City withholds report despite Attorney General's decision

Concern is ex-police officers' right to privacy

By BETH MILLER
Senior Staff Writer

The Pampa News has again been thwarted in its attempts to obtain the internal investigation report and related documents used to fire two Pampa Police Department officers.

Attorneys for the two former officers, upon learning that the documents were going to be released to the newspaper following a ruling by the Attorney General's Office, objected to the city of Pampa, said City Attorney Don Lane.

Lane said objections to the release of the documents were made Wednesday and Thursday by attorney Candace Norris, who represents Nick Fortner, and by attorneys Virginia Ellen Daugherty and Bobby C. Hill, who represent Dave Wilkinson.

The two officers were fired May 22 for alleged "conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline," following an internal investigation by Amarillo private investigator Darrell Dewey.

The officers filed a lawsuit in June against the city of Pampa seeking damages for their claims that the city violated the state Whistleblower's Act, which prohibits state or local governmental entities from firing an employee who reports, in good faith, a violation of law to an appropriate law enforcement authority.

Following the termination of the two employees, The Pampa News requested the city of Pampa to release the internal investigation report and related documents under the Open Records Act. The city refused, saying the documents should be kept from disclosure under certain exceptions of the Open Records Act.

However, last week a ruling from Assistant Attorney General Kay H. Guajardo said certain documents should be released.

The letter said that the city had received three Open Records requests for information about the release of documents pertaining to the investigation. Those requests were made by The Pampa News, Wilkinson and Fortner. Guajardo states in her letter that because the requested information relates to pending litigation, the report could be withheld under the Open Records Act, provided it had not been obtained "through discovery or otherwise" by the plaintiffs.

Wilkinson and Fortner have obtained the internal investigation report during discovery process of the lawsuit, their attorneys have said.

Therefore, the Attorney General's Office said, "If the opposing parties in the litigation have had access to the report, there would be no justification for now withholding it pursuant to section 3(a)(3)," of the Open Records Act.

The Attorney General's Office said the copies of the complaints brought by the (former Pampa) police chief and notices of pretermination hearing should be released. The two pretermination notices had earlier been released by the city to the newspaper and the officers.

However, the city has chosen to seek a clarification on the Attorney General's informal letter ruling because of Fortner's and Wilkinson's attorneys' objections.

The two attorneys said in separate telephone interviews today that they believe the release of the internal investigation report to the newspaper could be an invasion of their clients' right to privacy.

Norris said, "I'm not denying the public has a right to know what's happening at the police department. It's not that we're trying to cover anything up, but my concern is the invasion of privacy (of Fortner)."

Daugherty said, "Basically it is an invasion of Dave's (Wilkinson) right to privacy."

She said that she had sought the release of the internal investigation report, but added, "Our request was that it be released to us, not that it be published."

Lane said he had talked to Guajardo by telephone Thursday and would be writing a letter seeking a clarification on whether the ruling covered questions regarding invasion of privacy.

City Manager Glen Hackler said Thursday, "The city was prepared to release it and abide by the Attorney General's ruling."

However, Hackler said that after receiving notice from Fortner's and Wilkinson's attorneys that they might seek legal injuries if the documents were released to The Pampa News, the city is seeking a clarification on the ruling.

Guajardo said by telephone today that concerns of the invasion of privacy of the former officers were not considered by the Attorney General's Opinion Committee because the city of Pampa did not bring up that aspect originally.

"So we're going to clarify whether or not the common law right to privacy would enable the city of Pampa to withhold those reports," she said. "I'll get on it immediately after I receive the clarification request from the city."

Economic development group hears proposal

By ANGELA LEGGETT
Staff Writer

Pampa Economic Development Corp. Board of Directors on Thursday received a budget presentation and a marketing proposal from Bill Miller, new director of economic development.

The marketing proposal includes overall and specific objectives for the upcoming fiscal year. Miller compiled the budget with assistance of Pampa City Manager Glen Hackler.

"The budget is a three-year Panhandle average of expenses," Miller said.

In a summary of the marketing proposal, Miller wrote, "Successful economic development requires participation from every sector of the community. It involves the coordination of a finely tuned effort from all the citizens of the Pampa area."

Miller stated in the proposal that in an effort to create jobs and promote private investment, PEDC proposes an annual budget of $158,400 to finance industrial development in 1993.

Costs to set up the office and one-time expenses such as moving are not included in that figure.

"I have no intention to build a department," he said. "The idea is to create jobs and promote capital investment."

Miller estimated sales tax revenue to be $656,000 from October 1992 through September 1993 with the total estimated interest earned to be $4,000.

Scheduled disbursements are: administrative expenses, $82,500; overhead, $23,300; promotional advertising, $26,400; prospect expense, $25,000; and other (subscriptions and memberships), $1,200.

The board took no action on the budget and marketing proposal. The board plans to consider the items at the next meeting.

In other items, Wayne Stribling, assistant secretary was elected as secretary to replace secretary Randy Hamby, who resigned recently. New board member Jim Morris was welcomed to the board and elected as assistant secretary-treasurer.

In other action members discussed establishing banking accounts.

The board approved accepting bids from the three banks in Pampa and having Benny Kirksey, treasurer, and Miller open two accounts before the next regular meeting. One account would be for the operating budget and a second account would be for the bulk of the income.

The board also welcomed Miller to his new position and discussed the following items:

- Two people to sign checks.
- The city to handle the bank accounts until a secretary is hired to assist Miller.
- Setting a limit on checks that do not have to be approved by the board.

Members approved minutes of the previous meeting Aug. 20.

Air fares go up today

By JOHN M. DOYLE
AP Business Writer

The nation's major airlines plan to raise round trip ticket prices by as much as $50 today, hoping to end a series of fare wars that led to huge losses.

American Airlines, Delta Air Lines, United Airlines, Trans World Airlines, Continental Airlines, Northwest Airlines, USAir and America West Airlines all said Thursday they planned to proceed with increases. The hikes originally were scheduled to kick in a week earlier.

"In the long run, no industry can continue to price its product at below cost," said Tim Smith, a spokesman for American, the nation's largest carrier.

The new fares will be based on miles traveled rather than the popularity of a particular run between two cities. The price increases were expected to mark the end of a summer that saw big fare cuts and packed planes but also huge losses for the nation's air carriers.

"Let's certainly hope so, because it was disastrous for all of us," said Delta spokesman Neil Monroe.

The discounting helped raise airplane loads from 68 percent in July 1991 to 73 percent this July, but the industry still lost $668 million in the first six months of 1992, according to the Air Transport Association. That followed losses of $2.4 billion in 1990 and $1.6 billion in 1991.

"We believe it's necessary to have a price increase. We believe that it makes business sense," said TWA spokesman Don Fleming.

Previously announced increases that never were implemented didn't hold up because one airline or another tried to keep a competitive edge. The raises bring fares back up to the levels they were in April, when American initiated a fare overhaul — touching off a price war.

While most fares will rise between $10 and $40, some longer runs will go up $50. Some markets won't see any increase in prices.

For example, the round trip excursion fare on Continental between New York and Detroit will rise from $220 to $230. The round trip fare from New York to L.A. will increase from $390 to $440 while the price of a round trip from Boston to Denver will remain unchanged at $430.

Family leave decision could cause backlash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, seeking to blunt backlash from a veto of family leave legislation, suggests President Bush might offer tax incentives to encourage employers to offer the benefit voluntarily.

The House on Thursday sent the president a bill guaranteeing many American workers up to 12 weeks of unpaid leave a year to care for newborn and sick children, ailing spouses or aging and ill parents.

Democrats hailed the measure as the very embodiment of the family values that Bush and the Republican National Convention placed at the center of his re-election effort.

But the 261-141 vote by which the measure passed the House fell short of the two-thirds majority needed to override a presidential veto. Those voting for the measure included 203 Democrats, 37 Republicans and one independent. Forty-two Democrats and 119 Republicans voted no. The Senate passed the bill last month.

Democrats said repeatedly that Bush's decision on whether to veto the family leave bill will show his true colors. He vetoed similar legislation in the last Congress.

Democratic vice presidential candidate Al Gore, campaigning in Lexington, Ky. said Bush can either change his mind and sign the bill into law or "he can hold onto the status quo and force Americans to read his lip service to family values."

And as Thursday's vote neared, White House aides passed word on Capitol Hill that the president might be ready to offer a compromise in the form of several hundred million dollars in tax incentives to encourage small employers to provide family leaves voluntarily.

A senior White House official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Bush would like to provide the tax break to companies with up to 500 employees.

Judge Baird: Appeals process is necessary element of system

By BETH MILLER
Senior Staff Writer

Judge Charles F. "Charlie" Baird of the Court of Criminal Appeals in Texas said Thursday that the criminal appeals system is a necessary part of the judicial system and he does not believe the system is abused.

The Court of Criminal Appeals, which is the highest court in Texas to hear criminal appeals, gets cases in three ways:

- petitions for discretionary review, whereby either side losing a Court of Appeals decision can ask the Court of Criminal Appeals to consider the case. Baird said the court receives about 2,000 requests each year and grants about 200 for review.
- death penalty cases, which are automatically appealed to the court.
- writs of habeas corpus, which are from people in confinement who allege they are illegally confined. Those cases are also discretionary.

"A lot of people are concerned about the death penalty cases taking such a large amount of time," Baird said. "I think that's a big concern. I've made death penalty cases a priority in my office to get those through as fast as possible."

The Democratic candidate, who was in Pampa for a campaign stop, said that delay in a criminal case is bad for three reasons.

"If a person didn't receive a fair trial, they're obviously entitled to one and should receive one. If they didn't receive a fair trial, and the case is going to be retried, you need to do it as soon as possible so the state can still prosecute the case.

"And the third thing is the victim. I don't think the victim can put the tragedy of a criminal offense behind him until the case is finally resolved on appeal."

Baird, 37, was first elected to the Court of Criminal Appeals in 1990 for an unexpired two-year term. He is seeking a full six-year term in the November general election.

On Thursday he said he was traveling to as many counties in the state as he could before the election.

"Too many judges lose contact. I believe staying in touch with the people is one of the most important activities a judge can undertake."

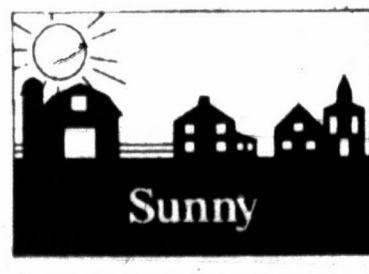

Baird said that he ran for office two years ago on a four-point platform on how to expedite the appellate process. He said that since he's been in office, all four points have been implemented to varying degrees.

Of his campaign swing through the Panhandle, Baird said, "I think this (Texas Panhandle) is an untapped area politically to seek voters. I think the people up here are independent and if you want their votes you have to ask for it and go get it."

Lawyer: Federal indictments due in October

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A federal prosecutor leading a grand jury probe into alleged political influence peddling in South Texas predicts "prominent people" will be indicted next month, an attorney says.

"A lot of prominent people are going to be indicted in October. Tell us why you shouldn't be one of them," Assistant U.S. Attorney Jackie Bennett reportedly told local attorney Larry Macon this week.

The comment was relayed to reporters for the San Antonio Light and San Antonio Express-News by Macon's lawyer, former Texas Secretary of State Roy Barrera Sr., as Macon testified Thursday before the grand jury.

Barrera said government prosecutors might be "blowing smoke" to get friends and supporters to turn evidence against U.S. Rep. Albert Bustamante, D-San Antonio.

Bustamante has said the grand jury is investigating him. He says the probe is politically motivated. Bustamante charged earlier this week that his Republican opponent in the Nov. 3 election, Henry Bonilla, is saying Bustamante will be indicted in October.

Macon is a longtime Bustamante supporter and campaign treasurer. Among other Bustamante associates who have appeared before the grand jury are delinquent-tax collector Oliver Heard, businessmen Morris Jaffe Sr. and businessman Eddie Garcia. All have been active in Democratic Party circles.

Palo Duro High shooting leaves students injured

AMARILLO (AP) — Six teen-agers were shot, one in the chest, and one trampled today when another teen-ager opened fire in a hallway at Palo Duro High School, authorities said.

The injured, ages 15-18, were taken to Northwest Hospital, all were in stable condition, spokeswoman Kathy Dodson said. The teen wounded in the chest was in surgery, she said. No identities were available.

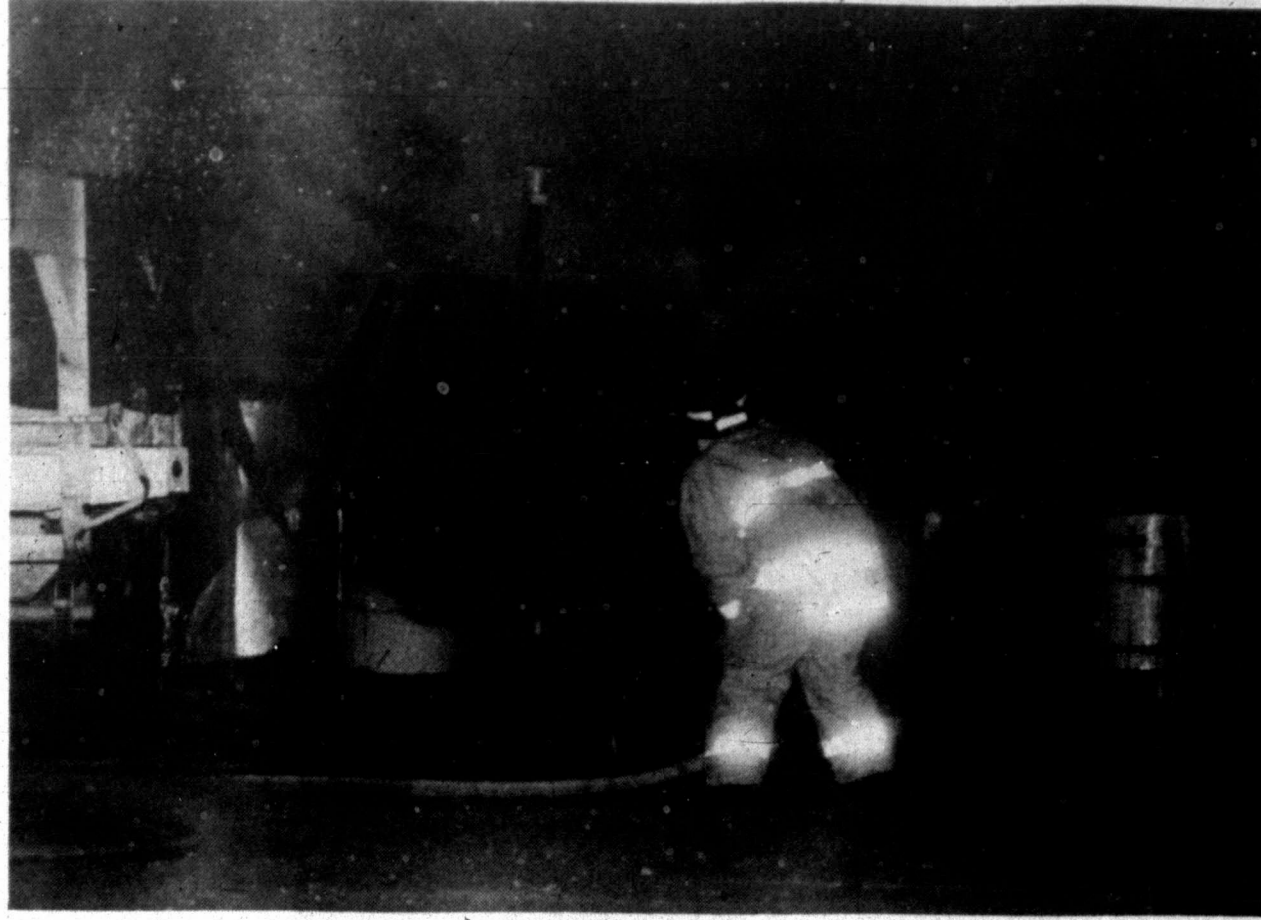

A 17-year-old male was in custody shortly after the 10 a.m. shooting, said Police Sgt. Gerald Bailey. The teen, a new student at Palo Duro, was in custody at the Potter County Jail. His identity was being withheld.

A pep rally was under way in the gymnasium at the time of the shooting, Bailey said. Bailey said police had recovered a .22-caliber handgun. School remained in session following the shooting, said Betty Preston, a spokeswoman for the Amarillo Independent School District. No decision had been made about tonight's scheduled football game against Hereford, she said.

Palo Duro High School, with about 1,500 students, sits in a blue-collar residential section on Amarillo's northeast side.

Early morning blaze

Pampa Fire Department Capt. Carl Mann hoses down the storage building behind W&W Fiberglass Tank Co. around 2 a.m. today. The shed and its contents received heavy damage, according to the fire report. No cause has been reported.

Save those wrappers for United Way

The Pampa United Way, in the midst of its fund-raising campaign to benefit 16 agencies, is asking candy lovers to turn in certain wrappers to help raise money for the annual drive.

Campaign chairman Curt Beck said all Mars (Milky Way, Twix, Starburst, Skittles, Snickers, 3 Musketeers, M&M's) and Hershey bar wrappers can help raise money for the United Way drive.

The two candy makers will pay Pampa United Way five cents for each candy wrapper mailed to them by Oct. 15.

Collection boxes are located at all of the Pampa Independent School District schools, Heard-Jones drug-store, Homeland grocery store, Pampa convenience stores served by McCarty Hull, Wal-Mart and other locations. The wrappers can be taken to the United Way office in the Pampa Community Building.

Pat Farmer, Pampa High School assistant principal, is coordinating the candy wrapper collection project.

Locomotive to steam through area on Sunday

The Santa Fe employee recognition train and steam locomotive #3751 is scheduled to again travel through the area on Sunday in its trip westward to California.

The first 20 segments of the run from California to Chicago were completed successfully on Wednesday, a spokesman with Santa Fe said on a telephone recording.

On Thursday, the steam locomotive departed from Chicago and stopped overnight at Fort Madison, Iowa. It was scheduled to leave Fort Madison, Iowa, at 8 a.m. (CDT) today and arrive in Kansas City at 3:30 p.m.

On Saturday, the train is scheduled to leave Kansas City at 8 a.m. (CDT) and arrive at Emporia, Kan., at 10 a.m. It is scheduled to depart Emporia at 11 a.m. and arrive in Wellington, Kan., at 2:30 p.m., where it will stay for the night.

On Sunday, the train is set to leave Wellington, Kan., at 8 a.m. and arrive in Canadian at 1:30 p.m. It is set to depart Canadian at 2:30 p.m. and travel through Pampa (without stopping) and arrive in Amarillo at 5 p.m. for the evening.

The schedule calls for the train to leave Amarillo at 8 a.m. on its westward journey to its final destination in California on Sept. 17. A third diesel engine is scheduled to be added between the two diesels at Amarillo for the remainder of the trip.

The train left California on Aug. 29 on its way to Chicago. For more information, call 1-800-477-3751.

Grand jury charges House Post Office was 'favor mill'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal grand jury charges the House Post Office operated as a favor mill for lawmakers, whose personal checks were cashed and campaign donations were delivered by congressional employees on government time.

The staff of one House member was permitted to use a taxpayer-financed express mail account to send personal items to the lawmaker's home district, according to the indictment handed down Thursday.

The indictment significantly expanded public knowledge about the investigation by making clear prosecutors were interested in the special privileges members received from the post office.

The indictment said there was a conspiracy between post office employees and "legislative officials" to defraud the government.

The three-count indictment named only one defendant: former House Post Office chief of staff Joanna G. O'Rourke. She was charged with conspiracy, a felony, and two misdemeanors, misuse of public funds and embezzlement.

An attorney for Ms. O'Rourke said she would plead guilty to the two misdemeanors and cooperate with prosecutors. A source close to the investigation, demanding anonymity, said prosecutors in return would dismiss the felony, which carries stiffer penalties.

The grand jury said she conspired "with other persons, known and unknown" to "perform personal and campaign services for members."

The conspiracy count said personal items were delivered to the House Post Office by a congressman's staff "with the instruction that the items be sent by Express Mail" to the lawmaker's district.

Ms. O'Rourke charged the post office's Express Mail account, financed with tax money to pay for official mailings.

One source familiar with the probe, demanding anonymity, said that incident involved the office of Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

He was not named in the indictment, nor was it alleged that the lawmaker was involved in the scheme.

Rostenkowski's spokesman, James Jaffe, had no comment, and his attorneys did not return a telephone call.

Rostenkowski and two Pennsylvania Democrats, Austin Murphy and Joseph Kolter, have been subpoenaed by the grand jury. All three have denied any wrongdoing.

The indictment revealed that the grand jury is investigating the House Post Office's delivery of campaign checks from city postal boxes to member's offices.

The post office employees are political appointees — not U.S. Postal Service workers — and are not supposed to do campaign work on government time.

Further, federal law prohibits arrangements for campaign donations to be delivered to government offices.

House Republicans charged in July that House Post Office employees ferried campaign donations for years to the Capitol Hill offices of up to 25 current and former lawmakers.

Stephen Leckar, an attorney for Ms. O'Rourke, would not comment on any deal to drop the felony charge, but said, "Ms. O'Rourke engaged in certain transactions which were inappropriate for a federal manager."

"While the ultimate loss to the government is not significant, it nonetheless puts an end to her otherwise unblemished 24 years services to Congress," he added. "She has agreed to plead guilty to two misdemeanor charges and cooperate with prosecutors...."

The indictment alleged that Ms. O'Rourke and an unnamed co-conspirator allowed a post office supervisor to neglect depositing daily receipts from stamp sales in a bank so cash would be "available to cash checks and to provide other monetary services ... for the personal convenience of the co-conspirators and others, including legislative officials."

The misdemeanor counts against Ms. O'Rourke said she charged the Express Mail account for sending her own overtime checks to her bank and had a post office employee cash a $1,500 personal check for her with post office funds but hold the check until she could cover it.

President Bush and singer Gloria Estefan talk about Hurricane Andrew and relief effort Thursday in the White House. Estefan is organizing a benefit concert.

Andrew brought eco-holocaust

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Andrew inflicted an eco-holocaust on south Florida, crushing the Everglades, scouring coral reefs and turning protected pinelands into trash dumps. Now, the cleanup is adding to the damage, as the open burning of huge mounds of debris fills the skies with toxic smoke.

But environmentalists say the storm also brought lessons and opportunities that could ultimately be a boon.

"Nature has basically done some housecleaning here," said Joe Podgor of Friends of the Everglades. "She's wiped off the earth the trees, houses and things that don't fit into the environment. It's a harsh, harsh lesson to learn."

Although nature here has lived with and adapted to hurricanes for thousands of years, many wild areas were devastated, at least in the short run:

—Hardwood hammocks, islands of trees that dot the Everglades and provide refuge for some wildlife, were laid flat when Andrew marched across the Florida Peninsula.

—More than 10,000 acres of mangrove wetlands, which filter pollutants and provide nurseries for fish, were badly damaged. The border of mangroves on the Gulf Coast was obliterated, said Everglades biologist Mike Robblee.

—Coral reefs north of Key Largo suffered varying degrees of damage. The more sensitive elkhorn coral broke off along many stretches.

—Many of Dade County's dwindling natural pinelands tracts were mowed down by Andrew's winds. The tracts support several endangered species — the sabal palm, which is Florida's state tree; the rimrock crowned snake; the indigo snake; and atala butterfly.

Even some destruction that might seem environmentally beneficial has backfired. The storm downed tens of thousands of pesky Australian melaleuca trees, which are drying up the eastern Everglades. But each melaleuca releases millions of seeds when destroyed, and Andrew's winds may have helped spread the trees across previously untouched areas.

The biggest fear is not what nature did to nature, however, but what the cleanup and reconstruction may be doing.

The Army Corps of Engineers is investigating reports that overeager contractors bulldozed federally-protected pinelands to make room to burn tons of debris, said corps spokesman David Rich.

"We are frantically trying to do this as best we can, with the dire need for areas to place this material," he said. "But (the destruction) is not something we would have done deliberately."

Just as worrisome is the open-pit burning itself, said local Sierra Club head Lee Emerson.

Prosecutor: Indictment part of ongoing Silverado probe

DENVER (AP) — The indictment of former Silverado chairman Michael Wise may not be the only one in connection with the S&L debacle, federal investigators said.

Wise, 48, was indicted Thursday on charges he diverted part of a $1.45 million Silverado loan for personal use and lied about it to regulators.

Wise is to appear before a federal magistrate Sept. 30, said his lawyer, Gary Lozow. He faces up to 15 years in prison and a $750,000 fine if convicted.

"This is an ongoing investigation," special prosecutor Marvin Collins said. "This is definitely not over."

Collins and Joseph D. Martinovich, special agent in charge of the FBI in Colorado, suggested other former executives involved in Silverado's $1 billion collapse may face indictments.

"These failure cases are extremely complex," Martinovich said. "There's a very difficult paper trail to sort through, and mountains of evidence to develop cases. The results are long in coming."

The investigators wouldn't say if President Bush's son Neil Bush, a Silverado director for about three years, is part of the investigation.

Neither Bush, former chief financial officer Robert Lewis nor chief operating officer Richard Vandapool was named in Thursday's indictment, which charged Wise with diverting part of a $1.45 million Silverado loan.

Wise was Silverado's chairman and chief executive officer until it failed in December 1988. Regulators estimate its failure will cost taxpayers $1 billion.

The indictment says Wise secured a $1.45 million loan from the thrift's parent company, Silverado Financial Corp., on June 30, 1986. He allegedly said he would use the money to repay a loan from Cherry Creek National Bank that had been secured with shares of Silverado stock.

He used $991,120 of the loan to repay the bank, but kept $458,879 to pay off a home mortgage and make home improvements, the indictment said.

One of the bank fraud counts charges Wise with making a false statement about the loan's intent. Another accuses him of misapplying the loan for personal use.

The third count alleges that Wise deliberately misstated the scope of the activities of Silverado Financial Corp. to federal regulators and the Federal Home Loan Bank of Topeka, Kan.

After Silverado failed, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. filed a $200 million lawsuit accusing Wise and 11 other former Silverado officers and directors, including Neil Bush, of mismanaging the thrift. A $49 million out-of-court settlement was approved in that case in June 1991.

Banking regulators also banned some of the directors — Wise among them — from the banking industry for life as a result of the FDIC lawsuit.

Three indicted in family slaying

CALDWELL (AP) — The father of one of six Somerville slaying victims has been indicted, along with two other people, on capital murder charges.

Grand jurors in Burleson County Wednesday handed down the indictments against Theresa Ray Carter, 31; her husband, Robert Earl Carter, 26; and her cousin, Anthony Charles Graves, 37.

Mrs. Carter, the third suspect, was arrested by Texas Rangers in Brenham late Wednesday in the Aug. 18 slayings. Her husband and cousin have been jailed since Aug. 23.

All three remained jailed without bond today, with the men at Burleson County Jail and Mrs. Carter in Bastrop.

The trio was accused of killing Bobbie Davis, 45, her 16-year-old daughter Nichole and Mrs. Davis' four young grandchildren, and then setting fire to her house, District Attorney Charles Sebesta said.

Carter, a former prison guard, is the father of Jason Davis, 4. He and his sister Denitra Davis, 9, were the children of Lisa Davis. All three of the children lived with Bobbie Davis.

Two other children killed were Lea Erin Davis, 5, and Brittany Davis, 6. Lea and Brittany were the children of Bobbie Davis' son, Keith of Houston.

Earlier in August, Robert Carter had been served with papers from the attorney general's office seeking to raise his child support payments for Jason, officials had said.

Sebesta said the case may be moved to another town because of pretrial publicity. It will probably will not be tried before January.

"I suspect it will be moved to a town with similar demographics," Sebesta told the Bryan-College Station Eagle. "We will not object to a change in venue because I don't feel we could pick a jury in Burleson County."

Sebesta would not comment on a motive in the case. But Burleson County Sheriff Ron Urbanovsky said Aug. 24 that the Attorney General's Office had filed suit against Carter to increase his child support payments.

Authorities suspected Carter when he arrived at the family's funeral Aug. 22 with bandages on his arms and hands.

NOTICE OF COMPARABLE TAX RATES AND REVENUES

The legislature has enacted a statute on school funding to comply with a court mandate enforcing the state constitution. Under prior statutes (SB 1) the tax rate for last year provides $5,576 per student in state and local revenues. Under this statute (SB 351) that same rate now provides $5,815 per student in state and local revenues.

State law only requires a minimum tax rate of $.894 for county education districts. State law does not require a school district to adopt additional taxes. Neither does state law require a school district to adopt a tax rate that maximizes the receipt of state funds.

The board of trustees of the McLean Independent School District hereby gives notice that it is considering the adoption of a tax rate of $.48 that will provide $5,769 per student in state and local revenues.

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Enlightening talks to aid world peace

With so much "Japan bashing" going around, it is understandable that the government of Japan would develop strategies for reacting. In recent years Japan has taken two major steps in this area: 1) it has attempted to reduce the so-called "trade deficit"; and 2) it has increased spending of Japanese taxpayers' money on foreign aid. Understandable as these steps seem in the political world, neither makes much sense economically.

Koichi Haraguchi, the consul-general of Japan for Los Angeles, has expressed surprise (we hope pleasantly) over the lack of concern about the "trade imbalance," as he put it.

He noted, correctly, that "the trade imbalance has to be discussed in terms of the global trade deficit," that is, a seeming "imbalance" between two countries balances out when one looks at other factors. People don't export goods for nothing; they expect something—goods, services, or money—in return. Japan runs an "imbalance" with the United States in industrial goods, but that "imbalance" drops when including services such as insurance.

If the United States repealed its ban on exporting Alaskan oil, the trade "imbalances" with Japan and the rest of the world would drop even more. So a trade "imbalance" or "deficit" is irrelevant economically. But as Haraguchi pointed out, "Politically it causes a lot of problems." House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, once a free-trader until he flip-flopped during his losing 1988 presidential bid, is but one politician continuing to whoop for protectionism. So the phony trade imbalance issue remains a thorn in the side both of sensible economics and the growth of a free economy in America, Japan, and around the world.

On the second major issue, greater Japanese spending on foreign aid, Haraguchi also was surprised that some, including us, feel this a bad policy. Maybe he should read Reality and Rhetoric: Studies in the Economics of Development, by Pete Bauer and published by Harvard University Press.

As Bauer demonstrated, foreign aid actually hurts the countries it's supposed to help, in addition to hurting the taxpayers who pay for it. "External donations," he writes, "have never been necessary for the development of any society anywhere.... Aid helps or even enables governments to pursue policies which patently retard growth and exacerbate poverty."

Haraguchi asked why poor countries' government sought more foreign aid, if it was so bad? For the same reason, we replied, that welfare recipients want the very money that plunges them into a debilitating dependency, or that heroin addicts crave more heroin.

Though Haraguchi ably defended his government's policies, we hope we set him to thinking about a few new ideas. With the end of the Cold War, the United States and Japan are the world's premier global powers. To advance world prosperity and peace, we need, and welcome, more such enlightening discussions.

Term limits: Still a bad idea

As many as 15 states will be voting in November on a bad idea. This is the idea of limiting the consecutive terms of members of Congress. The regrettable prospect is that most of these referendums will pass.

The drive for term limitation draws its energy from an idealistic principle, a doubtful assumption and a long-festering animosity.

The principle dates from the time of George Mason and Thomas Jefferson, or perhaps from the time of Cincinnatus. It rests upon the image of the citizen lawmaker who lays aside his plow and devotes his energy for a brief time to public affairs.

Somehow it is assumed—there can be no proof—that temporary politicians will be "better" than career politicians; they will be better able to fend off the special interests; they will have no interest in building political empires they cannot be around to enjoy.

That the people are angry at "congress" is abundantly clear. I put "congress" in quotes for a reason. One poll after another finds that voters are satisfied with their own member of the House. It's those other guys who are fouling things up. The anger is directed at an institution, and the theory is that the institution would benefit from more rapid turnover of its members.

The arguments are persuasive. They are not convincing.

When this movement sprang up four years ago, the idea most talked about was to limit members of both House and Senate to 12 consecutive years in Congress. In five states (Arkansas, California, Nebraska, Oregon and Wyoming), pending initiatives propose only six years.

Let us suppose that a six-year limit had been imposed in 1986 upon members of the House. This would mean that the House that convenes in January 1993 would include no member with more than four years' service. The six-year men and women would have been turned out.

Would this be a good thing? I gravely doubt it. The system would have rid the Congress of a few tyrants and obstructionists. It also would have rid us of institutional memory—the knowledge that accumulates slowly, like rings on a tree, of what works and what doesn't work.

My thought is that term limitation, by relying upon temporary legislators, would surrender the effective control of public affairs to three permanent classes. I mean the lobbyists, the bureaucracy and the committee staffs. These people work full time. They acquire real expertise in their fields. Given the complexity of today's legislation, they are indispensable to the functioning of Congress.

Cincinnatus left his fields 2,500 years ago. Things have changed. Consider, if you will, Senate Bill 2217. It comprises the president's plan "to create jobs, promote economic growth, assist families, and promote health, education, savings and home ownership." Senators Dole and Domenici introduced S.2217 on Feb. 7. The bill runs to 1,003 pages.

I open the bill at random. Here is a section to amend Section 7 of the Bank Holding Company Act of 1956. It deals particularly with Sections 4 (e) (16) (B) and 5 (c) (3) and 5 (e) (4). Here is a section dealing with student loans. "If the amount determined under subparagraph (A) is a negative amount ..." I flip to page 742. It has to do with the Mineral Leasing Act.

Who is to explain all this to a Cincinnatus from South Carolina who two months ago was selling hardware? A new member from Ohio was writing wills. The newcomer must of necessity rely upon lobbyists, bureaucrats and committee staff. Members have told me that it takes up to four years to learn when one is being snookered. After six years, a senator or representative may hope to accomplish something constructive.

The cry is for new blood and new brooms. Proponents would abolish the seniority system and elect committee chairmen on merit alone. Hokus! No more certain way can be devised to promote internal factions, jealousies and thwarted ambitions. Seniority has its drawbacks, but the system imposes order, and most of the time it works pretty well.

Yes, incumbent members now have a great advantage in seeking re-election, but their re-election is not assured. Fifteen members of the House already have lost in primaries. January will see at least 130 new faces in the House, where the average tenure is about 10 years.

The conservatives' maxim applies: If it is not necessary to change, it is necessary not to change. Where's the necessity?

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Sept. 11 the 255th day of 1992. There are 111 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 11, 1789, Alexander Hamilton was appointed the first U.S. Secretary of the Treasury.

On this date:

In 1850, Jenny Lind, the "Swedish Nightingale," gave her first concert in the United States, at Castle Garden in New York.

In 1885, author D.H. Lawrence was born in Eastwood, England.

In 1936, President Franklin D. Roosevelt dedicated Boulder Dam—now Hoover Dam—by pressing a key in Washington to signal the startup of the dam's first hydroelectric generator in Nevada.

In 1962, 30 years ago, the Beatles recorded their first single for EMI, "Love Me Do" and "P.S. I Love You," at EMI studios in London.

In 1971, former Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev died of a heart attack at age 77.

High noon for health food

Angel, Paul Jr. and I regularly patronize a responsible health food store.

After breakfast and after dinner I take several supplemental vitamins and minerals.

My travels indicate that most health food stores and proprietors conscientiously police their premises, their suppliers and their claims.

But the other are an embarrassment to all of us believers in nutritional supplements and, what is worse, their unclean stores and unsupported advertising claims now threaten the entire industry with a government crackdown.

Self-government won't work without self-discipline.

Last May, Texas health inspectors raided several health food stores. As clerks and customers watched in amazement, they removed hundreds of products including vitamin C, aloe vera, herbal teas and others.

In Kent, Wash., armed agents of the FDA burst into a clinic where medical practitioners were dispensing vitamins, mineral and amino acids by injection.

Officials of the Food and Drug Administration insist they are only seeking to stop the manufacturers and marketers of nutritional supplements from making unproved claims from their products.

Paul Harvey

The health food industry responds, alleging that the FDA is trying to take our vitamins away, to allow their use only by prescription from a physician.

Between the health food promoters who resist all scrutiny ...

... And the government regulators who love to regulate ...

Respectable, responsible makers and dealers in health foods are the ones who stand unjustly to suffer.

Mainstream medical science has been tardy to teach and practice health maintenance through proper nutrition.

The newly aggressive policy of the FDA is now likely to result in a labeling law which would classify vitamins and minerals as "drugs" if their dosages exceeded the government's recommendations.

Some of us don't think the bureaucrats are that smart.

Physiological differences in individuals may require differing dosages to accomplish the same results.

At the same time, however, the health food merchants who persist in making indefensible claims for their products are inviting increased government snooperism.

Rep. Henry Waxman (D-Calif.) wants Congress to grant the FDA sweeping new powers.

Sen. Orrin Hatch (R-Utah) wants to protect dietary supplements from being classified as drugs.

When Congress reconvenes, the battle will be joined.

Sy Chalpin of Hi-Health Food Stores in Arizona notes encouraging recent research demonstrating that supplemental nutrition may prevent certain disease.

If all health food merchants would resist over-running their headlines, making claims beyond what's been demonstrated, it would effectively strengthen Sen. Hatch's position.

Serious Worriers, start your engines

Every August, I grind my teeth to little nubs worrying about what I'm going to worry about after Labor Day when the summer is over and the worrying season starts up again. You know what the French do? They take the month off. They pack up their Renaults and head down to Provence or someplace and don't worry about anything until the beginning of September.

What is wrong with these people that they can't worry properly? I read somewhere that the French wine industry is suffering because of foreign competition of the trend toward non-alcoholic beverages. Do you think the French are concerned about it? No Sir, they just shut the country down and go to the beach for a month. These people need some worrying lessons.

Let me spell it out for them, the official worrying season runs from the day after Labor Day to Christmas, picks up again after New Year's, then goes to Memorial Day. Amateur worriers then take the summer off. Serious Worriers, the true artists, begin nibbling nails again in August when they start worrying about what they're going to worry about in September.

Let me give a few examples of some vexatious things that have come to light in recent months and some of the questions Normal People could be asking themselves about these vexatious things if they cared even a whit about worrying:

Does my dentist disinfect his drills adequately? Is there a harmful toxin in my Dungeness crab viscera? Will British judges and lawyers quite wearing wigs? Will Jay Leno find his niche? What will comedians do if old Potatoe Head loses? Was Marilyn Monroe murdered to keep her from revealing her affairs with the Kennedy brothers and did the White House, Justice Department, CIA, FBI, Mafia and numerous doctors, lawyers and journalists conspire to cover it up?

See what I mean? The world sags with things Normal People could worry about. And it they wanted to turn up the anxiety meter a notch, they could ponder these things:

Do memories of foul odors mean I had an unhappy childhood? What will we do about the shortage of college presidents? What can symphony orchestras do to attract young people? What will we do for caviar if the Russian sturgeon population keeps dwindling? Will rising ocean levels wipe out the Marshall Islands? Is Ross running or not?

Even that is piddling stuff for us Serious Worriers, trained as we were on our mamas' knees to contemplate how long the earth can survive if it is slowing down at the rate of 1 second per year. Here are just a few of the things that have kept SWs pre-occupied in the past few months:

• What will we name the '90s? I mean, we had the Roaring '20s with the bathtub gin, and the Age of Aquarius with the hair and beads, and the Me Decade with Ronnie and Nancy. What will the '90s be called? (I see stories about people blaming Prozac for their hyperactive libidos and I want to call it the Not Me Decade, but I'm only one vote.)

• What level of cholesterol is OK? High has been a no-no for a long time; now low is bad, too. If this keeps up, somebody will have to invent a dipstick that can be inserted in our ears for a daily reading. "You're two eggs low today."

• What does God really think about sex? Time magazine posed the question in June and told us what Catholics think and what Evangelicals think and what Baptists and Methodists and Episcopalians and Presbyterians think. But for some strange reason, Time forgot to ask Pat Robertson what God thinks.

• Is the mind an illusion? Newsweek asked this one in April. The new brain scanning technology that can "see" thought has renewed this old debate between the Materialists, who think the mind is a bunch of neurons, and the Dualists, who believe it is a separate entity. The famous French philosopher Rene (I think therefore I am) Descartes was a Dualist, for example.

Bet he didn't take August off.

Girl's drinking history proves any teen can be an alcoholic

DEAR ABBY: I am a teen-age girl who is an alcoholic, now faithfully attending AA meetings, and I'm here to tell a lot of teen-agers that it can happen to them.

I kept telling myself it could never happen to me. I only drank on weekends — but the weekends turned into weekdays. I drank by myself and with friends. More than once I showed up drunk, or hung over, at school, and I never thought I had a problem! I mean, I was only 15 at the time.

But my drinking got worse, my grades and school attendance went down, and I missed 53 days in one class. My parents yelled only about the grades and never even knew about the drinking. There are still people today who don't believe I could ever have had a drinking problem because I come from a very good home, my parents don't drink, and I look like the "little good girl" who would never do anything wrong.

Well, I'm now 17. I'm happy to say I haven't touched a drink in seven months and I never want to drink again! I'm having way too much fun now, and I'm also trying to keep those younger than I am from making the same mistake I made two years ago. I now go from school to school talking about my problem; hoping that someone will listen, and at the same time giving myself more confidence knowing I no longer need a drink.

One thing I would like to end with: "An alcoholic is not a bad person; he or she is sick and needs help!" So please, if you know people who have drinking problems — help them to get help. You will be saving lives.

A TEEN WHO DOESN'T NEED A DRINK FOR A GOOD TIME IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR MILWAUKEE TEEN: You are to be commended for your courage and intelligence in facing up to your alcohol problem before it does more harm to you — or to others. You are an important example to the many other young people already in trouble with their drinking. Anyone who thinks he or she is "too young" to be an alcoholic doesn't know the facts. But they can learn the latest statistics by calling 1-800-729-6686 for the free government publication, "Too Many

Dear Abby
Abigail Van Buren

Young People Drink Too Much. And the same number can provide local help for alcohol — and drug — problems for people of all ages.

Good luck in your clean and sober life!

DEAR ABBY: I was going out with this guy a few months ago. I just saw him again recently, and he said he couldn't get over how good I looked:

He gave me his new telephone number. I called him a couple of times and we talked, and he seemed interested in seeing me.

I just now called him again and his phone has been disconnected!

I don't know how to get in touch with him. I know his address, but he also knows mine. I like him a lot and think of him constantly. What should I do?

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: You should do nothing, and consider yourself lucky. If he calls you — or shows up at your house with a reasonable explanation — listen; but don't pin your hopes on a guy who had his phone disconnected and didn't bother to let you know.

DEAR ABBY: Hooray for the mother who wanted to conserve water by reusing the bath water. But if it's such a great idea, I think Mother should volunteer to take the last bath.

Radcliff honored

El Progresso Club named Florence Radcliff as honorary member and dedicated the 1992-1993 club yearbook to her. Eloise Lane, left, is president of the club. She and Radcliff look over the newly published yearbook. Radcliff was president of El Progresso Club in the years 1962-1963. She joined in 1956. The Michigan native is a member of the First United Methodist Church and a volunteer at Coronado Hospital. She is the mother of Barbara Holt.

Bull riding at Tri State Fair

For the second year, the Tri State Championship Bull Riding will be offered at the Amarillo Tri State Fair, scheduled for Sept. 21-26. This popular event has been expanded to an additional night this year and will be conducted the last three days of the fair, Sept. 24, 25 and 26.

Producer of the bull riding will be Charlie Thompson of Lubbock. A guaranteed purse of $10,000 will be paid and all entry fees up to $12,000 will be paid back to winners. Other features of the event will be bull-fighting clowns and a wild cow milking contest involving local dignitaries.

Books for contestants open Sept. 14 and close Sept. 22. The contest is limited to the first 120 cowboys. Interested contestants may contact Thompson at (806) 794-2317.

Club News

An organization meeting for the American Family Association was held Sept. 1 at Lovett Library. Janey Hopson, AFA representative opened the meeting. Tom Cole, treasurer of the Amarillo chapter, reported on accomplishments there. A committee was formed to conduct a "White Ribbon Campaign."

The next meeting is set for 7 p.m. Oct. 9 at Lovett Memorial Library. For more information call Hopson at 665-1459.

Past matrons and past patrons of Pampa Chapter #65 Order of the Eastern Star were honored with a special gift and thanks for years of service and leadership to the group. Guests from Miami Chapter #98 OES and Borger Chapter #811 OES were also welcomed.

Pearl Franklin will be recognized as a 50-year member at the Sept. 15 meeting.

Five members plan to attend Wings of Love banquet honoring Garland Rattan, association grand patron of the Grand Chapter of Texas, OES, on Sept. 19 in Amarillo.

The annual membership brunch of the Petroleum Engineers Wives Society was Sept. 8 at 200 N. Ballard. It was hosted by Pampa officers of the club and 21 members and one guest were present.

The next meeting is set for Oct. 13 in Borger.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

A BIBLICAL "EFFICIENCY EXPERT", PAR EXCELLENCE!

WHEN PHARAOH WAS ADVISED BY JOSEPH TO STORE UP ALL THE FOOD GROWN IN THE LAND, DURING SEVEN YEARS OF PLENTY, AGAINST THE TIME WHEN THERE WOULD BE SEVEN YEARS FAMINE, ALL OF WHICH JOSEPH HAD PREDICTED BY INTERPRETING PHARAOH'S DREAM (GENESIS 41:25-44), PHARAOH WAS SO PLEASSED HE MADE JOSEPH RULER OF THE ENTIRE LAND, SECOND ONLY TO PHARAOH, HIMSELF!

JOSEPH IMMEDIATELY HAD HUGE STORE-HOUSES BUILT TO HOARD EGYPT'S PRODUCE AND, WHEN THE FAMINE SET IN THERE WAS FOOD APLENTY—BUT JOSEPH DIDN'T GIVE THE FOOD TO THE PEOPLE—HE SOLD IT TO THEM AND, WHEN THEY RAN OUT OF MONEY, HE TOOK THEIR ANIMALS IN PAYMENT ON THE GRAIN THEY NEEDED FOR FOOD AND TO PLANT AS SEED...

FINALLY, WHEN THE FARMERS NEEDED MORE FOOD AND GRAIN, THEY HAD NOTHING LEFT BUT THEIR LAND WHICH JOSEPH TOOK TITLE TO IN THE NAME OF PHARAOH IN PAYMENT FOR MORE FOOD AND GRAIN—SO THE PHARAOH WOUND UP OWNING ALL THE LAND OF EGYPT WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THOSE LANDS OWNED BY THE PRIESTHOOD! THE PRIESTS, WHO BY TRADITIONAL LAW, WERE FED FROM PHARAOH'S STORES, HENCE THEY HADN'T HAD TO BUY ANY FOOD OR GRAIN AND KEPT THEIR LANDS!

AFTER THAT, JOSEPH GAVE THE PEOPLE FREE GRAIN WITH WHICH TO PLANT MORE CROPS BUT THEY HAD TO GIVE TO PHARAOH ONE-FIFTH OF ALL THAT THEIR LAND PRODUCED, FROM THEN ON! WITHOUT A DOUBT, THIS WAS THE MOST EFFECTIVE TAKE-OVER OF A LAND BY ONE MAN THAT HISTORY HAS EVER RECORDED—"EFFICIENCY EXPERT" IS A MILD TERM FOR A MAN OF JOSEPH'S CALIBER, WHO HAD COME INTO EGYPT AS A SLAVE AND, IN DUE TIME, ENSLAVED THE ENTIRE NATION—ALL BY HIMSELF!

NEXT WEEK: TAKING OFF OF A SHOE IS A VERY SERIOUS MATTER!!

Praying to purge pounds

Christian women join forces for spiritual, weight loss support

By CHERYL BERZANSKIS
Lifestyles Editor

Good nutrition, weight control and development of a positive self image, all manias of a health conscious nation, have spread to the Christian community.

Penny Glaesman and Pam Fowler, members of Calvary Baptist Church, developed their own "prayergram" of weight loss which combines elements of sound nutrition and emotional and spiritual support.

"This was something Pam and I designed for ourselves, but the Lord laid it on our hearts to open it up to the church," explained Penny Glaesman of Special Ladies in Mind, or SLIM for short.

Glaesman emphasized that the focus of SLIM is on Christian lifestyle change, rather than the diet. New enrollees receive a notebook which contains pages for a daily prayer journal, statement of faith, and spaces to record personal data like weight and measurements. The group is financed through donations.

Glaesman and Fowler, when discussing the SLIM program, repeatedly emphasized that weight loss is a secondary consideration when working the prayergram.

"The main thing is your prayer partner and your prayer life," Glaesman said.

Target weights are prayed over and become "prayed pounds" rather than figures from a life insurance company chart.

The element which differentiates SLIM from other, albeit successful, weight loss programs, is the commitment of dieters to pray for a designated partner and become involved in their daily struggles. Partners are aware of the other's eating trouble spots — a special luncheon or family reunion — which might tempt the dieter to gastronomic excess. On the day of the tempting meal, the partner will pray especially for her buddy's weakness.

Partners are matched up based on common interests. Bonds seem to form naturally, Glaesman said.

Each day, SLIM members fill out a prayer journal sheet. They read selected Bible verses, record prayer requests and answered prayers.

"The most exciting time (of the weekly meeting) is not the pounds lost, but about the prayer journal and the time with your prayer partner," Fowler said.

The diet is a 1,200 calorie a day, low-fat regime. Water and exercise are encouraged.

"We try to work on three basic areas — mind, body and soul," Glaesman said.

Twelve to 15 attendees have shed about 200 pounds in 11 weeks, the women report. Over 200 pudgy inches have been eliminated.

"We have a saying we're trying to get our physical body as well as our spiritual body," Glaesman said.

Recipes are distributed weekly. The women talk about reasons for overeating, such as stress and depression. They discuss how to manage their lives so that difficult emotional periods are not relieved by eating.

Glaesman and Fowler, best friends from childhood, note that being in positions of leadership in SLIM motivates them to continue their self-improvement efforts.

"It keeps me on this prayergram because I know I have 15 others wondering how I'm doing," Fowler said.

"We're still working on ourselves. Neither of us has said we are where we want to be spiritually," Glaesman added.

The small group intimacy take the place of yesterday's quilting bee.

"We want to be good for each other," Glaesman said. "We all have the same problem — we want to lose weight. It's more of a lifting one another up — we don't tear one another down."

Glaesman said her husband is thrilled about SLIM — particularly the opportunities for ministry to women and therefore, an increased commitment to prayer life.

Fowler reports that her husband is most delighted about her 20-pound weight loss.

"I was at the point I didn't like myself. It made me feel better about myself. He can see a change about how I feel about myself and that's exciting to him," she said.

Editors note: SLIM meets at 5:30 p.m. Thursdays at Calvary Baptist Church, 900 E. 23rd St. Christian women are invited.

'Campaign for Christ' set to kick off on Sunday at M.K. Brown Auditorium

A "Campaign for Christ" is scheduled to begin Sunday evening at the M.K. Brown Auditorium with Bible scholar Johnny Ramsey of Arlington as guest speaker.

The campaign will continue through Thursday.

Ramsey was born in Pampa in 1930. He was raised in Sherman and is a 1952 graduate of Abilene Christian University where he served as class president for two years. He married Iris Baker in 1952 and they have four children and nine grandchildren.

He spent three years in Australia as a missionary. He has preached in 800 revivals in 42 states and 17 nations. He is the author of 10 books and 25 Bible study pamphlets. He is involved in radio and television ministries in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and is teaching in four seminaries.

His theme for the campaign is "The Home." He will cover the topic from the Biblical standpoint as the Bible speaks on the "Problem in the Home Today," which touches on broken homes; "God's Plan for the Home," which includes interpretation of God's view of the home; "Our Family Homes," which includes the families in their roles; "The Church Home," and "The Heavenly Home."

The campaign will begin each evening at 7:30 p.m. Each evening, before the campaign at 7 p.m., one of the gospel quartets from the area will perform. On Sunday and Tuesday evenings, the Harvesters Four of Pampa will sing. On Monday, His Image from Tulia will perform. On Wednesday, Heaven Bound from Borger will sing. On Thursday evening, Psalm Four of Amarillo will sing.

The quartets are scheduled to sing 20 minutes each evening, then Wyatt Earp is scheduled to direct congregational singing for the campaign.

The public is invited to attend the special services.

Briarwood Church plans guest speaker

Briarwood Full Gospel Church, 1800 W. Harvester, plans to host guest speaker, Lynn L. Hancock of Clearwater, Fla., at 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday.

The Rev. Hancock attended Lee College in Cleveland, Tenn., majoring in music and Bible. He has been the soloist at conventions and camp meetings, including the General Council of the Assemblies of God, and the General Assembly of the Church of God. He also was a featured soloist with the Chattanooga Symphony Orchestra in Chattanooga, Tenn., and as a member of Singers III (a trio representing Lee College), traveled in the United States.

Pastor Gene Allen and the congregation of Briarwood Church invite the public to attend the special services. A nursery will be provided.

Kids' crusade to feature puppets

A kids' crusade is set for 4 to 6 p.m. on Sept. 19 in Pampa.

Sponsors of the event plan fun, songs, prizes, games and refreshments (range cookies and cactus juice).

Puppets, including Sheriff Booker T., Pedro, Penelope, Duper and Sally Sue are scheduled to provide entertainment.

Families of all ages are welcome to attend the event at the Church of the Brethren, 600 N. Frost, organizers said. There is no admission charge.

A prize will be awarded to the person who brings the most guests.

The next kids' crusade is set for Oct. 31.

Choir to have fund-raising dinner

The senior choir of the Macedonia Baptist Church has planned a catfish dinner beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday.

The public is invited and donations will be accepted. Phone orders can be placed at 665-4926, said Pastor I.L. Patrick.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep your wits about you today in your one-to-one dealings with others, especially if you have to contend with someone who is openly hostile.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Even though your way of doing things might be better than the methods of those you're involved with, don't attempt to make others comply with your wishes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you can't afford it, it wouldn't be wise to go out on the town today with a friend who's a high roller. You could get caught up in this individual's wasteful pattern.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Disagreements between you and your mate should not be discussed outside your home today. There's a chance it could encourage a busybody to get into the act.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be methodical today, even with routine tasks. If you do things in haste, there's a chance you'll make a few mishaps, which could result in a poor product.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Closely monitor matters that affect your finances at this time. Should you fail to plug up the leaks, there's a chance the drips could turn into a serious drain.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You might feel like you're running out of time today regarding a matter you're anxious to conclude. Keep cool in this complex situation, so that you don't create additional headaches.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The behavior of a thoughtless associate might anger you today, but it's best you don't respond in a like fashion. Later, when you're in a more tolerant mood, it can be discussed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A friend might put pressure on you today to part with something you possess. If you yield to this harassment, you're apt to regret it later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It might be difficult for you to distinguish between bold aggressiveness and proper assertiveness today. However, those you deal with will know the difference.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You may have to deal with someone today who made a bad impression on you in your last encounter. Don't get off on the wrong foot by nurturing an old grudge.

Mark, my Words

The Citadel produces random, hazy thoughts

Random thoughts while wondering if the story about The Citadel in this week's Sports Illustrated is 100-percent accurate. And if it is, how come Arkansas athletic director Frank Broyles doesn't resort to hazing instead of replacing head coaches as his next brilliant quick-fix solution for the once proud Razorbacks...

That article, by the way, is very disturbing if it's true. There are some very graphic stories about how freshmen, football players in this case, are allegedly mistreated by the sophomores every year at The Citadel without adult intervention.

A story came over The Associated Press wire Thursday with officials from The Citadel denying the charges and saying that Rick Reilly, the writer of the piece, came to do the story with some preconceived notions about the school.

I think Reilly is a wonderful writer so maybe I picked up the article with some preconceived notions about what I was reading.

But even so, if Reilly is half right about the things he wrote about, that school needs some serious review by every governmental agency you can name.

It must have been a case of good timing that the article came out after The Citadel, a Division II school, defeated Arkansas last week. That in itself deserves an investigative piece...

Speaking of writers, Pampa Coach Dennis Cavalier commented about one of his favorites during an interview earlier this week.

"It's very common for me to read Putt Powell's column right off the bat every morning," Cavalier said of the writer from the Amarillo Daily News.

It seems Cavalier has been taking an especially big interest in Powell's column this week, however.

"Of course, my friend Putt always tries to incite Amarillo High to be careful about the Harvesters," Cavalier said with a laugh. "One of the first things in his article Tuesday was about how long it's been since Pampa High School has beaten Amarillo High two years in a row. From that, I think the message is: Beware of the Harvesters. Let's not get embarrassed again."

Whether the Sandies will need Powell's inspiration tonight when the two teams battle at Bivins Stadium remains to be seen.

Personally, I believe the Harvesters have made some positive steps this week during the practices I've watched. There's been a lot of enthusiasm and things appeared to be running on a quicker and smoother level. Will it be enough to hold off the Sandies?

To borrow and amend one of Putt's writing devices — Copout: This should be a good one tonight...

As odd as it was for seven of eight Southwest Conference football teams to lose last weekend, wasn't the Big Eight's opening day sweep something from the football oddities handbook, too?

Of course, two Big Eight teams, Missouri and Kansas State, didn't play, and the level of competition for the playing Big Eight teams didn't match up with the Southwest Conference foes.

But in recent seasons, you could almost count on Iowa State or Oklahoma State to get blasted or at least choke one away...

I think baseball lost a good man when Fay Vincent resigned this week. At least, it lost a man who lived up to his word.

Vincent always preached that the things he did were in the best interests of baseball. Didn't he prove that by stepping down instead of throwing the whole case about the owners' demand he retire into a never-ending court battle?

If you think nothing gets done in the baseball hierarchy now, you would hate to see it with that mess going on.

The owners should move fast and get someone in there who's going to address several key issues that are confronting the game.

But I know one thing. The new owner won't be a Fay Vincent. The owners aren't going to let anyone get in their pocketbooks again...

The best line by a football announcer I've heard this year has to have been from Frank Gifford during the Cowboys-Redskins game on Monday.

Remember the interception that set up the Redskins first score that appeared to skip off the turf?

All Michaels went on a tirade about how it wasn't a catch and instant replay would have reversed the call.

"Yes," Gifford said. "But at least we didn't have to spend five minutes talking about it."

Pampa packs confidence for Sandies adjust to. So that complicates our problem."

Although the Harvesters' balloon burst last week after losing their season opener, the team's positive outlook on the season has not come crashing to Earth.

There are just some minor repairs that have to be done.

"There's definitely a sense now that we're not a good team at this point," Pampa Coach Dennis Cavalier said. "We realize that we have potential, but potential without motivation and commitment is not going to be good enough to win a game on Friday night."

With that lesson learned, the Harvesters, 0-1, travel to Amarillo to face the Amarillo High School Sandies, 1-0, at 7:30 p.m. at Dick Bivins Stadium.

The Sandies present the Harvesters with their second straight opponent in a higher classification. Also, Pampa is facing a team for a second straight week that runs a somewhat diverse offense.

"As always with Amarillo High, there is a good blend of pass and run," Cavalier said. "They probably do as good a job of that as anybody which makes it defensively very hard to get ready. They also run a number of particular formations we're going to have to

The Sandies feature a backfield with a fullback and a halfback who lines up on either the tight or split end side. The newest wrinkle in their attack is a small option game.

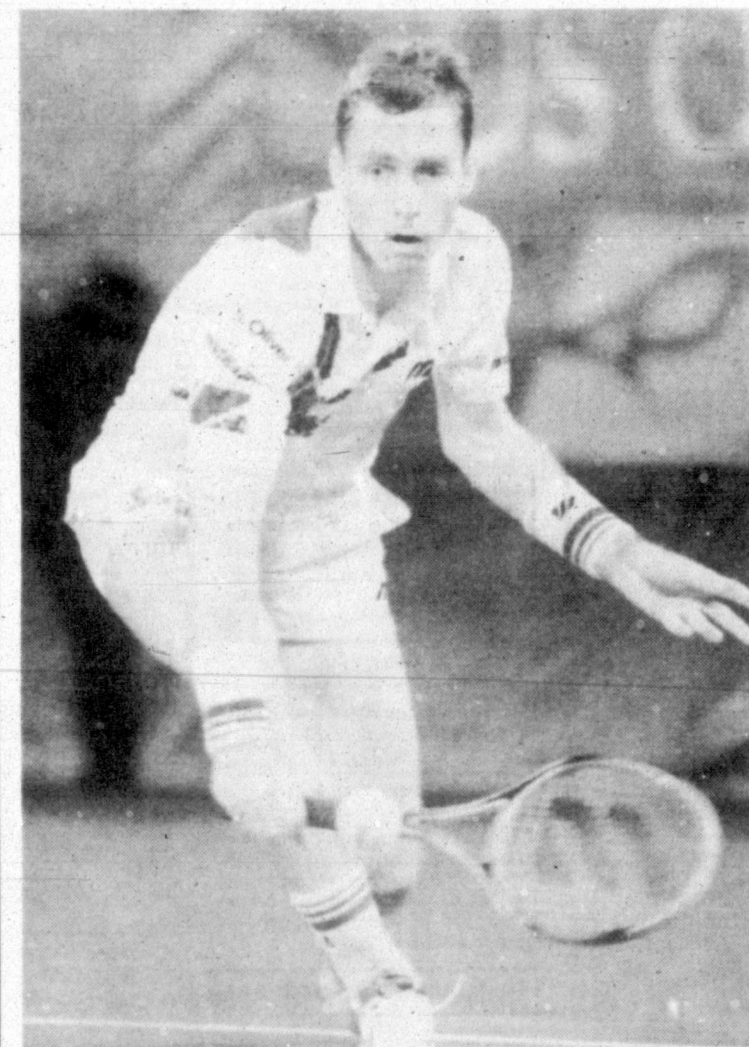

"That's something we haven't seen from them before," Cavalier said. "They're very diverse. Offensively, they are just a real quality football team."

The Harvesters are sticking to their bread-and-butter rushing game to account for most of their offensive gameplan. But Cavalier made no secret that Pampa must improve on its passing numbers of a week ago when two passes were thrown for no completions and one interception.

"I went into that game Friday intending to throw more than we did," Cavalier said. "Pulling the trigger and intending are two different things, though. If you have no confidence, you can't do it."

Cavalier might be willing to put the ball in the air more often tonight as the Harvesters have worked after practice every day this week to improve their passing offense.

But even so, Amarillo High Coach Larry Dippel doesn't expect his secondary to be too busy chasing receivers.

"I don't think Dennis likes to do that," Dippel said. "He's pretty conservative. It didn't surprise me one bit when he only threw it twice against Garden City."

In that game, the Harvesters rushed the ball 37 times for 169 yards. Gregg Moore accounted for a large part of that yardage on one play when he broke free on a 69-yard touchdown.

And according to Cavalier, the Harvesters were on the verge of breaking several more.

"Our offensive line played fairly well," Cavalier said. "There were several times — many times — when we had everybody accounted for except one guy who didn't quite get the job done."

The observation was shared by Dippel.

"We'll be focussed on their running game mostly," he said. "I know they're going to be much more improved over what we saw against Garden City."

Rain halts Edberg, Lendl

NEW YORK (AP) — Stefan Edberg couldn't finish off Ivan Lendl at the U.S. Open and neither could he beat the rain.

The two former champions — Edberg is defending the title he won last year; Lendl has captured the crown three times, the last in 1987 — were to resume their quarterfinal battle today, weather permitting, after their match was suspended by rain in the fifth set Thursday night.

Actually, Edberg could have moved into a semifinal berth opposite Michael Chang by winning the fourth set. He had four match points in the 10th game.

But Lendl, supposedly near the end of his career at age 32, revved his game into high gear and battled back from love-40 to hold serve and begin a three-game streak that knotted the match and sent it into a fifth set.

Change, in a day match that, because of a rain delay, almost lasted as long as the Edberg-Lendl marathon, overcame 12th-seeded Wayne Ferreira of South Africa 7-5, 2-6, 6-3, 6-7 (4-7), 6-1.

The women's semifinals also were on top for today, with fifth-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario meeting No. 9 Manuela Maleeva-Fragniere and defending champion and top-seed Monica Seles taking on No. 7 Mary Joe Fernandez.

Sanchez Vicario's lone Grand Slam tournament title came in 1989 when she captured the French Open. And this was her second trip in three years in the semifinals on the hardcourts at Flushing Meadows.

While both are veterans of the tour, it is only the fourth meeting between Sanchez Vicario and Maleeva-Fragniere, making her first Grand Slam tournament semifinal appearance. Maleeva-Fragniere, a native of Bulgaria who now lives in Switzerland, leads the series 2-1, having won their last two meetings.

Seles has dominated her semifinal foe, leading 12-1 in their career matchups and 25-4 in sets.

Fernandez and Seles met in the Australian Open final in January, Seles winning. This is Seles' ninth career Grand Slam singles semifinal and her seventh consecutive, starting at the 1991 Australian Open.

Edberg was breezing along the semifinals of the year's final Grand Slam tournament when he reached triple match point against Lendl. Seven points later, Lendl was ready to serve for the fourth set.

Minutes after the Chang-Ferreira match ended, the rains came for a second time Thursday, forcing suspension of the Edberg-Lendl match with Edberg ahead two sets to one and down 5-6 in the fourth set.

Lendl had held serve in the 10th game, saving the four match points. He then broke Edberg to take the lead when rain halted play.

After a delay of one hour, 10 minutes, Lendl returned to the court and broke Edberg to capture the set and send the match into a fifth set.

It apparently was exactly what Lendl wanted.

He won a five-setter against Jaime Yzaga of Peru in the opening round, downed Jimmy Connors in four sets, needed four sets to eliminate Chuck Adams and went five sets to oust Boris Becker.

NFL players and owners agree trials are trouble

By The Associated Press

NFL labor and management seem to agree on one area in the wake of a Minneapolis jury's decision striking down Plan B free agency: bargaining is preferable to lawsuits.

"These are issues that are much better dealt with when they are discussed at the collective bargaining table," Patriots chief executive officer Sam Jankovich said Thursday, "and hopefully with this decision both sides will sit down and come to an agreement that benefits everybody and takes these issues out of the court system."

Mike Lynn, the former Vikings general manager who helped design Plan B — which was implemented unilaterally by the NFL — echoed those thoughts.

"Hopefully everyone will come to their senses and sit down and negotiate. This thing should not have been in a courtroom," Lynn said.

Lynn admitted the league can set up another plan, but that it should be done through proper channels.

"There's all kinds of systems that can be put in. Hopefully, whatever system is put in in the future can be negotiated between the players association and the NFL," Lynn said.

Any negotiations will have to include some liberalized form of free agency, several players insisted.

"I have buddies out of college working all over the nation because it's their choice. I'm pro-choice on this one," Rams quarterback Jim Everett said.

"I never thought the compensation had ever grown with time. There never was a good adjustment for time.

"This will at least give us a much clearer picture of where we go, what kind of leverage we'll have and those type of things.

"There's so many things people are afraid of when it comes to change. Things will be different. Maybe some franchises could get back in the running quickly. General managers that know talent could wheel and deal."

Rams veteran center Blair Bush, who twice took advantage of Plan B, doesn't see a sweeping change of the free agency rules.

"I don't think it's realistic for there to be absolute free agency," he said. "We all benefit when the game is healthy. At the same time, there has to be an equitable agreement that lets people choose where they play at a reasonable time in their career and be required to negotiate like every other business."

The decision by the eight-woman jury awarded damages to only four of the eight players involved in the lawsuit. Getting financial awards were Dave Richards, Mark Collins, Lee Rouson (now retired) and Frank Minni-field. Not collecting any money were Don Majkowski, Freeman McNeil, Tim McDonald and Niko Noga.

"I don't consider this hollow at all," McDonald said. "This is a big decision here. Damages are expected by everyone. We are fighting against those restrictions that were placed upon us when we had fulfilled our contractual obligation. We don't feel like those restrictions should have been placed on us. And, obviously, the court ruled in our favor, that those restrictions were unfair."

Faulk, Aztecs burn Cougars

PROVO, Utah (AP) — If you still harbor doubts about Marshall Faulk being anything less than the best runner in college football, steer clear of San Diego State coach Al Luginbill.

After the sophomore runner busted free for 299 yards and three touchdowns against 25th-ranked Brigham Young in SDSU's 45-38 victory Thursday night, Luginbill was firm in his belief.

"He's the best football player in America, bar none," Luginbill said. "Why does everybody keep questioning the ability of Marshall Faulk? I'm upset that he gets questions about him. The guy is phenomenal, there's no question."

How could BYU coach LaVell Edwards disagree?

"Marshall Faulk is everything you have heard and read about," Edwards said. "We did a reasonably good job on him in the first half, then let him out of the sock for two or three big runs in the second half."

Faulk — who had 220 yards in SDSU's opener against USC — was held to 88 yards in the first two quarters. But in the second half he was the Aztecs' offense, breaking loose for 211 more.

In all, he carried the ball 35 times, mostly into the line when the Cougars cut off the outside running game.

Faulk said he simply lowered his shoulder, determined to "pound it up the middle" as SDSU (1-0-1) ended a 17-game home winning streak for BYU (1-1).

Atlanta's Deion Sanders reports for practice with the Falcons Thursday in Suwanee, Ga.

Prime Time to play football part time

SUWANEE, Ga. (AP) — Prime Time will now go full time for at least part of the time. And that seems to come at just the right time for the Atlanta Falcons.

Deion Sanders, who excels at two professional sports in Atlanta, decided to go back to being a Pro Bowl cornerback for the Falcons, at least until the Braves need a speedy outfielder for the National League playoffs.

The agreement, a supplemental contract for 1992 believed to be worth about $2 million, was signed on Thursday and Sanders went through a 2 1/2-hour workout with the Falcons after passing his physical.

Sanders' previous contract was for $750,000 this season.

Linebacker Jessie Tuggle said Sanders' return is a plus for the team.

"A guy with that much talent really helps us," he said. "He brings a different dimension to the defense and the team."

Sanders had said last month that he was going to remain with the Braves for the entire baseball season after talks with the Falcons bogged down.

He gave no indication Thursday why he changed his mind and refused to talk to reporters following his football practice session.

Center Jamie Dukes said just after Sanders announced the decision to play baseball that something was in the works and it wasn't over yet.

"It just took a little longer than I thought," Dukes said.

Both Dukes and Sanders played college ball at Florida State and both are represented by the same agent, Eugene Parker, who met with Falcons officials Wednesday and Thursday to solidify the deal.

"The priority will be football until the baseball postseason starts," Parker said.

Sanders had talked with some of his Braves teammates to feel them out.

"Deion called me a couple of nights ago really worried about what we thought here," Braves third baseman Terry Pendleton said. "His voice cracked. That played to me. He's real sensitive to us, but he's still got to look after his family. Business is business."

Two of Sanders' fellow starters in the secondary were glad to see him back in football gear.

"We got Prime Time back," cornerback Tim McKeay said. "What can you say? It's great. I'm looking forward to going out there and just having some fun with the guy. Having him out there playing does something to me, makes me bring my game up."

Pigskin Predictions

Managing Editor J. Alan Brzys did not make many friends last week by picking against two local high school teams. However, his strategy worked well as he went 9-3 and took the lead in the Pampa News staff's predictions contest. Trailing Brzys are Sports Editor Mark Spencer and Staff Photographer Daniel Wiegiers who both posted marks of 7-5 for the week. Sports writer L.D. Strate, betrayed by Indiana State among others, fell to 5-7.

Reeves named PHS Athlete of the Week

The Harvesters Booster Club has named Michel Reeves as its Pampa High School Athlete of the Week. Reeves won the girls' all-around at the Tri-State High School Rodeo at Snettinet on Monday. Currently, Reeves is in second place in the standings for the girls all-around title in district competition. She will compete in the State High School Qualifying Rodeo at Boys' Ranch on Saturday.

Harvesters JV defeats Sandies

Pampa defeated Amarillo High, 21-20, in a junior varsity football game Thursday at Harvester Stadium. In a ninth grade game, Hereford outlasted Pampa, 14-8.

McDaniel says he's no Bird

BOSTON (AP) — Xavier McDaniel will be the first to tell you he's no Larry Bird. In fact, he'll be the first to tell you just about anything. Like how he grew impatient for the New York Knicks to re-sign him, how he'll help the Boston Celtics return to title contention and how he likes to trade elbows. "Off the court," he said, "I smile, I talk to people, I just have fun. On the court, I'm just about business."

The Birdman is gone, having retired Aug. 18 because of back problems. The X Man is here, having left none of his love for talking and tussling behind with the Knicks, a team suddenly stripped of a feisty competitor just as the Celtics were going to be able to fill his shoes because he's probably the greatest player that ever played in the league," McDaniel said of Bird. McDaniel, an unrestricted free agent who bought out the last two years of his contract with New York on Jan. 15, signed a five-year deal Thursday with the Celtics.

The first three years are guaranteed. If the Celtics exercise their option to renew the contract for a fourth season, McDaniel would get that option in the fifth year. The value of the contract wasn't announced.

Strawberry to have surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It took a drive to the stadium to make Darryl Strawberry finally decide to have back surgery. "I thought about it going home last night," the Los Angeles Dodgers' slugger said Thursday. "And then driving to the park today, my leg was killing me and I said, 'This is it. I'm going to have the surgery and get it over with.'"

Pettay to lead services at Hiland Pentecostal

Roger Pettay will be the guest speaker at services beginning Sunday at Hiland Pentecostal Holiness Church, 18th and Banks.

Services are scheduled for 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. Sunday and at 7 p.m. Monday through Wednesday.

Pettay has been preaching for 10 years, beginning at the age of nine with backyard services for the neighborhood kids. Later, he and a friend started a Bible study which grew from six to 45 young people. As a teenager, he hit the streets of Hutchinson, Kan., preaching from the Bible.

Pettay served as youth pastor of the Abundant Life Pentecostal Holiness Church in Hutchinson. After graduation from high school, he began a full-time evangelism ministry.

The public is invited to attend the special services.

New Life Assembly plans services starting Sunday

Evangelist Ed Hundley will begin special services at the New Life Assembly of God, Randy Matson and Sumner, on Sunday at 10:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.

Hundley will also hold services on Monday through Wednesday evenings at 7:30 p.m.

Hundley has been in full-time ministry for more than 40 years. He began as a boy preacher, traveling with his two brothers. After the trio disbanded, Hundley was the pastor of churches in Texas. During that time, he furthered his education at Southwestern Bible Institute and Wayland Baptist College.

In addition to his other speaking engagements, he has preached at more than 1,200 revival campaigns in the United States.

He is joined in his ministry by his wife, Jane, and they present a music

Food airdrops to remote rural areas postponed

BARDEERA, Somalia (AP) — U.S. planes carrying rice, beans, grain and oil to a western Somali town were forced to return to their Kenyan base today because of a dispute among local truckers.

Meanwhile, the United Nations postponed airdrops of food for starving people in rural areas from today until the weekend to better organize ground operations, a U.N. agency spokeswoman said.

Also reportedly delayed was the expected Saturday arrival of the first contingent of 3,500 armed U.N. guards the Security Council has authorized for Somalia, where the drought sweeping Africa is compounded by factional fighting.

The U.S. military planes were unable to land at Belet Huen today after the losing party in a contract dispute between two rival Somali trucking firms parked its trucks on the airstrip, said a spokeswoman for the U.S. Agency for International Development. The planes returned to their Kenyan airbase.

The spokeswoman, who asked that she not be identified further, said the U.S. airlift to Belet Huen was expected to resume Saturday. Flights of food to the town of Baidoa and one to northeastern Kenya had been scheduled today, she said.

The United States said that Saturday it would expand its airlift in Somalia to three destinations by delivering two plane loads of food to the town of Hodddur for the U.N. World Food Program, Air Force Reserve Capt. Maryellen Jadick, spokeswoman for the U.S. military operations.

Drought and civil war in southern Somalia have killed tens and perhaps hundreds of thousands of people, and hundreds more perish every day. The U.N. estimates an additional 2 million are in danger of starving.

The International Red Cross estimates the country needs 60,000 tons of food monthly to survive. Less than half that now is reaching Somalia.

Relief groups have been airlifting food to hard-hit towns with runways in the interior for months. But it is hoped air drops will help keep more starving rural people from flooding the cities.

The airdrops planned for today were postponed so relief workers could better organize ground operations, said Brenda Barton, spokeswoman for the U.N. World Food Program.

"Everything has to be in perfect order, otherwise it could be a dangerous operation," Ms. Barton said.

A senior U.N. official on Thursday presented to one of Somalia's main warlords, Gen. Mohamed Farrah Aidid, a plan for bringing food to the country's small villages, but failed to win his immediate approval.

As for the U.N. troops, the first 60 of 500 troops from Pakistan are not scheduled to arrive until Monday, said sources in neighboring Kenya, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The sources said the delay was reported to their offices by U.N. authorities in Mogadishu. It was not immediately confirmed by U.S. military authorities, who are to transport the troops.

In other developments, U.N. Environment Program chief Mostafa Tolba said Thursday that Italian and Swiss firms had contracted to dump hundreds of thousands of tons of toxic wastes in Somalia, taking advantage of the nation's devastation and chaos.

ANC, Ciskei trade accusations; four reported killed

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The African National Congress and Ciskei security forces accused each other today of terrorism, but there were signs of a thaw in ANC relations with President F.W. de Klerk.

The African National Congress announced Thursday it was willing to meet de Klerk to discuss ways of resolving political violence.

De Klerk requested an urgent meeting following the killing of 25 protesters by police and soldiers in the nominally independent Ciskei homeland. The violence erupted as thousands of ANC supporters marched across the Ciskei border to protest its military government.

The ANC attached conditions that have blocked previous bids to revive talks, but the statement was the closest it has come to agreeing to meet de Klerk since negotiations were derailed in June.

"A meeting ... could have some merit if it were to address the problem of violence," ANC Secretary General Cyril Ramaphosa told reporters.

To ensure success, the meeting must be preceded by "thorough preparations ... as well as practical actions" to meet ANC demands for an end to political violence and freedom for political prisoners, he said.

There was no immediate response from the government.

Ramaphosa says relations with the South African government are at their "lowest ebb ... ever" because of the Ciskei bloodshed.

The killings prompted retaliatory attacks on homes of Ciskei police and soldiers in villages around Bisho, the Ciskei capital.

The homeland government said today that 24 homes had been destroyed since Monday and three village leaders who supported the government had been killed. It blamed the ANC and its allies for the violence.

The ANC said today that one of its supporters was beaten to death by Ciskei soldiers in a village outside Bisho.

"It is clear the Ciskei security forces have gone on an orgy of indiscriminate killing," the group said in a statement. "Fear is ruling throughout the villages of the Ciskei as soldiers invade villages and assault people at random."

Ciskei's ruler, Brig. Oupa Gqozo, said his forces opened fire after a marcher shot and killed a Ciskei soldier. The ANC and witnesses deny this and say Ciskei forces fired without provocation.

The killings brought ANC-government relations to a new low following the ANC's suspension of negotiations in June to protest political violence. The ANC accuses de Klerk of failing to take steps that would halt violence in black townships, and it accuses security forces of instigating clashes.

It blamed de Klerk's government for the Ciskei shootings, saying Gqozo and his security forces are puppets of Pretoria's rulers. The ANC considers the homelands vestiges of apartheid.

The South African government accused the ANC of provoking the Ciskei forces.

Ciskei is one of 10 black homelands created under apartheid as separate nations for blacks. Four of them, including Ciskei, are considered independent nations by the South African government, though no other country recognizes their sovereignty.

Ciskei and some other homelands are allied with the government and bitter foes of the ANC.

Conservative homeland leaders hope to continue as regional governments once their territories are returned to South Africa as planned under a post-apartheid political system.

Gqozo at one time was an ANC supporter but turned against the group, saying it wants to impose a dictatorship in South Africa.
