Bush renews call to phase out farm subsidies

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY (AP) — President Bush today accused the 12-nation European Community of hiding behind "an Iron Curtain of Protectionism" and vowed to reject any deal on global trade that fails to lower farm subsidies that have pounded American farmers.

Bush, speaking to the American Farm Bureau Federation, renewed his call for phasing out farm subsidies worldwide. But, he added, "I will not let American agriculture disarm unilaterally."

Earlier, meeting with leaders of the bureau before addressing 6,000 people at its annual meeting, vowing, "I will not take to the Congress a deal that is silent on agriculture and is not favorable to American farmers."

The president, after a weekend of rest from his grueling journey to the Far East, flew here this morning to tell the friendly farm audience of his efforts to knock down barriers abroad to American goods.

He spoke as talks were resuming in Geneva on the 108-nation talks to produce new global trading rules called the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

"I am absolutely convinced that the best way to have the best possible foreign trade ... is to get a successful conclusion of this GATT round," Bush said.

"We have been pounded out there by unfair subsidies, and we're not going to have some kind of unilateral deal that is naive in the face of unfair world competition," he said.

In his speech to the full convention, Bush said: "Sooner or later, the EC must stop hiding behind its own Iron Curtain of protectionism."

He also defended his Asian trip as "an important and successful step" toward a world of fully open markets.

"Some political critics say I should not have taken this trip. Wrong. I will continue to fight for American jobs — everywhere," Bush said. "In these tough times, a president should do no less."

"Open markets are the key to our economic future both for American agriculture and business," Bush said. "This new world of opportunity won't happen overnight. But I can tell you this: empty-headed rhetoric won't get us there."

"We won the Cold War — and we will win the competitive wars," Bush said. And speaking of U.S. economic woes, Bush said, "Don't listen to all those gloom-sayers ...

we are going to make the lot of every single American better."

European trade and farm ministers last Friday balked at a proposal to roll back the European Community's large subsidies for its farmers. Ten percent of Europeans are engaged in agriculture, compared with just two percent of Americans.

"We are not pessimistic. There are some very positive signs in this Dunkel report," Bush said of a lengthy compromise proposed by Arthur Dunkel, the director-general of GATT.

"It is very important to those of us who believe we can compete anywhere in the world if the playing field is level," he said.

Bush also sounded a sympathetic note about farmers' complaints about stricter federal definitions of wetlands.

"I am pledged to a sound environmental approach, but I am not pledged to throw people out of work," Bush said.

Farm Bureau President Dean Kleckner, addressing the convention before Bush arrived, strongly endorsed the latest push to complete a trade agreement, saying, "We need to eliminate trade barriers around the world, now more than ever."

"America's farmers and ranchers have the productive capability to bury this country several feet deep with our products. ...," said Kleckner. "We've just got to sell our stuff outside of our borders. ... The GATT talks must come to a conclusion."

The Farm Bureau boasts 3.9 million members, including 90 percent of the nation's farmers.

Farm exports have been a bright spot in the U.S. trade picture. After weathering very hard times in the early 1980s, farmers enjoyed record income last year. Recent low interest rates have helped them reduce their indebtedness.

Bush felt well today, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said before the president left the White House for Missouri.

"He looks rested. He feels well. I think everybody got plenty of sleep over the weekend," Fitzwater said, responding to health questions lingering from Bush's brief collapse at a state dinner in Tokyo last week.

Bush will roll out Air Force One twice more this week: for a full day of campaigning in New Hampshire on Wednesday and to lay a wreath at the tomb of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. in Atlanta on Friday — two days after the 63rd anniversary of King's birth.

Courage often arises from necessity

By J. ALAN BRZYS
Sports Editor

Dorothy Brown knows the true meaning of courage.

To hear of the tumultuous trials she braved as a young mother, it's no wonder the three sons she raised almost singlehandedly, feel the most important quality they learned from her is courage.

Born Dorothy Dodd in Pampa in 1915, she married and gave birth to three sons as Dorothy D. Peacock.

"I was born in the Doucette house ... west of the courthouse," said Brown in a Friday afternoon interview. She explained that her father and grandfather were Kansas farmers and exchanged property with the Doucette family in Pampa.

"At that time, my father had the only produce company between Amarillo and Canadian, and he serviced all the stockmen with supplies," she said. "Later he went into the produce and chicken hatchery business."

The Pampa High graduate studied voice and earned many regional and state honors as a soprano.

"I was chosen one of five to be sent to the summer session at Texas Christian University music department and to have a recognition and recital at the Blackstone Hotel in Fort Worth. In those days, that was something."

"I had the opportunity to go to music college in Chicago."

However, the Great Depression hit and she decided on the apparent security of marriage.

Several years later, she found herself in an economic bind faced with supporting her three boys as a single parent.

"Times were tough and I had the opportunity to drive a car (for a family moving) to California. It was really a bomber," she said of the automobile with a leaky radiator. "You have no idea how bad the roads were to California."

"I started off (to California) ... with the sum of eight dollars. I just had to, it was desperate times."

Twenty-seven years old at the time, Brown took one of the boys with her on the trip and two remained for a while in Pampa.

"I wanted a job," she needed to make money to take care of my kids and to take care of my parents too. They had lost three farms and the hatchery business, so I had to do something."

Arriving at the Los Angeles train terminal, she searched through discarded newspapers, looking for a place to live.

"After about the fourth phone call, I found a lady with a predicament like mine. She ran a boarding house and needed someone to help her."

"I said, 'well I have a place to sleep and eat.'"

Soon after finding shelter, Brown "went down to get me a job in a ready-to-wear, but it was Monday and they only took applications on Friday."

Her landlady suggested she try to find work at a defense plant.

When asked what type of tools she could use, she told a prospective employer, "tack hammer, pliers and screwdriver."

"They said, 'You're hired.'"

Because she had never before worn slacks, she borrowed clothes from her landlady who fortunately was the same size.

Male-oriented jobs were available because of the large numbers of men drafted into the armed forces during World War II and she jumped at the chance for a "man's job."

Her first jobs involved work on the receiving end of the hot-rieving process and operating mechanical lathes, which demanded microscopic precision.

She consistently proved herself adept at several jobs and asked for "all the overtime I could get."

At the same time, she supplemented her income by singing at weddings, funerals and other church-related functions.

Her other two boys had joined her and she and the three boys took up residence in a sparsely-furnished, one-room rental in a five-story apartment complex for single mothers.

The room included a bed that dropped from the wall, a divan, a one-burner cooker and a small dinette table.

"It was just a godsend," she said of the living accommodations, which included what would today be considered day care. "My children never complained."

"I guess it didn't hurt them. When you'd feel real down, they'd sit on your lap and look at you. I could never let my boys down."

"Sometimes I had to borrow money from them for bread, milk or car fare," she said, explaining the boys had taken paper delivery routes. "But they got it back on pay day."

During the 10 years before she retired, Brown was employed in the mock-up engineering department. She was one of two women who worked in the department which included the responsibility of changing blueprints that were later implemented in changes on ships. She attended night school in order to get the knowledge for the work she considered the "crowning glory" of her work career.

Tears welled in the gracious lady's eyes during difficult times of the interview, but a smile would quickly reappear.

"I don't have much to tell," she had said when contacted the previous day, but it was obvious she did.

Brown, who retired in 1978 after 26 years work with a major aircraft defense contractor, said, "I don't know how I had the strength to do what I did. What I'm thankful for is my health. I feel like I'm very fortunate."

She met Allister Brown and married him in 1969. He passed away several years ago and in 1988 she returned to Pampa, which she calls home. Her sons, Ivan, Bob and Charles Peacock, respectively were born in 1935, 1937 and 1939.

Reflecting on her past, Brown said, "Home is important to me. I sit here and I think I'm living in a dream."

Sex education speaker to address students, parents here on Jan. 15

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Nationally known sex education speaker Pat Socia is to be in Pampa this week to address parents and middle and high school students, encouraging abstinence as the only true means of safe sex.

Socia is scheduled to meet with all parents and interested members of the community during a presentation Wednesday, Jan. 15, 7:30-9:30 p.m. at the middle school library.

Thursday she is to speak to freshmen and seniors from 8:30-10 a.m. and juniors and sophomores 10:15-11:40 a.m.

Socia will then address sixth graders from 12:15-1:45 p.m. and seventh and eighth graders, 2-3:30 p.m.

District officials, who have been leery of most sex education material to this point because of questionable slants in presentation, are encouraging parents to not only attend the meeting Wednesday night, but also the sessions that their students are involved in.

Socia's message is "What part of NO don't you understand?" and is part of Project Respect's efforts to remind young people that abstinence is still the expectation.

Assistant Superintendent Jane Steele said the program counters some of the questionable information being presented by Magic Johnson, formerly of the Los Angeles Lakers, who has contracted the HIV virus which leads to AIDS.

"The kids all look up to and love Magic Johnson," Steele said, "but we're not sure the message he is sending about safe sex (through the use of condoms) is the message we want to send."

Steele continued, "Naturally, the only stance we're interested in is one of abstinence. Pat Socia's presentation is not morals-based, not from a right and wrong point of view. It's based on facts."

Several district counselors, who have seen Socia's program presented to students and parents at Panhandle High School, said they believe the program is sound and holds students' interest.

"AIDS is no longer primarily a homosexual matter," said JoAnn Jones, high school counselor. "(Socia) points this out and her stance would certainly not be in conflict with ours. She is for abstinence and says that's the only way they can assure their safety."

School Board member John Curry echoed unanimous support by trustees for the program, encouraging the district to strongly pursue the abstinence stance.

He compared the potential impact of abstinence-based messages with "Just Say No" anti-drug campaigns.

"Drug use has definitely dropped and ... kids I work with said, 'That's all anybody ever talks to us about and that tell us (to avoid drugs) all the time.' Obviously it has made an impact and they are listening to us," Curry said.

Prior to announcing the meeting with parents, the district sent letters to local ministers seeking their input on the matter and asking them to announce the meetings this past Sunday.

Several churches did that in their bulletins and have promised to encourage parents to attend the Wednesday meeting after they leave church.

District officials said they regret the parents meeting conflicting with church activities, but said it was the only time Socia could come to Pampa in the near future.

"There is no point in teaching anything other than abstinence and ways to deal with uncomfortable situations for students," Steele said. "The interesting thing is that this is not a moral issue. The fact is there is no safe sex outside marriage other than abstinence."

Socia reports that 1.58 million abortions were recorded by the mid-1980's, with many of them involving teenagers, due to the massive amount of pre-marital sex among the young. Her program also includes telling students about studies showing that those who wait until marriage to have sex have a much better chance of not seeing the marriage end in divorce.

Mideast peace talks resume today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mideast peace talks resumed today with possible progress on the Israeli-Palestinian front but a sharp rebuke from the Syrians about Israeli plans to go home in a few days.

"Peace is not a part-time job," Syrian delegation chief Muwaffak Allaf said in criticizing Israel's intentions to leave Washington on Wednesday. "If one is sincere in his desire for peace he has to stay and work hard because peace is very important and it deserves much more than the Israeli side is allocating to it."

Yosef Ben-Aharon, Israel's chief delegate for the talks with Syria, told reporters as he entered the State Department that it was the Arabs who held up the peace process when they boycotted the scheduled resumption of talks last week.

"We came last week on Monday and we were going to stay for almost two full weeks. They chose not to come. We can't adapt ourselves to their whims every time. So we're leaving on Wednesday," he said.

But there were indications the chief Israeli, Palestinian and Jordanian negotiators may have resolved a procedural dispute over whether the Palestinians must include Jordanians in talks with Israel over limited Palestinian self-rule on the West Bank and Gaza.

The three negotiators met in a State Department conference room rather than the hallway where the delegation leaders had huddled throughout the last round in an unsuccessful effort to resolve the format of the meetings, an Israeli official said.

And then they summoned the Israeli and joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation, indicating a possible solution.

Israeli and Syrian delegations held separate talks, but Israeli-Lebanese negotiations had to be postponed when the chief Lebanese negotiator, Souheil Chammas, took sick, Israeli sources said.

Israel, with apparent support of the Bush administration, had resisted meeting the Palestinians unless they are accompanied by the Jordanians.

City commissioners to meet Tuesday

Municipal administrators will ask city commissioners to suspend a rate increase request from AMT Ambulance for 45 days during a 6 p.m. meeting Tuesday at City Hall.

City Manager Glen Hackler said city officials are still analyzing the rate request, but that an agreement with AMT allows the request to go into effect if no action is taken within 45 days.

The action would give city officials more time to study the proposal without it going into effect, he said.

Commissioners will also consider three bids for delinquent tax property at 1018 S. Reid, 820 E. Gordon and the 1000 block of Brunow, lots 1-13.

City fathers will also consider a request to designate a "triangular parcel of land along Hwy. 60" as a city park.

Hackler said in briefing notes to commissioners that the land will soon have a "Welcome to Pampa" sign on it, but must be designated a city park to make sure no one puts up marquees or billboards that obstruct the sign.

A recommendation is also before commissioners to call a special meeting next week to canvass votes from the Jan. 18 economic development election.

Commissioners will also vote on amending the current operating budget, reducing it by $8,463 due to reported savings on expenditures and other areas.

A 5 p.m. work session will precede the meeting, with discussion slated to include banners proposed to go on light poles around the city, a mutual aid agreement for animal control and the cable television rebuild.

Dahmer pleads guilty but insane in Milwaukee killings

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Jeffrey L. Dahmer pleaded guilty but insane today to the mutilation slayings of 15 young males, and now a jury must determine his mental state at the time of the killings.

"I want to emphasize that the decision to plead guilty is Mr. Dahmer's," defense attorney Gerald Boyle said during a hearing. "This case is about his mental condition."

Dahmer is accused of luring most victims to his apartment, then drugging, killing and dismembering them. Three of the victims were killed at his grandmother's suburban home, Dahmer told police.

When Milwaukee County Circuit Judge Laurence Gram asked Dahmer if he understood the plea change, Dahmer replied, "Yes, your honor" in a calm voice. Gram then accepted the change.

Wisconsin is among a handful of states in which a person who pleads insanity must first be convicted of the crime - at which time no question of sanity is raised - and then undergo a second, separate phase of trial on the insanity issue.

The plea change will cause Dahmer's Jan. 27 jury trial to move immediately to the sanity phase dealing with Dahmer's state of mind at the time of the slayings.

If judged sane, Dahmer would face a mandatory life prison sentence for each of the murders. If deemed insane, he would be committed to a mental institution for the criminally insane. After undergoing treatment for a year, he could petition for release every six months.

Gram today rejected a defense motion to have the jury for the sanity phase of the trial be selected from outside Milwaukee County because of pretrial publicity.

"I don't think moving this to some other county is really going to solve that problem," Gram said. The judge cited the worldwide publicity given the case.

Fires

The Pampa Fire Department reported the following calls during the 42-hour period ending at 9 a.m. today.

SUNDAY, Jan. 12

5:52 p.m. - Four units and seven firefighters responded to Cabot Kingsmill Camp for broken gas line in a house. Fire was out on arrival. Smoke damage estimated at $1,000 was reported.

11:12 p.m. - Four units and seven firefighters responded to 1700 Hamilton on a heater malfunction.

MONDAY, Jan. 13

1:58 a.m. - Three units and seven firefighters responded to a car accident at Tyng and Barnes for medical assist, which turned out to not be necessary.

2:17 a.m. - Two units and three firefighters responded to 1601 W. Somerville for a dumpster fire.

2:53 a.m. - One unit and two firefighters responded to 1601 W. Somerville for a dumpster fire.

8:24 a.m. - Three units and eight firefighters responded to 2700 Chaumont on an alarm malfunction.

Heavy rain possible along Trinity; flood damage at $100 million

LIBERTY (AP) — Residents along the Trinity River are hoping that the heavy rainfall predicted for today won't drive receding flood waters back up.

Jim Mitchum, emergency management coordinator for Liberty County, said Sunday that the National Weather Service warned him that heavy rain was possible in the area today — perhaps as much as 3 or 4 inches in isolated areas.

The forecast for the Houston area today called for a 60 percent chance of thunderstorms, some possibly severe. "If we do have a heavy rain (today) we could have some additional problems, but not to the extreme that we've just gone through. It could again cause some additional flooding and just prolong our people from going back and in some places flood the road," Mitchum said Sunday.

Some residents returned to their homes in low-lying subdivisions along the Trinity Sunday morning. But Mitchum warned that they should postpone cleanup efforts because they could be forced out again.

Release from the Lake Livingston Dam, which had been lowered for the past three days, held steady Sunday at 48,200 cubic feet per second due to the rain, Mitchum said. A normal release is 15,000 cfs. The Trinity was at 28.9 feet at Liberty, still nearly 5 feet above flood stage.

The situation Sunday was better along the Brazos River in Brazoria County southwest of Houston.

County Judge Jim Phillips said most places received only small amounts of rain in Saturday night's thunderstorms, and all but one major road in the county was open.

"We're beginning to open up more roads and things are beginning to be a little more normal. We've got water (levels) falling from one end of the county to the other, so we feel like we're over the hump," Phillips said.

An estimated 500 to 1,000 Brazoria County homes have at least minor flood damage.

Twenty-eight Texas counties have been declared disaster areas after heavy rains in North and Central Texas last month spawned flooding on the Colorado, Trinity and Brazos rivers.

The flooding has been blamed for at least 15 deaths statewide, though none have been reported in the last two weeks. An estimated 2,500 Texas homes have been damaged.

The flooding price tag has been pegged at more than $100 million, and officials say it could rise.

More than 3,200 flood victims have called for state and federal assistance.

Fred G. Brown to run for Gray County sheriff

Fred G. Brown, a life-long Gray County resident, has filed as a Republican for the office of Gray County sheriff.

Brown believes his wide-ranged experiences qualify him as a viable candidate.

"I am a graduate of the Amarillo Police Academy, and while serving the Pampa Police Department, I held the positions of patrolman, patrol sergeant, patrol training officer and detective sergeant, among working with area-wide drug enforcement agencies and conducting drug awareness seminars.

"I have experience in investigations from theft to homicide and drug arrests from marijuana to heroin."

Special investigation techniques, drug investigation and identification, riot control and firearms were achieved during his FBI law enforcement training.

"I have accumulated numerous college hours in human relations and law enforcement," Brown said. "My being a successful self-employed businessman has sharpened my skills needed to organize and maintain a budget. Understanding the sheriff's office budget, along with the task of providing proper and personal law enforcement, I am prepared and determined to make an honest difference in serving the citizens of Gray County."

Brown said he pledges to satisfy the obligation to both the civil and criminal courts, to operate the sheriff's office and the county jail with the utmost professionalism required by the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Officer Standards and Education and to uphold high moral standards.

"I want the sheriff's office and its department to have the respect of all people from pre-schoolers through senior adults," Brown said.

"We of Gray County are proud of our new jail. The criminals and the probation violators can now be dealt with more swiftly. On the other hand, the new jail has also caused great expense to our 1992 budget with a depressed economy and declining population, which puts a heavier burden on its residents. I believe in 'cut in spending' and will serve as conservatively as possible."

Fred G. Brown

Brown said that he has many workable ideas that can be held accountable.

"We only need vehicles for those on duty, which would cut back at least half the present number. Uniforms can be a more modest expense along with being purchased locally. Everyone knows that teamwork works. With more citizen involvement and awareness, we could together achieve a more practical operation."

Brown has attended the Texas Baptist Men's Criminal Justice Ministry Seminar. Brown said the program is good for all lay people who want to go into the county jail to minister, which he said is a conviction of his.

Brown and his wife, Carol, have been married for 24 years and have a 22-year-old daughter, Sandra. They are members of First Baptist Church, where he works with the children's bus ministry. They live at Kingsmill.

"I would like to invite anyone who would like to know in more detail my views or ideals to feel free to call me at my home, 665-8803."

Documents shed little insight into killer

FORT WORTH (AP) — A two-month investigation of the nation's worst mass shooting has yielded some insight into the gunman's thinking, but few clues to his motive.

George Hennard left a goodbye message to his sister the day he killed 23 people and himself in a Killeen restaurant, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday.

The newspaper said the note did not explain why Hennard, 35, drove his pickup through the front window of a Luby's cafeteria Oct. 16 and began methodically shooting diners.

The note was among documents, interviews, and eyewitness accounts about the shooting the Star-Telegram obtained from the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Hennard wrote to his sister: "Desire: Enclosed is $100 to cover the water and electric bill. Do not pay the phone bill! I am responsible for it. Southwestern Bell violated my privacy rights. Therefore they don't get paid. Don't let the people in this rotten town get to you like they done to me! Take care of yourself and be strong. Love you, Brother Jo Jo."

Hennard's sister told police she found the note on the dining room table in the house she and her brother shared in Belton, 13 miles outside Killeen.

The documents also show Hennard attempted to file a civil rights complaint with the FBI that he was being followed by white women who had banded together in a nationwide conspiracy against him.

He told FBI officials in Las Vegas in June that the women prevented others from dating him and that he could not find a job because "the unnamed women would contact Hennard's potential employers and provide negative information to them about Hennard."

Also, a member of the Austin band Hennard belonged to said Hennard told him he felt like he was on a list people in Belton kept to prevent him from getting a job.

The band member added, "It's possible that's why he chose Luby's on (national) Bosses' Day to get even about not getting a job."

Block on pay-per-call services lifted, but can be reinstated by calling SBT

Telephone customers may recall a message on their telephone bill advising them that calls from their telephone number to Pay-Per-Call Information Services such as 900/976 numbers were blocked because of technical limitations.

Because of recent changes in telephone service, customers can now place calls to Pay-Per-Call Information Services (900-976 numbers), said Gary Stevens, area manager of External Affairs, for Southwestern Bell Telephone in Amarillo.

Pay-Per-Call Information Services are programs or messages customers can receive on their telephone by dialing numbers beginning with 1-900 or 1-976.

The companies that sponsor these services charge a fee, either per call or per minute of time spent on the telephone. The contents of the programs are determined by the independent information providers. However, calls to the programs are usually connected and billed by a local telephone company or a long distance company, Stevens explained.

The Texas Public Utility Commission (PUC) has ruled that customers can receive, at no charge for the first request, a service that allows them to block all calls from their telephone to Pay-Per-Call Information Services, he said.

Anyone wishing to block calls from their telephone to Pay-Per-Call Information Services (900-976) numbers, will need to call the Southwestern Bell Telephone business office to order blocking. They can also answer any questions one may have about 900-976 numbers blocking.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Profitable options in store for Gorbys

Now that Mikhail Gorbachev is stepping down from power, what will he do? Having pilfered billions in foreign aid, all of it wasted over the past six years, he knows the procedure for getting welfare from U.S. taxpayers. But in a spirit of peaceful coexistence and to introduce him to the spirit of entrepreneurship, we've come up with a few suggestions to keep him off the dole. He could:

- March in front of the United Nations holding a sign reading: "WILL DICTATE FOR FOOD."
- Take Gus Hall's place as chairman of the Communist Party of the United States.
- Become a "Do you know me?" spokesman for American Express. (That would let Raisa keep her Gold Card.)
- Sue all the Gorbys doll makers for royalties.
- Appear on Soul Train to dance the "Kremlin shuffle."
- Pen a Tom Clancy-style political-military novel called Kremlin Kops about a former communist apparatchik with a large birthmark on his forehead who becomes a privatized eye hunting down international criminals. Then write a spinoff screenplay for a movie starring Arnold Schwarzenegger as you-know-who.
- Form half of a new comedy duo, playing the straight man to Yakov Smirnoff.
- Sign on as a CNN correspondent covering riots and civil wars in the ex-Soviet Union. Become Gorbys the Red, a kind of political Jimmy the Greek giving casualty reports, odds on which side will win, etc.
- Sing rap songs under the monicker Red Ice.
- Become a U.S. government bureaucrat who discovers that all those houses built by Jimmy Carter violate building codes; then tear down the house.
- Become a reporter for All Things Considered, the taxpayer-backed PBS show that is the last refuge of washed-up leftists.
- Start a gossip show patterned after Geraldo. Call it Gorbo. At the same time, Raisa could star in her own show, Raisa, patterned after Oprah. Mikhail and Raisa also could co-host another show, Not for Communists Only. First guest: Elvis.
- Go into the undertaking business. Motto: "We will bury you."

In the free market system in the United States, Gorbachev could parlay his fame and reputation into a million bucks. In the dissolving Soviet Union, he may end up waiting in the long lines to buy goods from those empty shelves communism has produced.

"About my pension - instead of paying me in rubles, how about BOTTLES OF VODKA?"

LTV facing a 'Bleak House'

"The one great principle of the English law," wrote Charles Dickens, "is to make business for itself."

That sterling maxim came to mind a few days ago. I was reading a piece in The Washington Post about the LTV Corp. The article evoked the most famous lawsuit in the whole of English literature, the proceeding in Chancery known as Jamdyce v. Jamdyce. It is fully reported in Mr. Dickens' Bleak House, to which I enthusiastically commend your attention.

The Post's article, a nice piece of work by staff writer Brett D. Fromson, provides a splendid example of the Dickens principle in contemporary application. LTV was at one time a major engineering firm. It manufactured missiles, steel, military aircraft, drilling equipment, and other such large and expensive objects.

The company fell upon hard times. In July 1986 it filed for bankruptcy. Its liabilities reportedly amount to $11.4 billion. Its assets are placed at $6.6 billion.

At the rate the assets are being depleted by bankers and lawyers, the $6.6 billion will not last for long. This is hauntingly in the tradition of Jamdyce v. Jamdyce. The creditors and shareholders of the ill-fated company have yet to receive the first dime. The lawyers are not so deprived.

Fromson has no sensitivity. With unforgivable bluntness he observes that the lawyers, bankers, accountants and other advisers "have been feeding at the trough." Gracious! The matter might have been stated with more grace, for he is here speaking of a vast company of professionals whose feelings are easily wounded.

According to a confidential LTV document,

James J. Kilpatrick

Fromson reports, the company already has paid $162.8 million in bankruptcy expenses, of which $144.5 million is in professional fees. An end is nowhere in sight.

"The largest chunk of the professional fees has gone to the lawyers representing LTV. Davis Polk & Wardwell of New York has received $26 million; Kaye, Scholer, Fierman, Mayo & Handler, also of New York, $10.7 million; and LeBoeuf, Lamb, Leiby & MacRae of Washington, $3.5 million, for a total of $40.2 million."

Henry Kissinger's consulting firm, retained to advise LTV on the sale of its assets, is knocking down $60,000 a month. It will take in an additional $500,000 if the sale of an LTV subsidiary goes through.

This is the delightful part: The law and investing firms "also charge hefty fees just for preparing their bills." One consultant submitted a bill for 92 hours of labor at $382 an hour, working up the tab. A New York investment firm charged LTV $915.75 an hour for preparing its bill.

Some of the fees, Fromson reports, are remarkably creative. A Boston law firm billed LTV for "passive travel." When the bankruptcy judge inquired what was meant by "passive travel," the lawyers explained, deadpan, that passive travel is the time a lawyer spends sleeping in his first-class seat as he flies to an LTV appointment.

Getting back to Bleak House: The plot turns on the probate of a will. The case drags on interminably, generation after generation. At last a day is fixed for a final decree. Two characters, Allan and Esther, arrive late at the courthouse. They are puzzled by the high spirits of hangers-on in the hall. Evidently something droll has occurred, something "that made the professional gentlemen very merry," for several young counselors in wigs and whiskers are quite doubled up with laughter.

"We asked a gentleman by us, if he new what was on? He told us Jamdyce and Jamdyce. We asked him if he knew what was doing in it? He said, really no he did not; nobody ever did; but as well as he could make out, it was over. Over for the day? We asked him. No, he said; over for good."

A jolly crowd rolls out of the courtroom, "and presently great bundles of paper began to be carried out - bundles in bags, bundles too large to be got in any bags, immense masses of papers of all shapes and no shapes, which the bearers staggered under and threw down for the time being while they went back to bring more. Even these clerks were laughing."

Allan asks the lead lawyer: "Do I understand that the whole estate is found to have been absorbed in costs?"

"Hem! I believe so," returned Mr. Kenge.

Critics rank Bleak House among the five best novels of Dickens. LTV's creditors could read it and weep, for truth, as they say, is often stranger than fiction.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Jan. 13, the 13th day of 1992. There are 353 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
Ten years ago, on Jan. 13, 1982, an Air Florida 737 taking off in a snowstorm crashed into Washington D.C.'s 14th Street Bridge and fell into the Potomac River, killing 78 people.

On this date:

In 1733, James Oglethorpe and some 130 English colonists arrived at Charleston, S.C., to settle in present-day Georgia.

In 1864, composer Stephen Foster died in a New York hospital.

In 1893, Britain's Independent Labor Party (a precursor to the current Labor Party) held its first meeting.

In 1898, Emile Zola's famous defense of Captain Alfred Dreyfus, "J'accuse," was published in Paris.

In 1906, the first advertisement for a radio - a Telimco selling for $7.50 - appeared in Scientific American.

In 1941, novelist James Joyce died in Zurich, Switzerland.

In 1962, 30 years ago, television comedian Ernie Kovacs died in a car crash in west Los Angeles.

Cuba's Castro now in limbo

Of all the vile and filthy words that young Americans hurled at the establishment during the '60s and '70s, the one word more obscene than all the others was "hypocrite."

We were sending our sons half way around the world in both directions "to stop the advance of communism" in Korea and in Vietnam ...

Yet, the same generation was warned that if they dared try to do anything about "the advance of communism" 90 miles from Florida they would be thrown into jail.

In what was the Soviet Union, communism, frustrated, like an angry scorpion, has turned on itself and died of its own sting.

Communism survived in Cuba because of trans-fusions through the umbilical cord to Moscow. Now that's cut off. Without the oil, machinery, grain, food, spare parts and fuel that Moscow provided, Castro has nothing left but charisma.

With that, he is trying to convince 11 million people that they can manage without Soviet aid.

But it is taking all of Cuba's sugar just to buy oil - with nothing left for food.

As Cuba slides deeper into crisis, Cubans are stealing from one another and from the state.

Managers of state-run farms obtained guns and dogs to protect their crops. Bicycles, imported to save gasoline, have spawned a generation of bicycle thieves. Tourists are being mugged.

Castro conceded, at a Communist Party congress in October, that black marketeering and stealing and all forms of economic crime are rampant.

Discussed less openly is an enormous increase in bookmaking and prostitution.

Cubans who can find a way out are getting out. The Cuban population of Miami Beach, 22 percent 10 years ago, has more than doubled to 46 percent.

Kosher delis are giving way to Hispanic markets.

And Miami residents complain of a rising crime rate.

The traditional population of Miami - especially the elderly - say that they are being pushed out.

"Why can't they at least learn to speak English?" one resident complains.

Looking ahead to the inevitable end of Castro and communism in Cuba, will the emigres return?

Most say they will. Experience suggests most won't.

And while most Cuban immigrants, gifted and industrious, cross-pollinate our society to mutual advantage, most of the criminals Castro released during the Mariel boat lift have remained criminals.

While the Soviets have supplied Castro, they have also restrained him.

Before he will allow himself to be overthrown internally he might seek to unify his people behind some stupid but dangerous military adventure.

1991 was great year for America

By WILLIAM A. RUSHER

For centuries to come schoolchildren will be required to memorize the year 1991, along with 1492, 1776 and 1914, as one of what Winston Churchill called "the great climacterics of human history."

In the political realm, certainly, events simply don't get any bigger than the ones we witnessed in the year that has just ended. To be sure, 1989 was hailed as the "Annus Mirabilis," and deserved the name: The liberation of the nations of Eastern Europe effectively ended the Cold War.

But, whatever tragedy remains to be played out on the Central Eurasian landmass, 1991 was the year that saw the official abolition of the Soviet Communist Party and the legal extinction of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. That long, bloody drama is over, and - as in the last act of some grand opera - the union's very pillars are collapsing upon themselves, in a welter of smoke and flame.

But the end of the Soviet Union scarcely begins to tell the story of this amazing year. By transporting half a million superbly armed American troops a third of the way across the globe, and winning there, in a handful of days and with very low casualties, a stunning victory against a numerous and fanatical Third World army, President Bush nailed down, beyond doubt or dispute, the predominant role of the United States in the world now emerging.

Looking even further into the future, the nations of Western Europe, by signing the Treaty of Maastricht, have set themselves irrevocably on the road to economic and (ultimately) political union. In this one year we have witnessed the death of one superpower and the birth of another.

In the shadow of such global events, it may seem at first almost frivolous to mention another development that may nonetheless, in the fullness of time, be recognized as in its way equally important.

For it was in 1991 that the governors of several American states at last found the courage to turn and do battle against the welfare system, which for nearly a century has corrupted the thinking of most free societies, including the United States, on the important subject of the poor.

It was the central conviction of the liberal dispensation that so long dominated this country that the nation's poor were, in one way or another, the victims of accidents: an accident of history, or of culture, or of some other particular circumstance. It followed that a good society would help them out of their condition - through economic growth if possible, or redistribution if necessary.

Six decades of heroic effort and ingenious experimentation have demonstrated the futility of that course. The welfare burden is slowly suffocating the life out of most of our large states and - far from diminishing - is growing heavier by the day.

It was in this situation that Gov.

John Engler of Michigan recently decreed - and got the legislature to agree - that all able-bodied men would forthwith be removed from the welfare rolls.

And now, in a series of proposals formulated as a ballot proposition to amend the state constitution, Gov. Pete Wilson of California - a state with a population bigger than Canada's - has called for cutting welfare benefits 10 percent across the board, cutting them a further 15 percent in the case of any family on welfare longer than six months, and making various other reforms that will require another column to discuss.

This proposition, which will be on the California ballot in November 1992, will be resisted bitterly by the welfare lobby, but it will pass by a wide margin. It would seem, therefore, that the welfare worm may be turning. If so, that will be yet another feather in the already richly befattered cap of the year 1991.

Hotel unintentionally becomes role model for hiring older workers

By MARC RICE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Days Inns of America Inc. never intended to become an advocate for hiring the elderly or, for that matter, anything else.

The hotel chain began hiring older people during a mid-'80s labor shortage, and has found itself cited regularly as a leading example of corporate America's evolving attitudes toward the elderly in the workforce.

But hiring older workers was a necessity, said Richard Smith, Days senior vice president.

"It was not because we were doing something that elevated us in the social strata. We did it because it made good business sense," he said. "We were not trying to be good corporate citizens. We were trying to run a business."

The company's experience with older workers dates to 1985 when the economy was booming and Days Inns, a relatively small chain that underwent an expansive franchising program, was emerging as one of the nation's largest hotel chains.

Quite simply, the growing company was having trouble finding and keeping workers, especially in its reservations department.

In desperation, company officials attended a job fair in Atlanta for older people. Smith said the company was shocked by the large number of people there looking for jobs.

The company also was pleasantly surprised, Smith said, that the few older people hired then turned out to be good workers. They tended to be more conscientious than the average younger worker, adapted well to changes and had low absenteeism.

Six years later, about 25 percent of the 600 employees at Days Inns' two national reservations centers are seniors. Company officials estimate that hundreds more are employed at the chain's franchised hotels.

"It's a wonderful environment. They bend over backward to treat seniors equally," said Dan Young, 74, of Atlanta, a reservations agent since 1986.

"It is so rare today to be wanted, especially in the business world," said Young, who went to Days Inns after being fired from his job at a vacuum cleaner company on New Year's Day that year.

Meanwhile, the chain now sponsors its own senior job fairs across the country and Smith has twice testified before Congress on older workers issues.

But while Days Inns and a few other companies — McDonald's and the insurance company Travelers Corp. are commonly cited — win kudos for opening their doors to older workers and speaking out for their cause, advocates for the elderly say the climate for seniors in the workplace remains less than inviting.

"Say what you will about experience, maturity, dedication, low absenteeism," said Sara E. Rix of the American Association of Retired Persons. "It's very difficult to find work after you're 50, 55."

"Age is a big impediment in getting hired or promoted in midlife," said Ms. Rix, a senior analyst on employment issues at AARP's Public Policy Institute.

In addition to lingering prejudice against older people, seniors seeking jobs often are shut out by companies that decide it's cheaper and easier to hire younger people, she said.

For example, Ms. Rix said, a company may have to recruit and train two people to fill one 40-hour-a-week position, because many older people work part time to keep their income low enough to maintain Social Security benefits. Training two people costs more.

Even among companies that are hiring older workers, things aren't always what they seem, Ms. Rix said. Many older people returning to work find themselves offered only menial jobs.

"Most older workers looking for work want good jobs, not the jobs they're hired for," she said.

Recent studies by Florida State and Penn State universities showed that many business managers perceive older workers as set in their ways and ill-prepared for promotions.

But another study, released this year by the Commonwealth Fund, a philanthropic foundation, said companies that have hired the old found them to be flexible, efficient employees.

The Commonwealth Fund study was based partly on Days Inns' experiences.

Smith of Days Inns said company officials originally shared the common perceptions of older workers, but found otherwise once they were integrated into the chain.

"The misgivings we had were typical," he said. "We had people who thought it was appropriate to keep older people out of the company."

Now, the older workers are not considered an oddity at Days Inns, Smith said. "To us it's old hat," he said.

Ironically, the main obstacle to older people getting jobs now at Days Inns is the same thing that initially provided their opportunity — the economy.

"The problem we're facing now is the economy. Hiring is flat," Smith said. "We have ... peaks and valleys. Now we're not hiring."

Busy signal is too subtle for chatty friend

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who calls me at the most inconvenient times. She always starts off with, "I suppose you're busy, but I'll only keep you a minute." She supposedly calls to ask a question, but she gets into long, drawn-out stories far afield from the question she asked, then she goes into great detail and wanders off onto many other subjects.

I have no objection to talking to her if I have the choice as to when. If she would ask, "Do you have time to chat right now?" or say, "Let's set a time for a long, relaxing telephone visit," I wouldn't mind one bit because she is a friend and I really like her.

Abby, I've been wanting to say this for years, and I pray that she (and all others who are guilty of doing the same) reads this and realizes that this shoe fits her foot.

I do nothing to prolong these conversations, and I never say, "Oh no, I'm not busy."

Thank you. I cannot sign my name, so please make up one for me.
NO DING-A-LING

DEAR NO DING-A-LING (How's that for a name?): This may not be the answer you were hoping for, but if you stay on the phone while your friend gets into long, drawn-out stories and wanders off onto other subjects when it is not convenient for you to listen, don't blame her.

In the future, when she calls and you don't have the time (or are not in the mood) for a lengthy conversation, tell her immediately that you aren't able to visit with her now, and you will call her back as soon as you are able.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old girl and a junior in high school. I read your column all the time and I think you give great advice. The other day, some girls were talking about a party they were going to, and then the conversation turned to alcohol and drugs. They started talking about the alcohol they drank and the drugs they took and what they wanted to try.

Abby, I never drank any alcohol or did any drugs. I have never smoked. I just never wanted to, so I have avoided going to parties where the kids do. Now I'm afraid of someone asking, "What drugs have you taken?" And, "Have you ever been drunk?"

These are the subjects the kids talk about. It seems like everyone drinks or does some drugs.

What should I say when someone asks me if I ever drank or tried drugs? I'm afraid to tell them the truth.

JUST WONDERING

DEAR JUST WONDERING: Don't be afraid — be proud. Tell them you've never been drunk or tried drugs, and you have no intention of starting.

DEAR ABBY: My honey and I are getting married in August. His mom and dad are divorced. His mom has a steady boyfriend, and his dad has a steady girlfriend.

We want his mom and dad to be together for the ceremony. How do we seat the couples? And what do we do with their dates?

MULTI-PARENTED DEAR MULTI: It depends on how friendly his mom and dad are. If they are on friendly terms, Mom and her date should sit together in the first pew, and Dad and his date should sit one row behind them.

If they are not friendly, seat Dad and his date two or three pews behind Mom.

Virginia museum acquires Himalayan artwork collection

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The acquisition of a collection of Nepalese and Tibetan sculptures, paintings and other artworks promises to put the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in the top rank in Himalayan art, museum officials say.

Museum trustees have approved the acquisition of 54 works owned by Berthe and John Ford of Baltimore, including 15th-century thangka — religious paintings on cloth — tapestries, mandalas and 14th-century gold and silver sculpture. The Fords will donate 28 of the works, the rest will be purchased with private funds.

Dr. Joseph M. Dye III, the museum's curator of Asiatic art, says the museum's collection "will now rank with the Los Angeles County Museum as America's premier institution for Himalayan art and internationally with the Musee Guimet in Paris."

'Skins demolish Lions

NFC championship
By RICHARD KEIL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the half, it was still a football game. But 30 minutes and yet another Richie Petitbon defensive adjustment later, the Washington Redskins were on their way to a Super Bowl matchup with the Buffalo Bills after a 41-10 victory over the Detroit Lions in the NFC championship game.

Washington's defensive guru, 5-0 against run-and-shoot offenses this season, now must turn his attention to the no-huddle frenzy of Jim Kelly and Co.

Hard to believe Sunday's game had been a close, 17-10 contest after two quarters of play.

At halftime, linebacker Wilber Marshall stood up and said that the Redskins would be foolish to expect the offense to carry the day and simply outscore the Lions.

"He said, 'We've got to take things into our own hands,'" defensive end Fred Stokes recalled. "We just had to go throw our bodies around, lay it on the line for another two periods."

Petitbon, Washington's defensive coordinator, was more concerned with making sure his players executed than with rekindling the emotional intensity that marked the first few defensive series.

"We just played well. We did what we were supposed to do and we settled down," Petitbon said in explaining Washington's second-half turnaround. "I thought our coverage in the first half, we made some mistakes. In the second half, we played better."

Washington's ferocious defensive play set the tone for the game and gave the Lions, playing in their first title game in 34 years, a taste of what high-level football is all about. The defense also came full circle, shutting down a seemingly unstoppable offense 19 weeks after they first raised eyebrows around the NFL by thumping the Lions 45-0 in the season opener.

That was the first of three straight home shutouts for the Redskins, who had yielded an average of just 10.5 points per game at RFK Stadium this season heading into Sunday's contest.

Things looked depressingly familiar to Detroit.

On Detroit's first offensive play, defensive end Charles Mann sacked Erik Kramer and forced a fumble, which Washington quickly turned into a 7-0 lead.

The Lions got the ball back, and

(AP Laserphoto) Redskins' defensive end Charles Mann (71) tackles Lions' quarterback Erik Kramer, who fumbles the ball away in the first quarter five plays later, Washington linebacker Kurt Gouveia picked off an errant Kramer throw and ran it back to the Detroit 10. Chip Lohmiller's 20-yard field goal gave Washington a 10-0 advantage with just 4:02 gone in the opening quarter.

"When you get 10 points down to that big football team, you're in trouble," Detroit coach Wayne Fontes said.

Detroit guard Ken Dallarior called the first period "something of a shock. It was like walking into a snake pit."

After that opening loss to Washington, Detroit reeled off five straight victories. They showed the same resolve Sunday.

Early in the second quarter, Detroit capped an 11-play, 75-yard drive with Kramer's 18-yard TD pass to Willie Green.

Suddenly, Kramer was hitting slant passes and sideline outs, using a two-step drop to avoid Washington's pass rush. When he wasn't throwing, Barry Sanders was moving the ball on the ground.

Washington pushed its lead to 17-

7 on a 2-yard touchdown run with 6:44 left in the half, but Kramer completed five of eight on Detroit's next drive to set up a 30-yard Eddie Murray field goal attempt just before halftime.

The Lions had served notice they weren't about to roll over and die.

"By the time halftime came around, we were drained, I mean we had leveled out, we came down too low," defensive tackle Tim Johnson said. "And so the word at halftime was, 'Pick it back up.' We had to play level-headed, we had to play smart, and make the necessary adjustments so that they couldn't make the quick-step on us."

After another Washington field goal made it 20-10, Detroit tried to continue its comeback.

Kramer, who completed 14 of 20 passes for 179 yards in the first half, saw his first attempt of the second half batted down by defensive tackle Eric Williams. After an 8-yard completion, Kramer felt pressure again and overthrew wide receiver Robert Perriman.

That set the tone for the second half.

Bills slip past Broncos

AFC championship
By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. (AP) — No offense, but Buffalo's going back to the Super Bowl and Denver's not.

Their no-huddle a no-show against a brilliantly prepared Denver defense, the Bills could get only one touchdown — on defense. They broke a scoreless tie in the third quarter on Carlton Bailey's 11-yard touchdown return of a tipped John Elway pass.

That helped Buffalo to a 10-7 victory over the Broncos in the AFC championship game Sunday and sent the Bills to their second straight Super Bowl, Jan. 26 at Minneapolis.

So defensive was the game that Denver backup quarterback Gary Kubiak, who relieved an injured Elway, threw for more yardage than either Elway or Jim Kelly, two of the game's premier quarterbacks.

"When Carlton made the interception, the whole offense was saying, 'Please get into the end zone,'" said Kelly, who was 13 of 25 for only 117 yards.

The Broncos, who entered the game an underdog by nearly two touchdowns despite a 12-4 season, had their chances, even after losing Elway in the fourth quarter with a bruised thigh.

"We did everything we could," Denver coach Dan Reeves said. "Our defense held them to three points. It's a shame a turnover changed the game."

"They didn't do anything differently," Buffalo coach Marv Levy said. "They just played hard and aggressive. We're just happy to get out with a win."

Kubiak, who is retiring after this season, completed 11 of 12 for 137 yards and ran 2 yards for the Broncos' only touchdown with 1:43 left after Scott Norwood's 44-yard field goal had given the Bills a 10-0 lead. Elway, 10 of 15 in the first half for 113 yards, was only 1 of 6 for 8 yards in the second half.

But the story was the opportunities the Broncos missed.

Norwood, who missed a late 47-yard attempt that would have won the game in last year's 20-19 Super Bowl loss to the New York Giants, was a lot more successful than Denver's David Treadwell.

Treadwell missed from 47, 42 and 37 yards in the first half as the Broncos got into Buffalo territory on all six of their possessions, getting as far as the Bills' 11 on one drive.

(AP Laserphoto) Bills' kicker Scott Norwood (11) celebrates his game-winning field goal with teammate Kenneth Davis.

But Buffalo's defense, ranked next-to-last in the NFL during its 13-3 regular season, rose up each time, led by linebackers Cornelius Bennett and Darryl Talley and nose tackle Jeff Wright, forcing the field-goal tries.

Cornerback Kirby Jackson made one of the biggest plays, stripping Steve Sewell of the ball at the Buffalo 44 after the Broncos had recovered an onside kick following Kubiak's TD.

Treadwell's misses made the game scoreless at halftime, as Buffalo, which led the NFL with an average of 448 yards per game, was held to 58 total yards in the first half.

The Bills almost matched that total on their second possession of the third quarter, driving 44 yards to the Denver 26. But on a third and seven, Tyrone Braxton intercepted a Kelly pass.

That turned out to be a turning point — for the Bills.

On the second play, Elway dropped back and attempted a middle screen pass, a play that had worked for 21 yards in the first half.

But he couldn't get it over Wright and Bailey. Bailey grabbed the ball on the 11, juggled it, broke a tackle by Elway and took it into the end zone.

"I had a window there, but it was an awful small window and Wright just tipped the ball right into Bailey's hands," Elway said. "I should have made the tackle."

"I just didn't do it by myself," Bailey said of his first touchdown in four NFL seasons. "Jeff tipped the ball and I was just there."

UTSA athlete death toll rises to six since 1987

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The names of three golfers have been added to the tragic athlete death toll at the University of Texas-San Antonio following a weekend car accident.

A total of six UTSA athletes have now died since 1987.

The accident occurred on state Highway 21 just east of Mendoza, located about 54 miles northeast of San Antonio, when the golfers' car collided with a pickup truck.

The three UTSA golfers killed Friday and the passenger of the truck, Kenneth Greer, 18, of Boerne, were pronounced dead at the scene. The two men killed in the truck were believed to be brothers.

The driver of the truck, Brett Greer, 25, of Jasper, was flown by helicopter to Brackenridge Hospital in Austin. Doctors pronounced him dead at 10:40 p.m.

Mark Bruchmiller, 21, of San Antonio was returning from a Lufkin golf tournament with Derek Steinbruck, 20, of Uvalde, and Lance Mullins, 21, of San Antonio.

The three had gone to the Crown

Colony Collegiate Opener Golf Tournament on their own to play as a warmup for the coming season, the San Antonio Express-News reported Sunday.

UTSA sports information director Rick Nixon said Mullins and Steinbruck were the team's top golfers. Both were all-conference players last season.

UTSA golf coach Joel Williamson said Bruchmiller, Steinbruck and Mullins will "be deeply missed here at UTSA."

"They would practically spend all of their waking hours together," Williamson said. "They had classes together, ate together at the cafeteria and spent their time on the golf course together."

Other athletes killed since 1989 include UTSA golfer Gary Schoen, who was killed in a car accident Oct. 26, 1989 and Mike Mason, of the men's basketball team, who died in a car wreck Oct. 20, 1990.

Another UTSA athlete, Benita Griffin, of the women's basketball team died Sept. 14, 1987 during a three-mile conditioning run on the school track.

Kennedy wins U.S. Olympic Luge trials

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — Duncan Kennedy, a medalist in all four World Cup races this season, won the U.S. Olympic Luge trials on Sunday to lead the qualifiers for next month's Winter Games in Albertville, France.

The team also includes four 1988 Olympians, as well as the only black slider on the international luge circuit.

Kennedy, 24, won with a four-run time of 2 minutes, 50.468 seconds, defeating former junior standout Tim Wiley by .43 of a second.

Wiley, 22, qualified on the basis of his second-place finish, while first-year World Cup racer Robert Pipkins was named to the Olympic squad by U.S. Luge coaches.

Pipkins, 18, is the World Cup's only black luge racer. The World Cup novice set a Mount Van Hoevenberg track record of 42.300 seconds on Sunday, but a crash in the first heat left him 10th in the final standings. Pipkins was not hurt in the mishap.

"I tend to be fairly competitive, and that's why luge first appealed to me," said Pipkins, who started to luge less than five years ago after his mother brought home a newsletter about the sport.

"I don't really think of myself as a role model for blacks; if anything, I'm proof that it really doesn't matter what color you are," Pipkins said.

Harvesters No. 1

Junior forward Dwight Nickelberry (pictured in file photo) is a starter on the Pampa Harvester basketball team, which was ranked as the state's No. 1 Class 4A team by the Associated Press Coaches poll released this week. The Harvesters, coached by Robert Hale, reached the state tournament semifinals last season and are off to an 18-2 start in 1991-92. Pampa hosts Hereford at 8 p.m. Saturday in a District 1-4A opener.

Becker opens defense of Australian Open championship with win over Gunnarsson

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Boris Becker dealt out 25 aces to begin defense of his Australian Open title and Jennifer Capriati completed her royal round of center-court debuts in Grand Slam championships with an equally sizzling show. Becker, returning to the stage where he briefly reached No. 1 in the world last year, gunned down Jan Gunnarsson 6-1, 6-4, 6-2 on Monday with a display of precise serving, volleying and ground-strokes. Capriati, seeking to go beyond her semifinal finishes at the U.S. Open, Wimbledon and the French Open, walloped Natalia Medvedeva 6-2, 6-0 in 44 minutes and won more than a standing ovation from the crowd.

Whistles and shouts punctuated the 15-year-old Floridian's first match in the year's first Grand Slam event as the fans rallied behind from the start.

"I thought the crowd was cool," said the fifth-seeded Capriati.

Longhorns are early leaders in league race

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

The Texas Longhorns have emphatically established the fact that they are tough home warriors. Now, they've got to prove they aren't road wimps.

Texas, 2-0 and the early leaders in the SWC basketball race, have to play in a basketball graveyard of good teams on Tuesday night, taking on the down but far from out Texas Aggies in musty old G. Rollie White Coliseum.

Then the 'Horns have to play at another dangerous venue on Saturday night, traveling to Fort Worth to joust the tough Texas Christian Horned Frogs.

The Longhorns are 2-0 in SWC play after a hard-earned 88-83 victory over the improved Texas Tech Red Raiders (1-1) on Saturday night.

On Thursday night, the Longhorns stunned the Houston Cougars 86-75 in Austin before the national television cameras.

Texas with numerous young players in the lineup was thought to be helpless without Dexter Cambridge, who is still battling the NCAA over his eligibility.

Terrence Rencher, a freshman from New York City, scored a career high 28 points against the Red Raiders and sophomore guard B.J. Tyler helped break the tough Tech defense in the second half.

In the other SWC games on Saturday, Southern Methodist (1-1) outlasted coach Tony Barone's Texas Aggies 73-69, Houston (1-1) bounced back with an 83-77 victory over Baylor (0-2), and Texas Christian (1-0 in SWC play and 11-3 in non-conference) took out Arkansas-Little Rock 84-69.

Texas always gets nervous on trips to College Station.

"We've got to hit the road and that won't be easy," said Texas coach Tom Penders. "It doesn't matter how a team is ranked in this series. The game always goes down to the wire."

"I'm just glad my players watched A&M play SMU on television. They know how hard it's going to be. A&M is a feisty team just like its coach."

Australian Steve Elkington waves to the crowd after making a birdie on the first playoff hole to win the Infiniti Tournament of Champions Sunday in Carlsbad, California. Elkington beat Brad Faxon on the first extra hole of the playoff.

Elkington sinks playoff putt to take T of C title

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Steve Elkington won a golf tournament on Sunday. Perhaps more importantly, he also cleared a mental barrier.

Elkington, an Australian now living in the United States, dropped a 10-foot birdie putt on the first extra hole to beat Brad Faxon in a playoff and win the elite Tournament of Champions.

"I jumped a mental hurdle today," Elkington said after he'd watched a two-stroke lead disappear and his game become suspect before a late rally brought him the victory.

Elkington, a resident of Houston and a protege of old champion Jack Burke, said his mentor has hammered into him the need for calm and patience.

"I kept it slow and calm today, just like he told me to. I didn't get fast. I kept my patience. I'm proud of that," Elkington said.

And, in the end, it brought him the third victory of his career.

After a double bogey on the fifth hole and a bogey on the eighth, "I was two behind and going the wrong way," Elkington said.

But he got one back on the ninth, went back in front with another birdie on the 12th and went in front again with a 30-footer on the 14th. A couple of critical saves on the next two holes kept him in the lead.

Faxon, however, tied him with a 10-foot birdie putt on the 17th. Elkington missed an 8-footer to win it outright on the 18th and they finished in a tie for the lead at 9-under-par 279. Elkington had a closing 72, Faxon a 70.

On the first playoff hole, Elkington put his 7-iron approach 10 feet below the cup and Faxon, trying to get it close, watched his second shot drift some 40 feet away.

After Faxon missed, Elkington ran his putt into the cup for the title in the opening event on the long PGA Tour schedule. The victory was worth $144,000 from the total purse of $800,000.

Fred Couples, Rocco Mediate and Billy Andrade missed the playoff by a single stroke at 280.

Couples, who now has finished sixth or better in 14 of his last 17 world-wide starts, shot a 70. Mediate and Andrade each had a 71 in the final round of the tournament that brings together only the winners of 1991 PGA Tour events.

Paul Azinger, who was assessed a 2-shot penalty Friday when his ball moved after he'd picked up a loose impediment, was alone at 282 after a 70.

PGA champ John Daly, still struggling with a bout of flu, was well back at 75-292.

In a separate but simultaneous competition for winners from the Senior PGA Tour, Al Geiberger held on for a 3-stroke victory. Geiberger needed only a final round of 1-over 73 to turn back Chi Chi Rodriguez and Bruce Crampton, who tied for second.

"I just kept telling myself, 'It's your tournament. Don't let them take it away,'" Geiberger said after finishing at 282.

Rodriguez once closed within a single stroke, but Geiberger dropped a 15-foot birdie putt on the 13th hole and Rodriguez three-putted for bogey on the next.

The victory, Geiberger's seventh in his Senior career, was worth $52,500. Rodriguez and Crampton, the defending champion, tied for second at 285.

Rodriguez had a closing 73 and Crampton shot a 70.

The only other members of the over-50 set to break par were Lee Trevino, DeWitt Weaver and Harold Henning, all at 287. Henning shot 70 over the final 18 holes, while Weaver had a 71 and Trevino shot a 73.

The tournament was sponsored by Infiniti.

Basketball score: 258 to 141!

By PAUL NEWBERRY
Associated Press Writer

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — One hundred years ago, James Naismith tacked a peach basket to a wall and basketball was born. He would be amazed to see where Troy State has taken the sport.

The Trojans entered Sunday's game against DeVry Institute intent on breaking their own NCAA scoring record and perhaps becoming the first college team ever to reach the magic 200-point mark.

But no one expected what actually happened: A 258-141 victory that broke at least a dozen NCAA records and set marks that may be impossible to duplicate.

"When Dr. Naismith put the peach baskets up, I bet he didn't think the ball would ever go through the basket enough for one team to score 258 points in a game," said Don Maestri, coach of the NCAA Division II Trojans.

It's the second year in a row Troy State has turned in a record performance against DeVry, an NAIA Division II computer college in Atlanta.

Last year, Troy State beat DeVry 187-116, setting NCAA marks — regardless of division — for most points in a game by one team and most points in a half (103).

That computer training really would have come in handy on Sunday.

The Trojans averaged more than six points a minute and demolished their previous scoring mark by 71 points.

"This is unimaginable," Maestri said. "I don't ever see it happening again. ... It's hard to believe it happened even one time."

The Trojans (13-3) led 123-53 at halftime, then did even better in the second half with 135 points. They eclipsed the 187-point mark when Chris Gresham hit a 3-pointer midway through the second half and became the first NCAA team to score 200 points when Steve Hunt pulled up and made a 3-pointer with 7:57 remaining.

"It's a great feeling knowing we're a part of history — probably forever or at least for a long time," said junior forward Terry McCord, who led the Trojans with 41 points and was one of 10 players in double figures.

Prior to the game, there had been much talk around campus about Troy State setting another record.

"We really practiced hard this week, especially on our outside shooting," said reserve Brian Simpson, who hit 11 3-pointers and scored 37 points. "We practiced harder this week than for any other team."

DeVry (3-16) kept running the whole game and enjoyed playing a role in setting the record.

The Hoyas joined in the post-game celebration with Troy State, knowing they were in the record books along with the Trojans for most total points in a game (399).

The old NCAA mark was 331 in Loyola Marymount's 181-150 victory over U.S. International in 1989.

"We tried to play with them the first two or three minutes," DeVry captain Clayton Jones said. "Then seeing the shooters they had, we just decided to have some fun. That's what we had — a lot of fun."

Troy State had lots of fun, too. The Trojans were 102-for-190 (54.7 percent) from the field, including 51-for-109 from 3-point range. All four of those numbers are NCAA records.

"We had a great team shooting night," Maestri said. "What's amazing to me is we could shoot 109 3-pointers and make 51. That's what really made the record."

It also helps when neither team worried about defense. Only seven fouls were called in the game, six on DeVry. The Hoyas, in fact, didn't even go to the foul line, while Troy State took just three free throws and made them all.

"It was a fun game to officiate," said Paul Andrewjewski, one of the referees. "It was a definitely a matter of throwing in up, getting out of the way and letting them play."

The Trojans entered the game averaging 111 points with a run-and-gun offense patterned after the style made famous by former Loyola Marymount coach Paul Westhead, now with the NBA's Denver Nuggets.

"This has proved to be a better thing than just winning basketball game," Maestri said. "This is entertaining, fun to coach and fun to watch. We've had opponent tell us, 'I just wish they would let our team do that.'"

The players, of course, loved it. "This is the best kind of style," McCord said. "You have a lot of freedom, you don't have to worry about a lot of plays being run. You shoot whenever you think you've got a shot."

Eight of Troy State's 11 players scored at least 20 points as Maestri substituted liberally. Everyone saw at least 11 minutes of playing time; no one got more than 25.

DeVry brought only seven players and five were in double figures, led by Dartzel Daniel's 42 points. The Hoyas shot 55.4 percent from the field.

Coach George Trawick said his team didn't get tired, despite its lack of numbers. In other games this season, they have played with only five players, he said.

"We play a full-court press all the time, so our players are in shape," he said. "To have two extra players is like a bonus for us."

Among the other NCAA records set in the game were most 3-point field goals by both teams (58); most combined 3-point attempts (129); highest number of players on one team to make a 3-pointer (10 by Troy State); most combined points in one half (223 in the second half); and most assists by both teams (93).

Troy State also set a Division II record with 65 assists.

Oklahoma back ignites Hula Bowl victory

By BEN DIPIETRO
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — Score one, make that two, for the little guy.

Derrick Moore, a running back from Northeastern State, Okla., proved that not every college star goes to a big-name school.

Moore scored touchdowns on runs of 1 and 18 yards in pacing the West to a 27-20 victory over the East in the Hula Bowl on Saturday.

His first-quarter TD runs gave the West a 12-3 lead that was extended to 19-3 before the East rallied for a 20-19 lead. The West finally won it on a 77-yard pass play from Fresno State's Mark Barsotti to Cal's Brian Treggs with 3:24 left.

Moore, voted the game's offensive MVP, hoped his play caught the eye of the NFL scouts looking in.

"I got a chance to show my skills. I don't think I did anything to hurt myself," he said. "I just have to go from here and start preparing for the combines."

Hawaii linebacker Manly

Williams had an impressive game, making several tackles and returning an interception 36 yards for a touchdown that gave the West a 19-3 lead.

"I never scored a touchdown before, in high school or college," Williams said. "Just think, my last game and I score a touchdown."

Barsotti, who missed the last six games of Fresno State's regular season, said he, too, was glad to show scouts what he could do.

"I gave me some exposure that I usually don't get," said Barsotti, who played the last three quarters when Houston's David Klingler left with a bruised shoulder. "I hope it works in my favor. Just to get the opportunity to play was good for me."

Barsotti found Treggs wide open down the left sideline and threw a perfect pass that allowed the Cal speedster to sprint untouched into the end zone.

The winning play came as the West baited Pittsburgh's aggressive defensive back, Steve Israel. Barsotti called an out-and-up route, guessing that Israel would bite on the out portion. When he did, Treggs had a 10-yard lead in the sprint to the end zone.

"We were thinking he would bite hard — and he did," Barsotti said.

Israel knew he's been suckered. "They set me up perfect. I was live bait for it and they got me."

The East had pulled within 19-13 at halftime on a 24-yard pass from Virginia's Matt Blundin to Notre Dame's Derek Brown and the second field goal by Louisville's Klaus Wilmsmeyer. The East then took a 20-13 on a 1-yard run by Indiana's Vaughn Dunbar with 6:03 left in the third period.

Another player who scored points with scouts was Stanford receiver Chris Walsh, who was pressed into action as a roster replacement for the East because of injuries. He had nine receptions, many on tough catches, for 131 yards.

"I had a decent game, I hope it helps," Walsh said. "I'd play for the West, the East, the South, the North — I was just glad to be here."

Steelers move closer to naming head coach

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers moved closer to naming a new head coach after meeting with Houston offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride and interviewing Dallas defensive coordinator Dave Wannstedt for eight hours.

The Steelers, searching for a coach to replace Chuck Noll, also planned to talk again with defensive line coach Joe Greene before he leaves today to scout players in the Senior Bowl.

In addition, a second interview was scheduled today with Kansas City Chiefs defensive coordinator Bill Cowher, a Pittsburgh native who first met with director of football operations Tom Donahoe only Friday.

Donahoe was impressed with Cowher and immediately set up a second interview that will include Steelers president Dan Rooney and his son, Art. However, Wannstedt's second interview Saturday was the most extensive since the Steelers began searching for Noll's replacement following his resignation on Dec. 26.

Gilbride, who wouldn't bring the Oilers' run-and-shoot offense with him to Pittsburgh, became the 11th candidate interviewed by the Steelers. Several of the sessions apparently were courtesy interviews, with Wannstedt and Cowher apparently the top candidates.

Wannstedt's extensive interview, his second in a week with Donahoe, apparently signals that the Steelers have narrowed their search for Noll's replacement and may hire him this week.

Greene, 45, was considered by some as the front-runner after Noll resigned, but his lack of experience — he has never been a head coach or a coordinator — may be hurting his chances.

Asked if he thinks he is no longer a strong candidate, Greene told The Pittsburgh Press, "I'm not figuring anything. I'm just taking it as it goes. Whatever happens, happens."

The Steelers have encouraged their assistant coaches to attend the Senior Bowl, where newly hired NFL coaches often conduct interviews for assistant coaches. The Steelers will allow their new coach to hire his own staff, but Rooney has said he will be encouraged to rehire some of Noll's assistants.

Wannstedt has been a finalist for several college head coaching jobs.

East scores two late touchdowns to win fun-filled Japan Bowl

TOKYO (AP) — Ty Detmer had fun, and the Japanese fans had fun watching him scramble and pass. And to make it complete, the other team had fun by scoring two late touchdowns to win the Japan Bowl.

"It was just a lot of fun playing. I don't think there are any losers in this game," Detmer, the 1990 Heisman Trophy winner from BYU, said after the East beat the West 14-13 before a crowd of 50,000 in the Tokyo Dome on Sunday.

Tennessee's Andy Kelly and East Carolina's Jeff Blake each led fourth-quarter touchdown drives and Alabama backs Sirin Stacy and Kevin Turner did much of the running and catching as the East won for the sixth time in 17 games.

Detmer dominated the spotlight for nearly half of the third quarter, leading the West on its only touchdown drive — an 89-yard, 12-play march capped by his 4-yard touchdown scramble.

He had a 23-yard scramble early in the drive as well as completions of 14, 18 and 5 yards.

The touchdown put the West ahead 13-0, supplementing first-half field goals of 40 and 45 yards by Air Force's Joe Wood.

"It looked like we had the game tucked away," West coach Bill McCartney of Colorado said. "After that, we couldn't stop them. They mixed the run and the pass up extremely well and wore us down. They had a lot of momentum at the end of the game."

Kelly got his chance when Michigan's Erick Anderson intercepted a pass by the West's other quarterback, Iowa's Matt Rodgers. Kelly threw passes of 17 yards to Turner and 16 yards to Stacy in a 72-yard, 10-play drive. Ohio State's Scottie Graham went the final 9 yards with 10:21 to play.

Blake kept a 50-yard, 10-play drive going with a 13-yard third-down pass to Minnesota's Pat Evans. Turner plunged the final yard for the TD.

The West got the ball back with 3:11 to play, but was unable to sustain a drive and the East ran out the clock. Stacy, who ran for 56 yards in 13 carries, was named the game's most valuable offensive player. Turner had 45 yards in seven carries and caught two passes for 24 yards.

"I played in 12 games this year and I've got to say this has been one of the most fun and exciting games that I've ever been a part of," Stacy said. "This award is just a reflection of my teammates."

Detmer, playing in the first and third quarters, completed 11 of 22 passes for 131 yards and was intercepted once.

He won the Joe Roth Award, named for the late California quarterback who played in the 1977 Japan Bowl. "I felt like in the second half we moved the ball pretty well. I'm not going to be too hard on myself in this kind of a game," Detmer said.

East coach Johnny Majors said his team tightened its defense in the second half, but said it was just outstanding work by Anderson that brought about the key interception.

"He got a great break on the ball. ... He's an alert, smart player," Majors said.

His Michigan teammate, lineman Mike Evans, was voted the game's outstanding defensive player.

"The award surprised me," Evans said. "A lot of guys played very well."

"It seemed like the fans were into the game. ... I play for Michigan and it holds 106,000 people in the stadium. They don't get that loud a response."

Despite having only one practice session, the coaches were pleased with the performance level of their teams.

"I agree with coach McCartney. I thought it was one of the better played all-star games as far as execution, lack of mistakes and fumbling," Majors said.

American football has been growing in popularity in Japan, where many colleges and some companies have teams. Other game fixtures each season are an NFL exhibition in August, an American college game in November or December, and a game matching an Ivy League team against Japanese all-stars in late December.

Emergency Management Coordinator Ken Hall accepts a donation of a cellular mobile telephone from Kelly Lane, office manager of Dobson Cellular Systems in Pampa.

Pampa/Emergency Management receives cellular phone

Dobson Cellular Systems has presented Pampa/Gray County Emergency Management with a Motorola cellular mobile telephone, according to Ken Hall, emergency management coordinator.

Marketing Manager Mary Alice Roberts and Office Manager Kelly Lane explained that Dobson Cellular Systems is a licensed wire line service with five towers in the 12 northeastern counties of the Texas Panhandles and seven towers in western Oklahoma.

Hall expressed his appreciation to Dobson Cellular Systems and the local management for the donation. Hall said the equipment has multiple potential uses in enhancing the communication requirements for Pampa and Gray County.

Hall said the equipment can be utilized in emergency situations that may occur in Pampa central dispatch, Pampa/Gray County Emergency Operations Center, and for emergency field operations anywhere in the jurisdiction. Hall said the service will enhance the ability to help surrounding jurisdictions in the case of an emergency.

Survey: gas prices sink to lowest level in almost a year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gasoline prices at the pump have dropped to their lowest level in nearly a year, according to a survey.

The average price for all grades of gasoline, including taxes, was $1.19.5 per gallon as of Friday, down 2.31 cents in the past three weeks, the nationwide Lundberg Survey found.

Prices are at their lowest level since last February, industry analyst Trilby Lundberg said.

Wholesale prices have dropped because of lower demand by recession-hit U.S. drivers and because concerns that the breakup of the Soviet Union would reduce oil production haven't come true, Ms. Lundberg said.

Democrats take aim at Bush trade policies

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush went to Japan hoping to bury the trade issue, but his trip gave it new life on Capitol Hill, where Democrats are preparing for an election-year session.

"Not only has the president done himself political harm, he has done the country economic harm," said Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., who said that "the worst elements of protectionism" were gaining because Bush "opened that Pandora's box."

A box is exactly where the Democrats want to put Bush, a box labeled "recession."

And trade is an element they hope will let them build a box with sides so high Bush can't escape before the November election.

Some Democrats, like Downey, warn of protectionism, while others say Bush must do more to fight Japanese imports. Some Democrats want to raise tax rates for the rich, while others push to plow some of the defense spending cuts back into people's pockets.

The Democrats' leaders in Congress must figure out how to keep the divisions within the party from dissipating any advantage that might be won.

House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., and Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, have been meeting with key committee chairmen to lay out an agenda.

Their path remains unclear. But Republicans are worried.

House Minority Leader Bob Michel, R-Ill., has privately urged the administration to avoid another fight over extending unemployment claims. Bush resisted the legislation last year and paid a political price — allowing Democrats to cast him as an uncaring leader.

The bill Bush finally signed will expire in June, but the recession may not. A group of House Democrats has already proposed another 13 weeks of benefits for the long-term jobless; some surely wouldn't mind another fight.

In recalibrating their legislative program, Democrats undoubtedly will have to jettison some of their priorities because of the recession.

Bills such as mandating family and medical leave for employees were shot down when businesses argued that such legislation would cost jobs. Pending initiatives for children and to fight social ills fall by the wayside when "dealing with the day-to-day economic crisis," Downey said.

The need for U.S. foreign aid may be greater than ever, but it's a political loser when people are worrying about putting food on their tables.

And while health care is being touted as the issue of the decade, with Democrats promising answers, its cost must be reined in or it too will have to wait.

It's impossible to say how all this will play out. For now, Democrats seem to be cautiously looking at the very short term, the president's State of the Union.

In their meetings earlier this month, party leaders Foley and Mitchell decided to let the president fire the starting gun before they try to nail down their party's position for stimulating the economy with tax and budget changes.

Meanwhile, other Democrats have been working to raise the expectations for the president's program, much as they did before his Japan trip.

After last week's rise in joblessness was reported, House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., declared:

"This increase ... puts more pressure on President Bush to deliver a real economic program with the State of the Union address ... and proposals that offer marginal change won't be up to the task."

If they succeed, when Bush fires that starting gun he'll have to aim carefully — or risk shoot himself in the foot.
