Decision hits sour note

Residents sound off at Lefors school board

By BETH MILLER
Staff Writer

Notes of discord concerning the Lefors school board's decision to cut the music program rang out loud and clear during a special board meeting Thursday night.

About 20 people, including eight Lefors school students, attended the meeting to voice complaints about last week's decision to cut the choir program and 24-year instructor Lela Harris.

Superintendent Joe Roper said because Lefors ISD must pay $70,000 more next school year to County Education District (CED) 14, cuts are necessary. Last week, the board cut the choir program, cut kindergarten from a full-day to a half-day and decreased two maintenance people's full-time workdays to half days.

CEDs were created under the school finance law which was declared unconstitutional Jan. 30 by the Texas Supreme Court. However, the court deferred the effect of its ruling to allow collection of property taxes by the 188 new CEDs for 1991 and 1992. The justices gave lawmakers until June 1, 1993, to write a new law.

The school finance law is dubbed the "Robin Hood" plan, and property wealthy school districts, such as Lefors ISD, dispute the taking of money from them to distribute to less wealthy schools in the CED.

Shari Davenport, who has four children in Lefors schools, said that when her family moved from Canadian to Lefors three years ago she was concerned because Canadian had an "excellent school system."

"But the one thing that impressed me the most about this (Lefors') school was your music program. Mrs. Harris is an incredbly talented person and she spends countless hours ... she not only benefits the school, she benefits the whole community.

Davenport said her children, who she described as average, were worked with as much by Harris as the exceptional students.

"She gets them involved in UIL, she gets them singing on stage and she encourages their self esteem," Davenport said.

"Ya'll know how much music means to me. And it just tears my heart out to think that we might not have music in our school."

- Betty Hannon

"When you think about cutting things, I'd ask you to look again and see if there's not some other area that could be trimmed. I've talked to other people in this community and the first thing they say is, 'What about football?' It benefits a very few people for three months out of the year, whereas music benefits all the children, and the whole community, for the whole school year."

Rhonda Gilbreath said she is concerned that if the choir program is changed from the way it is now, children will not be able to participate in University Interscholastic League competition. She also pointed out that at least five Lefors ISD students have received choir scholarships.

"We don't have that many kids going to college on athletic scholarships," said Gilbreath. "We do have them going on choir. I think we're cutting some of our kids' throats that might have a possibility of going to college on a scholarship."

Gilbreath also asked the board, "Which one of the programs would be best for our kids? ... I'm not trying to be biased against sports. I love sports, too, but I think what benefits our kids most is something we need to look at."

Betty Hannon, a regular singer at her church, said, "Ya'll know how much music means to me. And it just tears my heart out to think that we might not have music in our school. And it tears my heart out because the governor of this state and our politicians are going to close us down and what can we do?"

"I just wish, people, (that) music meant to ya'll what it does to me and I know it must not. Kindergarten through 12th grade can be involved in music, and they are, and you are spending a ton of money on sports and you are benefiting a few kids. And you know I like sports just as well as anybody else ... Music will be with these children for the rest of their lives; sports won't ... It just breaks my heart that the first thing that you would cut would be the music program when I feel certain there were other places that it could have been."

Larry Gilbreath told the board he realized the school district was in a bind, but urged them to take a second look at cutting an athletic program, rather than the music program.

"I love athletics and I love and support amateur athletics. There's nothing better for kids when you can get them involved, but you can't cut something as strong, as lifelong, as music. You start music in the first grade, and you will have music until the day you die. It will stay with you forever. You might not get a scholarship in music, you might not be a good singer, but you can learn to appreciate music."

He also said he and others in the community were unaware the board was considering making any cuts, until they read it in The Pampa News after the fact last week.

"Maybe we need to slow down and back up and relook at what we're doing," Larry Gilbreath said. "I realize cutting football is, I mean, 'Perish this thought. You know we can't cut football in Lefors.' But we did live without football for several years here and the world didn't come to an end and school didn't come to an end."

Starla Gilbreath, a senior at Lefors, said she was concerned that the students might not have enough fine arts to be able to graduate if choir was deleted.

Heather Maples, an eighth-grader, asked the board: "Why choir? Why not cut down on shop or home ec?"

Maples said many parents can teach their children such things as woodworking or home economics, but few can teach their children to sing.

Amber Gilbreath, an eighth-grader, said to the board, "We don't like what you're doing to our choir program. To us it isn't fair because people like me, I'm not good at sports, and this is the only thing I could ever get a scholarship in."

She presented a petition to the board, initiated by students and signed by 75 people, opposed to deleting the music program.

The board was asked how much was spent on the football program and if any other programs were considered prior to the board's decision last week.

School Board President Garrel Roberson said, "I don't know what we had budgeted for football. It doesn't cost a great deal, not as much as people think it does."

Congress tax plan to meet Bush deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) - A permanent middle-class tax cut financed by tax increases on the rich is heading for the final congressional votes that would send it to President Bush for a sure veto.

The bill, which top Democratic negotiators completed during the night, borrows extensively from the seven-point plan that Bush demanded Congress pass by today in order to stimulate economic growth. But the president opposes the bill because of the tax increases, which would affect the wealthiest 1 percent of taxpayers.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., negotiated the final compromise. They planned to announce details in time for a caucus of House Democrats.

"We acted in good faith and with a speed no one would have thought possible 30 days ago, to meet the president's deadline," Bentsen said today. He said Bush must do more than insist on his own plan, which would worsen the deficit.

Noting Bush's drop in the polls, Bentsen suggested the president would like to recreate the 1948 campaign, when President Truman ran against a Republican Congress. "Well, I knew Harry Truman," Bentsen said. "I worked with Harry Truman. And George Bush is a decent man. But he's no Harry Truman."

The major middle-income tax cut in the bill is a two-step tax credit, which would be subtracted directly from taxes owed. This year and next, wage earners would get a credit for a share of their Social Security taxes, with a maximum cut of $150 a year for single people and $300 for a couple.

The full credit would be available for families with incomes under $50,000; the credit would decline gradually as income rises, disappearing at the $70,000 level.

Starting in 1994, that credit would be replaced by a $300-per-child credit for families in the same income ranges, meaning nothing for those over $70,000.

To pay for the credits, the bill would raise the current 31 percent top tax rate to 36 percent, which generally would affect only single people making more than about $185,000 a year and couples above the $210,000 range.

Negotiators agreed to restore fully deductible Individual Retirement Accounts for virtually all wage earners.

They accepted basically the Senate plan for reducing capital-gains taxes. That includes a tax exclusion for half the profits from the sale of small-business stock owned five years or longer, and a new graduated rate structure for capital gains, ranging from 0 for those whose other income is taxed at 15 percent, to 28 percent for those whose ordinary income is high enough to put them in the 36 percent bracket.

They also jettisoned a package of Senate-passed health-care provisions, including one that would have set minimum state standards for group plans offered by small businesses.

The House and Senate arranged to consider the compromise later today. Although Democrats nervously predicted victory, they offered no assurances. The original bills passed by only 12 votes in the House with only one Republican supporter and by only three votes in the Senate with no GOP support.

Approval by both houses would send the bill to Bush for his veto, meeting his "deadline" but not his terms.

The president planned an afternoon speech to denounce Congress for not passing the bill he asked for - or, as spokesman Marlin Fitzwater put it, "for failing to act on his program and for sending him a tax-increase bill that won't help the economy and deserves a veto."

"I'm somewhat disappointed at this high political theater we're in," Rostenkowski said as he and Bentsen defended their bill as fair and as an honest offer to compromise. Unlike Bush's bill, they said, theirs would not worsen the record budget deficit.

In an effort to put the Democratic-controlled Congress on the defensive, Bush also prepared to announce he was deferring the spending of billions of dollars lawmakers have voted for public works, research and other projects that he opposes.

Fitzwater said more than 100 programs were involved - "everything from obsolete and ludicrous projects like research on far-out programs to traditional public works" projects.

Just as Bush's actions were devised with an eye on the elections, Democrats have pressed their "tax fairness" issue - meaning higher taxes on the rich to finance a middle-class tax cut - while knowing the president would accept no tax increase this year.

Democrats sought to portray themselves as open to compromise by accepting versions of six of the seven short-term stimulus proposals that Bush demanded in his State of the Union message.

BLACKSVILLE, W.Va. (AP) - Bodies were found as far as 100 yards away after an above-ground coal mine explosion that killed four workers and injured three others.

Authorities immediately launched an investigation.

"We've secured the area and the mine's records and will begin a full-scale investigation," said Kathy Snyder, spokeswoman for the U.S. Mine Safety and Health Administration.

Three of the dead were members of a contract crew that was welding sections of pipe used to push methane gas from Consolidation Coal Co.'s Blacksville No. 1 mine, according to a mine supplier at the scene who declined to be identified. The mine was idled last June Sherry McCavit, the incumbent trustee for Place 7, refilled and is opposed from Jerry Steed.

Seeking the seat currently held by Jim Duggan, who is not seeking re-election, are three people - Chris Perez, Robin Hale and James Bradley.

Filing deadline for the races was 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Early voting in the election will be held from April 13 to April 28. People desiring to vote early in the city election can do so in the training center, Room 202, at City Hall. People who want to vote early in the school election can do so at the school administration offices, 321 W. Albert.

A FREEDOM
NEWSPAPER

Democratic race is two-man battle

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) - Democrat Jerry Brown is facing increasing pressure to quit his long-shot quest for the White House as Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton reaps the windfall from rival Paul Tsongas' abrupt withdrawal.

But the self-styled political outsider insisted today he would remain in the race and "fight as hard as I can to give the American people a choice to save their country."

Clinton, his lock on the Democratic nomination all but assured, cut short a Connecticut campaign swing to return to Arkansas today to plot strategy with aides after expressing "incredible respect and appreciation" for Tsongas.

"Of course" he'd consider the former Massachusetts senator as a possible running mate, Clinton told reporters. But he said he doesn't want to get ahead of himself and still views Brown as a formidable rival.

"I don't dismiss anybody, ever. He's my opponent. He's gotten a lot of votes," Clinton said of Brown Thursday night.

But Brown remained defiant, complaining that Clinton embodies many of the things he is trying to change with his grassroots campaign.

"There a lot of angry people in this country who have been ripped off," Brown said on NBC-TV's "Today" show. "You have to open the process, not close it down. ... Bill Clinton is supported by all the insiders."

Pressure from Democratic establishment leaders on Brown to abandon his quest in the name of party unity clearly was building.

Party Chairman Ronald Brown said that with Tsongas' departure, "there are a lot of people making the case that Bill Clinton has an insurmountable lead. The question is - if Governor Brown reaches that same conclusion, does he want to carry on the campaign?"

The party chairman said he was not calling on Jerry Brown to quit but would do so if Clinton won Connecticut's primary next Tuesday and contests in the following weeks in New York, Kansas and Wisconsin.

For his part, Brown gave no indication of yielding an inch.

"I've never had the feeling that Bill Clinton is going to win the nomination," he said. "I'm not saying I'm winning. But I'm getting closer every day."

The former California governor was campaigning today in Connecticut and New York.

Tsongas, the first Democrat to enter the race against President Bush, ended nearly a full year of campaigning on Thursday, citing an absence of money and momentum.

"It's been a hell of a ride," Tsongas said, bowing out without endorsing either of the two remaining candidates.

Asked if he would consider Tsongas as his running mate, Clinton said: "Of course, I would consider him."

But he said he wanted to devote "a lot of time and thought" to the choice - at the appropriate time. "I don't want to get into this business of dropping names," Clinton said. Among others Clinton advisers say they might recommend: Nebraska Sen. Bob Kerrey, New Jersey Sen. Bill Bradley and House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt.

Clinton and Tsongas talked by phone on Thursday. Tsongas sidestepped questions about whether he would accept a vice presidential nomination.

"I promised ... that I would make no statements on my future, that I would keep my views to myself, let things settle down," Tsongas said.

While Clinton was charitable to Tsongas, he had pointed words for Brown and his personal attacks against Clinton and his wife, Hillary, this week.

"He's got a lot of positive things to say and I hope he will focus on those things," Clinton said.

Asked if he thought Brown's continued campaigning would weaken him for his race in November against Bush, Clinton answered, simply, "no."

"He is very adroit at seizing the moment," Clinton said. But, he added, "If I'm not tough enough to deal with him, I probably shouldn't be elected president."

Both Brown and Tsongas had challenged Clinton's "electability," citing controversies over Clinton's personal life and his finances.

Even as Clinton was basking in his role as the presumptive Democratic nominee, he was hit by a new controversy - disclosure that he had played golf Wednesday at an all-white country club in Little Rock, Ark.

Virginia Gov. Douglas Wilder, a one-time candidate for the presidency, criticized Clinton for playing there.

"I don't belong to that or any country club. I would not belong to a segregated club. I know that ... they don't have any black members yet. And I think Governor Wilder made a good point," Clinton said.

Pampa boy among entrants of Texas lottery logo contest

By BETH MILLER
 Staff Writer

Twelve-year-old Marques Long of Pampa was one of more than 2,000 people who designed logos for the Texas lottery in hopes of cashing in on the first-prize award of $1,000. However, the award-winning entry, chosen late Thursday, was not designed by Long or anyone from the Texas Panhandle, according to Paige Higley, spokeswoman for the state comptroller's office. The lottery is a division of the state comptroller's office.

Fifteen finalists were chosen with first place going to Susan Holten of Carrollton. Her design is a rectangular shape outlined with the words Texas Lottery and on the inside is a hand throwing up a black cowboy hat against a blue background and confetti.

Four other people won cash awards of $100 to $600.

Long, in a Thursday interview, said he would be a bit disappointed if he did not get the $1,000 prize.

The Pampa Middle School student said he entered the contest because of "the prize money," after reading about it in the newspaper.

His mother, Annette Long, said that Marques mainly draws cartoons. He took one year of art in school in Milwaukee, Wis., prior to the family moving to Pampa about six months ago.

Mrs. Long said she told her son, "Even if you don't win, you'll have the fun of entering."

If he had won the prize money, Long said, "I was going to buy a motorcycle, but I think I'm going to wait. I'd save it or buy a new pair of Jordan shoes."

He designed a logo with the state of Texas flag in the background with a pumping jack as an overlay.

He said he put the pumping jack in the design because "that's what you see driving on the highways (in Texas)."

Entries in the contest included lone stars, longhorns and bluebonnets. Officials said entries were judged, not so much on artistic execution, but on originality, simplicity of design and concept.

Larry Gilbreath said, "Ar ya'll saying the football program is not as expensive as the music program?"

Roper said, "We're not saying that. It costs quite a bit more to run a football program than it does a choir program," he said.

Roper said cutting the music program would result in a savings of $35,000 to $40,000.

The superintendent said the board was trying to be realistic and tell the people what they are faced with. "We lost over $250,000 to the CED. We're going to run a deficit this year in our budget of thirty, forty or fifty thousand dollars. They're (CED 14) going to take another $70,000 this next year."

"They're (school board) trying to do what's best, hopefully, for everybody in the school. Somebody's going to have to pay for it. We either have to raise taxes on up or we're not going to be here very long, or we can cut back the programs," Roper said.

Roberson said, "We've got some people down there and, in all their infinite wisdom, they think they can run our school system from Austin, and it can't be done."

The school board president added, "We can't promise you anything, but we'll check it over again. Whatever else comes up, ya'll probably won't like it either. We're doing the best we can. If we drop something else, there's going to be another group (upset)."

Asked whether music is completely out, Roberson said, "I don't know ... We're trying to keep the doors open, that's what we're trying to do. We understand you folks' feelings."

Regarding cutting the kindergarten program from a full to half day, Davenport said she believed the kindergarten teacher, Joyce Griffin, who has taught for six years in Lefors, should be given the opportunity to teach another grade. She said she believed seniority should have some bearing.

"Maybe the last one hired would probably expect that if things were being cut, she would be the one to go," she said.

The board went into executive session after the public comment and met for about three hours, Roper said this morning. No action was taken, although the board set another meeting for 7 p.m. Thursday to further consider the matter.

Highway, Jerry Lewis celebrate anniversary

McLEAN - Seven state associations celebrating the 66th birthday of Route 66 are saluting entertainer Jerry Lewis, who also turns 66 this month.

In recognition of his humanitarian efforts and his contributions to the American cultural scene, Lewis has been named an honorary member of the seven Route 66 associations, which are observing the beloved cross-country highway's birthday.

The associations, all involved in efforts to preserve the highway's history, named Lewis a member of their groups for the year of celebrations of the highway's birthday. The states through which Route 66 passed, are Arizona, California, Kansas, Missouri, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas.

Lewis, who turned 66 on March 16, has traveled the country for more than 50 years performing and spreading the word about the Muscular Dystrophy Association, which he serves as national chairman.

"Route 66 is a great symbol for the spirit of America and we can think of no one who better exemplifies that spirit than Jerry Lewis," said Delbert Trew, president of the Texas Route 66 Association.

"Because of his decades of service to the Muscular Dystrophy Association, and the millions of people he's entertained across the country, we're honored to share a birthday celebration with him."

Lewis, who has worked in behalf of the MDA for more than four decades and hosts the Association's annual Labor Day Telethon, said, "I've spent many days and nights traveling the old Route 66 to entertain in nightclubs, promote my movies and visit 'my kids.' The MDA Telethon and the love that the American people have for 'my kids' link this country the same way that Route 66 does."

Known as "The Main Street of America," U.S. Route 66 was commissioned on Nov. 11, 1926, and is now largely replaced by modern interstate highways. One of the first officially designated interstate highways, Route 66 joined a number of rural routes and eventually ran from Chicago to Santa Monica, Calif. In some states, remaining segments have been named historical routes.

Lewis has been honored worldwide for his efforts in behalf of MDA and other humanitarian causes. The only entertainer in history to be nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize, he has also received the Jefferson Award from the American Institute for Public Service; the Legion of Honor and Commander in the Order of Arts and Letters, France's two highest awards; the U.S. Department of Defense Medal for Distinguished Public Service; and numerous other humanitarian awards.

World-renowned as an actor, comedian, director, writer, producer and headline entertainer on stage, screen and television, he's starred in nearly 50 films, including "The Nutty Professor," "The Bell Boy," "The Errand Boy" and "The King of Comedy." His television acting credits include the dramatic series, "Wiseguy," and the movie, "Fight for Life."

MDA is a national voluntary health agency working to defeat 40 neuromuscular diseases through programs of worldwide research, comprehensive patient and community services, and far-reaching professional and public health education. The Association's programs are funded almost entirely by individual private contributors. In December 1991, Money magazine listed MDA as "one of the 10 best-managed large U.S. charities."

Los Angeles Police Sgt. Stacey Koon, one of four officers on trial for the beating of Rodney King, testifies in his own defense Thursday using amateur video of incident. (AP Laserphoto)

Accused says beating 'controlled'

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. (AP) - A police sergeant accused of assaulting Rodney King told jurors the beating may have looked brutal but was "a managed and controlled use of force."

"I take responsibility for all the actions. I directed the use of force," Sgt. Stacey Koon said Thursday during cross-examination. "It followed the policies of the Los Angeles Police Department and the training."

Koon, 41, acknowledged that people unfamiliar with police work may consider the videotaped beating brutal. "It was done to control an aggressive, combative suspect and sometimes police work is brutal. It's a fact of life," Koon said.

Koon and three other white officers are charged with brutalizing King, who is black, after a high-speed chase on March 3, 1991. King was hit with batons, kicked and shocked with a stun gun.

The beating was videotaped by a bystander and broadcast nationwide, sparking outrage. Koon portrayed King as a threatening aggressor, a muscular man who "gave out a bear-like yell" when struck with a stun gun and groaned "like a wounded animal."

He said he immediately sized up King as an ex-convict, and said he appeared to be on the drug PCP. Tests later showed no sign of the drug.

Asked about Officer Laurence Powell, accused of landing the most blows, Koon said, "I formed the opinion that Officer Powell was exasperated and was in fear for his life."

He said he's sure Powell did not hit King in the head. Koon, 41, is charged along with officers Powell, 29, Theodore Briseno, 39 and Timothy Wind, 31.

Deputy District Attorney Alan Yochelson showed Koon segments of the videotape in slow motion, highlighting scenes in which a fallen King was beaten by baton-wielding officers. Koon said they were trying to get the suspect to lie prone.

"What position is Mr. King in now?" asked Yochelson as he froze a frame on the screen.

"He's lying on the ground," Koon said. "Is he in the position you want- ed?"

"No." "Close enough?" "No."

At one point, Yochelson noted that King appeared to be in a fetal position as he was beaten. Koon said he didn't see it that way. "I would describe it as coming up on his knees."

Under questioning by his lawyer, Darryl Mounger, Koon, a 16-year veteran of the police force, suggested that the beating would have ended more quickly if officers had used a chokehold.

"Why did you hesitate to use the chokehold?" asked Mounger. "Because in Los Angeles the chokehold is associated with deaths of blacks," Koon said.

The Police Commission allows the chokehold only in cases where police are threatened enough to fire their weapons. Koon said he was thinking about using the chokehold when King finally gave up.

"He yelled, 'Please stop,' and raised his hands in a compliance mode," Koon said. "I ordered my officers to back off. I felt he was submitting to my authority."

Reaction mixed on Dow decision

By LISA GENASCI AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) - Dow Corning's decision to stop making silicone-gel breast implants was welcomed by some consumer groups, but critics said the move ultimately would hurt women.

"Perhaps an end is in sight to one of the worst means of exploitation of women as sex objects by corporations and plastic surgeons," said Dr. Sidney Wolfe, director of Public Citizen's Health Research Group.

But Rep. Marilyn Lloyd, D-Tenn., who had reconstructive surgery after a mastectomy, said "American women will suffer."

Dow Corning Corp. announced Thursday it would stop making silicone gel breast implants, a business it led for three decades but which accounted for less than 1 percent of company revenue.

The majority of the 1 million

American women with silicone-gel implants got them to enlarge their breasts. But Lloyd said Dow Corning's departure from the market threatens the psychological well-being of women who need breast reconstruction.

Lloyd also criticized the Food and Drug Administration for requesting a moratorium in January on the implants while it reviews their safety. The FDA has said it plans to make a final decision by April 20.

"The FDA's shortsightedness may drive other silicone implant manufacturers from the market, leaving women's lives at risk," said Lloyd.

But Wolfe, whose Washington-based organization was founded by consumer advocate Ralph Nader, said medical studies show at least 100,000 women with the implants have complications, including cancer and auto-immune disease, caused by leaking silicone.

Dow Corning, which has $250 million in liability insurance, faces hundreds of millions of dollars in lawsuits filed by such women.

Plastic surgeons, Dow and other breast implant makers contend the implants are safe, saying evidence of problems is anecdotal.

"We still maintain it's a safe product," Dow Corning spokeswoman Barbara Carmichael said. "From a business perspective it didn't make sense. Even when it wasn't controversial it wasn't profitable."

Midland, Mich.-based Dow Corning, a 50-50 joint venture of Dow Chemical Co. and Corning Inc., controlled about 30 percent of the national implant market.

The company's departure leaves two manufacturers, both making saline-filled as well as gel-filled implants: Mentor Corp. and McGhan Medical Corp., a subsidiary of Inamed Corp. Saline-filled implants contain sterile salt water instead of silicone.

Businesses hit hard by school tax

AUSTIN (AP) - School property tax bills in 1991 rose more than 14 percent, with businesses seeking a bigger jump than homeowners, the state comptroller reports.

"Overall, Texas property owners paid $946 million more in 1991 property taxes for funding public education than they did in 1990 - a 14.3 percent increase," said a study released Thursday.

The 1991 increase was the largest percentage jump since 1984, when taxes rose more than 15 percent, the report said.

Total 1991 school taxes topped $7.5 billion, up from $6.6 billion in 1990.

That jump included taxes levied by the more than 1,000 independent school districts and by the 188 County Education Districts, which subsequently were declared unconstitutional by the Texas Supreme Court.

The Legislature created the CEDs, which largely follow county lines, to try to equalize school funding among property-rich and property-poor districts.

Gov. Ann Richards has said she will call lawmakers into special session later this year to try again to write a constitutional school finance plan.

According to the comptroller's report, homeowners statewide paid about 6 percent more in 1991 school taxes than in 1990.

Most businesses, notably utility companies and oil and gas property owners, got socked harder. Their increases were as much as 39 percent.

Single-family homes, the largest category of property in the state, made up about 31.5 percent of the total 1991 school taxes. That was down from a 34.1 percent share of the burden in 1990, the first drop in four years.

Oil, gas and mineral owners were hit with the biggest increase in school property taxes, more than 39 percent higher than 1990. Those properties now account for 7.8 percent of total school taxes, up from 6.4 percent a year ago.

Utility company taxes also rose substantially, according to the report.

Utilities' taxes were up 31 percent from 1990 to 1991 and accounted for about 7.3 percent of all school taxes.

Commercial property owners paid about 12 percent more on real property, land and buildings, and 20 percent more on personal property, including inventories, equipment and furnishings. Commercial properties made up 24.9 percent of total school taxes in 1991.

Industrial properties also paid more - 21 percent more on real property and 24 percent more on personal property.

Farmers and ranchers saw their tax bills rise, too.

The taxes rose 3 percent on land and farm and ranch improvements, which include barns, sheds, rural homesteads and other structures. But agriculture's share of the total school taxes dropped about 0.5 percent in 1991, to 6.2 percent.

School tax bills went up about 4 percent on vacant lots and 17 percent on multi-family housing, such as apartments.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveyng commandment.

Feeling the need ... to clear the air

With the federal deficit exploding to $400 billion a year and beyond, we must begin cutting pork. A good place to start: the $1.1 billion being requested for 1993 to 1995 for the Public Broadcasting System (PBS) - better termed the Propaganda Broadcasting System for its political slant. As Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole has charged, PBS exists mainly for "unrelenting liberal cheerleading."

The watchdog group Accuracy in Media maintains that PBS has broadcast "leftist and often pro-communist" documentaries. ("PBS is doing what the Voice of America has been prohibited from doing by Congress - broadcasting propaganda to the American people. The irony...is the propaganda is not pro-American, but leftist and often blatantly pro-communist." Even after communism's collapse!

Two recent cases: "Maria's Story," a favorable account about a member of the pro-Soviet and Soviet-funded FMLN terrorists in El Salvador. (After last fall's collapse of the Soviet Union, the FMLN came to peace terms with El Salvador's democratic government.) Then there's "Tongues United," the graphic, homoerotic film that was featured in a Pat Buchanan TV ad attacking government-funded media and "art."

Los Angeles Times TV critic Howard Rosenberg retorted last Friday that William F. Buckley, John McLaughlin, and other conservatives broadcast their shows on PBS. And PBS has shown some programs explaining conservatism. Well, so what? Throwing a few sandbags on the starboard side of the ship hardly balances the strong listing to portside.

Actually, these arguments about content, though important, take a back seat to the real issue: Government has no business sponsoring any sort of entertainment, new, or other programming. The Constitution mentions no such power to tax people to provide them news and entertainment (our national charter was written before TV, of course, but has always been adapted to match technological developments); and the 10th Amendment specifically states that whatever is not "delegated...by the Constitution" is reserved to the states or to the people - not the federal government. Government subsidy of newspapers rightly would be considered propaganda. Subsidies of TV are no different.

Broadcast (free) TV already boasts more than a dozen channels in most metropolitan areas. Sign up for cable, and you get a couple dozen more. Buy a VCR and you can rent thousands of movies. The American public hardly lacks TV choices. And what about people who don't watch TV, and might even loath it? Why should they be forced to subsidize it?

Taxpayers' money no longer should be wasted on PBS. Return the $1.1 billion to taxpayers, and let them, not government apparatchiks, decide what programming is best.

POLITICIAN CONTEMPLATING A NEW CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT

Save 'The Marseillaise'

The news from Paris is not good. Political correctness, the most odious of all American exports, has washed upon the shores of France. A movement is afoot to scrap "La Marseillaise," the most rousing of all national anthems. In our very best fractured French, let us cry non! Non, non, a thousand times non!

The New York Times reports that more than a hundred prominent citizens, among them the wife of President Mitterrand, have endorsed a proposal to rewrite the stirring refrain. This is, of course, France's own business, but the matter is too grave to be met with silence. To arms!

It appears that the lyrics are not politically correct. Peace is in; war is out. In these socially anemic times it is unacceptable to say rude things of any nation, religion, ethnic group, fraternal lodge or baseball team. And "La Marseillaise" is most assuredly hateful to the Prussians.

Those of us who learned the anthem in junior high school were not fully aware of this. We just sang along with Mlle. Bonnard, the shapely young lady who had miraculously been imported to teach beginning French. The boys in that class were smashed on Mlle. Bonnard. When she said "Sing!" we sang.

But it is to digress. "Entendez-vous dans les campagnes mugir ces ferocees soldats?" Do you hear the roar of those fierce soldiers? Right on! "Ils viennent jusque dans nos bras egorgent nos fils, nos campagnes." At the tender age of 12, this was hot stuff. The fierce soldiers were coming right into our midst to slaughter our families. All right!

Then came the chorus. Not a kid in the class knew what it meant: "Marchons, marchons! Qu'un sang impur abreuve nos sillons!" In official translation, that call to arms is a call "to drench our fields with the foe's tainted blood."

Tainted blood? "Sang impur"? These are racist words, words that are bound to hurt the feelings of any Prussian who may hear them. In a kinder, gentler world, marked everywhere by politesse, these sanguinary sentiments have no place. The Times reports that an alternative anthem is gaining support.

The alternative is the work of one Armand Thuair, identified as a "former fireman," who studied 175 national anthems and concluded, quite wrongly, that "France today is the only country in the world to have adopted and preserved a bellicose anthem."

In place of the call to arms, the fierce soldiers, the blood-drenched fields and the slaughter of innocents, M. Thuair proposes an anthem that fairly reeks of PC. It calls upon French children to sing together for liberty, O dearest liberty, and to raise their little voices in unison:

"Eure francais, ah! Quelle chance!" The Times translates this as, "Oh, how lucky we are to be French!" The anthem concludes, "Chantons, chantons, que nos chansons fassent taire tous les canons," which is to say, "Sing on, sing on, until our songs silence all cannons," a politically correct sentiment if we ever heard one.

Is "La Marseillaise" the only "bellicose" anthem? Of course not. Our own "Star-Spangled Banner" has some exceedingly ugly things to say about our British friends. We speak harshly of them as "the foe's haughty host." In the third verse, we are pleased to report "their blood has washed out their foul footsteps' pollution." No refuge could save "the hireling and slave" from the terror of flight, or the gloom of the grave. Their fighting words.

A few years back, Rep. Andy Jacobs of Indiana briefly sponsored a bill to scrap "The Star-Spangled Banner" in favor of "America the Beautiful." In a misguided moment I supported the gentleman's bill. My reasons were wholly pragmatic: Played in the usual key of C, the anthem is unsingable. Not one citizen in 10,000 can reach that high G with any assurance of getting there. We come to the "land of the free-ee" and we collapse with wheezes and stammers.

On reflection, I abandoned my support of the Jacobs bill. I judge the gentleman also has abandoned his baby, for nothing has been heard of it lately. Let us pray the same fate will overtake the limp alternative proposed by M. Thuair.

For all its faults, "The Star-Spangled Banner" still raises the old goose bumps. In the form in which it usually is sung, it is the only anthem in the world that ends with a question mark instead of a bang-mark or period. Does our banner still wave, o'er the land of the free and the home of the brave? You bet. If the Brits and the Prussians are offended, quel dommage! In translation, who cares?

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, March 20, the 80th day of 1992. There are 286 days left in the year. Spring arrives at 3:48 a.m. EST.

Today's Highlight in History:

On March 20, 1852, Harriet Beecher Stowe's influential novel about slavery, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," was first published.

On this date:

In 1727, physicist, mathematician and astronomer Sir Isaac Newton died in London.

In 1896, U.S. Marines landed in Nicaragua to protect U.S. citizens in the wake of a revolution.

In 1899, Martha M. Place of Brooklyn, N.Y., became the first woman to be put to death by electrocution as she was executed at Sing Sing for the murder of her step-daughter.

In 1976, newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was convicted of armed robbery for her part in a San Francisco bank holdup.

In 1985, Libby Riddles of Teller, Alaska, became the first woman to win the Iditarod Trail Dog Sled Race, covering the distance from Anchorage to Nome in nearly 18 days.

"The good news is we've increased your 19 percent credit-card limit to $5,000. The bad news is we're foreclosing on your 10 percent mortgage."

On being consumed by success

Pride is a productive motivator. It motivates us to keep our underwear clean, our hair combed, our lawn cut and our car washed.

In some people, for whatever reason, the ego becomes enlarged, magnified, multiplied.

For these people, the ego's appetite is insatiable. For these essentially insecure people the approval or submission of others becomes a narcotic.

For such people, affection is not enough. Appreciation is not enough. They must be adored - constantly.

These people with "the consuming hunger" are likely to become politicians, prize fighters, preachers and other performers.

Henry Kissinger mistakenly concluded that the ultimate aphrodisiac is power. On the contrary, a ravenous ego consumes praise, power and people. The same sad striving after adoration motivates the power broker and the bed hoper.

To some, the ultimate conquest is marriage. They must hear somebody promise love and honor forever. Frequently, it takes several somebodies because those hooked on applause can never get enough.

Paul Harvey

Now the agents have lawyers and the lawyers have lawyers and one of two things happens.

He, the "star," has to take so much of his time on makeup and capped teeth and cosmetic surgery and being interviewed and managing his managers that he has no time left to make the next gig, the next movie or the next album.

Or else...

Midst freefloating friends he retreats into booze and drugs and the willing arms of stage-door bimbos.

It's a too-familiar pattern in Hollywood, also. "Poor boy makes good, goes bad." Or "poor girl." Part of the problem is a society that rewards certain talents so generously that the custodians of those talents start believing their own press agents.

We who flit furtively around the fickle flame of fame enjoy the dance. Make no mistake, we enjoy the dance. The trick of course is to be warmed by that flame without being consumed by it.

Some headlines of the first magnitude are currently being consumed by their own excesses.

These in their sober moments remember their years of struggle as the best years of their lives.

Here's a test George Bush can't pass

By Joseph Spear

I have devised a test for the president of the United States, but I'm not sure he reads the column so you could do me a favor by clipping it and sending it to him.

It has to do with principles. Over the past three years I have come to believe that George Bush has but two: Get re-elected, and never relax your guard against the demon broccoli.

It thus came as a complete surprise when I read what he said the other day in South Carolina: "Life means nothing without fidelity to principles," and "So often, politicians do the easy things, the popular things, but it is the tough things that tell you something about character and honor and leadership."

I hope you don't think I'm being too disrespectful, but I fell over laughing when I read that. I truly do not believe that Bush would recognize a principle if somebody grated it and spread it on his baked potato. I have a suspicion that his soliloquy on his ethical self has something to do with it being the political season, and that's why I devised this test.

I would like for Mr. Bush to review this partial list of unprincipled actions he has taken in the past. If he will repudiate just three of them, I will conclude he is not the moral cipher I believe he is and will readily say so.

Take your time, George:

1. As vice president in 1981, you attended the despot Ferdinand Marcos' inauguration after he "won" the first election he had allowed in nine years and you shamelessly praised his "adherence to democratic principles and to the democratic process." Apparently unable to contain yourself, you gurgled on: "We stand with the Philippines. We stand with you, sir."

2. In further demonstration of your affection for autocrats, you refused to get tough with the Chinese tyrants who butchered pro-democracy demonstrators in 1989. Indeed, you waited but a scant six months before dispatching your national security adviser to Beijing to lift glasses and lick boots. And in late 1990, while lobbying for support for your Persian Gulf strategy, you personally met with Syrian president Hafez Assad in a Geneva hotel, thereby providing this succorer of terrorists with instant credibility and a photograph to prove it.

3. In the summer of 1988, you examined the records of 245 million Americans and somehow concluded that an obscure, second-rate politician from Indiana named J. Danforth Quayle was best qualified to lead us in the event of your untimely demise. It was a craven choice by an insecure candidate who never wanted to be one-upped by his No. 2, and it left the nation facing the frightening prospect of being presided over by a pol who reached his level of incompetence the day he wigged his way into law school.

4. You once supported Planned Parenthood, switched to a pro-life position to buy your way onto Ronald Reagan's ticket, became a "big-tent" guy when pro-choice sentiment seemed to be prevailing, and now that you need the religious right's votes have once again become a dyed-in-the-sneakers anti-abortionist.

5. While we're on that subject, your pandering of fundamentalists is nauseating. Do you really believe the government should proscribe everything these wowers find offensive?

And why do you demagogue so on the subject of school prayer? When the Supreme Court outlawed it in 1962, President Kennedy hailed it as a timely reminder that we should pray more at home. If only you had half the class of JFK.

6. You have such meager respect for the Constitution that you propose an amendment for every thorny issue that comes along. You are on record in support of six. Why not 10? Hell, go for a dozen. Maybe we can finally repeal the 22nd and make you prez-for-life.

Send your clips to the White House, Washington, DC 20500. Tell you what: If Bush even approximates probity by disavowing out two of these lowly acts, I'll stamp him Curmudgeon-approved.

Kids learn to be moneymakers

MACON, Ga. (AP) — Jonathan Durden figured he'd make lots of money when he opened his snack shop. His market analysis showed most of his potential customers like junk food.

Trouble is, Durden has only one product — Little Debbie cakes. He's made a profit, but sales are slumping. Now he's thinking about diversifying.

"To have a really good business, you have to have a variety of things," says Durden, who calls his business Durden's Bakery Store. "I've been selling the same thing, and my customers are getting kind of tired of Little Debbie cakes."

Durden is a sixth-grade student. He knows how to balance a checkbook, make bank deposits and figure simple income tax. He also knows the frustrations of running a business.

So do his classmates at Heard Elementary School, where teacher Michelle James created a classroom marketplace.

"I'm trying to teach about the work ethic, how to manage money, how you don't get to keep all the money you earn,"

James says. "These children now have a real idea what an account withdrawal is and what a deposit is and how you keep a running balance."

Here's how the classroom marketplace works:

For a six-week period, students produce and sell items — mostly baked goods — through their own businesses. (Some students sell crafts or drawings, or even rummage from home.)

Their shops, located in James' classroom, are open for business for 30 minutes once a week.

Transactions are made in a currency that consists of orange construction paper strips called "dinosaur dollars." Each customer has $15 dinosaur dollars a day to spend.

"I was giving out an unlimited amount of money to the teachers, but that was wrecking the economy," James said. "Since the customers got as much money as they wanted, the prices did not have to be competitive. The children were charging exorbitant prices for cupcakes."

"The consumers were more choosy about what they bought after I started limiting the amount of money, so the students got more competitive," she said.

Each student is allotted $15 to get their business started. They purchase business licenses for $1 each. Fees for table space range from 50 cents to $1 a week. There is also a charge for overhead.

Students pay a 10 percent tax on their weekly earnings. They pay labor costs to themselves, which they deposit in personal bank accounts.

To pay their fees, students write checks to James on financial stationery donated by a local bank.

Profits are deposited into business or personal accounts. But students must have enough money in their business accounts to cover expenses. When some tried to deposit business funds into their personal accounts, James fined them for tax evasion.

First-grader Daniel Stanley, operator of a snacks and crafts store, amassed a net worth of $537. But he was stunned to learn that financial success comes with a price.

"You mean, the more we make, the more taxes we pay?" Stanley said. "I don't like that at all."

Secret of marriage is sharing all - even mail

DEAR ABBY: I like your column, and 95 percent of the time you are right. This time, I think you are wrong. My wife and I were married at 18 and 19 years of age. We have a great son and daughter as well as six wonderful grandchildren. Our grandchildren even bring their boyfriends and girlfriends to visit us on our farm and to ask our opinions on many subjects.

Your answer with regard to a letter from a reader who does not like his wife opening his mail without his permission is in bad taste and incorrect. Our wonderful marriage has lasted 50 years because it includes no secrets, both participants working for the same goal, always talking nice, no drinking, no smoking, no cussing, and we kiss each other at least 50 times a day! We have no money problems and have no need for privacy between one another. I think your views about a spouse being entitled to his or her privacy are incorrect.

PAUL PENCE JR.

DEAR PAUL: My congratulations to you for an ideal marriage. A marriage license does not confer automatic permission to read mail addressed to one's spouse. Read on for someone who had that problem, but was not as fortunate as you:

DEAR ABBY: This advice is for "Straight Arrow," whose wife opened all the mail that came to the house, regardless to whom it was addressed. I had the same problem. I worked days; my husband worked nights. He opened all the mail. My resentment kept growing, and consequently I accumulated a lot of anger. Then one day, I got some good advice from a co-worker. She said, "Rent a P.O. box and have all your mail sent there." So I told my husband I had had enough of my privacy being violated and that I was getting a post office box.

I filled out change-of-address cards for my friends, creditors and relatives, and I keep the key to my P.O. box in a drawer at my office. Now, I go to check for my mail during the lunch hour. I never had anything to hide, either. But having my personal mail opened (by mistake, or otherwise) really irritated me.

Now ... there is never a problem. ANGRY NO MORE IN GULFPORT, MISS.

IN
FOOTSTEPS

What joy in life is seen in those eyes. That smile is given freely to everyone. Now look at them both. Which one am I talking about? Aren't they both the same? No, she's not an exact, carbon copy, of her mother — for when you look again, you see that there is a generation between them. She wears the bright colors in her dress with the cute designs. Her dreams are different than her mothers. She is more outgoing. Yet in the mother you can see a quiet humor and in her closeness to her daughter, a gentle protectiveness. Her mother's dreams are sometimes too ambitious, but in the "Encouragement Department" she works just fine.

There is one dream and ambition they both have, however; and that is to be like our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, and to be of service to the church. Their goodness is of God.

"For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil." 1 Peter 3:12.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

St. Matthew's sets 'quiet day' during Lent

St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, 727 W. Browning St., plans a Lenten "quiet day" from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Wednesday with the Rev. Elizabeth A. Newnam, vicar of St. George's Episcopal Church and Episcopal Student Center of Canyon, as the leader.

Service schedule is planned as follows: 10 a.m., holy Eucharist; 10:45 a.m., break; 11 a.m., first meditation and quiet time; noon, noon day prayers; 12:15 p.m., brown sack lunch in Parish Hall; 1 p.m., second meditation and quiet time; 1:45 p.m., closing devotions and prayers.

The Rev. Newnam started her church lay ministry at St. John's Episcopal Church in Murray, Ky., from 1970 to 1975, serving as chairwoman of the Worship Committee, president of the Episcopal Church Women and serving on the United Campus Ministry Executive Council.

Her lay ministry continued from 1975 to 1985 at St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Abilene where she served as choir director. Newnam also served on the Visitation Committee, Worship Committee, Organ Committee, serving as chairwoman; Evangelism and Church Growth Committee and served as vice president of the Episcopal Church Women in 1979.

During this same period she served in the diocese of Northwest Texas on the following: Commission on Christian Living and Education, Evangelism Committee, serving as chairman in 1982-83; Liturgical Committee, Christian Education Committee and as a delegate to the Diocesan Council in 1978-79 and 1982. She served as a delegate to the Episcopal Church Women's Annual Meeting in 1980 and 1981.

After 16 years of teaching voice (singing) in college, Newnam was approved to go to seminary in 1985. She sold her house, car and gave away her dog and went to California to the Church Divinity School of the Pacific at the age of 42 to live in a dorm for the next four years. She graduated with a master's of divinity degree in May 1989. She was ordained a deacon at St. Mark's in Abilene on May 31, 1989, and came to Canyon to be vicar of St. George's and the Episcopal Campus Ministry for West Texas State University in June 1989. She was ordained to the priesthood on Dec. 1, 1989.

She serves as dean of the Panhandle Deanery, chair of the Diocesan Spiritual Development Committee and also the Long-range Planning and Development Committee. She belongs to the Canyon Kiwanis Club and served as president of the task force to start Canyon Cares, an interdenominational agency similar to Good Samaritan Christian Services in Pampa, who helped them get organized.

The public is invited to bring a sack lunch and join in to observe the day during the Lenten season at St. Matthew's. A nursery will be provided.

Religion roundup

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Despite economic recession and denominational squabbles, projections indicate Southern Baptists gave more last year to the annual Lottie Moon Christmas offering for foreign missions than ever before — a total of $81.75 million, a 3 percent increase over 1990.

CHICAGO (AP)—At its annual convention, the National Association of Evangelicals launched its Christian Citizenship Campaign, a nationwide effort to register 1 million new voters.

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP)—The Rev. Robert L. Maddox, executive director of Americans United for Separation of Church and State for the past eight years, has resigned that post effective April 1.

Maddox, a Southern Baptist who previously served as liaison with religious communities for former President Carter, is to become pastor of Briggs Memorial Baptist Church in Bethesda.

The Bradys are set to bring special services at Bible Baptist Church beginning Sunday.

Bradys to bring ministry to Bible Baptist Church

The Bradys will be ministering at Bible Baptist Church, 500 E. Kingsmill, Sunday through Wednesday.

Sunday services will be at 9:45 a.m. and 11 a.m., with a special concert at 3 p.m. Sunday. Nightly services on Monday through Wednesday will be at 7:30 p.m.

The Bradys have traveled full-time sharing the gospel in word and song since 1968. Their ministry has taken them into 30 states, Mexico and Canada and in 3,000 churches.

They have recorded 20 albums featuring their family-style sound of Southern Gospel and a cappella music.

The public is invited to attend the services.

First Baptist plans four-day revival

First Baptist Church of Pampa has scheduled a "We Care" revival for Sunday through Wednesday with evangelist Michael Gott and music evangelist Marion Warren.

Services will be held at regular scheduled times Sunday and nightly at 7 p.m.

At noon on Monday through Wednesday, a luncheon and a time of Bible study will be held in Fellowship Hall. A light lunch for a small fee will be provided.

On Sunday evening, following the evening service, the singles of Pampa will be gathering at "Thee Place" for a single's after worship fellowship. This will be a time for singles to meet the evangelistic team. There will also be a sandwich supper and a period of fellowship.

Each of the weekday evenings will feature a special event. On Monday, beginning at 6:15 p.m., there will be a hamburger feed for children in the Fellowship Hall. On Tuesday at 6:15 p.m. there will be pizza for youth and a youth worship night at the revival. Wednesday evening is planned for the family. A turkey and dressing dinner will be provided beginning at 5:30 p.m. in the Fellowship

Preschool child care will be provided for noon luncheons and nightly beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Dr. Darrel Rains, pastor, invites the public to attend the services. The services will also be broadcast on Cable Vision Channel 5.

Hundreds wait for glimpse of Virgin Mary

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Hundreds of people have been waiting outside Fred and Gloria Galaz's home for a glimpse of the Virgin Mary.

They waited in the rain Tuesday night to see what Mrs. Galaz describes as the Virgin Mary on fabric blinds in her bedroom. Mrs. Galaz said the image appears from sunset to sunrise only when a certain light is turned on.

The couple said the image first appeared March 5, a day after Ash Wednesday. They said haven't slept or eaten much since then because of the crowds that gather daily around 4:30 p.m.

"When I come home from work, I can hardly pass through," said Mrs. Galaz, an employee at Memorial Medical Center.

Vicar General of the Catholic Diocese of Las Cruces Monsignor John Anderson said the Catholic Church does not encourage people to visit reported images out of curiosity.

"In the history of the church there always have been visions and private revelations. Church officials are always skeptical, and it (the church) does not say anything official until something is reviewed by people in authority," Anderson said.

He said he did not know if an official investigation would be made.

Visitor Margaret Almaguer of Las Cruces said the image can only be seen through a dresser mirror.

"You can see her with the rosary and with a baby. You can see angels. You can see her in different ways," Almaguer said.

Mrs. Galaz said she and her husband, a Postal Service employee, do not know how long the image will last.

"We're leaving it up to God," she said.

Senior citizens group formed

"Recycled Teenagers" is the name of a new senior citizens group organized recently at Highland Baptist Church, 1301 N. Banks.

People ages 55 and up are invited to be a part of the group at Highland. Marie Boyd has been elected by the church to serve as the director of the group, which is set to meet on the first Friday of each month for a program and covered dish luncheon.

In addition, the group plans to take trips through the summer to various places. All senior citizens in Pampa are invited to attend.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Volunteering unsolicited financial advice to friends is a risky exercise today. If it's used and it fails, you might be held accountable in some manner. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH, 44101-3428.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually, you have rigidly set ideas regarding the way you want things done. The input from associates could be disruptive today, separating you from your effective procedures.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It might not be wise to do something today the way someone else recently handled a similar matter. What you need for that individual may not fit your needs.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try to avoid risky financial involvements today that are controlled by others. There's a chance they might fumble the ball.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An old, unresolved disagreement between you and your mate might erupt again today. If you let outsiders into the act, it could make matters worse.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Labors of love will be handled with remarkable skill today, but, if you're required to perform a task you dislike, you might not want to be identified with the finished product.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your earning potential is quite good today, but you may not get a passing grade for the way you'll manage what you acquire. Try to be an "A" student in both areas.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In order to complete what you start today, you must put limitations on what you attempt. Single assignments are manageable, but simultaneous ones are not.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Instead of trying to rectify erroneous perceptions others have about you today, you might just let them go unchallenged and brood about the injustice.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be on guard today; you might be the target of a friend who is an expert at manipulating and using others. Even if you are forewarned, you could still end up a victim.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be extra careful today you don't do anything that could offend an important client. You might feel your behavior is harmless, but the one who pays your salary may not.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You have a choice today, as always, where you can view developments either positively or negatively. Don't let your imagination envision failure where success is a possibility.

NCAA tournament opens with no surprises

Longhorns, Cougars are eliminated

By RICK WARNER
AP Sports Writer

The biggest surprise in the NCAA tournament Thursday was the lack of surprises. No ranked teams lost, and the higher seed won 15 of 16 opening-round games.

Among the winners were top-ranked Duke, No. 3 Ohio State, No. 5 Indiana, No. 8 Southern Cal, No. 9 Arkansas, No. 13 Alabama, No. 16 Missouri, No. 18 North Carolina, No. 19 Seton Hall, No. 20 Florida State, No. 22 Georgetown and No. 25 LSU.

Also advancing were four unranked teams — Iowa, Georgia Tech, Connecticut and Memphis State. Ninth-seeded Iowa, which beat eighth-seeded Texas 98-92 in the East, was the only team to beat a higher seed.

Although they won, Seton Hall, North Carolina and Alabama struggled.

Terry Dehere made a 17-foot jumper with 1.8 seconds left as Seton Hall rallied to beat La Salle 78-76 in the East.

In the Southeast, Dean Smith became the winningest coach in NCAA tournament history when North Carolina edged Miami of Ohio 68-63, and Latrell Sprewell scored 18 second-half points as Alabama slipped by Stanford 80-75.

In the Midwest, Arkansas beat Murray State 80-69, Memphis State defeated Pepperdine 80-70, Georgia Tech downed Houston 65-60, and Southern Cal stomped Northeast Louisiana 84-54.

Georgetown overpowered South Florida 75-60, Florida State beat Montana 78-68, LSU beat BYU 94-83, and Indiana routed Eastern Illinois 94-55 in the West.

Missouri eliminated West Virginia 89-78 and Duke clobbered Campbell 82-56 in the East, while Ohio State trounced Mississippi Valley State 83-56 and Connecticut crushed Nebraska 86-65 in the Southeast.

La Salle (20-11) led Seton Hall for most of the game and was ahead 70-62 after Randy Woods made a 3-pointer with 4:13 left. But Seton Hall (22-8) closed to 74-71 when John Leahy made the last of his four 3-pointers with 2:38 remaining.

Jack Hurd's basket with 48 seconds left tied the score for La Salle, but Seton Hall worked the ball for the last shot, passing around the perimeter until Bryan Caver found Dehere in the left corner for his game-winner.

"We ran the same play about 30 seconds before and we weren't successful," Dehere said. "We felt confident I would get the same open shot and I was confident that I was going to hit it."

Woods scored 33 points, including 12 during a crucial stretch of the second half. Dehere led the Pirates with 24.

"I did what I had to do. I didn't rush nothing," said Woods, who made 11 of 27 shots. "They didn't do anything to take me out of the offense."

The outcome of the North Carolina-Miami game was in doubt until Miami's Jamie Mercurio missed a desperation 30-footer with four seconds left. North Carolina's Hubert Davis was then fouled and made both free throws to clinch it.

"Coming into this game, a lot of people thought we were going to be able to roll over them. But we saw the tapes. We knew what we were facing," said Eric Montross, who led the Tar Heels with 22 points and 13 rebounds.

Smith has won 48 tournament games, one more than UCLA's John Wooden, since becoming the Tar Heels' coach in 1961. North Carolina is making its record 18th consecutive appearance in the NCAA tournament.

"We're extremely pleased with his success," Montross said. "We're under his tutelage for the long haul. We know he's a great coach. That's why we're all here. In a couple of years, we'll be able to look back and enjoy it with him. But right now, it's our job to help him achieve all those goals."

Montross was 11-of-13 from the field for North Carolina (22-9), while Mercurio led Miami (23-8) with 24 points, all on a career-high eight 3-pointers.

Sprewell's second-half streak put Alabama (26-6) ahead to stay against Stanford. Stanford (18-11) managed to slow down Alabama's fast-paced offense until the final six minutes and dominated inside behind Adam Keefe's 23 points. But the Cardinal couldn't stop Sprewell's outside shooting in the closing minutes.

MIDWEST
No. 8 Southern Cal 84, NE Louisiana 54

At Milwaukee, little-used freshman Tremayne Anchrum set career highs with 16 points and eight rebounds as Southern Cal (24-5) tied the school record for most victories in a season. It also was the first tournament win for the Trojans (22-11) since 1979. Harold Miner scored 23 points for Southern Cal, which outclassed Northeast Louisiana (19-10).

No. 9 Arkansas 80, Murray St. 69

Oliver Miller scored 21 points and Isaiah Morris had eight of his 16 in a 17-5 spurt that helped Arkansas (26-7) get past Murray State. The Racers are coached by Scott Edgar, a former assistant under Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson. Arkansas' Todd Day, who sat out 7 1/2 minutes with foul trouble in the second half, finished with only nine points — 15 below his average. Murray State (17-13) got 25 points from Frank Allen and 17 points and 15 rebounds from Popeye Jones.

Memphis St. 80, Pepperdine 70

Anfernee Hardaway scored 21 points and took control down the stretch for Memphis State, which recovered after blowing a 13-point halftime lead. Billy Smith added 19 points for the Tigers (21-10); making their first NCAA tournament appearance in four years. Doug Christie had 23 points for Pepperdine (24-7), which had its 12-game winning streak broken.

Georgia Tech 65, Houston 60

Matt Geiger hit two baskets and Travis Best made a 3-pointer during a game-ending 11-0 run that pushed Georgia Tech past Houston. Jon Barry led the Yellow Jackets (22-11) with 17 points. Houston (25-6) got 18 points from Sam Mack, all in the second half. The Cougars took a 58-54 lead with 4:08 left, but couldn't hold it.

WEST

No. 5 Indiana 94, E. Illinois 55

At Boise, Idaho, Damon Bailey and Alan Henderson scored 14 points each in the first half as Indiana blew open a 31-point lead. The Hoosiers (24-6) scored the first 10 points, sputtered briefly, then buried the Mid-Continent tournament champions with a 21-0 run late in the first half. Eastern Illinois (17-14), in its first NCAA tournament appearance, went 6 1/2 minutes without a field goal during the blitz.

No. 20 Florida St. 78, Montana 68

Sam Cassell scored 23 points as Florida State held on to beat Montana. The quicker Seminoles (21-9) used a harrassing defense to take control midway through the first half and build a 23-point lead with 13:47 left in the game. Montana (27-4) cut it to 72-66 on a 3-pointer by Roger Fasting, but Doug Edwards sank four free throws and Cassell made a layup to rescue Florida State.

No. 22 Georgetown 75, South-Florida 60

Alonzo Mourning led the Hoyas with 21 points, 11 rebounds and six blocks. Georgetown (22-9) outscored South-Florida 14-2 over the final 3 minutes, 40 seconds, making 12 of 14 free throws down the stretch. Exploiting a collapsing South Florida defense that double- and triple-teamed Mourning, the Hoyas made four of their first six attempts from 3-point range.

No. 25 LSU 94, BYU 83

Shaquille O'Neal had 26 points, 13 rebounds and an NCAA tournament-record 11 blocked shots for LSU. Maurice Williamson added 30 points as the Tigers (21-9) held off the Cougars (25-7) despite BYU's nine second-half 3-pointers. After the Cougars pulled to 79-75 on Mark Heslop's 3-pointer with 3:02 remaining, LSU made 11 of 12 free throws while outscoring BYU 15-8 the rest of the way.

EAST
No. 1 Duke 82, Campbell 56

At Greensboro, N.C., Christian Laettner scored 22 points and Thomas Hill 20 as Duke opened its bid for consecutive national championships. The Blue Devils (29-2), playing just an hour's drive from home, are trying to become the first team in 19 years to win back-to-back titles. Campbell (19-12), making its first appearance in the NCAA tournament, shot only 18 percent in the first half.

No. 16 Missouri 89, W. Virginia 78

Missouri turned out the lights on West Virginia's season after an electrical storm blacked out the Greensboro Coliseum three times during the game. Anthony Peeler scored 25 points as the Tigers (21-8) pulled away in the second half. Chris Leonard led West Virginia (20-12) with 25 points.

Iowa 98, Texas 92

Acie Earl scored 25 points as Iowa beat Texas. The Hawkeyes (19-10) never trailed after an 11-0 run early in the first half gave them an 18-9 lead. The victory sets up a rematch against Duke, which beat Iowa 85-70 in the second round of last year's Midwest Regional. The Longhorns (23-12) got 26 points apiece from B.J. Tyler and Terrence Rencher.

SOUTHEAST
No. 3 Ohio St. 83, Miss. Valley St. 56

At Cincinnati, Ohio State got the most lopsided NCAA tournament victory in its history. The Buckeyes (24-5) blew Mississippi Valley (16-14) away in the first half by running off 20 consecutive points. Lawrence Funderburke led Ohio State with 19 points. Mississippi Valley's Alphonso Ford, the nation's second-leading scorer at 27.9 points, managed just 16 on 7-of-21 shooting.

Connecticut 86, Nebraska 65

Connecticut (20-9) survived the one-game suspension of center Rod Sellers, getting 44 points from the backcourt tandem of Scott Burrell and Chris Smith. Sellers, Connecticut's leading rebounder and third-leading scorer, had to sit out the game for flagrant misconduct in the Huskies' tournament loss to Duke last year. Nebraska (19-10) was eliminated in the first round for the third time in its three NCAA appearances.

Unranked Butler County advances to JUCO semis

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP) — The National Junior College tournament is like playing at home for Butler County, Kan.

"We were hoping for some intangibles," Butler County coach Randy Smithson said after the unranked Grizzlies beat Champlain, Vt., 87-69 in the quarterfinals of JUCO tournament Thursday.

"They were a little younger, but we had our home crowd here, and we felt our defense would wear them out."

In Thursday's other games, South Plains, Texas, eliminated Sullivan, Ky., 98-73; Daytona Beach, Fla., eliminated Chattahoochee Valley College, Ala., 77-65; Casper, Wyo., eliminated Chowan, N.C., 78-68; Northeast Mississippi clubbed Northeast Oklahoma A&M 85-61, and Vincennes, Ind., beat Central Arizona 72-70.

Today's semifinal games have College of Southern Idaho (33-3) vs. Three Rivers, Mo. (33-3), and Vincennes (32-2) vs. Butler County (27-9).

In elimination round action today: it's Wabash Valley (25-12) vs. Daytona Beach (31-7); Northeast Mississippi (29-8) vs. Casper (25-10), and Central Arizona (28-4) vs. Champlain (28-4).

Cleveland Jackson had 21 points and 13 rebounds to lead Butler County, which held Champlain (28-4) to 29 second-half points.

"Cleveland, though he didn't score a ton of points, he was the man on the boards," Smithson said.

Champlain, the only school in the 16-team field that played in last year's tournament, will meet Central Arizona in an elimination round game.

In other games, Terry Alexander had 29 points as South Plains advanced to the fifth-place game Saturday.

Artie Griffin along with Clarence Hightower and Brian Hightower combined for 52 points for South Plains (26-11). Sullivan (32-5) was led by Maurice Morris with 19 points.

Deon Jackson scored on a layup with three seconds left as top-seed Vincennes, the nation's No. 1-ranked junior college team, advanced to the semifinals.

Eric Williams scored 26 points as Vincennes won its 26th straight game. Seth Marshall notched 25 points for Central Arizona.

Casper College (25-10) was paced by five players in double figures in beating Chowan College. The loss eliminated Chowan (25-8) from the tournament.

Montrice Merkson scored 19 points and guard Robert Smith added 17 for Casper. Corey Baker and Marlon Jones led Chowan with 12 points each.

Scotty Shettles scored 18 points to lead Northeast Mississippi, which got a small amount of revenge in its victory over Northeast Oklahoma A&M.

It was a rematch of the 1989 championship game, which Northeast Oklahoma won 83-76.

TCU wins NIT game

By ARNIE STAPLETON
AP Sports Writer

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Score one for the little guys.

Texas Christian beat Long Beach State 73-61 Thursday night in the National Invitation Tournament when 5-8 guard Brent Atwater took advantage of a sagging defense and sparked a second-half surge that carried the shorthanded and under-sized Horned Frogs past the bigger and taller 49ers.

Atwater, held to a single free throw in the first half, scored 12 points and dished off a game-high four assists in the second.

TCU's Reggie Smith scored 24 points and pulled down a game-high 11 rebounds for his 20th double-double of the year.

But it was Atwater who made the difference as the Frogs of the Southwest Conference broke away from a 41-39 halftime lead and six second-half ties.

"Without him," said Smith, "we don't win."

TCU's 6-1 Albert Thomas added 16 points and held the 49er's leading scorer, 6-5 Lucious Harris, to just 10 points.

Thomas said he didn't mind going against Harris, who averages 19.1 points.

"I wanted to face-guard (Harris) and keep a hand in his face," Thomas said. "I also picked and shoved him a little. He's more of a finesse player and he doesn't like to be touched. Luckily, he missed a couple of his shots."

Actually, Harris missed 10 of his shots, going just 5-of-15 from the field, including 0-for-3 from three-point range, and 0-for-2 from the line.

Minnesota Twins pitcher John Smiley works out Thursday after being traded from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Pirates' breakup continues; Landrum placed on waivers

Spring training

By The Associated Press

The breakup of the Pittsburgh Pirates continued Thursday when the team placed Bill Landrum, its top reliever, on unconditional release waivers.

Landrum led the Pirates with a combined 56 saves from 1989-91, but experienced arm problems the past two years and was due to make $1.7 million.

"I couldn't trade him," general manager Ted Simmons said. "I had numerous conversations trying to create interest in him, but we didn't create any interest."

Two days earlier, the Pirates traded left-hander John Smiley and his $3.44 million salary to Minnesota for two minor leaguers, although the Pirates agreed to pay approximately $800,000 of Smiley's salary. The two moves save the Pirates about $3.9 million.

However, Pittsburgh cost itself nearly $142,000 by hanging on to Landrum for two additional days. The Pirates would have owed him only $283,333.33 by placing him on waivers Tuesday, but now must give him $425,000 in termination pay under the collective-bargaining agreement.

"Smiley ... that was just a shock," said outfielder Barry Bonds, eligible for free agency after the season. "Just don't insult anybody's intelligence by saying it wasn't because of anybody's contract. That's insulting to the intelligence of adults. Bobby Bonilla's gone, John Smiley's gone ... is there light at the end of the tunnel?"

Simmons said Bonds and Doug Drabek, also eligible for free agency in the fall, would not be traded this season.

Meanwhile, catcher B.J. Surhoff and the Milwaukee Brewers finally agreed to a $7.5 million, three-year contract. Surhoff had agreed Jan. 20 to a one-year contract worth $2.15 million, but the sides kept talking about a multiyear deal.

At Winter Haven, Fla., five-time AL batting champion Wade Boggs remained at Chain O' Lakes Park for extra batting practice rather than travel to Fort Lauderdale to play the New York Yankees.

Boggs, a .345 career hitter, is batting .136 in seven exhibition games. He plans to take more BP Friday rather than play against the Los Angeles Dodgers at Vero Beach.

"That's the luxury of spring training. You come down here, work on things and get things ready for the regular season," Boggs said. "If I ever had to make a club in spring training, I don't think I ever would."

Boggs had the same problem last year, hitting .253 in exhibition games and .332 during the season, second-best in the major leagues.

"Last year it was mechanical, this year it's just rhythm," said Boggs, batting just 3-for-22. "I've just got to find that little rhythm."

Finally, Oakland outfielder Jose Canseco and prosecutors reached a tentative agreement in his aggravated assault case, lawyers said in court after he pleaded innocent to the charge.

Terms of the agreement were not made public, but it could prevent the assault case from going to trial, prosecutor Margaret Rosenbaum said.

Police arrested Canseco, 27, for aggravated battery Feb. 13 after a heated early-morning argument in which he rammed his Porsche into his wife's BMW twice, then got out and spit on her car window.

Prosecutors, however, filed a lesser charge of aggravated assault against Canseco because there was no physical contact during the fight.

Lady Harvesters score over 200 points in winning Guymon, Okla. track meet Pampa's Lady Harvesters go into the Top O' Texas Invitational next weekend with a perfect record after three track meets.

The Lady Harvesters scored 210 points to win the Guymon, Okla. meet earlier this week.

"I thought the girls did real well, considering the weather conditions," said PHS head coach Mike Lopez. "It was about 40 degrees and windy."

Pampa girls also won meets at Perryton and Snyder and have scored over 200 points twice.

"Our success has been due to our senior leadership. The girls are really competing well," Lopez said. The TOT meet begins at 9 a.m. next Saturday at Randy Matson Field with the boys' 3200 listed as the first event.

Helpers are needed for the meet and interested persons can call Lopez at 665-7063 or Sam Porter at 669-6218.

Crowd rallies behind Sabatini in International Players Championship

KEY BISCAIYNE, Fla. (AP) — Gabriela Sabatini showed a big heart and won. Jennifer Capriati had weary legs and lost.

A tenacious Sabatini rallied past Steffi Graf 3-6, 7-6 (7-5), 6-1 in Thursday night's semifinal at the International Players Championships. Earlier, a worn-out Capriati lost to Arantxa Sanchez Vicario 6-2, 6-4.

Sabatini will try for her third tournament title this year on Saturday against Sanchez Vicario, seeking her biggest crown since taking the 1989 French Open.

In the men's semifinal tonight, Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland faces Alberto Mancini of Argentina. Top-ranked defending champion Jim Courier and Michael Chang met in the other bracket.

A heavily Hispanic crowd of 11,554 was firmly behind the third-ranked Sabatini, an Argentine who has a home in Key Biscayne. But she said their noisy encouragement was only part of the reason for her comeback.

"It also came from inside me," she said. "I never thought I was going to lose the match."

Many fans chanted "Vamos, Gaby" (let's go), and when she won the tiebreaker, they gave her a standing ovation.

"It's very special to play here," said Sabatini, who captured the 1989 title at Key Biscayne and has won seven matches in a row against Graf in Florida. "The crowd always supports me so much."

Sabatini twice rallied from a service break down in the second set before taking charge of the match. Trailing 4-0 love in the opening game of the third set, she won five consecutive points to break Graf.

"That was probably the most important game in the match," Sabatini said.

"She just played good points, and my serve was terrible today," the second-ranked Graf said.

I let the crowd get into it. They got psyched up when it was close."

Fly So Free won four of six starts in 1990 and five of 11 races last year, including the Florida Derby. He was one of the favorites in the Kentucky Derby, but finished fifth.

Harvesters edge Woodward in Elk City, Okla. tourney

Pampa slipped by Woodward, Okla., 3-2, in the opening round of the Elk City, Okla. baseball tournament Thursday.

Tarin Peet and Brandon Walden combined to pitch a one-hitter for the Harvesters.

Peet started on the mound and didn't allow a hit in five innings to pick up the win. The two pitchers gave up a total of six walks.

Pampa's first run came across in the second inning on an RBI double by Kyle Parnell.

Two more runs crossed the plate for the Harvesters in the third inning on a single by Walden and an RBI grounder by Kirt West.

Pampa meets Hammond, Okla. today in the semifinals.

Air embargo against Libya being sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, Britain and France want the U.N. Security Council to impose an air embargo against Libya in hopes of pressuring that country to surrender two agents sought in the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 in 1988.

If approved, the measure could affect the operations of 25 airlines operating in Libya.

State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said Thursday the United States is strongly urging the 500 to 1,000 American citizens in Libya to leave the North African country as soon as possible. Most are oil workers.

In Paris, the French government suggested its citizens in Libya begin making plans to leave in light of the possible air traffic embargo.

Ms. Tutwiler said Libya had ignored a Jan. 21 Security Council resolution demanding that Libya provide a "full and effective" response to U.S. and British demands for the surrender of two Libyan agents wanted in the airliner bombing.

The Pan American World Airways plane went down over Scotland in December 1988, claiming 270 lives.

"The government of Libya has not complied with the requirements of U.N. Security Council Resolution 731. Instead, Libya has attempted to delay and divert attention from the fundamental issue," Ms. Tutwiler said.

A State Department list indicates 25 foreign airlines have regular flights into Libya. The carriers are from Russia, Algeria, Malta, Italy, Austria, Bulgaria, Bangladesh, Czechoslovakia, Egypt, Netherlands, South Korea, Poland, Germany, Lebanon, Greece, Pakistan, Morocco, Jordan, Sudan, Switzerland, Syria, Romania, Tunisia, Turkey and Yugoslavia.

In an attempt to head off sanctions, Libya said Thursday it has named a new judge in its investigation of charges against the two Libyans.

The change was an apparent effort by Libya to dispel the idea it is unwilling to help investigate the charges against two of its citizens, who are alleged intelligence agents. U.S. and British authorities have said that only extradition would be satisfactory.

The United States and Britain are mainly interested in resolving the Pan Am 103 case, while France is demanding a resolution of a case involving the bombing of a French UTA airliner over Niger in 1989. It has issued arrest warrants for four Libyan intelligence officials, including a brother-in-law of Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi.
