By JOHN McMILLAN Staff Writer

SHAMROCK — Wheeler County voters on Saturday approved, by a vote of 902 to 711, the issuance of $1.25 million in bonds toward anticipated construction of a state prison.

'We're very pleased with the response from Wheeler County," said Noel Walton, president of the Shamrock Economic Development Corp. "We felt like that if the voters had the information to make a decision, it would pass."

Proponents say it would provide an economic boost to the county. The proposed site for a medium-security, 500-bed prison in Wheeler County is about two miles east of Shamrock.

parts of Wheeler County, since he only had the overall results. Walton added that he believes support for the bond issue was strongest in Shamrock.

Even though 44 percent of Wheeler County voters opposed the bond issue in the election, Walton said the opposition would not hurt chances for the Shamrock area being selected by the Texas Board of Criminal Justice. The state has not issued any guidelines on the margin of victory needed in a local bond election before the state would approve a site for a prison, Walton said.

Walton speculated that those voting against the bond issue probably were opposed to paying higher taxes.

Wheeler County is 39.06 cents per $100 property valuation. Walton said Wheeler County proponents of the prison have already found a builder for the proposed project. The construction firm, Concepts, has had previous prison construction contracts in Texas, he said.

The Texas Board of Criminal Justice is expected to request bids in November for prospective prison sites, and it is expected to approve the site selections in February 1993. Wheeler County Commissioners

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Lawmakers must listen for 'voices'

Privatizing the Social Security system has been advocated to maximize contributions toward retirement years. Proponents point out that funds invested in private markets produce a far-greater return because Social Security payments are not invested. It is a tax rather than a retirement program.

Social Security confiscates earnings of today's workers and redistributes it to those who have retired.

Each proposal to privatize the system has met stony silence in Washington, but a recent survey showing Americans lack confidence in the system should spur serious privatization discussions.

The survey, conducted by Pulse Surveys of America, also shows Americans don't trust government's ability to manage retirement

The survey stated 78 percent of Americans workers refer investing their money in employer-sponsored pension or retirement programs rather than going into Social Security. Two-thirds of those polled said they understand the private investment plans and more than half said private employers keep them informed about heir benefits. Those polled generally do not understand the rules and regulations concerning Social Security and Medicare benefits.

The survey found most American workers don't know what Social Security benefits they have at retirement, but 60 percent believe those will total less than half their contributions. Older workers expect to receive $54 for every $100 contributed to Social Security while younger workers expect only $48 in return.

Not knowing how much to expect and lacking faith in the Social Security system, most Americans are prudently preparing for retirement years by investing in Individual Retirement Accounts and contributory plans sponsored by their employers.

However, nearly two-thirds believe they invest too little that way and 15 percent set nothing aside. That could be cause individuals must surrender 7.65 of their weekly paychecks to Social Security and Medicare taxation. Employers pay the same amount, meaning that each paycheck is reduced by 15.3 percent. Eliminating these mandatory contributions would permit wages and other private benefits to increase and individuals would have more opportunity to increase their retirement investments.

Workers surveyed also worry about paying for medical care in their retirement years and expect Medicare to pay only half their expenses. More than 70 percent of working Americans set nothing aside of medical expenses in their retirement years. However, 80 percent said they would invest in individual medical care accounts if federal tax laws permitted them. That response should prompt Congress to revive discussions concerning expanding the IRA concept. At least one proposal earlier this year would have make IRAs available for medical care purposes.

Social Security's primary selling point in the 1930s was it would ensure all Americans had some income after their working years ended. Americans were told the tax would not exceed 2 percent of income (1 percent paid by workers and 1 percent by employers).

At a time when the tax exceeds 15 percent and most workers have little faith in the system, lawmakers should listen to voices calling for privatization.

Education update

Everybody knows that government education is a disgraceful scandat. It's even worse at government schools in ghettos across the country. Black politicians, civil rights groups and the education establishment, claiming to represent and speak to the interests of poor blacks, work hand in hand to sabotage effective remedies such as educational choice. They charge that educational choice will destroy government schools. The educationalists who make that claim aren't smart enough to realize that it's really an embarrassing confession to say if parents are given choice, they will not send their Gallup found that the national support for choice kids to the government's schools, so the only way among blacks is 72 percent. Keep in mind that they can survive is to have a monopoly.

While civil rights organizations and the education establishment are doing their best to maintain the status quo of educational inferiority, poor black parents are finding allies among several free market organizations and private companies. Milwaukee's Bradley Foundation has been giving poor parents up to $1,000 to send their children to private schools and so has the Illinois-based Golden Rule Insurance Company and the Texas Public Policy Foundation. They have been recently joined by the Georgia Public Policy Foundation, which gives low-income parents vouchers valued up to $3,000 to send children to private schools. According to the Heritage Foundation's Business/Education Insider, 29 Atlanta private schools have agreed to participate in the program, including parochial schools and a Hebrew yeshiva. Washington, D.C.-based Charity for Choice is raising funds for what it hopes to be the city's first school choice program.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Nov. 1, the 306th day of 1992. There are 60 day left in the year. This is All Saints Day.

Today's Highlight in History: Forty years ago, on Nov. 1, 1952, the United States exploded the first hydrogen bomb, in a test at Eniwetok in the Marshall Islands.

On this date: In 1512, Michelangelo's paintings on the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel were first exhibited to the

In 1604, William Shakespeare's tragedy "Othello" was first presented at Whitehall Palace in London. In 1755, a devastating earthquake and its aftershocks killed about 50,000 people in Lisbon, Portugal. In 1765, the Stamp Act went into effect, prompting stiff resistance from American colonists.

In 1861, Gen. George B. McClellan was made general-in-chief of the Union armies.

ny do they sing Francis Scott (off) Key?

This may seem terribly unpatriotic at first, but I have come to the conclusion that Canada has a better national anthem than we do, and that Canadian singers aren't nearly so prone to mess with their anthem as Americans are with outs

I arrive at all this after hearing both "O Canada" and "The Star-Spangled Banner" played back-to-back before games of the recent Atlanta-Toronto World Series.

"O Canada" is simply a prettier song than "The Star-Spangled Banner." I've always thought "America the Beautiful" and "God Bless America" would be better anthems anyway.

"The Star-Spangled Banner" goes all over the musical scale and the words are hard to remember. I do OK until I get to "...perilous fight," then I have to listen to whoever else is singing to get what comes next.

If you agree, make a note to write your congress-

There is a former Georgia Tech basketball star, Josh Powell, who always sings "O Canada" when I attend regular season Braves-Montreal games.

He has a powerful, deep voice that lends dignity to the occasion. The two Canadian singers who performed their anthems at last Saturday's and Sunday's games did a commendable job as well.

But now I take you back to Game 1. Billy Ray Cyrus, whose long hair and gyrations (Ernest Tubb would turn over in his grave) have made him the can — but he gave it his personal touches, too, male Madonna of country music, came to the microphone wearing a Teshirt and a pair of jeans somebody poured him into.

He, of "Achy Breaky" fame, sang "The Star-Spangled Banner." No, he didn't. He moaned and groaned and bumped and grinded "The Star-Spangled Banner." I'm surprised some female fans didn't come out of the stands and try to put five bucks somewhere on Billy Ray's person a la the male strip clubs. Why is it American singers performing the national anthem in front of large crowds at sporting events want to do their own renditions? What would Francis Scott Key say about hearing his song sung like make out music?

Same thing Sunday night before game 2. Peabo Bryson, the famous pop singer, did the anthem. I'm not saying the man can't sing most certainly he less record in singing the national anthem. Even Billy Ray didn't grab anything but the microphone. Although I don't particularly like the Star-Spangled Banner — from a musical standpoint — it is still our national anthem and I think a little decorum and dignity are important while it is being sung. Most Americans stand for the singing of it. Some cover their hearts and others salute. Does this seem like a time for whoever is performing it to cheapen the moment with pelvic thrusts, or making it sound like it might be something to which you could dance?

And why is The Star-Spangled Banner performed at a baseball game in the first place? Protocol calls for it to be played on solemn stately occasions, and sporting events never come under either one of those headings.

Listen to this: During last year's Braves-Twins World Series, a little girl was called out to sing the anthem in the Metrodome in Minneapolis.

She mostly screamed the darn thing and a sportswriter sitting in front of me asked, "Anybody got a rifle?"

Guess what else? Major League Baseball apologized for the Marine color guard that displayed Canada's flag upside down during the anthems.

Many Canadians reportedly were angered by the incident, but one French separatist phoned the stadium press box to say he rather enjoyed it.

issues hurt some GOP hopefuls

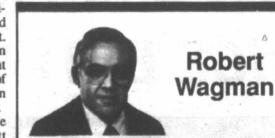

During the campaign's final weeks, both President Bush and Vice President Quayle have changed their focus on Bill Clinton's avoidance of the draft. The emphasis was shifted from avoiding Vietnam service to charges that Clinton "lied" about what happened. Why the change? Because the subject of draft avoidance was hurting important Republican candidates and could come back to haunt the GOP.

Three GOP Senate challengers, Terry Considine (Colo.), Judd Gregg (N.H.) and Tom Hartnett (S.C.), and GOP incumbent Sen. Don Nickles (Okla.) all avoided regular service in Vietnam However, the depth of the GOP's money woes this through either student deferments, questionable health classifications or by joining National Guard units. Their opponents were starting to use quotes from the president on the subject.

Other prominent Republicans who avoided active military duty are GOP Chairman Rich Bond, key Bush strategist Charles Black, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney and potential 1996 GOP presidential hopefuls Sen. Phil Gramm (Texas), Rep. Newt Gingrich (Ga.) and Pat Buchanan, to say nothing of Vice President Quayle himself.

The simple fact is that a great many Americans now reaching positions of political prominence were students during the Vietnam era and used what means they could to avoid going to Southeast Senate Armed Services Committee and 10 members of the House military panel, half of them Republicans, avoided Vietnam service either by joining the Guard or Reserve or through students or 1,000 Guard members went to fight in Vietnam.

time around can be seen in the squabbling going on within the party over allocations of relatively scarce dollars.

Florida GOP senatorial hopeful Bill Grant, running against incumbent Democrat Sen. Bob Graham, has castigated the National Republican Senatorial Committee, and its chairman, Texas Sen. Phil Gramm, for its failure to support his campaign.

Grant says that the GOP committee should have given his campaign $1.1 million, the maximum allowed under election laws. Instead it has contributed less than $20,000.

An NRSC spokesman admits that the committee has not been able to raise the overall maximum allowed by law. The maximum is set up state by Asia, Just one more example: Five members of the state, depending on population. This year, the total maximum is $19 million, but the committee has raised only about $11 million.

As a result, said the spokesman, the committee is not giving maximum support to GOP incumbents who health deferments. Fewer than 14 out of every are far ahead, or challengers who are far behind. In Grant's case, he trails Democrat Graham by 40 points, · For the last several decades, the last worry and Grant himself has done almost no fund-raising months of an election year? Try this one for size.

Fourteen years ago, lawyers representing people accused of being illegal immigrants filed a class action lawsuit against the federal government. The suit alleged that detainees were being denied their legal rights. For more than a decade, the Justice Department and immigrant rights groups fought over the issue. Finally, under the supervision of a Los Angeles-based federal judge, William Byrne, a settlement was worked out.

Under its terms, people detained will be told they have a right to confer with an attorney before any administrative proceedings proceed, and they will be given a written copy of any charges brought against them.

After the agreement was reached, Justice Department lawyers tried to downplay its significance. But spokesmen for immigration rights groups were quoted in various national news stories calling the agreement 'ground-breaking," "historic" and a "landmark.'

So Justice Department lawyers filed an extraordinary motion seeking to abrogate the settlement on the grounds that the other side was misrepresenting it to the press. Judge Byrne spent little time before the threw out the motion.

He noted that press coverage had nothing to do with the substance of the settlement. "Whether it's called a landmark or insignificant, the terms remain the same, right?" Judge Byrne snapped at a government lawyer. When the answer came back yes, Byrne dismissed the motion and approved the set-· How political do things get during the final

Nowhere in your Tuesday's front page article concerning Lynn Brown's latest lawsuit did I see those words. How many times can be sue for the same alleged violations? At last count, he was up to three, (two filed, one pending). I would also question the timing of the announcement of this latest attempt to discredit Sheriff Free and the entire Sheriff's department. It is ironic that the news was made public one week before the election, or was it planned that way? Also, how and when did The Pampa News become aware of it, when county officials had not yet been informed, prior to your reporter asking for comments? Did your reporter just "happen" to be in Amarillo searching Federal Court dockets, or was she looking for something? Reference Mr. Brown's comment charging a conspiracy, the only "conspiring" that I am aware of is Sheriff Free's goal to modernize the Sheriff's department, and provide more efficient service to the community through more professional oriented employees. If this is considered "conspiracy", then I am proud to have

Speaking of veterans affairs

To the citizens of Pampa and Gray County, it gives me great pleasure to inform you that on Nov. 7, 1992, the senior vice commander for the State of Texas Veterans of Foreign Wars will be in Pampa and be the guest speaker at our district meeting.

The meeting will begin Saturday morning with registration and be followed with business meetings until the noon hour. The banquet will begin at 12:30 sharp and all VFW members are urged to be in attendance. The senior vice commander is a very enlightened speaker and will give us some insight as to what is happening in veteran's affairs in Austin and VFW and has served in various post in the state headquarters. He served editor section.

for over 23 years with distinction and honor in the United States military. The officers of your local VFW Post 1657 want to urge all our members to make the effort to attend this meeting. Your participation will give clear evidence to the district and state headquarters that our post continues to be involved, dedicated and a leader in the Texas Panhandle.

God Bless this great nation of ours and keep us ever strong.

Letters to the editor policy

The Pampa News welcomes and encourages readers to express their opinions on issues of public interest and concern.

Letters should be 300 words or less; however, exceptions may be made for exceptionally well-written and/or important letters. Letters submitted for publication should be neat and legible, typed if possible, or at least handwritten in a clear manner. Letters may be edited for length, clarity, spelling, grammar, taste and potentially libelous statements. Submission of a letter does not guarantee its publication, nor can we guarantee a date of publication due to space and time limitations.

ALL letters must be signed for publication; no unsigned, name withheld or anonymous letters will be published. The writer must list an address and a telephone number or numbers where he or she may be contacted for verification; addresses and telephone numbers will not be printed, unless requested for a specific reason.

Poetry, candidate or political endorsements, letters to third parties and "thank you" letters will not be published except at the discretion of the editor, depending on general interest.

Letters may be dropped off at the office, 403 W. Atchison, or mailed to The Pampa News, Letters to the Editor, P.O. Box 2198, Pampa, TX

Stress hormones help an animal respond to stress by increasing blood sugars and fats, giving the animal more energy to deal with a threatening situation.

But stress hormones can have harmful effects if they persist in the body at high levels after the cause of the stress has ended. Those effects include higher cholesterol levels, artery disease, increased blood pressure and suppression of the immune system, Tannenbaum said.

VOTERS of Precinct 3

For all the years I can remember, Gray County has functioned very well without the additional tax burden of a constable in Precinct 3. Between the sheriff's office and the three existing constables, this county has managed quite well. I am ruinning for this office, not to get funding for one more government office holder, but rather to get the commissioner's court to redraw the constable precinct lines and do away with the position all together. That will save the citizens of Gray County tax dollars and at the same time, in a small way, help stop the growth of government.

Life within wire boundaries

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS Lifestyles Editor

"Self contained" best describes the physical plant of the Rufe Jordan Unit of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice located east of Pampa.

The 33-acre compound is an entire community within wire boundaries. Nearly every physical need of the 1,000 inmates scheduled to begin arriving on Friday, can be met within the confines of those concertina wires.

Lt. Ernest Guterrez led Pampa News staffers on a tour of the unit Friday. He described construction and security features of the facility plus a little of the lifestyle of the men behind bars.

The austere concrete block buildings are painted an offwhite with blue trim. There is no "interior decor" to speak of, but utility and security dictate the design and placement of every item in the facility.

Inmates sleep in dormitories with two inmates per cell. Bunk beds are attached to concrete block walls. A small, barred window can be opened to admit fresh air. A polished metal mirror is affixed to the wall over a steel one-piece design sink and toilet. Grills cover ventilation ducts.

Plastic covered mattresses are not formed like a but appear to be stitched bags filled with cotton batting. The three wings in each dormitory. pillow is similar.

Bed sheets are cleaned in the unit laundry. One hundred percent cotton sheets are a canvas-like material. Two flats, one pillowcase and two blankets are issued to each inmate, explained Capt. Suzanne Alford who oversees the operation.

A commissary window opens onto a store room which makes available personal items to inmates. Some of the items they may purchase include food, radios, watches and books.

Inmates are fed three meals a day. Four or five vegetables may be served along with selections like salisbury steak. Prison employees may eat the same fare at the unit also.

According to Guterrez, a meal might be salisbury steak, green beans, pinto beans, corn, bread, pudding and cake. The menus are created by a TDCJ dietician in Huntsville, he

4 Years Ago, Sheriff Jim Free Was Elected To Do A Job.

A lot of people didn't like it because it meant an end to the drug deals and pay-offs in Gray County. Sheriff deputies now have uniforms and marked police cars and are required to patrol the county roads. The drug dealers and professional crooks have decided that Gray County is too hot of a place to do business. The private clicks are still mad that they can no longer run the county. And the citizens of Gray County have a sheriff they can trust to defend their interests and no one elses.

Turnaround. of the year

Clayton, N.M., is home to 2,968 friendly folks. It's the kind of town city dwellers call a "wide spot in the road." Like many small rural communities, Clayton suffered significant economic losses

In fact the entire economy in Northeastern New Mexico was in decline in 1991. In Clayton, sales were slow and businesses were closing. Overall attitudes were pessimistic and there weren't many events to cheer about. I pondered these conditions as I drove into Clayton last month to interview the Sonic Drive-In's "Turnaround Operator of the Year."

I thought to myself that this was an unlikely time and an unlikely place for a financial turnaround. Just holding your own in an eroding economic climate is no small feat. As I pulled into the drive-in, I found it hard to believe that this store had been boarded up just two years earlier.

Jill Swagerty is the managing partner credited with turning this store around. Swagerty is a vivacious, thirty-something brunette, whose performance topped all operations in the more than 1,100store chain. She and her staff increased sales during the year by more than 50 percent, despite the economy.

Power of a Positive Attitude I asked Swagerty to share the single most important element of her comeback success. "Enthusiasm," she replied without hesitation. "You must keep a good attitude, day-in and day-out. If you don't stay positive about your business, your co-workers and customers know it. We worked hard to maintain our level of enthusiasm even when the going got tough." While I watched the operations of the most successful turnaround store in the Sonic chain, I saw plenty of evidence of good attitudes. The drive-in was hopping as orders came in as fast as they could be filled. The crew led by assistant manager, Louise Fernandez, were all smiles. "We like it when it's busy," Fernandez said. Swagerty calls Fernandez her right hand and praises all the staff for their part in her success.

Swagerty is also quick to praise the company's system. "With the system Sonic uses, we get a lot of good management information," she said. She also credited her partner, Bobby Merritt, of the Merritt Group in Las Cruces, N.M. "They run an excellent operation and make my job easier," Swagerty said.

Promote, Promote, Promote Swagerty has worked hard to promote her business. She takes samples by the bank as she makes deposits, delivers orders to departing football teams and has something special going all the time. She provides cups for school events, and utilizes newspaper, radio and outdoor advertising. "If they don't come to us, we go get'em," she said. The turnaround wasn't easy. Swagerty is a single parent. Sixtyhour work weeks are the norm. It takes an understanding family and a special crew to make it work. "I simply couldn't have done it without them," Swagerty said. "They keep me motivated and were always there when I needed them most.' Swagerty hesitated for just a moment when I asked her if she would do it all again. Then with a smile she said, "Yes, I would, I'd like to change a few things, but I'd certainly do it again.'

Swagerty's success involves commitment to three main business management principles. First, keeping a positive attitude, despite surrounding events and circumstances. Second, using a proven system of management. And third, plain, ordinary hard work. A good attitude, a good system and lots of hard work. That sounds like a good combination to me.

I wonder how many other businesses would experience a similar turnaround if they put these principles into action. Give it a try in the coming months, then write and tell me how you did. We'll share you're success stories with our readers.

So there is a personal goal for Moon as the Oilers prepare to take on the Steelers in another showdown for the AFC Central Division lead. Both enter today's game with 5-2 records.

"It's a game for me to get that little monkey off my back," Moon said. "If there's a team that kind of has it on me right now it's Pittsburgh."

Moon has another five-interception performance and a four-interception game against the Steelers.

"It doesn't affect me in a negative way," Moon said. "It makes me want to strap it on a little bit tighter. I'll be ready to play. They can talk all they want to right now, but it has to be settled on the field."

Following their victory in the Astrodome, cornerback Rod Woodson said the Steelers defense had the run-and-shoot figured out, a boast Oilers coach Jack Pardee found curious.

"We had over 400 yards against them in that first game so if they've got us figured out, I'm glad to hear it," Pardee said.

Illegal border crossings down, drug seizures up

Immigration and Naturalization Service said Saturday it has begun to "regain control" of the U.S.-Mexican border, mainly through improving border security in the San Diego area.

"Just compiled fiscal year figures show that for the first time, significant progress is being made," said INS Commissioner Gene McNary. "This is not only reducing illegal border crossings, but saving lives as well."

The U.S. Border Patrol has upped security in the past year, by repairing, improving and installing new border fencing, installing lights, assigning more border patrol agents to the area and improving border roads, McNary said.

Diabetes mellitus - a major concern to all Texans

According to recent figures form the Texas Department of Health and Human resources, over 800,000 Texans suffer from diabetes mellitus with over half of them undiagnosed. About 90 percent of all Texans with diabetes mellitus have the noninsulin dependent diabetes, formerly known as the adult onset type. In most cases, symptoms can be controlled by weight loss, good diet and exercise.

Mexican Americans are three to five times more likely to develop diabetes than Anglos, and Blacks experience a 33 percent higher rate of diabetes than Anglos. The majority of these high-risk populations have the non-insulin diabetes which is accounted for possibly through inheritance as well as ethnic dietary

If you have been following a dia-According to the American betic diet for awhile, you may need Dietetics Association - Texas Affili- to check with your physician or dietitian about new guidelines published by the American Diabetes Association and the American Dietetic Association in the "Exchange lists for Meal Planning."

Nutritional guidelines incorporate the latest information on food selection and diet planning for people with diabetes. Colorful charts, helpful tips on good nutrition, and easyto-use substitution guidelines show you how to balance your diet and gain control over diabetes.

While diet has always played a major role in diabetes management, new research has demonstrated that specific foods can significantly influence long term diabetes care.

A quick look at the new guidelines which do not differ from the dietary guidelines of other health organizations and public agencies reveals a new focus on fiber-rich foods like whole grains, legumes, and vegetables and sodium. Theses foods have been emphasized because of their possible effects on blood sugar and blood-fat levels, cardiovascular disease and kidney disease.

New foods have been added to reflect the wider variety of menu items available to the diabetic. Especially valuable are the sections on combination foods and foods for occasional use. The foods for occasional use have slightly higher sugar contents than typical foods recommended for a standard diabetic meal

If you are placed on a diabetic diet by your physician and given a meal plan by your dietitian, you can contact the Gray County Extension Office to assist you in planning menus of ethnic and regional foods that fit into your individual lifestyle and identify resources recommended by your physician or dietitian.

Also, the Gray county Extension Service is offering a six-part letter series to help individuals understand diabetes and how to control it. To enroll, call the Extension Office at 669-8033.

Next week we will focus on nutrition for diabetic children.

After going into hiding for 25 years, troll dolls are back. The elflike creatures with wild hair that defies styling are being snapped up by children whose parents — and sometimes grandparents — once collected them.

And they're still ugly.

"They're so ugly, they're cute," says Karen Parkison, assistant manager of Mr. Bulky's in Northpark Mall in Joplin, Mo. "Everybody is buying them. Young kids, older people, even teen-age boys.' Trolls were first introduced in the United States around 1960. Trolls were popular until the mid-1960s. Though the fad faded, trolls remained on the market without much success — until recently. Russ Berrie and Co. of Oakland, N.J., one of the biggest troll makers, expects to do nearly $150 million in sales in trolls this year, nearly 40 percent of its project overall sales of $400 million. The company has more than 500 troll or troll-related items in its lines. "One little girl walked in and bought two $20 trolls," said Mr. Bulky's manager Patricia Roerig. "I sold three to one lady. People will pay $30 and not bat an eye.'

Mobiles breeze back

For AP Special Features

Alexander Calder and Fisher-Price made a name for themselves in decorative mobiles that have endured for museum and nursery, but a couple of other makers want to restore mobiles to the popularity they enjoyed in the 1950s and 1960s.

Joel Hotchkiss started making mobiles when he was art director at a Boston ad agency. In 1979, he quit his job and moved to San Francisco. A shop in Ghirardelli Square specialized in mobiles, and the owner took his samples on consignment and gave him work space.

Today, Hotchkiss works in Oakland, Calif. With the help of his wife and three employees, he turns out one-of-a-kind designs and about 20 production models in copper, brass, aluminum, sailcloth and monofilament thread. They're sold through art galleries and museum shops. Prices range from $47 to $1,300, but most sales are in the $100 to $350 feet high. They are most at home in contemporary settings.

Many of the mobiles at Swe-Den Inc. in Madison, Conn., are based on Scandinavian folk craft. In Denmark and Germany, lore is that a mobile stops moving if someone who wishes you ill goes near it, says Elizabeth Morch, who with her husband, Hans, opened Swe-Den in 1983. Prices for Swe-Den mobiles range from $1.50

Mobiles are important in Denmark today as house gifts and year-round and holiday decoration. Hans Morch credits Christian Flensted, a Dane who began making mobiles in 1954, with reviving the tradition.

How mobiles made the transition from folk talisman to modern art icon is anybody's guess. But they caught the fancy of modern artists, especially Calder, who is closely identified with the mobile as an art

Greg Clifton, a member of the painting and sculpture department at the Museum of Modern Art in New York, says it is part of the modern art tradition to take objects of everyday abstract. They range in size from life and turn them into objects that

Do take a minute to enjoy the beauty of the many kinds of flowers still in bloom at the home of Lois and her daughter Dauna Wilkinson. Some beautiful colors!

At the front door of the home of Gaye Nell and Lee Fraser are three gorgeous trees displaying rich golden leaves. A real living picture!

Next door in the yard of Donna and E.R. Sidwell leaves of one tree are turning a rich and deep shade of Flower beds at the home of John and Marise Haesle continue to show their beautiful colors, as they have don all summer. John gives Marise credit for their beauty.

Red cannas in the yard of Louise Slentz are still in dazzling bloom. Fred and Neva Weeks had a long hedge of red cannas for everyone to enjoy from north to south and west to east.

A whole room full of Pampans attended the reception last Thursday to honor Warden Darwin Sanders and his professional staff and spouses at the Rufe Jordan Unit of TDCJ. All the honorees took a turn at the mike, each of home said the kindest words about how well Pampans had received them. A warm Pampa "Welcome!!!" to each and all. Oodles of Mundy employees, who have a sense of family, beavered away at their Halloween project, which began three years ago for employees and kids of the community. Employees spent every spare minute of 11 days building two houses within the building at Somerville and Kingsmill, one with 10 rooms for game rooms for small children and another for teenagers and adults. At least 18 merchants displayed their generosity in providing a $1 certificate to each Boy, Cub and Girl Scout and each client of the Pampa Sheltered Workshop to trade for refreshments. Bob Fetter was in charge of hot dog sales. Some of the hard working construc-

Judy Livingston, Annette Hahn, Linda McGee and Donna Craig were in charge of the games. The big question is: Who had more fun - the kids or Mundy employees?

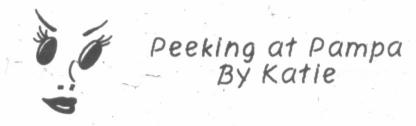

Kim Sangster writes a bi-monthly informal company newsletter called Heat Exchanger. One time is a silly question quiz. Jerry Larson posed the question, "What is a prolate spheroid?" Rick Bullard with his correct answer of football won a free club meal. That's a monthly meal designed to up the party Central Baptist Church hosted a Halloween party for residents of Coronado Nursing Center last Tuesday with Halloween cookies and bags of candy. Dorothy Fife played the omnicord and Viola Ward the keyboard as part of the program.

Last Saturday Baptist women from all over the area gathered at First Baptist Church in the name of the Palo Duro Association for a day of mission study. Sonya McCaninch, associational director of Borger showed a slide show and presented a mission fashion show of women in costume from Romania, Kenya and Mexico. Ann representing Romania, dressed in very bright red and a paisley print with her hair tied peasant style in a scarf. Bethel Walker, representing Nigeria, strapped a doll baby on her back and wore a flowing robe in grey and orange, sandals and a turban. Nell Thomas dressed as a Nigerian matron in a flowing robe in brown and black in a geometric design, lots of beaded necklaces, sandals and a turban. Ann Heard wore an authentic Tanzanian costume in subdued pastel colors in a silky fabric. Mexico was well represented, too. Fun and education became one.

A warm Pampa "Welcome!!!" to Troy and Jennifer Meyers, who recently moved to Pampa from Forrest City, Ark. Troy is the new manager of Sherwin Williams. Jennifer is a special education teacher at Skellytown. In Arkansas she was active in a pre-schoolers government co-op program, similar to Head-Start. Troy enjoys hunting and both enjoy fishing. They are well on their way to being good

A beautiful evening in the Panhandle was taken advantage of by Gerry and Clint Caylor when they hosted a Halloween back yard party. Martin Riphahn cooked the main course of smoked antelope. The patio featured Halloween decorations complete with light-up pumpkin lights and lots of good food. Enjoying the party were L.G. and Joyce Clifton, Mary Baten, Ottolene Jones, Don and Terry Harrison, Ruth McBride, Retha and Ray Jordan, Carol and Nick Martin, Martin and Irvine Riphan, Alberta Jeffries and guest Terresa Collins. Later, all joined in singing Happy Birthday to Carol and retired to the inside for a fun filled evening of games.

Sidney Jackson was honored by a group of her friends on her birthday on October 24. Helene Hogan was hostess to the group of girls; but Ed Doxey stopped by and led the group in singing "Happy Birthday." It's always a fun group whenever Sidney is present.

Where Do The Candidates Stand On Abortion? George

Clinton

Roe vs. Wade

GEORGE BUSH has steadfastly called for the reversal of Roe v. Wade. As he told a rally of pro-lifers in Washington, D.C., "The Supreme Court's decision in Roe v. Wade was wrong and should be overturned." Bush appointe Attorney General William Barr said the Justice Department would continue to urge the Court to reverse Roe in future cases.

BILL CLINTON says he has "always been pro-choice" and has "never wavered" in his "support of Roe v. Wade." have believed in the rule of Roe v. Wade for 20 years since I used to teach it in law school." (Roe v. Wade allows abortion for any reason, even as a method of birth control, even in the late stages of pregnancy.)

Appointment of Judges

GEORGE BUSH has sought to appoint judicial conservatives, such as Clarence Thomas, to the courts. Thomas joined three other justices in dissenting from the Court's Casey decision upholding Roe. During the Bush/Reagan years, the pro-abortion majority on the Court has shrunk from 7-2 to 5-4.

BILL CLINTON says that support for Roe v. Wade would be a litmus test for his nominees to the Supreme Court. Referring to the one-vote margin by which the Court recently upheld Roe v. Wade, Clinton said, "As president I won't make you worry about the 'one justice away' on the Supreme Court."

Unlimited Abortion

GEORGE BUSH has vowed he will veto the "Freedom of Choice Act" (FOCA). FOCA goes well beyond even Roe versus Wade and forbids any significant limits on abortion. The President pledged, "it will not become law as long as I am President of the United States." BILL CLINTON has made support for FOCA a key part of his campaign. "I would support a federal Freedom of Choice Act to protect a woman's right to choose."

Abortion Without Parental Consent

GEORGE BUSH will fight proposals to allow minor girls to obtain abortions without parental consent. The President said, "This idea is crazy."

BILL CLINTON boasts that he has "fought against" parental consent laws in Arkansas, and says, "I'm opposed to parental consent, by the way, and I oppose a bill that would do that."

Abortion as Birth Control

GEORGE BUSH has banned promotion of abortion as a method of birth control in federally funded clinics.

BILL CLINTON has said he would issue an Executive Order repealing this pro-life policy on his first day in Government Funding of Abortion

GEORGE BUSH has strongly defended the Hyde Amendment, which prohibits the use of federal dollars to pay for abortions, except to save the mother's life.

BILL CLINTON would repeal the Hyde Amendment.

Moreover, abortion on demand would be paid for under his national health program.

has said he would sign the same radical legislation Clinton supports which would guarantee abortion for any reason . . . even as a method of birth control or for sex selection. He supports tax funding of abortion.

"HIV was still one of those things that you didn't read that much about, and you still hoped they would find a cure," Sherri said. "He was healthy and nothing seemed wrong, so we hoped ... everything would be OK."

The clinic counseled the family and monitored Rhett closely, and he got on with his life. After graduating ninth in a class of 204, he left for Baylor to major in business.

"This miraculous thing happened," Sherri said. "He found the niche I told him he would find. He had lots of good friends - guys who enjoyed the same things he did."

He also met Laurie, a darkeyed, soft-spoken young woman who shared his love of music. They became friends, then fell in love. He told her on their first real date that he was HIV-positive and would understand if she didn't want to see him again. She told him she wasn't going any-

Accidental discovery may end obesity

WASHINGTON -- Researchers may have discovered a way to end obesity---- by accident!

In a study with a potential cholesterol lowering agent, scientists noted an unusual side effect. Instead of lower cholesterol levels, patients receiving a natural plant colloid lost weight while body weight in a control group remained constant.

The scientists say the mechanism behind the weight loss is not clear, but suggest it is partially due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calories. Scientists in another study published in the British Journal of Nutrition, found that patients consuming the same colloid lost weight in spite of being instructed not to alter normal eating patterns. Despite this evidence, other scientists may not agree on the weight loss benefits of colloids. Someday, pending further study, there could be universal agreement that colloids are helpful in confronting the problem of obesity.

National Dietary Research, whose research topics have been the subject of articles published in recent medical and nutritional journals, has successfully incorporated a series of colloids into a chewable food tablet called FS-1. When used as directed, FS-1 replaces high calorie fats with lower calorie nutrients, thus providing optimum nutrition with a minimum number of fat calories. According to an article published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition, consciously limiting the amount of food one consumes is not necessary to lose weight, provided you tists have discovered that an Dumbacher. orange-and-black jungle songbird named the New Guinea pitohui contains one of nature's most powerful toxins and is the world's only known poisonous fowl.

Researchers in New Guinea discover poisonous bird

AP Science Writer

John Dumbacher, a doctoral candidate at the University of Chicago, said he accidentally discovered that the pitohui (pronounced PIT-ahooey) was poisonous when several of the songbirds became snared in nets rigged in the jungle to catch another type of bird.

"We were trying to catch the bird of paradise, but we caught a lot of these birds as well," Dumbacher said in an interview. "We were trying to release them as quickly as possible, but they were able to cut our hands with their sharp beaks and claws.'

The researcher said he licked his wounds and noticed that his mouth immediately began to tingle and then go numb.

Later, he and other researchers caught more pitohui and put feathers from the birds on their tongues. There was an immediate reaction. As they report in a study to be published on Friday in the journal Science: "The toxin caused numbness, burning and sneezing on contact....'

New Guinea natives have long avoided the blue jay-sized pitohui, although they will eat other birds captured in the jungle, Dumbacher said.

"The local people say, 'You can't eat that bird. It's a rubbish bird ... It's good for nothing," Dumbacher Poison-dart frogs, however, have a poison concentration about 1,000 times higher in their bodies, he said.

The pitohui probably developed the poison as a defense against being eaten, he said, noting that snakes and hawks in New Guinea are highly effective predators of songbirds, but they leave the pitohui alone.

"If they take a bite of this thing, they're going to spit it out pretty quickly and let it go," Dumbacher said. "The defense is very effective.

The hooded pitohui, the most toxic of the birds, probably evolved its distinctive orange and black coloration to warn predators about its body poison, he said. The theory is that once a predator learns about the toxin, it may avoid all orange and black birds. This may explain why some other types of bird species in New Guinea have developed a coloration that matches the hooded pitohui's pattern, said Dum-

RE-ELECT Y JOE McDONALD

Constable, Precinct 4 Gray County

To The Voters Of Gray County, Precinct 4;

600 N. Ward

The State of Texas requires a Constable to be free of any criminal connections and to be a licensed peace officer. This last requirement includes at least 400 classroom hours which must be completed within 24 months of being elected. The cost of certification is PAID BY COUNTY FUNDS and will range from $11,000.00 to $14,000.00.

I am already a licensed peace officer and have operated the office of Constable as conservatively as possible, always keeping the interests of the tax payers my first priority.
