

Walking into Darkness

BY WILLIAM IRISH

TWO STORIES
Time, 1938
Place, New Orleans
Louis Durand, 37, a well-to-do bachelor, has been corresponding with Miss Julia Russell, whom he has never seen. He has proposed marriage and she has accepted. According to her picture, Miss Russell is dark-haired, strong, muscular and no longer young. Durand goes down to the dock to meet the boat that is to bring her from St. Louis. He is dumfounded when an exquisite young blond arrives. Introducing herself as Julia, she explains her little device by saying she didn't want him to fall for just a pretty face. Durand is embarrassed with her and they are married. Certain things puzzle him, however, during their first days together. Among them is the fact Julia has never opened her trunk. She says she lost the key. When a letter arrives from her sister bidding her, with no writing, to insist she really takes her letter to mail herself.

She sighed. "I hate to see you go. And now I'll be all alone the rest of the Hivelong day."
"What will you do with yourself?" he asked in compunction, with the sudden—and only momentary—realization of a male that she too had a day to get through somehow, that she continued to go on during his absence. "Go shopping, I suppose," he suggested indulgently.

Her face brightened a moment, as though he had read her heart. "Yes!" Then it dimmed again. "No—" she said, forlorn. Instantly his attention was held fast. "Why not? What's the matter?"
"Oh, nothing—" She turned her head away, she didn't want to tell him. He took hold of the point of her chin and turned it back again. "Julia, I want to know. Tell me. What is it?" He touched her shoulder.
She tried to smile, wanly. Her eyes looked out the door.
He had to guess finally. "Is it money?"
Not an eyelash moved, but somehow she told him. Certainly not with her tongue.
He gasped, half in laughter. "Oh, my poor foolish little Julia!" Instantly his coat flew open, his hand reached within. "Why, you only have to ask, don't you know that?"
"This time there could be no mistaking the answer. 'No—! No—! No!'" She was almost vehement about it, albeit in a pouty, petulant child's sort of way. She even tapped her foot for emphasis. "I don't like to ask for it. It isn't nice. I don't care if you are my own husband. It still isn't nice. I was brought up that way, I can't change."
"Then, what do you want?"

THE next morning, he thought she never had looked lovelier, and never had been more loving. She was in lilac watered silk, which had a rippling sheen running down it from whichever side you looked at it. It shined as she walked, as if itself overcome by her loveliness. She did not stay at table as on other days, she accompanied him to the front door to see him off, her arm linked to his waist, his arm to hers. And as the slanting morning sunlight caught her in its glow, then released her, then caught her again a step further on, playing its mottled game with her all along the hall, he thought he had never seen such a vision of angelic beauty. They stopped. She raised her face from the side of his arm, she took up his hat, she stroked it of dust, she handed it to him.
They kissed.
She prepared his coat, held it spread, helped him on with it. They kissed.
He opened the door in readiness to go.
They kissed.

She gave him a typically female answer. "I don't know."
"But you do want to go shopping, don't you? I can see you do by your look. And yet you don't want me to give you the money for it."
"Isn't there some other way?" she appealed to him helplessly. "I could slip it under your plate, unasked, for you to find at breakfast," he smirked.

HE saw no humor in the suggestion, shook her head absently, still busy pondering the problem, finger to tooth edge. Suddenly she brightened, looked at him. "Couldn't I have a little account of my own? Like you have only—Oh, just a little one, tiny—small—"
There she decided against that, before he could leap to give his consent, as he had been about to. "No, that'd be too much bother, just for hats and gloves and things—" About to fall into disheartened perplexity again, she recovered, once more lighted up as a new variant occurred to her. "Or better still, couldn't I just share yours with you?" She spread out her hands in triumphant discovery. "That'd be simpler yet. Just call it ours instead. It's there already."
He crouched his shoulders down low. He slapped his thigh sharply. "By George! Will that make you happy? Is that all it will take? God bless your trusting little heart! We'll do it!"
She flew into his arms like a hot, with a squeal for a fringe report. "Oh, Lou, I'll feel so big, so important! Can I, really? And can I even write my own checks, like you do?"
To love someone is to give, and to want to give more still, no questions asked. To stop and think, then that is not to love. "Your own checks, in your own handwriting, in your own purse, I'll meet you at the bank at 11. Will that time suit you?"
"She only pressed her cheek to his."
"Will you know how to find it?"
She only pressed her cheek to his again, around on the other side of his face.

It Takes Two Heads to Win On Radio Shows, Boyle Says

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK—(AP)—Once upon a time there was born a two-headed little boy.
The parents were quite startled at first. Even dismayed. But their kind neighbors all made a big fuss over the baby, saying things like:
"Yes, sir, you've really got something there."
"Well, two heads are better than one."
So the parents became quite proud of their unusual offspring. They named one head Homer, and the other Horace.

They graduated at the top of their class—what Horace didn't know, Homer did—and everybody predicted a brilliant future.
But landing a job proved more difficult than they expected. It seemed the business world had no place for a man with two heads, even though Homer—Horace agreed to work for one salary.
Over and over they got the same depressing answer:
"What we're looking for, boys, is a man with four hands—instead of two heads."
At home Horace—Homer became quite a financial problem to their parents. Their double appetite made the family food bills ruinous.
"Sometimes," sighed the father, "I almost wish that boy had been born with one head."
One day Homer—Horace passed a radio theater just as the crowd was filing in to watch a giveaway quiz show. Weary from their job quest, they slipped in, too, hoping for a chance to rest their feet.
But the announcer spotted them at once.
"Come up on the stage and get on the program," he whispered. "A glass of beer has a better head on it than most of the folks here this afternoon."
A moment later, despite minor cries of "unfair, unfair" by some lady contestants, Homer—Horace were on the air.
"Who composed Gray's 'Elegy Written in A Country Churchyard?'" asked the master of ceremonies.
"Thomas Gray," snapped Horace. The audience broke into a storm of amazed applause.
"How many men are there in a male quartet?" said the m.c.
"Four!" barked Homer, the mathematical wizard. Again the audience handclapped its surprise wonder.
The rest is history. Homer—Horace became the overnight sensation of the giveaways. They won contest after contest. No one could quiz them down. Their father opened an agency to sell all the new cars, refrigerators and washing machines that Homer—Horace gained as prizes. Wealth flowed into their humble cottage, and their dear old mother was half-strangled in milk coats.

"And to think," she chided her husband happily, "when Homer—Horace was born, you wanted to sue the stork."
Moral: Today you never can be sure what'll get you ahead in the world—particularly in radio.

Godfrey Turns Down Movie Offer

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD—(AP)—Radio Star Arthur Godfrey, here for a special air show, shook his famous red head at movie offers.
The salty personality of radio told me he has received some film nibbles, but figures the screen is not for him yet. "I'm not in a position yet to get what I want," he said. "I want a producer to come to me and say 'I've heard you for quite a while and I know what kind of a guy you are. I've seen too many radio people flop in pictures.'"
Godfrey has the same easy warmth of Bing Crosby, and it's my guess he'll some day enjoy a similar success in films.
"Fuller Brush Girl." That's the intriguing project planned by producer-director S. Sylvan Simon as a follow-up to his smashing success with Red Skelton. There'll be a search for the right "girl" for the title role, but don't be surprised if a famous redhead leads the part.
Frank Buck is off to bring 'em back alive again, after his stint in "Africa Screams." He'll sail up the Nile to the Sudan and hopes to bring back a couple of white rhinos. He figures he can retail them for $12,000 apiece.
Dann Kaye tells about being at the Paris ballet recently and hearing a voice from the boxes shouting, "Hey, you sally-looking creep, what are you doing here?" Danny gazed upward and saw Gen. Kelly, who is vacationing in Europe.
Nate to Dore Schary: If you want a real soldier in your Battle of the Bulge film, "Battleground," Audie Murphy is eager for the chance. He could be technical advisor, too.
If a newt loses a leg or tail, it will grow again. Even heads of some creatures will grow again if lost.

With Christmas close at hand, mothers should begin thinking about those large dinners and plan now to order one of those special-occasion cakes from the Pampa Baking Company.

On Christmas day few mothers have time or want to spend the energy to bake cakes, rolls or any other kind of pastry, and why should they when they can purchase those tasty products of the Pampa Baking Company. Carrying a complete line of pastries, the local bakery can take care of every special-occasion need. The variety of pastries found there will satisfy even the most exact hostess.

In practically every local grocery, Pampans are able to purchase Golden Loaf, richer and better bread—and it's locally made too.

Most bakeries use four percent milk and sugar and three percent shortening in their breads. However, Pampa Bakery uses more of each of these three main ingredients in Golden Loaf. In the Pampa-made bread, six percent milk and sugar are used and four percent shortening. One may wonder why Golden Loaf not only tastes better but seems fresher and has a better texture—the extra basic ingredients account for this big difference.

With additional sugar, shortening and milk, Golden Loaf bread has a better crust color, keeps better, tastes better and is more nourishing. By buying Golden Loaf bread, mothers are not only providing more nourishment for their children, but they also are getting more for their money.

The local bakery is located at 848 W. Foster and has been owned and operated by Frank Rapstine since February of last year. With the addition of the local bakery, Pampa also gained several families who came to town to be employed at the bakery.

Regardless of one's desires in the bread and pastry lines, the Pampa Bakery is the place to contact. Items that may be purchased or ordered from your grocer or from the bakery include:

White, wholewheat, rye, pimento cheese, French and raisin Golden Loaf bread, small and large buns, dinner and parker house rolls, sweet dough rolls, cinnamon rolls, fruit rolls, hot cross buns, fruit and cream pies, fruit prepak pies, chiffon pies, MaryAnn, Metropolitan, cup cakes, decorated sheet cake, decorated cookies, wedding cake, pecan pies, doughnuts, brownies, sweet rolls, dipped and decorated petit fours. In fact there is nothing in the baked goods line that one cannot order at the bakery.

The bakery is now taking orders for Christmas fruit cakes. It will have three and five pound cakes in both dark and light fruit cakes.

One item that has aided hostesses in providing tasty parties is the colored bread put out by the Pampa Bakery. The orders may be called into the bakery and colored party bread is the result.

The local bakery also is the distributor of this area of Mrs. Baird's cakes. In all of the items made at the bakery, fresh and frozen eggs are used with the exception of fruit pies.

Other towns that profit from Pampa's bakery are White Deer, Skellytown, Panhandle and Berger. Trucks are sent daily to these towns providing Golden Loaf bread and many of the other pastry products.

Many ideal Christmas gifts are to be found there, including Konson table and pocket cigarette lighters, electric clocks, Mrs. J. G. McDonald's candy, Meekers bill-folds, luggage, cameras, waffle irons, toastmasters, Panburn's candy and many other things.

Oak Flooring Used at Record Rate in Home Construction

Although record production of hardwood flooring has made the material more available than at any time since the war, supply remains short in relation to demand, the National Oak Flooring Manufacturers' Association reports.

The heavy volume of residential construction, coupled with a mounting preference among home owners for oak flooring, in particular, has operated to create shortages in many communities. Trade figures show that the 1948 housing program will require almost 50 percent more hardwood flooring than was used at the peak of the building boom in 1925 when a comparable number of dwellings was constructed.

Thus the output for this year, although well ahead of the 1947 rate, is expected to provide barely enough hardwood flooring to fill the nation's needs. A record 624,725,000 board feet were turned out last year in the Southern and Appalachian regions, which account for approximately 85 percent of all the hardwood flooring produced in the United States.

The growing preference for oak is reflected in the substantially larger percentage of homes in which it is being utilized. Additionally, more oak flooring per housing unit is being employed.

Right Colors Take Drabness Out of Home

Standardized design permits builders to erect homes at lower cost than prevail when each house in a development differs. This is good for a buyer's pocketbook but bad for his aesthetic sense.

A standard house can be individualized by landscaping entirely different than that on either side; by using a bright exterior color in sharp contrast to the neighbors; and by a smart, modern interior decorative scheme to reflect the owner's personality.

In the living-room, for example, three walls in pastel green and the fourth in a pale sea-shell tint will lift the room out of the ordinary. A dark-green marbled asphalt tile floor, diagonally striped with white, will harmonize with this and make the room appear larger. Draperies with a bold dark-green figure on a sea-shell ground will complete a fresh color scheme.

Easily Built Vestibule Can Keep Heat in

Temporary storm vestibules, built around front and back doors of the house where interior vestibules are lacking, are important and inexpensive aids to winter comfort. These enclosures prevent gusts of cold air sweeping into the living quarters when outside doors are opened.

Adding a vestibule to a house with an open porch is simple, as no floor or roof construction is involved. The vestibule can be removed at winter's end.

The enclosure should measure at least 5x5 feet. For one of this size, build a frame of five upright 2x4s. One forms each corner of the vestibule, extending from porch floor to ceiling. The fifth, standing midway of the front section, serves as a door jamb for the vestibule door, which is hung on one of the front corner uprights.

The space is enclosed by five window-sashes, each 30 inches wide and reaching from floor to ceiling. Two of the sashes, placed edge-to-edge, form each side of the vestibule. They are fastened to the corner uprights and to each other with hooks and screws, permitting easy removal. The fifth sash is attached with hooks at right angles to the others at a front corner of the vestibule, and to the vestibule door jamb. An ordinary storm-door closes the remaining half of the vestibule front.

Sewing Room Cheered Up By Tile Use

Tucked off in many an old house is a small cubicle originally a sewing-room. Many of these have fallen into disuse and become catchalls, usually because they were gloomy or cramped. Such spaces can be made one of the most valuable rooms in the home for sewing, reading or study, by brightening it up with gay wallpaper or paint; a colorful asphalt tile floor; soft but brilliant lighting; and cheerful draperies. Flaming pastel tints are best. A wallpaper in faintly-lined plaid or banded with plain colors will make the small room cheery.

Fugs with intricate designs or dark patterns are avoided in a small room. Light gray or turquoise asphalt tile marbled with cream or pale yellow will add brightness. If the room is used for sewing, scraps of cloth and thread are whittled up from this smooth surface flooring without effort.

Tight Basement Windows Make Floors Warmer

An often-overlooked precaution for winter home comfort is to seal all cracks and openings that permit cold air to enter the basement.

Storm - windows and weather-strip on all basement windows, plus caulking all cracks where the house rests on the foundation, will add greatly to floor warmth, and since a tight basement prevents the escape of furnace heat to the outside and the entrance of cold air to the floor.

Basement temperature of more than 70 degrees indicates that heat is being wasted, usually because furnace and heat pipes are not properly insulated. Equipment should be covered with batts of mineral wool or other material made for this purpose. If the basement is too cold, removing a section of pipe covering will solve the problem.

Rolling Shelves in Basement Save Space

Waste space under basement stairs can be put to use by fitting under them four or five shelf units built like open bookshelves. Each shelf unit fits under its step, and rolls in and out from under the step on casters.

The end supports of the shelves are boards the same width as the steps, so that when the shelf unit is rolled back beneath its stair-step the space is closed and contents of the shelves hidden. Each shelf compartment rolls on four ordinary flat-base casters bolted beneath the bottom shelf.

Under the average basement staircase, 5 such shelf units, graduated in height as the steps descend, can be fitted. These will contain a total of 10 shelves, each 30 inches long and 9 or 9 inches wide; and will store a three-month supply of canned goods. A list of contents can be attached to each compartment end.

Home Builders to Be Getting More Plywood

TACOMA, Wash. — There's good news for builders, home owners and amateur craftsmen (handy men) alike in the announcement that fir plywood production this year will reach 2,000,000,000 square feet, an all-time record high.

This represents a 70 percent increase over 1946, the year of victory.

Plywood, tagged the wood of 1,000 uses, has long been one of the scarcest building materials as the aftermath of 100 percent allocation of war followed by allocation for veteran's housing. Although reared prewar as a building material for peace, its many military applications proved further its versatility making it more useful now than ever before and adding to deferred demand.

Today, more than half of the plywood is going to the nation's 25,000 retail lumber dealers, described as the corner grocers to construction, who supply materials in truckloads or piece-lots to Mr. and Mrs. America, to carpenters, contractors, farmers and countless other consumers of the engineered wood panels. Government control over use of the material was rescinded last year.

This and production, distribution data and other information about plywood are incorporated in a newly published booklet "Facts about Douglas Fir Plywood" issued here by Douglas Fir Plywood Association, the trade association for the West Coast panel industry of 42 plants which produces two thirds of the nation's plywood.

Fir plywood is manufactured in outdoor and interior types, in several grades, thicknesses and sizes to meet express building and other needs. Not all dealer stocks have been replenished everywhere, although the plywood is being shipped in greater and greater quantities to every state in the nation.

The 2,000,000,000 feet of panels being made this year would, theoretically be enough to build some 30,000 all-plywood houses or upwards of a third of all the houses to be erected in the nation. Not all plywood goes into housing as railroads, furniture makers, boat builders and other industrial users take large quantities; they are long-time plywood buyers using essentially grades other than those needed for building.

More than a third of the fir plywood volume now is of the exterior or outdoor type material with completely waterproof bond. This is the material used for modern exteriors of homes and buildings, silos, hog houses and other farm buildings and marine applications, according to the industry review. New performance requirements, more rigid than ever before in effect, have just been established through the U. S. Department of Commerce to assure durability of the material in use. It is stated in the booklet.

Interior plywood, the other type, is used for cabinets, room paneling and such structural parts of homes as sheathing and ceiling.

In the "what's ahead" category, the plywood facts booklet forecasts continued greater production to better supply all classes of consumers. There will be a higher proportion of the outdoor panels and continued determination to better the multiple-use product. And manufacturers are concentrating on conservation of the natural resource — timber — through constant refinement of manufacturing techniques for highest utilization of the Douglas fir logs, the nation's most valuable crop.

Local Television Code Should be Investigated

Before purchasing a television receiver, the prospective buyer should ascertain regulations in his community covering installation. Some localities do not require that they be placed in the attic.

After a standard outdoor aerial is installed, the television owner who has not investigated his community's rulings may be forced to install his aerial indoors at additional expense.

Television engineers are not in accord as to the fidelity of reception with inside aerials, but where local regulations exist, they must be followed. Tenants

Hardwood Floor Best for Homes Report Claims

Architects and builders assert that good flooring is one of the best investments a home buyer can make when selecting materials for a house. Flooring, they explain, plays a vital role both in the structural soundness and the attractiveness of a home.

A material should be chosen which is sufficiently strong, comfortable and pleasing in appearance. Besides adding charm to the home interior it should be easy to maintain and should last the life of the building.

Various types of flooring now are on the market. However, as pointed out in a recent bulletin on flooring published by the Kansas State College Engineering Experiment Station, "no other flooring material equals a good hardwood for a residence floor."

One of the advantages of hardwood, the bulletin adds, is that it can be installed easily by local workmen. Panned for strength, durability and beauty of grain, oak is the most extensively used of all flooring hardwoods. It is available in several styles and grades.

Which Bowl Will Present the Best Program New Year's?

WARREN'S WARMUP

THE QUESTION: What team sport burns up an athlete's energy fastest?

BADGERING: Talking with Coach Tom Tipps the other day he mentioned that he hoped they wouldn't decide to start a "good-bye Tom" movement down here, similar to the movement started at the University of Wisconsin against head football coach Harry Stuhldreher.

BETTER BOWLING

FOR LEFTIES: The problem doesn't appear to be any different for the left handed bowler from what it is for the more prevalent right handed bowler. But the fact that there aren't nearly as many southpaws does create a difference.

Obviously the left side of any alley will not have been used as much as the right side. A new alley, or one that hasn't been used very much will probably be a "fast" alley. As you may know, the "fast" alley does not help the hook spin and it may be almost impossible to get a hook-break.

Because the left hander will usually be faced with a "fast" alley, or at least relatively faster, he might as well prepare for it and adapt his style to things as they are. He must start the ball well to the left, as you see in the illustration, and allow for little break. In order to get an effective hit in the left hander's 12 strike pocket, the ball should be aimed at the No. 2 pin, and usually to the inside of the No. 2 pin.

It was explained previously that on a fast or highly polished alley surfact it is necessary to deliver the ball from near the gutter so you can use all the angle into the strike target possible. The INWARD BREAK on a slick surface is small because the ball slides far down the alley before the hook-spin "takes." On a slow, or "run" alley, you can count on the large hook to angle into the target even if it was delivered near the center of the alley.

Certainly you should never pitch the ball out over the foul line on a slick alley surface... it might still be skidding when it gets to the pins! Roll the ball on a fast alley. Release the ball approximately on the foul line with rolling action, so it will skid a minimum distance before the hook-spin begins to take effect.

Class AA to Start Championship Play

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor

Sixteen teams battle this week in the opening round of the Texas school football state championship play-offs in the City Conference and Class AA.

The City Conference, which has only four districts, will establish finalists. Woodrow Wilson (Dallas) plays Arlington Heights (Fort Worth) at Dallas Friday night. Lamar (Houston) meets Thomas Jefferson (San Antonio) at Houston Saturday.

On the basis of season records, Arlington Heights and Lamar will be the favored teams. Both are undefeated but once tied. However, Woodrow Wilson's marked improvement in the final month of the season indicates the Wildcats will be more than thought for Arlington Heights to handle. The only direct basis of comparison is a game with Sunset of Dallas, Arlington Heights having beaten Sunset 19-0 while Woodrow Wilson swamped that team 55-15.

The national championship aspects have been removed from the bowl events, so the boys can go ahead and argue it out.

Michigan, the No. 1 team in the nation, can't compete under a Western Conference ruling forbidding return trips to Pasadena, Notre Dame, No. 2, and Army, No. 3, traditionally slum the extracurricular activity.

The Wolverines finished their campaign without a loss, extending a two-year winning streak. Notre Dame is expected to do likewise Saturday in its finale against Southern California.

Army had its perfect season spoiled in the annual rivalry game at Philadelphia Saturday by a battered Navy team that slug-hammered it 11-0 to a 21-21 draw.

This was one of the football shocks of all time—a first slip-up for the West Pointers, whose precisionist platoons had stormed all opposition, and a moral victory for the lowly Midshipmen, who had lost 13 straight.

Notre Dame and Clemson scored triumphs to keep their slates clean. The opportunist Irish, converting fumbles into touchdowns, stormed over Washington, 46-0. Clemson tripped Auburn, 7-6, and now must play the rival. Orange-Bowl-bound Georgia clinched the Southeastern Conference crown by humbling its state rival, Georgia Tech, 21-12. Tulane topped Louisiana State, 46-0, and Mississippi triumphed over Mississippi State, 34-7, for runner-up honors. Vanderbilt finished a successful year by trouncing Tennessee, 28-6.

Final Week of SWC Is A Dizzy One

By The Associated Press

The final week of the dizzy Southwest Conference grid really bowled over the fans.

Three big favorites were tied in the wackiest finish in years, two clubs were slated for New Year's Day bowl games and unofficial sources said another had an invitation "in the bag."

More than a million cash customers set a new attendance record for the seven-school conference. It was the first year the Arkansas had gone over the million mark.

Arkansas was the only Southwest Conference team to end its season on the short end of the score. The Razorbacks lost to William and Mary, 6-0.

Southern Methodist University, the conference champion, and Baylor are set in bowl games. The University of Texas is being figured for an Orange Bowl date with Georgia.

Baylor battles Rice to a 7-7 draw and picked up a bid to the Dixie Bowl.

Texas A and M, which had lost nine straight games this season, started the wacky action by defeating Texas, 14-14.

The probable bowl lineup for conference teams New Year's Day:

- Cotton at Dallas: Southern Methodist (8-1) vs. Oregon (1)
- Orange at Miami: Texas (8-3) vs. Georgia (9-0)
- Dixie at Birmingham: Baylor (5-3-2) vs. Wake Forest (8-3)

Athletic Director Dana X. Bible said yesterday Texas was being considered for the Orange Bowl. Miami officials will make their decision on Georgia's opponent today.

Attendance for 34 home games this year was 1,099,171, compared to 82,988 for 32 home games in 1947.

Doak Walker, Southern Methodist's All-America, led individual scoring this year. He finished with 88 points. Leon Campbell of Arkansas was second with 54.

Eagles and Browns Cinch Division Win

NEW YORK (AP)—Half of the professional football scramble was unscrambled today, with the Cleveland Browns and Philadelphia Eagles clinching divisional honors in their respective leagues.

The Browns' victory came from behind yesterday to whip the San Francisco 49ers, 21-28, and nab honors for the third straight year in the All-America Conference western division.

Philadelphia, meanwhile, moved away from the National League's eastern division title for the second season in a row by blanking the Pittsburgh Steelers, 17-0.

The Eagles and Browns now can coast through their remaining games and wait for the other half of their circuit to bring out a challenger for the championship in the rival leagues.

The Buffalo Bills, leading the AAC eastern division by one game, will win the dubious honor of meeting Cleveland in the AAC championship playoff by beating the Baltimore Colts. If the Colts win, it would throw the race into a tie, and a playoff game would be required to determine the team to play the Browns.

Barring an unforeseeable upset, the National League's western title won't be decided until the two Chicago powerhouses—the Cardinals and Bears—collide. The teams, each with nine wins and one defeat, have a date Dec. 12.

Buffalo knocked the New York Yankees out of contention yesterday, 25-14, while the Baltimore Orioles retained mathematical chance by rallying to sock the Brooklyn Dodgers, 28-20. Chicago and Los Angeles in the AAC were idle.

In the National League, the Eagles got an assist from the Bears, who swamped the Washington Redskins, 46-13. Two other national contests saw the New York Giants down the Boston Yanks, 28-14, and the Los Angeles Rams sink Green Bay, 24-10. The Cardinals and Detroit Lions had an off day.

Ted Scow Leads Nation's Scorers

NEW YORK (AP)—Fred Wendt of Texas Mines scored 42 extra-six touchdowns and six extra points—Thanksgiving but wound up second to Ted Scow of Sul Ross (Tex.) State in the season's national football scoring race.

Scow, who ended his season a week ago, was high man in the country with 144 points in 10 games. Wendt finished with 134 points in nine games.

Harvester Star Named To End Spot

FORT WORTH (AP)—Nine teams and nine districts are represented on the Class AA All-State High School Football Team released Saturday night by the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Four teams were selected with the aid of coaches, sports writers, college scouts and game officials.

DERRAL DAVIS

In all 26 schools placed one or more players on the four teams and 11 of the 14 districts are represented.

James Garner, Amarillo's great end, and Tom Stohlhandke, Baytown's spectacular back, were by far the most praised of the 48 youngsters selected. On the four teams there are 15 schools represented which did not gain berths in the state playoffs.

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
NEW YORK (AP)—A short time ago, Norm Daniels, coach of unbeaten Wesleyan U. football team, explained his school couldn't accept a bowl bid because that would mean cancelling the winter sports program. As for the bigtimers, before the bowl players have had a chance to knock the mud off their cleats, here comes the basketball season in full swing. . . . ## Texas May Get Orange Bowl Bid

AUSTIN (AP)—Prospects were considered good today that the University of Texas will receive an invitation to play Georgia in the Orange Bowl at Miami, Fla.

Athletic Director D. X. Bible of the University said he was informed by Orange Bowl officials that Texas was being considered and that a decision would be made about noon today.

Bible would not speculate on whether Texas would receive the bid but unofficial sources said "in the bag."

Bible said "It is a fine compliment to Texas that we are being considered. I feel that we have a very fine football team, much better than its record might indicate."

Lincoln's Gettysburg address has endured as one of history's greatest orations but the audience who heard him then was disappointed because he spoke only two minutes.

SMOTHER PLAY WINS SMALL SLAM HERE

This is the last of five articles on the fascinating but difficult smother play.

If you run across a smother play, send it to me. It is the most difficult of all bridge plays to recognize because you usually have lost the timing on the hand.

before you realize that a smother play is possible. To get the full benefit of today's hand you should lay the cards out, because it is one of the more complicated smother plays.

On the opening lead of the six of clubs, East played the ten-spade and declarer won with the ace. His next play was the queen of hearts and West correctly put on the three-spade Declarer let it ride. Even when East showed out he was not too much worried, as he still held a spade break. The dealer of hearts was led, and when West played the four-spot, dummy's eight was finessed. Now the king of spades was cashed and a low spade led to declarer's ace. South knew that the spade suit did not break, so he had to resort to a smother play to make the contract.

He ruffed his losing club in dummy, leaving dummy with the blank ace of trumps and West with the king and five-spot. It looked as if West was sure to make the king of trumps. A diamond was led from dummy, won with the king and a diamond returned to dummy's ace. A third diamond was ruffed by declarer, and a small spade led to dummy's queen.

At this point declarer led back dummy's last diamond. East played the jack and declarer discarded his losing spade, leaving himself with the jack and ten of hearts. East led on to the king and queen of clubs. When he returned one of them, South trumped with the ten of hearts, and West was smothered out of his king. If he under-trumped with the five, dummy's four of spades would be discarded. If he over-trumped with the king, declarer would trump with the ace in dummy and ruff the four of spades with the jack of hearts.

* WE, THE WOMEN

L. RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

"By 60 every other wife is a widow." Mull that over, women, and see if you don't think we need a new woman's organization—something like a "League of women who don't want to be widows," or a national "I don't want to be a widow" club.

Business and professional women have gotten together to protect their rights. Women voters have joined together to study how to best exercise the voting privilege. The country is full of clubs studying child care. Why not an organization to make a study of how to make husbands live longer?

IT MIGHT WORK

It might be possible for the women of the country to cut down those depressing figures if they really put their minds to it.

Their devotion to the study of infant and child care has certainly had a marked effect on the health of the country's children. Why can't they do the same thing for their husbands?

They might work wonders if they just did a few simple things like cutting down on social life so their husbands could get more sleep, watching their husbands' diets as carefully as they watch the diets of their children, seeing that their husbands get more relaxation at home, not demanding so many "advantages" for their children and so many gadgets and possessions that their husbands work themselves to death.

The care and feeding of husbands ought to be just as challenging and worthwhile a study as the care and feeding of infants.
