School board elections set for Saturday

By BEAR MILLS
Staff Writer

Voters in the Pampa Independent School District will cast ballots Saturday to decide two contested board of education positions.

In the Place 6 race, James Bradley and Chris Perez will vie for a seat currently held by Jim Duggan, who announced he will not seek re-election.

Place 7 will see incumbent Sherry McCavit meet Jerry Steed. No write-ins registered to have their votes counted, according to Election Judge Jack Bailey.

Voting is set for 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Pampa High School music building.

James Bradley, owner of Bradley Operating Co., said he supported the current board during recent "tough" decisions on equalizing enrollment at the city's six tax-supported elementary schools.

"I feel like the board has had an extremely tough task on the enrollment issue and the state mandate (of 22 to 1 student-teacher ratios) had them penned down pretty hard," Bradley said. "Under the circumstances they put into place what they felt like they had to in order to look to the future. If I was there on the board, I would have had to agree with them."

He also commented, "If I am able to get on the board, I hope to be able to fill Jim Duggan's shoes because he has worked extremely hard."

Bradley and wife Gaylene have two children in the school district and attend Faith Tabernacle Church.

Perez is vice president of Hispanos Unidos.

He is a reverse osmosis operator at Cabot's Carbon Black plant and recently gained attention for his efforts to keep Baker Elementary School open following recommendations for its closure in the 1994-95 school year.

Perez said, "I want to promote the best education possible for all children, no matter what side of town they live on."

In addition to being active in Hispanos Unidos, Perez is also a member of Briarwood Full Gospel Church, serves on the city Parks and Recreation Board and is sergeant at arms for the Moose Lodge.

"Our motto at the Moose Lodge is 'Let the Little Children Come Unto Me,'" Perez said. "We've helped different schools and handicapped kids. I really want to help kids."

Perez said by being bilingual he will be able to represent people from both English- and Spanish-speaking citizens of Pampa.

Perez and wife Jana have one child, Janée, a first grader.

McCavit, a two-term incumbent is director of Hospice of Pampa and a former classroom teacher. She and husband Jack have three children attending Pampa public schools. They are members at First United Methodist Church.

She could not be reached for comment on the race.

Place 7 race challenger Jerry Steed is a consulting geologist.

Steed said of the race, "I don't really think of myself as running against Mrs. McCavit. I just feel I have a civic duty to get involved and that we are not doing all we could to help the kids, who are the leadership of the next generation."

"If I could do one thing to help the PISD it would be to cause an awareness of the need for more parental concern and involvement."

Steed said he does not belong to numerous organizations around the city and his only active membership is at First Baptist Church.

"I will be able to dedicate the time it takes to help make our kids leaders in education instead of finishing fourth, fifth or sixth in the world," Steed said.

He said on the elementary levels there are generally an acceptable level of parental involvement, but that as children get older, parents take less of a role in their education.

"We think of our teen-agers as young adults, and they are, but they still need our guidance," he stated.

He also said efficient operation and cutting expenses rather than raising taxes are priorities.

Steed said he wants to see the PISD do everything possible to curb teen-age pregnancy and a lack of teacher support by parents.

He and wife Marilyn have three children, including a student at Pampa Middle School.

Beating verdict sparks riots

Nine are dead, 150 more hurt

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A broad swath of Los Angeles smoldered today after a night of arson, looting and gunfire that killed nine people in a convulsion of rage over the acquittal of four white policemen in the videotaped beating of a black motorist.

About 150 others were reported hurt and more than 300 arrested in the city's worst unrest since the Watts riots of 1965.

Gov. Pete Wilson declared a state of emergency and 2,000 National Guardsmen were sent to armories and other gathering points to await orders. "This is a matter to be reconciled by the courts and not on the streets," he said.

Hours after the verdict in the Rodney King case Wednesday, blacks and whites attacked police headquarters; blacks dragged motorists from their cars and beat them; and hundreds of businesses and homes were looted or burned in South Central Los Angeles, a mostly black section of roughly 7 by 15 miles.

Police with shotguns guarded firefighters as they battled some of the 300 blazes reported overnight in the nation's second-largest city.

"Guilty! Guilty! Guilty! Guilty!" young men and women chanted outside police headquarters. "No justice, no peace!"

South Central was hardest hit. But mobs also rampaged in the mostly non-residential downtown area, attacking police headquarters and City Hall and smashing cars. Smaller blazes broke out in the city's mostly white Fairfax and Westwood sections and several predominantly white San Fernando Valley communities.

Some 30 fires still blazed today as dawn revealed gutted structures, smoldering hulks of cars and trucks, and trashed stores. Acrid smoke hung over the city as officers patrolled in riot gear.

"A bunch of hooligans have gone out and looted and burned this city, much of it," Police Chief Daryl F. Gates said.

Mayor Tom Bradley ordered a dusk-to-dawn curfew in the hardest-hit area; banned the sale of ammunition within the city; and prohibited the sale of gasoline or other flammable liquids for use in anything except motor vehicles. More than 100 schools were closed today.

The National Guard hasn't been sent into Los Angeles to restore order since the Watts riots, which were set off by the arrest of a black motorist. Thirty-four people were killed and large areas burned in the six-day uprising.

President Bush said the verdict "has left us all with a deep sense of personal frustration and anguish," but he added, "It is important that we respect the law and the legal processes that have been brought to bear in this case."

Nine people were killed and two others were in grave condition, Lt. John Dunkin said. At least four of the victims were shot to death — two in a gun battle with police at a housing project, Gates said.

The dead were eight blacks and one white, all male, the coroner's office said.

Many of the 150 reported hurt had been stabbed, shot or beaten. At least four motorists were attacked at one intersection, police said. One driver was pulled from his truck, beaten bloody and robbed as he lay on the pavement.

The governor made up to 750 California Highway Patrol officers available to relieve police.

At police headquarters, the hundreds of attackers backed off when helmeted officers moved in. Several people were arrested and objects were thrown at police. Demonstrators burned U.S. flags and a parking lot kiosk.

"You guys are a joke! A big joke!" one man screamed at the officers.

Five buildings were burned at a shopping center as looters hauled armloads of food out of a supermarket.

Many of the burned stores had Korean names. Relations between Korean merchants and their black customers have been tense because of several violent incidents. One barely damaged store bore a sign declaring "Black Owned."

"The fires in many cases have been very difficult for us to get to because of the hostility in the area. We're apparently getting police assistance in every case now. ... We're maxed-out now," Fire Chief Donald Manning said.

Although the King verdict generated particular anger among blacks, violence broke out among whites and blacks alike.

"We've noticed that, in the downtown area in particular, most of those who were engaged in (violence) were young whites," the mayor said. "And in the south part of Los Angeles, blacks were involved."

The jury in suburban Simi Valley acquitted the four officers of all charges but one, deadlocking on a count of excessive force against Officer Laurence Powell. A hearing was set for May 15 on whether to retry him on that charge.

Cleared were Sgt. Stacey Koon, Officer Theodore Briseno and Timothy Wind, a rookie who was fired after the beating.

The U.S. Justice Department said today it is reviewing the case to determine whether to prosecute the four officers under federal civil rights laws. Powell, Koon and Briseno also face Police Department disciplinary hearings.

The central piece of evidence in the trial was an onlooker's videotape of the March 3, 1991, beating. It was broadcast nationally, raising racial tensions in Los Angeles and stirring a furor over police brutality.

In the video, King was seen writhing on the ground as he was kicked, shocked with a stun gun and clubbed 56 times. His leg and facial bones were broken.

Jurors saw the tape over and over at varying speeds during the nearly three-month trial and their seven days of deliberations.

"Today, this jury told the world what we all saw with our own eyes wasn't a crime," the mayor said Wednesday. "Today, that jury asked us to accept the senseless and brutal beating of a helpless man."

Officials ID $30,000-plus in stolen property

By BETH MILLER
Staff Writer

Law enforcement officials have identified more than $30,000 worth of stolen property suspected in a four-state burglary operation that was busted this week in Pampa, said Lt. Allan Smith with the Pampa Police Department.

Smith said an estimated $15,000 worth of suspected stolen property remains to be identified and collected from the bust, which occurred at 1008 E. Murphy and at a storage shed in Pampa.

A third arrest was made Wednesday in the case, Pamela Sue Campbell, 34, 222 W. Craven, was arrested at 19th and Hobart, on a Carson County warrant charging burglary of a building. She was being held this morning in Gray County Jail.

Campbell is the sister to Lloyd Wohlford, 28, 1008 E. Murphy, who was arrested Monday, along with his wife, Valerie Wohlford, also 28 and of the same residence, police said.

The Wohlforfs are each being held on two warrants out of Carson County charging burglary of a building and on a misdemeanor charge of possession of two to four ounces of marijuana.

Mr. Wohlford is also being held on a California warrant charging automobile theft.

The arrests came after information came together by the Pampa police and Gray County sheriff's deputies who had been working on the case.

Bryan Hedrick, Pampa police crime prevention officer, said an April 6 Crime Stoppers press release carried by the Pampa media was directly responsible for officers breaking the case.

"We had an informant approach us right after that," Hedrick said. "(Officers) David Lee and Tim Roberts started working with Paul Sublett of the sheriff's office and it all came together on Monday."

"If everybody serves what they say, we're going to have 30 to 35 felony warrants on these people," Smith said today.

To date, Smith and Sheriff Jim

Free said, the theft ring is expected to be tied to three burglaries in Pampa, one in Gray County, four to six in Canyon, six in Oklahoma, and two in Carson County.

Hedrick also noted authorities are investigating ties between the Pampa ring and burglaries in Arizona.

Items found relating to Colorado and California are also under investigation, although no burglaries to date have been identified from the property, Free said.

Free said court orders will be requested to continue storing the remaining items that have not been identified until ownership is determined.

Smith said the sheriff's office is currently in control of the scene, where deputies have been stationed around the clock.

The investigation is continuing, Free and Smith said.

Smith noted that several more arrests could follow as others are tied to the ring.

The Wohlforfs were believed to be furnishing their home with some of the merchandise and selling the rest at area flea markets to make money, Smith said.

rine Trimble of Corrine's Dress Shop in McLean; the late Boyd Meador, a former McLean civic leader; and Mrs. J.M. Tindall of Shamrock. Tindall, along with her late husband, built the famous U-Drop Inn restaurant.

Professor to speak at banquet

Dr. Robert C. Burton, retired geology professor, is scheduled as guest speaker at the 1992 Pampa Chamber of Commerce Annual "Citizen of the Year" Banquet at 7 p.m. Friday in M. K. Brown Auditorium.
 Dr. Burton is a graduate of Borger High School and received his B.A. and M.S. degrees in geology at Texas Tech University at Lubbock and his Ph.D. in geology at the University of New Mexico.
 As head of the geology department at West Texas State University in Canyon, Dr. Burton revised and enlarged the undergraduate curriculum to include a professional degree in geology and devised and established a master degree program in geology. He also established and directed the Geology Field Camp at Salida, Colorado. In May of 1989, he retired from the university. In 1990 he was asked by Temple University to serve as a professor of geology in Tokyo, Japan for a year.

Dr. Burton is a member of numerous professional organizations. He was elected Outstanding Educator in North America, nominated Piper Professor, best speaker award by the Desk and Derrick Clubs and is listed in American Men of Science.
 Dr. Burton and his wife Jean are parents of four children and reside in Canyon.
 Reservations and reserve tables for eight are available by calling the Chamber office, 669-2341.

Three die in tank-cleaning mishap

NASH (AP) - Federal safety officials will begin checking today into three workers' deaths at an East Texas paint storage tank.
 Autopsies have been ordered for the three men, who died Wednesday inside a 10,000-gallon tank at Alumax Mill Products Inc. in Nash. The tank was being cleaned at the time of the accident.
 Twenty-six employees were treated for possible effects of chemical fumes, said a spokesman for Wadley Regional Medical Center in Texarkana.
 Nash is about 5 miles west of Texarkana.
 Dean Wingo, industrial hygiene supervisor for the Dallas-based Occupational Safety and Health Administration, said the agency will investigate whether safety violations occurred.
 Charles Ohl, company vice president and general manager, said Dennis Whitfield was cleaning the tank when he was reported "down." Alumax employees Dean Dowdle, 29, and Larry Wright, 38, came to the contract worker's aid inside the tank.
 All three apparently were overcome by fumes.
 Whitfield worked for Memphis-based CTC Industrial Services Inc. Other company workers who were in the vicinity - but not inside the tank "may have come in contact with fumes and we thought it appropriate that they be taken to a local hospital for precautionary checks," he said.

 Ohl said cleaning of the tank, which stores paint used for protective coatings of aluminum, began Tuesday. The deaths occurred about 9:30 a.m.
 Ohl said he could not confirm that any of the workers were wearing protective gear.
 "That will be part of our ongoing investigation," he said.
 Alumax, an aluminum company, is a subsidiary of Alumax Inc., based in Norcross, Ga.

Leading index rises, shows continued economy growth

By DAVE SKIDMORE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's chief economic forecasting gauge flashed a signal in March of slow but continued growth for later this year, the Commerce Department said today.

The Index of Leading Indicators edged only 0.2 percent higher last month, a bit less than the 0.3 percent most economists were expecting. Still, it followed strong gains of 0.8 percent in February and 1 percent in January.

And, it was the first time since May through July of last year that the index sustained three consecutive increases.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said the number of Americans filing first-time claims for unemployment benefits was unchanged during the third week in April, marking the fourth week in a row without an increase.

The Labor Department said claims totaled a seasonally adjusted 404,000 during the week ending April 18, the same as the previous week and the lowest since October.

With a report earlier this week showing that the overall economy expanded at a modest 2 percent annual rate in the first quarter, analysts no longer are wondering whether a recovery from recession has begun. Now the questions are over its strength and durability.

In today's leading index, four of the 11 forward-looking indicators contributed to the rise in the index, intended to forecast economic activity about six months in advance.

The four positive indicators were an increase in consumer optimism, based on a survey conducted by the University of Michigan; a rise in prices for sensitive industrial materials, considered a sign of stronger demand; an increase in orders for new business equipment and buildings, and slower deliveries by goods-producing industries, another sign of strengthened demand.

They offset declines in six other indicators: the inflation-adjusted money supply, building permits, orders to factories for consumer goods, manufacturers' backlog of unfilled orders, stock prices and new claims for unemployment insurance.

The average workweek held steady during the month.

The various changes left the index at 147.9 percent of its 1982 base. The index has risen 1.9 percent during the first quarter compared with a 0.3 percent decline during the fourth quarter.

"I think we will have continued growth for the balance of the year, but ... I certainly put a lot of emphasis on all the factors that are going to make this a pretty subpar recovery," said economist Sandra Shaber of the Futures Group, a Washington-based consulting firm.

Among those factors, she said, were consumers still overloaded with debt, weak growth in Japan and Germany that reduced their capacity to purchase U.S. exports, and troubled U.S. banks likely to remain cautious about lending.

The Commerce Department today also was releasing its report on orders to U.S. factories in March. Analysts anticipated a strong 1 percent rise following 0.5 percent gains in both February and January.

A preliminary report last week on March orders for durable goods, such as automobiles and appliances, showed a strong 1.6 percent gain. Today's report also records orders for non-durable goods, such as food and clothing.

Despite all the signs of economic improvement, analysts are warning that, to the public, this year will only feel a little better than last year. Most expect growth in the April-June period to remain in the neighborhood of the first quarter's 2 percent annual rate.

It will improve to the 3 percent range during the second half of the year, they said. But that's still only around half the strength of a typical post-World War II recovery.

And it will only be enough to eke out gradual improvement in the nation's unemployment rate, which was stuck at a 6 1/2-year high of 7.3 percent in March.

"It'll be a real push to get it down to 6.5 percent by the end of the year," said economist Samuel D. Kahn of Fuji Securities Inc. in Chicago.

Bush eases rules on privatization

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is making it easier for state and local governments to sell public facilities such as airports, bridges and sewage-treatment plants.

Advocates of privatization hailed it as a major change in attitude. Others said it could lead to higher costs.

Bush today was signing an executive order directing federal agencies that helped finance construction of local facilities to reverse their past practice of demanding a hefty share of profits from the sale of those facilities.

The president also was traveling to Columbus, Ohio, to discuss the new policy in a speech to the Ohio Association of Broadcasters.

It was Bush's second trip to the Midwest industrial state in just over a week, as he focuses attention on states expected to be battlegrounds with the Democratic presidential nominee in November.

The privatization change, part of Bush's focus on decreasing government regulation, is intended to help financially strapped local governments find new ways of getting revenue, officials said.

It could affect some $227 billion worth of bridges, roads, airports, electric utilities, water companies and other facilities, according to one private study.

That is the total estimated market value of the assets "that would be viable in the private sector" if the state and local governments chose to sell them, said Robert Poole, president of the Reason Foundation, an economic think tank in Los Angeles.

He said the foundation's study was based on an analysis of international marketplace prices involved in other countries that have embarked on privatization, such as Britain.

In cases where grants were awarded many years ago, the federal government probably would ask nothing from a sale, said John Giraudo, a Washington lawyer and lobbyist for defense contractors and other potential buyers of public facilities.

For grants awarded in more recent years, the federal government would receive only a portion of its investment back, officials said.

Bush's order, in effect, tells the local agencies that "if they do sell, they will be able to keep the lion's share of the profits," Giraudo said.

"If the state and local governments take advantage of it, this could be a very big deal," said Poole. "This could be the kind of rebuild America campaign that the Democratic candidates are calling for, but for which we all know there isn't the money."

Although no one could say precisely how many state and local governments would cash in on the government's liberalized policy, officials said some have expressed interest in the issue.

Massachusetts Gov. William Weld, a strong advocate of privatizing state services, is awarding private contracts to maintain state highways in Essex County as a pilot project. He also is closing several state hospitals for the mentally ill and mentally retarded, with much of the community-based care to be provided by private vendors.

Weld has looked at privatizing Boston's Logan International Airport. Massachusetts Assistant Secretary of Transportation Ernie Corrigan said Wednesday that one issue nationwide that has thwarted priva-

Lawsuit challenges state hospitals' rules on patient medication

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation has been sued over rules that allow some mentally ill patients to be medicated against their will.

A class-action lawsuit was filed in state district court asking that the MHMR medication rule be changed. The lawsuit also asks for a permanent injunction against further forced medication of the patients.

Rules now state that patients involuntarily committed to the eight state psychiatric hospitals can be given psychoactive drugs against their will during the first 14 days of hospitalization.

After that, if patients object to drugs prescribed by their doctor, another hospital physician must determine whether drugs are necessary. If the second doctor decides the drugs are medically appropriate, drugs are administered.

The lawsuit alleges the rule violates a patient's rights under the Texas Constitution and the Texas Mental Health Code.

The lawsuit was filed on behalf of a 33-year-old woman identified only as S.M., who was treated at the Austin State Hospital.

The lawsuit was filed by Advocacy Inc. on behalf of all other state patients medicated against their will, and the Texas Mental Health Consumers Network, a group of people with mental illness.

The lawsuit alleges that S.M. in February was forcibly injected with Haldol, a powerful psychotropic drug that can cause irreversible physical and neurological damage.

The woman was treated appropriately, said Kenny Dudley, superintendent of Austin State Hospital.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Opinion

Order protects workers rights

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland is partially correct: President George Bush's recent executive order requiring labor organizations to report separately how union dues are spent has a touch of political opportunism about it. Bush does want to remain in the White House and money is the lifeblood of politics. The order will reduce campaign contributions historically flowing to Democratic candidates.

However, give Bush credit for finally doing what needed done - enforcing a 1988 Supreme Court decision ordering that agency fees cannot be used to fund causes or political campaigns to which the contributor objects.

In the 1988 ruling, Beck vs. Communications Workers of America, the Supreme Court found that only 37 percent of CWA dues were being used for legitimate collective bargaining purposes. The rest went to various causes and political campaigns. The union was ordered to refund 63 percent of the total it had taken from Harry Beck over the years and to make similar refunds to others who applied.

Monetary refunds aside, the ruling made it plain that unions could not divert agency fees to political causes. Dues and fees were to be used for legitimate costs related to collective bargaining. In 1990 the Court went further, narrowing what could be considered legitimate union expenses charged to those who said they did not want to fund a union's political agenda.

But various court rulings have been ignored principally because of a lack of enforcement and the cost to an individual bringing suit. Still, thousands of complaints make their way to the National Labor Relations Board.

In addition to Bush's executive order requiring that labor unions separate how dues and agency fees are spent, federal contractors are now required to post notices saying that non-union employees need only fund those activities related to collective bargaining.

The two executive orders will indeed slow political contributions going to candidates, almost exclusively liberal. An estimated 3 million employees out of 19 million working under labor contracts are in union or agency shops and must pay fees to a union even though they remain a non-member. It is estimated that such fees amount to $2.4 billion annually. Of course not all of that is donated to political causes and candidates, but a $2.4 billion base provides an enormous war chest from which to draw political funding.

At issue is the non-compliance with Beck and subsequent Supreme Court rulings - they've been widely ignored. A study earlier this year by the National Right to Work Committee found that the ruling wasn't being followed and those paying agency fees weren't being informed of their rights in nearly 70 percent of cases studied.

Bush, according to news reports, had lobbied for the changes to be made through legislative action, but grew weary of the inaction. His timing is a bit suspicious, but that doesn't minimize the moral correctness of his action. American workers need to know of their right to refuse funding political activity to which they object.

Speeding punishment can hasten injustice

Roger Coleman will die on May 20 if the state of Virginia has its way, which apparently it will. Coleman was found guilty in 1982 of murdering his sister-in-law, Wanda Fay McCoy, and was sentenced to death. The trouble is, he may have gotten an unfair trial and may be innocent. Coleman has always denied the charge, while McCoy's former next door neighbor, who has a history of violence against women, has bragged that he killed her.

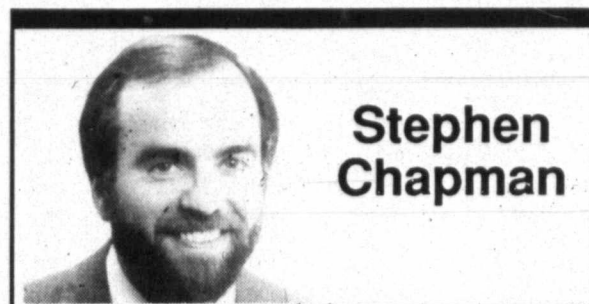

Is Coleman innocent or guilty? No one knows, including the U.S. Supreme Court. But unlike a lot of people, most members of the Supreme Court don't care of learn the answer before he's executed.

The courts, and particularly the federal courts, have the duty of making sure that people like Roger Coleman haven't been unjustly convicted. But the Supreme Court said it couldn't be bothered with his problems, simply because his lawyer was a day late in filing an appeal.

The U.S. Constitution provides all sorts of guarantees to anyone accused of a crime - the right against self-incrimination, the right not to be the victim of an unreasonable search, the right to a fair trial. But those rights are often abridged. Sometimes, police, prosecutors and judges make honest mistakes; sometimes they deliberately abuse their authority.

Either way, the criminal defendant suffers. In many cases, his only hope is that federal courts will see the injustice and correct it. The Constitution and federal law give convicted criminals the right to file habeas corpus appeals, challenging the constitutionality of their convictions and sentences.

But the Supreme Court is weary of all these petitions and wants to put a stop to them. Its disposal of Coleman's case is one sign of its impatience. Last year, it said prisoners may not raise claims about unconstitutional searches in federal courts if they had a "full and fair opportunity" to raise them in state courts. Recently, it agreed to decide whether the same restriction should apply when an inmate says he was questioned without being told his rights.

The Bush administration wants to go further still. Last year, the president opposed a major crime bill because it didn't include his proposed curb on habeas corpus, which bars federal courts from reviewing issues that have been "fully and fairly" litigated in state courts - even if they were wrongly resolved. The federal courts would have to tell a lot of inmates, including many on Death Row: Your rights were violated, but there's nothing we can do about it.

The Supreme Court and the administration think letting federal judges overrule the decisions of state judges is an unbearable insult to the states. But there are good reasons state judges shouldn't have the last word on constitutional rights. In most places, they are elected, subjecting them to political pressures that don't affect federal judges, who are appointed for life. Few state judges get re-elected for freeing suspects who are mistreated by the authorities.

It makes sense to leave final decisions about constitutional rights to federal judges, because state courts can't always be trusted to respect these rights. In about 40 percent of the death penalty cases they review, federal courts order a retrial or a resentencing because the state courts screwed up.

If the states want greater authority over criminal justice, they should be required to show that they're interested in pursuing justice as well as criminals. The main reason federal courts end up having to consider so many habeas corpus petitions is that a lot of defendants get lousy legal help, leaving their constitutional rights unprotected.

Public defender offices are typically overworked and underfunded. Many states pay court-appointed defense lawyers only $20 or $30 an hour - hardly enough to cover office overhead. Some limit the total pay per case to $500, which is less than most lawyers would get for drunk driving trials.

So, a lot of defendants don't get much help from their lawyers. An American Bar Association task force found plenty of examples of worthless attorneys - including one who was parking his car when the key prosecution witness testified, one who called his client a "nigger" in front of the jury, and one who was trying to harm his client. The federal courts have to repair the damage.

Congressional Democrats have offered a way to eliminate endless, frivolous habeas petitions without endangering rights. They would limit prisoners to one appeal, but only in states that assure competent legal counsel to defendants at every stage of litigation. George Bush says no.

Unclogging the courts and speeding up the process of justice are worthy goals, but if they become the only goals, Americans accused of crimes may find that their constitutional rights don't count for much. Just ask Roger Coleman. If you want an answer, though, better ask him before May 20.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, April 30, the 121st day of 1992. There are 245 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
One year ago, on April 30, 1991, an estimated 125,000 people died as a cyclone struck the South Asian country of Bangladesh.

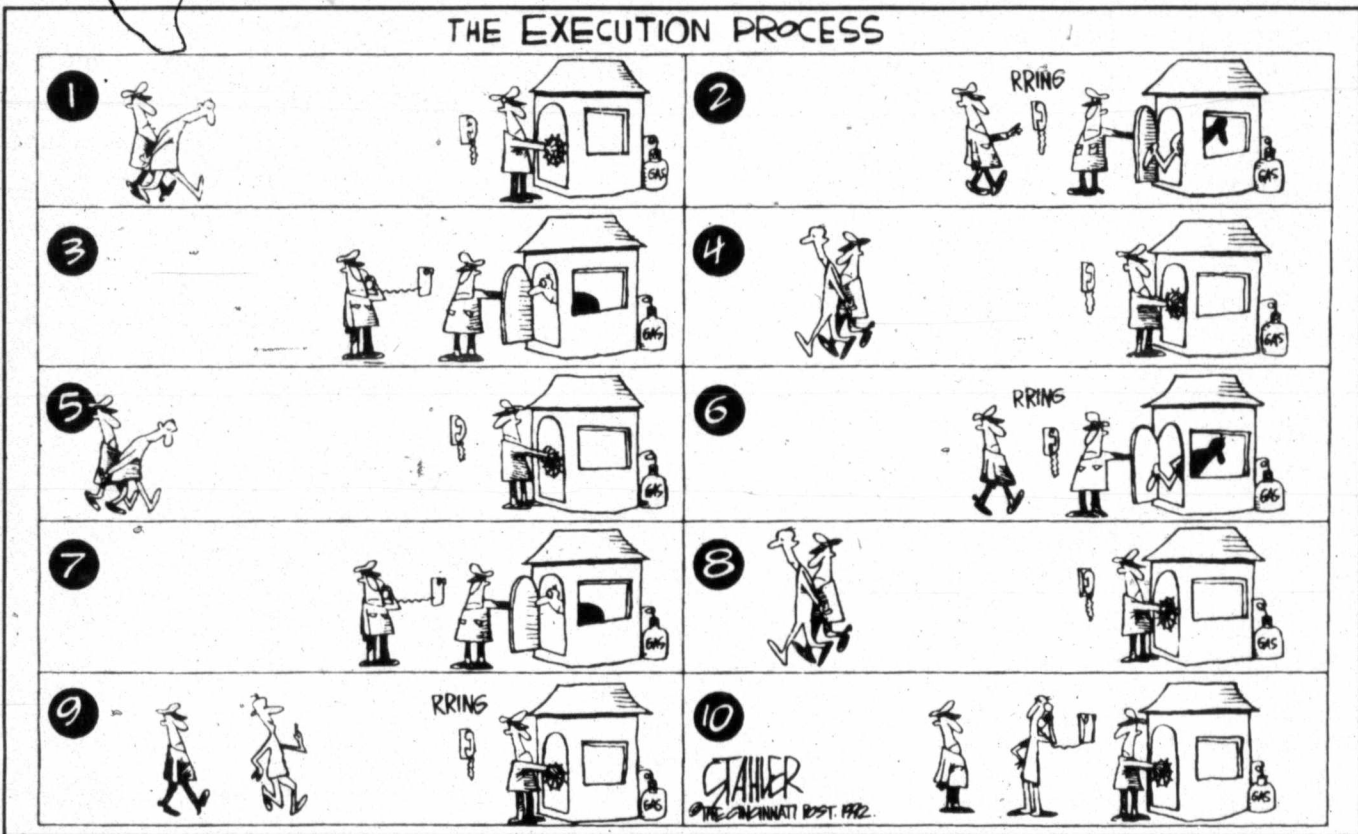

On this date:
In 1789, George Washington took office in New York as the first president of the United States.

In 1803, the United States purchased the Louisiana Territory from France.

In 1900, Hawaii was organized as a U.S. territory.

In 1939, the New York World's Fair, billed as a look at "the world of tomorrow," officially opened.

In 1945, as Russian troops approached his Berlin bunker, Adolf Hitler committed suicide along with his wife of one day, Eva Braun.

Leona isn't going to throw in the towel

This column is proud to announce it has obtained an exclusive interview with Hotel Queen Leona Helmsley, who was recently sent to prison for income tax evasion.

She is expected to have to serve at least three years.

"Leona..."

"What's with this 'Leona,' peon? It's 'Your Majesty,' to you."

"I'm very sorry, Your Majesty."

"Just because I'm in prison, Dipstick, it doesn't mean you can talk to me like I'm a common thief."

"Well, there certainly wasn't anything common about your thievery. You stiffed the government for quite a bundle."

"Yeah, and I'd have gotten away with it, too, if those lawyers I hired could have found just one lousy loophole. You'd think they could have found one, right? But nooo. They ought to be on television begging for personal injury cases."

"What legal firm did you retain for your defense?"

"Bozo, Butthead and Butthead. They couldn't have defended the Frito Bandito."

"Your Majesty, how have you found prison life so far?"

"I found it stinks, that's how I've found it. In the first place, I don't have a phone. How can I call room service without a phone?"

"Prisons do not offer room service."

"You think I don't know that? When I saw I had no phone, I ran my cup across the bars to get the guard's attention. She laughed at me when I asked for the room service menu. But that wasn't the real shocker."

"And what was the real shocker?"

"There's no housekeeping service here, either."

"So you have to change your own sheets?"

"It's totally disgusting. Here I am the Queen Mama of New York City and they have me doing maid's work. I used to buy and sell 50 maids by lunchtime in my hotel, but I'm drawing the line at cleaning my toilet."

"But won't you eventually have to?"

"Not me, buster. I'm just going to hold it."

"For three years?"

"You got a better idea, mop-face?"

"Have they assigned you a job yet?"

"A what?"

"A job. Usually prisoners are given some sort of work to do."

"Watch my lips, four-eyes. The only things that work are mules and fools. I am thinking of writing a book while I'm here, however."

"And what will be the title of your book?"

"Kidney and Bowel Control of the Rich and Famous."

"We'll certainly be looking forward to that. Your Majesty, it has been said many of your hotel employees are glad to see you in prison because of the way you mistreated them."

"Mistreated my employees? How?"

"Low pay, long hours."

"Is that what all those little people were talking about when they kept mentioning something called, 'minimum wage'?"

"It could have been."

"I thought it might have been Spanish for 'Would Your Majesty like for me to brush off your suit.' The ungrateful serfs wanted paid vacations, too. I said, 'Sure, you can have a paid vacation. You go on vacation and you don't get any more pay.'"

"How have the other inmates been treating you here?"

"Like an ax murderer. All I did was hire an accountant who couldn't make two plus two look like five, and not a single person in here will do my nails. The justice system in this country is a disgrace."

"One last question. What aspect of prison life have you had the most trouble adjusting to?"

"One towel a week. That's all I get - one towel for the whole week. But I'm going to get even for that."

"What are you planning to do?"

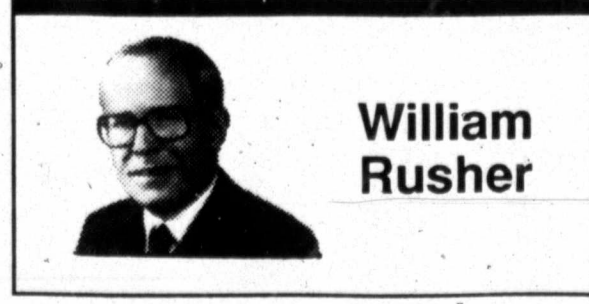

"When they finally let me out of this Motel 6, the towel goes with me."

New faces herald a new era of politics

Would you like a little good news for a change? Concerning the long-time congressmen and state legislators who are being defeated in primaries or special elections, or will get the boot this fall, or who are quitting rather than face the justified wrath of their constituents, or are simply throwing in the towel rather than slog on in the face of intractable governmental problems, the best we can say is that the Augean stables are being cleansed. But who will fill the seats being vacated, and the new seats that have been created as a result of redistricting after the 1990 census?

The good news is that, in an encouragingly large number of cases, men and women of real quality are bidding to represent us in Washington and our state capitals. You may be one of the lucky ones who gets a chance to vote for one of these.

Take Larry Arnn, who is seeking the Republican nomination for Congress in the new 43rd congressional district in California, in the southeastern corner of the state. At 39, Arnn has not previously sought public office. Instead he has built a distinguished career as a political scientist, receiving his Ph.D. in government from the Claremont Graduate School near Los Angeles and continuing with graduate work at Oxford. While there he served as Director of Research for Martin Gilbert, the official biographer of Winston Churchill. (He also met and married a charming English woman named Penny, by whom he now has three children.)

William Rusher

In 1985 Arnn became president of the Claremont Institute for the Study of Statesmanship and Political Philosophy, which is where I met him. The institute is an independent (and solidly conservative) think tank that has done important work on policy issues at both the state and national levels.

Now Arnn seeks to put his knowledge and experience at the service of the people of his congressional district, and I only wish I lived there and could vote for him. As Ronald Reagan once wrote to him, "You are committed to the principles of limited government, free enterprise, and traditional family values." Is there a better platform than that?

But there are exciting new faces in politics at the state level too.

Take the new 25th Assembly District of California, carved out of the San Joaquin Valley by a redistricting panel. Here Barbara Keating-Edh is seeking the Republican nomination, and if the voters send her to Sacramento they will have shown shrewd judgment indeed. For this is one very special lady.

I have known her since the early 1970s, when she was Barbara Keating, the widow of a Marine major killed in Vietnam, trying to raise five small children on her own. To the astonishment of New York's ultra-liberal Republican senator, Jacob Javits, this busy but courageous young woman ran against him on the state's conservative line in 1974 and rolled up nearly 900,000 votes.

In 1980 she remarried and moved to Modesto, Calif. But the liberals hadn't heard the last of Barbara Keating-Edh. For many years she has been the driving force behind Consumer Alert, the nationwide conservative organization that battles the follies of Ralph Nader and other liberal "consumer spokesmen."

As you might expect, her program for California reflects her rock-solid conservatism: lower state taxes, support for the death penalty, cost-benefit analyses for environmental proposals and work requirements for able-bodied welfare recipients, just to name a few. There will be no better bargain on the California ballot this fall.

So don't despair. With political candidates of this quality, there's hope for America yet. The elections of 1992 may bring forth people who will help to lead it for decades to come.

Garth Brooks tops CMA honors

By JEFF WILSON
Associated Press Writer

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. (AP) — Garth Brooks, the country showman who outsold even Michael Jackson on the pop charts, was named entertainer of the year and top male vocalist by the Academy of Country Music for the second year in a row.

Also winning two top awards Wednesday was lanky Alan Jackson, who was honored for best single and album; both titled "Don't Rock the Jukebox."

"It was a very slow start for me," Brooks said backstage after the 27th annual awards.

Brooks, 30, has led the current renaissance in country music, selling more than 15 million albums and appearing on prime-time television.

"Because of Garth Brooks, we are all doing a lot better," said Billy Dean, who won trophies for new male singer and for best song, "Somewhere in My Broken Heart."

Reba McEntire won the best female vocalist award for the sixth time, and her video "Is There Life Out There" won the top video prize.

"To all the women out there who went back to school and said, 'Yes, we can do it,' congratulations," she said.

Top group honors went to Diamond Rio, and the Nashville team Brooks & Dunn won the vocal duet and new group awards.

"We're not worthy," joked Kix Brooks, one-half the singing duo with Ronnie Dunn.

The award for new female vocalist went to Trisha Yearwood.

The non-competitive Pioneer Award went to Willie Nelson for "outstanding and unprecedented achievement in the field of country music." Past recipients include Gene Autry, Johnny Cash, Buck Owens, Kitty Wells and Roy Rogers.

"Country music is on its way up, and it's the young people who are behind it," Nelson said.

Winners announced during the two-hour NBC special were selected by the 3,000-member academy.

WAMZ of Louisville, Ky., was picked country radio station of the year and Nashville's Gerry House of WSIX was named the top disc jockey.

Democrats afraid check records may be leaked during campaigns

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders say their own members gave the Bush administration a political gold mine by succumbing to Republican demands for a massive release of records from the House bank.

"It was dangerous, the road we took tonight," Rep. David Nagle, D-Iowa, said late Wednesday after House Democrats gave Republicans their votes.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., sought to challenge the sweeping subpoena by special counsel Malcolm Wilkey, who demanded copies of every check processed by the now-closed bank over a 39-month period, not just the checks of those who wrote penalty-free overdrafts.

But the House rejected Foley's position 284-131, with nearly half the Democrats abandoning their leaders, and then voted 347-64 to hand over the microfilm copies of the hundreds of thousands of checks. All the no votes were from Democrats.

One Democrat who voted with the GOP, Rep. Charlie Wilson, D-Texas, had just one word for it: "craven."

Others who stood with Foley refused to give in.

Reps. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas, and Sidney Yates, D-Ill., filed suit immediately after the first vote to quash the subpoena. Their brief argued the subpoena violated the House's powers as an independent branch of government.

It should take a few days to make copies of the material Wilkey wants.

"This counsel is just a political animal out of control," said Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., who called the capitulation on the floor "something we're going to be ashamed of."

"During this '92 campaign, you'll be reading ... about the personal checks of individuals in this chamber," said Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

The House ethics committee has reported that 325 past and present lawmakers wrote more than 24,000 overdrafts at the bank over a 39-month period.

Wilkey has said he is looking into the possibility that the bank was used for a check kiting scheme and that's why he needs microfilm of all the checks.

Even if there is no criminal activity, the checks could reveal embarrassing details from the lives of lawmakers and their families that would be of great use to political opponents.

"Did you write a check to a marriage counselor? Did you write a check to a psychologist? Did you write a check for alcoholism treatment? Did you write a check to a pharmacist for tranquilizers?" Nagle said. "Nobody should believe there is going to be any quote-unquote secrecy," he said.

"We're going to go through a fall campaign with periodic leaks against Democratic candidates," he said.

Republicans said prosecutors could face severe penalties if they divulge information from their probe.

No Republican voted against the request from Wilkey, a Republican former judge who wrote a dissenting opinion that said former President Nixon had the right to invoke executive privilege and withhold his Watergate tapes.

House Minority Leader Bob Michel, R-Ill., who himself had called the subpoena too broad earlier in the week, ended up sponsoring the GOP plan.

Democrats hooted when he tried to argue on the floor that it was a non-partisan position.

Republicans said they were responding to the demands of the American people, and that anything less than full compliance would just drag out an embarrassing episode for the House.

"The press is going to go on another feeding frenzy," said Rep. James V. Hansen of Utah, the senior Republican on the House ethics committee. "We're going to rip that scab off. ... We're going to bleed, bleed, bleed, bleed all the way down to the first Tuesday in November."

Exxon head disappears on way to work

MORRIS TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — A high-level Exxon executive vanished after leaving his house for work in what a prosecutor said may be a kidnapping. The man's car was found running, its doors open, at the end of his driveway.

The FBI, state troopers and Exxon security agents were called in to help police in an air and ground search after Sidney J. Reso, 57, president of Exxon International since 1988, was reported missing.

Reso's wife, Patricia, told authorities he left their house in this wealthy northern New Jersey community at his regular time Wednesday morning, presumably to go to Exxon's offices in neighboring Florham Park.

Dr. Edwin Wong demonstrates acupuncture technique on a patient at the China Acupuncture Clinic. Most of Major Medical Insurance cover the procedure offered by the clinic.

Art of acupuncture stops pain without drugs

For many people, acupuncture is a new weapon in the battle against pain. The treatment itself has been used in China for thousands of years, and has gained increasing popularity in this country. Many people, however, do not understand how it could work.

Dr. Edwin Wong, a certified acupuncture specialist of China Acupuncture Clinic, says that acupuncture, according to the prestigious World Health Organization, has been successfully used in the treatment of at least 47 different diseases, including migraine headaches, bursitis, osteoarthritis, trigeminal neuralgia, menstrual problems, sexual problems and others. The Chinese science of acupuncture has been a useful adjunct to modern medical treatments and is being successfully utilized in an increasing number of cases. Acupuncture is also now utilized for weight control and to help people break the smoking habit. Smoking is particularly responsive to acupuncture. For many people, smoking is a habit. They want to quit, but can't. Acupuncture adjusts the nervous system, minimize the post-quit symptoms, such as anxiousness, restless or nervelessness. Acupuncture also changes cigarette taste, makes taste bad so people don't want to smoke again. Wong reports more than a 90 percent success rate for smoking cessation treatment.

In fact, the acupuncture treatment is a whole body treatment. Research shows that changes in physiology, physiopathology and biochemistry occur during treatment and these changes produce profound results including alleviation of pain.

Investigation has confirmed acupuncture's potential is the enhancement of immune function. Acupuncture also potentiates the ability of anti-infection; hence the power of preventing diseases. Besides, the decrease of immune function is often followed by aging process. In this way, acupuncture may be greatly helpful in the prevention of aging, thus to achieve longevity and health.

For a consultation and more information about acupuncture visit the China Acupuncture Clinic, located at 1700 N. Duncan or call them at 669-3253. Let this ancient Chinese medical science help you and your family free themselves from pain and other health problems.

PFAA plans barbecue reception in honor of symphony composer

The Pampa Fine Arts Association has planned a barbecue to meet the composer of the "Palo Duro Canyon Symphony", Samuel Jones, after Sunday's 2 p.m. performance. Jones will greet concert attendees in the Heritage Room at M.K. Brown Civic Auditorium from noon to 1:30 p.m.

Reservations for the meal must be purchased by Friday, 5 p.m. at Etheridge Claims or by mail to PFAA, Box 818, Pampa.

A taped feature about the premiere performance is scheduled to be broadcast on "Good Morning, America" Friday between 7 and 9 a.m. according to Cheryl Cox, Executive Director of the Amarillo Symphony Orchestra.

The 85-member orchestra will present its third performance in Pampa. The first performance is set for Friday in the Palo Duro Amphitheatre and the second is on Saturday at the Amarillo Civic Center.

Jones was commissioned to write the symphony for Palo Duro

Samuel Jones, "Palo Duro Canyon Symphony" composer, will be honored with a barbecue after Sunday's performance.

Canyon two years ago by Amarillo Symphony Orchestra. He made several visits to Canyon and even camped within its walls. He hopes to express "in a compelling musical fashion a community's sense of identity with their land" and that the new work will help symbolize to the country the important regional treasure.

Jones is professor of composition and conducting at Rice University's Shepherd School of Music in Houston, a school he founded. He directs the graduate program in conducting and is a master teacher and past president of the National Conductor's Guild.

His conducting credits include engagements with numerous symphony orchestras in the U.S. and abroad.

Conducting the Amarillo Symphony is James Setapen in his fourth year with the 66-year-old Metro Orchestra.

Local musicians will perform in a pre-concert celebration for the premiere weekend from 12:30 to 1:45 p.m. Tickets for the concert may be purchased at the Chamber of Commerce, Tarpleys or at the door.

Piano students audition this weekend for National Guild of Piano Teachers

Auditions sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers will be conducted in the chapel of the First Baptist Church of Pampa on May 1st and 2nd. The Guild is a worldwide organization headquartered in Austin. Last year approximately fifty piano students of the Pampa area participated.

Judge for the auditions this year will be Judy E. Strecker who maintains a private studio in Amarillo. Strecker holds a doctorate of musical arts from the University of Colorado, a master of arts in music theory from Eastman School of Music, and a bachelor of arts in music education from Incarnate Word College in San Antonio.

Area teachers participating are Amy Woodside, Miami, Sheila Pankratz, Canadian, Peggy Chaney, Skellytown, Phoebe Reynolds, Pampa and Leslie Crowell, Groom.

Bill Haley is guild chairman for the Pampa district.

Peach of a guy lousy planner

DEAR ABBY: I've been dating a gentleman who lives 350 miles away. We met at a family gathering six months ago. He has a business here, and comes to town to oversee it every three or four weeks.

He's divorced, and he's one peach of a guy, but here's my complaint: He never calls ahead of time or in between trips. I'm beginning to wonder if I'm a fool for being available and ready to go when he comes to town and calls me for a date the same night.

I know he likes me, and I really fell for him, but my head tells me one thing, and my heart another. He's a very busy man, but I can't help but feel a little used.

I'm afraid to mention this to him for fear he'll think I'm too demanding. I don't want to scare him away, but I have a lot of pride, and this bothers me. I've been divorced for many years and have never met anyone quite like him. He's fun, witty, intelligent, good-looking and thoughtful of me when we're together. My big complaint is I never know in advance when he'll be back.

Should I bide my time and see what happens? Or should I speak up the next time I see him — whenever that is!

YOUNG AT HEART

DEAR YOUNG: The "worm" in this peach of a guy is that he's taking you for granted.

The next time he calls at the

Dear Abby

last minute, don't drop everything and go. Tell him you're sorry, but you've already made plans for the evening and can't change them — even for someone as special as he is. And if he's as intelligent as you think he is, he'll get the message.

DEAR ABBY: Since the savings and loan fiasco, we are tossing around the word "billions" with seemingly less concern than we used to assign to the word "millions." A loss of hundreds of billions boggles the imagination, but I had no real understanding of exactly what the word "billion" meant until I read this explanation that appeared in the September 1975 issue of Reader's Digest:

DOLLAR SIGN
Lou Erickson, Atlanta Journal

"It is difficult to comprehend what $1 billion could be, but at last I have heard an explanation that clears the air.

"A man gave his wife $1 million. He told her to go out and spend $1,000 a day. She did. Three years later, she returned to tell him that the money was all gone. She wanted more.

"He then gave her $1 billion. He told her to go out and spend $1,000 a day. She didn't come back for 3,000 years."

Abby, when this was first published 15 years ago, I don't think anyone would have believed, or could have comprehended, what is going on today!

Secrets of catching fish

After interviewing the winners from over 50 fishing tournaments, I have learned several important "secrets" that might help you catch more fish.

LESSON #1 Never ask a successful fisherman, "Where did you catch the fish?" He really doesn't want to reveal the exact location of his honey holes. Better questions are, "How deep were you fishing? What kind of structure is holding active fish? When were the fish most active?" Most anglers are so relieved that you are not trying to discover their holes that they will discuss in detail what, where and when the fish were biting.

LESSON #2 Be a good listener. A good silent head-nod will encourage your source to keep talking. Finally, asking about his favorite line size will invariably lead to a detailed description of how to work his favorite lure.

If you know the depth of structure that hold active fish AND learn how to work a proven fish-catching lure, THEN catching more fish is just a matter of time.

According to Dr. Loren Hill, WATER TEMPERATURE is an important factor when deciding which gamefish you can expect to be actively feeding.

45-55 degrees: walleye will move to the rip-rap 1 to 5 feet deep. Night fishing with a countdown Rapala can be excellent.

50-55 degrees: white bass (Sand bass) will roam up-stream looking for sandy creeks. A chrome RattleTrap or Little George can lead the boat.

55-68 degrees: crappie will be found in brush on gravel banks 3 to 8 feet deep. Brush eats crappie jigs, but they are cheap. A jig-and-minnow can catch some of nature's best eating.

62-68 degrees: smallmouth bass are looking for calm water with large rocks in pea-gravel banks near creek channels with access to some 20' water. Jigs tipped with minnows can be slowly worked down the drop-offs.

62-75 degrees: largemouth bass are looking for gravel spawning banks 1 1/2 to 4 feet deep. Spinnerbaits catch the active bass while lizards or gizzits work on the bigger fish. Try different line sizes. If you can see the bass, then use 8 lb. or less.

75-78 degrees: channel-catfish prowl the shoreline ledges searching for holes or submerged trees in 18-40'. Catfish will eat almost anything. Try chicken-liver, blood-bait, minnows, or cut-bait.

Warning - One of the attractions of fishing is its unpredictability. I have caught catfish in January and been skunked on bass during the middle of the spawn.

Bulls beat Heat; Lakers stay alive

By The Associated Press

Michael Jordan was magical as the Chicago Bulls swept into the second round of the NBA playoffs on Wednesday night.

Michael Jordan scored 56 points, matching the third highest total in postseason history, as the Bulls overcame an 18-point deficit in Miami to beat the Heat 119-114 and capture their first-round series in three games.

"He's like a grenade without the pin," Miami center Rony Seikaly said.

Jordan, held scoreless in the first 10 minutes, went wild the rest of the way to lead the defending NBA champs into the second round against the winner of the New York-Detroit series. The Knicks lead 2-1 going into Game 4 Friday night at Detroit.

The Phoenix Suns also swept their best-of-5 series against the injury-riddled San Antonio Spurs. Jeff Hornacek and Kevin Johnson each scored 22 points, including 11 apiece in the fourth quarter, as the Suns defeated the Spurs 101-92 in San Antonio.

The Suns meet the winner of the Portland-Los Angeles Lakers series. The Lakers stayed alive by beating the Trail Blazers 121-119 in overtime at the Forum. The Blazers still lead the series 2-1 and can close out the Lakers with a victory in Game 4 Friday night.

Vlade Divac made a three-point play with 27.5 seconds remaining in overtime to put Los Angeles ahead for good in a game overshadowed by nearby rioting in the predominantly black South Central section of the city. The violence and looting broke out after a jury acquitted four white policemen charged in the videotaped beating of black motorist Rodney King.

Late in the game, the public-address announcer warned fans in the Forum to steer clear of areas affected by the violence and listen to radio stations for further updates.

On Thursday, Cleveland plays at New Jersey, Utah visits the Los Angeles Clippers and Golden State plays at Seattle. Cleveland, Utah and Seattle lead their series 2-1 and can advance to the next round with one more victory.

Miami, outscored by 49 points in the first two games, raced to a 33-15 lead in the first-ever playoff game in Florida. The Bulls pulled even in the second quarter, but could never pull away.

NBA playoffs

Jordan, whose 45-point average against Miami broke his own league record for a three-game playoff series, put Chicago ahead to stay by hitting a fallaway jumper for a 98-96 lead with 5:30 left. He added 12 more points down the stretch, including two clinching free throws with 9.5 seconds left.

"This is prime time. ... You've got to elevate your game, and I think I did," said Jordan, who hit 20 of 30 shots from the field and 16 of 18 free throws.

Jordan holds the playoff scoring record with 63 points in a double overtime game against Boston in 1986. He scored 55 in a regulation playoff game against Cleveland in 1988.

Scottie Pippen added 31 points for the Bulls, who have won 18 of their last 20 playoff games.

Glen Rice scored 25 for Miami, 0-17 against the Bulls since entering the NBA four years ago. Seikaly added 22 points and 12 rebounds.

Divac, who scored 18 points, gave the Lakers a 117-116 lead with his three-point play in overtime. He scored underneath to tie the game, was fouled, and made the free throw.

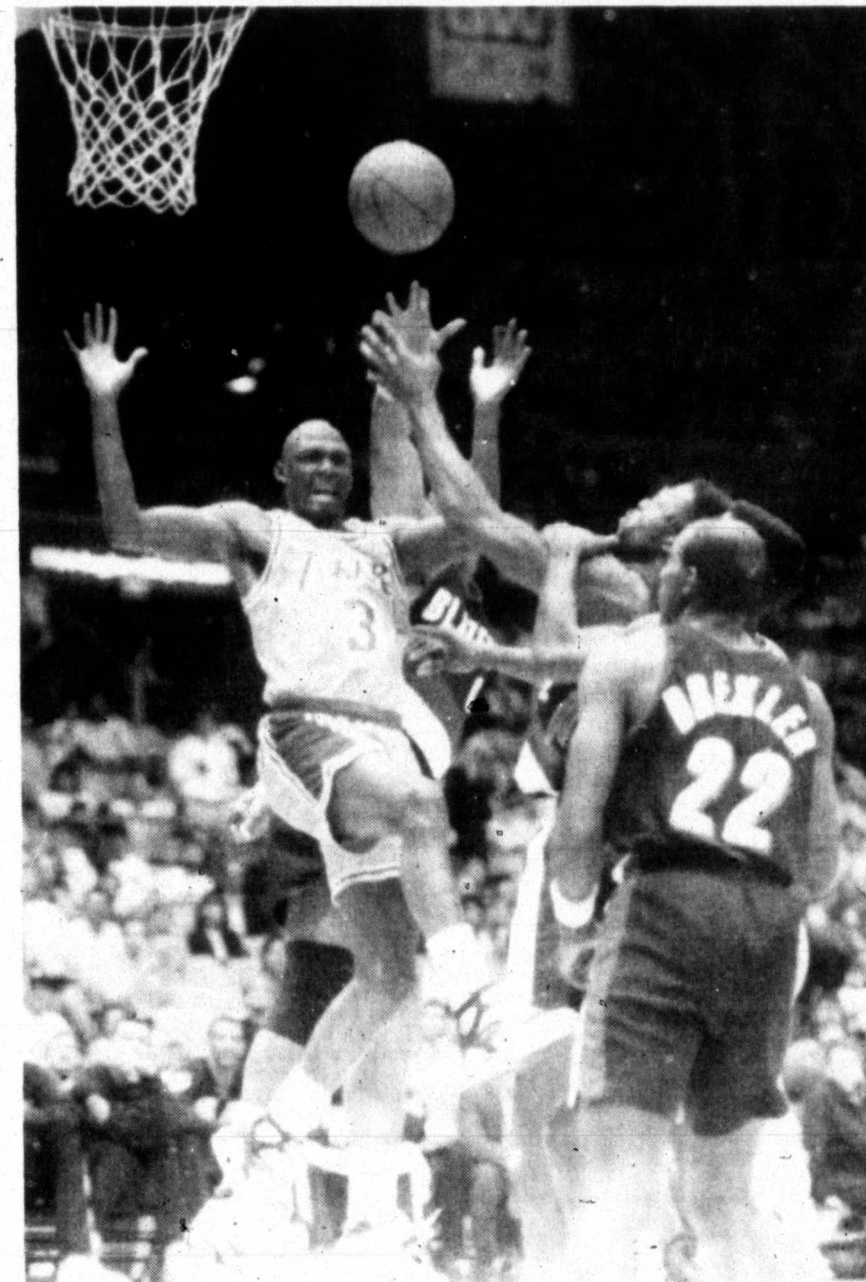

Terry Teagle, who scored 26 points in his first start of the season for the Lakers, made two free throws with 15.2 seconds to go after stealing the ball from Buck Williams.

That made it 119-116, and the Lakers held on after that, despite the fact that Clyde Drexler scored 13 of his career playoff high 42 points in overtime.

Drexler missed a jump shot from the top of the key in the final seconds which could have forced a second overtime.

Sedale Threatt (3) scored 24 points as the Lakers edged the Trail Blazers, 121-119, Wednesday night. (AP Laserphoto)

Rangers' Guzman two-hits Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) - Even Jose Guzman admitted that he was getting a little nervous.

"I was thinking about the no-hitter," said Guzman, who held the New York Yankees hitless into the seventh inning on Wednesday night but finished with a two-hitter in the Texas Rangers 5-1 victory.

Guzman lost the no-hit bid when Matt Nokes homered on a 3-1 pitch with one out in the seventh. He gave up his only other hit when Kevin Maas blooped a single to short left field one out later.

"I didn't think it was going to carry that much. It was a fast ball," Guzman said of Nokes' drive to left, his third of the season.

Guzman decided to challenge Nokes with a fast ball because he didn't want to walk him with Jesse Barfield and Maas due to follow.

"For me, it was more to get the game over and go through the hitters," said Guzman (2-2), who pitched his second complete game in five starts. His first complete game 6-inning rain-shortened effort last week against the Boston Red Sox.

Lefthanded-hitting Kevin Reimer, in the lineup despite the Yankees starting lefty Greg Cadaret (2-1), sparked the Rangers offense with three RBIs and three hits including his second homer.

"They let me hit a lot more against lefthanders in spring training and three of my four homers down there were off lefthanders," Reimer said.

Juan Gonzalez gave the Rangers a 1-0 lead with a first-inning sacrifice fly. Reimer opened the second with his homer and Dickie Thon's RBI single in the fourth made it 3-0.

From then on the main focus was on Guzman.

"He's much improved from last year. He looks better and better each time out," Yankee manager Buck Showalter said.

Groom athletes entered in tennis regionals

Three Groom athletes are entered in the regional tennis tournament, which started today in Levelland.

Freshman Misty Homen, No. 1 seed, won the girls' singles championship at the district tournament held earlier this month in Pampa. No. 2 seeded Lesa Sweatt and Kristy Case placed second in doubles.

Others from Groom who participated in the district tournament and placed third were Rebecca Conrad, girls' singles; Bryan Crowell, boys' singles and Bruce Britten-Bo Burgin, boys' doubles.

Texas Tech lands New Mexico basketball standout

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) - Lenny Holly, who led Alamogordo High School to back-to-back AAAA state basketball titles, will attend Texas Tech next season.

Alamogordo coach Ron Geyer said Holly has signed with the Red Raiders.

"Lenny is the first kid who has signed division one from Alamogordo in many years," Geyer said Tuesday. "It is a neat achievement for him and a great opportunity."

Geyer said Texas Tech was the only NCAA Division I school that Holly visited.

"It seemed like a good atmosphere," Holly said of his visit to Lubbock. "People support basketball, so I thought I would give it a try."

New Mexico was among the other schools that recruited the 6-foot-4 guard.

Holly was named the AAAA Player of the Year the last two seasons. This year he averaged better than 18 points a game on an Alamogordo team that went 25-1 and breezed to its second straight state championship.

Pampa duo eliminated in tennis regionals

Pampa's Sameer Mohan and Joe Welborn were eliminated in the Class 1-4A Region doubles tennis tournament.

Mohan and Welborn, playing in the semifinals Tuesday at San Angelo, fell to Rob Hogan and Bubba Spraggins of Wichita Falls with wins over Albuquerque High, Albuquerque La Cueva and Albuquerque Highland in the State Tournament last month.

Geyer said he was pleased Holly has decided to play for James Dick-ey, who will be starting his second season as the Texas Tech head coach.

High, 6-1, 7-5.

Mohan and Welborn had opened the tournament by defeating Jimmy Aleman and Kirk Myers of Boswell, 5-7, 6-2, 6-1. They advanced to the quarterfinals, and downed Marcus Best and Kevin McMillan of Snyder, 7-5, 7-6.

Arazi: A horse that dreams are made of LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - Pat Valenzuela isn't dreaming anymore. He's really back on Arazi, the horse that dreams are made of.

Trainer Francois Boutin planned to put Arazi through his final pre-Kentucky Derby workout today with Valenzuela, his regular rider, aboard.

"This will be the first time I've ridden him since the Breeders' Cup," the jockey said. "Other than that, only in my dreams."

Despite a large field, there is no other horse in Saturday's race, Valenzuela says. "Arazi, Arazi, Arazi, Arazi — that's my opinion of this race," the jockey said.

The 1 1/4-mile Derby will be run at Churchill Downs, where Arazi won the Breeders' Cup Juvenile last Nov. 2 in his only start outside France and stamped himself as a potential super horse.

Boutin arrived at Churchill Downs Tuesday night and took over the 2-year-old champion's training regimen on Wednesday, sending the colt out for a gallop under exercise rider Raymond Lamomaca.

Boutin got a brief scare when another horse, the 6-year-old Dr. Bizarre, fell on the track near Arazi and died of a heart attack.

"I'm sure it bothered me more than Arazi," Boutin said.

Boutin said Arazi's final work would be over seven furlongs, cantering the first five and breezing the final two. Arazi will relax the day before the Derby.

Facing the likes of A.P. Indy, Technology, Pine Bluff and another highly regarded European import, Dr. Devious, Boutin said during a news conference Wednesday that he was taking nothing for granted.

"I have great confidence in Arazi, but there's always a little bit of worry," Boutin said. "This time, he carries the whole race on his back."

"Last year, people didn't pay much attention to him. This time, there are 19 starters, and 18 are going to have their eyes on him, so it's more difficult."

Valenzuela has been aboard Arazi only twice before, once for a workout just before the Breeders' Cup and again in the race.

"He's a pretty easy horse to handle," Valenzuela said. "I just hope we get the break and get him in comfortable position."

The jockey has another hope, too. If Arazi wins the Derby, he wants to ride him in the other Triple Crown races — the Preakness on May 16 and Belmont Stakes on June 6.

Home teams victorious in NHL playoffs

By The Associated Press

There will be a Game 7 in all four Wales Conference playoff series.

That was assured Wednesday night when the Hartford Whalers, New Jersey Devils, Buffalo Sabres and the defending Stanley Cup champion Pittsburgh Penguins won on home ice.

The Whalers did in the most dramatic fashion, beating Montreal 2-1 on Yvon Corveau's goal 24 seconds into overtime. The Penguins did it impressively, riding the magnificence of Mario Lemieux to a 6-4 comeback decision over Washington.

The Devils took their local rivals, the New York Rangers, 5-3, as Chris Terrier made a superb turnaround in goal. And Buffalo set a franchise record for goals in routing Boston 9-3.

All four series will conclude Friday night, with the winners meeting in the next round.

On Thursday night, Winnipeg is at Vancouver and Minnesota is at Detroit in seventh games in the Campbell Conference. The Edmonton Oilers and Chicago Blackhawks already have advanced.

Penguins 6, Capitals 4

Lemieux scored twice and figured in all but one goal as the Penguins rallied after allowing four straight goals.

"Mario played a great game, a super game," Penguins coach Scotty Bowman said. "I have coached a lot of great players ... but he is right at the top of his game. I have never seen a guy play so inspired."

Pittsburgh can become the ninth team in NHL history to win a series after trailing 3-1 by winning Game 7 on Friday in Landover, Md. Four teams in this year's playoffs — Buffalo, Detroit, Vancouver and Pittsburgh — have deadlocked series after trailing 3-1. The Penguins never have rallied from a 3-1 playoff deficit in the franchise's 25-year history.

"This is the last thing we wanted after leading the series 3-1," the Capitals' Mike Ridley said.

The Penguins, who trailed 4-2 after leading 2-0, stormed back behind Lemieux's playmaking and scoring for the game's final four goals.

The Penguins' power play, nonexistent as they fell behind 2-0 in the series, converted four of five opportunities.

On the winning goal, Lemieux skated in from the left circle and deked goaltender Don Beaupre with a succession of moves before directing in the puck from the side of the net.

Whalers 2, Canadiens 1

Frank Pietrangolo kept the Whalers breathing with 42 saves, then Corveau lifted them into Game 7.

Hartford's Murray Craven hounded Montreal defenseman Kevin Haller behind the Canadiens net early in overtime. Haller tried to dump the puck back in the corner, but it bounced right to Andrew Cassels.

Cassels found Corveau in front, and Corveau scored his third playoff goal by beating Patrick Roy with a wrist shot.

"I just threw it in there. I didn't know where it was going. I just put it toward the net," Corveau said.

An announced crowd of only 8,262 was on hand to see the Whalers force a Game 7 Friday night at Montreal. The only other Whalers playoff crowd that was smaller was the 5,602 at Game 3.

The Whalers are 0-2 in seventh games. The Canadiens, who have made it past the first round each season since 1983, are 8-7 in seventh games.

Devils 5, Rangers 3

Rebounding from a poor performance in Game 5, Terrier, the Devils' acrobatic goaltender, shut down the Rangers with 27 saves. Terrier was driven from Monday's game after giving up five goals in 15 shots.

New York's Brian Leetch tied the game 3-3 at 15:03 of the second period, but 40 seconds later, Zdeno Ciger connected for New Jersey. Peter Stastny clinched it with his second goal of the game with 6:28 to go.

A total of 118 minutes in penalties were called as a result of a post-game brawl and four players received game misconducts: Scott Stevens and Peter Stastny of the Devils, Tie Domi and Jeff Beukeboom of the Rangers. Eight players were penalized in all.

Sign-ups are Sunday for basketball camp

The Top O' Texas Boys' Basketball Camp is set for June 15-19 at the Pampa's McNeely Fieldhouse.

Sign-ups continue from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m. Sunday at the fieldhouse.

The camp is for entering third graders through entering ninth graders.

The camp will be directed by Pampa head boys' basketball coach Robert Hale.

Lady Harvesters ready for regionals

The Pampa High girls' track team take another step in the journey that leads to the Class 4A state meet next month in Austin.

That next step is the Region 1-4A meet Friday and Saturday at San Angelo. And the Lady Harvesters can't start soon enough.

"The girls are ready to go. It's time to run," said Pampa head girls' coach Mike Lopez.

The Lady Harvesters will be competing in 10 events at San Angelo, giving them an excellent shot at winning the regional championship.

"One thing that's in our favor is experience. We've been there before and that has a lot to do with how well a team performs," added Lopez.

Pampa is expected to pull in a lot of points from its powerful relay teams. The 1600, 400 and 800-meter relays all came in first at the District 1-4A meet, which was won by the Lady Harvesters.

Nikki Ryan is entered in both the long jump and triple jump events. Shanna Molitor competes in the 100 and Kelly Haines will be tossing the discus.

"Nikki is capable of going to state in both jumps and Shanna has a good chance in the 100. Kelly has had a good week. She's been throwing the discus consistently around 128 feet," Lopez said.

Other regional qualifiers include Marcy Leal in the 3200, Betrice Jackson, in the 400 and Bridgett Mathis in the 200.

Jackson, Mathis, Molitor, Ryan, Shelly Young, Christy Jones, and Elisha Calloway are members of the district-winning relay teams.

"If we go down there and perform like we're capable of doing, we've got a good chance of winning it," Lopez said. "Wichita Falls Hirshi is probably the team to beat, but it they have a bad day we could take the team title."

The finals in the triple jump and discus events will be held Friday.

Andy Cavalier was the only regional qualifier for Pampa in the boys' division. He finished second in the triple jump at the district meet.

Girls' softball season opens at Optimist Park

Panhandle Transfer and Mr. Gattis opened the Pampa Optimist girls' softball season with wins earlier this week.

Panhandle, which defeated Energy Service, 24-12, used 23 hits and 13 walks to plate eight runs in each of the first three innings.

Twelve different batters contributed to the Panhandle hit parade. Getting big hits were Kim Menefee, Amanda Herpeche and Gina Tice. Others who contributed two more hits to the winning cause included Tasha Velasquez, Vanessa Fisher, Katy McComas, Rita Rogers, Jordanna Young, Erica Dominguez and C.C. Chervenka.

Winning pitcher was Gina Tice, who gave up only four runs in the pitching the first three innings. Amanda Herpeche came on to pitch the final inning to close out the win.

Mr. Gattis overcame a four-run deficit to defeat Farm Bureau, 18-11.

Winning pitcher was Tiffany

Erpelding, who struck out five, walked seven and gave up seven hits.

Angela Brown was the leading hitter for Mr. Gattis with two singles and a triple. Leslie Clark had two singles and Tiffany Erpelding had a single and home run.

Crystal Angel had two singles and Mandy Raines scored twice for Farm Bureau.

Losing pitcher was Laci Thrasher, who struck out five, walked 10 and allowed 14 hits.

Injured Foyt plans racing comeback at Indy 500

HOUSTON (AP) — A.J. Foyt, who is recovering from a fractured shoulder he suffered in a crash a month ago, will begin practicing Monday to attempt to make his 35th consecutive start in the Indianapolis 500.

Publisher Anne Fornoro said Tuesday that Foyt, 57, is feeling well enough to drive and will be in Indianapolis on Monday to practice for the May 24 race.

In addition to making his 35th consecutive start, Foyt will be going for a record-setting fifth Indianapolis 500 title.

There had been some doubt after the crash in Phoenix last month whether Foyt would recover in time for the Indianapolis race.

"There had been some talk about Indy being his last race," Fornoro said, "but I think he's going to continue racing after that. I really don't know if he's ever going to retire."

Foyt was not at his Houston garage Tuesday afternoon and could not be reached for comment on his plans, the Houston Chronicle reported today. But the publisher said Foyt would attend the Kentucky Derby on Saturday and then head to Indianapolis.

The Indianapolis Motor Speedway is open for practice Friday, but Foyt has made a habit of starting late, in order to see the Derby. He owns a thoroughbred horse farm near Waller, and his brother Tony is a horse trainer.

Foyt, Al Unser Sr. and Rick Mears share the record of four Indy 500 victories apiece. But Foyt, a native of Houston, has not won a race of any kind in 11 years.

He has had a crash-filled year so far. He wrecked a car while practicing for January's Copper Classic in Phoenix, crashed two cars at Daytona in February and rammed the wall and fractured his shoulder in Phoenix earlier this month while practicing for the Valvoline 500.

Volleyball tournament set for May 23

A semi-power co-ed volleyball tournament, sponsored by the Pampa Lady Harvesters' volleyball program, will be held May 23 in McNeely Fieldhouse.

Prizes include t-shirts and one volleyball for first place, and t-shirts for second place. Rules regarding UIL eligibility will be observed.

He also mangled both legs in September 1990 in a wreck near Elkhart Lake, Wis. It was the most serious accident of his career.

He was limping and in much pain a year ago when he shocked the racing world by qualifying on the front row for the Indianapolis 500.

Foyt was knocked out of last year's race in the 24th lap when debris from another car struck his Chevrolet Lola and caused him to finish 28th.

Foyt had promised to make last year's Indianapolis 500 his final race. But he later rescinded his retirement decision, saying, "I'll never be able to voluntarily give up racing."

The best two out of three matches will be played and a team must win by two points. There will be an 8-minute time limit for each game. There will be no time limit in the finals.
