Pampa Animal Control Officer Monty Montgomery releases a cat from a trap that they use to capture wild and stray animals, one of the methods used to control rabies. Pampa Animal Control officials also remind citizens to have their pets vaccinated annually against rabies in accordance with state and city laws.

Pets need shots

It's springtime and time again to get pets vaccinated for rabies, say Pampa Animal Control officials. Friday, Saturday and Monday have been set aside by all four Pampa veterinary clinics for reduced rates on rabies shots and vaccinations. The shots will be given during normal office hours at the following veterinarians:

Easley Animal Hospital, N. Loop 171 & Texas 70;
Gray County Veterinary Clinic, 1329 S. Hobart;
Hendrick Animal Hospital, 1912 Alcock;
Royse Animal Hospital, 1949 N. Hobart.

In addition to the discount rate for rabies vaccinations, Pampa veterinarians are also offering complete immunization for animals at reduced rates. For dogs, these shots include rabies, distemper and parvo vaccinations. For cats, rabies, distemper and feline leukemia vaccinations are included.

Rabies is a virus disease of the central nervous system. It can be transmitted only by the bite of a rabid animal, or through the saliva of a rabid animal that falls into a fresh scratch or break in the skin.

It may take from 10 days to a year to develop, however, persons exposed to rabies can be successfully treated before the development of symptoms by a series of vaccinations.

All warm-blooded animals, including humans, are subject to rabies. In Texas, dogs, foxes and skunks most often contract the disease. In recent years, insect-eating bats have been found to carry rabies, as well.

The most recent confirmed case of rabies in the Pampa area on Nov. 15, 1990 involved a bat that had been brought into a house by a domestic cat, said Monty Montgomery of the Pampa Animal Control.

City accepts art sculpture

Pampa city commissioners agreed Tuesday to accept a piece of outdoor art depicting giant musical notes for Coronado Park.

The sculpture, welded by Rusty Neef, shows three ears of "This Land is Your Land" in the key of D and will be a centerpiece during the upcoming Woody Guthrie Celebration, Oct. 3.

Guthrie lived in Pampa from 1929 to 1936, city officials said, and events are planned to honor the famous American songwriter and folk singer.

Commissioners also asked that the M.K. Brown Civic Center and Parks and Recreation Advisory boards develop long-term plans for future outdoor art, eliminating clutter and providing continuity of presentation.

Also approved were guidelines for public use of a community access character generator on cable television and several appointments to boards.

The appointments include:

- Re-appointing Pat Bagley,

On Sept. 7, 1989, a coyote killed in Carson County was found to be positive for rabies, Montgomery said.

This year, 33 cases of rabies have been reported in Corpus Christi, he said, adding that Midland has received 31 reports. In Cook County, 19 persons have had to take rabies shots after being infected by a single puppy, he said, citing statistics recently reported in the Texas Animal Control Association newsletter. A woman from South Texas died last year after waiting too long for treatment after being bitten by a rabid animal, he said.

Pampa Animal Control officers check regularly for rabies cases. In the past 12 months, 13 animal heads have been shipped for testing in Austin. None were positive for rabies, Montgomery said.

One might think that although the southern and central portions of Texas have a high number of rabies cases, there is no cause for concern in the Panhandle.

Montgomery begs to differ. "We have a lot of traffic coming here from South Texas, especially with the prison construction going on," he explained. "That could bring rabies here."

Presently, Pampa Animal Control picks up an average of 250 to 300 stray animals each month, he said. Of those, approximately 95 percent are untagged and potential rabies victims.

State law and city of Pampa ordinances require pets four months old or older to be vaccinated for rabies once a year. The animals must also display rabies vaccination tags on a collar or harness at all times, according to Montgomery. Failure to comply with the ordinance carries a maximum fine of $500.

Wayne Bruce, Bill Hallerburg, Ralph Milliron and Ray Thompson to the Board of Adjustments.

- Re-appointing Floye Christensen, Ron Graves and Mae Williams to the Auditorium Board.

- Appointing Robert Ellison III, J.R. Moreno and Rodney Springer to the Parks and Recreation Board.

- Re-appointing Jeff Andrews, Milo Carlson, Jamie Shedd and J.F. Thiry to the Planning and Zoning Commission, and appointing Roger Lamb to that board.

- Re-appointing Dixon, Hupp, Sutherland and Wilson to the Pampa Housing Finance Corp.

- Re-appointing Sutherland to the Panhandle Elderly Apartment Corp.

No action was taken following an executive session to discuss a pending federal civil rights lawsuit against the city regarding an allegation of illegal body cavity searches.

Survey: Majority prefer late-night park closings

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Following tabulation of community surveys, Pampa city commissioners appear ready to adopt an ordinance closing city parks from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. in an attempt to reduce crime and noise.

During their work session Tuesday at City Hall, commissioners reviewed the surveys, finding 60 percent preferred park closings as the way to solve rising drug abuse, violence and noise late at night in several parks.

Statistics show violent crime is up 43 percent in Pampa. In addition, residents living near Prairie Village Park have complained of drug dealing and disorderly conduct in that neighborhood late at night.

Officials said the ordinance could be given final approval in time to be in effect by June 1.

Commissioner Gary Sutherland

said, "There have been those who have said we should deal with the problem where it exists and not penalize everybody. But the law says you can't discriminate."

City Attorney Don Lane has warned that any effort to single out problems on the south side will rightfully be considered racist and illegal.

Forty percent of respondents to the survey said they favored a city-wide curfew for minors as the best way to deal with the problems.

"I don't like any of these options," complained Commissioner Ray Hupp, who said he is hopeful parents and community members will deal with the situation.

The majority of commissioners said while it is "a sad day" when such measures are necessary, the public expects action by the city.

"We can do this as step one," stated Commissioner Jerry Wilson of the park closings, "and if it doesn't work, we can go to step two (a curfew)."

Sutherland said he remains uncertain closing the parks late at night will solve the problem since large crowds of people "will just move out into the streets."

"In the areas we had problems in last year, you can have real problems outside the parks," Sutherland said of a riot on the south side. "We may end up having to pass a curfew this summer on an emergency basis."

Mayor Richard Peet agreed, saying police must enforce existing noise and traffic ordinances to disperse large crowds that block roadways late at night.

Commissioners said most of the problems with drug dealing and other crimes involved adult offenders, but said teen-agers constitute much of their followings and if the teen-agers were taken off the streets late at night, it would "eliminate a lot of the crowd element."

City Manager Glen Hackler said, "The most notable thing is the small amount of opposition to curfews. Only 10 people said they totally opposed it. My suggestion is that if we close the parks at 11 ... If that doesn't work, legally we can build a better case for a curfew."

City Attorney Don Lane said in the eyes of the law, "Regardless of what the people want, you have to statistically prove a curfew is the only way to handle the problem."

Commissioners are scheduled to vote on the park closing ordinance in two weeks. Sutherland noted, "As part of this, we need to make it known that if this doesn't work we will go to a curfew."

Commissioner Robert Dixon said Pampa may also need to pass a city ordinance similar to one in Corpus Christi that "makes parents responsible for what their kids do."

"If the kids aren't afraid of going to jail, maybe their parents will be," Dixon said.

Jail inspection stirs debate

By BETH MILLER
Staff Writer

A Gray County Jail inspection, scheduled for May 11, has been put on hold pending more work on the smoke detection and smoke evacuation systems.

Inspection of the jail by Texas Commission on Jail Standards began last Thursday, but was continued after several problems began to show.

A decision to delay the May inspection was made Tuesday in an emotionally-charged meeting of the Gray County County Commissioners Court.

For the most part, the Commissioners Court sat and listened to discussions between architect Larry Janousek, mechanical engineer Allan Latta and general contractors Jim Sartain and Bill Attebury; the latter two with A&S Steel.

Sartain was visibly frustrated several times during the meeting and at one point said, "I want to ask you people (Janousek and Latta), and I apologize for my emotion, how in the world did anybody expect this thing to pass? We sat back and waited and nothing has happened. You didn't correct the problem."

Sartain said there was physical information available showing that the smoke detection and evacuation systems would not detect or clear the smoke in the time allotted by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards.

However, Latta said his firm had responded promptly to every question brought up by the testing. He added that he would go back and review the information again in light of items brought to his attention Tuesday.

County Judge Carl Kennedy, at the beginning of the meeting, said "We're here to try to determine what we can do to get the jail finished, get it inspected and get moved in."

The county judge said the fact that Maxey & Associates Inc., jail architects, have discontinued business should not be a stumbling block.

"We need to accept that and go ahead and work out a plan," Kennedy said.

Kennedy also said he did not want to alarm the public with the issue because he said it probably makes up 5 percent of the jail when 95 percent of the facility works properly.

Janousek pointed out that he believes the new jail and sheriff's office is one of the "best jails in the state." He said many difficult items in jail inspections went through Thursday without a hitch.

"There are a lot of jails which are delayed at the end to meet Jail Standards requirements," he said. "We can't predict how it's going to function, how the smoke is going to move."

Contractors said it could cost $30,000 to correct the problem of smoke evacuation by placing two fans directly through the roof of the facility in two men's day rooms and by placing another exhaust fan in the women's day room.

"With a $2.9 million building, if it's $30,000 or $40,000 to correct the problem now as quickly as we can, over the course of the project that is a very small percentage," Janousek said.

He also said the project has had a small percentage of change orders compared to the total cost of the project. He added that he understood the county's efforts to hold down the costs of the facility.

"I'm optimistic this is going to be solved," Janousek said. "To me the downside is what has to be done will take several weeks ... It's a difficult time because everyone is anxious to get it finished."

Janousek said more smoke detectors will be added in an effort to correct the smoke detection problem. He pointed out minor items noted in the Thursday inspection that will be corrected, as well. They include stenciling of several more exit signs, emergency diagram exits, and fire extinguishers to be tagged and dated.

Shelves in single cells, which are one foot above the sink, likely will be taken out because Janousek said they are not required. Jail inspectors said the shelves could be a safety problem because an inmate could bump his head raising up from a sink.

Janousek suggested earlier in the meeting that maybe a third party should be hired to come in and find out where the problems were on the smoke evacuation system. Latta, the mechanical engineer who designed the smoke evacuation system, said his drawings should provide for proper evacuation if the items were installed correctly.

Sartain pointed out that he did not believe it was an installation error, but a design error, again saying that nothing had been done by the architects and engineers to correct flaws encountered earlier.

Precinct 1 Commissioner Joe Wheelley, of Janousek and Latta, asked, "Why is it not done? We've been coasting along for four months nearly with nothing done ... It looks like to me it's a design flaw. This court said from the beginning we wanted to overbuild. Every place (other jails) we went said the only problem they ever had (with jail inspections) was in smoke evacuation."

Latta pointed out again that he had three other people look at his drawings and they agreed that the proper smoke evacuation should be occurring if the work was completed correctly.

Precinct 3 Commissioner Gerald Wright said to Latta, "Since we hired you to design and see that it works, you need to do it."

Latta countered that it was not his sole responsibility, but also the responsibility of the person building the facility.

Wright said, "I say whatever it takes to make it work, it should be your expense. It's not our (the county's) problem."

Kennedy said, "If we don't get the building where it will work, what have we got? ... I know the issue of who will pay for it is difficult."

Trustees OK school enrollment plan

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Following a review of options Tuesday, Pampa public school trustees approved a transfer and attendance zone policy designed to better equalize enrollment at six elementary schools.

Board members admitted it is the "first step" in dealing with attendance inequities 20 years in the making.

"I have heard a lot of comments that this will not completely solve the problems and I will be the first to agree," said Trustee Jim Duggan. "This is the first step in the process."

Superintendent Dawson Orr after the meeting said that to re-draw in-city attendance zone lines this year, with at least 500 new state jobs coming to Pampa, would constitute "an exercise in futility."

"All students affected by the changes will be notified in writing by the school district," Orr said. "This will not be nearly as bad as people think it will be. In two or three years, we may have to re-draw the lines, based on where the population is."

The board heard, but did not respond to, two recommendations, including one that called for zone lines being re-drawn immediately and children outside the city allowed to continue attending the school of their choice.

A parent, Susan Triplehorn, warned if rural children are assigned an attendance zone, it will stifle housing developments south of the city.

Kent Crow also suggested that all district employees be told their children will attend Lamar, increasing enrollment there while easing overcrowding on other campuses.

The board unanimously approved a plan that:

- Reserves space at each campus for move-ins, something that has not happened in the past.
- Postpones approval of new transfer requests until 10 days after the start of school, allowing the district to get a grasp on what classes have room for transfers. The one exception will be in classes where there is clearly room for those transfers, such as certain classes at Lamar and Baker elementary.
- Gives priority to existing transfers over new requests.
- Means students living outside the city limits but within two miles of a school be considered living in that school zone;

- Students living more than two miles outside the city limits and north of a line made by extending 23rd attend Austin;

- Students living south of 23rd and east of the Barnes extension attend Wilson;

- Students west of the Barnes extension and south of 23rd attend Lamar;

- Mann be eliminated as a bus-receiving school.

- Allows for limited "grandfathering" allowing for existing transfers entering the third, fourth and fifth grades to be given preference over move-ins for the next two school years, meaning those students can complete their elementary education at the school they currently attend.

Clinton calls on party leaders after Pennsylvania victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bill Clinton carried momentum from a Pennsylvania landslide into meetings with congressional Democrats today, asking them to reform campaign and budget laws and promising a White House partnership with legislators if he beats President Bush.

"What they want is a leader," the all-but-certain Democratic nominee said after his meeting with Democratic lawmakers, part of Clinton's efforts to rally the party around his candidacy.

"They've had three years now of a president with no plan, who governs by veto and blames everyone else for the problems of the country."

Clinton came to Capitol Hill fresh from a rout of Jerry Brown in Pennsylvania that cemented his grip on the nomination.

Brown and Buchanan gamely pledged today to fight on, although the Republican challenger acknowledged that "it looks like George Bush is going to be the nominee, no doubt about it." Buchanan said he hoped for a prime-time slot to address the Republican National Convention. As much as Clinton and

Bush had reason to cheer, they also got fresh evidence of potential trouble: 25 percent of voters in both parties said they would vote for Perot.

Sarpalius pushes legislation to open up more public land

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Bill Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, introduced legislation Tuesday that would make more than 10,000 acres of federal land on the Canadian River available to the public for outdoor recreation, including hunting.

The Sarpalius legislation will provide for the transfer of the management of 10,225 acres of the Bureau of Mines to the National Park Service. Both agencies are under the direction of the U.S. Department of the Interior.

The property, known as the Cross Bar Ranch, is owned and managed by the Bureau of Mines and includes nearly eight miles of river frontage.

"I have made every effort during the past 90 days to get all of the involved agencies on board," Sarpalius said. "Most of the support is in place and I see very few problems for this legislation."

Sarpalius said the configuration of the property was altered slightly during the past 90 days to accommodate the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve unit that trains on the northeast corner of the property. He said that portion of the property on the east side of North Amarillo Creek would be excluded from the land transfer.

Activists hope charges will shut down Operation Rescue

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Abortion opponents said they were taking a breather today after a judge ordered the arrest of five leaders accused of violating an injunction prohibiting them from blocking abortion clinics.

"We just felt that we needed this time alone amongst ourselves," said the Rev. Pat Mahoney, an anti-abortion leader. "We are definitely not hitting the streets today. But I can't speak for tomorrow."

Abortion foes said they would pray together today and not protest at clinics. So far, about 420 abortion opponents have been arrested since Operation Rescue's began its campaign April 20 in this predominantly Roman Catholic city. The demonstrations were scheduled to end Saturday.

Abortion rights activists say they hope the arrests would put an end to the group's campaign to close abortion clinics.

A judge ordered federal marshals Tuesday to arrest the five leaders for contempt of court charges that accuse them of violating his February injunction prohibiting them from blocking Buffalo clinics. Three were in custody today and the other two had gone home, authorities said.

"I hope it sends a message that they're not going to stop us," said Julie Parsons of Buffalo United for Choice, who led Tuesday's effort by abortion rights protesters to keep the Erie Medical Center clinic open.

Police arrested 73 abortion opponents at the clinic after they tried to blockade clinic doors. Five abor-

City to re-route water pipes away from packing plant pits

City Manager Glen Hackler said Tuesday city plans now call for city water lines to go around recently discovered paunch pits southwest of Recreation Park.

Water crews laying lines to serve the park recently uncovered numerous pits where the entrails of cattle were dumped nearly 20 years ago near a packing plant that is now closed.

Monday, Joe Sneed of the state Health Department's division of occupational health, told the city water lines can be run through the pits without any public health hazard.

However, Hackler said Tuesday, "We entered into discussions with a nearby property owner and received verbal agreements on an easement that will re-route the lines around this trouble area. We should have the easement signed by the end of this week and on the (city commission) agenda by next week."

State officials said if water lines were laid through the pit area, a four-foot area around where the water line will be laid would have to be cleared and new dirt will be put in its place.

PVC pipe would also have to be wrapped in several layers of plastic. Sneed said all personnel working around the pits would be need to wear protective clothing and self-contained breathing apparatus to prevent exposure to any harmful bacteria.

Hackler said the best way to assure the public there is no health threat from the paunch pits is to totally avoid laying water lines through them.

Police, sheriff's office help clear more burglaries

Pampa police and the Gray County Sheriff's Department helped clear three more burglaries in the Panhandle Tuesday as they continue investigating a multi-year husband and wife burglary ring.

Monday police arrested Lloyd and Valerie Wohlford, both 28, of 1008 E. Murphy.

Police Lt. Allan Smith said Tuesday officers have tied three additional burglaries in Canyon to property found at the Wohlford house.

Through this morning, Mr. Wohlford had been charged with misdemeanor possession of marijuana, theft of a motor vehicle in California, and a burglary.

However, Smith said more warrants for burglary are being prepared against Mr. Wohlford, who remains in city jail.

Mrs. Wohlford has also been charged with burglary, theft and misdemeanor possession of marijuana. Both remained in custody at press time today.

Judge uses obscure law to name prosecutor in pathologist probe

Oliver Stone, director of the controversial film "JFK," testifies before a House subcommittee Tuesday to seek the release of documents related to President Kennedy's assassination in 1963.

Justice Department objects to release of JFK documents

By JOHN DIAMOND
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department, despite earlier administration hints to the contrary, is opposing legislation to release documents related to President Kennedy's assassination in 1963.

Responding to the popular movie, "JFK," television documentaries and opinion polls, House and Senate leaders of both parties want swift passage of the bill authorizing an opening of the archives.

They say the point is not to cater to any particular conspiracy theory about the murder of Kennedy, but to restore public trust in government.

Until Tuesday, the Bush administration was going along with opening the files. CIA Director Robert Gates gave a speech in February about the need for new openness in the intelligence community, and said his agency would cooperate in the release of assassination documents. FBI chief William Sessions said his agency would do the same.

Then this week, on the eve of the first congressional hearing on the legislation, the Justice Department submitted a nine-page letter detailing major objections to the proposal. Assistant Attorney General W. Lee Rawls wrote that the bill "would severely encroach upon the president's constitutional authority to protect confidential information."

Rawls also raised national security concerns, saying that language clearing the way for the release of CIA and FBI documents could endanger intelligence methods and sources.

Oklahoma storm spawns tornado

By The Associated Press

Storms scared residents of southwestern Oklahoma with a tornado, dropped hail on much of the state and knocked out power for scattered areas.

The National Weather Service said spotters reported a tornado seven miles south of Granite in Greer County on Tuesday night, moving southeast at 30 mph.

"I'm standing near the window and, yes, there are tornadoes and it's hailing," said a woman who answered the phone at the E-Z Stop in Blair, just across the line in Jackson County. "Now I've got to go and get in the back room."

Hail 2 inches in diameter also was reported in the area. There were no reports of injuries or damages.

Earlier in the day, a cluster of strong thunderstorms brought brief, heavy rain, hail and frequent lightning to portions of the state. Electricity was knocked out temporarily in some communities, and lightning may have caused an explosion at a Cushing gas company.

Part of a shop building at the Jett Gas Co., Inc., a liquefied petroleum storage center, blew out after lightning hit the Cushing business, authorities said.

Paul Johnson, who was in the building when the explosion occurred, suffered minor cuts and abrasions, and authorities evacuated some residents because of fumes in the area.

Lightning knocked out power in isolated areas of Blackwell, Perkins, Stillwater, Tulsa and Broken Arrow.

A cold front moving down from Kansas and low-level moisture moving up from Texas produced the thunderstorms, forecasters said.

DALLAS (AP) — A special prosecutor has been appointed to investigate allegations of theft, perjury and records tampering by forensic pathologist Ralph Erdmann.

Lubbock lawyer Tommy Turner was ordered to prepare evidence for a special court hearing that will consider alleged wrongdoing by the embattled Lubbock doctor.

State District Judge John R. McFall used an obscure Texas criminal statute in issuing the order Tuesday.

Erdmann already faces indictment in one West Texas county and criminal investigations in at least three others for alleged wrongdoing in his performance of autopsies.

He has refused to comment on the indictment, in which a Hockley County grand jury charged him with faking an autopsy.

But he said Sunday that he never intentionally did anything wrong and blamed any problems on overwork.

Erdmann, who has performed autopsies for 41 West Texas counties over the past nine years, resigned his $140,000-a-year post in Lubbock County after his indictment.

Judge McFall filed an affidavit along with his order stating that the Lubbock County district attorney's office shouldn't investigate Erdmann because its employees are likely witnesses in any investigation.

"Other circumstances" — which the judge's affidavit didn't specify — also would prevent District Attorney Travis Ware's office from conducting such a probe, according to the court records.

Ware told The Dallas Morning News he was unaware of what specific circumstances might prevent his office from investigating Erdmann, but he said he welcomed the probe.

Ware said his office had considered a special prosecutor to avoid any appearance of impropriety because he had once practiced law with and served as an assistant district attorney under Erdmann's lawyer, John Montford, now a Democratic state senator.

The affidavit outlines four areas to be investigated: charges of perjury, aggravated perjury, theft and tampering with government records. It doesn't detail any of the charges, however.

After Judge McFall conducts a hearing on the probe, he can file a complaint with the Lubbock County grand jury for further investigation.

Concerns about Erdmann's work first surfaced Feb. 23 when he was indicted in Hockley County. Since then, officials in several counties have alleged that he misplaced body parts, falsified evidence and reported erroneous autopsy results.

The allegations raise the specter that hundreds of criminal prosecutions could be called into question. Most of the counties that employed him have begun using other pathologists.

Radicals surrender, leave Kabul without water, power

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — The people of Kabul cautiously returned to the streets today after radical rebels surrendered their last stronghold, bringing to an apparent end a fierce four-day battle for control of the capital.

About 260 fighters of the strict fundamentalist Hezb-e-Islami group were being held prisoner today after abandoning the Interior Ministry complex Tuesday night, said a guerrilla commander loyal to the new government.

The three-hour battle came just hours after the triumphant arrival of a convoy carrying thousands of Muslim guerrillas and their leaders, whose various factions had battled a succession of Soviet-backed governments for 14 years.

Only scattered, isolated explosions and gunfire could be heard today, and capital residents began returning to the streets to shop for food. Electricity and water were out in most of the war-scarred city.

The gunfire and artillery exchanged during the battle for the Interior Ministry was heavy, but the guerrilla commander, who identified himself only as Mohair, said only one of his fighters was wounded.

He said there were no casualties among the Hezb-e-Islami fighters. There was no word today from their leader, Gulbuddin Hekmatyar, the only significant rebel leader to resist cooperation with the new, 20-member provisional council.

After the rebel mujahedeen, or Islamic holy warriors, flooded into the city unchallenged on Saturday, Hekmatyar's partisans began battling the moderate guerrilla coalition forces of Ahmed Shah Masood.

The Red Cross said at least 15 people were killed and nearly 300 wounded by Tuesday morning, but the actual toll is thought to be much higher.

Masood and Hekmatyar are personal enemies from different ethnic groups, split on their visions of the government that should succeed Soviet-installed President Najibullah, who was toppled April 16.

Hekmatyar favors strict imposition of Islamic law, while Masood holds with the moderate line taken by the governing coalition.

The council on Tuesday declared an Islamic government led by Sibghatullah Mojaddidi, the head of a smaller rebel group. Its challenges are formidable. The war left 2 million dead, 5 million homeless and laid waste to the countryside, which remains poisoned with thousands of mines.

As the coalition's fighters fired glowing tracer bullets and flares into the night sky Tuesday in celebration of the new government, their comrades fought to bring Hekmatyar's holdouts to heel.

But, as was often the case after rebels moved into Kabul on Saturday, chaos seemed to rule. Fighters from at least two mujahedeen groups were operating together, but not always in tandem. At times, no one appeared to be in command. As fighters scurried down the street toward the Interior Ministry, some emptied the magazines of their assault rifles aimlessly into brick walls or in the air. The threat of injury from friendly fire seemed far greater than the fire from inside the compound.

Commander Mohair said Hekmatyar's guerrillas inside the Interior Ministry finally called out over a loudspeaker that they were ready to give up.

"They realized they would be killed so they surrendered," he said.

UT panel delays decision on ad

AUSTIN (AP) — The University of Texas Publications Board has voted to delay running in the student newspaper an advertisement that questions events about the Holocaust.

The ad was to appear in today's Daily Texan.

"We are going to delay the ad until Friday, then run it side by side with opposing opinions from knowledgeable people," said Martin Gibson, a journalism professor at UT, and member of the Publications Board.

The board, which sets policy for the Texan, was poised to allow the ad to run today despite the threat of a lawsuit from a historian who said she was misquoted in the ad. The issue has also prompted death threats phoned to the newspaper's offices.

The ad was purchased by Bradley R. Smith of the Committee for Open Debate on the Holocaust, which has submitted similar ads to student publications at other universities.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coving commandment.

Opinion

Winner has major hurdles to climb

John Major's victory in the British parliamentary election recently defied most surveys and predictions. It even defied some historical trends. After wars, the ruling party often is booted from office. Even Sir Winston Churchill lost an election after beating Hitler in World War II. With the Cold War over, Major, following this pattern, should have lost to Labor Party candidate Neil Kinnock.

Britain's economy remains in a recession worse than the one inflicting the United States. Unemployment stands at 9.5 percent, two points higher than for the Yanks. The economic decline was caused by Major's abandonment of many of the free-market policies pursued so successfully by his predecessor, Margaret Thatcher. Finally, after 13 years of Conservative Party rule, British voters, many thought, wanted to try Labor's latest elixir.

So why did the Tories win? One reason is the vast change that Thatcher accomplished before Conservative Party apparatchiks foolishly dumped her from office in 1990. She pursued policies that turned the working class into the middle class. She privatized thousands of government-run housing projects, selling to tenants their apartments and own houses at low prices. She also lowered taxes and privatized dozens of state-run industries.

The plan was brilliant. Almost overnight, it turned property-less malcontents into property owners with a stake in maintaining capitalism. The last thing such people wanted was to have a Labor government return to power and begin raising taxes and seizing property. Kinnock vowed that he had reformed his old socialist ways, that he had purged the most Marxist elements of his party. Voters still did not trust him.

There is another reason that Major did not repeat Sir Winston's defeat of 1945. Though the allies had defeated National Socialism in Germany, in 1945 socialism was sweeping across the world. Stalin was widely admired. The British Labor Party rode this wave to power. Labor Prime Minister Clement Atlee even gave Stalin the Roll Royce jet engines that the Red Air Force used to make MiG-15s, the fierce fighters that shot down many U.S. pilots during the Korean War. It was a time when people trusted government, and many thought that more government was better government.

Things have changed. Government is distrusted and mocked everywhere. Last year the Soviet Union dissolved. Socialism is being dismantled everywhere. Though improved a bit, Kinnock's platform remained corroded by socialism.

The challenge now for Major is to end the stubborn recession. He should return to the stronger free-market policies that worked so well for Thatcher. By rejecting Labor's watered-down socialism, voters have indicated they want smaller government, lower taxes, and more capitalism.

One small step toward insanity

WASHINGTON - It escaped much public notice, but the Consumer Product Safety Commission did something sensible the other day. It rejected a proposal to require labeling of balloons, marbles, small balls, and certain toys with small parts. Ralph Nader's outfit was accordingly outraged.

What a pleasure it is to write something nice about the commission! It is a pleasure seldom experienced. The memory rolls back 20 years. There was the time the commission funded a great study of tricycles. At last the consultants came up with a conclusion for the ages. Are you ready?

"As children grow older, their legs grow longer."

Then there was the study of accidents in bathtubs. The consultants, after exhaustive consultation, advised the commission that "slips and falls are the major causes of bathtub accidents." It was something to think about.

There was the Case of the Oriental Dolls. It involved an importer of those elaborately dressed dolls - the kind that cost a bundle and are intended to be displayed in glass cases. But the costumes were held in place by pins! The pins might prick someone! Take them out this instant!

Power mowers! The commission propounded regulations on power mowers that would have made them 22 pounds heavier than a Patton tank, and with better armor. There was the matter of formaldehyde foam insulation, which the commission irresponsibly banned. And there was the proposal to question accident victims who had been brought to emergency wards even before an intern could begin to sew them up.

Against that balmy background, there came a proposal two years ago to require labeling of certain toys that might present a hazard to children from 3 to 5 years of age. The proposal, naturally, came from the Consumer Federation of America (CFA), which regards living and breathing as hazardous occupations and hence subject to federal prohibition.

Nader's Public Interest Research Group (PIRG) climbed aboard. The commission issued a Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, and the staff was off to the races. After months of study, the staff concluded that marbles, balls, balloons and toys with small parts present such dangers that they should bear warning labels.

On March 18 the commissioners voted 3-0 against the staff recommendation on marbles, balls and toys. The vote was 2-1 against requiring labels on packages of balloons. The reaction was predictable. PIRG and CFA denounced the commission as a "do-nothing" agency. A lady at the CFA said that "apparently, saving children's lives is not important to this agency." A staff attorney at PIRG blamed the Bush administration for the decision "to ignore the 15 toy-related choking deaths that occur every year."

Rep. Cardiss Collins of Illinois declared she was "shocked and extremely disappointed" by the commission's decision. She found it inexcusable and will press for adoption of her bill (H.R. 3809), a bill to protect innocent children from every hazard known to man, including the negligence and stupidity of their parents and guardians.

Mrs. Collins will attempt to attach her nanny-nanny bill to the pending bill to reauthorize the commission. Every friend of individual responsibility will pray that the House rejects her amendment out of hand.

Terrence M. Scanlon, a former chairman of the CPSC, once complained that staffers were providing "goofy" statistics to support their recommendations. In the case at hand, the statistics were not exactly goofy, but they were flimsy and they were palpably unimpressive.

It appears from the record that 1.5 billion marbles are sold every year. The staff found, on average, one choking death a year. An estimated 1.2 billion balloons are sold; on average, seven children die by swallowing them. The staff called for a label on balls less than 1.68 inches in diameter, though no one could say how many children choked on balls of 1.67 inches or 1.69 inches; the matter could require additional consultants.

Most remarkably, no one from CFA, PIRG or the staff could explain how labeling a bag of marbles would prevent the one death a year. Parents who are so stupid and irresponsible that they dump marbles in a baby's crib are not going to be deterred by any warning label. They probably can't read.

Well, hooray for the CPSC! In the continuing struggle against an overly solicitous bureaucracy, eager to do Good Works and to Improve Society, we don't win many rounds. It's good to win even one.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, April 29, the 120th day of 1992. There are 246 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 29, 1945, American soldiers liberated the Nazi concentration camp in Dachau, Germany, where tens of thousands of people had perished.

On this date:

In 1429, Joan of Arc entered the besieged city of Orleans to lead a victory over the English.

In 1862, New Orleans fell to Union forces during the Civil War.

In 1863, newspaper publisher William Randolph Hearst was born in San Francisco.

In 1894, several hundred unemployed men known as "Coxey's Army" swarmed into Washington to ask Congress for help.

In 1913, Swedish-born engineer Gideon Sundback of Hoboken, N.J., patented the zipper.

In 1916, the Easter Rising in Dublin collapsed as Irish nationalists who had seized control of the General Post Office surrendered to British authorities.

Vitamins dangerous?

The way it sounds it makes sense. H.R. 3642, granting broad new powers to the Food and Drug Administration, has cleared one committee on its way through Congress.

The argument of California's Congressman Henry Waxman is that some drugs, devices and cosmetics are overpriced, overpromoted and overused.

And may be dangerous. Up to here that presumption is entirely correct.

The problem is that under "drugs" is included nutritional products.

And the latitude the new legislation would invest in a single agent of the FDA...

And the detention periods for suspect products...

And the potential penalties ranging to a million dollars

Would constitute such a threat that no retail store, no small manufacturer, would ever pursue development of a new nutritional product.

Some of us benefit from supplemental vitamins and minerals.

Others may not. Physiological variables - from one person to another - and the very newness of preventive medicine make it impossible to prescribe vitamins with certainty.

What responsible marketers do say is that "this product may help."

Including nutritional products in this legislation is justified only if there is a "neatly hazard." Is there?

Some medical doctors remain unconvinced that vitamin pills are good for anything.

Nutrition was mostly ignored in medical education until this recent decade, so it is understandable if some doctors are as unsold on vitamins as some Americans are oversold.

Other doctors would like vitamins to be available only on prescription. They argue that for you to prescribe for yourself may be dangerous.

There is no evidence of any widespread misuse. There is, however, a great danger from the misuse of prescription drugs.

A recent eight-year study at 72 poison control centers revealed that sleeping pills and tranquilizers killed 460 people.

Analgesics led to 715 deaths.

Antidepressants accounted for 805 fatalities.

Cardiovascular drugs killed another 360.

These were 2,500 people killed by accidental or intentional overdose of drugs.

During that same eight years the number of people killed by vitamins was zero!

There were no reported fatalities from taking vitamins either by children or adults.

Which suggests that vitamins, whatever their benefits, are 2,500 times safer than drugs.

Meanwhile, doctors who do recognize benefits from vitamin therapy are recommending them to overcome high cholesterol, to reduce cancer risk, to prevent or relieve many chronic health problems.

Cheer the changing faces of sports

This is the happy season of change, a time when families of red azaleas, yellow forsythias, pink dogwoods and coral cherry blossoms compete for our oracular affection.

Sparrows seem to warble with lustier early-morning enthusiasm. Stiff-legged robins hopscootch across lawns, and Tennyson's tribute to the awakening libido is reconfirmed, except for one egalitarian modification. "In the spring a young man's - and a young woman's - fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love."

That poetic modification is only one of three quiet, but dramatic plastic surgeries around college campuses. Two others have changed the face of collegiate sports.

Women and men from academically superior colleges - in the case of the men, white men - have become national athletic powers.

On almost any national list of academic rankings, Duke and Stanford universities are easily housed in the top 15. But few of these NCAA competitors distinguish themselves with comparable intellectual proficiency.

A current movie and the NCAA basketball championships, won by the Duke men and Stanford women, jointly symbolize a change. As Duke's Ichabod Crane-thin white star, Chris Laettner, soared toward the stadium's ceiling and pirouetted to earth on the power of a sassy in-yo-face dunk, he had to be grinning inwardly at a movie title's false assumption, "White Men Can't Jump."

Chuck Stone

Oh, indeed they can. They can also shoot their Caucasoid buns off. If Duke's Bobby Hurley and the Celtics' Larry Bird had served in World War I, they would have put Sgt. Alvin York to shame.

The ethnic transition is not complete, however. After all, Duke's opponent in the NCAA final was Michigan, with its all-black "Fabulous Five Freshmen." Some things do remain sacred.

Still, in this era of heightened racial consciousness and a creeping alienation between races on many college campuses, athletics reigns as the most integrated force in America.

At any Sunday-afternoon baseball game, Saturday-afternoon football game or Thursday-evening basketball game, the teams usually are 20 times more racially integrated than the congregations of 95 percent of this country's churches - and the Princeton basketball squad.

What continues to fascinate me is the paradox of this country fostering racial integration in sports, and entertainment while resisting the same process in academia.

Organizations such as the white, elitist, anti-politically correct National Association of Scholars (NAS) will attend sporting events, root for their teams to bring home television money, then turn around and lobby to keep blacks and Hispanics out of academia.

That which we call chutzpah by any other name would smell as rancid.

At the same time, racial, gender and class changes in sports offer a challenge. Michigan's "Fabulous Five" freshmen proved they can jump. They also proved that minorities have the ability to master cognitive learning well enough to attend college.

It's up to schools in minority communities - aided and encouraged by minority parents - to get their pedagogical act together. Only then can all deserving minority kids reap the harvest of a college education.

It will be a long time before blacks become a discernible presence in polo, swimming, hockey or golf. Access to these sports has less to do with physical agility than it does socio-economic gentility.

White men can jump - well enough to win NCAA and contribute to NBA titles. Black men have been jumping to these titles for years. Now, they must study hard enough to win the Masters and the Stanley Cup.

Dinner dishes $9 million to GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — As President Bush started at a $9 million political fund-raising dinner, Democrats brought their version of campaign finance reform to the Senate floor in what shapes up as a veto showdown with the White House.

The bill, passed by the House three weeks ago, would outlaw many of the fund-raising techniques that in recent days have embarrassed Bush's re-election campaign, Senate Democrats argued Tuesday.

"The legislation ... closes down these loopholes," said Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, acknowledging that Democrats take advantage of the same provisions in the current law.

GOP leaders acknowledged that Senate Democrats have enough votes to pass the bill Thursday and send it to the White House.

"But they don't have enough votes to override a promised veto," said Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan. "The end result is the death of campaign finance reform for a few more years ... perhaps until the year 2000."

Bush has repeatedly vowed to veto any bill that puts a lid on how much congressional candidates can spend, provides them public financing similar to the nearly $150 million he has shared as a presidential and vice presidential candidate or that treats the House and Senate differently.

The Democratic bill does all three. Republicans claim the bill would perpetuate Democrats' control of Congress by denying potential GOP challengers the chance to raise money for sufficient television ad time to overcome incumbent lawmakers' name recognition.

They also maintain that it does virtually nothing to stem the influence of unions and the independent expenditures they make for phone banks and other grassroots get-out-the-vote drives — more than 90 percent of it to the benefit of Democrats.

The President's Dinner presided over by Bush on Tuesday night was the largest fund-raiser in history. It carried a minimum ticket price of $1,500 per person, but the donations ranged up to $400,000 from one executive, with proceeds going to various GOP campaigns and voter drives.

In order to get federal matching funds, the bill would set voluntary spending ceilings of $600,000 to $750,000 on candidates for House seats and $1.6 million to $8.9 million on Senate candidates, depending on the voter populations of their states.

As a carrot to comply with the voluntary ceilings — the Supreme Court has ruled mandatory lids unconstitutional — the bill would qualify House candidates for up to $200,000 in public funds and Senate candidates for between $300,000 and $1.4 million.

However, lacking the votes, Democrats included no funding provisions in the bill, saying a new Congress can do that in 1993 after the election. Ideas include removing the tax deductibility of corporations' lobbying expenses, imposing a tax on political action committees or a new voluntary checkoff on income tax returns similar to the one that finances presidential elections.

Under the bill, House candidates could raise only one-third and Senate candidates only 20 percent of their total funds from PACs. In addition, House members could accept only up to $200,000 in individual donations above $200.

Outlawed would be funds that the two parties raise — usually in amounts of $25,000 to $100,000 — in "bundled" contributions from officials of the same company, unions and wealthy individuals outside the system regulated by the Federal Election Commission.

President Bush on Tuesday hosted the biggest political fund-raiser in history, a glittering dinner that brought in $9 million as contributors paid top dollar to rub elbows with the administration's elite.

The minimum contribution for the President's Dinner was $1,500 per person but the size of the donations ranged up to $400,000 from one executive.

Bush told the crowd of some 4,000 well-heeled Republicans that he has "learned a lot in this campaign. I know better than I did the depth of the cares and concerns of those who chose to support us and of those who didn't."

Presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater defended the dinner's promise of special access to Bush and other key officials for the top contributors.

"We don't believe it's buying influence, but it certainly ... it's buying access to the system, yes," Fitzwater said. "When you contribute to the political parties and the political system, you are supporting the process in America, you're supporting the political process, you're buying into the political process as a participant."

Invitations promised those who raised more than $92,000 a private photo opportunity with Bush and top fund raisers a chance to sit at the head table with Bush or Vice President Dan Quayle.

Contributors who bought two tables were promised a private reception with Bush and his wife, Barbara, or a reception hosted by the Cabinet in addition to lunch with the Quayles and receptions with congressional leaders.

"Foremost among the contributors was Michael Kojima of International Marketing Bureau in Los Angeles. After that, it was Carl Lindner of American Financial Corp. in Cincinnati, according to latest reports to the Federal Election Commission.

A secretary who answered the phone at the Wilshire Boulevard address that Kojima listed said he rents an office there from the law firm of Cummings and Pantaleo which represents him, but that he never comes into the office.

"We haven't heard from him in six months," said Lil Vasquez, who said that as a secretary for the law firm, she takes messages for Kojima. She said she did not know the nature of his business.

Kojima was on the guest list for a Wednesday afternoon reception with Bush at the White House. At the dinner, Kojima was seated at the head table along with the president and Mrs. Bush.

The receipts included large amounts from corporate sources that are barred by law from contributing directly to candidates. They may legally give money to so-called party building activities, such as voter turnout efforts and Republican bumper stickers.

House Democrats to decide on compliance with subpoena

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, caught between privacy concerns and public perception of a coverup, must decide whether to fully comply with a Justice Department subpoena for records from the chamber's bank.

Republican leaders headed off a revolt by their members Tuesday and took a position in favor of full cooperation. Anything less, they said, would make it appear there's something to hide.

The Democrats were meeting today to decide their next move in the check overdraft scandal that has now shifted from an internal ethics probe to a special counsel's criminal investigation.

"You never have the police go to a bank and issue a subpoena for all records of all depositors. They would be run out of town," said Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., who opposes giving special counsel Malcolm R. Wilkey his sweeping request for records of member checks.

But such a position would leave Democrats open to criticism similar to that raised Tuesday by Rep. Thomas J. Bliley Jr., R-Va.

"The House cannot at this time hide behind a technicality," he said in a floor speech. "The public will perceive it as nothing but a coverup. We on this side of the aisle, the Republicans, will support full cooperation..."

Wilkey subpoenaed bank records that include checks written by members with no overdrafts — as well as those who wrote hundreds of them — during a 39-month period ending last Oct. 3.

Democratic leaders say the records of the 170 members with no overdrafts should be excluded on privacy grounds.

After a leadership meeting Tuesday, the office of House Speaker Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash., issued a statement saying: "On a personal basis, the speaker indicated that the concerns he raised in his April 24 (letter) to all members of the House remain, but he believes the matter will be resolved by Thursday ...."

Foley's letter called Wilkey's request "sweeping and unprecedented."

The House ethics committee reported that 325 past and present members wrote more than 24,000 overdrafts at the now-closed bank and 22 of them abused their banking privileges.

The Democrats' dilemma is similar to that of a month ago. The leadership first supported an initial ethics committee decision to release only the names of those who abused the House bank — 24 lawmakers at the time, a number reduced to 22 after appeals.

But once Republicans decided that all names should be released, the Democrats — facing GOP cries of a coverup — repudiated their leaders. The House voted 426-0 for full disclosure.

Bush must sell Russian aid package

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush, with lobbying assistance from a top Russian official, won critical international backing for a $24 billion aid package to Russia. Now he must sell it to a wary Congress.

Foreign aid is not popular in Congress this election year. And on top of that, some lawmakers fear that the Russian economy is in such a mess that any aid extended now will be wasted.

Since Bush unveiled his aid package a month ago, Secretary of State James A. Baker III has made several sales trips to Congress. One of the key architects of the plan, Treasury Undersecretary David Mulford, was appearing today before a House Banking subcommittee to provide details about where the package stands following a series of international finance meetings.

The key vote in Congress will come on an administration request to boost the resources the International Monetary Fund has to make loans by $60 billion. The United States, whose share of that amount is $12 billion, is the only major country that has yet to approve the increase.

The administration lost a vote on the issue last year in the House but hopes to prevail this time around by tying the increase in IMF resources to Americans' self-interests in insuring a politically stable Russia with its still sizable nuclear arsenal.

In addition, the administration has been insisting that the $12 billion has no direct impact on the budget deficit because it does not require any direct outlay of funds. Rather, it basically is a pledge to supply the money should the IMF ever face extensive defaults on its loans.

Both the IMF and its sister lending organization, the World Bank, on Tuesday completed a historic spring meeting during which they approved full membership for Russia and most of the other former Soviet republics.

That approval followed a commitment by the world's seven richest countries — the United States, Germany, Japan, Britain, France, Canada and Italy — to support $24 billion in assistance to Russia this year.

Yegor Gaidar, Russia's deputy prime minister and the key architect of the economic reform program, personally lobbied both the Group of Seven nations and officials at the IMF and World Bank on behalf of President Boris Yeltsin's government.

Before flying home to Moscow today, Gaidar had one last round of meetings scheduled with IMF Managing Director Michel Camdessus and a group of American opinion leaders.

With the membership approvals this week, all that is left before the former communist countries can take their seats at capitalism's premier clubs is authorization from their parliaments. That is expected to begin quickly.

The IMF must approve a Russian economic reform program before the billions of dollars in Western assistance is provided. An IMF team will be in Moscow on May 4 to begin the negotiations. But already, Yeltsin is letting it be known that the bargaining could be contentious.

"We do not intend to work under the direct orders of the IMF," he said in an interview Tuesday. "We do not agree completely with this organization's viewpoint, and we will stick to our point of view."

Gaidar later said that what Yeltsin meant was that Russia would be pursuing the same economic reform program regardless of what the IMF said.

The $24 billion assistance package includes $18 billion for humanitarian aid, direct loans, loan guarantees and postponement of debt payments. In addition, the finance officials gave approval for establishment of a $6 billion fund to make the ruble convertible on world currency markets.

Gaidar said his government wanted to establish a single exchange rate for the ruble starting on July 1, a key first step.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Georgy Matyukhin, the president of Russia's central bank, said he believed the July 1 date was achievable. But he said it was not likely that the Russians would ask for the stabilization fund to begin operating until the final three months of the year.

Court asked to open arts grant hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge is being asked to order the National Endowment for the Arts to let the media and public attend meetings this week where grant applications are to be reviewed.

The Washington Post, The New York Times and The Philadelphia Inquirer filed suit last week contending the meetings, scheduled for Thursday, are required to be open under federal law.

U.S. District Judge Norma Holloway Johnson said she planned to rule on the matter today.

At issue are working groups of the National Council for the Arts, which advises the NEA on grant applications. The full council's open meetings are scheduled for Friday and Saturday, while the working groups plan to meet a day earlier.

The newspapers' lawyer, Patrick J. Carome, told the judge during a hearing Tuesday the working groups "played an absolutely integral role in affecting the nature of the deliberations" at the council's meetings in January.

Fresh fruit, hot chocolate and blueberry muffins complete this special breakfast

NEW YORK (AP) — Mother's Day breakfast doesn't have to be scrambled eggs, burnt toast and undercooked bacon.

Treat mom to Belgian waffles with fresh strawberry topping, a creamy omelete overflowing with ham and vegetables, or a moist slice of sour cream coffeecake.

Sound impossible? These recipes aren't as difficult to make as you might think. Take it from Sarah and Zachary Williamson.

"Even though mothers love everything their children do for them," they explain in their "Kids Cook!" cookbook, "we still try our very best to make this day special for her by starting it off with a real treat."

Their 157-page soft-cover book (Williamson Publishing, Charlotte, Vt.; $12.95) includes a Mother's Day menu with fresh fruit cup, blueberry muffins and a pot of hot chocolate. But young chefs can choose other recipes in the book, too, including waffles, coffeekakes, omeletes, muffins and cinnamon toast.

Seventeen-year-old Sarah and 14-year-old Zachary were hired by their parents to write the cookbook. They spent the past summer testing recipes.

The result is a collection of 150 recipes that includes Wayne and Garth Party Mix, Zach's Hot Dogs with the Works, Easy Green Bean Casserole and Easy Pasta with a Creamy Cheese Sauce.

The cookbook also contains nutrition notes, kitchen safety tips, food trivia and cooking tips.

Blueberry Muffins

- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/4 cup oil
- 1 1/2 cups flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup blueberries

For the topping:

- 1/2 cup sugar
  - 1-3rd cup flour
  - 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
  - 1/4 cup margarine, softened
- Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Grease the bottom of muffin cups or use paper liners. In a large bowl, beat the egg with a fork. Add the milk and oil; continue to stir. Next, add all of the dry ingredients. Mix the batter well, but be sure not to overmix. Carefully fold in the blueberries.

In a separate bowl, combine the topping ingredients. Mix until crumbly. This works best if you use your hands.

Fill each muffin cup about two-thirds full of batter. Sprinkle each muffin with about a tablespoon of the topping. Bake in a 400-degree F oven for 20 minutes, or until the muffins are plump and golden brown. Serve with butter. Makes 10 to 12 muffins.

Vegetable stew with cornbread crust

Potato-vegetable stew for two has cornmeal crust for its topping.

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

We usually think of a stew as being a combination of meat, fish or chicken and vegetables.

However, an all vegetable stew holds its own without relying on the other ingredients. One that is particularly appealing is a mixture of potatoes, carrots, broccoli, squash and hominy. It is well-seasoned with ground cumin, basil and oregano, which bring out the vegetables' flavors.

What's more, it is topped with a cornmeal crust. Such a crust became popular in restaurants in the late '80s and has not lost its popularity as peasant-style foods continue to gain a following with a generation that grew up on fast-food burgers, fish sticks and chicken nuggets.

This stew is a filling supper for two. Serve with a favorite dessert, a green salad or a fruit salad topped with nonfat yogurt.

Cornmeal-Topped Stew

- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 medium onion, coarsely chopped
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 teaspoon each ground cumin and dried basil
- 1/2 teaspoon dried oregano
- 1 cup chicken bouillon
- 2 medium potatoes, sliced
- 1 medium carrot, sliced
- 1/2 cup broccoli flowerettes
- 1 1/2 cup winter squash, peeled and cubed; or zucchini, cubed salt and pepper, to taste
- 1 - 1 1/2-ounce can hominy, drained

Cornmeal Crust (recipe follows)

In 2-quart saucepan, melt butter over low heat; add onion, garlic and herbs. Cover; cook 5 minutes. Add bouillon and vegetables; simmer, covered, 5 minutes.

Transfer to a 1 1/2-quart round casserole. Cover with Cornmeal Crust; press edges with fork to seal. Bake in 350-degree oven 20 minutes or until crust is golden brown. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 2 servings.

Cornmeal Crust: In bowl, combine 1 cup buttermilk baking mix, 2 tablespoons cornmeal and 1/3 cup milk. Mix with fork until just blended. On lightly floured surface, form into a ball, kneading gently. Flatten, press into circle to fit top of casserole.

Tiny pasta makes a tasty pork stuffing

By NANCY BYAL, Food Editor
Better Homes & Gardens
For AP Special Features

These grilled pork chops are bursting with a surprise stuffing — one that's based on pasta. Acini de pepe (little peppercorn in Italian) is a very tiny, round pasta that cooks about twice as fast as other noodles. You'll find it in the pasta section of your supermarket.

- Honey-Orange Pork Chops
- 2 medium oranges
- 2 tablespoons honey
- 1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard
- 2 tablespoons orange marmalade
- 2 tablespoons vinegar
- 3/4 cup chicken broth
- 1/2 cup acini de pepe
- 4 green onions, thinly sliced
- 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1/2 cup finely chopped celery
- 4 pork loin rib chops, cut 1 1/4 inches thick

Peel and section the oranges over a bowl, reserving any juice. Coarsely chop the orange sections; set aside. For glaze, in a small saucepan blend honey and Dijon-style mustard. Stir in orange marmalade and vinegar. Heat and stir the mixture until the marmalade is melted. Remove from heat; set saucepan aside.

For stuffing, in a saucepan bring chicken broth to boiling; add acini de pepe, green onions and ginger. Reduce heat; simmer, uncovered, about 5 minutes or until acini de pepe is tender. Remove from heat. Fold in orange sections, 2 tablespoons reserved juice, 2 tablespoons of the honey glaze and celery.

Cut a pocket in each pork chop by cutting from the fat side almost to the bone. Spoon 2 to 3 tablespoons stuffing into each chop. Fasten pockets with a wooden pick. Fold a large sheet of foil into a double thickness; spoon on any remaining stuffing. Fold foil into a pouch; set aside.

In a covered grill arrange preheated coals around a drip pan. Test for medium heat above the pan. Place the stuffed pork chops on the grill rack over the drip pan but not over the coals. Lower the grill hood; grill for 15 minutes. Turn chops and brush with some of the honey glaze.

Place the foil packet of stuffing on the grill next to the chops. Cover and grill for 15 to 20 minutes more or until the chops are done. Brush both sides of chops with remaining honey glaze before serving. Serve chops with extra stuffing. Makes 4 servings.

Come the weekend, my family loves microwave-scrambled eggs because they turn out so light and fluffy. Mix and match the ingredient options and you'll find that almost anything goes. Be sure to mix the yolks and whites well so they cook evenly. And it's a good idea to remove the egg mixture from the microwave oven slightly sooner than you might in conventional cooking. The eggs may still be a little runny in the center, but they'll finish cooking as they stand.

Anything-Goes Scrambled Eggs

- 4 ounces bulk pork sausage or ground beef
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1 cup chopped broccoli or whole kernel corn, cooked and drained, or frozen pea pods, thawed and halved crosswise
- 6 eggs
- 1-3rd cup milk
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon dried oregano, basil, or thyme, crushed
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1 medium tomato, sliced

In a 9-inch microwave-safe pie plate crumble sausage or beef; add onion. Cover with waxed paper. Cook on 100 percent power (high) for 2 to 4 minutes or until no pink remains in meat, stirring once. Drain off fat. Stir in vegetable. Cook, covered, on high for 1 to 2 minutes or until vegetable is hot.

Simnel cake an English tradition

By DAVID ST. JOHN-GRUBB
The Culinary Institute of America

For AP Special Features
—The first Mother's Day was observed in the United States by Anna M. Jarvis, who was devoted to her mother, Mrs. Anna Reese Jarvis.

After her mother's death, Miss Jarvis launched a letter writing campaign to encourage adults not to forget their mothers. This effort led to the first celebration of Mother's Day on May 10, 1908, at a service at Andrews Methodist Church in Grafton, W.Va., and another at Wanamaker's Auditorium in Philadelphia.

Gov. William E. Glasscock soon proclaimed the second Sunday in May as Mother's Day in West Virginia, and in 1914, President Woodrow Wilson did the same for the whole country.

In England, Mothering Sunday was born of tradition rather than proclamation. It became a custom on Mid-Lent Sunday, the fourth Sunday of Lent, to return to the church where one was baptized. This quite often meant a journey back to the parental homestead. It evolved that an edible gift should be presented to mothers by their returning children. A cinnamon, fruit and nut-flavored Simnel Cake was the usual choice.

For mothers everywhere, a Simnel Cake on Mother's Day would surely be appreciated. The following recipe makes two cakes.

Simnel Cake

- 5 cups all-purpose flour, plus additional as needed to prepare the pan
- 1/2 cup butter, plus additional as needed to grease pan
- 1/2 cup lard
- 2 cups sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 1/2 cups sliced almonds
- 4 1/2 cups dried currants
- 3/4 cup candied citrus peel
- 1 1/2 tablespoons nutmeg
- 1 1/2 tablespoons cinnamon
- 3 eggs
- 2 tablespoons milk

Preheat oven to 325 degrees F. Butter two loaf pans liberally and dust with flour; reserve.

Place flour in a large mixing bowl. Add butter and lard and work it into the flour using a pastry blender. Add remaining dry ingredients and mix well.

In a separate bowl, combine eggs and milk. Add liquid to dry ingredients; mix until dough is moistened. Divide dough, shape into loaves and place in prepared pans. Bake in a 325-degree F oven until brown, about 1 1/2 hours.

Yummy peanut butter recipe makes a big batch of cookies

By The Associated Press

Need to bake a BIG batch of cookies? The following recipes for Peanut Butter Cookies and Peanut Butter & Chocolate Squares will yield two to four dozen cookies.

The recipes for Peanut Brittle and Chocolate Pralines are designed for the microwave oven. Let the kids help with the peanut brittle. They'll enjoy breaking the candy into bite-size pieces — and sampling the rewards of their work.

Peanut Butter Cookies

- 3/4 cup margarine or butter, softened
- 2-3rds cup granulated sugar
- 2-3rds cup brown sugar, packed
- 2-3rds cup peanut butter
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 and 2-3rds cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 3 to 4 tablespoons sugar

Combine margarine or butter, granulated sugar and brown sugar in a mixing bowl; beat until creamy. Stir in peanut butter, egg and vanilla; mixing until well combined. Stir in flour and baking soda; mix well. Shape dough into 1-inch balls, then roll in sugar, coating thoroughly. Place 2 inches apart on ungreased baking sheets. Bake in a 350-degree F oven for 10 to 12 minutes or until golden. Remove from baking sheets; make crosshatch marks with fork; cool on wire racks. Makes about 4 dozen cookies.

Peanut Butter & Chocolate Squares

- 1 and 1-3rd cups smooth or crunchy peanut butter
- 2-3rds cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 2 egg whites
- 1 1/4 cups chopped walnuts
- Five milk chocolate bars (1.65 ounces each)

Preheat oven to 325 degrees F. In a medium mixing bowl, combine peanut butter, sugar, flour and egg whites; stir in 3/4 cup of the walnuts. Spread mixture in a lightly greased 9- by 13-inch pan. Bake in a 325-degree F oven for 10 to 12 minutes or until lightly browned along the edges. Meanwhile, break chocolate into 1- to 2-inch pieces. Remove cookies from oven; immediately place chocolate on top of cookies. Return to oven and cook 1 more minute. Remove from oven; spread melted chocolate over tops of the cookies and then sprinkle with the remaining 1/2 cup walnuts. Cut into squares while warm. Makes 2 dozen bar cookies.

Microwave Chocolate Pralines

- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1 cup light brown sugar
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 ounces unsweetened chocolate, broken into quarters
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 cup chopped pecans
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract

In a 3-quart microwave-safe bowl, combine the granulated sugar and light brown sugar, milk and salt. Cover with waxed paper and cook on high (100 percent power) for 5 minutes. Add the chocolate, butter and pecans, stirring well until chocolate melts.

Cook uncovered on high 4 to 6 more minutes or until mixture reaches the soft-ball stage (indicated when a small amount of the hot syrup dropped into ice water forms a ball and retains its shape when picked up). Allow to cool for 10 minutes. Stir in vanilla. Beat mixture 1 to 2 minutes or just until it thickens slightly. Using a teaspoon, drop the mixture onto waxed paper. If it becomes too thick, stir in a little hot water. Makes about 1 pound.

Fast & Easy Microwave Peanut Brittle

- 1 cup granulated sugar
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 2 tablespoons water
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 1 1/4 cups Spanish peanuts
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon baking soda

In a 2 1/2-quart, microwave-safe mixing bowl combine sugar, corn syrup, water and salt; stir well. Cook uncovered on high (100 percent power) for 5 minutes. Stir in peanuts and cook uncovered 3 to 5 minutes until syrup reaches the hard crack stage and is lightly golden in color. (The hard crack stage is achieved when a little candy syrup dropped into ice water separates into hard, brittle threads.) Remove from the microwave oven; stir in butter or margarine and baking soda. Pour mixture onto an oiled baking sheet, spreading to a 1/4-inch thickness. When cool, break into pieces and store in airtight container. Makes 1 pound.

Host's opinion of couple is tarnished by missing silver

DEAR ABBY: I would like your suggestions about a problem that others may have encountered.

I recently entertained a group of friends for dinner at my home. I used my best sterling silver and crystal. Cleaning up afterward, I discovered that a sterling silver salad fork was missing. I looked through my garbage to make sure I had not accidentally discarded it. It was nowhere to be found.

This is the second time this has happened. Checking earlier guest lists, I found one couple had been present both times (the only times they have been my guests).

The silver pattern has long been discontinued and I cannot replace the lost pieces. Also, my silver is of immense sentimental value, because it was inherited from my mother, who received it as a wedding gift many years ago.

What do you (or your readers) suggest I do in order to recover the pieces I have lost?

UPSET GENTLEMAN HOST

DEAR UPSET: Making a blatant accusation is out of the question — unless you are prepared to charge the suspects with thievery and have the police (armed with a search warrant) attempt to retrieve the missing forks.

If I were you, I would adjust to the loss, put it out of my mind — and not invite this couple again.

DEAR ABBY: I almost lost my home and, possibly, my family last night — and I would like to make sure no one else makes the same mistake I did.

Because my kitchen is small, I used my oven as an extra storage area. I kept several items (some of them made of plastic) stored in the oven when it was not in use. Last night, my husband accidentally turned the oven on, not realizing that there was anything in it. When he smelled smoke, he opened the oven door and flames burst out at him! Had it not been for the fire extinguisher, we would have lost the house.

Abby, please pass this lesson on to your readers. If you don't have a fire extinguisher in your kitchen — get one today, and check it every couple of months. You never know.

Club News

El Progresso Club met April 21 at the Pampa Country Club with Pat Youngblood as hostess. President Julia Dawkins chaired the meeting.

Youngblood introduced Dolores Cross who related events in the life of her grandmother, Mary Margaret Webb Turner. Cross displayed selected objects from her grandmother's trunk.

The next meeting will be April 28 at the Club Biarritz.

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

when it might save your home — and maybe your life.

ALMOST LOST IT ALL IN HAWAII

DEAR ALMOST: Thank you for the warning. You were very lucky. An equally important suggestion would be: Never store anything in an oven!

DEAR ABBY: I would like to share a well-kept secret among medical professionals. It took an unwanted pregnancy and an abortion clinic for my daughter to learn this. We have since mentioned it to several women who were at first shocked. Then they'd nod knowingly and say, "That's how I got pregnant!"

Since women seem to be prone to bladder infections, which are treated with antibiotics, it's important that they know that certain antibiotics cancel out the birth control pill. I cannot understand why more physicians do not inform their patients of this, but, maybe, through you, I can save someone else the pain of an unwanted pregnancy.

TOO LITTLE KNOWLEDGE,
TOO LATE

DEAR TOO LITTLE, TOO LATE: I checked it out with Dave

Powells, my friendly pharmacist, and was shocked that his response was, "Yes, and tetracycline is one of the drugs." And when I asked him if that information is printed on the package, he said it's mentioned on the package insert.

What teen-agers need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS and getting along with their peers and parents is now in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. ## Girl Scouts attend science workshop Girl Scout Troop #32 recently attended a Science Spectrum camp-in at Lubbock. The theme of the event was Discover the Frontiers of Science.

Attending the workshop were Hollie Logue, Kendra Ray, Michelle Sturgill, Angie Turpin and leader, Jo Logue.

The Scouts participated in several hands-on workshops including mazes, where they designed and built a mouse size maze complete with running of the mouse.

During cabbage chemistry, they mixed various household liquids to determine acid base. The sinkers and floaters project enabled the campers to determine how to use math and science to determine how many pennies a foil boat will hold.

Other areas of study included topology and plant diversity.

Ewing sparks Knicks past Pistons

By The Associated Press

After all the pushing and shoving, the banging and bumping, Patrick Ewing was just too much for the Detroit Pistons.

Ewing scored 12 of his 32 points in the fourth quarter and added four more in overtime to lead New York to a 90-87 win over the Pistons at The Palace, giving the Knicks a 2-1 lead in their first-round playoff series.

In a game that featured a first-period skirmish and often looked more like Roller Derby than basketball, Ewing hit the game-tying shot with 13.4 seconds left in regulation, then followed John Starks' overtime-opening 3-pointer with a pair of baskets that kept the Knicks ahead.

"I got off to a slow start," said Ewing, who scored just eight points in the first half. "But I was doing other things. I was rebounding, blocking shots."

He and Xavier McDaniel each had 13 rebounds as New York won the battle of the boards for the third straight game, 49-43.

In other playoff action, New Jersey stayed alive with a 109-104 victory over Cleveland, which still leads that series 2-1. Seattle took a 2-1 lead over Golden State by edging the Warriors 129-128 and the Los Angeles Clippers stayed alive by beating Utah 98-88.

Three other series resume Wednesday night: Chicago is at Miami, Portland visits the Los Angeles Lakers and Phoenix is at San Antonio.

Knicks 90, Pistons 87

The Knicks blew a nine-point third-quarter lead, then made up a three-point deficit in the final minute, tying the game on Ewing's turnaround jumper in the lane. The Pistons held for the last shot, but Isaiah Thomas was forced into a desperation hook shot that missed badly.

Starks' 3-pointer to begin the overtime gave the Knicks a lead they never lost — not that Detroit didn't have chances.

Thomas, held to only six points, missed a jumper in the lane and Dennis Rodman was called for a foul with 14.3 seconds left. But Joe Dumars picked off Charles Oakley's inbound pass and called time with 13 seconds remaining and New York ahead 88-87.

When play resumed, Dumars' pass for Thomas was picked off by Mark Jackson, who drew a foul from Thomas and made both free throws. Bill Laimbeer's desperation 3-pointer missed as time ran out.

"It was obviously a game of all games," Knicks' coach Pat Riley said. "I think from here on out, that's what you're going to see. It was joyful, painful, exhilarating, and I'm glad it went our way."

NBA playoffs

John Salley scored 20 points for Detroit and Rodman got 14 rebounds for Detroit, which hosts Game 4 on Friday night.

Nets 109, Cavaliers 104

The Nets erased a major playoff negative, winning a postseason game for the first time in 11 tries since 1984 when Drazen Petrovic and Derrick Coleman led a fourth-quarter rally that overcame a 10-point deficit.

"We haven't had that much playoff experience and haven't been in the hunt," Nets forward Chris Morris said. "It's a compliment to us that we won. We have a long way to go and we're not finished yet."

The Nets, whose 7-for-11 shooting from 3-point range overcame a 27-6 deficit at the free-throw line, fell behind 92-82 midway through the fourth quarter before rallying.

Petrovic scored 9 of his 20 points and Coleman had 8 of his 22 during a game-closing 27-12 run. Morris, who hit 12 of 14 shots, finished with 28 points but did not take a shot in the fourth quarter.

Larry Nance had 28 points and 14 rebounds, Mark Price scored 19 points and John Williams 18 for the Cavaliers, trying to win their first playoff series since 1976. Brad Daugherty, averaging 34.5 in the first two games, was limited to 14.

Game 4 is at the Meadowlands on Thursday night.

Clippers 98, Jazz 88

Doc Rivers scored all 15 of his points in the second half as Los Angeles, making its first playoff appearance in 16 years, shut down Utah's big guns to stay alive.

The Clippers held Utah's Karl Malone, who had 32 points in each of the first two games, to 22 and 10 rebounds to force Game 4. Jeff Malone, who had 53 points in the first two games, scored only 11, and John Stockton, who had 40 assists in the first two games, had 13 to go with 20 points.

Danny Manning led the Clippers with 17 points. Ron Harper had 16 points and 12 rebounds, Charles Smith had 12 points before fouling out with 4:23 remaining, and Ken Norman had 10 points and 10 rebounds.

"We found out it's OK to play physical and tough," Clippers coach Larry Brown said. "We didn't back down or let up. I don't know if we'll win the series, but it's nice to see this type of play."

Sonics 129, Warriors 128

Shawn Kemp's two free throws with 6.1 seconds left gave Seattle

a victory at home over Golden State and a 2-1 lead in their series.

After Billy Owens' spinning layup with 7.5 seconds left gave the Warriors a 128-127 lead, Kemp drove to the basket, was fouled by Tim Hardway and made both free throws to put Seattle ahead. Golden State couldn't get off a last shot.

Derrick McKay led Seattle with 27 points and Marcilunions topped the Warriors with 27, one more than Hardaway. Kemp had 22 points, including Seattle's last nine in the final 2:16. Ricky Pierce had 21 points and Eddie Johnson added 19.

The SuperSonics can wrap up the series at home on Thursday night.

Blackhawks, Oilers advance in National Hockey League playoffs

By The Associated Press

The Chicago Blackhawks and Edmonton Oilers moved on in the NHL playoffs. The Detroit Red Wings and Vancouver Canucks got even.

The Blackhawks defeated the St. Louis Blues 2-1 Tuesday night to advance to the finals of the Norris Division playoffs. The Oilers, meanwhile, stopped the Los Angeles Kings 3-0 to move into the Smythe finals.

The Blackhawks will play the winner of the Minnesota-Detroit series, which was tied 3-3 following the Red Wings' 1-0 overtime victory on Tuesday night.

The Oilers will play for the Smythe championship against the winner of the Vancouver-Winnipeg series, which was tied 3-3 after the Canucks routed the Jets 8-3.

The playoffs continue Wednesday night with action in the Patrick and Adams divisions.

In the Patrick, the New York Rangers visit New Jersey and Washington is at Pittsburgh with both visiting teams holding 3-2 leads. In the Adams, Boston hopes to close out its series at Buffalo while Montreal hopes to do the same at Hartford.

Norris Division

Blackhawks 2, Blues 1

Jeremy Roenick scored both of his team's goals as the Blackhawks wrapped up their first-round series.

The Blackhawks won three straight to take the series four games to two and have won seven of eight playoff series against St. Louis. The only time the Blues beat the Blackhawks was in 1988, Brian Sutter's final season as a player. Reports have indicated Sutter, in his fourth season as coach and the NHL coach of the year last season, will be fired after the season. He has a year to go on a two-year contract extension.

Roenick, who was second in the league with 53 goals, got his third and fourth of the playoffs. His second goal was his first at even strength since March 5 and gave the Blackhawks a 2-0 lead at 7:54 of the second period.

Nelson Emerson scored his third goal of the playoffs for the Blues.

Red Wings 1, North Stars 0 (OT)

The Red Wings forced a seventh game in the Norris Division semifinals, using Sergei Fedorov's disputed goal 16:13 into overtime and Tim Cheveldae's second successive shutout to beat the North Stars.

By winning Thursday night in Detroit, the Red Wings can become only the ninth team in NHL history to win a series after falling behind 3-1.

Fedorov carried the puck into

Minnesota's zone, skated around defenseman Chris Dahquist and wristed the puck over Jon Casey's right shoulder. The puck hit the back of the net and came out so quickly that even Fedorov wasn't sure he scored.

Moments later, referee Rob Shick stopped play and series supervisor Wally Harris ordered a replay check. Replays undisputedly showed that the puck was in. When the official call was made and the Red Wings lifted their sticks in celebration, the crowd at Met Center littered the ice with debris.

Cheveldae bested Casey in the goaltending battle, making 34 saves to continue his comeback from a poor first four games. Casey stopped 33 shots.

Smythe Division

Oilers 3, Kings 0

The Oilers' present put their past to rest as they won their Smythe Division semifinal series from the Kings in six games.

Bill Ranford stopped 26 shots as the Oilers ousted the Wayne Gretzky-led Kings, whose roster includes five members of Edmonton's Stanley Cup dynasty of the 1980s, for the third straight year.

While Ranford and the Oilers' checkers shut down Gretzky, rookie Josef Berenak and Joe Murphy gave Edmonton a 2-0 lead after one period. Berenak beat Kelly Hrudey just 1:39 into the game and Murphy connected at 17:13.

Martin Gelinac, who came to the Oilers in the trade that sent Gretzky to Los Angeles four years ago, got the third goal 2:41 into the second period.

It was the fifth time in seven playoff meetings that the Oilers have beaten the Kings. Edmonton has won three straight series from the Kings after losing in seven games in 1989, Gretzky's first season in L.A.

Canucks 8, Jets 3

The Canucks, led by Pavel Bure's three goals, forced a seventh game in their Smythe Division series with Winnipeg by overpowering the Jets.

The Canucks, who trailed 3-1 in the series, took the crowd out of the game by the midpoint of the first period and ran up a 5-1 lead before the 12-minute mark of the second.

Cliff Ronning and Tom Fergus each added two goals for the Canucks. Trevor Linden scored for Vancouver, which whipped the Jets 8-2 in the fifth game on Sunday and will host Game 7 on Thursday.

Keith Tkachuk scored twice and Pat Elynuik had the other goal for Winnipeg.

Pampa High girls compete in regional qualifiers meet

The Pampa High girls' track team participated in a regional qualifiers meet last weekend at Randal High.

Pampa's 1600-meter relay team of Candi Atwood, Betrice Jackson, Elisha Calloway and Christy Jones was clocked at 4:07.5 to take first. Coming in second was Canyon with a 4:10.8.

Shanna Molitor was second in the 100 (12.15). Nikki Ryan was third in the long jump (17-0) and Bridgett Mathis was third in the 200 (26.95).

Pampa's 400 and 800-meter relay teams both placed second.

The PHS girls scored 166 points to win the District 1-4A championship two weeks ago.

All three of Pampa's relay teams qualified for regionals, plus Kelly Haines in the discus, Nikki Ryan, long jump and triple jump; Shanna Molitor, 100; Betrice Jackson, 400; Bridgett Mathis, 200, and Marcy Leal, 3200.

Pampa has one lone regional qualifier in the boys' division. Andy Cavalier was second in the triple jump at the district meet.

Controversy continues in America's Cup race

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The international jury governing the America's Cup challenger trials issued a revised rules interpretation late Monday that did nothing to clear up the controversy over New Zealand's use of a bowsprit.

The jury felt it resolved the hotly debated, highly technical issue. But the Kiwis and the America's Cup Organizing Committee say it did not.

"I'm upset as hell," Il Moro di Venezia skipper Paul Cayard said on Tuesday. He believes New Zealand gains a significant advantage by setting its gennaker sail from a bowsprit — a large, tapered spar extending from the bow.

"Some inconsistencies remain," agreed ACOC executive vice president Tom Ehman.

Cayard has disputed the Kiwis' use of the bowsprit since his first race against New Zealand on Jan. 29.

Saturday's race, won by New Zealand, was later annulled by the jury after Cayard claimed the Kiwis used their bowsprit illegally when making a downwind course change, called a jibe.

Harvester golfers advance to state

SAN ANGELO — The Pampa High boys' golf team fired a 323 Tuesday at regionals to win the second round and qualify for the Class 4A state tournament.

The Harvesters shot a two-round total of 637 to place second behind Andrews' 618. Andrews is the defending state champion.

Jay Earp and Brandon Brashears each shot a 79 Tuesday to lead a Pampa rally. The Harvesters were fifth after the opening round of play Monday at the Bentwood Country Club.

For the two rounds, Earp finished as the leading Harvester golfer with a 156. Cory Stone had a two-round total of 159, followed by Brandon Brashears, 160; Mike Largin, 163, and Ryan Handley, 170.

Medalist honors went to Brownwood's Seth Thornton, who shot a 148, defeating Andrews' Chad Campbell in a playoff.

Borger placed third in the team standings with a 640. Monahans was fourth at 644, followed by Brownwood, 647; Fort Worth Arlington Heights, 651; Justin Northwest, 659; Lamesa, 670; Granbury, 675; Snyder, 691; Burk Burnett, 721 and Fort Worth Brewster, 769.

Andrews also won the girls' division with a 695. Hereford was second with a 730. Borger was third at 755, followed by Monahans, 763; Burk Burnett, 773; Justin Northwest, 787; Snyder, 798; Stephenville, 809; Brownwood, 845; Lamesa, 857; Fort Worth Boswell, 1,012 and Fort Worth Arlington Heights, no team score.

Andrews' Lisa McQuatters was medalist with a 163. Brownwood's Melissa Asham was second with a 165.

The top two teams and individuals advance to the state tournament next month in Austin.

Arazi could be challenged by A.P. Indy in Derby

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Arazi or no Arazi, Neil Drysdale is shooting for No. 1 in the Kentucky Derby with A.P. Indy.

"To win the race, you have to beat Arazi," Drysdale said. "But I'd want to win this race whether Arazi was in it or not."

A.P. Indy, the Santa Anita Derby winner who has won five of six lifetime starts, likely will go off the second choice to Arazi on Saturday in the 1 1/4-mile Derby.

"Arazi is a good horse, but I'm very pleased with the way A.P. Indy is coming up to this race. He couldn't be any better," Drysdale said.

Arazi became the horse to beat last Nov. 2 when he ran away with the Breeders' Cup Juvenile at Churchill Downs in his only U.S. start. Although Kentucky-bred, each of his other races has been in France.

Arazi arrived in the United States on Sunday, spent Monday in quarantine and came over to his stable on the Downs backstretch Tuesday morning. He entered one mile.

"He's grown now, he's better, and he's matured," said Fabien Gerard, an assistant to trainer Francois Boutin.

Asked if Arazi truly had wings, Gerard smiled and replied through an interpreter: "He doesn't need any. He has a good engine."

As Arazi's chief American competition, A.P. Indy will be joined by Florida Derby winner Technology and Arkansas Derby winner Pine Bluff. Another threat, however, looms from the other side of the Atlantic.

Dr Devious, an Irish-bred purchased as a birthday present for her husband last March by weight-loss queen Jenny Craig for $2.5 million, is trained by Hall of Famer Ron McAnally and should receive some attention from bettors. He's won four of seven starts, all in England.

"I think he deserves to be the third choice," McAnally said. Outside of Arazi and A.P. Indy, McAnally said he wasn't particularly impressed with the field.

A.P. Indy, who will be ridden by Eddie Delahoussaye, hasn't lost since his maiden outing last Aug. 24. His five-race winning streak includes victories in three graded stakes, his last on April 4 at Santa Anita.

Neither A.P. Indy nor Technology was among the field that Arazi beat in the Breeders' Cup.

Drysdale calls A.P. Indy a "very intelligent horse" with smooth acceleration. The knock on his running style is that he carries his head low.

"I've seen quite a few horses run with low heads," Drysdale said. "I think horses extend better when they have low head carriage."

Drysdale also said he didn't think A.P. Indy's hanging head would impair his vision in what is expected to be a large field of 19, who will be entered on Thursday.

"It really has no bearing on his vision," Drysdale said.

A.P. Indy is owned by Tomonori Tsurumaki, a Japanese land developer who paid $2.9 million for him at the 1990 Keeneland July Selected Yearling Sale. He is a half brother of 1990 Preakness winner Summer Squall, both born of the same dam, Weekend Surprise. A.P. Indy's sire was 1977 Triple Crown winner Seattle Slew.

The A.P. in his name stands for Auto Polis, a leisure center that Tsurumaki owns in Japan. The Indy half is for the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, reflecting Tsurumaki's enthusiasm for auto racing.

A.P. Indy worked six furlongs in 1:15 on Monday, and four more potential Derby horses worked Tuesday at Churchill Downs.

Pine Bluff, who was seventh in Arazi's Juvenile victory, went a quick 47 2-5 for a half mile, and trainer Tom Bohannon pronounced him ready to take on Arazi.

"The French horse has got to be on everybody's mind," Bohannon said, "but he's running against some horses that have developed a lot. These are not the same horses he beat last year."

Casual Lies, third in the Santa Anita Derby, the lightly raced Disposal and Al Sabin all worked five-eighths of a mile. Casual Lies worked in 1:00, erasing any last-minute doubts of trainer Shelley Riley, and Disposal went in a pokey 1:04 4-5. Al Sabin worked in 1:01 3-5 after arriving late Monday from New York.

"I thought he did well considering he was just off the plane," trainer D. Wayne Lukas said.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Arazi is getting better, his handlers say, and that makes him more than just a super horse.

"He's incredible," said Fabien Gerard, assistant to trainer Francois Boutin. "He's grown now. He's better. He's matured."

Arazi, the French-based winner of the Breeders' Cup Juvenile last Nov. 2, moved over to the main stable area at Churchill Downs Tuesday after spending Monday in quarantine.

He cantered one mile under exercise rider Raymond Lamornaca, and Gerard said Arazi's schedule for the rest of the week would be determined by Boutin when he takes over training today.

Tuesday was more like picture day at Yankee Stadium than like a real workout. Everywhere Arazi went, he was surrounded by reporters, photographers and onlookers.

PHS blanks Caprock

Pampa shut out Caprock, 2-0, Tuesday in the semi-finals of the boys' district soccer tournament being held in Amarillo.

Todd McCavit scored on a penalty shot to give Pampa a 1-0 lead at the half.

Jason Soukup, with an assist from Ascencion Anguiano, scored his first goal of the season in the second half.

Will Winborne and Ross Johnson were other outstanding players for Pampa, said coach Scott Flynn.

Pampa, which drew a first-round bye, meets Amarillo High at 7:30 p.m. Friday for the tournament championship.

Amarillo High won the regular-season title with a 9-1 record while Pampa placed second with an 8-2 mark. Tascosa and Palo Duro finished with 5-5 records. Canyon was 2-8 and Caprock was 1-9.

"This is the first time Pampa has played for the tournament championship," Flynn said. "We're looking forward to playing in that championship game."

Pampa and Amarillo High split two games during the season.

Pampa's Will Winborne, shown in a recent match, was one of the standouts in the 2-0 win over Caprock on Tuesday.

Ripken's homer helps Orioles get past Twins

By BEN WALKER
AP Baseball Writer

Relax, all you rotisserie players who were wondering and worrying when Cal Ripken would hit a home run. He's on the board for your team, and for the Baltimore Orioles.

Ripken finally connected in his 20th game and 72nd at-bat of year, ending his longest drought at the start of a season and helping the Orioles beat the Minnesota Twins 10-5 Tuesday night.

"It feels good to get one. You never want to get to the point where you're thinking about hitting one, because then you never do," he said.

Last year, Ripken got off to a torrid start on his way to becoming the AL's Most Valuable Player. He hit .338 with five home runs and 20 RBIs in 68 at-bats in April, and went on to finish with 34 homers.

Ripken's homer and run-raising single against the Twins raised this year's totals to .264 with one home run and 10 RBIs. He's already made four errors, compared to 11 all of last season when he won his first Gold Glove.

"The one thing you can reassure yourself with is that everyone goes through something like that at some point. Still, it's no fun," Ripken said.

Ripken had never gone more than 12 games at the start of a season without a home run, and that happened just once, in 1988. He's averaged 26 home runs for the last 10 years.

"Worried?" Orioles manager Johnny Oates said. "No. I'm willing to bet you he's got 20 at the end of the year."

Next up on the hit list for rotisserie watchers is Kevin Mitchell. His 109 home runs in the last three years are the most in the majors, but so far he has zero homers in 69 at-bats for the Seattle Mariners.

In other games, Detroit downed Seattle 4-1, Boston beat Chicago 6-3, Texas topped New York 1-0, California defeated Toronto 9-5, Oakland beat Cleveland 3-1 and Kansas City defeated Milwaukee 3-2 in 11 innings.

That Ripken homered in the Metrodome was not so surprising. He's hit better there than at any ballpark, batting .374 with 13 home runs and 51 RBIs in 62 career games.

Leo Gomez, who began the night in a 1-for-19 slump, also broke out, hitting a pair of RBI doubles for the Orioles.

Mike Mussina (3-0) led 10-2 after giving up five hits in 7 1-3 innings. The Twins chased him one out later as Kirby Puckett hit a two-run homer.

"I was tired," Mussina said. "But I wasn't going to tell them, 'No, I'm done.' There's no way I'm ever going to tell them I'm tired."

Greg Gagne also hit a two-run homer for the Twins. Still, it was not enough for Scott Erickson (0-3).

AL roundup

Erickson, a 20-game winner last season, gave up five runs on seven hits in 5 1-3 innings. In five starts this year, he has a 5.10 ERA and has walked 13 and struck out nine. "We pitched very poorly," Twins manager Tom Kelly said. "All our pitchers had a bad day ... an understatement."

Tigers 4, Mariners 1

Detroit won for the first time in nine games at Tiger Stadium this season as Bill Gullickson stopped Seattle on five hits.

The Tigers had not led at any point at home this year until they went ahead with three runs in the third inning. Detroit's losing streak was its longest at home since a nine-game skid in 1975.

Gullickson (3-2) won for the sixth time in six career starts against the Mariners. He struck out three and walked two in Detroit's first complete-game victory for the Tigers this season.

Russ Swan (2-3) also pitched a complete game, allowing six hits. He struck out two and walked two.

Red Sox 6, White Sox 3

Roger Clemens lowered his ERA to 1.38 in five starts this season, stopping Chicago on one run for seven innings at Fenway Park.

Clemens (3-2) struck out nine and raised his league-leading total to 45 in 39 innings. He moved into 65th place on the career strikeout list with 1,710, passing Red Ames, Bob Veale, Jim McCormick and Larry Jackson.

Clemens allowed five hits, walked two and left with a 6-1 lead. Four Boston relievers gave up two doubles, four singles, one walk and hit a batter, and Jeff Reardon got his third save.

The Red Sox scored twice in the first inning against Kirk McCaskill (1-3) on three singles, Mike Greenwell's sacrifice fly and catcher Matt Merullo's throwing error.

Angels 9, Blue Jays 5

Lance Parrish and Gary Gaetti hit home runs for California, and Bobby Rose was hit in the head by Dave Stieb as the Angels won at the SkyDome.

Rose was beamed in the fourth inning after Parrish homered. Rose did not lose consciousness, but was taken to a hospital for overnight observation.

Dave Winfield hit two solo home runs, giving him four this season and 410 in his career. Devon White also hit a solo shot for the Blue Jays. Junior Felix and John Morris each drove in three runs for the Angels.

Chuck Finley (1-1) shut down Toronto on three hits for six innings. He has allowed seven hits in two starts this year, including five solo home runs. Stieb (0-2) lasted only four innings in his second start, giving up four runs on six hits.

Rangers 1, Yankees 0

Kevin Brown, a career 39-33 pitcher, improved to 8-1 lifetime against New York with a victory at Yankee Stadium.

Brown (4-1) gave up two singles in eight innings. He struck out three and walked three.

Kenny Rogers relieved to start the ninth and Mel Hall led off with a double. Two outs later, Jeff Russell took over and finished for his sixth save.

Tim Leary (2-1) pitched his first complete game since April 19, 1991. He allowed seven hits, but three of them came in the second inning when Kevin Reimer, Ivan Rodriguez and Al Newman singled for the only run.

Royals 3, Brewers 2

Wally Joyner led off the 11th inning with his first home run since Sept. 1, and Kansas City won at Milwaukee.

Joyner had not homered since connecting at County Stadium last season for California. His home run off Jesse Orosco (0-1) gave the Royals their second straight victory following a 1-16 start.

Neal Heaton (2-1) pitched 2 2-3 perfect innings and Jeff Montgomery went the 11th for his second save.

Athletics 3, Indians 1

Carney Lansford's two-run single with two outs in the ninth inning broke a 1-all tie and Oakland won at Cleveland.

Mike Moore (4-0) won his ninth straight decision since last Aug. 26. He got 18 outs on grounders in eight innings and Dennis Eckersley struck out the side in the ninth for his seventh save in seven tries.

Terry Steinbach drew a leadoff walk from Steve Olin (0-1) in the ninth and Willie Wilson singled for his third hit of the game. A sacrifice, an intentional walk and a force play at the plate brought up Lansford, whose single off Ted Power raised his average to .362.

Harvesters drop baseball marathon to Hereford

HEREFORD — A bases-loaded hit by Ruben Ramos in the 13th inning gave Hereford an 8-7 win over Pampa in a District 1-4A baseball game Tuesday.

Pampa had jumped out to a 6-0 lead after three innings, but Hereford rallied to score five runs in the fifth. The score was tied at 7-all at the end of the regulation seven innings.

Pampa is 11-7 for the season and 1-7 in district play. Hereford is 5-17-2 overall and 2-6 in district action.

The Harvesters jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning on an RBI double by Zach Thomas and an RBI single by Kurt West. Pampa added another run in the second on a run-scoring triple by Greg Moore.

A squeeze bunt by Chris Poole produced another run in the third. Two

Lottery prizes ain't chicken scratch

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Lottery officials are hoping Texans will take a gamble. Starting at 6 a.m. May 29, the new lottery will start with 300 million tickets up for sale, officials said Tuesday.

The scratch-off cards will be on sale for four to six weeks.

"Our first game will give away more cash this summer than any other state start up," State Comptroller John Sharp said. "We will create a new Texas millionaire every week this summer."

The $1 million winners, picked through special drawings for 12-straight weeks, will receive a cashier's check for the amount rather than monthly payments for years, he said.

"That's something no other lottery has been able to offer in its first game," Sharp said. "We are going to have nurses and doctors on hand."

"It's going to be crazy out there," said Lottery Director Nora Linares. "People are very excited about the game starting." She said many of the 14,710 retailers selling tickets may have buyers ready at the 6 a.m. start.

Officials say about 17 million tickets will be sold on opening day at more than 14,710 locations. Two million of those opening-day tickets will be winners providing $7.1 million in prizes, Ms. Linares said.

Texas is the largest state in the nation without a lottery, and officials are expecting the game to pump $461 million into state coffers for the current two-year budget cycle.

The more sophisticated, computerized lottery games are scheduled to start this fall.

So what are the odds for the buyer of a $1 "Lone Star Millions" ticket to win a prize? About one in eight.

Of the 300 million tickets, there are 37.5 million winners. Each ticket will have six scratch-off boxes. If a certain dollar amount appears three times, the ticket is a winner.

Of the winning tickets, 29.9 million are $2 prizes; 6 million are $5; 800,000 are $10; 600,000 are $20; 125,040 are $50; 30,000 are $100; 2,500 are $1,000; and 500 are $10,000.

One in 60, or 500,000 of the tickets, will have the word "entry" on it three times, which entitles the ticket holder to enter the draw for the $1 million grand prize.

Military transport plane crashes, 9 killed

LILESVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An Air Force C-130 transport plane plunged into a lake on a training mission, killing all nine people aboard, in the second fatal crash in three months of the military's workhorse aircraft.

A diver pulled one body from the sunken wreckage before the search was suspended until morning because of darkness, the Sheriff's Department said.

Witnesses said the plane circled Blewett Falls Lake for about 15 minutes before rolling over and plunging into the water sideways Tuesday night, Sheriff Tommy Allen said. The weather was cloudy but calm.

"The plane has broken up into several pieces," Allen said. "Some of it's buried in the mud. The tail section is sticking up out of the river. That's the only part of the plane that you can see."

All nine crew members were killed, said Tech. Sgt. Edward Drohan, spokesman at Pope Air Force Base near Fayetteville, where the plane was based.

New fighter jet crashes

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The only assembled prototype of an advanced jet fighter crashed and burned after bucking wildly during a test flight, dealing a setback to the $95 billion project, the Air Force says.

The pilot of the YF-22 Advanced Tactical Fighter escaped with minor injuries in the crash Saturday, officials said Tuesday.

A House Armed Services subcommittee was scheduled today to discuss purchases of the plane. The Air Force wants to buy 648 of the radar-evading YF-22s at $147 million each, or a total of $95 billion, to replace the F-15 Eagle.

Testing was to have been completed next month, and the planes were to go into operation in 2002. Because of the crash, testing won't resume until 1995, the Air Force said. One other prototype was built, but the engines were removed.

"This can't be good news for a program that's in development," said Steve Kosiak, an analyst for Washington's research group Defense Budget Project.

The cause of the crash was under investigation. No major technical problems with the YF-22 had been made public before the accident.

An Air Force videotape of the crash showed the plane bucking wildly before hitting the pavement at Edwards, main runway with its wheels retracted. The plane slid several thousand feet and burned for 90 minutes.

Built by Lockheed Corp., the jet was being tested for stress and vibration when it crashed, said

Lockheed spokesman Jeff Rhodes. Lockheed, Boeing Co. and General Dynamics Corp. are developing the aircraft under a $9.5 billion contract.

It is made of radar-absorbing stealth composites.

Slaying blamed on 2 strangers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A man who said two black men killed his wife was charged with murder after the owner of a sporting goods store recalled selling him the knife used in the attack.

Jesse Anderson, 34, of rural Cedarburg stabbed his wife, Barbara, at least 21 times before wounding himself in the chest and trying to fix the blame on imaginary assailants, police said Tuesday.

He was held in lieu of $1 million bond while waiting a Circuit Court hearing today.

Mrs. Anderson, 33, the mother of three children, died Thursday, two days after the attack.
