Nine newly hired nurses were honored at a reception Wednesday at Coronado Hospital.

The nurses, who hail from the provinces of Manitoba and Ontario in Canada, began arriving in Pampa in mid-October. The latest nurse to arrive set her bags down in Pampa on Tuesday.

vive." She described Jones, director of nursing at the hospital, as open, honest and objective when dealing with her.

"My reason for going into nursing was to help others, to heal. I have been in the hospital and the nurses I've met have made a big difference in my life. They gave me aspirations in nursing," she said. She looks forward to the day when her husband lands a job here, and the family joins her.

She described her first impressions like this, "My first impression, when I came out of the plane, I saw Prosecutor Moira Lasch, who was criticized for her rigid courtroom style, smiled to her husband as he accompanied her out of the courtroom, but did not comment.

Jeffrey S. Weiner of Miami, president of the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, called the quick acquittal a "comto charge and try Will Smith."

In her closing argument, Mrs. Lasch called Smith a rapist who inflicted "violence, humiliation and degradation.'

Black said the sexual encounter was "right out of a romance novel," lovemaking between a "star-struck" woman and a handsome youth on a moonlit night, waves lapping gently

Black stressed that the prosecution had to prove Smith guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. He said the woman wasn't bruised enough and her clothes were not damaged enough to corroborate her account.

Black had successfully argued that the testimony of three other women who said Smith also attacked them, but who never reported the alleged attacks at the time, should be barred from the trial. State law places strict limits on the admissibility of such evidence.

He said today that their testimony wouldn't have affected the outcome of the trial.

"In any high-profile case you get people that come out of the woodwork and make all sorts of wild accusations," Black said today. For example, he said, one of the three women spent the night with Smith, then "claims several days later that it must have been rape because he is no longer going out with her.' As for the accuser in the Palm Beach case, he described her testimony as "a little too dramatic." "There were too many tears, there were too many 'I can't recalls, I don't knows,' " Black said on the CBS program This Morning. "I just don't think a lot of it rang true." He added, "I think it was one of the best acting jobs I've every seen." Still, he said, he didn't expect the verdict so soon. "I have to admit I was surprised," he told ABC's Good Morning America. 'My experience is that jurors usually like to take quite a bit of time before they reach a verdict, particularly in a controversial case," Black said. "However, I think after Will's testimony these jurors were undoubtedly convinced of his innocence and didn't want to spend any more time in the jury room.'

Christine Pereira chose Pampa over other job opportunities in the United States. She said the small town sounded attractive to her especially since she was relocating alone. She expects her husband, a student studying diesel mechanics to arrive in June.

While the job descriptions are different than those she was accustomed to, Pereira said that so far she is very satisfied with her job. She observed, "Texans are the friendliest people I've ever met."

Colleen Herda was looking for adventure, career satisfaction and opportunity for continuing education when she chose to relocate to Pampa. "Back in Manitoba, you must put in time on the med/surg floor before you can specialize. Coronado offered me a specialty immediately," she said.

1991 graduate of Health Sciences Center in Winnipeg said she also wants to take advantage of the continuing eight years, he said. education offered nurses at the hospital.

Herda explained another factor in her decision. "It was a toss-up between here and Louisiana. It was because of Katherine Gibby. She called a few times. She was always friendly. She's been there if we needed her. She's the major reason." Gibby is coordinator of the mentor program which introduces the women to the community and helps them adjust to their new home.

Peninnah Ihmelu left behind five children and her husband to come to the United States. She said, "I felt in the process of talking to Mr. (Robert) Jones, that it would be challenging. I would be able to work in med/surg. It was a hard decision. I left five kids. I am adventurous; I've always traveled. From my meeting with Mr. Jones, I felt if others were like him, I'd sur-vices will be a part of the services provided.

cattle. Then I think Texans are friendly people. Very hospitable and open. When I got to the airport in Dallas, people were willing to help. That is a rare commodity."

Robert Jones is director of nursing at Coronado Hospital. He said he anticipates the arrival of seven more nurses from Canada. Combined with area graduates of Amarillo College and Frank Phillips College, he plans to have most nursing positions at the hospital filled by mid-January.

Jones said that about 55 registered nurses make up the nursing staff of Coronado Hospital, and of that group, the Canadians will make up about 45 percent. "They fit with our staff real well," he said.

Currently, Jones said, the demand for nurses is stable in the United States, with national vacancy rate of about 12 percent. According to a publication from Gov. Her job assignment is in the ICU/CCU unit. The Ann Richards' office, it is anticipated that about 48,000 new nurses will be needed in Texas alone in the next

> There is a shortage of educators in nursing, Jones said, which contributes to the shortage of available personnel. "In Texas, nursing schools are at maximum capacity for the educators available."

> "Coronado Hospital is always looking to improve services. Part of these nurses will go toward new positions we've created to augment the existing staff. Coronado Hospital is anticipating expanding services throughout the Panhandle," he said.

> One service being considered is the establishment of rural health clinics for medically underserved areas. The facility will also provide health services for the state prison Jordan Unit scheduled to open in 1992. Nursing, radiology, lab, psychological and social ser-

The Plampa News EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion Advice for Bush: Free the economy

It seemed odd that Friedrich Hayek, the Nobel laureate economist, last month was given the presidential Medal of Freedom by George Bush. Prof. Hayek's ideas helped spark the 1980s free-market reforms of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and President Ronald Reagan. Now Bush is busy reversing the Reagan reforms.

Though not implemented by the White House, Prof. Hayek's ideas are sweeping across Eastern Europe, Russia, East Asia and Latin America. It took six decades for this freedom philosopher's work finally to push aside the blood-drenched false ideas of socialism and communism. Now, but a sublime gift of Providence, Prof. Hayek has lived to the age of 92, seeing his ideas of liberty vindicated even in Moscow.

As to Bush, no one expects a president to be a brilliant economist. But a president should know the basics, as did Reagan. And a president should have the chutzpah to sack such incompetent advisers as Budget Director Richard Darman and Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady.

Consider Bush's words: "Some fundamentals point to a good recovery," he announced. "We ought to get it in perspective. Inflation is down. Interest rates are way down. Personal debt is down. Inventories are down. Quality is way up."

Fine. But as Prof. Hayek taught, that isn't enough. People can hardly take advantage of such benefits when they are being strangled by the twin boa constrictors of higher taxes and stronger regulation.

Bush might read these words in The Fatal Conceit, the introducory volume of Prof. Hayek's collected works: "What led the greatly advanced civilization of China to fall behind Europe was its government's clamping down so tightly as to leave no room for new developments, while ... Europe probably owes its extraordinary expansion in the Middle Ages to its political anarchy." Under Bush, federal spending has risen 10 percent per year. The federal budget now consumers 25 percent of GNP, a peace-time record. He has imposed on businesses and workers in the Clean Air Act, the racial quota bill, a $4.25 minimum wage, and $166 billion in new taxes. The president seems to be taking as his model the stifling old Chinese bureaucracy. Prof. Hayek was ill and couldn't make the White House ceremony. Perhaps Arnold Schwarzeneggar, friend to both, could arrange for Bush to travel to Freiberg, Germany, to visit Prof. Hayek. It's easy to figure out what the new Medal of Freedom recipient's advice would be to the president: Cut taxes. Cut spending. Cut regulation. Privatize every government function you can get your hands on; in England, this is sometimes even called "Hayekization." Stabilize the money supply by fixing it to gold or some other extrapolitical standard.

Enemy is good enough schools

Recently I had a talk with a man from South Africa who is spending a couple of years in the United States and has a son in a well-regarded public high school in a Chicago suburb.

Hoping to hear some good news about American education, I asked if he was happy with his son's school. He looked at me as if I had just challenged Mike Tyson to a mud wrestling match. He figures that if his son returns to South Africa in two years, he will be at least one year behind his classmates and maybe two - even though he was ahead of his South African peers when he arrived in this country.

After two years of American schooling, in other words, South African educators may find that he has made no progress whatsoever, or even that he has lost ground. My friend, understandably, is dissatisfied enough that he plans to send the boy to boarding school in South Africa next year.

white South Africans, limited to the task of educating only the upper segment of the population, would naturally have higher standards than the usual American school. They may be right.

But we are not comparing South Africa's best schools with the worst school in America, or even thing a typical one. His son's school is about as elite a public high school as you can find in America with a uniformly well-to-do student body, high test scores, an excellent reputation and more money than Sam Walton. And it apparently is doing an educational job that by South African standards is laughable.

This is something to keep in mind when you run across experts who insist that American schools have been unjustly maligned. One of these is Gerald Bracey, a former policy analyst for the National Education Association, the country's biggest teachers union, who wrote an article for Phi Delta Kappan magazine arguing that "American schools have never achieved more than they currently achieve. And some indicators show them performing better than ever." The claim that our schools are doing poorly, Bracey says, is "The Big Lie."

His evidence? More than 80 percent of our kids Now a skeptic may say that the schools for graduate from high school, and about 90 percent get either a diploma or its equivalent. Scores on standardized tests have been rising since the mid-1970s. And international comparisons are misleading, since other countries put more emphasis on education, or educate only a small elite, or some-

> This sort of happy talk may find a ready audience in the American people, who according to polls continue to think that (a) our schools are lousy and (b) their kids are getting a fine education. Like the rare doctor who advises couch potatoes that exercise is useless and dangerous, this message makes complacency appealing; it reassures American parents who prefer not to know anything unpleasant that there's nothing unpleasant to know.

But the bad news is the good news is wrong not all of it, but enough to make it clear that anyone reminder that the enemy of good schools isn't bad fool's paradise. About the only trend that's reassuring is the decline in dropouts. We are managing to educate more people, though, only by educating them all less. Diplomas are more numerous because less work and learning are required to get them.

To take pride in stable test scores is to take pride in stagnation. In fact, SAT scores have dropped - not merely because more kids are taking the test, but because even the brightest kids are getting dimmer. The number of kids scoring over 600 on the verbal part of the SAT has fallen by 37 percent since 1972.

Scores on varous achievement tests haven't changed much – but by global standards, that gives us nothing to brag about. In math and science tests, American students generally fall near the middle or bottom in interantional comparison.

Bracey says that's because other countries educate only the best students, while we educate everyone. But Japan has a higher high school graduation rate than we do – and generally smokes every other country in the world on these comparisons. Besides, the U.S. deficiency shows up even in early grades, when virtually all kids are in school in every advanced country.

We shouldn't be pleased to know that the Japanese and Koreans do better because they spend more time in school and work harder. That's just the point: We're getting less than other countries because we demand less. The question is, why don't we demand more?

One reason is because it's easier to persuade ourselves that our schools aren't really so bad than it is to do anything serious to make them better. Those who preach unfounded optimism are a who feels content with our schools is living in a schools. The enemy is good enough schools.

North is kkk-razy over Duke

Big time media seems obsessed by the Ku Klux Klan. Give them anything that has a sheet or a pointed hat involved in it, and it's time to pull out all the stops.

David Duke wasn't about to be elected in Louisiana, but he was a former Klansman so he winds up on the front pages across the country.

And David Duke was a Southerner, as well. A white Southern male with a Ku Klux Klan background can get more press than Mario Cuomo flipping a coin to see if he's going to run for president and then putting off the decision again to go for two out of three.

The Northern media is especially fond of the Klan as a basis for a news story. It's their geo- a few Klansmen, or people who said they were in graphical ignorance showing. I was on the phone with a New Yorker, and he asked me, "What time is it in Atlanta?"

What time is it in New York?" I asked him back.

"Four-thirty," he said.

"You're not going to believe this," I said, "But Atlanta is in the same time zone as New York. It's 4:30 here, too."

Texas?

Atlanta. Apparently she couldn't find any Southern left-handed lesbian cross-dressers who were being denied their right to marry goats, so she rounded up

Several years ago, Larry King came to Atlanta to do his show and I was asked to appear on the second half. The first half Larry King interviewed some kook from the Klan.

"How can you do this to me, Larry?" I joked with him. "Everybody watching this show sees me following a nut in a robe and a pointed hat and they figure my outfit's in the cleaner's or something."

The Klan hasn't had any influence in the South in decades. What few members remain are too stupid Where did he think Georgia was? Next to for one thing. What wears robes and pointed hats and has three teeth? 58 members of the KKK - which is gasoline credit card and road map of the South.

I remember how the rest of the world wanted the Klan involved during the horror of Atlanta's murdered and missing children experience. A Northern reporter walked in my office one day and asked if I knew how to get in touch with Atlanta's Grand Wizard.

"I'm certain the Klan is involved in this," he said

"Call 1-800-GET-REAL," I told him.

But what a story it would have made had the Klan been invoved. The Ku Kux Klan killing black children in Atlanta, which is in Georgia, which is in the South. Think of the books. Think of the movie starring Northern actors and actresses trying to fake Southern accents.

Forget the Klan. Forget David Duke. He's not going to get elected to anything. He couldn't even beat an oppoonent in Louisiana's gubernatorial race whose supporters sported bumper stickers that said, "Vote for the Thief. It's Important."

Want something to worry about? OK, how about being laid off from your job? The Soviet nuclear arsenal winding up in the wrong hands? Jerry Brown getting elected president?

Or, the doo-doo head you wound up with under the sheets last night had AIDS.

Even Klansmen probably have enough sense to

Haitian army repression cited as cause of boat exodus

By ROBERT GLASS Associated Press Writer

MONTROUIS, Haiti (AP) - As a better off than most in this crum- fied as economic refugees ineligible fears for his life and may soon join the mass exodus of Haitian boat people.

"If Aristide doesn't return, I'm going," he says.

Like many other supporters of deposed President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, Marc-Antoine says he fears reprisal from renegades in the 7,000-member army, which overthrew the activist Roman Catholic priest on Sept. 30.

They tell of killings, beatings and arrests by soldiers throughout the country and insist army repression is causing the flood of Haitians fleeing to the United States in rickety boats.

The U.S.-based Lawyers Committee for Human Rights, which sent a fact-finding mission to Haiti, said in a report this week that "the extent and frequency of gross human rights violations have reached levels not seen since the darkest days" of the 29-year Duvalier dictatorship.

Others blame the boat exodus mainly on worsening economic conditions since the imposition in early October of a hemisphere-wide trade embargo against Haiti, one of the world's poorest nations.

A federal appeals court in Atlanta was to consider a request today to lift a lower court ruling temporarily barring the U.S. government from Emerson warned consumers that natural Christmas trees are particularly dangerous. "All of the Christmas tree fires reported during holiday months in 1990 were natural products, not artifical trees," he said.

"It's important to remember that cut trees are moist as possible. The longer a tree is kept in the fire," Emerson added. "In fact, about half of the percent more than on average days. Christmas fires occurred on Christmas Eve, Christmas Day or after, even through the first two weeks of January."

Joining in urging residents to be more concerned with and aware of fire dangers around the Christmas holiday season are Tom Adams and Gary Stevens of the Pampa Fire Marshal's Office. Both wished-Pampa residents a safe and happy holiday and encouraged residents to become informed about fire safety tips.

Emerson urged Texans to prevent holiday tragedies by removing fire hazards commonly associated with Christmas trees and holiday decorations. According to statistics from the Texas top four reported causes of holiday fires in 1990 were:

The State Fire Marshal's Office recommends the following guidelines to reduce the risk of holiday fires:

 Keep your natural tree as fresh as possible. Buy early, when trees are fresh. Don't buy trees with loose needles or brown spots. To keep the tree fresh, cut the base of the tree at a 45-degree angle, place the base in a bucket of water and keep outdoors until ready to decorate. Charles Flachs performed Saturday as guest artist in "The Nutcracker Suite." Flachs is a principle dancer with the Nashville Ballet, Nashville, Tenn.

Flachs, a Pennsylvania native, did not begin to study ballet ugtil he was a young man, about 18 or so. He explained that as a theater major at West Chester State University, he was required to take some sort of "movement class". He chose modern dance to fulfill the curriculum requirement and was exposed to ballet for the first time.

Flachs said that he discovered that he liked the discipline of ballet. As a basketball player, he said he thought he was an athlete and in good physical condtion, but discovered that others in his class were able to perform difficult dance steps with ease. He said he felt a sense of competition with the other young dancers - "I wanted to see why I wasn't able to do it and see if I could do it.'

He continued, "I discovered that the process is slow. It is an art form as well as technical form of expression. I think that you need to approach it with honesty and hard work. I really admire those in a company who work hard." He compared working in a ballet company to those who work in other types of jobs - some progress, some don't.

"Modern dance doesn't have the 400 year background like ballet. Ballet has been handed down and refined and revised for a long peridescribed ballet as a very satisfying art form when done correctly.

The men, women and children who enjoy the "naturalist" lifestyle are not exhibitionists. Anyone who goes to a nudist resort to "get an eyeful" will get an eyeful of the exit in a hurry. All nudist resorts have rules that prohibit gawking, staring or any other unacceptable behavior. This includes any sexual activity.

Nudists are people who feel that being unclothed is natural and not dirty or shameful. Small children are born nudists. Anyone who has been around small children has seen them pull off their clothes just to be rid of the uncomfortable nuisance.

I am 38 and discovered the nudist lifestyle last summer. Never in my life have I felt anything that feels so good and natural. My girlfriend, who was apprehensive at first, finally went with me. Now, together we enjoy our place in the sun. I wish I had found this lifestyle sooner. Please don't misunderstand. This lifestyle is not for everyone. I myself cannot eat sushi. DEAR ABBY: A while back, you had a letter in your column about a girl who got an engagement ring that looked like a big diamond, but it was an imitation (cubic zirconia) which she was proudly showing around to all her friends and relatives, thinking it was real.

I guess she fooled some of the people some of the time, but it could have caused her a lot of embarrassment.

I have a different problem concerning my diamond engagement ring. My boyfriend told me that his father got it at a very good price because it was "hot" - stolen.

I love my fiance very much, but I do not feel comfortable wearing this ring, knowing its history. I do not want to appear ungrateful, and I or his father - but every time someone compliments me on my ring, I want to crawl into a hole and hide. What should I do?

Whew! Time to take a deep breath and unwind from postseason football travails

I don't know about you, but I feel like an old claiming horse that's been rode hard and put up wet.

It was great fun while it lasted, wasn't it?

Fans continue to talk about the Harvesters' history-making football season, especially the game against Sweetwater at Texas Tech's Jones Stadium in Lubbuck. More than a few people with whom I've talked already had formulated plans to go to Texas Stadium, site of the next game.

Alas, it was not in the cards. But it certainly was a season that will be remembered for years to come.

I have many fond memories of the season and, if put to music, the appropriate background music might be Willie Nelson's tune, 'On the Road Again.'

It all started for me on Sept. 6, the season opener against Levelland.

"Where's Levelland," I asked everyone within hearing distance. Most everyone told me to go to Lubbock and hang a right.

That worked and it was the first indication I'd be spending a lot of drive time going to and from games. I must admit I had never before seen a regular-season high school football schedule with so many teams located 200 or more miles away.

As the district season kicked in and most away games were within a 75-mile radius, travel was much more bearable.

However, thousands of us were on the road for the long haul again as the playoffs commenced.

First, it was Snyder at West Texas State's Buffalo Bowl; a decent sojourn.

Next, it was Andrews at Texas Tech in Lubbock and all the cotton you'd ever want to see along the way.

Then it was the scenic but slower route to Wichita Falls for the Boswell game played in cold blustery weather. A week later, it was back to Jones Stadium in Lubbock for the Sweetwater contest played in temperatures in the 60s.

My folks were in town from North Carolina for nearly two weeks and spent two Saturdays on the road with me on trips to Lubbock and Wichita Falls. Mom wrote postcards to other family ers and friends around the country explaining they were se ing Texas while in pursuit of the Hustlin' Harvesters. # Saberhagen traded in late deal

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) -Trading Bret Saberhagen away from Kansas City turned out to be a difficult experience for everyone involved.

The bottom line for the Royals was two consecutive seasons when things didn't go quite as expected.

What we did was a difficult thing," Robinson said. "We have finished sixth the last two seasons, so if Bret Saberhagen won four more Cy Young Awards and we didn't win, it doesn't mean a thing."

"To get a player like Bret Saberhagen, you have to give something up," Harazin said. "We think Jefferies is going to be a great player."

At one point, Jefferies even sent an open letter to the fans of New York explaining how he was mistreated by his teammates.

The Mets always had trouble finding a place to play him. He came up moved to second base. But he had trouble handling either position.

You may have met my mom. She was the one I passed a message to via the line in the Ladies Room at a fast-food joint in Childress.

Half the Pampa fans going to the Boswell game stopped for a hearty breakfast and/or pit stop and the place was slam full of people. I didn't want to lose our place in the food line, so I hollered, "Please ask Alan's mom what she wants."

Word quickly came back and the answer was "anything."

Everyone got a chuckle, but I suspect you had to be there to experience the full impact.

If you wondered why the band was late arriving for the Sweetwater game, blame it on mechanical breakdowns. I'm told they tried there best to be punctual.

I met and talked with a lot of fine people from Pampa during my football journeys and found it humorous that it took several hundred miles of travel to make their acquaintance.

Everyone who had anything to do with the Harvesters' success is to be congratulated. I found most everyone in the program a pleasure to be around, especially once I got to know them.

Let's do it again next year.

BITS and SPURS ... There are plenty of bits I'd like to share with you, but I've used up most of the available space. So here's the spur that's still sticking in my ribs.

Sammy Laury, owner of a lengthy and impressive list of accomplishments on the gridiron this season, was worthy of selection - AT THE VERY LEAST - as All-District Co-Player of the Year. I don't get a vote, so I guess that's just my opinion. But I bet I'm not the only one questioning that call.

uestionable questions or what not to ask during a job interview

By RICK HAMPSON Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - If you want a job in this economy, give the right answers at your interview - and don't ask the wrong questions.

Don't ask, as have some candidates for executive positions, if the company will pay to move your tombstone collection, if the health insurance policy covers dog grooming, if you can have a $40,000 loan to get out of debt.

prospective employer, a survey by the Association of Corporate & Professional Recruiters suggests that some candidates take things too far.
