North, South Korea sign historic accord

By C.W. LIM
Associated Press Writer

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — North and South Korea today signed a non-aggression agreement, pledging to put a formal end to the Korean War and help reunite the millions of relatives separated by their division.

The accord, if fully implemented, is seen as a major step toward unification of the Korean peninsula, divided since 1945 and the last theater of the Cold War.

Moments before signing the historic accord, the two nations also issued a joint statement vowing to work toward a nuclear-free peninsula. Leaders said both sides would meet Dec. 21 to study the goal.

It was unclear whether the simple pledge could solve the peninsula's nuclear tensions, which have been highlighted in recent months by revelations about the Communist North's nuclear arms development program.

The reconciliation agreement did not address nuclear issues, as had been agreed before the talks, according to officials.

Divided since the end of World War II, the South developed into an industrial democracy, while the North remained fiercely isolationist. But as communist governments fell in the past two years, the North found itself alone and in economic trouble.

The signing capped a year of broadening contact between the countries. This year, the Koreans fielded their first joint international sports teams, staged sports, music and civilian exchanges and joined the United Nations as separate nations.

"Today, the tide of reconciliation and cooperation flowing worldwide has reached this land," said South Korean Prime Minister Chung Won-shik as he signed the accord.

The 25-point document includes wide-ranging proposals on reconciliation, non-aggression, economic cooperation and exchanges. It prepares the way for arms reduction talks, a peace treaty to replace the armistice which ended the 1950-53 Korean War and talks on eventual unification.

The two nations agreed to set up liaison offices at the border village of Panmunjom, a move that will help reunite 10 million families separated by the division of the peninsula and the Korean War.

The North also for the first time agreed to call for efforts to reunite such families.

Both sides also agreed to ban attempts to overthrow the other's government. North Korea's Constiitution still carries a commitment to convert the South to communism by force.

By signing the accord on reconciliation, North Korea has for the first time officially recognized the existence of the South.

Despite the euphoria of the signing, no timetable exists for any of the proposals and most observers predict North Korea will insist on lengthy discussions and many controls before agreeing to carry them out. North Korean Premier Yon Hyong Muk warned today that the 1992 joint U.S.-South Korean military exercises "must be reconsidered." North Korea has long demanded a halt to the exercises and boycotted the prime ministers' talks for 10 months after the 1991 exercises.

South Korea's Chung also urged North Korea to accept its proposal of simultaneous inspections of suspected nuclear weapons sites, including U.S. bases in the South. The South Korean suggestion Wednesday led to speculation that the United States has removed nuclear weapons from the South.

The North Korean leader made no response, but the two sides said two delegates and three nuclear experts from each side would meet at Panmunjom on Dec. 21 to discuss the nuclear issue.

It was unlikely that today's pledge to work together on nuclear non-proliferation will defuse escalating international demands that North Korea fully open to inspections and abandon nuclear weapons development.

In Seoul, news of the breakthrough surprised many South Koreans, who have grown blasé over the on-and-off talks between the rivals since the early 1970s.

Newspapers devoted entire sections to the agreement. Television reports showed the signing live and replayed it all morning.

South Korean President Roh Tae-woo held a luncheon for the delegations before their departure and met with Yon, reportedly to ask him to convey a personal message to Communist leader Kim Il Sung requesting consultations in January or February to set up summit talks, which both presidents have said they wanted.

The two sides agreed to meet Feb. 18 to exchange final documents after ratification of the agreement by South Korea's National Assembly and the North's Supreme People's Assembly.

Economic imperatives propelled both countries toward the rapprochement.

The North's economy is virtually bankrupt and there are frequent reports of energy and food shortages. Its traditional allies, the Soviet Union and China, cannot or will not supply additional credit.

South Korea is well aware of the agreement's financial and political dividends. Seoul is hoping for warmer relations with China, the North's main ally, and a potentially vast market for South Korean goods.

Five more join Yeltsin's commonwealth; Gorbachev pressured for resignation

By ALAN COOPERMAN
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — Five Central Asian republics today agreed to join Russian President Boris Yeltsin's new commonwealth, turning a cold shoulder to Mikhail S. Gorbachev's hopes of preserving the Soviet Union.

The move places further pressure on Gorbachev, who appears on the verge of resigning as Soviet president.

A Kremlin source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Gorbachev is likely to resign when the legislatures of most of the remaining 12 Soviet republics formally vote to join the Commonwealth of Independent States. That could come as early as next week, said the source.

Gorbachev's official spokesman, Andrei Grachev, commenting on the reports of impending resignation, said "there will be no sensation today." But Grachev noted that Gorbachev had told Soviet journalists on Thursday that he would resign "as a matter of principle" if a majority of republics joined Yeltsin's commonwealth.

Russia, Ukraine and Byelorussia formed the still-loosely defined commonwealth Sunday to replace a central government whose power waned following the August failed coup by hard-line Communists.

Today, the leaders of Kazakhstan and the predominantly Muslim republics of Kirgizia, Tadjikistan, Uzbekistan and Turkmenistan voted to join during a meeting in Ashkhabad, the Turkmen capital, the Tass news agency reported.

Their decision leaves only four relatively small republics outside the commonwealth — Georgia, Azerbaijan, Armenia and Moldavia — all of which say they are considering joining.

"We understand the drive of the leaders of Byelorussia, Russia and Ukraine to create in the place of previously shackled republics, a commonwealth of independent law-governed states," the five Central Asian republics said in a statement, according to Tass.

Candidates begin filing for primary elections

By BETH MILLER

Three people have officially filed for the office of Gray County sheriff to be on the March primary ballot as of this morning, according to Democrat and Republican party chairmen.

Randy Stubblefield and Ken Kieth have both filed for the office of sheriff, subject to the Democratic primary on March 10, said Democrat Party County Chairman John Warner.

Fred Brown has filed for the office of sheriff, subject to the Republican primary on March 10, said Republican Party County

Mikhail Gorbachev

Radio Russia said Yeltsin telephoned Uzbek President Islam Karimov to welcome their membership and to pledge that they could join as equal partners, as they had demanded.

"Karimov has received an affirmative answer to the question of the possibility of the Central Asian republics taking part in founding the commonwealth," Radio Russia said.

The three founding Slavic republics comprise the bulk of the Soviet Union's industrial and agricultural might, as well as most of its territory and population. Kazakhstan, the second-largest Soviet republic, also has substantial resources, and is the only non-Slavic territory with nuclear weapons.

Still, the commonwealth will face the same economic morass bedeviling the Kremlin, at a time when severe food shortages are predicted for winter.

In the most recent crisis, the country is facing a fuel shortage that Tass reported forced more than half of all Soviet airports to close Thursday and led to the cancellation of most domestic flights of the state Aeroflot airline.

U.S. officials, some of whom have expressed concern that hard-ship could lead to all-out civil strife and a loss of control over the Soviet nuclear arsenal, on Thursday announced a new aid effort. The White House said President Bush would hold an international conference early next month to coordinate humanitarian assistance to the Soviet Union.

In the latest ethnic strife, a gun battle broke out today between police and separatists in the self-proclaimed Trans-Dniester Republic of eastern Moldavia, officials said. The Tass news agency said 13 people died.

Moldavian President Mircea Snegur broke off a visit to Byelorussia and was returning to his capital, Kishinev, because of the crisis, Tass said.

Yeltsin has said the new grouping will be able to tackle the country's problems because it will do away with the central bureaucracy that resisted the radical market reform the republics want.

On Thursday, the Russian Parliament overwhelmingly ratified the commonwealth agreement, and Gorbachev told reporters he would quit if the republics clearly chose it over his proposed Union Treaty.

"If that's how the process ends, I will resign. It is completely clear, no question about it," he said.

Gorbachev is seeking to preserve a single legal state with a central government in Moscow. The commonwealth would make each of the republics fully independent, although they would have joint control over nuclear weapons.

The Byelorussian capital, Minsk, would be the home of the commonwealth's coordinating body, which has not yet been created or even defined.

Yeltsin, in a short, plain-spoken address to the Russian legislature before it gave its approval, said the commonwealth represented perhaps "the last chance" for preserving order and cooperation among the republics.

Yeltsin announced Thursday that he had the support of the Soviet military, and Moldavia's Snegur said after meeting the Russian president that his republic had a "positive attitude" toward the new formation.

Chairwoman Susan Tripplehorn. In other Republican filings, Joe Billingsley has filed for the office of Precinct 4 constable, Tripplehorn said.

People who want to run for county offices up for election this year need to file with the respective county party chairperson. Warner can be reached at his office at 669-3397 and Tripplehorn can be reached at 665-8525.

In Gray County, offices up for election in 1992 will be the sheriff's office, district clerk (unexpired term), district attorney, tax assessor/collector, county attorney, county commissioners in Precincts 1 and 3, and all constables.

Parks, recreation employees give up Christmas party to help needy kids

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Employees of the city Parks and Recreation Department have voted to forego an inter-departmental Christmas party this year in favor of using those funds to buy clothing for Salvation Army Angel Tree children.

Combining the employee Coke fund with money raised from sales of aluminum cans found in the parks and out-of-pocket donations, the 13 employees had raised $600 through Thursday.

Reed Kirkpatrick, Parks Department director, said, "We had a brain-storming time (Wednesday) and ... decided we wanted to do something for somebody else rather than just for ourselves."

Rick Nelson, a maintenance worker, first brought up the idea and it was unanimously supported.

"I've picked out a name (of an Angel Child) a time or two in the past and one year I was going through it and found the name of (a relative's) kids. That made it all hit home. I've always wanted to be able to go out with a big bundle of money and spend it helping people and doing good. I brought this idea up and within 15 seconds I had $270."

Nelson's wife Karla was entrusted with the funds and went shopping, playing Santa for children who otherwise would have done without.

"Rather than using that money for us, we wanted to reach out and share with people who are less fortunate," Kirkpatrick said.

Six children from a Salvation Army Angel Tree have been selected. Kirkpatrick said those children will receive everything on their clothing wish list.

"We went out and bought top-quality clothing, too," he said. "We wanted them to have things they could be proud of."

Admitting they are far from rich, the 13 blue-collar workers all said they believe by giving to the poor they are enriching their own holiday experience.

"You can't beat the way these guys rallied around to help out," Nelson said.

Terry Brown stated, "I'm doing this because everybody deserves a chance to get something for Christmas. This is a time for sharing. Every year around Christmas time on my own I make up a basket and give it to a needy family because Christmas is about sharing."

"We all agreed to chip in and everybody in the department took what money they had out of their billfolds and gave that, too," Kirkpatrick noted. "They are a special group of people."

A trustee working off a traffic fine by picking up trash was so moved by the act of charity, he went home and gathered up a substantial amount of aluminum cans he had been saving and donated their proceeds to clothing for the children.

"It's better to give than to receive and that's why we're doing it," said Ken Miller.

He then forwarded a challenge to other city departments to also adopt needy children through the Salvation Army campaign or Toys for Tots.

"I'd like to see all the other departments come through and help out the best they can," Miller said.

Kimberly Lincycumb noted, "This is great. It's in the true spirit of Christmas. These people I work with are heroes. They are heroes every day when they do things like this to help somebody else who is less fortunate."

Bill Hildebrandt, Community Services director, noted that every year city employees are each given turkeys at Christmas time.

"I know that several of the people in the Parks and Recreation Department, none of whom could be called wealthy, have turned around and given their bird to a poor family. They are really dedicated to helping others," Hildebrandt said.

Moler files for election as district clerk

Yvonne Moler announced today that she has filed for the office of Gray County district clerk, seeking the Democratic nomination in the March primary.

Moler was appointed as district clerk effective Dec. 1 this year by State District Judges Lee Waters of Pampa and M. Kent Sims of Wheeler.

Prior to her appointment as district clerk, Moler was employed by the clerk's office for nine years, serving as chief deputy for about 5 1/2 years.

"I have enjoyed working in the District Clerk's Office and find it very rewarding. The work of the office is very involved and challenging," Moler said. "There are many laws which govern the duties of the clerk and must be followed carefully.

"This is extremely important in order for the cases reaching the court's docket to be efficiently processed. It is necessary to stay current with the changes in legislation and court rules in order to be in compliance with the law."

One of Moler's primary goals is the restructuring of staff assignments and organizing procedures in order to save taxpayer dollars. With the computerization of the office, the efficiency has been greatly improved in various areas such as filing and processing civil and criminal cases and handling child support payments.

Moler has lived in Pampa for 27 years. She and her husband, Joyce, have been married for 39 years and have three children and eight grandchildren. They are active members of the Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ, and enjoy working with the Senior Christian Program.

Consumer prices rise 0.4 percent in November

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose 0.4 percent last month as food and energy costs turned sharply higher, the government said today.

The advance in the Labor Department's widely watched Consumer Price Index was blamed on a big jump in food costs that reflected in part the whitefly infestation in California and higher gasoline costs.

Despite the higher-than-expected spurt in consumer prices, analysts said they still believed the Federal Reserve had room to cut interest rates further to spur the weak economy.

The only debate was over the timing. Many analysts argued that the Fed would most likely wait until after a key policymaking meeting next Tuesday, but others contended that the reduction could come sooner given the need to bolster demand during the all-important Christmas buying season.

The government's data on business inventories, also released today, showed goods piling up faster than they could be sold during October.

Retail inventories jumped 1.5 percent, and recent reports indicate they were not being depleted substantially in the early days of the holiday shopping season.

The Commerce Department said inventories overall rose 0.4 percent to a seasonally adjusted $812.8 billion, up from $809.8 billion a month earlier. It was the second consecutive advance after seven straight drops.

At the same time, it said sales increased just 0.3 percent to a seasonally adjusted $542.7 billion, compared to $540.9 billion in September. It also was the second consecutive gain in sales.

Analysts said they were not concerned about the 0.4 percent rise in consumer prices, which was sharply higher than October's 0.1 percent increase. They said most of the price pressures were located in the volatile food and energy categories.

The so-called core rate of inflation, absent food and energy, was better behaved, rising 0.3 percent last month.

Even with November's increase, consumer prices were still rising at an annual rate of just 2.9 percent for the first 11 months of this year, sharply below last year's 6.1 percent increase.

Analysts said with the economy threatening to drop back into recession because of weak consumer demand, there was little chance that price pressures will get out of hand anytime soon.

November's increase reflected an acceleration in food costs, which rose 0.4 percent last month after having fallen in three of the previous four months.

Leading the advance in food costs was a huge 44.5 percent jump in lettuce prices and a 12.7 percent increase in tomato prices. Both increases were blamed on shortages caused by whitefly infestations in California.

Beef and veal prices, which had been falling for five months, rose 0.9 percent in November. Partially offsetting the price gains was a 17.1 percent drop in the price of oranges. This followed a 14.1 percent decrease in orange prices in October.

Energy costs jumped 0.8 percent in October, their biggest advance since August. Gasoline pump prices were up 1.3 percent but were still 16.6 percent lower than their peak level reached a year ago in the aftermath of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

Lake McClellan group picks student's logo design entry

Lake McClellan Improvement Inc. board members Thursday night selected the logo design submitted by Pampa public school student Laura Johnson as the winning contest entry to represent the organization.

Action came after board members reviewed the other nine entries that were submitted for consideration.

The design submitted by the 13-year-old Laura is a circle which encompasses a multi-colored outdoor lake scene of water, a tree, rising sun, birds and sky. The phrase "Lake McClellan Recreation Area, Gray County, Texas" is printed within the frame encircling the orange, purple, blue and green lake scene.

Board members voted to amend the phrase "Lake McClellan Recreation Area" to read "Lake McClellan Improvement Inc."

As winner of the contest, Laura will receive an individual lifetime membership to the improvement organization and two Lake McClellan caps.

The board expressed its appreciation to everyone who submitted a contest entry.

Laura is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jay Johnson of 2517 Beech. She is an eighth grader at Pampa Middle School.

In other business Thursday night, the board approved establishing a committee to advise Gray County about ways in which to get the concession program at the lake started.

The committee members named will represent a broad base of the area population to solicit ideas and give input. A master list will be prepared from which the membership will be selected.

The board announced there will be a public meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 23, at the Gray County Courthouse to discuss the annual lake user fee.

The annual fee now is $65 for a base fee for one family household, $15 per recreational vehicle, $7.50 per motorcycle and $35 per boat. The current daily fee schedule is $2 per person, $1 each per motorcycle and horse, and $2 per boat.

The next regular board meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, Jan. 23, at the Gray County Courthouse.

Randy Stubblefield announces Gray County sheriff candidacy

Randy Stubblefield formally announced his candidacy for the office of Gray County Sheriff today, subject to the Democratic primary.

Stubblefield, a former Pampa Police Department detective, said, "My goal is to join with the people of Gray County in a commitment to have the most professional and effective sheriff's department in our area."

"With today's crime it will take a joint effort between law enforcement and the community to suppress criminal activity."

Stubblefield is a certified law enforcement officer and is a graduate of the Panhandle Regional Law Enforcement Academy. He is currently commissioned and licensed as a Texas peace officer. He has served as a patrolman, sergeant, training officer, S.W.A.T. team member and detective. He had been employed by Phillips Petroleum Co. for the past 13 years.

He has received training from the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Texas Department of Public Safety in narcotics investigation, crime scene search, child abuse, traffic accident investigation, crime prevention and S.W.A.T. He has worked directly with the FBI and other federal agencies in local and area investigations.

He has also worked with the Potter-Randall County Metro Intelligence Agency and has presented programs at area schools on drug awareness and identification.

"I have the experience to be sheriff," Stubblefield said. "I have had the advantage of having served as a law enforcement officer and having worked in the private sector as well. We need both sectors working together if we are going to win the battle against crime."

Stubblefield said, "The community's trust and respect is what allows a sheriff to be effective. I will work hard to gain that respect if I am elected Gray County sheriff."

He and his wife, Debbie, have been married for 20 years. They have two children, a daughter, Shelly, 17, and a son, Tyler, 12. They attend Central Baptist Church.

Stubblefield has been active in 4-H work. He has sponsored the Pampa High School Rodeo Club and he served as a coach in the Optimist Bambino Baseball program earlier this year.

Patients to be advised of living will, other rights

The living will or some form of advance directive about the patient's right to refuse or accept care will be discussed with each adult patient on admission at Coronado Hospital, according to Bruce W. Reinhardt, administrator. The Patient Self Determination Act, requiring the information on admission, went into effect in hospitals across the nation Dec. 1.

The law is part of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of November 1990, and requires all hospitals, nursing facilities, hospices, home health care institutions and health maintenance organizations that receive Medicare or Medicaid to provide adult patients with information about their right to accept or refuse treatment.

Coronado Hospital began a program last year, Reinhardt said, to increase patients' knowledge of their rights in determining treatment. "We sponsored a living will seminar that was very well attended," he noted, "and we gave out hundreds of copies of the living will to people who were interested."

The only change the law has made at Coronado Hospital is that each patient is now asked if the patient has a living will or a durable power of attorney form. That information is noted on the chart. Patients will be given a brochure that explains their rights to accept or refuse treatment. Patients will also be given the appropriate documents if they want to execute an advance directive.

"We've had policies in place for years that allowed patients to make that determination. This law will simply formalize the process to insure that all patients are informed of their rights," he said.

In Texas, methods for preparing advance directives are established through the Natural Death Act and the Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care Act.

The new federal law will help disseminate information about patient rights and encourage individuals to exercise options for preparing advance directives.

There are specific guidelines for drafting a directive under the state law. The living will allows patients to say what type of life-prolonging medical care would be used in the event they become unable to make medical decisions. The living will must be signed by two witnesses who are not heirs, relatives or health care providers. The patient issuing a directive must be a competent adult. An advance directive may be prepared on behalf of someone under age 18 by that minor person's adult spouse, parents or legal guardian.

Before a directive may be carried out, the terminal illness must be confirmed and certified by two physicians. The directive may be revoked easily by the patient at any time, even in the final stages of a terminal illness. The patient simply has to tell his physician that he wishes to receive life-sustaining treatment at all times, and this will supersede the directive.

The durable power of attorney, another type of advance directive, simply allows the patient to name a proxy who will make health care decisions for the patient in the event that the patient is unable to do so. The document must be signed by the patient and two qualified witnesses, and it must be sound of mind, was aware of the nature of the document, and signed voluntarily and while free of duress.

The person given power of attorney for health care may exercise authority only if the patient's attending physician, following specific guidelines, judges that the patient lacks the capacity to make health care decisions. The transfer of power is revoked if the patient regains decision-making capabilities.

The staff at Coronado Hospital has been gearing up for several weeks to be sure that the requirements of the law are met. A task force with business office, nursing, administration and others has met several times to formulate the new policies.

We wish you the happiest of Holiday Seasons.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

U.S. aerospace feels the crunch

McDonnell Douglas has tentatively agreed to sell 40 percent of its commercial aircraft business to Taiwan Aerospace Corp., which is financed by the Taiwanese government and the private sector. The $2 billion deal would clearly benefit the struggling U.S. aerospace giant. But it raises anew the question of whether this country should be doing more to hold onto its key industries.

If the U.S. and Taiwanese governments approve, St. Louis-based McDonnell Douglas would spin off its commercial aircraft division into a new company that would have both U.S. and Asian manufacturing plants. As this nation's largest defense contractor, McDonnell Douglas would retain majority ownership and management control and keep its military business separate. The arrangement could rejuvenate McDonnell Douglas, which the Pentagon's chief auditor recently warned was lumbering toward bankruptcy.

The firm would gain a big cash infusion to reduce its heavy debt, along with the ability to produce a new wide-body jet that could rival aircraft made by Boeing and Airbus Industries, a European consortium. Other benefits include access to low-cost labor and the growing Asian market. On balance, the advantages of the proposed deal outweigh the drawbacks.

Indeed, analysts and industry experts say McDonnell Douglas had to find a partner or face losing more of the market and eventually its existing business. The company said it was unable to find a U.S. investor. International joint ventures are becoming more commonplace. The nation's two biggest jet engine makers, General Electric and Pratt & Whitney, both have joint ventures with European firms. Boeing has subcontracted partners in Japan and Italy.

At the same time, the proposed sale draws attention to the shrinking U.S. share of the world's market for commercial airliners and the rise of government-subsidized competitors like Airbus. According to the Aerospace Industries Association, in 1987 Boeing had 64 percent of the market, McDonnell Douglas 23 percent and Airbus 8 percent. Today, Boeing has 50 percent, Airbus 21 percent and McDonnell Douglas 20 percent.

Some analysts raise fears that the American aerospace sector will experience the same fate as steel, automotive, machine tool and other manufacturing industries in which the United States has lost market share, technological leadership and jobs to foreign competitors. They say deals such as that with Taiwan Aerospace can lead to the transfer of valuable American technology.

The Bush administration is rightly opposed to government meddling in the free market and international trade. But many in the aerospace industry believe the government could play a greater role in aiding research and development and fighting the predatory practices of government-subsidized competitors abroad. The Taiwan Aerospace deal cannot be put on hold while issues vital to the aerospace industry's competitiveness are resolved, but it certainly increases the need to address them.

Notes from the boondocks

CHARLESTON, S.C. — A White House advisor, I see by The New York Times, has been fairly trembling with anxious anticipation. "The whole town," he said on that Monday, "is waiting for the other shoe to drop." The advisor was talking about reports that John Sununu, the president's chief of staff, was about to get the old heave-ho.

Well, on Tuesday, Sununu did get the old heave-ho. He resigned in a graceful letter remembering the fun times but acknowledging the not-so-fun times. As a pit bull or a pussycat, he would always be at the president's service. Said the gentleman as he was leaving Air Force One, hereafter to fly by coach, "It really has been great!!!"

The story merited scarcely one-bank-mark, let alone three. This was a peculiarly Washington story. Here in Charleston, the loveliest city on the seacoast, no one was waiting breathlessly for the White House shoes to drop. To the best of my knowledge, few Charlestonians give a Rhet Butler damn about the future of John Sununu. Here in the boondocks Sununu doesn't matter.

I am talking about perspective. In recent weeks I have been traveling in the South and Midwest, and I have been learning all over again what a principal, myopic, self-centered city is the capital of the nation. For a few days the Washington press corps will be completely absorbed in the Sununu story and in the "disarray" in the Oval Office. What will become of Sununu? Who will fill his vital role? Who will run the Bush campaign? You would think the job of chief of staff ranks with the presidency itself. The White House atmosphere, says the Times, is "highly charged."

Well, well, well. Beyond the Washington Belt-

way, out where the real America begins, I find no evidence of deep concern about such peripheral matters.

People are talking about unemployment. They are concerned about crime, especially the mindless, wanton crime that stems from drug abuse. They are worried about the high cost of living, about the high cost of a college education, about the burden of taxes. In my travels I sensed increasing impatience at programs of public welfare. Without any coaching on my part, many strangers expressed deep dismay at the decline of old moral values.

I met a furniture dealer from Iowa. He was largely concerned about the quality of education in our public schools. He was more immediately concerned about Christmas sales. Flying from somewhere to somewhere, I sat by the sales manager of a small company making truck parts. He was worried about his job.

Washington, D.C., is only 500 miles north of Charleston, little more than an hour by air, but the capital might as well be 10,000 miles away. It was front-page news here a few days ago when a carriage horse suddenly panicked and went galloping down Meeting Street at runaway speed. The horse's name was Duke. Make something of the coincidence if you will.

The world as it is seen from a bench in Battery Park is not the world as seen from the Press Club bar. The local Post and Courier keeps South Carolinians well informed on world news of importance. It is not as if the boondocks were on some other planet.

I believe this is true elsewhere. Students at the College of the Ozarks in southern Mississippi, where I recently lectured, impressed me with their grasp of things that really matter. They were interested in the coming presidential election, but if I had dwelled upon the mechanics of polling, fund raising, speechwriting and scheduling, I would have lost them.

The farther one gets from Washington, the better the perspective. We bench sitters talk mostly of the weather, the blossoming winter camellias and the Palm Beach trial of Willie Kennedy Smith. If we talk politics at all, it is to speculate on the re-election next year of Sen. Ernest "Fritz" Hollings. When people talk about Congress, they talk in tones of contempt for the institution. They resent congressional perquisites. "Who do these guys think they are?"

It is better this way. From a distance the great disarray within the White House seems not so great at all. Who today remembers John Ehrlichman? Bob Haldeman? Don Regan? Howard Baker? They too were presidential chiefs of staff. They came and went. Life goes on.

Out in the boonies we don't wait for White House shoes to drop. When they fall, they fall as silently as slippers.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Dec. 13th, the 347th day of 1991. There are 18 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Dec. 13, 1577, five ships commanded by Sir Francis Drake embarked on Drake's famous circumnavigation of the globe, a journey that took almost three years.

On this date:

In 1642, New Zealand was discovered by Dutch navigator Abel Tasman.

In 1835, Phillips Brooks, the American Episcopal bishop who wrote the words to "O Little Town of Bethlehem," was born in Boston.

In 1862, Union forces suffered a major defeat at the hands of the Confederates at the Battle of Fredericksburg.

In 1918, President Wilson arrived in France, becoming the first chief executive to visit a European nation while in office.

In 1928, George Gershwin's musical work An American in Paris had its premiere, at Carnegie Hall in New York.

In 1944, during World War II, a Japanese "kamikaze" plane crashed into the U.S. cruiser Nashville, killing 138 crewmen.

Mr. Young's town doing fine

For 30 years I'd been hearing about "the rust-belt." Surely that must be America's unlovely and embarrassing back yard.

So I went looking for it. If the rustbelt is where our steel industry is, I knew where to begin my search. I aimed my jet toward the valley of the Mahoning River in Ohio.

There, 170 years ago, a man named Young discovered iron ore and Brian Hill coal in just the parallel quantity necessary to make pig-iron and just the right amount of limestone to smelt pig-iron into steel.

Young called his pioneer village "Young's Town."

Youngstown flourished. By 1810 there were 773 people thereabouts. By 1890 there were 33,000.

Something about Youngstown, generation after generation, bred uncommon men — the Rev. William McGuffey, who authored our nation's best-ever schoolbooks, and the Rev. George Bernard, who wrote "The Old Rugged Cross." Early political and industrial giants sprang from roots in Youngstown.

Paul Harvey

But then — in our own time — high wages, alternative construction materials and cheap imports put our nation's ailing steel industry to bed and eventually to sleep.

Steel towns, wherever, became known as "the rustbelt."

I settled out of a leaden winter sky, folded my wings and went looking for rust.

What I found was a state university, thriving, expanding.

I found a Museum of Modern Art — 17 enormous galleries — displaying the most precious such collection between New York and Chicago.

I found a Symphony Center as elegant as any anywhere and an orchestra worthy of it.

A handsome classic courthouse — restored with loving care and private money.

This hub of five railroads for a population of 100,000-plus has 30 city parks!

And hospitals and tree-lined avenues of elegant homes on lawns wide and deep.

Where steel once was everything, half a hundred thriving industries now are.

All this plus 15 — count them, 15 — golf courses!

I went looking for the rust. I found none in Youngstown, Ohio. There were just enough river-front ghosts to keep folks reminded how far they've come. Except that homefolks will be the last to know. Youngstown is under-appreciated only by its own citizens who are as yet unaware that running scared from the blast furnace flameout they've run on ahead of most of the rest of us.

I know now where hometown boy Dave Dravecky got his get-up-when-you-fall-down courage. Lead on, Youngstown. And please don't ever feel sorry for yourself. Nobody else would.

What the Duke vote means for '92

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER

We had all better be a little cautious about the meaning of David Duke's defeat by Edwin Edwards in the Louisiana gubernatorial run-off.

The Democrats are entitled to feel gratified by the sheer power of the artillery they were able to bring to bear on Duke, especially the perfectly real threat to destroy Louisiana's vital tourism industry if he was elected.

Much less impressive, however, was their attempt to suggest that Duke is in some way the logical consequence of some allegedly "racist" agenda secretly pursued by the GOP ever since the days of Goldwater and Reagan.

The truth is that the Republican Party deserves great credit for having resisted raising relevant but delicate racial issues as long as it has. The reason it could afford to do so was that the voters were electing its candidates to the White House anyway, and nobody else was trying to raise and pre-empt the issues in question.

David Duke has changed all that, however. The really remarkable fact about the Louisiana election is not that Edwards won 96 percent of the large black vote, but that Duke — despite all the bloodcurdling threats and enormous pressures — won 55 percent of the white vote.

When one reflects that whites outnumber blacks nearly seven to one in the U.S. population as a whole, the implication of Duke's showing is sobering indeed.

The liberal media have attempted to explain the white vote on the ground that "people are hurting" economically, as a result of the recession, and feared black competition for jobs, etc., more than ordinary. But while that may be true of some whites, it can hardly be true of 55 percent of all white voters.

What Duke has tapped into is a longstanding, widespread resentment, on the part of the great majority of America's whites, over what they perceive to be profoundly mistaken governmental policies toward America's blacks. Rightly or wrongly, they believe that these policies amount to little more than subsidizing (and largely with taxes raised from whites, at that) all sorts of counter-productive behavior on the part of many black citizens. They furthermore believe that many government policies are deliberately designed to cover benefits on blacks at the expense of whites who are objectively more entitled to receive them.

Hitherto, insofar as these beliefs played any part in our national politics, they benefited the Republicans, because the Democratic Party was rightly seen as the force behind those policies.

But if David Duke now elbows his way into the Republican presidential primaries as a symbol of opposition to such policies, President Bush will have to make it clear that he is opposed to not only Duke's transparent bigotry but to the policies that Duke is quite correctly criticizing.

What's more, if Duke manages, as George Wallace did in 1968, to mount an independent presidential campaign in all 50 states, or even most of them, in the November election, then Mr. Bush will be compelled to try to convince voters who might be tempted to vote for Duke (to "send a message" to Washington) that he, Bush, already has their message and agrees with it: no "quotas," no "race-norming," no subsidies for additional children of unmarried mothers, a work requirement for every able-bodied welfare recipient, etc.

Are such views "racist"? On the contrary, many students of our national problems, including a growing number of thoughtful blacks, believe they would be in the best interest of black Americans themselves.

The Democrats, nevertheless, are calculating that if Mr. Bush can be kept away from the above issues by charges of "racism," enough white voters may be won over by Duke to deprive Bush of key states — as Wallace deprived Nixon in 1968, almost costing him the election.

Water Commission adopts rules for pollution prevention

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Water Commission has adopted rules requiring business and industry to prepare plans for reducing toxic pollutants released to the environment and the amount of hazardous waste they generate.

The rules are mandated under a new law that also places new requirements on the location of hazardous waste facilities.

"These new rules are a major step toward our goal of reducing by 70 percent the generation and disposal of hazardous waste and toxic substances by the year 2000," commission Chairman John Hall said in a Thursday statement.

About 1,000 manufacturing plants in Texas are required by federal law to annually report the amounts of about 325 toxic chemicals they release into the air, water or soil.

In addition to the toxic release requirements, there are about 4,000 generators of hazardous waste that will be subject to the new rules.

The rules will require Texas facilities to develop a five-year plan to reduce hazardous waste and toxic pollutants at their generation source, and to minimize any remaining waste to the greatest extent possible.

Companies falling under the new law will be required to notify the commission when their plans are completed and to report annually on their progress toward achieving goals.

Smith lawyer claims Sen. Edward Kennedy was prosecutor's real target

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — William Kennedy Smith's lawyer says his acquittal wasn't a setback for rape victims but a victory against an effort to put the Kennedy family on trial.

"This case is a landmark for Will Smith and his family," lawyer Roy Black said Thursday during a whirlwind day of interviews about his defense of the 31-year-old nephew of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

"It's not a case that should change rape law or the way rape cases are handled," he said.

A spokeswoman for Smith said he was relaxing at the Kennedy estate on Thursday and looking forward to resuming his medical career in January, when he will start a residency he postponed at the University of New Mexico hospital.

Black said he doubted Smith's accuser would file a civil lawsuit in light of the jury's brief deliberation Wednesday before acquitting Smith of rape and assault.

"I think this case has virtually destroyed that claim," Black said.

The burden of proof in civil cases is not nearly as strict as in criminal cases. David Roth, lawyer for Smith's 30-year-old accuser, said pursuing such a lawsuit would be up to the woman and her family.

Black said he thought the trial was more about getting a Kennedy than examining what happened at the estate last Easter weekend.

"I tend to think it wouldn't have gone as far as it did if he wasn't a Kennedy," Black said. "They put Will on trial, but they really wanted to prosecute Ted."

"People may criticize Ted Kennedy. But when he comes into a courtroom and sits 10 feet from the jurors, they can't help but be impressed. This is a piece of American history."

Black said prosecutor Moira Lasch should never have called the senator to the stand, saying she "underestimated the charisma of Ted Kennedy."

"I was watching those jurors. They were transfixed. They had tears in their eyes," Black said.

Kennedy testified about taking his nephew and son Patrick to a nightclub where Smith met his accuser. But he also reminded jurors of the Kennedys' tragic history, referring to his slain brother Robert Kennedy and to Jackie Kennedy Onassis.

Mrs. Lasch declined to talk to the media, keeping to the policy she held throughout the case.

However, Florida State Attorney David Bludworth, who filed the charges against Smith, defended her prosecution, which has been criticized as not aggressive enough.

"There's been a lot of Monday morning quarterbacking done by so-called trial experts, but this was a very difficult case from the beginning," said Bludworth, who was in Cleveland on Thursday at a national conference celebrating the 200th anniversary of the Bill of Rights.

"This type of case in which there is alleged date rape is too often not prosecuted, because it's a very hard one to prove, but it was investigated very thoroughly before I filed the charges," said Bludworth.

Smith's accuser passed a lie detector test, but that was inadmissible as evidence.

The judge's refusal to allow a rape trauma expert to testify and her refusal to allow the testimony of three other women who said Smith attacked them severely hurt the prosecution, Bludworth said.

Black also praised his opponent's legal skills.

"I don't like Mrs. Lasch," he said. "We don't even say good morning to each other. But I think she was a worthy adversary. She was tough, aggressive and it would a serious mistake for anyone to underestimate that woman."

Her most potent witness, Black said, was the accuser.

"Her testimony was the most dramatic I've ever seen, virtually impossible to cross-examine," he said. "Whoever prepared (her) for her testimony deserves a supporting Oscar. As one lawyer to another, I take my hat off to them."

Juror Lea Haller, 37, said she thought both the defense and prosecution did fine jobs, but in the end it was the lack of physical evidence — especially the lack of damage to the accuser's clothing — that persuaded her to vote for acquittal.

"We were all scared to death," Haller said Thursday. "We were petrified we'd do something wrong and cause a mistrial."

Rottweiler pulls paraplegic owner from flaming van

FRANKLIN, Ind. (AP) — A paraplegic woman credits her pet Rottweiler for pulling her from her van moments before the vehicle burst into flames.

The dog, named Eve, dragged Kathie Vaughn, 41, from the vehicle Wednesday night after it caught fire along Interstate 65 near Franklin, the Indianapolis woman said.

"When I pulled up, the dog was pulling the lady through the grass, to get her away from the fire," said Trooper Mike Snider of the Indiana State Police.

Vaughn, who is paralyzed from the waist down, escaped uninjured, but her 6-year-old dog suffered burns on the pads of her paws.

Vaughn, an antiques dealer, said she was headed toward Atlanta for an antiques show when she heard a single pop and smelled smoke in her brand new van. As she pulled to a stop on the shoulder of the road, she saw smoke coming from the engine compartment.

When Vaughn realized she couldn't control the fire, she began gathering the parts of her disassembled wheelchair. But "the smoke was really getting bad and I was disoriented at this point," she said.

Eve grabbed Vaughn and pulled her out the door of the van. Vaughn fell to the ground and the 104-pound dog pulled her away, dragging her into a drainage ditch about 20 feet from the vehicle.

"Not too long after we got there, the cab poofed," Vaughn said, and flames spread quickly through the passenger and cargo areas, destroying the load of antiques.

Snider was summoned by a trucker who reported the fire on a citizens band radio, but the trooper was unable to stop the flames with a fire extinguisher that he carries in his car.

As for Eve, she continued to protect her owner — this time from the policeman. The dog "had to help me get to the police car, because she wouldn't let the policeman get to me," Vaughn said.

Vaughn said the heroics were second nature for Eve, even though the dog has had no special training for working with the handicapped.

"That's the true nature of the Rottweiler," she said. "They're very loyal and loving and will take care of their owners at all cost."

Judge cites families' privacy in refusing to release Challenger tape

By LAURIE ASSEO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Families of astronauts killed in the 1986 Challenger explosion would suffer pain and invasion of privacy if the tape of the crew members' last words were released, a federal judge says.

U.S. District Judge Norma Holloway Johnson on Thursday refused to order the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to release the tape, which was sought in a lawsuit filed by The New York Times.

"Exposure to the voice of a beloved family member immediately prior to that family member's death is what would cause the Challenger families pain," Johnson wrote.

Johnson had ruled in 1987 that the tape must be released, but her decision was overturned 6-5 by a federal appeals court. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit said in December the judge could not order the tape released without balancing the public interest against the invasion of privacy question.

The New York Times said the tape might help show what caused the Jan. 28, 1986, explosion that killed all seven astronauts aboard.

Johnson said that was "mere speculation," noting that NASA

Columnist Kilpatrick suffers a mild stroke

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Syndicated newspaper columnist James J. Kilpatrick is recovering from a mild stroke he suffered last week.

Kilpatrick, 71, was stricken while traveling to the Gridiron Club dinner in Washington. He spent several days at Culpeper Memorial Hospital in Culpeper, 50 miles southwest of Washington, before returning Wednesday to his home in Charleston, S.C.

He said he suffered some paralysis on his right side that impaired his speech and the movement of his right hand. He said doctors have told him he should be fully recovered in six to nine months.

Kilpatrick worked as a reporter for The Richmond News Leader from 1941 to 1949, when he became chief editorial writer. He became editor in 1951 and continued in that position until 1967, when he left the newspaper to devote time to his syndicated column.

had released a transcript of the tape. "Even assuming ... there is some voice inflection or background noise on the tape which indicates that the astronauts knew they were going to die, this court cannot see how that information contributes anything to the public's knowledge of how NASA operates," Johnson said. Johnson said that releasing the tape could lead to a barrage of personal solicitations to Challenger astronauts' families, media contacts and "a disruption of their peace of mind every time a portion of the tape is played within their hearing." "Release of the tape would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of the families' personal privacy," the judge said. "How the astronauts said what they did" constitutes a privacy interest, she wrote. New York Times attorney Nancy Nielsen said she could not comment on the ruling because she had not yet had a chance to read it. The newspaper had argued that the tape should be released because it was related to government business and a public event, and that it included no personal, intimate details. The tape is the "best available record of governmental activity aboard the Challenger shuttle during the moments prior to 'the worst disaster in the history of space exploration,'" the Times said. Johnson said she agreed the public has an interest in learning about NASA's conduct concerning the Challenger disaster, but added she was not convinced that releasing the tape would serve that interest. The judge noted that NASA had submitted affidavits from personnel who listened to the tape and said they heard no background noise other than the sound of the solid rocket boosters.

Is something wrong with your life—an inner restless dissatisfaction? The answer to every human problem comes only from God our Maker. He alone can forgive and reassure.
Through the church God has committed the provision and proclamation of His forgiveness and redemption of love. Without a church relationship no one is securely related to God.
Everyone should be in the Church and the Church in everyone!

Quickly and accurately this workman lays the bricks in this wall. He knows that the manner in which he lays bricks will determine the strength and beauty of the completed wall.
Day by day we build our lives in just the same fashion as the bricklayer builds his wall. What we put into our lives and the way in which we do so will make us what we are to become. No worthwhile life can be built without the stone of faith and the mortar of love, all of it crowned by hope. The Church has specialized in these three essentials of life for centuries.

Bertram named as new minister at Lefors church

LEFORS - The Lefors Church of Christ recently hired W. Ray Bertram as the new minister.

Bertram, 23, graduated from David Lipscomb University in Nashville, Tenn., on May 6 of this year. In 1986 he graduated from Montgomery County High School. After high school, he attended the Ohio Valley Christian College in Parkersburg, W.Va., for two years before transferring to the David Lipscomb University.

He married his wife, Angelia Cook-Bertram, on July 26 of this year. She is a native of Palatka, Fla., and a recent graduate of Freed-Hardeman University in Henderson, Tenn., with a degree in early childhood development.

Bertram is the third and youngest son of the late Charles Bertram and Tibby Bertram-Beck of Lexington, Ken. He was born in Richmond, Va., and grew up in Charleston, W. Va., where he lived until 1979 when his father died from an extended illness. The family then moved to Mt. Sterling, Ken.

The Lefors Church of Christ is located at the corner of 3rd and Gray streets. Sunday meeting times are 10 a.m. for Sunday school, 10:45 a.m. for morning worship and 6 p.m. for evening worship. Bible study is held at 7 p.m. on Wednesdays.

Church making plans for Christmas dinner

The Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ is making plans for its annual Christmas dinner, served on Christmas Day, to those looking for a place to enjoy a meal with others.

The free ham, turkey and "all the trimmings" meal will be served in the church's Fellowship Hall from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Dec. 25.

Those who wish to be served at home and cannot attend need to call the church office at 665-0031 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. before Dec. 20. A prepared meal will be delivered to those in need.

The holiday feast is prepared by members of the church as an annual event. Members of the church want to say, "Because He cares, we care," by providing the meal and inviting others to join them.

The Mary Ellen and Harvester Church of Christ is located at 1342 Mary Ellen Street, across the street from Pampa High School.

First Methodist choir to present 'Messiah'

The Chancel Choir of the First United Methodist Church will present the Christmas portion of Handel's "Messiah" at 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Steve Ross, minister of music and a graduate of Oral Roberts University of Tulsa, will direct the well-known oratorio.

Philip Jones of McLean will be the organist. Jim Duggan and Art Owen will play trumpet accompaniment on several numbers.

Soloists will be Steve Ross, Terry Scoggin, David Cory, Jennifer Scoggin, Mary McDaniel, Karen Heare, Rochelle Lacy and Jennifer Miller, a voice student at Oral Roberts University in Tulsa.

The first rendition of "Messiah" in Pampa was given in 1930 in the Methodist Church sanctuary by a civic chorus made up largely of members of that church choir and has been repeated by the choir several times in each decade since.

Dorothy Dodd Brown, a present member of the choir, sang "Come unto Him" and her mother, the late Mrs. C.C. Dodd sang "He Shall Feed His Flock," then and several times more in the 30s.

Handel was nearing the age of 60 when he wrote this oratorio. He was deep in debt and in his own eyes a musical has been.

One night, returning to his home, he found on his desk a libretto, "A Sacred Oratorio" from a second-rate poet, Charlet Jennings. Wearily, he opened the work to the familiar words, "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God."

Reading on, he began to hear the music for magnificent choruses swelling in his mind. Grasping a pen, he started putting on paper the sacred harmonies.

For three weeks Handel worked as a man possessed, barely nibbling food and resting only in fitful naps. Finally, exhausted, he finished his oratorio.

Not for eight years did Handel's majestic work gain wide acclaim. Today, however, "Messiah" is one of the best-loved sacred compositions.

The public is invited to attend Sunday's presentation in the church sanctuary.

Religion roundup

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The Rev. Duke McCall, retired president of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville, Ky., says theological studies at Southern Baptist seminaries are moving into the dark ages.

In an interview with the Richmond-Times-Dispatch, McCall predicted coming years in the seminary "will be a time of struggle, a time when professors use code words to say what they don't want to be quoted as saying."

McCall, 77, retired in 1982 after fundamentalists began their successful campaign to gain control of the Southern Baptist Convention and its seminaries. Numerous faculty members since have resigned.

DETROIT (AP)—Lutheran and Roman Catholic leaders in Detroit have signed a covenant of cooperation, one of many similar ecumenical ties formed across the country.

The compact was signed at a joint prayer service by Catholic Archbishop Adam Maida and Bishop

Philip Wahl of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America.

Hundreds of thousands crowd Basilica of Mexico's Virgin of Guadalupe

By TRINA KLEIST
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Pascuala Perez walked more than 60 miles to the capital, on her knees the last few blocks, before reaching the Basilica of the Virgin of Guadalupe, Mexico's patron saint.

Still on her knees inside the church, Perez crossed herself, then backed out on her knees. Once outside, the young woman struggled to her feet, then limped into the crowd.

Perez and about 200,000 other Roman Catholic faithful gathered at the huge basilica Thursday for the festival of the "brown virgin," who is said to have appeared to an Indian peasant near this site — 460 years ago.

While Masses were continuously being celebrated inside the Catholic basilica Thursday, mariachi bands, dancers in feathered costumes and some of Mexico's finest singers paid tribute outside to the saint.

For nearly a week, the pilgrims have been coming by the truckload, by bicycle, by wheelchair and by foot. Even at night, they come bearing candles and embroidered banners and images of the national patroness, all demonstrations of faith in a miracle which, some say, never happened.

Perez' companion, Guillermo Salazar, said they and 70 other villagers made this three-day pilgrimage from Moyotzingo, Puebla, "for the love of the Virgin."

"We have a lot of faith in her," Salazar said. "We always pray to her and, thank God, everything always turns out well."

But some historians and even some clergy suspect the story of the Virgin's miraculous appearance was concocted to spread Christianity to the natives.

According to the legend, she appeared to the Indian Juan Diego on the same day in 1531, a decade after the Spaniard Hernan Cortez brutally conquered the Aztecs and destroyed their beautiful capital nearby.

The Virgin, appearing with brown skin and black hair, told the peasant she wanted a church built in her honor. The site she chose was previously occupied by a temple to the moon goddess Coyolxauhqui, a deity of the Aztec pantheon.

To prove her appearance, according to legend, she gave Juan Diego an armful of roses — a normally impossible wintertime gift. Believers say they can still see the Virgin's image on the cotton shirt in which Juan Diego carried the roses to the bishop. The relic is kept above the basilica's altar.

The skeptics, though, have no effect on the thousands of pilgrims asking for help or giving thanks for blessings received from the saint proclaimed by the Roman Catholic Church in 1895 as the Queen of Mexico.

Stepdaughter is stone in woman's shoe

DEAR ABBY: Once again, you are receiving a letter from someone who never dreamed she would be writing to you for advice. Actually, I don't know if I want advice, or just need to get my feelings out. (I'm too ashamed to talk to any friends or family.)

I have been married for seven years to a wonderful man and I love him dearly. He has an 8-year-old daughter from a previous marriage. The problem is, I can't bring myself to "love" this child. I can't stand to be around her. I've always felt this way, but it has become worse since I had my own daughter 2 1/2 years ago.

My stepdaughter (I'll call her Mary) is with us every other weekend and on holidays. When Mary comes to stay, I get depressed because I feel I have to pretend to like her—I don't hate her, and I would never hurt her. In fact, when she needs discipline, I bite my lip to keep from saying anything.

Mary has a sassy mouth and can be very rude to adults. My husband is aware of my feelings for her, but he doesn't know how deep they are. I truly love my own daughter, and when my husband walks in on Fridays with Mary, I cringe; when he leaves with her on Sunday, I let out a sigh of relief.

I hope one day things will get better, but right now, I can't seem to get over my feelings.

ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: Congratulations—you have already identified your problem, are properly contrite and want to resolve it. We all have people in our lives we cannot "love" or even like, so don't be ashamed.

You need to find out why you have such hostile feelings toward this 8-year-old child. Perhaps it has something to do with her being the daughter of your husband's former wife.

You could also be reacting to Mary's negative feelings toward you. After all, you are the woman who replaced her mother. And it's also possible that Mary's mother may have influenced her.

Please consider a family therapist. Your problem may be solved once you understand why you and your stepdaughter feel the way you do.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited to a dinner party at the home of a very high-class, prominent society leader, who has a reputation for entertaining beautifully.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

My husband's widowed sister came to town unexpectedly, so I telephoned my hostess and asked if I could bring our houseguest.

She asked, "Is your houseguest a male or female?"

I said, "She is my husband's widowed sister."

Abby, would you believe this so-called high-class society lady replied. "Oh, dear, that's too bad; we already have three extra women — if you could bring a man, I would be delighted, but we don't need any more women."

Have you ever heard of anything to top this?

SPEECHLESS IN LA JOLLA

DEAR SPEECHLESS: Yes. It actually happened to a friend of mine some years ago. When she was told an extra man would be welcome, but they couldn't accommodate an extra woman, she replied, "Oh, I didn't know we were going to mate at the table." (Thank you, Mickey Ziffren.)

Abby's family recipes are included in her cookbooklet. Send a long, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Pheasant season begins Saturday

HO-HO-HO If your favorite angler dreams of catching a bass over ten pounds, I have a terrific gift suggestion. Stuff that Christmas Stocking with a gift certificate for our "First Annual Big Bass Seminar" at LAKE FORK with trophy bass expert Dreabon Joiner.

Costing only $60.00 per person (or $100 a couple) our trip includes two evenings (Feb. 28 and 29) of fishing seminars right on the shores of Lake Fork. The fishing lessons will emphasize HOW and WHERE to catch trophy bass. Limited to the first twenty people, this unique weekend dream trip will offer anglers the opportunity to fish at day and talk to the experts at night. Four (out of 20) luck anglers will spend half a day fishing with Dreabon and every angler will have one-on-one instruction in the evening. Dreabon grew up in the area now flooded by Lake Fork and is probably best known in West Texas because of his REDMAN regional victory in UTE LAKE. He won first place against 150 of the best fishermen west of the Mississippi River.

February at Lake Fork will provide several fishermen with "the biggest bass of their lives." I can't wait! You are invited to join Dreabon and me as we attempt to catch some big trophy bass. Call 353-3654 for more information.

Saturday starts the beginning of 1991 pheasant season. The daily bag limit will again be two cocks and NO shooting at the hens. The best hunting areas have expanded from the traditional hot spots around Hereford and Dalhart to include the central Panhandle areas near Plainview and the region from White Deer up to Spearman.

It is difficult judge the impact of moving back the opening day of hunting for this very popular and delicious gamebird. After opening weekend, Christmas occurs and potential visiting hunters may be lured to other activities. Several civic clubs sponsor hunts, and getting a limit is not difficult. It is usually harder to get a motel room than to get a limit during that first weekend.

Hunts that have contacted me include: Canyon (Knights of Columbus)—655-9520 Dallam County (4H Club)—249-6371 Dimmitt (Kiwanis Club)—647-2524 Dumas (4H Club)—935-2594 Stratford (Chamber of Commerce)—396-2260 Tulia (Kiwanis Club)—995-3547

The abundance of CRP land and favorable early hatching moisture conditions should make for better than average hunting. TIP-OF-THE-WEEK Most novice pheasant hunters tend to walk too fast. S-l-o-w d-o-w-n! In heavy cover a slow walk with frequent stops will cause 'hidden' birds to take flight.

Be extra careful this hunting season! The "low bird, everybody duck" style of bird hunting can kill you.

Wheeler games draw 8 schools

Roundball tournaments abound in Panhandle

WHEELER - Canadian used a well-rounded scoring attack to rout Shamrock, 66-36, in Thursday's first round of the Wheeler Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Nick Hiemstra was high scorer for Canadian with 17 points while Ty Godwin and Joel Robbins chipped in 14 points apiece.

"All the kids played pretty well," said Canadian coach Robert Lee. "We had some well-balanced scoring, even with a couple of players out. We've been hit pretty hard by the flu bug just like a lot of other places."

Charley Russell scored 17 points to lead Shamrock in scoring.

The score was tied 16-all at the end of the first quarter, but Canadian's defense held Shamrock to only 3 points in the second quarter, allowing the Wildcats to take a 7-point lead (26-19) at halftime. The Wildcats moved ahead by 16 points (44-28) after three quarters.

Wheeler blasted Follett, 61-44, in the other boys' game last night.

Jason Helton was top scorer for Wheeler with 15 points while Joe Dan Ledbetter contributed 10.

Gregory Frazier led Follett with 15 points.

In the girls' division, Wheeler won over Follett, 46-41, Thursday night.

Dedra Dorman topped Wheeler in scoring with 19 points while Danielle Gex led Follett with 13.

Shamrock trimmed Canadian, 38-36, in the other girls' game.

Angie Kincannon was top scorer for Shamrock with 16 points while Pam Goodwin had 13 points to lead Canadian.

Childress defeated Memphis, 63-33, last night in the other girls' game.

Tournament action continues today, starting at 4 p.m., and again Saturday, starting at 1 p.m. The championship finals will be played Saturday night, starting at 7 p.m. for the girls and 8:30 p.m. for the boys.

Sammorwood Tournament

Dallas Fillingim bucketed 24 points to lead Briscoe past Groom, 63-52, in the first round of the Sannorwood Tournament Thursday night.

David Hale added 15 points to Briscoe's scoring attack.

Wes Hall had 18 points to lead Groom while Homer Kuehler had 9.

Hedley downed Allison, 51-35, in the other boys' game last night.

In the girls' division, Karen Babcock scored 21 points as Groom defeated Briscoe, 49-38, last night.

'Setback' ends career of Tampa Bay's Manley

By JAMES MARTINEZ Associated Press Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - Tears streamed down Dexter Manley's face as he admitted he "had a setback" yet again in his battle with drugs and is retiring immediately from the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

"I knew what was at stake. I used poor judgment," Manley told a news conference Thursday, referring to the fact he was once suspended for a year by the NFL for repeated drug use.

"I think what's important now is my life, not the material things that football has given me, but fighting to stay alive, to lead a productive life and to take care of my family."

Sources confirmed to The Associated Press that Manley failed a drug test for an undisclosed substance. Neither Manley's attorney Bob Woolf nor Bucs general manager Phil Krueger would comment on details of any drug test or the substance involved, citing player confidentiality.

The former All-Pro defensive end paused several times to choke back tears as he read a statement.

"Nobody knows better than I do how difficult it is to try day by day, week by week, to draw upon one's deepest reserves and strengths to dig in and fight this insidious disease that has plagued me and so many others," he said.

"I recently have had a setback and the fact that it has happened, even if only once, shows me that I am in trouble and that I must renew my battle with this disease. Therefore, it is with a heavy heart that I have come here today to announce my immediate retirement from the NFL."

Asked if Manley could be reinstated at some future date, Joe Browne, the league's vice president of communications and development, said, "at this time, I cannot foresee any circumstance under which Manley will ever play again in the NFL."

Woolf said Manley has no intention of playing in the league again. His plans now are to attend outpatient drug treatment in the Washington, D.C., area and pursue a career in radio and television, the attorney said.

"We are praying for Dexter," Bucs owner Hugh Culverhouse said in a statement. "We are very hopeful he will resolve his problems and have a very fruitful life after football."

Manley, 32, was in his first season with the Bucs after being cut by Phoenix in August. He played four games with the Cardinals last year after being reinstated by commissioner Paul Tagliabue on Nov. 19, 1990, following a suspension for violating the league's drug abuse policy.

Manley was banned from the league in late October 1989 after he tested positive for cocaine use shortly after the Redskins' 37-24 road loss to the Los Angeles Raiders. It was his third violation of the NFL's substance abuse policy in three years, resulting in the so-called "lifetime ban."

Tagliabue's reinstatement of Manley after only a year came on the condition that he avoid drug involvement and participate in a "structured support program" approved by the league.

Tagliabue took heat for his decision, with critics calling the lifetime ban a sham. The league has since revised its terms from "lifetime" to "indefinite suspension," reviewable after one year.

Washington, which owned the rights to Manley, promptly waived him even though he was the Redskins' all-time sack leader with 87 over eight years.

When picked up by Phoenix, he told reporters at his first practice: "I have no desire to do drugs. Hopefully, I'll never violate that trust and policy again."

The Cardinals waived Manley in training camp this year and he was quickly snapped up by the struggling Bucs, who reportedly signed the veteran of three Super Bowls to a one-year, $650,000 contract.

With the Bucs, who are 2-12 this year, Manley played in every game and started seven times, making 23 tackles and 6 1/2 sacks. His 97.5 career sacks tie him for fourth with Jacob Green of Seattle on the NFL's career sack list.

Harvesters advance in Sweet 16 tourney

EDMOND, Okla. - Pampa slipped by Oklahoma City Douglas, 66-65, in overtime Thursday to advance into the second round of the Sweet Sixteen Invitational Tournament.

The Harvesters (9-0) play the Liberal, Kan.-Altus, Okla. winner at 6:30 tonight.

Cederick Wilbon's 30 points topped the Harvesters in scoring, followed by Dwight Nickelberry and David Johnson with 11 and 10 points respectively.

Pampa led by 7 (45-38) after three quarters, but Douglas rallied to knot the score at 59-all at the end of regulation.

Douglas was leading by 4 (65-61), but a basket by Wilbon and a 3-point goal by Johnson in the closing seconds gave the Harvesters the win.

Alonzo Mayes was high scorer for Douglas with 15 points while Bobby Law had 11.

Douglas has a 1-3 record.

In the girls' division, Pampa also won its first-round game, breezing by Edmond, Okla., 65-37.

Amber Seaton's 25 points led the Lady Harvesters while Nikki Ryan chipped in 18.

The Lady Harvesters built a 14-point lead, 34-20, at halftime.

Julia Beam was high scorer for Edmond with 10 points.

The Lady Harvesters (6-2) go against the Stillwater-Jenk's Okla. winner at 8 tonight.

Edmond's record is 1-1.

Both the Pampa boys' and girls' teams won the Hays City Tournament last weekend.

Eagles: Revenge is not a factor vs. Cowboys

By RALPH BERNSTEIN AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - The Philadelphia Eagles dismiss revenge as a factor in Sunday's game against the Dallas Cowboys.

The Eagles trounced the Cowboys in a 24-0 victory at Dallas in September. And, it wasn't just the score. Philadelphia allowed just 90 total yards. They sacked Troy Aikman 11 times.

Both teams have faced adversity this season. The Eagles started out 3-5 and have come back to 9-5 with a six-game winning streak. Dallas was 6-5 and has won its last three to move to 9-5.

The winner could clinch a wildcard berth in the playoffs.

"I don't think revenge plays any part," said safety Wes Hopkins. "You can talk about revenge all you want, but when you go out on the field you're going to have to beat the guy in front of you and still play as hard as you're capable of playing."

"That first game, I'm pretty sure that the Cowboys were trying to play 100 percent. The main thing in this locker room is that we're not thinking about what we did the last time because that was a long time ago."

Mike Golic, who rotates at tackle on the league's best defensive unit, first in overall defense and against both the rush and pass, also discounts revenge.

"I don't know if it's revenge so much as professional athletes are very prideful. And when you get beat soundly you want to show that it was a one time thing. You want to come back and beat the team," Golic said.

"I think the thing that outweighs revenge is that they realize they're playing for a playoff spot. For them and us too, it's about getting to the playoffs."

The Cowboys had come off an emotional 33-31 loss to Washington the Monday night previous to the first Eagles' game. They had a short week of preparation. Golic dismisses that as an excuse.

"You have to be ready to play every week," he said. "We came off a Monday night win over Houston and beat the (New York) Giants the following Sunday."

Defensive tackle Jerome Brown said the revenge factor in football can surface on a personal level.

"I can't speak for them being embarrassed. They knew we were just better that day. And we plan on being better Sunday," Brown said.

"The only time I get revenge is in a game where they hurt our quarterback on a late hit, a cheap shot. In my mind right there I'm going to hurt their quarterback. I know I'm wrong for thinking like that but that's my attitude."

Brown predicts the Cowboys will be out to prove the September beating was a fluke. "And we'll be out to prove it wasn't."

Defensive end Reggie White says intimidation may be a factor recalling how the Eagles felt in 1986 watching films of the New York Giants.

"They intimidated everybody who watched those films," White said. "It was the same with the Bears of '85. When you watched films of those guys you knew you would get beat. I believe that teams who watch our films believe we are going to dominate them. I know that sometimes a team is beaten just watching films."

"I think that in the back of their (the Cowboys) minds they're watching films of when we played them in September. Of course they're going to come in here with a revenge-type attitude. It won't affect us. We'll be concentrating on winning and dominating."

A pair of backup quarterbacks hold the reins in Sunday's confrontation.

Jeff Kemp starts for the Eagles in place of Jim McMahon who is sidelined with four fractured ribs suffered last week in a 19-14 victory over the New York Giants.

Steve Beuerlein opens for the Cowboys, substituting for Troy Aikman who has missed the last two games with an injured knee.

Killeen Kangaroos are 'inspirational force'

Sweetwater to battle Carthage

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer

The Killeen Kangaroos, underdogs who have made their way into Saturday's football championship against Dulles, have helped townspeople erase the anguish of two months ago, when 24 people were killed in the nation's worst mass shooting.

At luncheon on Oct. 16, George Hennard drove his pickup into a cafeteria and opened fire with a semiautomatic pistol. He killed 24 people, including himself, and wounded at least 20 others.

"I used to call around the country ... and people would ask me how to spell Killeen," said principal Corbett

Lawler. "They used to ask me what part of Texas Killeen is in. Now they don't ask me. They know because of what Hennard did. That leaves a bad taste in your mouth."

Lawler and others in the town of 60,000 say the Kangaroos' success has helped change that.

"The Kangaroos have been the inspirational force that has drawn this town together," said Major Blair, Killeen's mayor. "They were in the midst of a season when our tragedy happened. They probably began to be as low as the rest of us. As they continued to play and win, the inspiration returned to the community."

"The only signs you see around town are 'Go Roos.' We have put this thing to sleep and we intend it to stay there."

The Killeen-Dulles Class 5A Division I (big school) championship game in the Houston Astrodome at noon Saturday tops the weekend schoolboy playoffs.

Elsewhere, in Class 5A Division II (small school) semifinals Saturday,

San Antonio Marshall (12-2) plays 1990 champion Aldine (11-1), and Waco (13-0-1) tries to stop Odessa Permian (14-0). Because it lost a coin flip, Waco will have to battle the Panthers at home, where the "Mojo" is virtually unbeatable.

"Boy, we are happy about that," Permian coach Tam Hollingshead told the Odessa American. "It's going to be a very exciting contest. It will be good to be able to stay at home."

In the 4A semifinals, it's Sweetwater (12-1) vs. Carthage (14-0) and A&M Consolidated (12-2) vs. Austin Westlake (13-0-1). Class 3A features Burnet (12-0-2) vs. Southlake Carroll (14-0) and Groesbeck (12-2) vs. Edna (14-0).

Albany (14-0) takes on Farmersville (14-0) and Grapeland (12-1-1) plays Schulenburg (14-0) in the 2A semifinals, while Memphis (11-1) battles Rotan (13-0) and Oakwood (11-2) meets Runge (11-1-1) in Class A.

Two days after the massacre in Killeen, homecoming festivities went on as planned and Killeen beat Pflugerville 21-14, setting the tone for the rest of the season. Now the Kangaroos (11-2-1) have a chance for their first state title.

But it won't be easy against 14-0 Dulles, which has beaten such teams as Houston Lamar and 1990 state finalist Converse Judson on its way to the title match.

Led by running backs Solomon White and Calvin Phillips, who have combined for more than 2,000 yards and 25 touchdowns this year, and quarterback John Gillaspay, the Vikings scare Killeen coach Bobby Etheredge.

"They're a great football team," Etheredge said. "They prefer to run the ball, but they have big-play potential when they throw the ball. The thing that scares me the most is them eating the clock up and not letting our offense on the field."

Dulles assistant coach Andy Boland said that's precisely the plan against Killeen, which features 2,000-yard passer Billy Spiller and speedy receiver Charles West. Boland said he's concerned about the Killeen offense.

"The biggest problem is putting a rush on him (Spiller) while still containing him," Boland said. "He doesn't have a rifle arm, but he's an accurate passer. And he's a smart quarterback. He does not throw into coverage."

"As a team what we're trying to do is slow them down and make them punt. That's been our game plan all year long."

In another championship game Saturday, Fort Hancock will play for its fourth consecutive six-man title against Christoval. Fort Hancock coach Danny Medina said his team, which has won 56 games in a row, hasn't been at its best lately.

"Last week (in a 58-40 victory over Sands) we were just flat," Medina said. "We weren't aggressive at all. We've been lucky to get victories the way we've played these last two games. If you start off that way against a team like Christoval, they're going to get you."

Rockets' Bullard is bullish in win

By The Associated Press

The New Jersey Nets held a block party at the Meadowlands.

The Nets rejected an NBA-record 22 shots Thursday night in a 121-81 rout of the Denver Nuggets. Eight New Jersey players had at least one block, with Derrick Coleman leading the way with six. Sam Bowie swatted away five shots and Chris Dudley blocked four.

"Our defensive intensity was as good as I've ever seen," said Bowie, who also had 12 points and 10 rebounds in just 18 minutes. "I'm sure that after a while they began second-guessing themselves about taking it to the hoop. They probably wondered where the next one was coming from."

NBA Roundup

The Nets, who led 57-26 at halftime, broke the record with 8:46 left in the game when Tate George blocked a layup by Chris Jackson. The previous NBA record for blocked shots in a game was 21 by the Detroit Pistons (1980), Los Angeles Lakers (1982) and Cleveland Cavaliers (1989).

Coleman, who scored 16 points, said the Nets played excellent team defense.

In other NBA games, Milwaukee beat Washington 109-97, Cleveland clobbered Atlanta 134-107, Sacramento beat Orlando 106-100 and Houston defeated Golden State 99-96.

Bucks 109, Bullets 97

At Landover, Moses Malone had 24 points and a season-high 19 rebounds as Milwaukee snapped an eight-game road losing streak.

The Bucks got 21 points from Larry Krystowiak and 15 from Dale Ellis.

The Bullets, losers of six straight games and only 2-7 at home, started their 10th different lineup in 21 games this season. Pervis Ellison, the club's second-leading scorer and top rebounder, sat out the game with a bruised leg.

Reserve A.J. English led Washington with 22 points and Tom Hammonds added 21.

Cavaliers 134, Hawks 107
At Richfield, Larry Nance scored 26 points and Brad Daugherty had 20 points and 15 rebounds as Cleveland improved its home record to 9-0.

The Cavs, who have won eight of their last 10 overall, rebounded from a miserable shooting performance against Miami by hitting 56 percent of their shots against Atlanta.

Atlanta stars Dominique Wilkins and Kevin Willis had sub-par nights.

Wilkins, averaging 28 points per game, was held to 14. Willis, the NBA's leading rebounder at 17 per game, got only seven rebounds and 11 points against the Cavaliers. That snapped an 18-game streak in which he had double figures in points and rebounds.

Kings 106, Magic 100

Lionel Simmons scored 28 points and Wayman Tisdale had 26 points and 11 rebounds as the Kings handed the Magic their fifth straight loss.

The Kings outscored the Magic 16-6 in the first 5:24 of the third quarter to take a 70-53 lead. Orlando, trailing 82-71 entering the fourth period, closed within six points with 7:22 left but got no closer.

Terry Catledge paced Orlando with 27 points, 21 in the first half. Scott Skiles scored 21 points, all in the second half, and Mark Acres had season highs with 13 points and 12 rebounds for the Magic.

Rockets 99, Warriors 96

Rookie Matt Bullard hit a dunk shot with 16 seconds remaining to lift the Rockets over the Warriors.

Bullard's shot gave the Rockets a 97-96 lead. Golden State's Sarunas Marciulionis missed a jumper from the lane with two seconds left and Houston's Kenny Smith then made two free throws with a second remaining to account for the final score.

The 6-10 Bullard scored 17 points for the Rockets, who were led by Hakeem Olajuwon's 33 points and 23 rebounds. Marciulionis and Chris Mullin led the Warriors with 27 and 24 points, respectively.

Golden State lost its second straight game and fell out of the Pacific Division lead.

Clemens cleared on 'hindering' charge

HOUSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox pitcher Roger Clemens isn't off the legal hook in Texas yet, but he's getting closer.

Jurors have agreed with a defense motion that prosecutors failed to prove that Clemens was guilty of a misdemeanor charge stemming from a barroom brawl.

After the prosecution ended its presentation, Harris County-Court-at-Law Judge James Barkley on Thursday ordered the jury to return a verdict of innocent to a charge of hindering an arrest, defense attorney George Tyson said.

Roger Clemens still faces a lesser charge of interference with a police officer, a Class B misdemeanor charge filed the morning the trial began, Tyson said.

Disney plans huge Anaheim expansion, drops Long Beach proposal

By JEFF WILSON
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Walt Disney Co. will expand in Anaheim with a second theme park six times the size of Disneyland and drop a planned $3 billion DisneySea park in Long Beach opposed by environmentalists, the company said.

The 470-acre Disneyland Resort will include a $3 billion Westcot Center patterned after Disney's Epcot Center in Orlando, Fla., Peter Rummell, president of Disney Development Co., said Thursday.

The resort will be built on Disneyland's 100-acre parking lot and surrounding lands and will bring the 36-year-old amusement park into the 21st century with three new hotels, shops, restaurants, a six-acre lake, 30,000 parking spaces and the futuristic Westcot Center.

"The Walt Disney Company has never built a mega-project like this in an existing urban environment...It is complicated and expensive," said Rummell.

Construction could begin as early as 1993 if government approvals are granted, and the project could be completed by 1999.

Rummell stressed "many hurdles lie ahead."

"The city of Anaheim is delighted, excited and enthusiastic about the decision to build a second attraction here," said Anaheim City Manager Jim Ruth. "We think we have arrived at a plan that is environmentally and economically sound."

The project requires city and state approvals and an environmental impact study.

Burbank-based Disney expects the $3 billion Westcot Center and resort to create 27,900 jobs, generate about $2.4 billion annually in the five-county area and produce $125 million per year in state and local taxes.

"This is the first good news since the beginning of the recession," said Allan Hughes, executive director of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce.

The Long Beach project stalled when the DisneySea plans were scaled down two months ago because of environmental concerns. Mayor Ernie Kell said he thought the project was doomed because the revised plans were too small for Disney's ambitions.

"We're disappointed, but understanding," said Long Beach City Manager James Hankla, that city's chief negotiator with Disney. An earlier report said a nautical theme complex would create 36,700 jobs.

Disney originally wanted to build a resort complex over 414 acres around the Long Beach waterfront, making the city a major international tourist destination that would boost city tax revenue by $55 million a year.

But environmentalists opposed plans to fill in 250 acres of Queensway Bay. The California Coastal Commission took a neutral position, but state legislators in Sacramento opposed the land-fill.
