Chad Chairez has his sights set on winning a second consecutive high school wrestling championship.

Chad Chairez is staying focused on one particular goal as he looks ahead to the next school year.

He wants to become Pampa High's first two-time state wrestling champion.

Chairez, a junior, defeated Anthony Mendez of El Paso Del Valle last February in Dallas to become the first PHS wrestler to win a state championship.

"I know there's going to be a lot of pressure on me to win it again, but it's something I want to do," Chairez said.

Actually, Chairez had won a state wrestling championship before last season.

As a member of the Pampa Takedown Club, he won the Texas AAU wrestling crown as a fifth-grader in the 71-pound class.

"The competition was pretty good back then, but the competition was quite a bit tougher at the high school level," he added.

Chairez became interested in wrestling in the fourth grade. Chairez quickly caught on to the sport, and a year later he was Texas' most dominant wrestler in his age group and weight class.

"I had heard about the wrestling program here when I was in grade school and I thought I'd give it a try. I really liked it," Chairez said.

When Chairez was a freshman, Pampa High launched its first wrestling program. Chairez continued to excel at the high school level and he qualified for the regional tournament as a freshman and junior. He missed out on going to state by losing in overtime both years.

As a junior, Chairez almost missed postseason action because of a nagging back injury. He won his opening match in the district meet and then had to drop out because of back problems. Seeded fourth at regionals, he made a rapid recovery and beat Carlos Gancedo in the finals to advance to state.

"His back started bothering him again at state and we had to get him treatments. I was really impressed with the way Chad came back," said Pampa coach Steve Kuhn. "He has a lot of dedication."

Chairez pulled off the biggest upset of the tournament before he even reached the 125-pound finals against Mendez.

Laaron Dawson of Austin Anderson was the reigning European champion and a heavy favorite to win the gold medal. He compiled a perfect 33-0 record the year before and was currently unbeaten going into state quarterfinals against Chairez.

"I found out how good Dawson was from talking to the other coaches and I decided not to tell Chad about him until after the match," Kuhn said.

Chairez, however, proved to be unbeatable. He outlasted Dawson and pulled off an 8-6 decision.

After blanking Roland Robbel of St. Thomas, 6-0, in the semifinals, Chairez was ready to take on Mendez, who was state runnerup a year ago.

After a 0-0 tie in regulation, the match went into overtime and still neither wrestler could score. Chairez won a coin flip to determine the top or bottom position and he choose to go on top. Mendez was unable to score an escape or reversal in the 30-second time limit, giving Chairez the win.

An earlier defeat had helped Chairez plan his winning strategy. "We were wrestling in a tournament in Kansas and I had Chad take the bottom position because of his ability to get away," Kuhn said. "Chad wasn't able to get loose, so we learned from that experience."

For the season, Chairez compiled a glittering 30-5 record.

"Getting to state was a long road for Chad because of his back injury. I've never coached a more dedicated wrestler. He does everything we ask of him," Kuhn said.

Three other Harvesters - Phil Sexton, Tom Thompson and Tadd Alfonsi - also qualified for the state tournament, and Kuhn looks for even better things ahead for the PHS mat program.

"We've got two or three seniors coming in that are going to give us some great leadership. Coach (Murray) Lord was also a great asset for us this past season. He helped with the conditioning and I felt like our wrestlers were in better condition than a lot of the wrestlers at state because of him," Kuhn said.

Chairez, who is also a wide receiver on the Harvester football team, plans on moving to a higher weight class next season.

"Going to a heavier weight should make me a little stronger. Some wrestlers have trouble making their weight, but it's never been tough for me. I guess I'm used to it," Chairez said.

Chairez looks for the wrestling program to keep getting stronger. "There were some of the eighth graders who were good wrestlers last season and they're going to get better," he said.

Chairez experienced some 'deja vu' immediately after winning the state title.

"I think my first thoughts were about winning state back when I was in the fifth grade," he recalls. "And here I was winning it again."

A possible third state championship is now in Chairez's thoughts.

Judge upholds subpoena for records of House bank

By LAURIE ASSEO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A federal judge today upheld a subpoena seeking a massive release of records from the now-closed House bank.

U.S. District Judge John Garrett Penn denied the challenge brought by five House members, saying they "do not have a legitimate expectation of privacy in the records."

The full House voted last week to turn over by noon today the records demanded in a federal grand jury subpoena. The records involve 41 rolls of microfilm showing every check processed by the bank over a 39-month period ending Dec. 31, 1991.

"The House having acted, the court should not now entertain this action," Penn said.

Clifford Sloan, attorney for Rep. Sidney Yates, D-Ill. - one of the five House members challenging the subpoena - said he would ask Penn to delay his ruling's effect so it could be appealed.

Penn rejected the five House members' argument that the subpoena was too broad and amounted to a fishing expedition.

"Both the GAO (General Accounting Office) and the House have recognized and confirmed that there have been a substantial number of overdrafts by some members of the House," the judge wrote.

"The court can understand the concern of those members who did not have an overdraft during the relevant period, and even those who may have had only a few overdrafts during that period," Penn said.

However, he noted that special counsel Malcolm Wilkey had promised to return, unreviewed, copies of checks written by about 170 House members who had no overdrafts. Wilkey also promised to guard the confidentiality of the records.

The other four Democratic House members who brought the challenge were Reps. Henry B. Gonzalez of Texas, Jolene Unsoeld of Washington, Ted Weiss of New York, and Craig Washington of Texas.

Penn said they contended the records "are their records as members of the House." But the judge said the records were never in lawmakers' custody and that they must be treated the same as depositors in any other bank regarding their privacy rights.

Sloan said that if the judge refused to stay his ruling, "we'll have to explore our options to limit the harmful effects of the important constitutional failures and failures of personal privacy."

He said one option was to seek a court order to govern treatment of the bank records to bar public disclosure.

The House ethics committee has reported that 325 past and present members wrote more than 24,000 overdrafts at the bank.

Wilkey, a retired judge hired by the Justice Department to handle the case, has said he has found evidence of check "kiting," or a deliberate effort to draw against nonexistent funds.

A number of Democrats said last week that by agreeing to comply with the subpoena, the House was handing the Bush administration a political gold mine. Lawmakers warned that turning over the records could lead to leaks about individual members' personal checks during the fall political campaigns.

During Friday's court argument, Wilkey said his office, in separating the checks of the 170 House members with no overdrafts, would see that they were "never reviewed by any counsel or investigator."

But attorney Alan Morrison - who represented Unsoeld, Weiss and Washington - questioned whether it would be fair to provide the records of lawmakers who had only a few overdrafts. Unsoeld wrote only one check that overdraw by 38 cents, he said.

Wilkey also said Friday his job was not only to indict wrongdoers but to clear the innocent.

Morrison contended it would be a "perversion of functions" for the Justice Department during the election season "to issue a declaration of innocence (for some members) ... and a declaration of 'still under investigation'" for others.

'Normal' rush hour under way

Curfew lifted despite killing by guardsmen

By KAREN BALL
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Commuters crowded onto freeways, children returned to classrooms and a curfew was lifted today as this city aimed for its first normal workday since the deadliest urban rioting in 75 years erupted.

Overnight, the largely calm weekend was shaken when National Guardsmen shot and killed a motorist who tried to run them down. The first shooting by troops on riot patrol brought the death toll to 47.

But Mayor Tom Bradley today lifted the dusk-to-dawn curfew, deciding to stick by a decision he made Sunday, before the National Guard confrontation.

Even before dawn broke, there were signs the city was getting back to normal. Commuters - after abandoning the highways in the crush of last week's violence - headed back to the freeways on a foggy morning that obscured the downtown skyline.

"It's a normal Monday, all right," a traffic reporter told radio listeners after rattling off a list of collisions and backups.

City workers removed barriers to exits on the Harbor Freeway that were erected to block traffic into the stricken areas.

In the heart of the ruin in South Central, doughnut shops that escaped damage opened for business, serving people as they went to work, while schoolchildren filed back to school.

"We're a little tense today," William Curtis said as he walked his 10-year-old son to school. "It was a wild week. You can't help but be a little nervous."

Downtown, the convention trade appeared to be picking up again. Bellboys at the plush Sheraton Grande, which nearly emptied last week when worried business travelers fled the city, greeted new arrivals. Workers inside set up coffee urns for an Atlantic Richfield Co. stockholders meeting.

"There's still tension out there, but as far as we're concerned, we think everything's OK," said Howard Edwards, an executive with the Los Angeles-based oil company. Stockholders flew in from around the country, though he said turnout might be down slightly.

The riots erupted on Wednesday, raging for three days and nights. Thousands of Marines and National Guardsmen continued to patrol the streets today; federal officials have given no word on how much longer they would be activated.

After the curfew took effect Sunday night, three National Guard troops killed a Hispanic man in a sports car who tried to crash a barricade west of downtown, police and the military said. The guardsmen fired 14 times, the military said in a statement.

Otherwise, only sporadic violence had been reported Sunday: Three people were arrested after a police station was fired on; gunmen shot at Marines standing guard in Long Beach, but the Marines didn't return fire; a police car in South Central Los Angeles was shot at; Marines in Walnut Park, adjacent to South Central, were fired on from an auto, but they didn't return the fire. Later, two men who tried to run a roadblock there were arrested. No one was hurt.

Clergy all over the city spoke of the riot from the pulpit.

"We have to forgive those who have been violent and pray for them. We have to use this tragedy as a chance for renewal," the Rev. Jang Kyun told the Central Evangelical Church congregation in Koreatown, where many stores were set upon by arsonists and looters.

Cardinal Roger Mahony, Roman Catholic archbishop of Los Angeles, urged looters to return merchandise to parishes, no questions asked.

"If we're going to rebuild the city, we have to clear the state," he said at Mass. "We don't care what it is, just bring it back."

A telephone tip triggered a series of police raids that yielded more than three truckloads of looted goods.

Courts held rare Sunday sessions to arraign some of the nearly 11,400 people arrested in the violence touched off by the acquittal of four white policemen in the videotaped beating of black motorist Rodney King.

Besides the 47 killed, more than 2,300 people were injured. Damage was put at $717 million. The death toll surpasses the 43 killed in the 1967 Detroit riots. In 1917, race riots in East St. Louis, Ill., claimed 48 lives.

Restrictions on city bus service in South Central were lifted Sunday.

"It's progressing toward quiet and normal," said Highway Patrol officer Esmeralda Leos. "We're ready in case things take a turnabout, but we're hoping for the best."

For the most part - if not for piles of smoldering rubble and troops armed with M-16s - Sunday could have been any other perfect spring day.

Children on bikes meandered amid the ruins; boys played baseball and soccer at a park near a leveled shopping center; families held picnics or barbecues in neighborhoods hit hardest by the looting and arson. A bride in a full-length white gown stood outside a graffiti-covered building in South Central with her bridesmaids.

While the affluent and downtown alike pitched in to help shop owners clean up their burned-out stores, the curious were out with camcorders, videotaping some of the hundreds of hollowed buildings.

"I want Los Angeles to wake up from the nightmare," said 18-year-old Ericka Hernandez, who helped sweep out a supermarket in South Central.

The National Guard troops, for the most part, appeared at ease, drinking sodas and taking pictures. But they kept their rifles ready as they sat atop supermarkets in patio chairs and scouted the landscape with binoculars.

Two were perched on the roof of an untouched Burger King among the charred ruins. The sign proclaimed the franchise as black-owned, to ward off violence.

At a looted South Central grocery store, employees picked through the rubble and loaded grocery carts with salvageable items for the needy.

Outside, scavengers picked through the trash for dirty boxes of grits, cans of beer and packages of ice cream cones.

"We're going to start rebuilding," said store manager Boeun Lee. "The people who looted - they were just a few crazy people. The people who live around here, they cried, the same as we do."

A sign over a dentist's office in Koreatown read: "They burned my place, but not my spirit."

Gun bust nets former official

BROWNSVILLE (AP) - The former vice president of El Salvador has been arrested on the border in an attempt to smuggle handguns out of the United States, an official said today.

Rodolfo Antonio Castillo Claramount, vice president of El Salvador from 1984 to 1989, and two others are charged with trying to export the guns without permits or declaring them to Customs.

They are being held without bond in the Cameron County jail and face a detention hearing on Wednesday, said Tony Vargas, agent in charge of the Brownsville office of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The three men were arrested Friday as they tried to drive across the Gateway International Bridge.

Child psychologist dies at 65

NEW YORK (AP) — Lee Salk, a child psychologist who taught common-sense parenting through books, TV appearances and a magazine column, has died at 65.

Lee Salk

Salk, brother of polio vaccine inventor Jonas Salk, died of cancer Saturday, said his wife, Mary Jane.

He was a frequent guest on such programs as "Today," "Good Morning, America" and "Nightline." For 20 years, he wrote a monthly column for McCall's magazine. He also wrote eight books on parenting.

Among his themes was discipline. "Children are like scientists," he once said. "They test hypotheses all the time to see what the world is like. But if their world is chaotic — if the rules keep changing and the parents' reactions keep changing — they never learn how to cope with freedom."

Salk also was a pioneer in research on heartbeat sounds in infants, sudden infant death syndrome and the effects of early experience on later behavior.

His latest research focused on the relationship between adolescent suicide and conditions at the time of a child's birth.

Salk wrote the books "How to Raise a Human Being," "What Every Child Would Like His Parents to Know," "Preparing for Parenthood," "What Every Child Would Like Parents to Know About Divorce," "Dear Dr. Salk," "Ask Dr. Salk" and "My Father, My Son: Intimate Relationships."

Another book, "Familyhood, Nurturing the Values That Matter," will be published in August.

"He told parents to pick up your baby when he cries, that it's hard to spoil a newborn baby, that parents should tell their children the truth," said his son, Eric Salk. "The reason he was so successful in getting messages across was because he used common sense."

Salk was born in New York City, the son of an immigrant tailor.

His other brother, Herman Salk, a veterinarian who died recently, traveled the world helping to improve the care of cattle and other animals.

At the time of his death, Lee Salk was a professor at Cornell University Medical Center and an adjunct professor at Brown University, as well as a psychologist at two New York medical centers.

DOE opens doors to WIPP

CARLSBAD, N.M. (AP) — Nearly 800 people from around New Mexico toured the Waste Isolation Pilot Plant near Carlsbad, and many came away impressed.

"I didn't realize it was feasible or possible to take as many precautions as they're taking," said Michael Woods of Panhandle, Texas, who was visiting relatives in the area.

Wilson Martin of Las Cruces said, "I expected it to be high-tech, but I didn't expect it to be this high-tech."

The Department of Energy held its annual Community Day at WIPP on Saturday to educate people about the $1 billion facility.

WIPP is a DOE project designed to bury plutonium-contaminated waste from the nation's defense industry 2,150 feet below the surface in salt beds 26 miles southeast of Carlsbad.

The plant has yet to receive any waste. A bill in the U.S. Senate would allow a test phase of up to eight years to demonstrate that WIPP is suitable for permanent storage of nuclear waste.

Meals on Wheels seeks assistance

Pampa Meals on Wheels, a non-profit organization, is seeking donations of items that can be sold at a garage sale to raise money for the organization.

Frances Braswell, a volunteer with Pampa Meals on Wheels, said people interested in making donations can call 669-1007 to have the items collected. Meals on Wheels volunteers will begin collecting the goods on May 15.

The sale is scheduled for June 5-7 in the north end of the Pampa Mall.

American firm to track money for Russians

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russia has hired an American company to track vast sums of cash and commodities spirited out of the country and into secret bank accounts and investments in the United States and elsewhere.

Estimates of the sums involved run as high as $100 billion.

"We've already found apartment buildings, hotels, ships, art collections, physical assets of various kinds," said Jules Kroll, head of the New York company hired by Boris Yeltsin's government.

Yegor Gaidar, Russian deputy prime minister, said in Moscow in March that the government was determined to track down "privatization by officials for their personal benefit." He said the campaign would seek out "capital concealed abroad by individuals and Soviet organizations."

Igor Oleynik, a Russian economist living in the United States, wrote in December that "the Communist Party and KGB set up special business departments that over 20 years enabled them to accumulate and invest abroad at least $100 billion and probably much more."

Kroll declined in a recent interview to put a figure on how much was involved.

"There's all sorts of wild speculation," he said.

He said his investigation has uncovered bank accounts around the world set up for Russian officials taking bribes to give favorable deals to private companies.

"You have them (bank accounts) in the United States, in England, Greece, Cyprus, Germany, Switzerland, Holland, Luxembourg, Hong Kong," he said. "They're everywhere. This is not just a few corrupt officials. You're talking about hundreds of people who are engaged in conflict of interest and who are accepting bribes."

Kroll said his company was examining transactions by the state enterprises that controlled all of Soviet industry, as well as joint ventures that often are set up to move commodities and cash out of the country.

Kroll Associates gained international recognition for its role in tracing the assets of former President Ferdinand Marcos of the Philippines, President Jean-Claude Duvalier of Haiti and Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Kroll said he is receiving full cooperation from the Russian government as well as from Western governments "quite anxious to help the Russians make it." The West has sunk $15.6 billion into aid to Russia in the past two years.

The company also gets information from individuals who know of illegal transactions.

"They come forward for a variety of reasons," Kroll said. "Some of them come forward just out of desire for doing the right thing.

"Some of them come forward because they were burned in a transaction, they felt they were owed a commission and it wasn't met. Some of them are trying to harm a competitor they feel is operating in an illegal or improper way."

His employees approach Western companies involved in major transactions in Russia with a letter of introduction from Yeltsin's government.

Kroll said the companies "are basically opening up their books and records and showing us where they paid the money and what the nature of those transactions were. What we're doing is following the trail back to the receiving bank, which ultimately are Russian banks, and seeing where the money went from there."

Then they determine whether the money went where it was supposed to or was diverted.

Kroll identified three major areas of corruption.

One is state enterprises the government is trying to restructure into private companies.

Many of those enterprises have done business in other countries for many years. Even during the transition to private enterprise they are required to send a portion of their profits to the Russian government, which desperately needs the hard currency.

"To a great extent that has not been done," said Kroll. "State enterprises are in effect hoarding hard currencies overseas outside of Russia."

Gaidar called attention in March to a decree requiring companies to register their foreign deposits.

"Under the law we have a right to confiscate unregistered deposits," he said.

Healing begins at school after fatal school siege

OLIVEHURST, Calif. (AP) — Hundreds of students received counseling at a rural high school where a dropout angry over a failing grade killed his former teacher and three students, wounded nine others and held scores hostage.

Not long after Eric Houston surrendered to police outside Lindhurst High School after the 8 1/2-hour siege Friday, counselors were ready to help youngsters, teachers and families grieve.

Houston, 20, told his captors the shootings were revenge for a failing grade three years ago from history teacher Robert Brens, according to Cory Dawson, 16, one of 80 students taken hostage. Houston blamed his failure to graduate on Brens, who died in the shooting spree.

Houston, who dropped out in 1989, was to be arraigned Tuesday on four counts of murder.

"I had to go see the counselors because I couldn't deal with it," said Lisa Robinson, a 17-year-old junior, whose friend Judy Marion Davis was killed in the incident. She was among hundreds of students and others who took advantage of psychological help over the weekend.

"It's going to take some time to get over this," she said.

Investigators believe the woundings and all but Brens' slaying were random, said Yuba County Sheriff Gary Tindel, who said he would urge the death penalty for Houston.

A 20-year-old man who said he was Houston's best friend and asked to be identified only as "David," told the Sacramento Bee that Houston said at least three times in recent months that he wanted to shoot people at Lindhurst High.

"He used to say he would just walk in the front door, pop off some people, leave out the back door, cross the baseball field in back, climb the fence and take off," he said.

David said he had dismissed Houston's talk as fantasy. But as soon as he learned of the hostage siege, David "knew it was him," he told the paper.

At the high school in Olivehurst, a town of 10,000 people 40 miles north of Sacramento, the flag flew at half-staff. School was canceled until later in the week.

Teppi Long, 12, also lost a friend, 16-year-old Beamon Anton Hill.

"I kept telling myself it wasn't true," Teppi said. "That he was going to call me, and it was all going to be all right. Every time my brother tried to make me laugh today, I felt sad because Beamon wasn't here to laugh, too."

People also joined in mourning 50 miles southwest of Sacramento in Clayton, Brens' hometown.

Lindhurst High was the first teaching job for the 28-year-old Brens, who loved both history and teen-agers, said a former neighbor, Walt Hoffman.

"When he was with teen-agers he always treated them like equals," Hoffman said. "He never talked down them. All my kids loved him."

"This is just a terrible waste of a good life."

Tilton: Blame it on God

DALLAS (AP) — Televangelist Robert Tilton says the people that are suing him should direct their anger toward God — not him.

Eight lawsuits have been filed against Tilton since February and many of the plaintiffs have sued because his promises of help through miracle healing failed.

"If you want to be mad at somebody, get mad at God; don't sue me," the preacher said Sunday during the morning service. "We base our healing and our prosperity on faith, and faith is something you cannot see. And you cannot sue something you cannot see."

"If anybody ought to sue anybody, you folks ought to sue somebody trying to steal your church," he said.

Tilton is being criminally investigated by the Texas Attorney General's office. Also, the U.S. postal inspector, the FBI and the Internal Revenue Service have been conducting inquiries into Tilton and his ministry.

Tilton denies any wrongdoing. "You know we got some folks right now that are real aggravated because they didn't get their prayers answered that they sent in to me," Tilton said Sunday.

"Basically ... they are being taken advantage of by glory-seeking attorneys, and when the dust settles, everyone will know it."

Tilton encouraged his supporters to give extra money to help support the operations of his Farmers Branch-based Word of Faith World Outreach Center Church.

"If money is the root of all evil, then you need to get all evil, then you need to get all of it out of your pockets right now," he said Sunday. "Not a bad idea."

He said it costs about $250,000 each month to keep the church and its projects afloat.

Tilton's ministry recently purchased all of the broadcast time on KLDT-TV (Channel 55) in Lewisville.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Check episode has ill effect

The House "Ethics" Committee recently released the official list of all House members who bounced checks at the House bank between July 1988 and the month the bank was closed, October 1991.

The Oscar statue for Best Excuse goes to House Speaker Tom Foley, who bounced two checks. He explained that "the bank was run in a very sloppy way so that members' deposits weren't always credited on time." The Oscar for Best Supporting Excuse goes to Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, who bounced 28 checks: He also blamed it on bad management at the bank. He pledged to deposit $614.60 to the U.S. Treasury to cover interest and fines that a normal bank would have charged him; treasury officials should bite the coins he hands over.

Now, these men blame the bank's managers. But who managed the managers? The House Democratic leadership: Reps. Gephardt, Foley, and David Bonior, the House whip, who wrote 76 rubber checks.

Foley announced that the release of the recent offenders "brings to a close this whole matter." House "Ethics" Committee Chairman Matthew McHugh echoed the speaker's words: "The people on this list did nothing wrong. They are not people who abused their banking privileges." Both men are not listening to the folks back home. This issue is going to stick around for months, even years.

For one thing, the House released records going back only to July 1988. What about before then? Let's have all the records, dating back to the House bank's starting in 1830. And let's see not just the number of bad checks written, but each check's amount.

For another thing, the U.S. Justice Department is investigating possible violations of U.S. law, including the possible failure to report to federal authorities transactions, such as loans on the House bank, involving $10,000 or more. Aside from questions of legality, Rep. McHugh surely has gall maintaining that House members deserved special "banking privileges" that no one else in the United States enjoyed!

Wait. There's more. Rep. McHugh himself bounced one check. And the man he replaced at the top of the "Ethics" Committee, Rep. Louis Stokes of Ohio, was the third biggest offender, writing 551 rubber checks. At least Rep. Stokes recused himself from the investigation.

Do our congressmen fail to understand what's happening? They see that the checks amounted to only a few thousand dollars, at most. No tax money was used - except to pay their $129,500 salaries and provide space, furniture, and workers at the House bank. So, they figure, it was no big deal.

Whatever congressmen think, here's what's happening now. The American people got a small peek into the goings-on in Congress: the perks, the pleasures, the special tax-free commissaries, the bank, the subsidized haircuts and health spas, the eat-and-run cafeteria. This peek made the people sick. And the people are going to institute changes. Soon.

"Talk about HARASSMENT!"

How not to take a poll

It was like this. The American Council for the Arts wanted a nice poll that would show how much the American people love the arts and want to support them. The council especially wanted a poll that would favor individual grants from the National Endowment for the Arts.

So the head honchos of the council got a grant from Philip Morris, and they retained pollster Lou Harris. At 71, Harris is old enough to be called the Venerable Lou. He knows a thing or two about polling. You bet he does. He knows that 99 percent of a public opinion poll lies in framing the questions to be asked.

So the Venerable Lou took personal charge of this enterprise. He framed some hardball questions that would get to the very core of how people feel about the arts. In February his pollsters telephoned 1,500 adults and asked them:
"Do you ever find the arts give you an uplift from everyday experiences?" By jingoos, 70 percent of the respondents said yes.

The Venerable Lou asked them, "How important do you think it is to the quality of life in the community to have such things as museums, theater and concert halls in the community?" That was a sockdolager. The respondents chewed on their pencils and thought. Forty-eight percent said very important; 36 percent said somewhat important.

After a series of 13 questions to soften folks up, and to get them thinking the arts are great, our peerless pollster stopped stalling around:

"If arts organizations, such as art museums, dance, opera, theater groups and symphony orchestras, need financial assistance to operate, do you feel that () should provide assistance or not?"

James J. Kilpatrick

Sixty percent knew the right answer. They shouted, "The federal government should provide assistance!"

The Venerable Lou framed some wicked questions about individual artists. Did the respondents feel that artists "work very hard for very little money?" Yes, Lou! That's right, Lou! You got it right, man!

Are individual professional artists "highly important to the life of the country as the current and potential creators of the art and culture that the nation needs to be a full and rich place to live?" Said 81 percent: Yessirree bob!

"My name is Lou," said His Eminence. "Let's get down to the nitty-gritty," he said. "The federal government now pays out over $1,000 per capita for defense, $180 for education, and no more than $1.40 for the arts. Would you be willing to pay $25 more in taxes a year for the arts? $15 more? $10 more? $5 more?"

Here the unregenerate respondents, despite all the buttering up, spit in the old professor's eye. Not even half of them were willing to pay $25 more a year in taxes. Thirty percent said they were unwilling to pay even a lousy 5 bucks more in taxes to support the arts.

Recovering from this affront, Dr. Harris concluded with several questions that demanded serious thought: "Do you agree that in order for the arts to come forth with their best and most creative efforts, the arts need to operate freely with a minimum of government control?" Eighty percent said rah, rah, rah. Is a diversity of artistic expression desirable? Sure, Lou, said the pollees. They were getting restless.

And finally: "Government can be helpful to artists in funding their work and in helping them gain recognition, but government must not dictate to the artist what the artist should create. Do you agree or disagree?" Even with that loaded word "dictate," Lou's question could coax a yes from only 75 percent.

The American Council for the Arts put out a happy press release. Behold! A decisive majority of the people firmly support federal government financing of the arts! Heavy majorities provide a clear-cut mandate "that federal control of the substance of what the artists create should not be a condition of federal funding."

I wonder what the response would have been if the Venerable Lou had asked: Do you agree or disagree that $20,000 of your hard-earned taxes should be spent to pay a fellow to translate a work by Ovid into elegiac couplets? Could this be postponed to a time when we are not running a $400 billion deficit? Yes or no?

Well, the American Council for the Arts wanted a nice, unbiased poll. Say it for the Venerable Lou: He gave 'em their money's worth.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, May 4, the 125th day of 1992. There are 241 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

Fifty years ago, on May 4, 1942, the Battle of the Coral Sea, the first naval clash fought entirely with carrier aircraft, began during World War II. When the battle ended four days later, Japanese losses were such that a planned invasion of Australia through Port Moresby was abandoned.

On this date:

In 1626, Dutch explorer Peter Minuit landed on Manhattan Island.

In 1776, Rhode Island declared its freedom from England, two months before the Declaration of Independence was adopted.

In 1916, responding to a demand from President Wilson, Germany agreed to limit its submarine warfare, thereby averting a diplomatic break with Washington.

Home away from home

A home away from home is not all fun. The places you enjoy on vacation are different places when you own a cabin, a condo or a home there.

Ownership implies responsibility. You don't call room service when you want something to eat - you shop for it, prepare it and then clean up after it.

You don't complain to the management about leaky plumbing - you ARE the management.

We become possessed by our possessions.

While there are advantages to owning a change-of-pace place in the mountains or at the seashore, maintenance does take some of the fun out of it.

Recently the Harveys have been in Arizona's Valley of the Sun, fugitives from the cold and snow. But it's not all been golf and tennis.

It's also been a leaky basement and endless lawn tending and a security system that decides on its own whether and when to summon police in the middle of the night.

What one must learn to do to enjoy a retreat is to assume that we take most of our nettlesome problems with us.

Paul Harvey

At home, we tend chores on a day-by-day basis which keeps us from being overwhelmed.

While following the sun can save some shoveling, it is enjoyable only after we learn to expect and adapt to the invariables that go with us wherever.

There was some tennis and there was some golf and I did walk down the Main Street of Scottsdale with a .45 strapped to my belt.

I'd heard you could in Arizona.

But the one-time countrified village of Scottsdale has become such a sophisticated extension of Phoenix that I wasn't sure they'd still abide by the old laws. They did.

I am a hybrid cowboy at best.

During a recent pack-mule trip into the mountains, a horse shied and we had to shoot a timber rattler in the trail.

When I returned from this trip, Troy Murray, who had shared that expedition, had prepared for me the ugliest welcome-home gift I have ever seen in my life.

A long timber rattler skin all stretched and dried over a golf club.

The head of snake covers the head of the club; with the mouth open it holds a golf ball in its menacing fangs.

But this concealed weapon symbol of the marriage of my two favorite hobbies tends to reveal the essence of both.

Am I happy returning to the big city and my own office conveniences?

In a way.

But I would not trade these days of sunshine and these evenings of sunsets and these nights of being whispered to sleep by the rustle of swaying palm fronds.

It's just that what we all want now and then is to be where we aren't; that's why all that highway traffic moves both ways.

Politically correct hot line tells all

It's blowing them away at Berkeley, sweeping Stanford, mesmerizing Michigan and delighting Duke. So why don't you join the hottest new movement in America today?

Get in step with the politically correct. Use the correct words, wear correct clothes, eat correct food, read correct literature, join correct organizations, support correct causes.

And how do you know what's correct? Call the National Clearinghouse for Politically Correct Stuff. We have a list of two dozen "isms" to be avoided. We have a computer bank of more than half a million words in 500 languages and 3,000 dialects that might hurt somebody's feelings.

Call NCPCS now for answers to all your questions. Ask about this month's special: everything you ever wanted to know about that rabid dog Columbus.

This message is brought to you by the people at Nickpicks. Have a PC day.

Tony: Hello, is this the National Clearinghouse for Politically Correct Stuff?

PC Person: You got it, fella. Nickpicks. How can we help?

Tony: Hey, look, why are you guys knocking Columbus so much? I mean, he discovered the New World, didn't he?

PC Person: Oh my, Tony, we have so much to learn, don't we? Let's begin at the beginning: Columbus did not "discover" the New World. It had already been discovered by peaceful and environmentally aware Native Americans. He explored it, yes. He brought two civilizations together, yes.

Joseph Spear

But he did not discover it. And he kicked off a holocaust. Let me quote the National Council of Churches. What Columbus wrought was "invasion and colonization with legalized occupation, genocide, economic exploitation and a deep level of institutionalized racism and moral decadence."

Tony: Get outta here with that decadent stuff. Italians are good, God-fearing people. No way Columbus could be decadent.

PCP: Go fix your Fiat, Tony.

Mario: I just want to say I'm getting a little tired of you PC people making a scapegoat out of Columbus and the Europeans who followed him. They brought democracy, didn't they? And a legal system and the notion of individual rights? And what did they get in return? Tobacco and syphilis, that's what. Oh yeah, and potato blight.

PCP: Let's not get hostile, Mario. In truth, Columbus introduced brutality to the New World, as well as pestilence and disease and slavery.

Mario: That's bull. The whole world was violent. Indians fought wars before Columbus. They kept slaves, cut out virgin's hearts and sacrificed babies to please the gods, destroyed forests to create fields for crops. The Europeans were not angels and neither were the Indians. You people are simpletons.

PCP: They are not Indians, Mario. Indians live in India. Native Americans live in America. And fools like you are never going to get the truth by reading history written by white European males. Did you know that Europeans brought cows to the New World? Did you know that rain forests are cut down to create pastures to graze cattle? That people around the world are starving because grain is being fed to cows? That it takes 2,400 gallons of water to produce a pound of steak?

Mario: What's the point?

PCP: Thanks to Columbus, we have a greenhouse effect. Thanks to Columbus, people are going hungry. Thanks to Columbus, Los Angeles doesn't have enough water. DID YOU KNOW THAT? AND WHO ARE YOU CALLING A SIMPLETON ANYWAY????

Anna Maria: Hi, you wonderful PC people. I just want you to know that I poured red dye on a Columbus statue today. And I spray-painted "500 Years of Genocide" all over it. Columbus was a tool of patriarchy! Down with patriarchy!

PCP: And chickens, Mario! Europeans brought chickens to the New World! But for Columbus, Frank Perdue would not be abusing chickens as we speak! You hear that Mario? COLUMBUS IS A CHICKEN KILLER!!!

Anna Maria: A white European male chicken killer!

Precautions needed to protect baby from foodborne illnesses

Even a small "dose" of harmful bacteria can make a tiny baby sick with foodborne illness. This is because infants do not yet have fully developed immune systems, the body's defense against invading organisms.

Mothers can protect their babies against the life-threatening dangers of foodborne illness by preparing and handling the baby's food safely and by taking precautions when feeding the child.

When leaving the baby in the care of a sitter or family member, explicit instructions for warming and handling food should be given. Safe food handling and hygiene practices should also be considered when choosing a day care facility.

These suggestions can help prevent the risk of dehydration and other consequences of foodborne illness in your baby:

*Keep everything spotlessly clean. Harmful bacteria can spread from hands, utensils, dish towels, almost anything, to your baby's food. Use detergent and hot water to wash all utensils, including the can opener, which comes into contact with the baby's food.

*Discard leftover formula in the bottle from a previous feeding. Bacteria from the baby's mouth can be introduced into the formula where it can grow and multiply enough to cause illness.

Homemakers' News

*Don't feed your baby from the jar. Again, bacteria from saliva on the spoon contaminates any remaining food in the jar. Transfer food to a dish before feeding. This can also help prevent waste.

*Don't leave baby's milk, formula or food at room temperature. Food left out of the refrigerator for more than two hours may be unsafe. Also, don't leave a bottle in the crib with an older baby where it might be consumed over several hours.

*Follow the manufacturer's recommendations for preparing baby bottles before filling. Observe the "use-by" dates printed on cans of formula.

*Check commercial baby foods to see that the safety button on the lid is down. If the lid doesn't "pop" when opened, or is not safely sealed, do not use it. Also, do not use any jars with rusty lids.

*When making homemade baby food, thoroughly clean the blender or food processor after each making. Use a brush to clean areas around the blender blades or processor parts. Old food particles can harbor bacteria and contaminate other foods put in the appliance.

Observe recommended storage times for milk, formula and baby food. Opened or freshly made baby foods containing only fruits and vegetables can be stored for two to three days in the refrigerator. Keep refrigerated and use meats, egg or meat/vegetable combinations in one to two days. Expressed breast milk may be safe for five days in the refrigerator, formula for two days and whole milk for five days. Foods can be frozen for longer storage, although it is not recommended to freeze formula.

When traveling with the baby, store bottles and food in an insulated cooler. Place the ice chest in the passenger section of the car.

For more information on food safety and nutrition, contact your Gray County/Extension Office.

Fish story will bowl you over

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter from "Bubbie" and her goldfish, Mahzel and Brocha, I had to write.

Twelve years ago, when I was 10 years old, I won a small goldfish at the county fair. Not knowing if it was male or female, I named it Fishface. After a while, thinking it might be lonesome, I bought another goldfish as a companion for Fishface, but after a few weeks, I found the companion floating on its side - dead. Three companions died on me, so I gave up.

Fishface must have been a baby fish when I got it because in the 12 years I've had it, I have had to buy a larger fish bowl three times. Fishface seems content and peppy as ever, and shows no signs of aging, but I would like to know how much longer I can expect it to live. Also, forgive the dumb question, Abby, but how can a person tell a male fish from a female fish?

CURIOUS IN WATERLOO, IOWA

DEAR CURIOUS: Small goldfish can be expected to live about 15 years - if they are healthy, well cared for and not overfed. Goldfish (like some humans) will continue to eat as long as food is available.

It is difficult to tell a male from a female fish - except in the spring, when the male gets little white bumps on his fins and starts chasing females.

Female fish are visibly plumper than males when they are full of roe (eggs) ... in other words, pregnant.

I may be telling you more than you care to know, but my fish expert is a very knowledgeable and patient teacher, employed by The Aquarium Stock Co. in Los Angeles. And when I tell you his name, you will think I'm kidding. It's John Fish!

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: With your years of experience in dealing with people from all over the United States, I am sure you have come across many who do not need to pray, "Slow Me Down, Lord," as Wilferd Peterson implored in his lovely poem.

I presume that there are many Chicagoans who are as slowly paced as the folks in Maine when they get behind the wheels of their pickup trucks on Route 4. Those poky drivers may live to be 100 - but the drivers behind them stand a good chance of dying of heart attacks.

And so, Dear Abby, I offer this prayer with the hope that the Lord will hear it and provide a helpful response.

SPEED ME UP, LORD
Speed me up, Lord. Activate my sluggish pulse and brain. Get my feet moving faster, and remind me that today has only 24 hours in it, and if I'm going to get anything done, I'd better make it snappy.

Teach me that a little confusion is a heck of a lot better than the peace and tranquility of the grave. Get my nerves and muscles coordinated and flexed - ready for action. Warn me about the fatality of goofing off with endless cups of coffee and chewing the fat. Help me to lay the book down, put the dog out and get to work.

Speed me up, Lord, lest I get rooted to this spot like an old oak tree.
(REV.) JOSEPH R. MC KENNA, JAY, MAINE

DEAR ABBY: I also enjoy limericks. Here's one that isn't exactly X-rated, but I wouldn't advise taking it to Sunday school.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your abilities for acquisition will be good today, yet you may also be equally as adept at extravagance. It's doubtful if much will remain in your wallet. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Even though you'll be motivated to advance your self-interests today, there's a possibility those you'll be involved with will fare better personally than you do.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are unable to focus exclusively on your prime objective today, success could be denied you. Don't let peripheral developments distract you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be careful today that you are not drawn into a silly debate with a close friend as to who does more for the other. This could be a dispute that will not produce a victor.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your logic is likely to be superior today to that of individuals with whom you'll be involved. Don't let a forceful associate intimidate you into believing otherwise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're not likely to work too well under pressure today, therefore schedule your assignments so they can be handled effectively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could be fortunate in a commercial situation today — if you don't allow those who don't belong to interfere. Limit participants to those who are directly involved.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Proper timing could spell the difference between success and failure today. Don't try to finalize things prematurely. Be patient and let matters develop as they should.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're not a careful listener today, you could be offended by something that is said where no ill will was intended. Don't jump to conclusions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try to avoid extremes in your social involvements today. Don't spend more for a good time than you should, don't over-indulge and make it an early night.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It might be difficult for you to separate the past from the present today. This could cause you to enter into a situation holding a grudge over something that's history.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Channels of communication will be open for you today in critical areas, but you might use them only for social purposes. This may be gratifying, but unproductive.

Faltering Fernando

By JOHN RICE
Associated Press Writer

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP)—Fernando Valenzuela's latest comeback picked up about the same place his last one ended.

He gave up a lot of runs and hits, and didn't look much like the left-hander who toyed with major league hitters for much of the 1980s.

The first outing in eight months for the former Los Angeles Dodgers left-hander lasted 5 1-3 innings Sunday as he allowed five runs on nine hits with three walks and three strikeouts in Yucatan's 11-4 victory over Jalisco in the Mexican Baseball League.

Valenzuela, the only player to be named Rookie of the Year and win the Cy Young Award in the same season, wasn't hit hard.

"He's got a good location ... only two balls were hit hard," said Mike Brito, the Dodgers scout best known for signing Valenzuela and standing behind home plate at Dodger Stadium with a cigar and radar gun.

"I'm very pleased with the performance," Brito said, noting Valenzuela's screwball had considerable movement.

Valenzuela left trailing 4-3 in the sixth after allowing a triple, double and single. Both baserunners eventually scored.

Valenzuela threw 90 pitches, 50 for strikes.

Manager Roberto Castellon said Valenzuela told him after the fifth inning he was a little tired, but "he wanted to pitch one inning more."

"He wasn't at his best form," as we all know, but it was his first outing after eight months," said Castellon, who said Valenzuela will pitch in Mexico City on Friday.

More than 10,000 fans — triple the normal turnout — were at 13,600-seat University of Guadalajara baseball stadium. They were serenaded by a mariachi-like band and exhorted by pom-pom girls, yet the city remained preoccupied with the April 22 pipeline explosion that killed nearly 200 people. The team said it would donate Sunday's gate receipts to a fund for the roughly 4,500 left homeless by the explosion. Some 1,500 homeless people and evacuees are housed next door to the stadium.

The crowd applauded warmly for Valenzuela, both when he took the mound and when he left the game.

Pistons, Lakers eliminated in NBA playoffs

By The Associated Press

The Knicks' Patrick Ewing (33) guards the Pistons' Isiah Thomas in Sunday's NBA playoff game.

The Detroit Pistons and Los Angeles Lakers, two teams synonymous with playoff success, are starting their summer vacations. The LA Clippers, on the other hand, are still playing.

The Pistons and Lakers had their seasons end early on Sunday while the Clippers, making their first playoff appearance since 1976, pushed their opening-round series to a fifth and decisive game tonight by outlasting Utah 115-107. Sunday's game was postponed from Thursday and moved from the Los Angeles Sports Arena to the Anaheim Convention Center due to the civil unrest in LA.

"I thought there were a few guys on our team who just didn't want us to lose," Clippers coach Larry Brown said. "We didn't have great practices (since the rioting began on Wednesday). But I noticed on the bus coming here that we were ready to play."

Game 5 is tonight in Salt Lake City.

Detroit, which won the NBA title in 1989 and 1990, was ousted by the New York Knicks, who beat the Pistons 94-87 in Game 5 at Madison Square Garden.

"The game went pretty much way the season went offensively," said Pistons coach Chuck Daly, whose team set an NBA record for the fewest points scored in a five-game series.

New York begins its Eastern Conference semifinal series in Chicago on Tuesday. The other Eastern semifinal series resumes tonight, with Cleveland playing host to Boston after routing the Celtics in the opener on Saturday.

The Lakers, who won five NBA titles in the 1980s and were losing finalists last spring, were routed 102-76 by Portland in a game played in Las Vegas due to the unrest in Los Angeles.

"It's been disaster after disaster," veteran guard Byron Scott said of the Lakers' misfortunes this season, which started with the loss of Magic Johnson, who retired after testing HIV-positive, and ended with a forced shift of a playoff game. "Adversity is a situation we've been in all season long."

The Trail Blazers advanced to a

Western Conference semifinal meeting with Phoenix, beginning Tuesday night in Portland.

Clippers 115, Jazz 107
Though their game was moved 35 miles to the south, the Clippers did have the home-court advantage — they were playing on their own floor, which was transported from the Sports Arena, and had the backing of the crowd of 7,148 at the cozy Convention Center.

Danny Manning had 33 points and 10 rebounds to lead the way as the Clippers tied the series. Only three teams have ever overcome a 0-2 deficit in a best-of-5 NBA series. But that doesn't seem to matter to the Clippers.

"We're not going to go away," Manning said. "We're going to go to the Delta Center and play hard. All the pressure is on them. There wasn't supposed to be a Game 5."

The Clippers won by outscoring the Jazz 11-2 in the final 1:44. Doc Rivers, who had 11 of his 17 points in the fourth quarter, made two free throws with 54 seconds remaining and a three-point play with 24 seconds left to extend a one-point lead to six, clinching the victory.

LA won despite an outstanding performance by Utah's Karl Malone, who scored 14 of his career playoff-high 44 points in the fourth quarter and had 11 rebounds.

"We came here to do a job; we didn't get it done," Malone said.

Knicks 94, Pistons 87
The Pistons failed to make it past the first round for the first time since 1986 as the Knicks advanced.

Patrick Ewing had 31 points and 19 rebounds for the Knicks and got scoring help in the second half from Gerald Wilkins, who scored nine of his 13 points in a five-minute span, and John Starks, who scored seven of his 10 in the last 2:39 of the game.

Isiah Thomas, with 21 of his 31 points in the fourth quarter, made sure the Pistons died hard, scoring their last 19 points.

"I just wasn't going to give up," said Thomas, who averaged just 9.8 points in the first four games of the series. "I wanted to play hard. I didn't want to leave the court without making my last shot."

New York held the Pistons to 424 points, an average of 84.8, which broke the previous NBA low for a five-game series.

Funk becomes third straight first-time winner of Houston Open

THE WOODLANDS (AP) — Non-winners on the PGA Tour are finding a haven at the Houston Open.

Fred Funk became the latest to find refuge Sunday when he fired a final round 2-under-par 70 for a two-shot victory that made him the third straight first-time winner of the Houston event.

Defending champion Fulton Allem got his first victory here last October and dueling with Funk through most of the final round Sunday before falling to fourth.

Tony Sills got his first tour victory in 1990.

Sunday was Funk's turn to end four years of tour frustration. He wasn't going to let emotion or a bad approach shot on the 72nd hole spoil his $216,000 payday.

"I feel like I did great today emotion-wise," Funk said. "The only shot that was just plain stupid to hit was the last shot on 18, and I just need to shelf that one and remember that shot."

Funk had a 16-under 272 total for the tournament, two shots better than Kirk Triplett, who had a 67 in the final round and birdied the final hole to edge hometown favorite Billy Ray Brown for second place.

Brown shot a 5-over-par 41 on his first nine holes of the tournament but rallied to make the cut and shot a 64 Sunday for a 275 total and third place.

Allem shot a final-round 73 and ended up fourth at 276 — including four bogeys in the final nine holes.

Funk started the final round with a one-shot lead over Allem after shooting a course-record 62 Saturday. Funk and Allem fought for the lead until the back nine.

Riding a hot putter, Funk continued to make pars while Allem's charge fizzled because of the bogeys. Funk was pleased with his par-savers.

"They just started going in," Funk said. "I worked on it Friday and walked off the green and honestly felt I didn't accomplish anything. I was trying anything and everything."

Funk said his biggest battle with nerves came Saturday night. "I was really uptight last night and this morning," he said. "This morning when I got out on the range, I was hitting balls and my swing just was in a groove. I don't know where it came from."

"I said I'm not going to argue with this, and I was really swinging good all day."

Brown said he wasn't thinking about winning after his horrible start. "But that's where everything started clicking," Brown said.

"Today was just fabulous. It's indicative of the way Houston has treated me."

Classic claims twinbill wins

The Pampa Classic won two games against Amarillo teams in boys under 16 soccer action last weekend.

The Classic rolled past the Torpedoes, 11-1, in the opener and edged the Gost, 5-4, in the second game.

The Classic dominated the Torpedoes with strong offensive play by Greg McDaniel, Salvador Del Fierro, Michael Lewis, Lanny Schale, Russ Gunter, Jesus Lopez and Tim McCavit. Goalie Abel Del Fierro, Justin Allison and Matt Caswell played outstanding defense.

Good play from Greg McDaniel, Michael Lewis, Jesus Lopez and Salvador helped give Pampa a 3-1 lead over the Gost at the half.

Amarillo came back in the second half to gain a 4-3 lead.

Aggressive play from midfielders Justin Allison and Scott Johnson, along with excellent ballhandling by Tim McCavit and Jason Soukup turned the momentum back to Pampa.

Wheeler tracksters are bound for state

Three Wheeler athletes are headed for the Class 1A state track meet in Austin.

In the regional meet last weekend at Levelland, Ginger Nelson won the discus with a throw of 117-11 in the girls' division. Nelson beat out Marathon's Amy Roberts, who placed second with an 111-8 throw.

In the boys' division, Ike Finsterwald was second in the shot (48-81/2) and Todd Baize placed second in the high jump (6-2).

Wilbon signs with Navarro College

Cederick Wilbon prepares to sign a letter-of-intent while his mother, Ruby; Navarro assistant coach Darrell Pattillo (standing, left) and Harvester head coach Robert Hale witness the proceedings.

Pampa all-stater Cederick Wilbon, a 6-0 guard, signed a basketball letter-of-intent last week to attend Navarro College in Corsicana.

"Signing Cederick tops off our recruiting year," said Navarro assistant coach Darrell Pattillo. "We've been pursuing him since since December."

Last season, Navarro posted a 21-10 record and were co-champions in the Texas Eastern Athletic Conference.

"We really needed a player like Cederick last season," Pattillo added. "He was No. 1 on our recruiting list."

The Bulldogs averaged 102.8 points a game last season, making them the second highest scoring team in the nation among junior colleges.

In the 1990-91 season, Navarro averaged 116.1 points a game to set an NJAA scoring record while compiling a 24-7 won-loss mark.

Wilbon, a three-year starter for the Harvesters, averaged 19.6 points a game and helped lead Pampa to the Class 4A state tournament semifinals for the second consecutive season.

Wilbon played in the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches all-star game last month in San Antonio and scored 15 points. He's been selected to play in the North-South McDonalds All-Star Game at the Texas High School Coaches Association Clinic Aug. 3-4 in Dallas.

Derby winner expected to run at Pimlico; Arazi draws criticism

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
AP Racing Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) - While Arazi was still the talk of the town, people were no longer shouting his praises. "I think it's unfair to be critical of Arazi," said Lynn Whiting, trainer of Lil E. Tee, the upset winner Saturday in the Kentucky Derby.

Criticism, however, was what was being heaped on the little chestnut colt, who went off as the 4-5 favorite and finished eighth. He became the 13th consecutive favorite to be beaten in the race.

"This is not Secretariat we're talking about, let's be realistic," said trainer D. Wayne Lukas, whose filly, Winning Colors, won the Derby in 1988.

Whether Arazi's owners will reach that conclusion remains to be seen. But they have put the horse's future plans in doubt.

No longer is there debate about his next race. Arazi will arrive back in France on Monday, but his European campaign is "most unlikely" to include the English Derby at Epsom on June 3. It also won't include the Preakness on May 16.

After a two-week rest, Arazi's training schedule will be geared to the 1 1/4-mile Grand Prix de Paris at Longchamps on June 28.

The plan was announced Sunday by Sheikh Mohammed's racing manager Anthony Stroud after a meeting with joint owner Allen Paulson and trainer Francois Boutin at Paulson's Brookside Farm near Lexington.

"It was a most cordial meeting," Stroud said. "We want to get Arazi back on grass, and back to form. It is most unlikely he will run at Epsom, and we are looking at the Grand Prix de Paris."

Arazi, even-money favorite for the English Derby until Saturday, has now been removed from all bookmakers' lists. This comes a day after he posted the worst finish by an odds-on favorite in the 118-year history of the Kentucky Derby.

On the final turn, it appeared Arazi might be on his way to duplicating his victory in the Breeders' Cup Juvenile when he circled the field last November.

"I thought the super horse might be on his way," Whiting said. "I thought maybe all the stories were true."

"My horse put away Arazi," whispered Shelley Riley, the owner-trainer who lost her voice over Casual Lies' second-place finish, a length behind Lil E. Tee.

Riley passed out in her box after the race. She thought it was from the heat.

With a quarter-mile remaining, Casual Lies was three horses wide, inside and a head in front of Arazi.

Then as Arazi faded, Casual Lies shot into the lead, which he surrendered to Lil E. Tee inside the eighth pole.

"I had predicted Arazi wouldn't get past my horse," Riley said.

Lil E. Tee, who gave jockey Pat Day his first victory in his 10th Derby, paid a winning mutual of $35.60, the biggest payoff since Ferdinand returned $37.40 in 1986.

"I don't know why ABC didn't have an isolated camera on this horse," Whiting kidded. "I'll guess we'll have to send them to handicapping school."

Lil E. Tee, 10th with a half-mile remaining, reached the 1 1/4 miles in a very slow 2:04 on a fast track under scale weight of 126 pounds. He earned $724,800 from a purse of $974,800 for 82-year-old W. Cal Pardee of Magnolia, Ark.

Whiting said he expected to ship Lil E. Tee to Baltimore four days before the second jewel of the Triple Crown is contested at Pimlico. Whiting has a string of horses at Churchill Downs, where he has been a regular for 14 years.

A possibility for the Preakness is A.P. Indy, who has won five straight races, including the Santa Anita Derby. A.P. Indy was scratched from the Kentucky Derby on Saturday morning because of a bruised left front foot.

The 1 3/16-mile Preakness is expected to draw a full field of 14 3-year-olds, including Casual Lies and third-place finisher Dance Floor. The Derby limit was 20.

Dance Floor, who had a stablemate, sixth-place Al Sabin, in the 18-horse Derby, also will have one in the Preakness. Lukas said he didn't know whether it would be Hickman Creek or Big Sur.

Al Sabin will be pointed to the 1 1/2-mile Belmont Stakes on June 6.

Kentucky Derby winner Lil E. Tee gets a pat from assistant trainer Bob Ray Sunday morning in the Churchill Downs stable area.

Blue Jays' Stieb picks up first mound victory in nearly a year

By The Associated Press

Dave Stieb had been waiting a long time for this one, and when it came, the surroundings were very familiar.

Stieb, coming back from arm problems and back surgery, won Sunday for the first time in nearly a year, leading the Toronto Blue Jays over the Milwaukee Brewers 4-1 with a three-hitter at County Stadium.

Stieb hadn't won since last May 11 against the Chicago White Sox, and he hadn't pitched a complete game since an eight-inning effort at Milwaukee on April 19, 1991.

"I've always fared out pretty well here," said Stieb, who lost his first two decisions this season. "Last year I was 0-2 and came here and won my first game, a complete game. It's nice to duplicate that this year."

Stieb had problems with his shoulder last season and developed lower back problems after going on the disabled list June 1. He had surgery

Dec. 4, 1991, to trim a herniated disc.

"It's difficult when you've been out a year to go out and throw every ball where you want to," Stieb said. "I'm pleased, yet it was no masterpiece."

He walked four and struck out two Sunday in a 98-pitch effort that made him 11-5 in Milwaukee, where he's won six straight starts.

AL roundup

"I just wanted to give a good, solid performance," Stieb said. "They got me some runs. The thing was I kept runners off base and was able to stick around until the end."

In other games Sunday, Kansas City beat Boston 5-2, Minnesota beat New York 4-2, Detroit beat Oakland 8-4, Chicago beat Texas 5-3, Baltimore beat Seattle 8-6 and California beat Cleveland 6-3.

Joe Carter homered twice for the Blue Jays, who avoided getting swept in the four-game series. He tied the score at 1-all in the sixth, then put Toronto ahead with a two-run homer in the eighth. Dave Winfield followed with his fifth home run, the 411th of his career.

Royals 5, Red Sox 2
Kevin Appier (1-2) allowed both runs and 10 hits in eight innings at Fenway as Kansas City won for only the fourth time in 23 games.

Kevin McReynolds hit a solo homer, his fourth, in a two-run seventh for the Royals, who stopped Boston's four-game winning streak. Joe Hesketh (0-1) allowed six hits in seven innings in losing his first decision in four starts.

Twins 4, Yankees 2
Scott Erickson (1-3) won for the first time in six starts this season as Randy Bush broke a 2-all tie in the fifth at Yankee Stadium with an RBI groundout, sending New York to its fourth loss in five games.

Scott Kamieniecki, whose 1991 season was cut short in August because of a cervical disc problem that needed surgery, gave up four runs and seven hits in 7 1/3 innings in his season debut.

Rick Aguilera got the final three outs for his seventh save in nine chances.

Tigers 8, Athletics 4
Tony Phillips hit a three-run homer in a five-run fourth inning and drove in four runs as Detroit won despite Mark McGwire's major league-leading 13th home run, his 18th in 36 games in Tiger Stadium.

Eric King (2-3) allowed two runs and five hits in seven innings and Mike Henneman got four outs for his fourth save. Mike Moore (4-1) lost for the first time in nine decisions since Aug. 26, giving up seven runs and seven hits in 6 1/3 innings.

White Sox 5, Rangers 3
Visiting Texas took a 3-2 lead in the eighth on Ruben Sierra's single off Scott Radinsky (1-1), but Frank Thomas singled in the tying run off Kevin Brown (4-2) in the bottom half and Kenny Rogers forced in two runs by walking Craig Grebeck and Tim Raines with the bases loaded.

Orioles 8, Mariners 6
Tim Lincecum hit a bases-loaded triple to cap a five-run first and Baltimore held on to win its fifth straight. Randy Milligan and Cal Ripken homered for the Orioles, who have 11 homers during their last four games in Camden Yards.

Mike Mussina (4-0) allowed five runs in seven-plus innings and Gregg Olson got five outs for his fifth save. Rich DeLucia (1-3) gave up six runs and six hits in two innings.

Angels 6, Indians 3
Alvin Davis and Gary Gaetti hit consecutive RBI singles off Derek Lilliquist (1-1) during California's three-run ninth at Cleveland.
Scott Bailes (2-0) retired the only two batters he faced in the eighth, and Bryan Harvey finished for his eighth save. Alex Cole had four hits for the Indians.

Murray belts 400th career homer as Mets blast Braves

By The Associated Press

For Eddie Murray, Howard Johnson and David Cone, it was pretty much just another day at the park.

Murray hit his 400th career home run, Johnson stole his 200th career base and Cone pitched a five-hitter for his second straight shutout as the New York Mets beat the Atlanta Braves 7-0 Sunday.

They were all pleased, just not ecstatic.

"It's a pretty decent number," Murray said. "It (the ball) is something to keep in the house with me."

When Murray connected in the eighth inning off reliever Marvin Freeman, he became the 24th player in major league history to reach 400 homers.

Murray is also the second all-time leader in home runs by a switch-hitter. Mickey Mantle is first with 536.

The first baseman, who signed as a free agent with the Mets, has 1,489 career RBIs and 2,527 hits. In major league history, 15 players have reached 400 homers and 2,500 hits. Twelve are in the Hall of Fame, with Reggie Jackson, Dave Winfield and Murray not yet eligible.

"It's something I thought about during the winter," Murray said of reaching 400. "But there's been no pressure. I've just been going out and trying to hit the ball. All that will come."

NL roundup

Johnson became only the 16th major leaguer with 200 steals and 200 homers.

"I think mine is small compared to what Eddie did," Johnson said. "That was a big one."

Elsewhere in the NL Sunday, it was Cincinnati 7, Chicago 1; St. Louis 7, San Diego 1; Philadelphia 12, San Francisco 3; and Houston 1, Pittsburgh 0. Montreal at Dodger Stadium was postponed because of the violence in Los Angeles in wake of the Rodney King verdict.

Cone (3-1) struck out eight and walked four in recording his third straight victory. He also singled home two runs in a five-run fifth inning against loser Charlie Leibrandt (2-2).

After allowing leadoff singles in each of the first two innings, Cone did not give up another hit until the sixth, when he survived a bases-loaded jam. In his last start, Cone pitched a two-hitter to beat Houston 4-0.

"The best part for me was being able to keep my composure," Cone said. "I gave up a hit to the first batter and then let them load the bases in the sixth. But I was able to keep my composure both times. Not being able to do that has been my problem in the past."

The victory was the Mets' fifth in six games, including three shutouts, and their 13th in 17.

Astros 1, Pirates 0
At the Astrodome, Steve Finley hit a home run with two outs in the eighth inning off Roger Mason (1-2) to lift Houston over Pittsburgh.

Al Osuna (3-0) pitched one-third of an inning for the victory. After Cecil Espy led off the ninth with a walk, Doug Jones relieved and finished for his seventh save in eight opportunities.

Both starters, Doug Drabek and Butch Henry, pitched scoreless ball for seven innings.

Reds 7, Cubs 1

At Riverfront Stadium, Bill Doran and Paul O'Neill homered off Shawn Boskie (3-2) as Cincinnati beat Chicago in Jose Rijo's return from the disabled list.

The Cubs lost for the eighth time in 10 games and completed a miserable week that included four consecutive shutouts, a 36-inning scoreless streak and the one-run effort to conclude the series against the Reds.

Cincinnati has won seven of its last 10 and was buoyed by the return of Rijo. The right-hander came off the disabled list and went 4 2/3 innings, giving up six hits and one run while striking out four. Scott Bankhead (3-0) got his third win in eight relief appearances by giving up one hit in 3 1/3 innings.

Cardinals 7, Padres 1
At Jack Murphy Stadium, Bob Tewksbury pitched a six-hitter for his first complete game of the season as St. Louis beat San Diego.

Felix Jose had three hits and two RBIs, including a run-scoring triple, and Gerald Perry hit two run-scoring doubles for the Cardinals, who staked Tewksbury (3-0) to a 7-0 lead with three runs in the first inning and four more in the second.

The Cardinals battered starter Dave Eiland (0-2) for seven runs on nine hits in 1 2/3 innings.

Phillies 12, Giants 3
At Candlestick Park, Mariano Duncan went 5 for 5, including a home run, as Philadelphia routed San Francisco.

Penguins 4, Rangers 2
The Rangers shut down Mario Lemieux, but goals by Troy Loney, Larry Murphy, Kevin Stevens and Ron Francis gave Pittsburgh more than enough offense to go with Tom Barrasso's 35-save performance.

Barrasso made 15 saves and goals by Loney and Murphy put Pittsburgh ahead 2-0 after one period. Stevens made it 3-0 with a power-play goal 2 minutes into the second period.

"We had a good edge in play at the start but couldn't score," Rangers coach Roger Neilson said. "They got the lead and played well with it. They played a smart game."

The Rangers rallied on goals by Kris King and Tony Amonte before Francis' backhander beat John Vanbiesbrouck at 12:08 of the middle period as the Penguins, who did get two assists from Lemieux, won their fifth playoff game from the Rangers in as many tries.

Oilers get the jump on Canucks in Smythe Division finals opener

By JOHN KREISER
AP Sports Writer

Just because the Edmonton Oilers don't dominate the NHL the way they used to doesn't mean they don't know how to win when it counts.

The Oilers, trying to rebuild after dominating the league through the last half of the 1980s, got the jump on the Vancouver Canucks in the opener of the Smythe Division finals on Sunday with a 4-3 overtime victory.

Bill Ranford kept the Oilers in the game with 40 saves before Joe Murphy capitalized on a giveaway by defenseman Dave Babych to score the winning goal 8:36 into overtime at the Pacific Coliseum.

"He's a big-time pressure player," Murphy said of Ranford, the playoff MVP two years ago. "He's the backbone of the team. He was unbelievable when we won the Cup in '90. He's going to give us the chance to win again."

Boston, which lost to Edmonton in the Cup final two years ago, took advantage of an off night by Montreal goaltender Patrick Roy to beat the Canadiens 6-4 in the opener of the Adams Division finals at The Forum.

NHL roundup

Pittsburgh completed a Game 1 sweep by visiting teams with a 4-2 victory over the New York Rangers in Game 1 of the Patrick Division finals later. Chicago beat Detroit 2-1 on Saturday to take a one-game lead in the Norris Division finals.

The Smythe and Norris finals continue Monday night; the other two series resume on Tuesday night.

Oilers 4, Canucks 3

Murphy gave the Oilers the victory when he picked off Babych's pass in the neutral zone, raced in and snapped a shot from between the circles that went over goaltender Kirk McLean's left shoulder.

The Oilers trailed 2-0 before scoring twice in the second period. Vancouver took a 3-2 lead on Pavel Bure's goal with 7:15 left in the third period, but the Oilers tied it with 5:05 left on a goal by Vincent Damphousse.

Ranford made the biggest save of the overtime, stopping Trevor Linden's wide-open shot from the slot. "Edmonton's experience in postseason play shows," Canucks assistant coach Rick Ley said. "We should have won — we had the chances."

Bruins 6, Canadiens 4

Roy, a two-time Vezina Trophy winner whose forte is consistency, was beaten on his first shot of the game by defenseman Gord Hynes and allowed five goals on the first 18 shots he faced, drawing boos from the home crowd.

"I wasn't sharp and I was fighting the puck, but it's better that it happens in Game 1 than in Game 2," Roy said of his off night. "All my career I've been able to bounce back from bad games and I don't see why I won't do it again."

Hynes, who joined Boston from Canada's Olympic team in late February, caught the far corner with a shot from the top of the left circle 4:09 into the game. Leach made it 2-0 when he found room under Roy's glove with a shot from the right wing at 14:25.

Goals by Sean Hill and Eric Desjardins tied it, but Roy was beaten three times in the second period as the Bruins took a 5-3 lead. Mike McPhee got the Canadiens within a goal early in the third period, but Ray Bourque's goal with 1:14 left iced the victory.

"Every goalie has nights when he's not 100 percent — even the best goalies in the world," Juneau said. "I don't think we played that well. I think we've still got to crank it up for the next game."

Whistleblower cases raise questions of credibility

By NICHOLAS K. GERANIOS
Associated Press Writer

RICHLAND, Wash. (AP) — From the beginning Paula Nathaniel's story sounded odd, a combination of Karen Silkwood and James Bond.

It all started, she said, when she complained of safety problems at the Hanford nuclear reservation, where she worked. Someone tapped her telephone. Her home was broken into. She was followed by an unmarked car.

Preposterous, said officials of Westinghouse Hanford Co., operator of the nuclear weapons plant. The stories were fabricated — perhaps symptoms of paranoia, they said. And a U.S. Labor Department judge agreed, recommending that her complaints against Westinghouse be dismissed.

But Ms. Nathaniel persists — as do others who make seemingly outlandish accusations against this and other plants. And they are supported by a group of lawyers who defend these allegations, and insist the deck is stacked against whistleblowers.

"The average person doesn't believe the government would engage in that kind of surveillance activity," said Elaine Dodge, an attorney for the Government Accountability Project, a law firm that provides free services in whistleblower cases. "It's a huge burden to get over people's biases."

Hanford was created during World War II as part of the Manhattan Project, and for four decades made much of the plutonium for nuclear weapons.

Whistleblowers started going public with safety concerns in the mid-1980s, and most told a remarkably similar tale: They informed superiors about a safety problem, were told to cover it up, and then were persecuted when they went to higher authority or the media.

In those respects Ms. Nathaniel's case seemed standard. She was a chemist, monitoring potentially explosive tanks that stored nuclear waste at Hanford.

In 1990, she reported a co-worker who lit a cigarette near a tank that routinely filled with explosive hydrogen.

Ms. Nathaniel contends that her managers ordered her to rescind the memo.

When she refused, she contends, they launched a harassment campaign, including numerous break-ins of her apartment, tapping of her telephone and a high-speed chase with a mysterious car that followed her from Richland to Spokane, where she met with a Labor Department investigator.

It all recalled the case of Karen Silkwood, the technician at a Kerr-McGee plutonium production plant who died in a mysterious auto accident in Oklahoma in 1974. At the time of her death she was driving to meet a New York Times reporter to discuss alleged safety problems at the plant.

But in early March, James J. Butler, a law judge for the Labor Department, said Ms. Nathaniel's allegations were without foundation.

In a scathing, 24-page opinion, Butler questioned Ms. Nathaniel's motives; she appeared more interested in causing problems for a fellow employee than ensuring safety, he wrote. He also noted a long history of personality clashes and "erratic behavior" in Ms. Nathaniel's relationships with managers.

He pointed out that she had secretly tape-recorded her last performance evaluation, often carried a concealed handgun, and would violate safety rules at her convenience.

Mike Berriochoa, a spokesman for Westinghouse, said Ms. Nathaniel's most outrageous allegations were never presented in her complaints to the company, but only after the whistleblower had conferred with her lawyers.

It is unreasonable to expect Westinghouse would embark on a campaign of burglaries, wiretaps and automobile surveillance against Ms. Nathaniel over such a minor issue, he said.

"If wiretapping is going on why not file with the police department of the FBI?" Berriochoa said. "They make wild accusations against the company."

The lawyers, Berriochoa suggested, are to blame. "They are working on the paranoia of individuals," he said.

But Tom Carpenter, a GAP lawyer who has represented numerous Hanford whistleblowers, noted that it was revealed last year that Westinghouse did in fact own surveillance equipment that could be used on employees.

"It's natural and to be expected that the company that retaliates against whistleblowers would deny it and whine about the fact they were caught at it," Carpenter said.

Still, three times in the past year, Westinghouse's arguments have stood up in court; the whistleblowers' complaints have not.

Ed Bricker was the first. He sued for $30 million, alleging that his employers launched secret efforts to fire him after he spoke to the media and Congress about safety violations in 1987.

The U.S. Department of Labor in 1990 concluded that Bricker had been deliberately harassed.

But U.S. District Judge Alan McDonald of Yakima last September threw out the case against Westinghouse and former DOE contractor Rockwell-Hanford Co. McDonald ruled employees of federal contractors are not covered by whistleblower protections. That decision has been appealed.

In late February, a Spokane judge issued a similar ruling in the case of Gary Leikvold, a Hanford security officer. And then came the Nathaniel case.

Westinghouse officials say the decisions show that employees should work within the company structure, rather than the courts, to resolve disputes.

Spokeswoman Penny Phelps said investigations usually reveal there is little merit to the complaints. The disputes are centered in personality conflicts between workers and managers, rather than safety problems, Phelps said, and without hard evidence, the harassment cases have little chance in court.

"What is so sad in all three cases is the attorneys they have chosen to represent them probably know this from the beginning," Phelps said.

Carpenter said the legal system was flawed, not his clients' cases. "There are problems with burdens of proof and some biases among judges, and in the system itself against whistleblowers," Carpenter said.

"You also face very rich law firms with unlimited access to federal funds to fight these cases," Carpenter said. "You are staring down the barrel of the federal government's legal power."

Kabul under rocket attack

By JOHN POMFRET
Associated Press Writer

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — The forces of radical Muslim commander Gulbuddin Hekmatyar bombarded Kabul with scores of rockets today, stepping up pressure on the interim government installed by rival rebel factions last week.

Hospital officials said the barrage killed 30 people and wounded nearly 100.

Hekmatyar said Sunday he would support the new government only if a rival militia was expelled from the capital, and he threatened to invade Kabul "in days" if the demand was not met.

During one 15-minute period today, at least 25 Egyptian-made SAKR rockets slammed into a residential neighborhood in southern Kabul from a position held by Hekmatyar's Hezb-e-Islami guerrillas.

The rockets destroyed scores of mud-brick houses and sent huge, choking clouds of dust into the air.

Scores of other rockets also were fired into a neighborhood near Kabul airport on the city's eastern edge.

Hezb-e-Islami fighters were driven out of Kabul last week by fighters loyal to Ahmed Shah Masood, the new defense minister. Hekmatyar wants the establishment of an Islamic state more strict than that foreseen by Masood and President Sibghatullah Mojaddidi.

But Hekmatyar said Sunday that he would support the new government if the militia led by Gen. Rashid Dostum left the capital.

Dostum's forces had guarded Kabul for Najibullah, during his presidency, but switched sides early this year, precipitating Najibullah's downfall last month.

Dostum's guerrillas are believed to number several thousand and are seen as critical to Masood's forces being able to retain control of the capital.

Hekmatyar accuses Dostum's militia of raping, looting and pillaging the Afghan capital and of holding the new rebel government hostage.

Five members of Hezb-e-Islami left their headquarters in Pakistan for Kabul early today to join the new government.

Ustad Saeed, a spokesman for Hezb-e-Islami, said Hekmatyar's nominees to the government would try to persuade their more moderate rebel brethren to eject the militia. But if talks fail, Saeed said, Hekmatyar will militarily force the militia out of the capital.

"If Hezb-e-Islami wants to do it, it will do it. Hezb-e-Islami is a powerful organization," Saeed said.

Meanwhile, fears were rising of vendettas against members of Najibullah's regime, fanned by the weekend assassination of a despised former Supreme Court chief justice whose body was found badly mauled after an apparent beating.

Justice Abdul Karim Shardan had been held responsible for sending thousands of dissidents to prisons, where conditions were notoriously brutal.

The government has promised amnesty to all members of the Communist regimes that governed Afghanistan for 14 years, but it apparently has little power to prevent vendettas.

A day after the transitional governing council led by Mojaddidi rolled into the battle-weary capital last week, pro-government guerrillas beat and executed on the street a suspected agent of the former Khad secret police.

The council, comprised of leaders of all major guerrilla factions but Hezb-e-Islami, has struggled to end intermestic fighting.

"There is no authority with the council led by Mojaddidi. It is like a hostage of the militia. The real power is in the hands of the militia," said Saeed, the Hezb-e-Islami spokesman.

Today's barrage came as Kabul's 1.5 million people were struggling to restore a semblance of normal life.

Power was restored to most of the city on Sunday, and trucks arrived from Pakistan with emergency food supplies.

More than 100 trucks carrying flour, sugar, medicine and cooking oil rolled into the war-weary capital after Hekmatyar lifted a blockade of Kabul. Two Iranian transport planes with food also were expected.

Special U.N. envoy Benon Sevan also returned to Afghanistan on Sunday for talks on the repatriation of 5 million Afghan refugees and food assistance, said Hamid Karzai, a spokesman at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Anderson: Times could favor Perot

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A growing stalemate over issues between Democrats and Republicans could give H. Ross Perot an opening in this year's presidential election, former independent John Anderson says.

Anderson, also an ex-Illinois Republican congressman, got only 6.6 percent of the vote for president as a third-party entry in 1980. "Maybe, just maybe, this time it could be different," Anderson said Sunday.

Already, the extent of grassroots support for Perot, a Texas billionaire and political newcomer, is unprecedented for a potential

White House candidate from outside the two-party system.

And Perot's intention to spend $100 million of his own money on his budding campaign would give him more sustained national visibility than Anderson was able to muster, Anderson said.

Perot has a "rather homespun, pithy way of expressing himself" that gets to the point, said Anderson, who was in St. Louis to make two speeches. And Perot's statement he would run only if backers petition to get him on every state's ballot has given people a sense of "empowerment."

Anderson, while applauding Perot's "courage" to consider junking federal entitlement programs such as farm subsidies, stopped short of endorsing Perot, however.

He said Perot must be more specific on many issues, including U.S. foreign policy.

"I want to know very much whether he agrees with my idea that we've got to find a new basic organizing principle for a foreign policy," said Anderson, now national president of the World Federalist Association.

House collapse kills 70 in India

SRINAGAR, India (AP) — A three-story house collapsed today, killing at least 70 women who had gathered for a mourning ceremony for a young woman who died last week, officials said.

At least 100 other people, most of them women, were injured in the house collapse in Lalbazaar area of Srinagar, the summer capital of Jammu-Kashmir state.

Paramilitary police moved in swiftly to help with rescue efforts, witnesses said. Every block in Srinagar is manned by armed policemen, deployed to fight Muslim rebels who want the Muslim dominated Jammu-Kashmir to secede from the predominantly Hindu India.
