

Here in the middle of the Pacific, as well as around the mainland United States survivors, family members and dignitaries paid tribute to those who perished and offered hope that the blood wasn't shed in vain.

In Tokyo, a Japanese official offered his country's remorse for the attack.

Pearl Harbor survivors by the thousands descended on Hawaii, along with veterans of other wars for anniversary ceremonies, tearful reunions, speeches and a parade.

Byron Thomas fought and survived World War I. The 95-year-old veteran also survived Japan's devastating attack on Pearl Harbor. Saturday he came all the way from Mississippi to risk his life again.

"My doctor told me about a week ago I couldn't make it down here, that I'd arrive dead," said Thomas, who lives in a nursing home in Gulfport, Miss.

"I said I'd rather be dead in Pearl Harbor than be alive here and being a vegetable," the stalwart Navy veteran said during ceremonies at the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific.

Thomas, a Navy enlistee in 1913, was the 45-year-old skipper of a harbor vessel, the USS Cokenue, the day Japan assaulted Pearl Harbor.

Other aging survivors, such as Benjamin Sailors of San Diego, also said they couldn't miss this year's singular commemoration. "It probably will be the last one for many of us," Sailors said.

So they were there again at 7:55 a.m. on Saturday, the same time that Japanese dive-bombers screeched from the sky half a century ago. Survivors and government officials bowed their heads for a minute of silence at the memorial atop the sunken USS Arizona. Most of the 1,177 killed on the ship are still entombed there, drops of Arizona's oil still bubble to the surface.

Willie Williams of Lakeport, Calif., was checking into his hotel here when he bumped into a man who helped save his life half a century ago. It was the tugboat seaman whose boat towed the sinking USS Oglala to dock, enabling Williams and his shipmates to climb to safety.

"I shook his hand. You're damn right I did," Williams said after the surprise encounter.

Officials discuss detention facilities for local juvenile offenders

By BETH MILLER
Staff Writer

Juvenile Probation Board of Gray County on Friday discussed what would happen to juvenile offenders that need to be held for up to six hours when the new Gray County Jail opens after the first of the year.

Chief Juvenile Probation Officer Ed Barker explained that juveniles who need to be held for the maximum six-hour period are currently held in the city of Pampa Police Department's holding facility.

However, Barker said it had come to his attention that the city had plans to shut its holding facility down when the new county jail became operational. Barker also said no provisions had been made in the new county jail to hold the juveniles.

Gray County Sheriff Jim Free attended Friday's meeting. Members of the Juvenile Probation Board, all of whom were present, are County Judge Carl Kennedy, 31st District Judge M. Kent Sims and 223rd District Judge Lee Waters.

Barker said he had invited Pampa City Manager Glen Hackler and Pampa Police Chief James D. Laramore to meet with the group Friday and both had agreed, but canceled Friday morning when something else came up.

"I asked for this item to be discussed," Barker said. "I've been in the dark on what will happen to juveniles once the new jail comes opens."

A tentative completion date of Jan. 12 has been set for the new jail and sheriff's office.

Barker said Laramore told him last week that all adult city prisoners will be booked into the new county jail when it opens.

"He told me, 'We're closing our jail down. As of Jan. 2, we're out of the jail business,'" Barker said.

Sheriff Free said, "I don't think at this time an agreement has been found fully."

The sheriff said that there was a meeting held some time ago with himself, Kennedy, Hackler and Laramore and the possibility of the county housing the city's prisoners was discussed.

"Some complications have arisen since that time," Free said. "The city is declining to hold our prisoners when we're full, so that overrides us and we have to take them elsewhere."

Kennedy, too, said there was an earlier meeting with city officials. However, the county judge said the gist of that meeting was to assist the city manager in budget preparations by estimating the cost per day, if the city prisoners are to be held in the county jail.

"There is no agreement," Kennedy said. "It has been discussed ... There are two cells in the basement of city hall built for the purpose of holding juveniles and the county helped pay for those."

Kennedy said his thoughts were that when the county sits down to discuss the situation with the city that the city might be willing to keep those two cells for juvenile offenders that need to be held.

Barker said it was his understanding that office space was going to be made out of the city's holding facility.

The county judge said there have been discussions, even in the community, by people asking, "Why do we need two jails?" He said he hopes an agreement can be worked out between the city and the county, but at present that has not been done.

Barker pointed out that out of 125 juvenile referrals, 100 come from the city of Pampa. He said that if the board could get the cooperation of the city, it would be convenient to continue detaining the juveniles in the city holding facility, since the majority are brought in by city police.

The sheriff said he believed a meeting needed to be called between city and county officials to resolve the question of whether the county will house the city's prisoners.

Barker stressed that the question did need to be resolved, in his case, because he needed to know where the juveniles would be housed after the new jail opens. He said he had hoped that Friday's meeting would shed some light on the situation.

In other business, the board heard a report from Barker, who said that there are 37 juveniles on active probation and three on intensive supervised probation.

He said that since the board's last meeting in August, three juveniles have been placed in diversionary programs, two in job corps, one at Boy's Ranch, four in substance abuse counseling and five held in detention for a total of more than 30 days.

Barker also said he has traveled 8,317 miles since the August meeting in the performance of his duties.

The board briefly discussed truancy problems and the juvenile officer's role in helping with that situation.

In other business, the board:

- unanimously voted to apply for a grant for the intensive supervision program. Barker said the county program could be eligible for a maximum $25,000 grant. He said that money could be used to hire another juvenile officer to help his office. He pointed out that eight years ago, when he started with the office there were seven juveniles on probation, compared to 37 today.

"There are a number of those who need to be on intensive supervised probation."

Barker said the money is available for counties to figure out ways to keep from sending children to the Texas Youth Commission.

- heard from Barker that state funds are being used to place three juveniles in diversionary programs.

- signed a policy and procedure book prepared by Barker.

- received a presentation on the use of electronic monitoring with juvenile offenders from Ray Dunn of Community Supervision Surveillance in Lubbock. The board agreed that various grants should be considered to see if money is available for renting the monitoring devices for juvenile offenders in Gray County.

City manager expresses interest in reaching agreement on use of new jail

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

City Manager Glen Hackler promised Saturday that he and Police Chief Jim Laramore are very interested in reaching an agreement with Gray County Sheriff Jim Free and Juvenile Probation Officer Ed Barker regarding use of the new county jail.

Hackler and Laramore were absent from a meeting of the Gray County Juvenile Probation Board.

At that time Barker expressed concern that he will have nowhere to hold juvenile offenders if the city closes their facility, which he said they planned to do after the new jail is completed.

However, Free said he has no agreement with the city to take their prisoners. He also expressed displeasure with the police department, claiming they have not helped him deal with overcrowding of the county jail by taking some prisoners.

Hackler, during an interview Saturday, agreed no contract has been reached with Gray County to take city prisoners.

"The discussions between the city and county were preliminary and they were the basis for some planning and budgeting for the city," he said. "A meeting in the immediate future needs to be held to work out the handling of city prisoners and the juvenile issue. Chief Laramore and I initially believed we could make the meeting Friday afternoon and, because of other important matters, were unable to attend."

Hackler declined to comment on what those matters were, but added, "That doesn't down play the importance of the juvenile issue and the jail issue. The city is interested in removing itself from the jail business, not only from the point of inefficiency, but also from the liability standpoint of having a jail or holding facility."

"The new jail is a state-of-the-art facility. The date for closing down the city holding facility was only given in general. We have no plans to close that down until an agreement is reached and we have worked in that agreement for a period of time."

Hackler said Barker's concern over where juveniles will be kept resulted from "some assumptions being made on the city's part that need to be followed up by official contact and meetings."

Tentative plans by the city have called for the holding cells to be removed once the jail is open and an agreement with the county reached. In their place will go offices for Ken Hall and the Community Awareness and Emergency Response (CAER) department.

Hackler said he has received no complaints from Sheriff Free that city employees in the police department are refusing to work with him in finding cells for prisoners.

"The only incident I'm aware of dealt with a situation where the city facility was also full," Hackler said. "But we have had no official correspondence from the sheriff indicating a difficulty with the city handling county prisoners."

Hackler also noted, "Just because the (county) jail opens Jan. 12, that doesn't mean that's when a situation (of closing the city holding cells) has to go into effect. We're not assuming that the city will be utilizing that (county) facility. That was simply based on preliminary discussions."

The city manager also said, "I might add that on previous issues the city and county have worked very well together and I anticipate because we have mutual objectives, we will also be able to resolve this in a satisfactory manner."

One mother's tearful prayer answered

They had been married 12 years and Bill couldn't take it anymore. His wife was in the hospital giving birth to a baby girl. It was their third child; by his account an accident, by hers an act of spousal rape.

Bill and Glenda knew by 1960 that their marriage was a bad mistake. He began to come home less and less. Sometimes his two boys only saw him every few weeks and then he was usually drunk and feeling mean.

Glenda took care of her boys the best way she knew how. She also began to eat as a means of dealing with her anxiety.

Within two years she had put on almost 100 pounds and no longer appeared very attractive, though she had become quite a looker in high school.

Glenda's parents had wanted her to attend a Christian university, marry a successful businessman and live The American Dream.

In rebellion she married a boy from the wrong side of the tracks and spent the next 12 years paying the price.

Christmases had never been much. Much of Bill's money went to beer and cigarettes and other women. But there had always been something.

Then, shortly after the baby girl was born in October of 1970, Bill took his girlfriend and moved to Louisiana, divorcing his wife and leaving the state so he couldn't be made to pay child support.

There would be no Christmas for two boys, ages 10 and seven. But that was the least of their problems.

There would be no one to pay the rent or buy the groceries or put gas in the car. Glenda's parents spent several years playing "I told you so," refusing to help those three little children. As they did without, the grandparents reasoned, it would finally show Glenda the error of her ways.

It would also add deep bitterness to Glenda's pain and remorse.

She spent every night for months crying herself to sleep. And as she cried for hours, so did her two little boys and that baby girl.

There was no Christmas that year, or the next. Welfare helped them scrape by, but their pride was nearly gone. Glenda went back to school on a federal grant to get her nursing degree, but she was also having to hold down two jobs to feed her family.

Then, one day in early December 1972, Glenda opened the mailbox. She began to weep like her boys had never seen before.

"What's the matter, Momma?" they begged,

Off Beat By Bear Mills

becoming afraid. What more could befall this family?

"It's not bad," Glenda assured between sobs. "God has heard my prayer. We're gonna have Christmas for you kids. We're gonna be able to buy a nice Christmas dinner and some groceries you like to eat for a change."

In the mail that day had come a money order from an anonymous person for $300. It bought Christmas presents and paid the rent and filled the pantry with food.

"Who sent it?" the oldest son wanted to know. "Somebody who God spoke to after I prayed to Him," Glenda answered.

"But how can we tell them 'thank you' if we don't know who sent it?"

There was a note. "As you have done unto the least of these, you have done unto me." It was a statement made by Jesus as he told his disciples how to show their love for Him.

That $300 would be the instrument through which major changes began to take place in the family.

Glenda went on to get her nursing degree and dedicated herself to helping the poor in Mexico and South America through an evangelical Christian organization.

Her little daughter is now an adult in Kansas City, working with children at a day care center; loving kids whose parents are going back to school to better themselves.

Her younger son is in Germany serving in the United States Army and doing secret acts of kindness for German children in need.

The oldest son? No one is sure what ever happened to him. But every year at Christmas when he sees the Salvation Army Angel Tree and Toys for Tots campaigns, he remembers what it was like to be a needy little child.

He remembers how one anonymous person made Christian charity real in his life. And he wonders if there is something God would have him do to answer the prayers of another momma who is crying right now.

Comanche Peak nears test phase

DALLAS (AP) — The second half of TU Electric's Comanche Peak nuclear power plant could be generating electricity within a year, more than a decade late.

The nuclear reactor, about 80 miles southwest of Dallas, currently sits open, its gaping insides waiting for radioactive fuel. The interior of the reactor's bullet-shaped building is honeycombed with scaffolding.

But the Dallas utility says that by December 1992, its second nuclear unit should be ready to accept its rods of uranium fuel, currently stored in an adjacent building.

If the company's schedule holds, Unit 2 would start running in 1993, joining another Comanche Peak reactor that TU Electric cranked up in 1990, company spokesman Frank Shants said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Remembering Pearl Harbor

Pampa, like most other cities across the nation, was caught up in the preparations for war that faced the United States in the early part of the 1940s decade. While not wanting war, residents felt it would be better to be prepared for the eventuality instead of being dragged into it blindly.

On today's editorial page, we are reprinting some of the editorials and cartoons that appeared in the pages of The Pampa News shortly before and immediately after Pearl Harbor Day.

Pampa Reaps Benefit Of FBI Instructions

Pampa and this area of the Panhandle are beginning to reap benefits of action by Pampa's city commission in sending its police chief to the Federal Bureau of Investigation school in Washington early this year.

Mayor Fred Thompson, Commissioners George Cree and H.C. Wilson, looking to the future, sent Police Chief John Wilkinson to the training school in Washington last spring so that Pampa might have the benefit in time of emergency of an officer thoroughly schooled in civilian defense and methods of the FBI.

That emergency has arrived, and Pampa is ready to meet it.

In fact, first steps were taken last night when Chief Wilkinson held the first organizational meeting for the purpose of forming a police defense training school in Pampa.

Chief Wilkinson is one of only a few civilian police officers in the Panhandle of Texas qualified to conduct such a school. His knowledge gained in Washington now will be imparted to others for service in the war emergency.

Result of the local school will be the permanent organization of a civilian defense volunteer office in Pampa. Instructions will be given to superintendents of industrial concerns in the area and to key workers to be named by these concerns.

Instruction will be in plant protection, safe-guarding of public utilities, and training of guard forces.

"Hi, Joe - what do you know?"

The Grim Task That Has Been Given Us

The first shattering explosions of bombs in Hawaii did one good thing for the American people, even while they took terrible toil.

They woke us up. They dispelled the mist of confusion in which we have been wandering.

It wasn't even a shock when Germany and Italy declared war on us this morning.

No longer can the question "Do you think we ought to have a war?" bemuse us. We have a war, and it is not of our own making.

We have a war, forced on us, catching us unawares simply because we had not yet brought ourselves to understand the complete duplicity, the shameless double-dealing, and the venomous deceit that lay behind all Japan's dealings. We were innocent. Like Hamlet, we could scarcely believe that one could "smile and smile, and be a villain."

Now we know. In the blood of our men, women and children, in the whirlpools above ships sunk without warning, the lesson is written:

Japan has proved itself faithless, despicable, and unworthy of civilized relationship with a civilized people. The sword Japan has forced from our reluctant scabbard must not be sheathed until the Axis nations as a power in world affairs do not exist. That does not mean a war of extermination against the people of those countries. It means the destruction of her navy and air force, together with the means of building another. To this task Japan has herself assigned us. Nothing less offers the slightest hope of peace when this war shall have been concluded.

Let us not deceive ourselves. War with the Axis will be no basket picnic. They are good fighters; they are ruthless, unscrupulous, and actuated by religious zealotry and desperation. The Japanese have all geography on their side. They are able in war.

The news from the Pacific and Atlantic will be worse before it is better. We must be prepared for bad news, for losses of ships and men. The naval disaster with which the war was launched is good proof of the fatuousness of the thoughtless chest-beating that has gone on in the highest quarters about our naval irresistibility.

We cannot fail to win in the long run, though the run may be longer than we see at this moment. Anything less than a complete, crushing and final victory over Japan, Germany and Italy means the end of the United States as a great nation. Our standing before the world, and especially our status as the principal protector of the western hemisphere, demand complete and final victory - nothing less. We are going to see this thing through to the bitter end, knowing full well that the cost will be heavy, the burden great, and the losses grievous.

With deceit, low craftiness, and contempt the Japanese have thrown the gauntlet in our faces. We pick it up; we draw the sword; we shall not sheathe it until the world power of Japan is broken, finally and forever.

This is the task which the Axis powers themselves have given us; we cannot fail, and we will not fail.

HOW SELDOM!

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Dec. 8, the 342nd day of 1991. There are 23 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

Fifty years ago, on Dec. 8, 1941, the United States entered World War II as it declared war against Japan, one day after the attack on Pearl Harbor. In calling for the declaration of war, President Franklin D. Roosevelt said Dec. 7, 1941, was "a date which will live in infamy."

(One member of Congress voted against the war declaration: Montana Republican Jeannette Rankin, who told the House: "As a woman, I can't go to war, and I refuse to send anyone else.")

On this date:

In 1776, George Washington's retreating army in the American Revolution crossed the Delaware River from New Jersey to Pennsylvania.

In 1854, Pope Pius IX proclaimed the dogma of the Immaculate Conception, which holds that Mary, mother of Jesus, was free of Original Sin from the moment she was conceived.

In 1863, President Lincoln announced his plan for the Reconstruction of the South.

In 1886, the American Federation of Labor was founded at a convention of union leaders in Columbus, Ohio.

In 1914, Watch Your Step, the first musical revue to feature a score completely by Irving Berlin, opened in New York.

In 1949, the Chinese Nationalist government moved from the Chinese mainland to Formosa, as the Communists pressed their attacks.

In 1978, Golda Meir, who had served as Israel's prime minister from 1969 to 1974, died in Jerusalem at age 80.

In 1980, rock star John Lennon was shot to death outside his New York City apartment building by an apparently deranged fan.

Thought for Today: "Never think that war, no matter how necessary, nor how justified, is not a crime." — Ernest Hemingway, American author (1899-1961).

Yes, It IS A Smaller World

The trouble with bromides is that so many of them have an unpleasant habit of turning up true.

To say that the world is getting smaller by the clock is merely to perpetrate another bromide. But it is all too true.

It is, perhaps, the central fact of our times. It is a tendency which has been marked for more than 100 years, but which happens now to be going forward with terrifying speed. The world is shrinking so fast that many of us do not yet realize it.

As it grows smaller, as every community on earth becomes closer to every other community in point of time, so it grows more interdependent. We learned part of the lesson during the depression. We know that in the United States the north cannot be solidly prosperous alongside a depressed south; the east cannot prosper in the face of a dust-seared west; no man can be secure in riches while many are poor.

The world is getting in the same case. The fall of the Austrian Creditanstalt in 1931 was a domino that pushed over the whole World War debt structure, and was reflected in business all over the world. Deflected back again from the American shore, the great depression washed over Europe.

We have found, to our sorrow, that they were right who said "Peace is indivisible." We are learning that trade and prosperity are equally so.

The channels of normal world trade must be reopened. Barriers must be thrown down. The idealism of yesterday has become the urgent, pressing necessity of tomorrow.

It will not do to break those barriers down with tanks and guns. Barriers must be leveled intelligently and peacefully by people who have decided it is best, not by a conqueror.

The New World still offers hope. Argentina and Brazil have just taken the first steps toward a customs union. Free entry into either country is provided for products of new industries of the other. The road has been opened toward a vast free-trade area comprising both these vast South American republics.

The barrier has been thrown down by reason and peaceable agreement, not by force. Similar future arrangements between the United States and Canada are being actively discussed. Trade between all the countries of the Americas is being facilitated by a series of reciprocal trade treaties.

Even while the world reels under the shock of war which vitally affects every corner of it, concrete measures are being taken to solve the problem of economic interdependence, and solve it in a way in which Hitler can never solve it, no, not in his boasted thousand years.

Health of American Youth

The percentage of army selectees rejected for physical reasons has been the cause of considerable alarm in some circles. Commentators have compared this percentage with that prevailing in World War I and have drawn the conclusion that the health of American youth has gone downhill during the intervening twenty-odd years.

Here is a case where statistical comparisons alone provide a false picture of actual conditions. For the draft of World War I and the Selective Service Act of 1941 were based on very different principles.

In 1917, when the draft law was passed, we were at war. The Allies, faced with defeat, were pleading for men. We were faced with the necessity of building a gigantic conscript army in a very brief period of time. Only men who were obviously unfit were rejected. Almost any man who could do work of any kind was accepted and given a uniform.

Army policy, as reflected in the Act, has been to create an army which, from the physical standpoint, will be finer than anything ever imagined. The physical and mental capacities of men trained for mechanized, highly-involved modern warfare must be far higher than were needed for the mass land warfare of World War I. In short, this time the army has taken only the cream of the crop, where before it took all the crop.

There is still another important factor involved. Diagnostic technique and facilities have been immensely improved since World War I - thanks to the medical profession. The doctor of today discovers physical defects that the doctor of 1917 could never find. That in itself accounts for a considerable percentage of the rejections.

The truth is that American youth was never healthier. And American doctors can be given credit for this condition. The fact that only the finest specimens are now taken for army service is a reason for confidence in the army, not alarm.

Still A Democracy

War and defense must not be used as an excuse for neglecting our responsibilities as citizens. Our industries, our farms, our factories are part and parcel of our free enterprise system. Their problems are of direct concern to every citizen - representative government cannot live without free enterprise. The task all face now is to prove that, while maintaining representative government, we can compete and win in any contest the ruthless total governments force upon us.

So They Say

No matter how we are serving, whether in disseminating the news, in building implements of war, serving with the forces or digging ditches, we must never, as individuals, be guilty of self-complicity.

Letters to the editor

Make room, help others

To the editor:
Christmas is just around the corner. I would like to take this time to ask parents, grandparents or anyone that may have good used or new toys, books or other fun items for our local Toys for Tots drive.

Just think about it, you could make some room around the house for this year's joyful toys by making a donation. A toy for a child that may not be as fortunate as others can create a child's smile that could melt any amount of Christmas snow.

By explaining the program to your children, they might even help select toys to donate. Possibly even help put the toys into the barrels. I would hope this may become an annual event in your household.

So please, this year why not make some room for Santa's goodies by donating used, reworkable or new toys, books or any little something to bring those big joyful smiles this Christmas.

Toys for Tots drop off locations are:
Dunlaps Department store, City Limits Club, Pampa Central Fire Station, KGRO-KOMX Radio Station, 1201 East Kingsmill or the Toys for Tots store front at the Pampa Mall.

Reporter misinformed

To the editor:
This letter is in response to the front page article dated November 26, 1991 regarding the problem with Sol-Capital Checks, the sub-contractor for Harbert Construction Company, General Contractor at the prison site.

The reporter was evidently misinformed or did not take proper steps to fully investigate the situation. It was stated in the paper that they were unable to contact anyone from Allsup's Convenience Store or Mr. Payroll concerning the cashing of Sol-Capital checks. Mr. Payroll is a private and separately owned business from Allsup's. The only relationship between Mr. Payroll and Allsup's is the fact that the check-cashing facility is located in one of their convenience stores.

The facts in this matter are that approximately two weeks ago, Mr. Payroll had three checks returned from Sol-Capital. I, at this time, informed Frank's Grocery only of the problem with Sol-Capital and other bad checks. I spoke to no other business. Mr. Payroll discontinued cashing any checks on Sol-Capital.

I was contacted by Susan of Sol-Capital who, contrary to the newspaper article, is the owner of Sol-Capital. She told me that the check to cover the payroll of Sol-Capital didn't arrive in time to cover their payroll checks, but that in the future, they would be covered. The next Monday five checks were returned for insufficient funds. I then informed Susan that Mr. Payroll would be unable to cash any more Sol-Capital checks.

A Spanish lady came in to cash her check on Sol-Capital and was informed by an employee that Mr. Payroll could no longer cash Sol-Capital checks. She made the statement that she would call hot line in Abilene to inform them of Sol-Capital's problem.

Had the reporter checked further, she would have learned that Harbert's was taking over the crew of Sol-Capital as of last week and all checks would be written on Harbert Construction.

Many people spent a tremendous amount of time, effort and money to attract this prison facility to our community, and I hate to see the community harmed by misinformed reporting because all checks have been covered.

It is a fact that nationwide, bad checks are up tremendously, I presume due to the economic conditions which is also carried over into a large increase in bad checks in our community. The businesses in our community cannot afford to stand the loss on these bad checks without increasing the mark-up to take care of the increase in bad checks.

New Chief of Staff needed

To the editor:
Apparently the President is not concerned that the Polls indicate the American people are becoming disenchanted with the lack of leadership in today's faltering economy. Obviously no one person can possibly make the decisions that emanate from the White House. The President must have knowledgeable and decisive advisors. This is what the President lacks as regard to the domestic policies of this country.

I assume much of the indecision to act on policies and failure to listen to the growing discontent with the lack of strong economic pronouncements are, primarily, the results of listening to the advice of an inept Chief of Staff John Sununu. Sununu must go!

Those of us who are considered "hard core Republicans" or "yellow dog Republicans" have been extremely disappointed as to the stand of the President on many issues regarding this country's domestic problems. In fact, it appears on too many issues the President has chosen to ignore them.

We were told "no new taxes". The President capitulated to the "tax and spend Democrats" and backed down on this promise. We were told "I will not sign a 'quote' civil rights bill." But the President again capitulated to the "liberals." We now have a law on the books that will adversely affect many small businesses and at the same time enhance the position of the country's "shyster" lawyers.

We were told the capital gains tax will be reduced or eliminated. As important as this issue is to reduce unemployment, it has been, apparently, put on the back burner. Many other important issues have been ignored due to strong leadership for the Democrats. A strong and imaginative Chief of Staff would have influenced some of these issues, to at least, be debatable.

The President needs a new Chief of Staff.

Plan of 1989 wise move

To the editor:
Business and industrial development within any area has always involved real commitment.

Recently, I was reading about early-day development of the railroads more than a hundred years ago. In those days, every state, county, village and area recognized that growth depended on the availability of transportation, both for people and goods.

In 1870, the Texas Legislature passed legislation to encourage the building of railroads. But, nothing much happened. Sure, there were great prospects for growth and development - virgin level lands for farming, prime grassland for raising livestock, and commercial opportunities afforded by a growing population, but nothing much was happening.

In an effort to spur railroad building, and through that, the growth and the development of the state, the Texas Legislature on March 10, 1875, enacted legislation which may be the first significant offering of incentives in return for business, jobs, and development. For each mile of railroad built, the State offered in return twenty square miles of land. This land was also exempted from all taxes of every kind for 25 years.

Then, and only then, did the railroad companies take the risks and make the large expenditures for building and development which nurtured Texas in becoming what it is today. Now we all salute the foresightedness of the early-day Texas legislators in stimulating growth, development, jobs and the society which followed.

In 1989, the Texas Legislature again enacted legislation to promote growth, development, and jobs by providing, at local option, the possibility of a limited sales tax to foster and further a cooperative effort between the public and private sectors to stimulate economic development.

I believe the plan of 1875 was wise. I likewise believe the plan of 1989 is wise, and when the opportunity afforded by it is adopted by a community, will likewise lead to successful growth, development, jobs and a vibrant society. The success of this program is being demonstrated in many communities throughout the state, including Amarillo.

The voters of Pampa have the opportunity on Jan. 8 to again become a growing part of Texas when they vote in favor of the three issues presented for their decision.

Congress OKs $1.75 billion disaster bill for farmers

WASHINGTON - Congress has approved a $1.75 billion disaster assistance bill that will provide payments for farmers from across Texas who suffered losses in 1990 or 1991, says U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm.

"More than 125,000 Texas agricultural producers suffered losses from flooding, freezes and drought," Gramm noted. "They will be able to file for claims under this legislation, which will be administered at the local level by the Texas ASCS (Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service)."

Gramm noted that Texas cotton farmers were among the hardest hit by the weather-borne agricultural disasters of 1990 and 1991.

"Nearly 40,000 cotton producers are estimated to have incurred damage valued at $326 million in 1991 alone," Gramm said.

In addition, producers of wheat, grain sorghum, corn and hay had extensive losses.

The senator noted that part of the funding, $995 million, will be available for payments on either of the two years, at the producer's option. An additional $755 million is also available, subject to a budget request by the President.

Some of the incidents which produced widespread agricultural losses were the 1990 flooding along the Red and Trinity Rivers, scattered droughts afflicting the Panhandle and the Rio Grande Valley, and freezes which caused widespread damage to winter wheat production in the Panhandle, North Texas and Blackland Prairie areas.

Televangelist pulls plug on show until audit clears questions

DALLAS (AP) - Televangelist Larry Lea says he will take his show off the air in the wake of questions raised by a network news program concerning his ministry's finances.

Lea was one of three preachers featured on ABC's PrimeTime Live on Nov. 21. The program investigated how Lea and pastors Robert Tilton and W.V. Grant, all of the Dallas area, acquire and use donations.

"Forgive us if in anything we have been an offense to you," Lea said Friday. "It has never been our intention to cause you any harm or offense."

Lea's following has grown during the past decade from a 13-member Rockwall prayer group to tens of thousands of TV households, according to the Arbitron ratings service.

Lea said the break from the daily broadcasts would give him more time for prayer. He did not specify when or if the show, which is seen in 17 U.S. markets, would resume.

Tim Lavender, a spokesman for the ministry, said Lea's last broadcast will be Dec. 29.

"We're using this as an occasion for some introspection and refocusing," said Lavender. "We want to make sure television is one of the ways we want to promote the gospel."

Lea, who lives in Tulsa, Okla., defended himself against the claims made in the program.

"The accuser is always the loser," he said.

Arabs, Israelis to meet - but then what?

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - After a frustrating false start, Arabs and Israelis are likely to finally meet this week, but once they do the prospects for getting any serious peacemaking done are limited.

Israel will insist on shifting the negotiations to the Middle East, or at least nearby, and Syria is apt to resist as it did five weeks ago at the ceremonial opening round in Madrid, Spain.

That could produce an impasse, threatening the future of the peace conference Secretary of State James A. Baker III, with a helping hand from Moscow, took eight tough trips to the Mideast to set up.

But there are also signs that Israel and the Palestinian Arabs both are serious about negotiating self-rule for the West Bank and Gaza, and that could give the lagging talks momentum.

"I am confident that we will begin negotiations next week," Benjamin Netanyahu, an aide to Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said. "We are ready from Monday on. If the Arab delegations do not find that satisfactory, they can contact us."

Actually, other Israeli officials made it clear that the talks probably will not start until Tuesday. The Palestinians want to skip Monday to mark the fourth anniversary of the rebellion against Israeli control and the other Arabs have agreed to go along.

A Jordanian official said Saturday that Arab delegations had agreed to meet with Israel on Tuesday.

"If Tuesday is good for the Arabs, it will be good for us," said an Israeli official Saturday in Jerusalem.

The problem is that once Israel and the Arabs meet at the State Department the Israelis intend to insist that the sessions there be devoted only to procedure, and that the negotiations then be shifted to the Middle East or nearby, such as the Mediterranean.

Israeli officials are talking about three sessions here, at the most.

The Bush administration, which stood back from the squabbling last week, is sticking to its position that Washington must be the negotiations site - though the Middle East might be considered as a location later on.

Baker picked Washington, and last Wednesday as the starting time. Even after Israel did not show up and the Arabs asked him to set a new date, as a way of not seeming to give in to the Israelis, Baker refused.

His spokeswoman, Margaret D. Tutwiler, said that would have amounted to a new proposal and it would have been unfair to those who had agreed to begin the talks here on Dec. 4.

"We think it's important to maintain the integrity of the sponsors' proposal," she said.

The Israeli delegation, arriving Sunday, will bring with it the nuts and bolts of a limited self-rule plan for the Palestinians on the West Bank and in Gaza.

The plan will cover such aspects of daily life as health, agriculture, education, taxation and a court system.

Israel will not discuss the Jewish settlements in the areas because that is a territorial issue to be dealt with later, Israeli officials said. And there is no intention to give the Palestinians power to conduct foreign affairs or to raise an army.

How deeply Israel and the Palestinians get into the subject is not clear since the Israeli officials insisted the meetings in Washington would deal with procedure and not substance.

"The whole procedure in Washington should be short-lived, should not be lengthy," said an Israeli official, who declined to be identified further.

Still, there is an incentive for headway on this front that does not seem to be so strong in Israel's dealings with Syria, Lebanon and Jordan.

It was Shamir who proposed limited self-rule in the first place, long before Baker took on the task of organizing a Mideast peace conference. And the Palestinians may have no practical alternative to dealing with Israel as terms they otherwise would spurn.

Israel sees autonomy as a way of heading off a Palestinian state. The Palestinians see it as a step in that direction.

The outcome of this week's could turn on how serious Shamir is about negotiating in the Middle East and thereby winning at least implicit acceptance from his Arab adversaries who would be forced to send negotiators to Israel.

EDITOR'S NOTE - Barry Schweid has been covering Mideast diplomacy for The Associated Press since 1973.

Tinseltown rumormongers attack with AIDS gossip

LOS ANGELES (AP) - ABC News was on the phone. When the caller wanted to know, would Madonna announce she had tested positive for the AIDS virus?

Warner Bros. Records wasn't planning any news conference. Its pop siren was in good health. But a Hollywood rumor had so vigorously circulated that fiction was being taken as fact.

This practice of branding stars with an AIDS diagnosis because of weight loss, an impromptu vacation or a simple change of plans has become so prevalent that AIDS activists gave it a name.

They call it "outing by disease." Madonna's incorrect public diagnosis forced her to issue an increasingly common statement. She was not sick. She was not HIV positive. Instead, she had become the latest victim in the latest spinoff of a very old game.

Gossip, Hollywood style. Or: "Is it true you tested positive?"

"The dam burst and we couldn't hold it back anymore," said Bob Merlis, Warner's vice president of national publicity. "With nobody denying it, it takes on a life of its own."

"I got a call from ABC News asking where to send a crew for the news conference."

Madonna was not alone. Elizabeth Taylor, co-founder of the American Foundation for AIDS Research, or Amfar, has been subjected to much speculation about whether her health problems were AIDS-related. She has issued several statements saying they weren't.

Similar rumors about Burt Reynolds, Richard Pryor and television actor Joe Penny grew so rampant - in both tabloids and more conservative publications - that each felt compelled to deny the stories.

This rumormongering is occurring in an industry with one of the world's largest concentrations of people with AIDS. Hollywood also is the leader in fund raising for the epidemic.

Yet Tinseltown, while promising to turn out in force Tuesday for a gala Amfar benefit honoring Madonna for her efforts to educate the public about AIDS, nonetheless is burning up phone and fax lines gossiping about who is - or more accurately, is not - infected.

The sniping intensified after Earvin "Magic" Johnson announced last month he was HIV positive.

Indeed, many activists look to Johnson, the former Los Angeles Lakers basketball star, to provide mainstream support for AIDS education. For the last 10 years, as the disease ravaged Hollywood's creative community, many hid their diagnosis.

Public health workers and gay activists are disturbed by the upswing in AIDS gossip. It's far from harmless, they say, and instead provides an environment that only adds to the stigma.

"It does nothing to help the cause," said Dr. Mervyn Silverman, director of Amfar and the former public health director of San Francisco.

Silverman said the rumors about Miss Taylor and Madonna reflect a homophobic perception that "if you're helping, it must be because you have some identity in the (gay) community and not that you want to help mankind."

Richard Rouillard, editor of the Advocate, a national magazine for homosexuals, said: "This represents the most vindictive kind of rumor mill in the world."

"It's garbage, it's homophobic and it's AIDS phobic. They're trying to ruin people."

David Wexler, board chairman of AIDS Project Los Angeles, cautions that the attention on celebrities may keep average people from worrying about their own behavior.

"It shouldn't be important to the general public whether Madonna has AIDS. It should be important whether they may have AIDS and whether they should be tested," he said.

"More and more people make comments - if someone doesn't show up at an event, they must be sick," said Kathy Acquaviva, a Hollywood Records spokeswoman who spent a year deflecting reports that rock star Freddie Mercury had AIDS.

The lead singer of Queen was, in fact, infected. He died from the disease last month. Ms. Acquaviva said she was not told until a day before the performer's death that he had tested positive.

Still, other Hollywood Records executives denied Mercury was ill. What to believe?

Some journalists didn't believe the Madonna denial, said her publicist, Liz Rosenberg. She said they told her, "I better not hear that this is true next week."

Space shuttle Atlantis hitches ride home

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) - Space shuttle Atlantis hitched a ride aboard a modified jumbo jet Saturday for a two-day flight back to Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

With Atlantis mounted atop its fuselage, NASA's Boeing 747 shuttle carrier took off from this Air Force base in the Mojave Desert.

The aircraft headed for a refueling stop at Sheppard Air Force Base near Wichita Falls, Texas, and an overnight stay at Columbus Air Force Base in Mississippi. The final leg of the trip to Kennedy Space Center was to be flown Sunday.

Atlantis circled the world 109 times and logged 2.9 million miles during a seven-day mission that ended with a Dec. 1 landing on the dry lakebed at Edwards. The shuttle successfully deployed a $300 million satellite to provide early warning of enemy missile attacks, space launches and nuclear explosions.

U.N. envoy denounces 'total breakdown of law and order' in Croatia

By DUSAN STOJANOVIC
Associated Press Writer

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — U.N. envoy Cyrus Vance, who met Saturday with Serbian leaders, denounced "a total breakdown of law and order" in Croatia.

Vance, who protested Friday's bombing of Dubrovnik and the eastern Croatian stronghold of Osijek by Serb-dominated Yugoslav federal forces, met with Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic and was to see Defense Minister Veljko Kadijevic.

The U.N. envoy described the army attacks as "outrageous" and "intolerable," adding: "This can't go unchallenged."

He told The Associated Press that "some progress has been made" on sending U.N. peacekeepers, but the United Nations has said they will not be deployed unless a real truce takes hold.

Vance, who also met in Belgrade with Macedonian President Kiro Gligorov and another Macedonian official, said he was going back to New York on Monday to report to U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

An apology by the army indicated that some of the federal forces fighting in Croatia are no longer under central army command — and control.

"There is a lot of backsliding, too, in a kind of total breakdown of the law and order and the fighting and shelling that has been taking place," Vance said. "That is totally inconsistent" with the latest cease-fire reached under U.N. auspices in Geneva on Nov. 26, he added.

"When you find people shooting at random at cities like Dubrovnik and all over Osijek and other places in the west of Slavonia, that is a breakdown of law and order," he said.

Zagreb radio reported Saturday night that a cease-fire had been agreed on in the Dubrovnik area. Under it, the sea blockade will be lifted, roads will be opened and electricity and the water supply restored, the broadcast said.

The federal army apologized to the European Community's monitors for Friday's shelling of Dubrovnik, which caused serious damage to its walled medieval town, an architectural gem and a major tourist attraction.

EC deputy spokesman Ed Koestel said the EC mission had received the written apology Friday night.

Zagreb radio said the attack on Dubrovnik claimed 19 lives and left about 60 people seriously wounded. There was no independent confirmation of the report. The radio reported that some buildings in Dubrovnik's medieval old town were razed or in ruins.

A 22-year news photographer, Pavo Urban, was killed Friday in Dubrovnik, the Ministry of Information in Zagreb reported Saturday. At least 20 foreign and Yugoslav journalists have died in covering the war in Croatia.

Both Dubrovnik and the eastern stronghold of Osijek were quiet Saturday. Defense officials said six people were killed and 25 wounded in the previous 24 hours in Osijek.

Six Serb irregulars were killed Saturday near Tenja, 2 1/2 miles southeast of Osijek, Belgrade TV reported. Local defense officials in Sisak, about 40 miles southeast of Zagreb, reported three dead and about eight wounded from Friday's fighting.

Fighting was reported Saturday from Pakrac and elsewhere on the central Croatian war front, according to the Belgrade-based news agency Tanjug. But it appeared to be slowed by snow and cold.

Tanjug said fierce artillery and mortar fire from Croat positions started early Saturday, and smoke could be seen above Lipik just south of Pakrac.

Defense officials reported that Lipik was "liberated" by the Croats Saturday after fierce fighting and the Croats pushed beyond into Serb-held villages between Lipik and Croatian-held Pakrac.

Ana Mudric, a Croatian radio reporter in Lipik on Saturday, told The AP by telephone that Croatian forces had discovered three unidentified decapitated corpses.

Much of the town was destroyed, with many houses burned and looted, said Ms. Mudric. She added the central hotel and the Roman Catholic church were in ruins.

ANC leader chosen to lead Communist Party

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — One of the African National Congress' most militant leaders, Chris Hani, was named secretary-general of the South African Communist Party on Saturday.

The 413 delegates at a party congress chose him unanimously, and he ran unopposed. He could enhance the party's popularity with radical blacks, particularly younger people who oppose negotiations with the white-minority government.

Hani has long been a leading member of the ANC, the nation's main black-opposition group. He is chief of the ANC's military wing.

Sammons/C-SPAN to sponsor essay scholarship event

Sammons Communications and C-SPAN have launched their third annual scholarship contest for high school seniors in Sammons franchised cable areas nationwide.

You and your colleagues are currently debating this question with regard to the cable television industry. Should the cable industry be regulated? Why or why not?"

The essay should be 750 words or less. Entries will be judged on how thoroughly the questions are answered, the extent of public awareness evident in the answer, creativity and presentation. All entries must be received by Jan. 31, 1992. A panel of judges chosen by Sammons' corporate office and C-SPAN will judge all entries.

All regional winners will be awarded a $1,000 scholarship to their college of choice and the national winner will be awarded a $5,000 scholarship for the same purpose.

Suzanne Wilkinson attends Medicaid meeting in Austin

Suzanne Wilkinson of Shepard's Nursing Agency has returned from a meeting with Medicaid representatives in Austin.

Medicaid Committee; Betty Jackson of Dallas, Doris Carter of Fort Worth, Lucy Lee of Hamilton, and Anita Bradbury of Austin, director of the Texas Association of Home Health Agencies.

Cinderella season ends for Harvesters Sweetwater sinks Pampa, 19-12

By J. ALAN BRZYS
Sports Editor

LUBBOCK — Pampa Harvesters ended a history-making storybook football season Saturday night with a heartbreaking 19-12 loss to Sweetwater in the state Class 4A quarterfinals.

The Harvesters failed to capitalize on numerous fumble recoveries and key scoring opportunities in the hard-fought battle that was 13-12 in favor of Sweetwater with a minute remaining in the contest played at Texas Tech's Jones Stadium.

"They (Sweetwater) just kept us out of scoring range and all of the credit goes to them," said Pampa head football coach Dennis Cavalier after the game. "It was a great effort on their part. We had plenty of opportunities and just did not get it done against an outstanding defense."

The Harvesters won the coin flip, but deferred and Sweetwater received the opening kickoff facing the wind with 5,020 fans attending the game.

Pampa took the early lead by capitalizing on a Sweetwater Mustangs fumble on the opening kickoff, which was recovered on the Sweetwater 18-yard line by Pampa's Justin Johnson.

On Pampa's second play from scrimmage, quarterback Andy Cavalier connected with Zach Thomas on an 11-yard strike giving Pampa first-and-goal on the 4-yard line. Sammy Laury then rushed the 4 yards for Pampa's first score and the Harvesters led 6-0 one minute into the game. The PAT attempt by Tim McCavit was wide, so the score remained 6-0.

Sweetwater failed on its next drive and with seven minutes gone in the first quarter Pampa also failed to get close to another score. Neither team was able to sustain a scoring drive and the score was 6-0 in Pampa's favor at the end of the first quarter.

One minute into the second quarter, Laury intercepted a David Ritchey aerial to give Pampa the ball first-and-10 on the Sweetwater 38. On the next play Laury bolted left between Sweetwater's guard and tackle, then broke right and galloped 38 yards for Pampa's second score at 10:52 in the second quarter.

Pampa went for the two-point conversion on a Cavalier pass to Thomas that dropped incomplete and Pampa led 12-0.

At 9:58 in the second quarter, Sweetwater's outstanding running back James Moore scampered 75 yards for Sweetwater's first TD. The successful PAT made the score 12-7 in Pampa's favor.

Another Pampa offensive drive was stalled by the stalwart Sweetwater defense and Sweetwater took over at first-and-10 at the Pampa 48. Repeated Sweetwater rushes up the middle and sweeps around the ends advanced the ball to the Pampa 15.

At 4:38 in the second quarter, Sweetwater's tailback Chris Hines broke up the middle of the Pampa line on a 15-yard touchdown run. Sweetwater failed in the rush attempt for a two-point conversion and led 13-12, a score that held at halftime.

Pampa received the kickoff to open the second half and advanced the ball to the Sweetwater 43. The Harvesters were forced to punt and Sweetwater took over four minutes into the third quarter. Defenses for both teams held in the third quarter and the score remained 13-12 at the end of three quarters.

Sweetwater had possession at the beginning of the fourth quarter on its own 37, however a Sweetwater fumble recovered by Laury gave Pampa the ball first-and-10 on the Sweetwater 38 with 11 minutes remaining in the game.

The Harvesters, keeping the ball on the ground, advanced to the Sweetwater 18-yard line. However, at fourth-and-1 on the 18 the Harvesters coaching staff opted to go for the first down, but Laury was hit immediately on the line of scrimmage and Sweetwater took possession of the ball.

The ensuing Sweetwater offensive drive was stymied by the stalwart Pampa defense and Sweetwater was forced to punt. At 5:31 Pampa started a drive from its own 33 and advanced the ball on three running plays to the 38. Facing fourth-and-5, Cavalier ran on the quarterback keeper and came up short.

Sweetwater took over with 3 1/2 minutes remaining in the game and marched to the Pampa 8 yard line. Sweetwater's Moore then broke on an 8-yard scoring jaunt with 39 seconds remaining in the game to cement the win at 19-12. Sweetwater's two-point conversion failed.

Laury rushed for 116 yards on 24 carries and two touchdowns. Cavalier carried the ball 19 times for 44 yards. And Thomas rushed for 28 yards on eight carries. Cavalier hit 2-of-10 passes for 20 yards. Pampa tallied 207 yards on the ground and Sweetwater accounted for 245 yards rushing.

"It was a great season for us," said Cavalier. "Anytime that you get involved in the playoffs, unless you win the state championship, it's going to end on a long note. You're going to lose a game to end the thing."

"That should not detract from any accomplishment or effort that our guys made this year. It was a great run (and) I think they performed admirably tonight. Of course, Sweetwater deserves to win the ballgame by virtue of being ahead on the scoreboard."

Pampa ends the season at 11-3. Sweetwater (12-1) advances to the state semifinals against Carthage, winners Friday night against Waxahachie.

Illinois' Mackovic one of leading candidates for Texas coaching job

AUSTIN (AP) — Illinois head football coach John Mackovic has agreed to meet with University of Texas officials and has emerged as the leading candidate to succeed David McWilliams as the Longhorns' coach, according to several reports.

"They asked if they could at least present some things and I said yeah," Mackovic said Friday. "That doesn't mean it will go much past that."

"They haven't made any offers. I haven't made any decisions." Mackovic, 48, fits the stated criteria of UT athletic director DeLoss Dodds in age, type and experience. He also has seemed willing to give up his dual role as athletic director and coach.

Dodds has said his top candidates are college head coaches with NFL experience. Mackovic is a former Dallas Cowboys assistant and Kansas City Chiefs head coach.

Mackovic is 44-36-1 as a college coach at Illinois and Wake Forest, his alma mater. He is 30-16-1, with three bowl appearances, in four years at Illinois, and his team will play UCLA on Dec. 31 in the John Hancock Bowl in El Paso.

The Houston Chronicle said a meeting between Mackovic and Dodds could come as early as this weekend.

McWilliams stepped down Monday after his team suffered a losing season for the third time in his five-year tenure.

Dodds emerged Friday from a meeting with a 70-member advisory committee and said he has six or seven college coaches in mind to succeed David McWilliams, but refused to give out any names.

Dodds said he wants to hire a coach as soon as possible, but said there is no timetable. Dodds interviewed only McWilliams when he was hired to replace Fred Akers in 1987.

"I'd like to have it cleared up very quickly," Dodds said Friday. "With (basketball coach) Tom Penders, we talked to people until something felt right. You hope it's the first one you talk to. If it's not, you wait until it's there and then you're done. It could be as early as next week and as late as the first week in January."

Published speculation quickly focused on Mackovic, Dennis Erickson of Miami, Dennis Green of Stanford, Bobby Ross of Georgia Tech, Bill Curry of Kentucky and Dick Sheridan of North Carolina State.

Mackovic's public willingness to consider the position is in sharp contrast to Erickson and Green.

Erickson, who is preparing his team for the Orange Bowl and a possible national championship, has repeatedly proclaimed his lack of interest and Green angrily denied interest in the job.

Green reportedly was the most popular coach up for discussion at Friday's advisory committee, but said Friday he doesn't want it.

"I don't like it," Green said. "I don't like my name used as cannon fodder. I have not been contacted by the University of Texas. I've never been to Austin, Texas, in my life. I don't know anybody in Austin, Texas. I'm committed to Stanford University. I'll be here next year."

Illinois chancellor Morton Weir said Dodds called Thursday for permission to contact Mackovic.

"All he did was ask for permission. He didn't say when he wanted to talk to him. I agreed as a professional courtesy," Weir said.

Illinois officials said they will attempt to keep Mackovic, who has also been considered a candidate at Arizona State.

"Absolutely. We want him to stay," Weir said. He said Illinois is in the process of upgrading Mackovic's package, which is worth $400,000, counting incentives.

Dodds said salary negotiations will not be a problem.

"We're going to be marketplace or better in terms of contract and packages," Dodds said.

"I do not worry about the salary and package size. What the committee said is, 'Don't let money be a factor, but we don't want to be grotesque.' If we lose somebody because of money, we probably should have bumped it up."

McWilliams' package was worth about $300,000, but Penders' package is worth up to $450,000 annually.

Dodds said Friday that Texas' next coach should have "a gut burn to win a national championship."

The Longhorns last won a national championship in 1969, when Darrell Royal was head coach.

The advisory committee that Dodds met with Friday included Royal, former Heisman Trophy running back Earl Campbell, school officials, players and influential alumni, Dodds said.

Lady Harvesters capture Hays City Shootout; Pampa boys advance to finals

Ryan, Seaton are all-tourney picks

HAYS, Kan. — The Pampa Lady Harvesters breezed by Manhattan, Kan., 58-34, Saturday night to win the Hays City Shootout.

Nikki Ryan and Kristen Becker paced Pampa in scoring with 18 points apiece. Amber Seaton chipped in 12.

Ryan was named the tournament's most inspirational player. Ryan and Seaton were both named to the all-tournament team.

The Pampa Harvesters advance to the finals of the Hays City Shootout with a 77-43 win over Colby, Kan. Friday night.

The Harvesters (7-0) played the Hays-Manhattan winner Saturday to determine the championship.

After leading 12-7 against Colby at the end of the first quarter, the Harvesters pulled away in the second quarter by scoring 10 unanswered points. Pampa led by nine (28-19) at halftime and by 21 (52-31) after three quarters.

Pampa senior center Jeff Young, who was averaging 17 ppg going into the contest, led all scorers with 23 points.

Matt Starkey led Colby with 13 points.

The Harvesters did suffer a cold spell, going almost four minutes into the second quarter without scoring and allowing Colby to take a 17-14 lead. However, at that point, Pampa went on its 10-point scoring spree to race away from Colby.

Randy Nichols contributed 15 points for the Harvesters while Cederick Wilbon followed with 12. Brent Skaggs, Dwight Nickelberry and Ryan Irwin had six points each and David Johnson, three for the Harvester team.

From the foul line, Pampa was eight of 11 while Colby was six of 15.

"I felt like we were a little sluggish, but both teams played awfully hard and we're pleased to be in the championship game. I thought we got a good performance from our bench," said PHS

Pampa opened the tournament Thursday with a 66-57 win over Kearney, Neb.

The Lady Harvesters defeated Colby, 72-34, Friday and Kearney, Neb. Thursday to reach the finals.

Last year, the Pampa boys won the title while the Pampa girls claimed the consolation trophy.

lowed by Deann Gray and Sara Powledge, 11 points each.

Major League baseball's free agents face midnight deadline

NEW YORK (AP) — It's a day of decision for 66 of baseball's free agents, who face a midnight EST deadline to re-sign with their former clubs if they aren't offered salary arbitration.

Players offered arbitration have until Dec. 19 to accept or reject the offers. If they refuse, the clubs have until Jan. 8 to sign them or lose negotiating rights until May 1.

If the players aren't offered arbitration, they can't negotiate with their former clubs after today.

Nine players were offered salary arbitration on Friday and Carney Lansford returned to Oakland, agreeing to a one-year, $600,000 contract. He can raise his salary to $1.3 million through performance bonuses in the new deal.

The nine offered arbitration Friday were Danny Tartabull, Jim Eisenreich and Kurt Stillwell of Kansas City; Danny Cox and Rick Schu of Philadelphia; Juan Samuel and Jay Howell of Los Angeles; Mike Gallego of Oakland and Rafael Ramirez of Houston.

Previously offered arbitration were Otis Nixon and Alejandro Pena of Atlanta; Steve Buechele and Mike LaValliere of Pittsburgh, and Mitch Williams of Philadelphia.

Among the group of 66 is Carlton Fisk (White Sox), and Rick Sutcliffe (Cubs).

Kentucky edges Indiana with long-range barrage

Indiana's Chris Reynolds (21) loses a rebound to Kentucky's Jamal Mashburn (right) in Saturday's basketball action.

Mashburn, Feldhaus pace Wildcat scoring

By STEVE HERMAN
AP Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Kentucky's threes were more than enough to offset Indiana's ones.

Jamal Mashburn scored 21 points and Deron Feldhaus added 19 Saturday as the No. 14-ranked Wildcats took command with a long-range assault, then held off the ninth-ranked Hoosiers' second-half rally for a 76-74 victory.

Indiana, which was outshot 11-0 on 3-pointers but outscored Kentucky 30-9 from the free-throw line, nearly made up a 10-point deficit in the final 4:30 at the Hoosier Dome. Greg Graham missed a 3-point attempt at the buzzer.

"You never know about the 3's," said Feldhaus, a 6-foot-7 senior who had five of Kentucky's 11 three-point field goals. He hit two in a row midway through the second half after Indiana used a 17-9 surge to turn a 44-38 deficit into a 55-53 lead.

"We've put up a lot of 3's this year. It's something we work on in practice, and some days they go in," Feldhaus said. "We were able to get the ball inside and then kick it back out for the 3's."

Kentucky was 11-for-23 on 3-point shots, more than offsetting Indiana's 21-point advantage from the free-throw line.

A basket by Mashburn, a 6-foot-8 sophomore, tied the game at 55-55 and a 3-pointer by Feldhaus put Kentucky (3-1) back into the lead. Indiana (2-2) tied the game for the final time on a basket and free throw by Eric Anderson, but another 3-pointer by Feldhaus, a three-point play by Mashburn and a 3-point shot by John Pelphrey pushed the Wildcats' lead to nine.

"What we had to do is play different levels of defense," Kentucky coach Rick Pitino said.

"We concentrated the whole game on not giving Indiana a 3. We felt if we could do that, even if we did foul too much, no matter what else they did if we could make our 3's, we'd have a chance to win."

Kentucky led 74-64 with 4:30 to go before a basket by Graham started a 10-2 spurt by the Hoosiers. Two free throws by Graham brought the Hoosiers within two points with under a minute left, but Graham missed from 3-point range as time ran out.

Indiana's advantage from the foul line — which included 13 free throws by Graham — was dissipated by the Hoosiers' problems from long range. They missed all five of their 3-point attempts and their leading scorer, Calbert Cheaney, was held to four points in the second half.

"They had us caught in a bind," Indiana coach Bob Knight said. "We really lack an inside game, basically, at both ends of the floor."

"What we were trying to do at the end is get Cheaney the ball, if we can, to try to get a 3-point play or to get a shot. We had a good shot and had a chance to win the game," Knight said.

"Under those circumstances, at the end, we really can't ask for any more than we got," he said.

Anderson led Indiana with 18 points, while Graham finished with 17 and Cheaney 16.

Sean Woods, who had Kentucky's only basket during Indiana's final comeback, added 12 points for the Wildcats.

The Wildcats, who've averaged almost 29 3-point shots a game this season, took their first five shots from long range but made only one as Indiana built a 9-3 lead.

Kentucky then started going inside, and a basket by Mashburn and two straight layups by Woods brought the Wildcats within one.

A 3-pointer by Mashburn put Kentucky ahead, and the Wildcats built the lead to 26-18 midway through the first half. Kentucky led 29-22 before a basket by Anderson and seven straight free throws gave the Hoosiers the lead again.

Kentucky responded with a 3-pointer by Junior Braddy as Mashburn was fouled by Indiana's Matt Nover. Mashburn hit both free throws, completing a 5-point play for a 34-31 Kentucky lead. The Wildcats stayed in front the rest of the half, and a pair of 3-pointers by Feldhaus in the final two minutes — including one just ahead of the buzzer — gave the Wildcats their 44-38 lead at halftime.

Texas downs North Texas to advance to championship game of Longhorn Classic

AUSTIN (AP) — Benford Williams led six players in double figures with 26 points Friday night as Texas defeated North Texas 124-107 without their leading scorer and rebounder, Dexter Cambridge, who has been ruled ineligible.

Texas (3-2) will play for the championship of the Longhorn Classic tournament Saturday against the winner of the San Diego State-Texas Southern game, which followed. North Texas (1-4) plays the loser for third place.

Texas, the host team, trailed 69-67 at halftime but had a 21-2 run in just under four minutes of the second half for a 94-77 lead and was not threatened.

With Cambridge — who has averaged 23.5 points — sitting on the sidelines in street clothes, Texas made up for his loss by spreading the offense.

Jesse Ratliff was high for North Texas with 26 points, and Pat Nash scored 20 but North Texas was only 5-of-21 on 3-pointers.

Earlier Friday, a federal judge at Waco refused to extend a restraining order that had kept Cambridge in uniform despite an NCAA ruling that he is ineligible.

The NCAA says Cambridge, a 6-7 senior, is ineligible because he received a $7,000 check in 1990 from a Lon Morris junior college fan after graduating from that school. The NCAA said the gift affects Cambridge's amateur status even though the University of Texas wasn't involved in the incident.

Although U.S. District Judge Walter Smith set a preliminary injunction hearing for Dec. 13 in Austin, his decision Friday means Cambridge also will miss Texas' tournament game Saturday.

SWC gives Dallas a chance to keep basketball tourney

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — The Southwest Conference is going to give the city of Dallas a chance to keep the league's post-season basketball tournament this March with Houston and San Antonio on standby alert if things don't work out.

Chuck Nagel, assistant commissioner for basketball operations, said Friday he will meet with city officials next week to hopefully develop corporate sponsorship for the tournament which has been held in Dallas since 1985.

"Dallas will be given a chance to keep the tournament but it has to produce," Nagel said.

The city will be given attendance criteria it has to meet to get the tournament against in 1993 or 1994.

"Dallas has one thing going for it, it has the tournament this year and can show what it can do," Nagel said. "If not, the tournament could be in San Antonio or Houston in two years."

Both of those cities have made bids for the tournament.

Nagel said only 5,000 tickets had been sold for the 16,000-seat Reunion Arena for the tournament this March. This will be the first year the SWC had held the tournament without Arkansas, which had a strong fan following. By this time last year, the basketball classic was all but sold out because of Razorback fans.

Arkansas is now in the Southeastern Conference. Its fans called Reunion Arena "Barnhill Scuth" because so many Razorback rooters filled the stands.

"We've only sold 5,000 tickets and that tells me people aren't rushing to the ticket booth," Nagel said. "This is the first year without Arkansas. Everybody has to get aggressive and see what happens. We'd like to see a lot of corporations buy packages. We'd like to work with the city and corporations."

Besides the matter of the post-season tournament, the SWC on Friday at its annual winter meeting reaffirmed its intentions to have some sort of a scheduling alliance with the Big Eight Conference.

Commissioner Fred Jacoby said he hoped the Big Eight and the SWC would schedule more basketball games with each other by next season and more football games by 1994.

The SWC granted the following hardship and medical cases which means the student athletes will be given an extra year of eligibility:

—Baylor, Aaron Richards, baseball, Arthur Smith, track.

—Rice, Claudia Haywood, track, Sonya Henry, track; Julie Jiskra, track, Corey Seymour, football.

—SMU, Brian Berry, Marcus Malonson, football.

—Texas, Dan Castro, cross country, Mike Davis, Van Malone, Rob Reed, Kevin Watler, football, Shane Foster, Doug Livingston, track.

—Texas Tech, Jeff Johnson, track.

Jacoby said the SWC meeting ended with "a sense of calm growth. Attendance is on the increase and our football television revenue increased from $4.5 million in 1990 to $8.48 million."

Braves' Nixon must sit out part of '92 baseball season

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Otis Nixon will miss the first 18 days of the 1992 season.

The free agent outfielder's attempt to shorten his drug suspension from 60 days to time served was turned down Friday by George Nicolau, baseball's permanent arbitrator.

Nixon, 32, was suspended by commissioner Fay Vincent on Sept. 16 after testing positive for cocaine. He was with the Atlanta Braves at the time and was leading the National League in stolen bases. He missed the final 21 days of the regular season, the NL playoffs and the World Series.

Nicolau issued an expedited decision at the request of the Major League Baseball Players Association. His one-sentence statement said: "The commissioner's action in suspending Otis Nixon for 60 days was for just cause."

Nicolau said he will issue a full opinion at a later date. Nicolau's only previous baseball drug case was on June 16, 1987, when he shortened pitcher LaMarr Hoyt's suspension from one year to 60 days.

Nixon hit .297 with no homers and 26 RBIs in 401 at-bats. He missed the final 21 days of the regular season, the NL playoffs and the World Series. Nixon could not be reached Friday at his home in Alpharetta, Ga.

He filed for free agency on Nov. 11 and on Thursday the Braves offered him salary arbitration. That means he may continue to negotiate with Atlanta through Jan. 8.

Nixon underwent rehabilitation in 1987 following a drug-related arrest in Buffalo, N.Y. Vincent says Nixon tested positively July 13, but that he was persuaded not to take action by the players association, which claimed the results were unclear.

Nixon, who had tested negatively more than 200 times between the 1987 arrest and July, tested positively for a second time on Sept. 7 and was suspended after the result was confirmed.

He filed the grievance on Nov. 12 after undergoing treatment under the care of Dr. G. Douglas Talbot, an Atlanta physician. The hearing began Nov. 17 and took five days. Among those testifying were Vincent, deputy commissioner Stephen Greenberg, Washington physician Dr. William Flynn, management lawyer Louis Melendez and players association lawyer Eugene Orza.

Fort Bend Dulles reaches Class 5A finals

Class 5A Division I semifinals.

Dulles (14-0) advanced to the state title game against the winner of Saturday's match between San Angelo Central and Killeen. Judson ended the year at 11-3.

Lefors drops two to Samnorwood

LEFORS — Lefors dropped a doubleheader to Samnorwood in high school basketball Friday night.

Samnorwood edged past Lefors, 42-39, in the girls' game.

"It was a pretty close game all the way, but we did have a 12-point lead at one time. We're getting into a habit of losing those close ones," said Lefors coach Carol Vincent.

Samnorwood led at the half, 17-15.

Martindale scored 23 points to lead Samnorwood in scoring.

Scoring for Lefors were Susie Davis with nine, Brandi Steele, eight; Misty Coleman, seven; Missy Wariner, six and Starla Gilbreath, six.

Samnorwood won the boys' game, 92-50.

Thompson was high scorer for Samnorwood with 24 points.

Andy Swires was the top scorer for Lefors with 18 points. Others scoring for the Pirates were Tommy Cox, nine; Shane Daniels, seven; Dennis Williams, six; Donny Hall, four and Aaron Gifford, four.

Lefors girls are now 2-4 for the season while the Lefors boys are 0-6.

Lefors is entered in the Samnorwood Tournament Dec. 12-14.

Army quarterback Myreon Williams (right) pushes off Navy defender Rodney Purifoy in first-quarter action Saturday.

Midshipmen sink Army to avert winless season

By MIKE OWEN
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Jason Van Matre passed for one touchdown and scored another Saturday as Navy averted a winless season with a 24-3 victory over Army on the 50th anniversary of Pearl Harbor.

Van Matre and freshman Jim Kubiak switched off at quarterback as the Midshipmen (1-10) kept the Cadets (4-7) off balance all day in their 92nd meeting.

Navy took the lead in the series 43-42-7 with the victory as Army finished its first losing season since the 1987 squad went 5-6.

The victory represented Navy's largest margin over Army since 1983, when the Middies won 42-13 at the Rose Bowl.

Army, which came into the game with a 304-yard rushing average, was held to 172 yards — 21 less than the Cadets' season low against Air Force. The Cadets could manage little offense after taking a 3-0 lead on Patmon Malcom's 39-yard field goal to cap a seven-minute opening possession.

While Army made it into Navy territory only one more time in the first half, and fumbled on that play, Navy put on the offensive pressure.

Kubiak put Navy in position for its first touchdown with a 44-yard pass to B.J. Mason down the left sideline at the end of the first quarter. Van Matre took over at quarterback and five plays later scored on a keeper from 3 yards out for a 7-3 lead.

The Middies' defense set up the next touchdown, forcing Army to punt from its end zone and taking over at the Army 25.

Navy used eight running plays to take it in, with Billy James scoring from the 5 on fourth-and-1 for a 14-3 halftime lead.

Navy went 68 yards in 14 plays in the fourth period for its final touchdown. Van Matre passed 12 yards to Kevin Mickman, who scored his first career touchdown 6:37 into the final period.

Tim Rogers closed the scoring with a 31-yard field goal with 4:43 remaining.

Chad Chatlos intercepted two passes as Army turned the ball over four times.

The victory was the first over Army for second-year Navy coach George Chaump. Army coach Bob Sutton is in his first year.

San Antonio Marshall advances to semifinals

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Anthony Holmes ran for 212 yards and scored two touchdowns and Carlos Reza added three scores Friday night, leading San Antonio Marshall to a 42-0 thrashing of San Antonio Madison in the Class 5A Division II quarterfinals.

The victory earned Marshall (12-2) the Region IV championship and a berth in next week's state semifinals against the winner of Saturday's Aldine-Fort Bend Wilowridge game.

Reza, who carried 20 times for 100 yards, scored the Rams' first touchdown on a 1-yard plunge with 5:46 remaining in the first quarter.

The Rams then raced to a 21-0 halftime lead, including Holmes' 8-yard scoring run and a 6-yard touchdown pass from Marc Saldana to Holmes.

Steelers hope to avoid Oilers' highlight film

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The worst part of Pittsburgh's dismal 1991 season would be making the Houston Oilers' highlight film.

"We don't want them to look back at their highlight film next year and see that they clinched (AFC Central Division title) against the Steelers at home," said cornerback Rod Woodson. "That would be in their highlight films forever."

The Steelers (5-8) enter the Astrodome today against the Oilers trying to dig out from a season gone sour. They've lost six of their last eight games, and coach Chuck Noll is embattled and may not return next season.

Houston (9-4) has been trying to wrap up their first division title ever for the past two weeks, but they lost to the Steelers 26-14 two weeks ago and on Monday night Philadelphia beat them 13-6.

The Steelers are out to play spoiler. "We're playing for pride, dignity and respect because we didn't play well this year," Woodson said. "We've got three games left and no reason to hold back. We'll not going to the playoffs so we have a long time to recover."

Woodson has friends on the Oilers' squad, especially wide receiver Haywood Jeffires, the leading receiver in the NFL.

"I see some of those guys in the off-season and if they go to the Super Bowl, I want to be able to tell them at least we beat you twice," Woodson said.

Noll has not mentioned his job predicament to his players.

"You have to know Chuck," Woodson said. "He doesn't talk about that. The only thing that's discussed in our meetings are positives."

"We don't want them to look back at their highlight film next year and see that they clinched against the Steelers at home."

— Steelers' cornerback Ron Woodson

The Steelers rank 19th in the NFL in total offense and 21st in total defense. Their No. 25-rated pass defense will be going against the league's No. 1 passing attack.

But it was good enough two weeks ago to intercept Moon a career high five times en route to their upset victory.

Beating the Oilers in the Astrodome, where they have won nine of their last 10 games, will be more difficult.

"We're probably catching them at a bad time," Woodson said. "They've lost two games and they'll be very fired up. Warren hasn't played well in the last two games and I've never seen Warren play three bad games in a row. It'll be a challenge to go out and play them well."

The Oilers lost five fumbles against the Eagles and Moon was sacked four times. It was the first time in 32 games the Oilers failed to score a touchdown, dating back to Nov. 26, 1989, in a 34-0 loss to Kansas City.

"The second time you play someone is always the toughest regardless of whether it's far apart or close together," Noll said. "Its just one of those things you have to do."

The Steelers last played on Thanksgiving Day in a 20-10 loss to Dallas.

"Hopefully we'll be fresh," Noll said. "That could be a plus but it depends on if you lose your concentration or keep it."

Noll said his job status had not been a distraction.

"That's part of the territory," Noll said. "If you win you get the hurrahs, if you don't win, you get this. That's the way it is. You have to accept this or this is not the business to be in."

The only discussions about his job have been in the media, Noll said.

"The people of the press touch on it because it's a story for you but it doesn't enter into our preparation," he said. "It affects the focus a little bit and we try to get by that by not talking about it."

Cowboys' Irvin: Desire makes up for slow feet

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) — Michael Irvin, admittedly, didn't get it all from the receiving gods.

The NFC's leading receiver admits he is somewhat slow-footed.

"That's the way the gods work," Irvin said. "They give everybody a little something. He doesn't give everybody speed, hands, size and heart. Of the four, I'll take heart. You can work on everything else but you've got to have the desire."

Irvin currently leads the NFL in receiving yards with 1,161 and he's ranked No. 1 in the NFC in receptions with 73.

On Sunday, he'll be going against the second toughest defense in the NFL, the New Orleans Saints.

"They're tough," he said. "That's why I have to be tough."

Irvin has been hot in the last two weeks, catching 17 passes for 287 yards and two touchdowns against Washington and Pittsburgh. He caught nine passes against Washington's All-Pro cornerback, Darrell Green.

Irvin is on pace to catch 89 passes for 1,428 yards. He needs just four catches to break Herschel Walker's single-season reception record of 76. If Irvin gets 72 receiving yards this week against New Orleans, he will break Bob Hayes' single-season yardage mark of 1,232 in the same number of games (14) that Hayes set the mark in 1966.

"It's incredible to think I might break his club record," Irvin said.

Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson, who had Irvin at the University of Miami, said Irvin looks better than he has ever seen him.

"He worked hard in training camp and now it's paying off," Johnson said. "He's doing it all."

Irvin said a combination of work ethic and the new offensive by Norv Turner has given him new life.

"The offense is perfect for me," Irvin said. "You get a chance to catch the ball on the run. We're still adapting to the new offense. I think we can get even better."

Irvin still won't call it his offense.

"This is Emmitt Smith's offense," Irvin said. "He's the man they have to stop."

But when they concentrate on him that's when I get into the offense. It's been wonderful."

Judge refuses to allow rape expert's testimony

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The prosecution rested its case against William Kennedy Smith on Saturday and the defense got underway after the judge barred the testimony of a rape expert because his appearance might prevent the trial from ending by Christmas.

"The court finds the addition of a witness such as this would have a devastating affect on the schedule of this trial," said Circuit Judge Mary Lupo.

"The court set this trial schedule early on," said Ms. Lupo. She said both sides have pressed for an early resolution.

She said the prosecution could ask again to present psychologist Dean Kilpatrick as a rebuttal witness later on if the defense calls its own experts.

The defense had said if Kilpatrick was allowed to testify, they would have required a recess of several days to prepare for his testimony. They said prosecutor Moira Lasch disclosed his name too late for them to do their investigation.

Mrs. Lasch responded that Kilpatrick was brought in at the last minute because so many of the experts they approached had already been hired by the defense.

The judge rejected a claim that Mrs. Lasch made "any willful attempt to snooker or mislead the defense," and said the defense should have anticipated testimony about date rape.

"The testimony of this witness, should it be admitted, might have a substantial impact on the jury," the judge said.

"This case has been an allegation of date rape from the beginning," she said. "What has to be addressed is the issue of consent. It would be clear to any layperson that the credibility of the two people would be the issue."

But Ms. Lupo said she could not sacrifice the trial schedule at this point.

The prosecution then rested and defense attorney Roy Black moved for a judgment of acquittal, which was denied.

The defense's first witness was Tony Liott, a bartender friend of the accuser who said she slipped away from her friends and met him before she went on to the nightclub where she met Smith, Au Bar. She has testified she had no memory of the incident.

Under cross-examination, Liott said he and the woman were "just friends" and described her as "kind of on the shy side." He said she didn't drink anything during their meeting and left saying she was going to Au Bar.

The defense then called architect Charles Sieger, who testified the Kennedy house was "fairly loud" and sound could be heard from the beach when he was there. The defense argues that if the woman had really screamed as she said, someone inside the house would have heard it.

But Sieger acknowledged under cross-examination that he did no sound tests, is not an acoustical expert, could not understand what the people on the beach he said he heard were saying, and did not research the history of the famous mansion or its architect.

"You are not aware that this was known as the Winter White House of the Kennedys?" asked Mrs. Lasch.

"I was fairly young in the '60s," said the 45-year-old witness, who was paid $6,000 for his expertise. "I didn't pay attention."

Smith's uncle, Massachusetts Sen. Edward Kennedy, and his son, Rhode Island legislator Patrick Kennedy, testified Friday they didn't hear screams. Their accounts of the Easter Weekend outing to a nightclub when Smith met the woman were sharply at odds with the timetables given by other witnesses.

Smith, 31, is charged with sexual battery and battery on the 30-year-old Florida woman who testified tearfully earlier in the week that he lured her to the Kennedy estate and raped her under the full moon as she screamed for help.

During the unusual Saturday session, Mrs. Lasch wound up her case by calling a plant expert, a doctor and a police sergeant who investigated the Smith case.

Dr. Barry Lotman, an orthopedic surgeon who examined Smith's accuser a week after she alleges she was raped, said she had pain or tenderness in her shoulders, rib cage, hip and pubic bone. He said she told him the pain had worsened during the days after the incident as shock set in.

He said the woman told him she'd been raped and "At the end of the visit the patient asked me questions about the possibility of (contracting) AIDS," Lotman said. The woman later tested negative for AIDS.

Defense attorney Mark Seiden suggested the woman has made similar health complaints ever since she suffered a broken neck in a car accident at 14. Lotman acknowledged he had had treated the woman for her continuing orthopedic problems even before the alleged rape.

He answered "yes" to a series of questions about how she might have resisted an attacker.

"Could she kick?" Seiden asked. "Could she bite? Could she scratch? Could she scrape? Could she punch? Could she use her knee in someone's groin? Could she scream? She could run?"

Seiden also asked whether some patients fake pain for the purpose of lawsuits. "It is possible to fake pain," Lotman replied.

The plant expert said he analyzed bits of plant material found in the woman's underwear and said it matched the common type of Bermuda grass on the lawn of the Kennedy estate where she says she was raped. The defense elicited his statement that the grass was "aggressive" enough to grow on the sandy beach where his lawyers claim Smith and the woman engaged in consensual foreplay.

U.S. Declares War on Japan

Pampans Stunned by Japs' 'Dirty Attack'

Late News

TOYKO (Official radio picked up by AP) — The Japanese asserted today they had won naval supremacy over the United States in the Pacific, claiming by official or unofficial reports the destruction of two American battleships and an aircraft carrier and the damaging of six cruisers.

I saw ... Sheriff Cal Rose and he urged all oil companies, refineries and those in charge of petroleum industries "to continue to guard their properties as they have in the past."

President Predicts 'Absolute Victory'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8, 1941 (AP) - Congress voted a formal declaration of war against Japan today after President Roosevelt requested immediate action as an answer to Japan's "unprovoked and dastardly attack" on Hawaii. A united Congress acted swiftly after the President had revealed that American forces lost two warships and 3,000 dead and wounded in the surprise dawn attack yesterday.

Raymond Reid points to the officers' insignia on the bronzed pilot's cap he saved from his World War II days. Reid was assigned to Wheeler Field at Pearl Harbor when the air raid occurred.

Clinton Lewis displays a reproduction of one of three extra editions of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin printed Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941. Lewis was stationed at Schofield Barracks, a few blocks from Wheeler Field, when the Japanese attacked.

Survivors recall surprise attack

Raymond Reid

Fifty years ago Pampans Raymond Reid was totally involved in the Japanese air raid on Pearl Harbor. He has no plans to return.

"That's one monument I have no desire to see," said Reid, speaking in a recent interview of Pearl Harbor and the USS Arizona Memorial which was built in 1961 beside the sunken battleship.

"In another 20 years there won't be any of us (Pearl Harbor attack survivors) left," said Reid, an oil company vice president. "It'll be something that will vaporize. It won't be news 10 or 20 years from now or sooner."

Born in 1919 and raised in West Virginia, Reid worked three years in Kingsport, Tenn., as a welder after finishing school. He joined the Army Air Corps on Oct. 17, 1939.

"Jobs were kind of scarce. I always wanted to fly an airplane. I thought that would be a good way to do it."

Reid was "probably in the States for a month before he went to Pearl Harbor." His job in the military involved welding airplane parts and he took classes at night to achieve the required education to "get his wings," which he later earned.

"We heard these planes (and) we didn't think anything about it," he said of the historic morning. "We heard booms ... one of the hangars got hit, and we blew out of the mess hall as soon as they started strafing."

Reid said Japanese aircraft destroyed the flight line and destroyed most of the U.S. fighter planes on Wheeler Field where he was stationed.

"The planes were parked wing tip to wing tip. When one caught fire, all caught fire. It was the bombs that got us moving. The first thing we thought was ... to find cover. They hit quite a few (men), but I'm not sure how many were killed. After the first wave, we realized we'd need guns."

Reid said the armory sergeant initially wouldn't issue weapons without an order; however, the immediacy was soon realized and "we started setting up machine guns."

"I don't believe that first attack lasted 30 minutes. They made two or three passes over the field (and) we weren't looking at our watches."

"Then there was a lull. They did all the damage they could do on that first go-round. I saw one kid was hit in the leg. When he fell down, I went back and pushed him into some cover. He was headed that way and I helped him a little bit," he said with modesty.

Asked if he knew war had begun, Reid said, "I doubt it. There was so much confusion. I think the next day we realized it was war."

Reid remained in the Army Air Corps five years and six months and flew 70 combat missions, including the Anzio beach head campaign.

"I think about it (the attack) quite often. The futility of something like that happening ... being caught by surprise like that. I still don't have good feelings toward the Japanese."

"It was an exciting period of time for a young man," said Reid of his World War II experiences. "I can say that because I wasn't hurt and didn't see a lot of dead bodies."

"I wouldn't want to go through it again (and) I wouldn't want anyone to have to experience it. The people affected most are those who have lost husbands, fathers and sons. And they certainly won't forget it."

The owner of a Distinguished Flying Cross and other military medals and ribbons said, "The only time I saw my mother cry was when I was going overseas the second time."

It truly is a day which will live in infamy

The Japanese attack on American military forces at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, was the result of rising tensions between the United States and Japan.

For more than 10 years, relations between the two nations had deteriorated. Although negotiations between the two looked toward a reconciliation, by late fall of 1941 it became clear that no agreement was possible.

American military commanders at Pearl Harbor were warned - especially in mid-October and late November of 1941 - of the possibility of war. Navy Adm. Husband E. Kimmel was made aware of the gravity of the situation and was advised to take any action he deemed necessary. Army Lt. Gen. Walter C. Short also received the same orders. As history unfolded, it became apparent warnings and subsequent actions by the Army and Navy were inadequate for the coming attack.

At 7:55 a.m., on Dec. 7, 1941, the first Japanese aircraft carrier-based dive bomber was witnessed violating Pearl Harbor air space. Included in the first wave of the aerial onslaught were nearly 200 enemy aircraft, including bombers, fighters and planes carrying torpedoes. U.S. airfields, within 15 minutes, were under savage attack. Of the 126 planes parked on the ground at Wheeler Field, 42 were completely destroyed, 41 were damaged and 43 were available for use.

On the first assault, only six American aircraft were able to take off to combat the Japanese force. Japanese forces also mounted an aerial assault against Kimmel's fleet moored at the base. The U.S.S. Arizona, the U.S.S. West Virginia, U.S.S. Oklahoma and U.S.S. Utah were demolished.

The second wave of the air raid began at 8:50 a.m. During this phase of the battle, the U.S.S. Nevada, U.S.S. Shaw and U.S.S. Pennsylvania and two Navy destroyers fell victim to the fierce attack. The Japanese forces withdrew shortly after 9 a.m.

A reported 3,000 sailors were killed or injured as a result of the Japanese military strikes and it is estimated approximately 2,000 were fatalities. Army casualties numbered about 600, with 200 listed as fatalities. Japanese casualties numbered about 100 men. Other losses included 29 planes and five midget submarines.

In honor of the 50th anniversary of the day which will live in infamy, The Pampa News offers perspectives from three men who hold vested interest in the attack on Pearl Harbor.

County veterans' agent strives to keep alive memory of survivors

"I sincerely hope the attack on Pearl Harbor will never be forgotten," said Gray County Veteran's Service Officer John Triplehorn.

"As long as rednecks like me are around, it won't be!"

"The 50th anniversary of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, I hope, will be a very important date," said Triplehorn in a recent interview.

He said it is "the 50th anniversary of what was probably the most treacherous back stabbing one country has ever done to another ... at least that I'm aware of."

Admitting it's a subject he readily addresses from his "soap box," Triplehorn said, "The Japanese haven't changed a bit. They're stabbing us in the back every chance they get. They'll come into our country, buy businesses and sell us cheap products. But we don't get to go into their country (in the same manner) at all."

"So I hope the American people will let this 50th anniversary remind them that the Japanese haven't changed a bit. They've just changed their tactics."

He explained the Japanese are utilizing business and governmental ploys as weapons instead of "guns and bullets."

"It's my understanding the Japs haven't even paid their pledged amount for this deal in Kuwait yet. And if that is in fact the truth, that's just typical of them. You can't trust them. They're not to be trusted at all."

"They're very self serving and they have a very high opinion of themselves even though we kicked their brains out and should probably do it again."

"These are the men, for the most part, who walked through the gates of hell, looked Lucifer right square in the eye, spit in his eye, turned around, came home and went back to work. (They) never asked for anything for the most part. It's the attitude of most of the veterans who don't want to take anything from the government ... who don't expect anything from the government; especially the Korean War and World War II veterans."

"They have been pillars of the community from day one, whether it was serving in the military (or) whether it was coming out (of the armed forces) and going to work. They have been the foundation that brought this country ... to a position of world dominance."

"These are men that I am extremely impressed with. Your veteran community, for the most part, is absolutely the creme de la creme of your community. These are people who put their lives on the line, whether it was a popular or unpopular war."

"They went to war, they came home, they didn't expect a whole lot from the government. They got married, got jobs, started paying taxes and want to put all that behind them. You can't ask for very much more from anybody than to go lay your life on the line and then come back and go to work."

Triplehorn said, "I beat the drum pretty regular and I don't mind if people get tired of it. But I would like to see the community always remembering the vets."

Clinton Lewis

"It was chaos. Nobody knew what was happening. No one knew what to do."

These are the carefully chosen words Pampans Clinton Lewis used in a recent interview to describe the morning he endured while the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor.

Today, Lewis' life is somewhat quieter and much more predictable. He is semi-retired from the law enforcement and private investigation field and stays "pretty active with the Veterans of Foreign Wars."

Born on Aug. 3, 1918, in Ryan, Okla., Lewis moved to Dallas in 1936 and enlisted in the Army Sept. 9, 1939. He was first discharged in 1945, later re-upped and was assigned to the occupation of Japan.

Lewis left the military in 1953 on medical disability after 13 years and eight months service and had achieved the rank of warrant officer. He then worked for 20 years with the El Paso County and Dallas County Sheriff's Office.

Remembering and relating his experiences at Pearl Harbor often proves trying for the World War II veteran.

In December 1941, Lewis was assigned as a desk sergeant at Schofield Barracks, a few blocks from Wheeler Field.

"Japan had a spy there," said Lewis. "They had it all targeted. They planned to hit all of our installations simultaneously. That's my opinion."

"Dec. 7 would have been our last day of restriction. We would have gotten passes to go to town," he said, explaining that as a military policeman, MPs were restricted to base for seven days after military pay day.

"I was standing in chow line (and) I heard the bombs falling on Wheeler Field. They strafed us, came back for a second bombing run and strafed us again."

"We hit the dirt and everything else we could hit."

Lewis said he and another soldier took over the desk 24 hours a day for three days following the air raid.

"Naturally, after Dec. 7, I had a certain feeling of - I won't say it was hatred - but I was against the Japanese." He admitted to feelings of "animosity."

Lewis said he didn't know how he would react upon his return to Japan from August 1947 to November 1951, as part of the occupation forces.

"Going back tempered my feelings. I felt sorry for the people," he said, explaining it was the result of seeing the state of the Japanese economy and poor living conditions.

"It wasn't their fault. It was the fault of their officers, their leaders. They were victims of their leaders much like we were."

Concerning his feelings toward the Japanese today, Lewis said, "I don't know. I guess you could describe my feelings as ... bewildering. I don't know what to think. As I said before, when I saw their economy and poor living conditions, I felt sorry."

"Now I don't know what to think."

Asked if he thought Pearl Harbor and its survivors would in the future be forgotten, Lewis said, "It's a possibility. I've asked young people today (and) they don't want to talk about it. I think we have failed to teach our children the critical importance of serving our country ... the importance of freedom, and how freedom is acquired. We can't allow them to forget the lesson."

Lewis said this weekend he will offer "a prayer for my life (and) for those who have gone on. It'll be a day of deep thought, of sober thoughts for me."

How do silkworms make silk?

3-2-1 CONTACT Magazine

A silkworm isn't really a worm. It's a caterpillar. It spins silk to make its cocoon. Its cocoon is made of a single unbroken thread of silk more than one mile long!

The silkworm's secret lies in two glands in its lower jaw. These glands make a liquid that hardens as soon as it hits the air. They also make sticky stuff that "glues" both glands' threads together. These threads are silk.

In the wild, a silkworm turns into a fat, tan moth in about three weeks. But only a few cocoons are allowed to hatch on a silk farm. The rest are turned into silk for clothing.

Vineta Chambers with some of her paintings.

Chambers to display work at White Deer Land Museum

White Deer Land Museum, 116 S. Cuyler, is displaying the art work of Pampan, Vineta Chambers, 1:30 - 4 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 10 through Friday, Dec. 13.

Chambers, who recently returned to Pampa from California, is known for oil paintings in western themes and Texas scenes. She has painted oil portraits, including that of the late sheriff, Rufe Jordan, which hangs in the corridor of the Gray County Courthouse.

Shortly before leaving California, a cowboy portrait won a prize in the Central California Art League Fall Show. In that same period she became known for bridal portraits. She is fascinated with the faces of small children and they comprise part of her work, also.

Chambers believes that artists must continue to learn and as a result, has moved into watercolors in the last few years.

She continues to pursue her love of western themes in current work. Chambers operates Vineta's Painting Place in the Pampa Mall.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

To be or not be gay is not a matter of prayer

DEAR ABBY: My nephew — I'll call him Neil — is gay. He came out of the closet to his family a few weeks ago on his 20th birthday. You would never suspect that Neil was gay by looking at him or talking to him, but when his brothers were outside playing baseball, Neil would be in the house drawing pictures of flowers.

Neil's father says that Neil is gay because all the time his mother was pregnant with him she kept praying for a little girl. (She already had four boys and no girls.) Abby, can praying for a little girl have anything to do with having a gay boy?

NEIL'S AUNT

DEAR AUNT: According to Dr. Judd Marmor, eminent psychoanalyst and past president of the American Psychiatric Association, there is no scientific evidence that supports the theory that a boy could become homosexual because his mother, while pregnant, prayed for a little girl.

It is more likely, however, that Neil was born with a predisposition toward becoming gay, and his mother's strong wish for a girl contributed to his preference for doing "little girl" activities rather than "little boy" activities during his childhood years.

Thus, Neil's ultimately becoming gay was a combination of nature and nurture.

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to the letter from the woman whose mother had a painful lump in her breast.

I, too, had a painful lump in my breast for 2 1/2 years. The lump did not show up on my yearly mammograms, and the doctor said, "Don't worry about it — it's just a 'mass' — if it were cancer, it wouldn't hurt." Well, it became painful to the point where I couldn't even lie on my left side. My doctor then did a needle biopsy, which was not accurate because the needle happened to hit a spot where there were no cancer cells present.

Finally, I was in so much pain, I insisted that the lump be removed. It WAS cancer! I was very fortunate, as it was a slow-growing cancer, and I was able to have a lumpectomy followed by six weeks of radiation treatments, which saved my life.

Don't listen to doctors. Cancer DOES hurt.

DAR BARBAR, COSTA MESA, CALIF.

DEAR DAR: Thank you for sharing your experience. However, I wouldn't advise women not to listen to doctors; I would say, "Get a second opinion, and a third opinion — and if you are still in doubt, get a fourth opinion."

Some "masses" (or lumps) are painful — some are not. The most competent doctors follow this rule: "If it doesn't belong there — it should come out."

CONFIDENTIAL TO 'JUST ME' IN HEMET, CALIF.: Don't put yourself down. You sound like a very worthwhile person to me. In the words of Ralph Waldo Emerson: "The only gift is a portion of thyself." You don't have to spend money to give something of value.

Most teen-agers do not know the facts about drugs, AIDS, and how to prevent unwanted pregnancy. It's all in Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

"We Understand Fashion & You"

In Pampa, 'Thanksgiving' and 'visiting' mean one and the same thing

Guests by the dozens came to Pampa during the Thanksgiving weekend. Pampanos went visiting, too.

Fonz Vigil's mother arranged for tickets for Fonz, Nancy and children, Paula, Valerie and Desiree, to appear on the Bozo Show in Chicago during the holidays. The children appeared on Wednesday's program as family and friends watched.

Norma Jean and Frank Slagle made their annual Thanksgiving trek to Honey Grove to be with Frank's four brothers, one sister, spouses and grandchildren. The gathering point is the old Slagle farm place which has been in the family over 100 years. Rain fell and teeth chattered, but the boys put a new roof on the house in spite of it all. On the way home, Frank and Norma visited son Roger Baggerman and his family in Rowlett.

Priscilla Alexander Norris met her husband Jerry in Lubbock and together they spent the weekend in Louise with Jerry's family.

Shirley and Don Stafford, Mary and Bob Caddell enjoyed having family members for several days. Shirley and Don's daughter and family, Donna, Jimmy and Marcie and Christopher came from Friendswood. The girls' sisters and husbands Verlene and Leroy England came from Broken Arrow and Carrie and Bill Chandler from Tulsa. Jackie, Daryl and Zachary Hood joined them for the big turkey dinner. The girls' nephew Eddie and Korie Brown enjoyed having Korie's parents here from Lake Tahoe. Michelle and Melissa managed to keep the grand parents busy. The Browns had no trouble in becoming instant Pampanos when they moved here last June.

Gracie Cantrell nearly had a family reunion last week. She and her sister Ethel Davis, 84, of Montie Vista, Colo., and Gracie's daughter Dana and Fred Epperly took off a day to visit Gracie's sister Opal Daniels, 85, in Lubbock.

Gloria and Harold Pitts, longtime Pampanos, came from Oklahoma, and their daughter Gerece and friend Jason Hanus from Dallas.

Visiting Jim and Joyce Cantrell were Lee Ann and Dale Ammons, Lindsey and Leslie from Abilene. They also visited Dale's parents Tom and Ernestine Ammons. Randy and Norma Cantrell and Laura came from Belen, N.M. Somehow the two or three groups managed to be together at times. Gracie and Fred had a lot to do with putting the Thanksgiving dinner together. On Saturday, 15 of the group went to the Coney Island for their ritual lunch early enough for Gracie to get back home in time to listen to the Harvester football game. Gracie knows how to pick the winning team, huh?

Tammy and John Hursey came from Atlanta, Ga., to visit Tammy's parents Rena and Robert Johnson, her grandparents, Guy and Nettie Folley of Canadian and Lowell and Dowlett Johnson of Texhoma.

Debbie and Grant Johnson and little Maggie came from Dallas to visit Pat and Bob Johnson.

Joyce and L.G. Clifton hosted a pre-Thanksgiving farewell party for Hildred and Gil Bates, who retired a few days ago from Baker Tool Co. They purchased a lake front home in Athens to be closer to their grandchild and daughters in the Dallas area. Gil plans to fish to his heart's content. Hildred, who is artsy-craftsy, opened a craft shop named Hildred's House. Others attending were Rev. Gene and Jean Allen, Wallace and Dorene Bruce, Jim and Marietta Baird, Chuck and Pat Ritthaler, Jean Smith, Bob and Wanda Tigrett. They received a five-arm candleabra as a going away gift. Both have been active in Briarwood Full Gospel Church with special emphasis on youth work. While they will be missed, the good wishes of the many friends go with them.

Alfred "Nick" and Fran Nichols had a houseful for Thanksgiving. The list included Martha and Mark Nuttall, students at UT-Arlington, Nick's sister and husband, Doris and Jay Dillon, his brother, Luther "Nick" and Delena Nichols, all of Wichita Falls. Plus their mother Clotene Keller and Ruth Nichols of Pampa.

Chuck and Lori Albus barely arrived back home in time for Thanksgiving after emergency trips to Rhineland and Albuquerque. Chuck has his own recipe or method of smoking ham to go with the turkey. Daughter, Leslie Whitten, made eight pies, all eaten by the 30 dinner guests. Susan Albus came from Milipita, Calif., Nick, Sharon, Jeff, Lisa and Matt Albus from Trinity.

Chuck, a Hoechst-Celanese retiree, met with Shauna Allen of the human resource department of HC, and Reed Kirkpatrick, director of Pampa Parks Department, regarding the adoption of Hobart Street Park beginning Jan. 1, by 100 retirees, and a number of HC employees. Jerry Moore, plant manger, signed the agreement. HC will help fund improvements suggested by the City of Pampa. Joining in the program in December and part of February will be Boy Scout Troop 404.

On Tuesday children, in-laws and grandchildren from Groom, White Deer and Pampa visited Adela Bichsel at St. Anne's Nursing Home in Panhandle to celebrate her 90th birthday. Although she is unable to speak, Adela was alert and happy to see everyone. Ten of her 11 children, nine of whom are living, were born in White Deer and Pampa.

Lori Urbanczyk, daughter of Tommy and Loretta of Hereford, used her great-aunt Adela's recipe of more than 50 years for sour cream twists to win second place in Deaf Smith and district 4-H club work.

Winnie and Loyd Sweatt had their sons and families with them. Lexi, 4, Adam, 6, Greg and Cindy came from Denver. Shana, 7, Amy, 7, and parents Mike and Rosie came from Bryan.

The Lefors community has enjoyed seeing the name of Dr. James Richard Maples in the news lately as president-elect of the Baptist General Convention of Texas. Friends and classmates knew him as Dickie Maples. The community congratulates him and wishes him well.

Peeking at Pampa By Katie

Recent guests in the homes of Ginger and Bill Sims, Ruth and Howard Sims, Norma and Lucile Lantz were J.A. and Bette Jackson of Sonora, Calif.

Ell Hesse was happy to spend Thanksgiving Day with her daughter Mary Harlan in White Deer.

Leola and Marvin Moxon bring special holiday cheer to appreciative friends each Thanksgiving and Christmas. Leola scans the phone directory and contacts friends who might spend the holiday alone. This year she included 15 to 20 families. At meal time she sends family members on the road to deliver generously filled plates to the awaiting friends.

Another angel of mercy in Lefors is Geneva Lisenbee, an expert cook who shares goodies from her kitchen all year long. Returning ex-students ask for and receive some of the homemade hot rolls she is famous for. Cap, her grandson, did delivery honors on Thanksgiving Day. Remember the hundreds of cookies and several cakes she made for the school reunion?

Evonne, Paul, Carolyn and Kenny Barnett spent the holidays in and around Stillwater, Okla., where they have family members.

Ladies of the Lefors First United Methodist Church held a bake sale, garage sale and craft show in the basement of their historical church just in time for Thanksgiving. The cashier, Virginia Archer, dashed home at lunchtime to make a German chocolate cake requested by a customer.

Bill and Katrina Hildebrandt had Bill's parents, Al and Neil Hildebrandt, as well as his grandmother, Nellie Mohle, all from Houston, as out-of-town guests over the Thanksgiving holidays. Bill, Katrina and son Jon returned from Houston where they attended Nellie's 90th birthday celebration. Unfortunately, Nellie fell here the day after Thanksgiving and broke her left hip and wrist, and will be staying at Coronado Hospital for the next few weeks while recovering. She is delighted with her physician, the staff and all the community's concern and friendliness. She gets frequent visits from Rev. John Judson and new friend Harold Haynes, who helped transport her by ambulance to the hospital. Even with our cold winds, Nellie says Pampa is a "very, very warm town." See you next week, Katie.

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers

WASHINGTON --A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "hi-tech" food tablet would help erase world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.

Although other studies and scientists may not agree, researchers in Europe found that the ingredient, a natural plant colloid, actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to one study published in the prestigious British Journal of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calories.

While the project of National Dietary Research, aptly named Food Source One, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the formula which has since been improved with other natural colloids has been a windfall for some overweight people. A Daytona Beach, Florida woman fighting a weight battle for 12 years used the product on the recommendation of her physician and lost 30 pounds. She stated, "Not only have I lost 30 pounds but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two closets full of clothes which have not fit me in two years that I can now wear." In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in 3 weeks on the product and was never hungry.

Food Source One tablets are part of National Dietary Research's comprehensive plan to bring a rapid end to obesity in this country. A variety of nutritionally sound diet plans, specially prepared by NDR, accompany each bottle and provide a natural, drug free alternative for confronting the problem of obesity.

4-H LIVESTOCK FEEDERS
Stock Show time is fast approaching!

You should have received a letter and entry cards for the Top O' Texas Stock Show recently. If you did not receive the letter, dated Nov. 27, please give us a call or come by the Extension Office immediately.

Project record forms (4-H 3.030) were enclosed with that correspondence. These forms need to be completed and turned in to the Extension Office after the shows are over and before you get your checks if you sell your animal(s) through the scale. Completed project record forms earn you a 4-H year pin and the satisfaction of having successfully completed a 4-H project.

Also enclosed were entry cards for the Top O' Texas Livestock Show. You need a separate card for each animal you enter in the show. The entry fees are: steers - $15.00; lambs and barrows - $10.00, and rabbits - $3.00, and no more than two animals can be entered. The deadline for having these cards and fees returned to County Extension Office is December 18. An entry in the Top O' Texas Show (January 17-18) automatically enters you in the Gray County Show (January 16). We prefer entry fees be paid by check made payable to Gray County 4-H. The cards must be legible so they can be read.

On the entry cards "Breed" will be checked at weigh-in - if you already know the breed, you can complete. The "Disposition" of the animal refers to whether you wish to take the animal back home after the show or whether you want to sell the animal. If you place in the Top 30% of your class in the Top O' Texas or top 80% in the Gray County Show, you can sell that animal in the premium auction sale on Saturday afternoon, Jan. 18. Even though the animal places high enough to make the premium sale, you can take him home after the sale and you would circle "take home" at weigh-in time in January. By marking "Floor", you tell us to sell your animal for you, regardless of whether he makes the premium sale.

For rabbit exhibitors, Henry Dawes has your entry cards and will assist you in completing those.

4-H members have the opportunity to show their animals once locally before the County Show. McLean area youth (members of McLean FFA or 4-Clover 4-H Club) may exhibit at the McLean Show probably on January 11. All other 4-H members can exhibit at the Pampa 4-H Showmanship Show, to be held the early evening of January 15 at 5:00 p.m.

ANIMAL CARE & MANAGEMENT

Try to get your lambs, pigs or steers weighed every 3 to 4 weeks now. If you have some heavy pigs, they may need weighing more often like every 2 weeks. If you have questions about how much to feed for rate of gain and amount of finish (fat) on your animal, give Joe a call.

4-H SHOOTING SPORTS ADVISORY CONFERENCE

The 1992 Annual 4-H Shooting Sports Advisory Conference is scheduled for Saturday, January 11, in the Memorial Student Center on the Texas A&M University Campus. All shooting sports leaders are welcome to attend.

I know this is a long distance for any to attend. If you are interested, however, contact Joe for additional details.

PISTOL AND RIFLE CLASS COACHES' SCHOOL

On February 1 and 2, there will be Class C schools for both rifle and pistol coaches at the Texas 4-H Center in Brownwood. The registration fee for either school is $65, with NRA materials and application fees totaling $45 and a $20 sponsorship fee to cover the expenses of workshop instructors. Room and board for persons electing to stay in the Leadership Lodge is $58.50 per person. For those electing to stay in the dorms, the cost is $40.50 (this covers 3 meals on Saturday and 2 on Sunday).

Early application is encouraged if more apply than can be accommodated. Additional information and registration application is available in the County Extension Office.

Southside Senior Citizens Center joins fundraising effort of Thunder Junction

Southside Senior Citizens' Center of Pampa is joining in a fund raising effort with Thunder Junction, a proposed theme park near Clarendon.

The center will handle sales of the special minted, one-ounce coins here and will receive 10% of the funds it collects.

Other proceeds will go to support the operations of Yesterday's Children and to develop architectural, engineering and design plans for Thunder Junction. Plans are underway to build the park at Greenbelt Lake north of Clarendon.

The .999% silver coins, feature the logos of Yesterday's Children on one side and Thunder Junction on the other.

"It's an outstanding design - should be a winner!" said Edward C. Rochette of Colorado Springs, former chief executive officer of the American Numismatic Association and author of the nationally syndicated column "Coin Roundup", who will serve as contractor for the coin.

Area residents interested in ordering the coins may call the Southside Senior Center's office at 665-4765 starting today.

Purchasers or owners of the first 5,000 commemorative coins sold will be entitled to one day's free admission to Thunder Junction every year after the park is built, said Pat Kaiser, resource developer for Yesterday's Children and Thunder Junction board member.

"This is one way the people of Gray County can help build Thunder Junction," she added. "As an entertainment park based on the exciting history of the Old West, it should be a wonderful tourist attraction and boost to the Panhandle economy."

Part of the parks' profits will go back to Yesterday's Children to be distributed for senior citizen services and special needs throughout the year, she said.

"With out elderly population getting proportionately larger every year, this is a positive solution to helping meet their needs in the future. We hope everyone will want to be part of it!"

Thunder Junction will provide family entertainment based on the history of the cowboy and cowgirls, Indians, ranchers and pioneers who settled the Panhandle. Live musical performances and demonstrations of the arts, crafts and business trades of the early day settlers will also be featured.

Saving the green

NEW YORK (AP) — "Conserving America's Forests" is a new study program designed to teach students in grades 7 through 9 about environmental and conservation issues and the importance of managing America's natural resources.

The program, underwritten by International Paper and developed by Lifetime Learning Systems, gives teachers five suggested conservation topics to review with students.

These include knowledge of the environment and forest lands, conserving natural resources, the importance of paper in our daily lives and the ways to recycle wastepaper.

'JFK': Echoes of assassin's shots

"I had plenty of problems when I came into this office. But wait until the fellow who follows me sees what he will inherit." — John F. Kennedy.

By JOHN A. BOLT
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Dealey Plaza is much the same today as it was 28 years ago, but the events that happened there changed the rest of us in ways we'll never know.

Visitors trek to this spot on the west end of downtown as if to a shrine. You can see them every day: pointing, looking, wondering.

There's the window. Here's "the grassy knoll." Look, could this chip in the curb be from that day? Here is where John Fitzgerald Kennedy — and innocence — died.

"You don't know what really happened," said Arlene Eppinga, standing in the plaza. Eppinga, from Walnut Creek, Calif., was visiting friends in a Dallas suburb and a trip to Dealey Plaza was a must.

"Everyone who comes here, you have to show it to 'em," said her guide, John Sitema. Dallas also changed that day.

"It shocked the city into growing up. It may have begun a new era of maturity," says Pierce Allman, at the time director of programming and production at WFAA-TV and one of the first to report the shooting.

"It wasn't just a shock felt in Dallas, it was felt regionwide and nationwide," Allman says.

"It was when that fragile tissue of civility that barely holds us together was rudely shattered and it was so real to a lot of people because of radio and television."

There are many theories on who killed Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963. The official version is that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, fired the fatal shots from the sixth floor of the Texas School Book Depository on the north side of Dealey Plaza.

But there are many skeptics, including director Oliver Stone whose upcoming movie, JFK, opens Dec. 20. Though the movie's plot has been shrouded in secrecy, the Academy Award-winning director is said to offer up a solution to perhaps the most puzzling crime of the century. The Warner Bros. release stars Kevin Costner as Jim Garrison, Gary Oldman as Lee Harvey Oswald and Tommy Lee Jones as Clay Shaw.

Much of the movie was filmed in Dallas. Dealey Plaza, still a key entry point into downtown, was blocked for several days last summer while the assassination was re-created. One newspaper columnist suggested it was a sign of maturity that many in the city were more concerned about traffic problems than Dallas' image.

County commissioners weren't so sure. Before allowing Stone to use the book depository, they extracted a promise that he would give them a private screening so they could decide whether they wanted credit, or a disclaimer.

Kennedy, the youngest man ever elected president, appeared triumphant in his trip through downtown Dallas that day. Cheering crowds lined the streets; a large luncheon crowd awaited at the Dallas Market Center.

Nellie Connally, Gov. John Connally's wife, had just remarked on how friendly the reception was — maybe the president had forgotten about the newspaper ads that accused him of treason.

The 21-foot-long 1961 Lincoln Continental turned right from Main Street onto Houston Street, and then a quick left onto Elm, right in front of the book depository. Suddenly, shots were fired.

"Just as they turned (onto Elm), I heard the first explosion," says Allman, who is now a public relations consultant.

"That's still the descriptive term. It was not a thin, brittle sharp sound. It was a loud reverberating sound. ... While I was still wondering what was going on, a second and then a third."

In his first radio report, given from inside the book depository, Allman described it as "three loud, reverberating explosions."

The Warren Commission concluded that Oswald fired three shots from the book depository, and Allman says he saw people on the lower floors look up.

But many critics claim the fatal shots came from what is now known as the grassy knoll, a small rise down the street from the corner.

Stone's movie is expected to take a look at various conspiracy theories — especially those that feature the Central Intelligence Agency. The script is based on the book by Garrison, the former New Orleans District Attorney.

Allman believes the assassination "was a wound that has healed."

But, he says, "It was kind of puzzling to me why Dallas bore such a stigma when Los Angeles didn't for the death of Robert Kennedy and Memphis for Martin Luther King."

Perhaps it puzzles Allman, but to others, the 1968 murders of Robert Kennedy and King were just more proof that the insanity unleashed in Dealey Plaza was still loose.

Perhaps that is why Dealey Plaza still draws us. Still saddens us. Still burdens us.

Despite tensions, changing world, Japan and U.S. have inextricable ties

By DAN BIERS
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — It worked for decades. The United States played big brother and little Japan tagged along, busily rebuilding from wartime devastation while enjoying U.S. protection from the Soviet menace.

But those days are gone. The United States is not the monolithic power it once was, the Cold War is history, and Japan is an economic giant viewed by many fearful Americans as predatory and unfair.

Fifty years after Pearl Harbor sent the two nations to war, Japan and the United States face yet another crossroads: Will the so-called new world order force them asunder or will it present new opportunities for cooperation?

Despite the tensions tearing at the alliance, most observers say its bedrock is firm. It is built on economic and cross-cultural ties that have become inextricable in an era when Hondas throng U.S. highways and Tokyoites flock to a nearby Disneyland and munch U.S. fast food.

"You have a couple of major trends in the world that I believe will lend long-term durability to the very close ties between our countries," U.S. Ambassador Michael Armacost said in a recent interview.

"One is simply the globalization of the world market. We've become increasingly interdependent on one another. ... And second, there are a host of problems that are appearing that simply cannot be resolved unilaterally," he said, citing efforts to save the environment, to liberalize global trade and to bring the Soviets into the world economy.

Despite recent attempts to sound the death knell of the U.S.-Japan alliance — one book is sensationally titled The Coming War With Japan — deep ties from the postwar era remain.

The Japanese consider as sacrosanct, for example, their pacifist constitution that was a gift from U.S. occupiers after World War II. It renounces war and enshrines democratic institutions.

American culture has completely won over Japan, where U.S. movies are king and pop icons such as Madonna and M.C. Hammer play to packed arenas. Ads for English classes dot subway trains and sidewalk billboards.

Across the Pacific, Japanese products have won over the United States with their moderate prices and high quality. What American consumer is not familiar with the names Toyota, Honda, Sony and Hitachi?

An economically ascendant Japan also has made huge investments — purchasing Treasury bills to fund the U.S. federal deficit, for example — that have helped America grow despite its lack of savings.

The surge of Japanese imports and high-profile purchases of key U.S. companies — MCA Corp. by Matsushita Electric and Columbia Pictures by Sony Corp. — also have been a source of great tension.

Many Americans see Japan as simply a mercantilist nation, and the halls of Congress are forever filled with demands that so-called unfair trade practices be met with punitive action.

If the United States pulls out of its recession and Japan's economy cools down, sending the trade deficit higher, the rhetoric may go up yet another notch.

Anger toward Japan increased during the Gulf crisis, when many Americans felt Tokyo did not move quick enough to assist the U.S.-led allies. Critics wondered aloud why GIs should die defending a free flow of oil that was more important to Japan than the United States.

To many people here, that smacked of Japan-bashing, of blaming Tokyo for everything. Many Japanese feel that their country's contribution to the war, which eventually totaled $13 billion and was raised largely through additional taxes, was insufficiently appreciated.

The Gulf War also was viewed by some Japanese as proof that the United States was a trigger-happy and dangerous ally.

The tensions unleashed by the war led to renewed interest here in Shintaro Ishihara, a lawmaker of the governing Liberal Democratic Party who won notoriety in the United States for his book titled The Japan That Can Say No.

Ishihara argued that Americans were biased against Japanese. He urged greater independence from Washington and suggested that Japan, as a bargaining ploy, could threaten to withhold from the United States technology needed for weapons manufacture.

With tough talk coming from both sides of the Pacific, it's not too surprising that recent public opinion polls in both countries suggest that as Soviet power declines, Japanese and Americans view each other as greater threats.

Armacost and others acknowledge that such public attitudes are a cause of worry, but there are signs of hope.

Since a 1985 agreement that sent the yen's value soaring against the dollar, U.S. exports to Japan have more than doubled to $49 billion last year. Japanese exports to the United States rose 30 percent during that time to $90 billion. That has narrowed the trade deficit from a 1987 high of $56 billion to $41 billion in 1990.

Bilateral trade pacts have been signed on issues such as semiconductors, wood products and imports of U.S. beef and citrus. With formal barriers to trade fast disappearing, the two countries last year reached a historic agreement to attack informal barriers, such as Japan's often exclusionary distribution system.

The Gulf War appears to have finally convinced the Japanese that they are too powerful economically to sit on the sidelines.

Although Japan's decentralized power structure and premium on consensus politics ensures that Washington will take the lead in times of crises for the foreseeable future, there is a realization here that more must be done besides wielding a checkbook.

Last spring, Japanese minesweepers were sent to the Persian Gulf in the first overseas military deployment since World War II. The Diet may soon approve the use of Japanese troops abroad to participate in United Nations peacekeeping activities.

Tokyo also has increased its financial support for the tens of thousands of U.S. troops stationed here, to 50 percent of costs excluding salaries, a sign that it remains committed to the bilateral security treaty.

Even as the Soviet threat fades, that treaty will continue to provide protection for pacifist-minded Japan, to help project U.S. power in the Pacific, and to reassure Asian nations who suffered brutal Japanese aggression earlier this century.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you fail to budget your resources properly at this time, you might not have the funds you'll need for something essential a little further down the line. Be prudent.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You might talk more about your intentions rather than take positive actions to achieve them today. What you say will make good listening, but it won't produce results.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It might not be wise to attempt, on your own, tasks where you lack know-how and expertise today. Have someone competent peering over your shoulder.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Negotiations of financial importance should not be conducted with a handshake or a verbal agreement today. For the sake of all concerned, put everything down on paper.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Focus your mind on your work today, or else you might make serious mistakes with regard to something you usually do automatically. Don't take any task for granted.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your inclinations toward impulse buying could be rather pronounced today and, in order to gratify an urgent whim, you might make a purchase where you won't get value received.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) The perspective you'll view domestic developments from could be slightly distorted today. Try to cure problems, not complicate them further.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your generosity might be more in your imagination than in its manifestation today. Keep in mind that what is easy to promise may be very difficult to deliver.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A well-intentioned friend might not have the capabilities to do for you today what was intended. It's best not to think of this individual as your ace in the hole.

FmHA looking at moving some borrowers to private credit institutions

TEMPLE — The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) continues to review its portfolio for possible graduation of borrowers to private credit as mandated by Congress, announced Neal Sox Johnson, FmHA state director in Temple.

The FmHA credit programs are administered in a manner that will assure that they do not supplant or compete with credit available to farmers, rural families and groups from other reliable credit sources.

The law requires that FmHA borrowers should graduate to other credit on reasonable rates and terms when they are able to do so.

FmHA, as the lending arm of the U.S. government, has long been a source of credit for farmers, ranchers and rural homeowners who have been unable to obtain credit through commercial lenders such as banks, savings and loans, Production Credit Associations and Federal Land Banks.

Farmers Home Administration has attempted to aid those borrowers as a "lender of last resort," Johnson said.

Nationwide, and on an annual basis, FmHA reviews its loan portfolio to determine those borrowers who have progressed to the point that they no longer need government assistance to obtain credit. This annual review is currently being conducted by local Farmers Home Administration offices.

FmHA borrowers in all program areas may be contacted to furnish information on their ability to graduate from their FmHA loans to private sector lenders.

The mission of the Farmers Home Administration loan program is that of "temporary source of supervised credit in modest amounts" to those who are unable to obtain credit elsewhere, Johnson said.

Hard freezes haunt cotton producers

By JOE BRYANT
Extension Service

LUBBOCK - The ghosts and goblins of Halloween are long gone, but the hard freeze that swept across the Texas South Plains Oct. 30-31 continues to haunt area cotton producers. The sudden, sharp and prolonged drop in temperature appears to have cut the crop by as much as a third in some fields.

Cotton specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service agree with many area growers that yields from the 25-county "cotton patch" of more than 3 million acres won't measure up to U.S. Department of Agriculture estimates from the November federal crop survey.

"That estimate said (the region) could make as much as 3 million bales," said Dr. James Supak, Extension Service cotton agronomist at Lubbock. Supak estimates the yield will be closer to 2.7 million bales, for at least a 10 percent loss.

Supak said the discrepancy in figures may partly result from the timing of the field survey on which the USDA based its November estimate. That crop count had to be completed before the end of October, when the freeze's impact wasn't apparent, he explained.

"The effect of that freeze was very severe," agreed Dr. Carl Anderson, Extension Service cotton marketing specialist at College Station. After such a freeze, Anderson said, "you can't assess how many bolls won't open until two weeks or so."

One reason the freeze did so much damage, Supak said, was because it occurred before the plants had been subjected to a frost and was accompanied by moisture. A frost or light freeze stops plant growth and begins drying of the plant and bolls. As it was this season, many bolls were green and sappy and froze instead of drying down and opening.

"The freeze ruined some bolls that probably would have opened and made some contribution to the yield" under more normal conditions, Supak said.

Anderson said the USDA estimate was based on a boll count that was probably quite accurate, but the surveyors had no way to accurately assess what damage the freeze had done.

To add to the growers' problem, clouds, high humidity, some snow and rain have remained across the South Plains almost continuously since the freeze. Most producers have been unable to harvest their crop, and the moist conditions have caused problems with barkiness - an excessive amount of twigs, bark strands and leaves - in much of what has been stripped, Supak said.

He said weather conditions also are causing loss of poundage and quality. It contributes to discoloring and staining of lint, which combine to lower the grades of the yield.

On a brighter note, Supak said the rains of September did contribute to subsoil moisture.

"That could be a significant factor for next year's crop," he said.

The November USDA estimate projects a U.S. crop of 18.2 million bales. Anderson said this compares to 15.5 million bales last season and the record 1937 crop of 18.9 million bales. The latest estimate for Texas projects 5.8 million bales, the same as the month before.

Anderson said weather problems may cost Texas 200,000 to 400,000 bales, "a 5.4- to 5.6-million-bale harvest that will likely be reflected in the December crop report."

With grain sorghum harvest completed, farmers have started thinking about next year's crop. A few have already come by to get soil sample bags and information sheets to accompany the samples to the soil testing laboratory.

Soil testing should be one of the first steps in planning your 1992 crop production, and now is the time to collect soil samples from fields to be planted to spring/summer crops.

Cost of a soil test is a minor investment to make for the peace of mind it brings when faced with making fertilizer decisions.

Following soil test recommendations can effectively reduce the per unit cost of producing a commodity and increase the chances of making a profit.

Of course, a good fertility program can only insure optimum yields when other conditions affecting crop yields are favorable. A good plant stand, adequate moisture, good physical condition of the soil, and insect, disease and weed control are all important in obtaining profitable returns from money invested in fertilizers.

Crop producers who have not yet made a final decision about which crop should submit soil samples now and request fertilizer recommendations for several cropping alternatives per soil sample. This information can be helpful in making final cropping decisions.

Soil sampling bags and information sheets can be obtained from the Gray County Extension Office.

COW'S PERFORMANCE RELATED TO HER NUTRITION

With cows, it is real important to have them in good body condition prior to calving. The way a cow is handled during the winter supplemental feeding period determines not only how this year's calf grows out but it will also influence next year's calf crop as well.

The cow's reproductive performance and the health and weaning weight of her calf is greatly influenced by her nutritional status throughout the year and especially during the winter.

If a cow is allowed to calve in a poor or thin body condition, the odds are against her to maintain a 12-month calving interval. It is important to keep cows in good body condition before they calve. It is easier to fatten a thin cow before calving, and this increases the likelihood of her rebreeding on a 12-month schedule.

A body condition scoring system has been devised that uses a range of 1 to 9, with 1 very thin and 9 very fat. Research has proven that the optimum cow body condition scores are 5 to 7 before a cow calves. We have a bulletin - 1526 "Body Condition, Nutrition and Reproduction of Beef Cow" - available in the County Extension Office. I encourage cow producers to get a copy.

The description of a cow with body condition of 5 is that the 12th and 13th ribs are not visible to the eye unless the animal has been shrunk. Areas on each side of the tail head are fairly well filled but not mounded.

In summary, a body condition score of five or more at calving and through breeding is required for good reproductive performance. Over-stocking pastures is a common cause of poor body condition and reproductive failure. Proper stocking, year-round mineral supplementation and timely use of protein condition scores and rebreeding performance of beef cows.

Sorting cows by condition 90 to 100 days ahead of calving and feeding so that all cows will calve with a body condition score of 5 to 7 will maximize reproductive performance while holding supplemental feed costs to a minimum. Nutritional and reproductive decisions, so important to profitability, are made with more precision and accuracy where a body condition scoring system is routinely used.

Ranchers, studying their cow's condition, can make adjustments on supplemental feed as the winter season progresses. Don't keep locked-in a certain amount of feed if cows are not in the right body condition.

PESTICIDE APPLICATOR WORKSHOP

A Pesticide Applicator Workshop will be conducted Friday, Dec. 13, in the Gray County Courthouse Annex meeting room.

Persons holding a TDA Pesticide license either as a private, commercial or non-commercial applicator can get five Continuing Education Units (CEU's) credits for recertification purposes.

The workshop begins at 8:30 a.m. with registration, followed at 9 a.m. with the program. There will be a noon lunch break and it will adjourn at 4 p.m. The workshop is free and is sponsored by the Gray County Extension Office and Texas Agricultural Extension Office.

For additional information, call the Gray County Extension Office, 669-8033.

Supermarkets ready for holiday parties

By EDITH CHENAULT
Extension Service

Christmas baking and holiday parties will be in the spotlight of December supermarket promotions, according to an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The emphasis will shift from the Thanksgiving turkey to baking goods such as sugar, flour, dough products and pre-made pie crusts," said Dr. Dick Edwards.

Turkeys will be sold at 39 cents to 49 cents per pound, up from the Thanksgiving discounts of 19 cents a pound, Edwards said.

"You won't see the giveaway prices on turkeys during Christmas," he said.

Also featured will be finger snacks such as chips, dips and cold cut platters from store delicatessens for holiday parties.

Beef and pork prices will continue to be discounted from this summer's higher prices, he said.

"You'll see more emphasis placed on serving these meats for the holidays instead of the traditional turkey dinner," he said.

Ground beef in 5-pound, pre-packaged "chubs" should be offered at 99 cents per pound. Prices on chuck and shoulder roasts should be from $1.30 to $1.70 per pound for bone-in cuts, he said.

Higher-quality cuts such as boneless rib roasts also should be discounted, he said.

"You also should see a big push on ham," Edwards said. "The better deals will be seen on boneless hams, but the traditional bone-in ham will still be down to around $1 a pound."

Another non-traditional Christmas entree will be promoted during December, he said. Consumers could find sale prices of $3.50 per pound on medium-count shrimp, he said.

Some vegetables could be in short supply during December, Edwards said.

"I guess the bad news is on the vegetable front with the whitefly infestation in California's Imperial Valley. That cut into the winter supplies of lettuce, melons, cucumbers and squash."

Damage to winter vegetables alone is estimated at $62 million thus far this year, said Ray Prewett, executive vice president of the Texas Vegetable Association.

Cooler fall weather is beginning to set the pest back somewhat in California, but harvested head lettuce acreage is expected to be down 20 percent from the 39,000 acres last season, said Dick Dillon, Imperial County agriculture commissioner. Produce packers in California are suggesting that prices for lettuce could be back to $1 a head in December.

"What consumers don't understand is that this market is very 'thin,'" Edwards said. "Even a little fluctuation in production can cause major fluctuation in prices."

Texas citrus will be scarce in supermarkets. "For all practical purposes, there is none," he said.

However, fruit such as early peaches and grapes coming in from Chile in late December will be a boon to the consumer, he said, and sale prices should average from 59 to 69 cents per pound.

North Rolling Plains RC&D expands area

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has approved expansion of the North Rolling Plains Resource Conservation and Development project area.

Ochiltree and Roberts Counties will join Lipscomb, Hemphill, Gray, Wheeler, Donley, Collingsworth, Briscoe and Hall Counties to make up the ten-county project area. The expansion was recently announced by Sen. Phil Gramm.

Projects undertaken by the RC&D Council include soil conservation work, flood prevention, farm and ranch waste disposal, assistance to rural fire departments, rural health, recreation and economic development. The RC&D program is administered by the Soil Conservation Service.

According to Lee McDonald, district conservationist with the SCS in Pampa, "Almost any project that will help rural counties and communities can be planned and coordinated through the RC&D Council."

The purpose of the RC&D program is to help rural communities and counties determine needs, plan projects and find funds for those projects.

Funding can come from federal, state, private foundation and local sources. Many projects use a combination of funding from several sources. Low-interest, long-term loans through TDA, FmHA and SBA can also be utilized.

The RC&D Council is made up of representatives from each city, county, and Soil and Water Conservation District sponsor in the ten-county area. These sponsors developed an "Area Plan" of projects needed in the ten-county area. A board of directors, elected each year, decides what projects get priority.

A project "coordinator" provides assistance to carry out the approved projects in the ten-county area. John Crowell currently serves as the North Rolling Plains RC&D area coordinator with an office in Pampa.

Task force being formed on rural waste

What will happen to farm and ranch waste when all of the small local landfills are closed?

What about disposal of used motor oil, chemical cans, tires and batteries from farms and ranches in the area?

What will be done with household wastes from homes outside of town?

How do current state and federal regulations on waste disposal affect farmers, ranchers and rural residents?

According to John Crowell, coordinator with the North Rolling Plains Resource Conservation and Development Area in Pampa, "It is time we address these issues and develop opportunities for farmers and ranchers to dispose of wastes properly and conveniently."

The North Rolling Plains RC&D Council is working with County Extension agents and the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission to address this problem.

A rural waste task force is being formed in the area to discuss the potential problems and search for possible solutions. The first meeting is scheduled in December.

"People who live in cities and towns will have dumpsters to dump their trash in, and it will be hauled off for them. But what about the families who live outside of town?" asked Crowell. "In these meetings, we will discuss ways to make waste disposal available to our neighbors who live in the country."

Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) is a program of the U.S. Department of Agriculture-Soil Conservation Service. For more information on RC&D, contact the Soil Conservation Service Office in Pampa at 665-1751.

LEARN WHAT CHRISTMAS SAFETY'S ABOUT!

A CHRISTMAS SAFETY CHECK

- Before hanging strings of lights, spread them on the floor and check for frayed or bare wires, cracked insulation, loose connections, and damaged plugs or light sockets.
- Check extension cords for wear or damage and don't run them across walking areas.
- Test lights before putting them on the tree. Unplug them before making repairs or replacing bulbs.
- Overloading circuits with too many lights can cause fire. Follow manufacturer's instructions about the number of lights allowed on one circuit.
- Never string lights on a metallic tree.

- Choose a fresh, green tree, trim its base and keep it in plenty of water. If the needles are brown and break off easily, it could be a fire risk.
- If you buy an artificial tree, make sure it has been tested for flammability by Underwriters Laboratories (UL).
- Always turn off lights before leaving home or going to bed. You'll save money and be safer, too.
- Do not use inside lights on the outside. All outside lighting equipment, including lights, cords and plugs, should be waterproof and made for outdoor use. Also, hang sockets downward and don't leave a socket empty.
- When hanging lights on the rooftop or in tall trees outdoors, stay clear of electrical lines.

Pearl Harbor 50 years on: Things change, things remain the same

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

HONOLULU (AP)— Fifty years after the Japanese attack, time seems as entombed at Pearl Harbor as the barnacle-encrusted wrecks of the Arizona and the Utah that serve as headstones for the nearly 1,000 sailors buried in the sunken hulls.

The Navy base here was begun as a coaling station in the reign of Hawaii's "Merry Monarch" — Kalakaua Rex, as he signed himself in documents turning over treaty rights to the lagoon called Wai Momi, or "water of pearl," to the United States.

The facility already was 20 years old when the cruiser Baltimore, the oldest of the approximately 90 warships in port on that day of Infamy, first came by to refuel with Teddy Roosevelt's Great White fleet in 1907.

The old coaling docks and bunkers still are here. So is the red-and-white checkered water tank that loomed over the Navy yard when Dry Dock No. 1 received its first refit order near the end of World War I.

The duty day at Pearl Harbor still begins with a blue "prep flag" being raised on the mast atop the tank, signaling all ships in port to raise their colors, just as on that fateful first Sunday in December 1941, when a 23-piece ship's band assembled on the battleship Nevada's deck to play the national anthem as that first wave of Japanese Zeros and Val dive bombers skimmed low across the harbor.

And harbor dredges from time to time still scoop up souvenirs of Adm. Isoroku Yamamoto's surprise attack: old airplane tires and props, bits of sunken ships.

Black shoe Navy types joke that time stands still at Pearl Harbor out of profound respect for history and a chronic reluctance on the part of Congress to appropriate sufficient funds to change things.

Leading the way into the submarine base headquarters, Navy Capt. J. Wood points out "the dungeon," the basement room where bandmen off the battleship California helped break the Japanese naval code after the attack on Pearl Harbor deprived them of their seagoing bandstand.

Their talent for synecopation came in handy translating radio signals onto millions of IBM cards. The big steel safe where the code busters stored their records still is in use in the mailroom.

Up on the second floor, Capt. Frank Coughlin of Pittsfield, Mass., the sub base boss, was gazing out the same wide picture window where Adm. Husband Kimmel watched his career and fleet sink from sight on that fatal Sunday.

The commander of the Pacific Fleet had moved into the sub base while his flagship, the battleship Pennsylvania, was being overhauled in Dry Dock No. 1. Through this window, a spent .50-caliber shell struck the eyeglass case in his breast pocket. "It would have been more merciful had it killed me," Kimmel was heard to murmur.

"I hope I'm not looking off in the distance at the demise of my own career," Coughlin said with an easy laugh. His office wall was lined with plaques engraved with the names and logos of several Japanese submarines that had taken part in recent RIMPAC maneuvers with naval ships from Canada, Australia and Korea.

Japanese warships calling at Pearl Harbor are no more unusual these days than the Japanese tourists who by the hundreds follow the signs in Japanese and the upraised parasols of their tour guides to board the launches out to the ghostly white Arizona memorial.

Some of the sightseeing boats circling the monument, which bestrides the wreckage like a concrete covered bridge, deliver their loudspeaker lectures in both Japanese and English. Japanese pilots and weapons specialists training at Hawaii's many military bases often visit the monument in dress uniform, delivering salutes and reverential bows to fallen comrades on both sides.

More than a million and a half tourists a year answer the shrill bo'sun's pipe announcing the next launch departure. And nearly 200 American flags a week are quickly raised and lowered on the Arizona's flagstaff by patriotic and service groups and taken home as treasured relics.

Occasionally, some of the 300 Arizona survivors turn up to mourn their entombed shipmates. Five times since the monument was dedicated on Memorial Day 1962, and as recently as last year, Navy divers have gone down to the wreckage with the cremated remains of crew members who were on the ship's roster that fateful Sunday and have died since.

Unlike the Vietnam memorial in Washington, D.C. the Arizona Memorial is an actual tombstone, listing in alphabetical order the names of the 1,177 sailors who died in the attack on their ship.

With a billion-dollar annual payroll and a bustling shipyard employing 6,000, Pearl Harbor remains the Navy's most important Pacific base.

Still home port for the Pacific Fleet, its busy locks and inlets constantly churn with wakes of 20 submarines, seven Knox class frigates, four destroyers, three guided missile cruisers, four salvage ships, an oiler, and a floating drydock. When passing the Arizona, their deck crews come to attention and smartly salute, a custom also observed by Navy ships passing George Washington's tomb on the banks of the Potomac.

Visitors boarding the ferry to Ford Island can read the 65 names on the granite monument to the USS Utah, whose rusting hulk left a dark shadow on the wind-whipped surface of the bay.

On a recent visit, the control tower at Luke Field was abandoned, decaying like the old hangars and seaplane ramps, but occasionally a small plane practiced touch-and-go landings on the weed-stripped runway.

The only other sign of life was a foursome of Navy retirees teeing off on the island's nine-hole golf links. For lack of government funds, they maintain the course themselves, mowing the lawns and tending the greens, and claim theirs "is the only golf course in Hawaii the Japanese haven't tried to buy."

The flame trees were at their most flamboyant near the gates of Hickam Air Force Base, which adjoins Pearl Harbor.

Hickam's handsome old tower still stands, as does the tall flagpole at the head of the parade grounds. The Val and Kate bombers somehow missed both that infamous Sunday morning, but the flag they strafed to shreds now is on display in the lobby of Hale Makai, the sprawling complex that is headquarters for the Pacific Air Force. Its name means "home by the sea" in Hawaiian.

When Japanese pilots flying in the second wave gave the three-story building their full attention, it had a famous sign on the lawn: "Hickam Hotel — Under Personal Management of Uncle Sam." Built only a year before, this was then the largest barracks in the world. It housed 3,200 enlisted men in two wings spreading out from a mess hall larger than six NBA-sized basketball courts.

Bombers off the Japanese carrier Shokaku blasted to rubble the B-17s and aging B-18s parked wingtip to wingtip on the runway and made a direct hit on the barracks roof, killing nearly everyone asleep on the top floor.

A 500-pound bomb leveled the mess hall, killing 32 having a late Sunday breakfast and perforating every cast iron pot in the pantry. Cooks and KPs who sought shelter in the walk-in freezer died from the shock waves of more bombs raining down.

A thunderous explosion took out a corner of the guard house. The suddenly freed prisoners broke into the ordnance shed and mounted machine guns on the baseball diamond in time to greet the Japanese planes returning for a strafing run.

Among the other unlikely heroes at Hickam that day was a company clerk, a typewriter jockey, who climbed into the cockpit of a burning B-17 and kept firing its machine gun at the attackers until flames burned the plane out from under him.

Today, the shell-scarred and bullet-pocked outer walls and courtyards of the otherwise restored building present a stark mural of that Sunday morning massacre that killed 185 airmen and five civilians who helped fight the fires at Hickam Field.

Early morning joggers up on the Aiea Heights, where condos now crowd the old villas of the high

Navy brass, and workers pulling into the parking lot for the first shift at the shipyard get to see Pearl Harbor as it must have appeared to the Japanese pilots on that Sunday morning 50 years ago: the first rays of the sun gilding the water tower, ghostly gray ships blinking signals back and forth across a glittering lagoon of turquoise water, the climbing headlights of a distant automobile picking out emerald valleys in the dark backdrop of the Wainanae range, tufts of fog rising from the twin peaks of the Kolekole Pass, and all around, the green lush loveliness of Hawaii.

The serenity of the scene touched Lt. Yoshio Shiga as his Zero fighter off the carrier Kaga descended through the high cloud layer.

"The U.S. fleet in the harbor," he afterwards described the scene, "looked so beautiful, just like toys on a child's floor."

Flying cover for the dive bombers, he watched a torpedo plop into the water and streak toward Battleship Row. It moved him to a simile worthy of a haiku poet: "like a dragonfly laying an egg on water."

Scholars: Don't forget other victims

By LYNN ELBER
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Count the victims of the Pearl Harbor attack and you must number among them 120,000 Japanese-Americans forced into West Coast relocation camps, say scholars and camp survivors.

"When (President) Roosevelt said it was a day of infamy, Japanese-Americans would have said the same thing, both in terms of Pearl Harbor and in terms of what happened to them," said John Liu, an assistant professor of social sciences at the University of California, Irvine.

"The attack was terribly wrong," Liu said. "But there were other victims; those victims happened to be Americans of Japanese ancestry."

Two-thirds of those interned after the Dec. 7, 1941, surprise attack on Pearl Harbor were American-born, Liu said.

One of them, 68-year-old Sue Embrey, still holds powerful memories of the time she spent at the Manzanar relocation camp in the mountains 200 miles north of Los Angeles.

"I'm an American. I did not bomb Pearl Harbor. I hate to have people look at me and say you're part of that group," said Embrey, whose Manzanar Committee is working to gain a historical designation for the Sierra Nevada camp.

Internees lost homes and land valued in the billions of dollars, and close-knit communities of Japanese-Americans were torn apart, said Gann Matsuda of the Asian American Studies Center at the University of California, Los Angeles.

The internment program, which included 10 camps in California and other Western states, began in February 1942, two months after Japan's surprise attack killed 2,400 people, destroyed much of the U.S. Pacific Fleet and plunged the nation into World War II.

It began with Roosevelt's signing of Executive Order 9066, which gave the military power to incarcerate any person to protect the nation from spies and terrorists.

Liu said it was racism that prompted the action, noting that German-Americans and Italian-Americans were not incarcerated although the nation was also at war with Germany and Italy.

"Even at the time, people were arguing it was racism," he said. "Germans and Italians were not picked up en masse, only Japanese-Americans."

The federal Commission on Wartime Relocations and Internment of Civilians, found that the action "was not based on military necessity."

A resolution based in part on that finding and passed by the California Legislature in 1989 said the internments were the result of race prejudice, wartime hysteria and a failure of political leadership.

In 1988, the Reagan administration issued an apology and approved payments of $20,000 to each of 60,000 surviving internees. But for some the nightmares of incarceration lingered.

In Embrey's case, every time the Santa Ana winds would blow through Los Angeles she would think of the time she spent in the camp.

"I don't like the wind," she said she once told a neighbor. "I was in Manzanar," she explained. "The wind blows awfully hard up there."

She said her bitterness has given way to sadness — and also to fears that the flood of anniversary attention given Pearl Harbor this week might renew hostility toward Japanese-Americans.

The Guardian Angels volunteer safety group said it would have members patrolling Los Angeles' Little Tokyo section this week to protect residents.

Matsuda is organizing events at UCLA to mark the event, in part "to defuse the hate that obviously is going to come out of commemorations of Pearl Harbor."

But Mitsuo Nitta said he believes the country has gone beyond those days, adding that Japanese-Americans are now accepted "on every level."

Nitta, 71, was an officer in the Army's Japanese-American 442nd during World War II. At the same time, his relatives were incarcerated in Arizona.

"This is what makes America so strong," Nitta said. "They make mistakes, but admit it and say, 'Let's go from here.'"

Unemployment stays at 6.8%; more jobs cut

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's unemployment rate remained at 6.8 percent in November even though employers cut nearly a quarter-million jobs, the government reported Friday.

The jobs rate held at October's level, the Labor Department said, but a separate survey showed that payrolls tumbled by 241,000 jobs, the bleakest one-month plunge since this spring, when recession-induced layoffs took 258,000 jobs in both February and March.

The Labor Department said part of November's huge job loss was caused by updated seasonal adjustments, but the agency estimated payrolls would have fallen by 170,000 jobs even without that adjustment.

The news on job losses was far worse than expected. Most analysts had predicted losses of only 35,000, while the gloomiest predictions estimated a 75,000 loss.

President Bush said the unemployment rate was still "far too high" but noted it did not meet predictions of an increase.

"I'm glad because I think many were predicting raising rates to 7 or something like that so please don't go into these little details," he told reporters as he left the White House for a trip to California and Hawaii. "Let's look at the big picture."

But private economists said the jobs rate probably held steady only because the labor force declined by 300,000 people, indicating that many were too discouraged to continue looking for work.

"The economy is swinging into full-fledged recession in this report," said Allen Sinai, chief economist at the Boston Co. "The large and sweeping decline in jobs suggest the economy still is in recession, no recovery in sight."

Congressional Democrats seized on the dreary numbers to criticize the Bush administration for not putting forth a new anti-recession program.

"The sinking economy portrayed in today's numbers needs a life preserver, yet the administration remains content to stand on the shore shouting words of encouragement," said Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md.
