

Pampa school board names Stewart as new PMS principal

By ANGELA LEGGETT
Staff Writer

School board officials unanimously voted to hire Jerome Stewart, Caprock High School Assistant Principal, Amarillo, as the new Pampa Middle School principal in a special meeting Monday.

Resignations were also accepted, reassignments were made and three additional positions were filled at the meeting.

"He is a dynamic person who is going to bring a much needed change to the Middle School," Keith Teague, president of the Pampa Independent School District board of education, said about the hiring of Stewart.

Stewart is a graduate of Simpson College in Indianola, Iowa, where he received his bachelor degree. He received a master of science in education with an emphasis in special education from Drake University. Stewart recently attended West Texas State University and earned a degree in school administration.

"Coming to Pampa gives me the chance to be a part of a really good school system," he said. "There is a lot of support for the school system here with the teachers, board members and community."

Stewart recently spent two years as the assistant principal of Caprock High School with approximately 1,300 students.

"We are delighted to have him on board," Dawson Orr, Pampa superintendent, said. "He will begin working for the school system beginning sometime next week."

"His special skills include being a motivational and inspirational speaker in teacher meetings, schools, and churches," Orr added.

Stewart has a family of four with a fifth on the way. "There is my beautiful wife Raquel," he said, "and three sons Elliott, 5, Gabriel, 4 and Eric 2."

Board member also accepted three resignations at the meeting. Dianne Wood, a teacher at Horace Mann, Kathleen Jensen and Betha Lee Roberts, both teachers at the Pampa Middle School, resigned.

Four reassignments were made. Connie Nicklas will be teaching at Mann, Mark Elms will be the math department coordinator; Ramona Norton, will be a kindergarten teacher at Wilson and Kay Harvey will hold a newly-formed position, gifted/talented teacher.

Employment additions include Stewart replacing Ronnie Wood as the middle school principal, Scott Lewis as the Pampa High School teacher/coach, Cheryl Lewis as an elementary teacher at Horace Mann and Kristi Smith Landis as a teacher at Lamar Elementary.

Deputy discovers burglary in progress

By BETH MILLER
Senior Staff Writer

A routine patrol and checking of a Gray County business early this morning resulted in a deputy finding a burglary in progress, said Gray County Sheriff's Chief Deputy Terry L. Cox.

Cox said Deputy John Worthington was patrolling U.S. 60 West about 2 a.m. and noticed a door pried open at Dyer's Barbecue.

"He shined his light on the door and two guys came out," Cox said.

Cox said the two suspects took off on foot running north across the railroad tracks and the deputy lost sight of them in a field. After calling for backup, Worthington began to pursue the two suspects. A third suspect also fled the business, Cox said.

"About 10 officers (Pampa police and sheriff's deputies) responded, and several got out on foot," Cox said.

Sheriff Jim Free and Deputy Connie O. Brainard with the sheriff's office returned to the business to process the scene while the search for the suspects continued, Cox said.

"John and I stayed on foot and spotted one near the Graham Wire Rope," Cox said. "I called one of our units and one of the city's and asked them to go north and east of us."

Cox said Pampa Police Officer David Lee headed off that suspect on Naida Street.

Arrested at that location was Guy Matthew McKissick, 17, 624 N. Somerville. He has been charged with one count of burglary of a building and was in Gray County Jail this morning.

A juvenile was arrested about two hours later, at 4:04 a.m. in the 900 block of South Wilcox, Cox said. He has been turned over to juvenile authorities.

"We still have one suspect at large," Cox said this morning.

The chief deputy said that nothing was taken from the business, but that the suspects were in the process of "getting things gathered" when Worthington arrived at the scene and found the burglary in progress.

KAMR news crew injured at train derailment site

AMARILLO (AP) - Two members of an Amarillo television news crew suffered electrical shock injuries Monday when the antenna of their news van touched overhead power lines while they were reporting on a train derailment.

Officials said the incident occurred about 6 p.m., approximately an hour after cars of a Santa Fe Railway train derailed 5 miles north of Amarillo.

KAMR-TV newswoman Jill Yonas was touching the van when the electrical charge went through it and received burns on her thighs and back. She was reported in stable condition at a hospital. Photographer Todd Hunt was treated and released for minor injuries.

Kurt Ecker, a spokesman for the Amarillo Fire Department, said the train was northbound from Amarillo to Dumas when about 10 of its 25 to 30 cars derailed approximately 5 miles north of Amarillo.

Three of the derailed cars were carrying ammonia, which leaked from one of the cars and spilled, Ecker said.

Two of the train's three crew members were treated after complaining that their eyes were burning from the ammonia fumes.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could be rather lucky today in social involvements and dealings you have with friends. However, you might not find as many good buddies in the commercial world. Cancer, treat yourself to a birthday gift. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An opportunity that is meaningful to you materially should be acted upon promptly today. It will be functioning on its own timetable, not yours, so don't miss the boat.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A concept you've been toying with may have greater possibilities than you first realized. As your awareness grows, take measures to expand on it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Even though you might have a few obstacles to contend with today, your possibilities for acquisition look extremely encouraging. Focus on profitable results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you do things for friends today, don't do so on a quid pro quo basis. What goes around comes around and, if you give now, you'll get yours later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions are favorable today for advancing your self-interests in your chosen field of endeavor. However, you must be careful you aren't sidetracked by less ambitious associates.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It's more important to work at shoring up your important relationships today than it is at focusing on your material expectations. Friends can help you get what you want.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your possibilities for achieving two important objectives today look very good. Lady Luck might intervene at the right moment and enhance your effectiveness.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you have to deal with big shots today, don't be self-demeaning. Once you see yourself as their equal, they'll begin to look at you from the same perspective.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Emotional dealings you have today with members of your own sex should come off relatively well. However, involvements with the opposite gender might not.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Someone who is your friend socially might not be supportive of your ambitious objectives today. This individual won't deliberately block you, but won't really try to help you either.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Too many chefs could spoil the porridge today. If you've cooked up something that's moving along smoothly, don't invite others into your kitchen. They might only stir up problems.

Federal officials set up office to aid Fritch tornado victims

FRITCH (AP) — For the second time this year, federal disaster aid officials have set up offices in Texas counties to assist residents ravaged by severe weather.

George Burgess, spokesman for Federal Emergency Management Agency, said residents of this tornado-torn Panhandle town trickled into a makeshift office Monday to see what relief is available for damage wrought by at least three tornadoes June 27.

Burgess said unfortunately many residents will look at the government relief as a handout and may refuse it.

"Some think it is charity and that is a shame," Burgess said. "It's neighbor helping neighbor. It's something they have paid for with their taxes."

President Bush declared Hutchinson and Carson counties disaster areas July 2, and about 160 residents have sought aid since then through a toll-free number, Burgess said.

The Fritch tornado damage marks the second time this year counties in Texas have been declared federal disaster areas.

FEMA also set up offices in Central Texas through the first six months of this year to help residents who suffered through record flooding.

"Texas has had its share of weather-related tragedies this year," Burgess said. "Here you see homes leveled to the ground. There you saw homes under water up to the rooftops."

An office for Fritch residents to meet with FEMA officials was set up Monday at the town's middle school.

The Red Cross estimates more than 1,000 homes were damaged in the small community comprised mostly of blue-collar oil refinery workers.

Remarkably, no one was killed in the twisters, which swept through the heart of several neighborhoods. Seven people were injured.

Many residents didn't have insurance.

Sherron Boyd said after the twisters destroyed her three-bedroom trailer home, "federal assistance is my only hope. I have nothing saved."

Any resident, with or without insurance, whose home was damaged by the storm may be eligible for short- and long-term assistance, Burgess said.

The aid ranges from immediate reimbursement for temporary rental housing to low-interest loans up to $100,000 to rebuild homes and up to $20,000 for things such as lost clothing or auto repairs, Burgess said.

For those without insurance or means to repay a loan, a non-binding grant of up to $11,500 is available.

The toll-free number for residents of Hutchinson and Carson counties to call for applications for federal aid is 1-800-462-9029.

School finance forecast unclear

By PEGGY FIKAC
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards says she's uncertain how much public education would get of any growth in state revenue, although she hopes early projects of $650 million are correct.

"We all know that there's going to be growth in the economy, and we feel good about that. How much of it's going to go to the public schools, I don't know yet," Richards said Monday.

Her statement came only days after Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said public schools would get at least $650 million more state aid next legislative session.

Richards said she didn't want her statements to be painted as a disagreement with Bullock. She said, "I hope he's right."

Bullock had said the increase would come from economic growth and improvement. He said it might be as much as $1 billion for the budget period encompassing the 1993-94 and 1994-95 school years.

The governor said she hadn't talked to Bullock because the lieutenant governor was preparing to have back and knee surgery.

But she told reporters, "I'd say you can't be definitive about exactly how much is going to go to public schools ... Don't set that up as some kind of disagreement or quarrel or something because it really isn't. I mean there's going to be extra money there, and there are going to be a lot of competing things for that money."

Bullock's earlier statement came after he, Richards and House Speaker Gib Lewis told school superintendents in a June letter, "There will be no new state money for public education next biennium, and you can expect per pupil state aid to remain, at best, constant."

Mary Jane Wardlow, a spokeswoman for the lieutenant governor, characterized the statement as a "clarification" of the previous letter.

Ms. Wardlow said Bullock wanted to emphasize that growth in the budget would provide money for additional students, even though school districts could not count on a funding increase per student.

She said there had been concern from school districts expecting a large number of new students.

In figuring the projected public education increase, Ms. Wardlow said, Bullock's staff took Legislative Budget Board staff estimates for the coming budget cycle and pulled out the percentage that normally goes to education. That is about 38 percent of general revenue money, she said.

Bullock last week said State Comptroller John Sharp says tax revenues are running ahead of projections, and that Sharp will recommend budget savings.

"This $650 million in new state aid is being factored into every school finance idea now being considered or worked on by legislative leaders," he said.

The Texas Supreme Court has given lawmakers a June 1, 1993, deadline for fixing the school finance system.

The court in January found the current system violates the state constitution.

Nowlin refuses to step down from redistricting case

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. District Judge James Nowlin has refused to remove himself from the state redistricting case, despite a reprimand for his handling of the matter.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales has asked the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans to review Nowlin's decision, a spokesman said Monday.

Morales' spokesman Ron Dusek said the request of the 5th Circuit is not an appeal, but indicates the state's wish to have the court look at the action taken by Nowlin.

Nowlin is a member of the three-judge panel that voted 2-1 to reject a state Senate redistricting plan approved by the Legislature, and replace it with a court-ordered plan.

That plan has been criticized by Democrats and minority groups, who say the Republican-appointed judges drew the district boundaries in a way to help the GOP.

After imposing the plan, Nowlin was reprimanded by a panel of federal judges, which said he violated judicial rules by getting secret help from a Republican legislator in drawing a redistricting map.

Morales had earlier sought Nowlin's removal from the case because of the controversy. The judge refused. After the reprimand, Morales again tried to get Nowlin off the case.

Again, he refused.

The redistricting plan has been upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court, but challenges by the state continue that could affect district lines after this year's elections.

Sen. David Sibley, R-Waco, praised Nowlin for staying on the case.

"I am pleased Nowlin has again refused to bow to pressure from a handful of petty, partisan, special-interest Democrats who continue to waste time and taxpayer money in fighting this fair redistricting plan," he said.

Dusek said the redistricting plan adopted by the Legislature should be in place, not the one ordered by a court.

The plan adopted by the Legislature "is the better plan, especially toward ensuring minority voting rights, and in addition to that it is a plan from the people rather than from a judge," he said.

Demonstrators torch cars to protest police shooting

By VIRGINIA BYRNE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Inner-city residents protesting a fatal police shooting in their neighborhood set fires, tossed bottles from rooftops and fired at police Monday night in the second disturbance arising from the shooting.

One man died after he jumped off a five-story building as police chased bottle-throwers. He may have thought he would land on a fire escape, said Sgt. Mary Wrensen, a police spokeswoman.

Ten others were injured, including three police officers, Wrensen said.

Mayor David Dinkins appealed for calm in the largely Hispanic neighborhood during a newscast Monday night on a Spanish-language television station.

"It is necessary to be calm. The frustration and anger is understood but it is no answer to have destruction of property, injury to people and perhaps even loss of life," the mayor said.

Protesters torched an abandoned building and at least two cars in the Washington Heights section of northern Manhattan.

At least eight people were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct, arson and assault.

The night began with a peaceful march by several hundred residents who gathered near where Jose Garcia, 23, was shot Friday night. They held candles and chanted "police assassin" in Spanish.

Some of the demonstrators splintered off and began throwing bottles off rooftops, said police Officer Andrew McInnis.

"These cops are murdering the people around here," said Jose Nunez, 15. "If they're not beating up on people, they're killing them."

A similar disturbance broke out Saturday after witnesses disputed a police report that Garcia was armed and was fatally shot as he struggled the officer. City officials have promised an investigation.

Labor Department awards $1.4 million to youth programs for Native Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Department of Labor has earmarked three youth programs in Texas to receive more than $1.4 million to help Native Americans.

The programs will provide vocational training for Native Americans living in Texas, labor officials said Monday.

The Alabama-Coushatta Indian

Tribal Council in Livingston will receive the largest share of the money, $689,872.

The Ysleta Del Sur Pueblo in El Paso will receive $478,982 and the Dallas Inter-Tribal Center in Dallas $281,009.

A total of $63 million will be distributed nationwide. The funds are part of the Job Training Partnership Act.
