Pampa's own designing woman

By BETH MILLER Staff Writer

Ann Wall of Pampa truly is a designing woman.

For years she has designed everything from elegant ball gowns to doll clothes for her grandchildren. She was a soughtafter designer and dressmaker for years before she decided to venture into something else.

Her most recent claim to fame is something she invented in the early 1980s - cutwork in Ultrasuede®.

She has published a 20-page glossy pamphlet, released this month, and plans to use the howto-do cutwork in Ultrasuede® guide book to teach others the art that she has mastered.

A striking red and black suit in cutwork, designed and made by Wall, was featured in the April issue of "Sew News" magazine after Wall received first place in the senior division of Ultrasuede's "Be Ultra Creative" Sewing Contest.

Ultrasuede® is a type of material th., although quite expensive, is versatile and durable, the accomplished dressmaker said. It sells from $39 to $60 a yard.

Wall said she believes and was told by judges of the contest that she is the only person in the United States to do cutwork in Ultrasuede®.

"I didn't think there was anybody else that did it anyway, but I found out after that for certain that there was no one else that did it in the United States that they were aware of it," she said.

The minute the judges saw her sign in cutwork in Ultrasuede®, they knew it was a first-place winner and nothing could top it.

'It's expensive," she said of Ultrasuede®. "People are afraid to get into it because they feel like if they cut into that and mess up ... but, you know, it's just a piece of material - go for it.

She said after working with Ultrasuede® for several years the idea of cutwork "just came" to her because of the fact that the fabric does not ravel.

Wall, who was raised on a farm near Snyder.

She estimates she sewed for other people for about 20 years. Some of that sewing included whole wardrobes for a woman in England whose husband was in the diplomatic service, Miss Texas pageant gowns and local pageant gowns and other customers for whom she chose the material and patterns and made whole wardrobes at a time.

At one time, to cut back on her workload, she started sewing in only one size, but that did not help, she was still in high demand.

When she started specializing in Ultrasuede, she thought her high demand might slow down because of the expense of the fabric, but she says she still had all she could ever make.

"I couldn't take half of what I got calls for," she said.

She and her husband, an accomplished woodworker, lived in the Permian Basin before moving to Pampa in 1976. He works for Texaco Exploration and Production Inc. They attend Mary Ellen & Harvester Church of

"I just get an idea and follow through," she said of some of her designs in Ultrasuede®.

Her daughters, Ricci Olson, a chemical engineer of Houston and Paula Bliss, advertising director for Park Place Towers of Amarillo, both sew when time allows she said. The Walls lost a daughter, Kathy, to cancer in 1985.

Although she no longer sews for the general public, she makes 98 percent of the clothes for her two granddaughters, ages 2 and 4, of Houston and her one grandson age 1 1/2, of Amarillo

"I've made them things out of Ultrasuede®, but not cutwork. I probably will do them something this year out of it," Wall said.

She said the wash and wear Ultrasuede® is ideal for children's clothing because it is so durable. "For children, it's one of the most excellent fabrics there is. The only drawback is it is so expensive."

Her designing and artistry are evident in her work, but she said her mind is always clicking trying to make something better.

"I develop things. First, if I see there's a problem, if I don't like the forms for majorettes and cheer- way something looks, I find a better way to do it and I always think "I've been sewing since I was while I'm working I'm going to

"By educating the public about infant mortality and getting more people involved with programs like Healthy Start, we take an important step toward helping women get the care and support they need to lead healthy lives and have healthy babies," Dr. James Mason, head of the Public Health Service, said in remarks prepared in advance of the White House event.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., who chairs the House Select Committee on Children, Youth and Families, was unimpressed with the administration's efforts.

"What is this, their Mother's Day present to America?" she asked in a telephone interview. "I don't understand that there's any money or anything behind it."

Schroeder said poor pregnant women have trouble finding doctors to take care of them because many physicians refuse to treat patients on Medicaid.

Spacewalkers Pierre Thuot and Richard Hieb worked about 225 miles above Earth for four hours Sunday.

Despite more than a year's training for the mission. Thuot caused the satellite to wobble when he tried to latch on with a 15-foot capture bar.

"I'm sorry guys. I didn't tap it any harder than I tapped it in that (training) simulator," said Thuot. Later, he said he might not have touched the slowly turning satellite squarely.

'Wow, we've got to get away from this thing," Brandenstein said when the wobbling, 17-foot cylinder came dangerously close to Endeavour, NASA's brand-new shuttle. "I don't think there's any way we're going to get it."

The shuttle moved more than 20 miles away, and the satellite's jet thrusters were fired to stabilize it.

NASA wants to pluck the satellite from space and attach a motor to boost it to its proper orbit, 22,300 miles high. The rescue is the sevenmember crew's chief task.

Three choir seniors earn highest honors

By DEE DEE LARAMORE News Editor

Three Pampa High School choir seniors received highest honors at the annual choir banquet Saturday at M.K. Brown Auditorium.

Suzy Wilson was named recipient of the $1,000 Nona S. Payne scholarship. A plaque was presented to her by Betty Frye, representative of the Nona S. Payne foundation.

The coveted Hugh Sanders ... Achievement Awards, given to the two outstanding senior choir members, was presented to Jennifer Mouhot and Suzy Wilson.

Winner of the American Choral Directors Award was Shelly Vinson. Choir members themselves voted on the Outstanding Choir

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Offer Afghans private charity

As Korean communist dictator Kim II Sung celebrated his 80th birthday in Pyongyang April 16, in Afghanistan communist dictator Najibullah was deposed in Kabul. Before being selected as dictator by the ex-Soviet regime in Moscow, Najibullah had been the murderous head of the KGB-run Afghan secret police.

Najibullah's ouster brings to a close the long fight of the Afghan mujahedeen to reclaim their country. Afghanistan's suffering is a reminder of the horrors imposed by communism. The Soviet Red Army, along with Najibullah and his puppet régime, murdered more than a million Afghans, ripped up precious farmlands, sprayed poison gas on recalcitrant villages, and kidnapped thousands of Afghan children for Marxist indoctrination in the Soviet Union.

Never should we forget the sufferings borne by Afghans, Eastern Europeans, Russians, Ukrainians, and other people - and still borne by North Koreans, Chinese, and Cubans. Life, liberty, and property are the indivisible foundations of society. Any ideology or policy that violates those foundations should be resisted fierce-

Aid to the Afghans was not popular everywhere. Many in media and academia criticized Reagan for calling the Soviet Union an "Evil Empire" and for instituting the Reagan Doctrine of aiding freedom fighters across the world.

As Americans debated, the Afghan people were strafed by Red Army helicopter gunships; their children were maimed by bombs disguised as toys. But aid to the mujahedeen was sent, allowing them to fight for their own country.

With victory comes the task of rebuilding Afghanistan. As difficult as it is, the United States should refrain from giving Afghans government aid. Certainly, the Red Cross (or the Red Crescent, as it's known in Islamic countries) and other private charities should send medical aid. But the U.S. government should do nothing. Why? Because economic aid is a form of international welfare that hurts recipient countries. Having repulsed the Red Army, Afghans do not need to be invaded by United Nations, International Monetary Fund, and World Bank social workers.

Afghanistan is a rich land with an industrious people. It will attract enough foreign capital from private sources for rebuilding. American charity and private investment are the best (and only) aid Americans should send to fertilize the new buds of freedom in Afghanistan.

Afterthoughts on the riot

The fires of Los Angeles are out. The last troops are leaving. Now the fault-finding begins anew. Liberal voices will be heard in one more chorus of the same old song: White society must bear the blame. We brought it on ourselves.

This is nonsense. Rubbish! I am sick to death of this drooling "compassion" that lacks every element of true compassion.

No one is responsible for this appalling spectacle but the blacks - and whites - who looted the stores, set the fires and killed with senseless abandon. Sociology be damned. Let the academics wail over the residual psychological consequences of 19th-century slavery. This is hokum. Let us talk of grand larceny, arson and murder.

How are these crimes to be excused? They cannot be excused. They cannot be justified. If individual criminals can be identified from television tape, they ought to be rounded up and promptly put to trial

It was the jury's verdict in the case of Rodney King that sparked the rioting. If the verdict had gone the other way - if the cops had been found guilty of assault - riot might have erupted out of jubilation rather than despair. The verdict was flimsy excuse for a mob to hit the streets.

What about the verdict? Right or wrong? We have now heard from a hundred million secondguessers, none of whom had access to the evidence hand. actually put before the California court. Did the state prove its case – prove it beyond a reasonable doubt? I have no idea. The jurors saw the famous TV tape, frame by frame. They gave the evidence the kind of scrutiny no one else has given it.

Out of that careful judicial process came the acquittal. This was no hung jury, irreconcilably split between conviction and acquittal. From the beginning of their deliberations, the jurors reportedly were of one mind. The evidence was not enough to overcome their reasonable doubts.

The American judicial process is not perfect. It is merely better than any other process yet devised. Yes, it is still flawed by racial bias. I am a reporter. Fifty years ago I was covering trials in Police Court and Hustings Court in Richmond, Va. Blacks were treated unconscionably then.

But during my years in Richmond I witnessed a tremendous change in the administration of justice. The worst abuses were eliminated. Every city in the South, to the best of my knowledge has gone through the same experience. Beyond the South, courts function, for the most part, with an even Apologists for the black rioters complain that proportionately more blacks than whites are in jail. This is true. Why should this be so? The one excuses their conduct. They have no excuses either.

How can future outbreaks of mob violence be deterred? It may prove impossible to deter them. For the short haul, taxpayers in urban areas should prepare themselves to pay whatever is necessary to maintain order, for order is essential. Without order nothing can be accomplished. This will mean more police, more judges, more jails. So be it. For the long haul - and it will be a very long haul - the community must rely upon black leadership. Legislators have yet to address themselves to the root causes of black crime; they do not yet understand that most programs of public welfare have served to make bad matters worse.

In my lifetime I have observed the disintegration of the black family and the black community. It never used to be this way. Most black children grew up with mothers and fathers who instilled in them the values of a Judeo-Christian ethic. Black ministers served effectively. Segregated schools were morally indefensible, but black teachers taught black children to be respectable of their

The task of changing attitudes is immense. White society offers little help. What a sterling example has been set by Congress! What role models we provide! How can whites criticize black illegitimacy when white entertainers flaunt their own bastard offspring?

Our intellectual leaders condone pornography. Television screens resound with violence. Movies blunt answer is that blacks commit more crime, exploit sexual relations shorn of love. Without a per capita, than whites. Yes, there are plenty of return to the old virtues, the lawless mobs of May white robbers, muggers, skinheads, arsonists. No will form again. God help us, our social fabric roots.

You and I, dinosaurs?

Robert Bakker, a youngster living in New Jersey, read a Life magazine article, "The World We Live In". That was in 1955.

Utterly fascinated by the pictured dinosaurs in the article, Robert Bakker, from the age of 10, devoted his life to learning about these extinct vertebrates.

Today, Robert Bakker, Yale graduate and paleontologist, writes books and articles sharing his learning of a subject sorely neglected by most serious scientists.

Recently an Omni reporter asked Bakker, What killed the dinosaurs?

His response, fascinating, includes a word of "Disease. Disease is probably the biggest killer of animal species in the natural world. Not climatic which they can survive in a host. Disease also kills changes, not big predators, not changes in plants."

Ninety years ago our nation's first evolutionary paleontologist, H.L. Osborn, made the same point. He had seen dozens of antelope dying of rinderpest. He pointed out that whenever fauna from one continent mix with fauna from another continent, did." disease may cause massive extinctions.

Perot puts both camps in a quandr

I don't know yet what to make of Ross Perot, the folksy Texas billionaire who says he will accept the presidency if it is thrust upon him, but I sure am anticipating a good show.

Republicans don't like him because they are worried that he may attract voters who would otherwise go for George Bush. Democrats don't like him because they don't know what to make of him. The establishment press doesn't like him because he gets a little testy when he is repeatedly asked stupid questions.

Perot, and I have been reading up on him to see if I can find some facts to support my instincts. I found some negatives along the way, and it is probably best to deal with those first.

He has a bit of the dictator in him, and for a person who prides himself on his nonconformist disposition, he wants his troops to march in lockstep. At Electronic Data-Systems Inc., the computer services firm he founded in 1962 after leaving IBM in a huff, the rules were strict: Men wore dark suits and white shirts and displayed no facial hair. (As someone who has sported a mustache for 22 years, I find this dictum particularly inane. But then, I think Perot's semi-skinhead haircut looks dumb, so I guess we're even when it comes to bristle biases.)
He abounds with strange, even scary ideas. He thinks the White House and Pentagon have con-MIAs still in Vietnam. He would establish an inter-

For those reasons, I am sorely inclined to like active television system he calls the "electron town hall" - wouldn't a demagogue love this? - which would enable viewers to hear his pitch on any issue and "vote" by telephone. He says the war on drugs will require draconian measures, and that presumably would include expanded wiretap authority for the state - a measure he pushed through the legisl. ture when he headed the Texas War on Drugs Committee in 1979.

Those are the serious reservations. Mainstream pols and presses have raised a number of additional concerns which reek of sludge. They say he speaks in vague generalities. True, but remember that he isn't even an announced candidate yet. They say he is intolerant, tightly strung and likely to selfdestruct. If those were impediments to the presidency, about half the chief executives elected in my lifetime would have been denied the office. spired to deny us information about American They say he is fierce, autocratic, iconoclastic and opinionated, Like Harry Truman, I suppose?

There are so many entries on the plus side of the Perot ledger that it's hard to find a starting point. Most important, in my view, is his appreciation of the deficit and debt crisis. George Bush and Bill Clinton barely mention it, but Perot would likely make it his top priority. "The total national debt war only $1 trillion in 1980, when President Reagan took office," he has said. "It is now $4 trillion. Maybe it was voodoo economics. Whatever it was, we are now in deep voodoo, I'll tell you that.'

He utterly disdains conventional politicians, media maestros and image specialists, and he has a healthy respect for the common folk. Read what he had to say to a Newsweek reporter: "If I ever get stuck (in Washington), I can't stay inside the beltway. It's like living in a bubble. If you don't see, feel and taste the real America, you could be up there and not know there's a recession....If you want to serve the people, you've got to listen to real people. If you stay inside the beltway, the special interests become the real people."

And this, which he said to a Washington Post reporter:

"Does it make sense for the servants of the people to have retirement programs that pay two or three times what the people's programs pay?...My advice (to government officials): Go to the airport, fly commercial, get in line, lose your baggage, ear a bad meal, face reality."

That's wonderful stuff. Bring on the clowns and let the fun begin.

Larry Bird was back and Boston lost. Patrick Ewing sat out for 10 1/2 minutes in the second with foul trouble against Chicago and New York won.

About the only thing that made any sense in the NBA playoffs Sunday was that Ricky Pierce rediscovered his shooting touch

The Celtics, 13-1 without Bird since he last played on April 3, lost 114-112 to Cleveland in overtime as the three-time MVP scored four points in 17 minutes. Reggie Lewis had 42 points for Boston, but it wasn't enough to overcome Larry Nance's 32 points on 13-for-16 shooting and Mark that evened their series 2-2. Price's 26 points and 12 assists for Pierce, averaging 12 points on 41 percent shooting as the Super-Sonics lost the first two games of the series at Utah, scored 31 points on 9-for-17 shooting from the line and 13-for-13 accuracy at the freethrow line, beat the Jazz 104-98 at Seattle. Michael Jordan had 29 for the Bulls, but only nine in the second half as he missed eight of 11 shots. The Bulls played the fourth quarter without coach Phil Jackson, who

"That's where we really lost the game, on the boards," Jordan said. Every time we made a run, they would make a key shot or get a key rebound.'

"It took 48 minutes of unbelievable effort," Knicks coach Pat Riley said. "One thing we talked about all season was to be the best-conditioned, hardest-working team in the league. Right now, it's not what lies ahead or what lies behind. It's what is within a team. Attitude. This team doesn't know what quitting is all about."

Ewing, who scored 15 points, sat out the last 5:29 of the third quarter and the first 5:01 of the fourth after being whistled for his fourth foul. While he was out, the Knicks land for Game 5 of that series on converted a four-point deficit into

"I'm very proud of my teammates for stepping it up," said Ewing, who is averaging 23 points a game in the playoffs. "It feels good because everyone thought we'd be out of it by this time."

Wilkins' three-point play gave New York an 84-75 lead, its largest, with 4:37 remaining. Three-point plays by Jordan and B.J. Armstrong closed Chicago to 86-82 with three minutes left, but a jumper by Ewing and two free throws by Starks put New York ahead by eight with 2:14 left, sealing the Knicks' first victory over Chicago at Madison Square Garden in eight tries.

Sonics 104, Jazz 98 Pierce said he was able to score against Utah by getting the ball closer to the basket.

"In the first two games, I got the ball at the 3-point line, which is too far out for me," Pierce said. "Today, I got the ball in spots where I could get open.'

Utah was held scoreless for almost 5 1/2 minutes in the fourth quarter and committed seven of its 13 turnovers in the final period.

'We panicked a little and just threw the ball away," coach Jerry Sloan said. "They didn't steal the ball from us, we just threw it away.'

The Sonics trailed most of the way until the fourth quarter, when they held Karl Malone, who had 30 points, to one shot and no points in the final 12 minutes. Seattle held the Jazz to 17 points in the fourth quarter.

API tournament tees off Saturday

The Panhandle Chapter of the American Petroleum Institute (API) will hold its 40th annual scholarship golf tournament on Saturday, May 16 at the Pampa Country Club.

According to fourth-year chairman Bebo Terry, this year's tournament should net over $15,000 in scholarship money for 17 students in the five state area. Over $50,000 in scholarship funds have been raised over the past three years.

Forty-two teams for a total of 168 players will vie for hole-inone prizes on every par three hole, as they compete in a fourman scramble to take top honors for the day's competition.

All the golfers will receive 40th annual API Golf Tourney jackets. Among other prizes being offered for the day are a 1992 Buick LeSabre offered by Culberson-Stowers Chevrolet Inc. and GM, a set of Mizuno MSX metal woods, two tickets from Lufthansa German Airlines to any city in Germany, and a four day, three night vacation courtesy Stouffer Esmeralda Resort, Indian Wells, Calif. Dobson Cellular has donated a cellular phone to the winner of the putting contest.

The Panhandle Chapter of API is among the oldest in the country, according to Dale Greenhouse, chapter chairman, and currently boasts of membership of 450.

"Everybody walk got Ryan in trouble in the looks for any signal they can find, third. Robin Yount doubled with the that it's time for me to do something

However, Ryan finished strong, outs, two walks and allowing just

"I thought I had pretty good fastball Saturday night. But he stuff," said Ryan, who has thrown seven no-hitters.

Ryan left with a 4-3 lead, but Terry Mathews couldn't hold it. The Brewers didn't think Ryan Texas eventually won the game 5-4.

It was Ryan's home debut after two visits to the disabled list and three failed starts on the road.

the Brewers. "He looked just like strained left leg calf and sore Ryan lowered his ERA to 8.59 Saturday night and said he's aware some critics are trying to write him "That's only normal, especially at

Ryan said he's optimistic about the rest of the season.

"I'm always optimistic about the Ryan had been bothered with a future," he said. "That was probably the first game this year when I was able to get all three pitches over the plate when I wanted to do it. "Now, my big problem is getting in the innings. Manager Bobby Valentine took Ryan out after 91 pitches, including 56 strikes.

"I guess under the circumstances it was the thing to do," Ryan said.

Raising children and retirement - a good reason for future planning

"The future is now" is a phrase consumers can use to remind them to think about the future values of consumer decisions they make each day. A basic principle in our free enterprise economy is that every consumer's decision has "opportunity costs." That means that if money is used to buy or do one thing with, part of the cost is the fact that the money spent will not be available to buy or do other things with in the future.

Budgeting is one way consumers can make decisions outside the pressures of the marketplace and better consider what is most important to them now and in the future. Budgeting promotes planning to help consumers use their money for the goods and services that are of greatest value to them.

However, budgets get blown when "unexpected opportunities" are presented to the consumer. Before you make an impulsive decision that is not in line with your budget, stop and ask yourself a few questions. First, look into the future and ask, "How will I feel about this in a few days or a few weeks? What will I have to give up in the future if I do this now?"

Think also about the fact that today is the "future of days gone by." Look back and recall what happened when similar decisions were made. Have you ended up with opportunities that would have been lost had you not acted quickly? Were claims that "This offer is good today only" never seen again? Or, have you experienced disappointment because you later discovered a better choice was there, if only you had taken time to shop around? Did a more important need or goal have to be given up because money had already been used for unplanned purchases?

One way to take charge of some of your future is to slow down and think carefully today before you act in consumer decisions. Be sure what you buy builds the future you have planned.

Where one time future planning is especially important is in raising children and retirement. Although the future seems so far away, it will be only 18 years before a child born today will need money for college or some other type of job training. It will be 20 to 30 years before the employee starting to work today will need retirement income.

Certainly, future major expenses can seem beyond the reach of many families. The secret is to start early, save regularly and spend wisely.

Look at the challenge in small, manageable options. For example, it could take as much as $80,000 for a child born today to enroll in college. That may seem like more than you can handle. If you divide it by 18 years, it looks like $4,444 a year or $370 a month. By planning for the future now, you can cut that direct cost consid-

First, come back to reality. What can you afford to set aside each month? Before you say "Not much", think about it. Where does your money go now? Do you drink about one soft drink a day or have some other daily habit that uses at least 65 cents a day? In a year, that equals $237. If both parents have this expense, that's $474 a year. Over 18 years, putting this money ($18.94 per parent per month) into a low-risk passbook savings account that earns only 5 percent should add up to $13,320.76 in 18 years. Put the passbook savings account in the child's name with the parents paying income tax on the earn-

If you can encourage your child to start making the same contribution from his or her allowance begining with their first day in school, an additional $3,761.17 will be saved by graduation day. That totals $17,081.93 if two parents and the child save.

Such savings, supported by a part-time job, grant, or scholarship should make college reachable by most children. If your family can set aside $114.55 a month in a 5 percent interest bearing account beginning at the child's birth, you will have the $40,000 by graduation day. Building your child's future starts with day one.

Fear of filing return makes taxpayer's situation worse

did a foolish thing, and now I'm afraid I'll lose everything and possibly wind up in jail! Back in 1980, I was alone and raising my son and a younger brother. I figured out my taxes, and I owed $100. Abby, we didn't have enough money to eat the day before payday, and I wasn't able to come up with $5. let alone $100. I panicked and didn't file at all!

The following year, I was afraid to file because I was afraid their computer would show that I didn't file the year before and I would be in big

You can probably guess where this is headed — out of fear and stupidity, I have not filed since. I receive letters from the IRS periodically, but I just put them aside, hoping to clear things up "later."

I have dug myselfinto a very deep hole. Their last letter said I owed the IRS $3,000. I am willing to pay the money, but I can't pay it all at once. I am afraid the IRS will contact my employer and I will lose my job, or even get sent to jail. I need to know what to do.

IN DEEP TROUBLE

DEAR IN DEEP: It is time to take action. "Enrolled (tax) agents" are equipped to handle the most complex tax returns and, should it be necessary, are authorized to represent taxpayers before all administrative levels of the Internal Revenue Service. Many enrolled agents are former employees of the IRS and have undergone extensive training and testing in tax matters. (You may find one by writing to:

Dear Abby Abigail Van Buren

The National Association of Enrolled Agents, 6000 Executive Blvd., Suite 205, Rockville, Md. 20852. The 24-hour message number is (800) 424-4339.)

According to Joseph T. Davis, executive vice president of the National Association of Enrolled Agents: "It is best to tell the IRS the truth, because they have heard all the stories. Your employer will not be notified, you will not lose your job, and you will not go to jail.'

You can expect to be penalized monetarily for your failure to file, but those who come forward voluntarily receive more generous treatment than those whom the IRS "catches." The longer one waits, the stiffer the penalties.

A tax professional can help you explain your problem to the IRS and work out a reasonable payment schedule, so don't put this off. Good luck

DEAR ABBY: The letter from

why they had not received wedding gifts from this brother-in-law and that sister-in-law, brought back memories.

When I married my beloved husband 20 years ago, his whole family disapproved of me because I was divorced, had a 1-year-old son and was three years older than the groom. My divorce had left me penniless (long story), and I had little more than the clothes on my back.

No one gave me a shower, and our wedding gifts were (1) three sets of bedsheets, and (2) a chip-and-dip

Yes, it hurt, but on my wedding day, I received the greatest gift in the world — my wonderful husband. I never regretted our meager beginning; it developed character in me.

Now after all these years, his family treats me with love and respect. Forgotten Relatives" should forget about wedding gifts they never received and be thankful for what she has. Life is too precious to waste energy on greed.

THANKFUL IN MADERA, CALIF.

DEAR THANKFUL: Your husband also received one of the greatest gifts in the world on his wedding day: a wife with values who appreciates and adores him.

People are eating them up! For Abby's favorite recipes, send a business-size, selfaddressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054, (Postage is included.)

The Book Report

Ellen Malone, Lovett Library Staff

Crimson by Shirley Conran

Following Lace II and Savages, Conran returns to the worlds of wealth and romance with Crimson. At sixty-five, Elinor O'Dare looks back on her life - specifically her career as a romance novelist and hermarriage to late husband Billy O'Dare. With her own mortality staring her in the face, she contacts Adam Grant, a lawyer of dubious intentions. Together, the two of them concoct a shocking plan as Elinor's granddaughters - themselves the victims of Adam's manipulation - look on in horror. Blindsight by Robin Cook

The best-selling novelist-physician pays yet another house call with Blindsight, his newest medical thriller since Vital Signs. A series of unrelated Yuppie cocaine deaths is business-as-usual for New York forensic pathologist Dr. Laurie Engler. But when the victims' families swear that their loved ones had never used drugs, Laurie jeopardizes her professional career to find out the truth - a truth that a distinguished New York hospital is determined to conceal.

The First Wives Club by Olivia Goldsmith

A sophisticated, sparkling, and scathing debut for Olivia-Goldsmith chronicles the sweet paths of revenge taken by three New York, high-society women who were used as springboards by their husbands. All three sacrificed and dedicated themselves to developing their husbands' careers only to be dumped in' their forties - abandoned for beautiful blonde "trophy wives." The story of how they each reclaim their own identities and ability to love again makes for an exhilarating, uplifting read from a woman called the Jacqueline Susann of the 1990s. Trial by Fire by Harold Coyle

Military action and a suspenseful plot enliven the latest novel by the author of Team Yankee. When a military coup in Mexico sows the seeds of chaos south of the Rio Grande, the United States is dragged into the melee. As tensions mount between the two neighbors, U.S. military personnel - including Lieutenant Nancy Koczak, the first woman to be assigned a combat unit; and Scott Dixon, commander of a special strike force - are drawn into the conflict. In Mortal Combat by John Toland The best-selling, Pulitzer-Prize winning author now presents a major, revelatory history of the Korean War. In addition to being the first Westerner to gain access to North Korean and Chinese combatant, Toland interviewed over two hundred members of the American military, many of whom had never been approached before. The result is a signal work of compelling readability and lasting importance on

The Leading Lady by Betty White and Tom Sullivan

America's first limited war.

Readers from ages 9 to 90 will love this touching, enjoyable story of Dinah, entertainer Tom Sullivan's guide dog, who was adopted by actress Betty White when the golden retriever became too old to work. A wonderful collaboration by these two popular celebrities.

The World is My Home by James

A poignant, revealing autobiography from the phenomenally successful author celebrates his eightyfive years as a citizen of the world. The author of such epic historical novels as Hawaii and Texas discusses his life as world traveler and writer - including his small-town roots in Pennsylvania at the turn of the century, his islandhopping experiences in the South Pacific during World War II, his first novels, and his present status as one of the world's most popular and highly acclaimed writers. Bygones by LaVyrle Spencer

A divorced woman has a second shot at love - and marriage - in Bygones. Successful and independent, Bess Curran has put her sixteen-year marriage to Michael and their bitter and angry divorce behind her. But fate intervenes. Her daughter Lisa's unplanned pregnancy and shotgun wedding will reunite her with Michael once again, and Bess is détermined not to allow her antagonism toward him destroy Lisa's happiness. Then Lisa announces her intention to wear Bess's wedding gown and her desire to have both her parents accompany her down the aisle.

The Day the Rabbi Resigned by Harry Kemelman

The best-selling author of the Rabbi Small mystery series returns with another puzzling murder in the town of Bernard's Crossing. Bored with his clerical duties and eager to teach, Rabbi Small finds his plans circumvented by police chief Hugh Lanigan, who contacts him when a college professor turns up dead. The victim of no ordinary drunk driving accident, Victor Joyce - an ambitious philanderer - seemed to have generated as much ill-will as academic assignments. As Lanigan and Small investigate, they discover a multitude of suspects.

Rising Sun by Michael Crichton Again mixing science and suspense, Crichton offers a thrilling tale of a high-tech battle for control of vital technological knowledge. Plotted as a murder mystery, the novel probes the high stakes world of the international electronics industry, where, as the Japanese say, "business is war," and the hostilities span the Pacific Basin from Asia to The Pelican Brief by John Grisham

The assassinations of the Supreme Court's most extreme justices could mean a step up the legal ladder - or death - for a Louisiana law student. Late one evening, two justices are murdered, a crime that baffles even the FBI. But one law student in the Big Easy thinks she has the answer. Darby Shaw puts homework on hold to prepare a wildly speculative brief that points the finger at a suspect with powerful friends. Forced underground with reporter Gray Grantham, Darby must elude death long enough to uncover the truth. Unholy Fire by Whitley Strieber

A scorned priest must tap the ageless power of the priesthood to save his reputation and the lives of his parishioners. Father John Rafferty leads a normal existence as a Greenwich Village priest. Then a young woman he has been counseling is found murdered in his church, and Father Rafferty becomes the center of a powerful drama between good and evil. Scorned by his parishioners and plagued by selfdoubt, he must find the faith and courage to stand up to the devil at large in his own community. Pure Cop by Connie Fletcher

A best-selling crime writer supplements her first work on the police force, What Cops Know, with an expose that focuses on six new fields of operation on the streets of Chicago. The author, who is an assistant professor of journalism at Loyola University, interviewed police in specialized units about their real encounters with prostitution, major accidents, bombs, arson, hostage situations, and crime scene investigations. The result is a gripping inside look into the everyday lives of the cops who dare to walk some of the country's meanest
