Thirsty world faces water crisis in 90s

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Water

WASHINGTON (AP) — Water, water everywhere, but croplands, cities and some whole countries are drying up.

Not just drought and global warming, but water wastefulness and mismanagement are threatening to create a crisis in the 1990s similar to the oil crunch of the 1970s, concludes a book published Saturday.

Water guzzling toilets, leaky pipes in the world's oldest cities, overly thirsty crops, government-subsidized irrigation and industries that gorge on water all contribute to the problem, said Sandra Postel, author of "Last Oasis: Facing Water Scarcity."

Each country, to supply its population and civilization, needs about 725 gallons a day of replenishable water supply per person, according to water experts.

The earth holds about ten times the amount of water required to meet this need. The available supply — which unlike oil is constantly replenished — also feeds unexploited streams and lakes and keeps the non-human side of the planet alive.

But worldwide water use has tripled since the 1950s, and 26 countries now have more people than their water supplies can adequately support, said Ms. Postel at a news conference. Ms. Postel, vice president of Worldwatch Institute, studied the issue under a grant from the Ford Foundation.

"Water scarcity will affect everything from prospects for peace in the Middle East to global food scarcity, the growth of cities, and the location of industries," she said.

Her thesis is that rather than trying to increase the available water supply through dam-building and well-digging, conservation and more efficient water use offer humanity its "last oasis." Ms. Postel said it is getting more expensive and environmentally damaging to make water available for human use through large-scale water projects.

A major exception in a thirsty world, Ms. Postel said, is Japan, which has more than tripled the value of production from each cubic foot of water over the last 30 years. The book also cites conservation success in such diverse cities as Singapore, Los Angeles, Mexico City and Jerusalem.

But, despite water-saving drip irrigation systems pioneered in Israel and other efforts, the book points to a looming crisis in the Middle East.

Saudi Arabia, for example, is depleting its ground water resources to produce subsidized wheat which costs King Fahd's government four times what it would pay on world markets, the book says.

"By the end of the 90s, water problems in the Middle East will lead either to an unprecedented degree of cooperation or a combustible level of conflict," Ms. Postel said.

Gray County military veterans support group under way

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

A therapeutic support group is being formed in Gray County for veterans of the Vietnam War and subsequent American involvements in military conflicts.

The group, led by Dr. Curtis Stockton, a licensed family therapist with Hope Counseling Services of Amarillo, is expected to meet every Thursday in Pampa at Faith Christian Center, 118 N. Cuyler St., said Pedro Garcia Jr., team leader for the Veterans Readjustment Counseling Services of the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs in Amarillo.

There is no charge for participation in the group, which is open to Gray County residents of either gender who served the U.S. armed forces in the Vietnam War or any subsequent military conflict, Garcia said. Residents of surrounding counties are also invited to join the Pampa veterans support group, or one in Amarillo, he said.

The cost of the support group program is being borne by the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs.

"The purpose of the group is to help these individuals deal with their everyday problems and deal with maybe their traumatic experiences — things they've maybe never confronted," Garcia said.

Garcia noted that the incidence of alcoholism and illicit drug addiction is higher among the military veterans of the Vietnam War and subsequent military conflicts than in the general population of Americans.

In addition, veterans of those military conflicts sometimes suffer from nightmares, flashbacks to the war, feelings of isolation, anger, and depression stemming from their period of military service, Garcia said. The unpopularity of the Vietnam War among many Americans and the physical injuries suffered by many of the veterans aggravate the psychological problems, he noted.

Military veterans of the Vietnam War and subsequent American military conflicts range in age from the late 20s to the mid-40s. The American military conflicts in which they fought were the Vietnam War (August 1964 to May 1975) and the conflicts in Lebanon (August 1982 through February 1984), Grenada (October through November 1983), Panama (December 1989 through January 1990), and the Persian Gulf region. The military conflict in the Persian Gulf region began August 1990 and has not officially ended, Garcia noted.

A dozen people, including a few social service professionals and about 10 Gray County veterans, attended a Nov. 5 meeting in Pampa to organize a support group for such veterans. The meeting was held at the Faith Christian Center.

The support group is being formed in response to a request from several Gray County veterans of the Vietnam War and subsequent military conflicts who contacted the Veterans Readjustment Counseling Service in Amarillo, Garcia noted. Similar support groups have been established around the nation, including three in Amarillo, he said.

More information about the military veterans support group can be obtained by calling Pedro Garcia Jr. or Frank Reyes at the Veterans Readjustment Counseling Service at (806) 376-2127.

Candidate contests election tabulations

By BETH MILLER
News Editor

The losing candidate in the Gray County Precinct 1 constable race on Nov. 3 has filed a petition for a recount, which will be conducted on Wednesday, said County Clerk Wanda Carter.

Jerry Williams, who has served as constable of Precinct 1 during the past 16 years, filed his petition with the county clerk following the canvassing of the votes last week.

Vote totals show Williams was defeated by James H. Lewis by a 1,796-1,178 vote.

In his petition, Williams states that he believes the voting machine "incorrectly counted the ballots or switched the totals of the two candidates."

He said the recount should be conducted in voting Precincts 1, 6, 14, 15 and early voting for the general election.

Williams submitted a $125 check for costs associated with the recount. If the outcome of the election is changed by the recount, the entire deposit will be returned to Williams. However, if the outcome does not change, the costs are paid from the deposit. If the deposit is insufficient to cover costs, the petitioner is responsible for additional costs. Any part of the deposit left over, after costs, is returned to the petitioner.

Five people will serve as the counters with Kaye Roberts of County Judge Carl Kennedy's office serving as the recount chairman of the recount committee.

Susan Tripplehorn, Republican Party chair and John Warner, Democrat County chair will each choose two people to serve on the recount committee, according to Kennedy, who is the supervisor of the recount by law. If Kennedy is unable to attend the recount, Carter will take his place as the supervisor.

Anyone who worked or assisted with the voting or vote tabulation is ineligible to help. By law, both candidates can attend the recount and may have no more than two other people of their choice to observe the recount.

Only people specifically permitted to attend by law can be present in the room where the recount is taking place or in a hallway within 30 feet of the entrance. The county clerk, who serves as the election administrator, is permitted to attend.

Kennedy set the recount for 9 a.m. Wednesday in the courtroom on the second floor of the Gray County Courthouse.

Carter estimated that the recount would be concluded by mid-afternoon Wednesday.

Brown lawsuit discussion on agenda for Monday commissioners meeting

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

Gray County Commissioners Court on Monday are expected to consider approving payment of attorneys fees in the lawsuit filed against the county by former county sheriff's deputy Lynn Brown.

The commissioners meeting will begin at 9 a.m. in the second floor courtroom of the Gray County Courthouse.

Gray County is being represented in the Brown lawsuit by attorney Dan Burrows of Amarillo.

Gray County Judge Carl Kennedy told commissioners at their Nov. 9 meeting that attorneys fees in October incurred by Gray County stemming from a lawsuit by Brown totaled $2,485.

The lawsuit, filed in federal court on Oct. 26, alleges racial discrimination and sexual favoritism by the Gray County Sheriff's Office.

Brown was the first and only black sheriff's deputy in the county's history.

Gray County previously spent $42,495 toward attorneys fees in a racial discrimination lawsuit that Brown filed against it two years ago. U.S. District Judge Mary Lou Robinson in September awarded Brown $200 in damages, plus costs and some interest, in that court case.

Also at the meeting on Monday, Gray County Commissioners are expected to:

- Receive a report on Performance Award funding for 1993.

- Consider status of the Lake McClellan development project.

- Discuss medical and life insurance for county employees.

- Discuss a letter from County Auditor A. C. Malone regarding travel expenses.

- Pay salaries and bills as approved by Malone.

- Consider requested fund transfers within the county budget.

- Receive the county treasurer's report.

- Consider a request from County Clerk Wanda Carter for a waiver on vacation policy.

- Consider a request from Gray County Veterans Service Officer John Tripplehorn for payment of natural gas bills.

Weinberger pushing for case dismissal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Caspar Weinberger's lawyers are seeking dismissal of an Oct. 30 Iran-Contra indictment against the former defense secretary. Prosecutors, who were forced to abandon an obstruction charge in June, can't now replace it with a false statement allegation, Weinberger's attorneys say.

The one-count indictment — which raised new questions about President Bush's role in the Iran-Contra affair — accuses Weinberger of making false statements to congressional investigators in June 1987 about whether he took notes of key meetings on the arms-for-hostages deals with Iran.

The false statement count replaced an obstruction of Congress charge in a five-count indictment brought against Weinberger last June 16. Prosecutors had to abandon the obstruction charge because of a court ruling in another Iran-Contra case, that of ex-national security adviser John Poindexter.

The false statement charge is "a totally different statutory offense" from obstruction and cannot stand, Weinberger's lawyers said in papers filed Friday in U.S. District Court.

Federal law allows prosecutors in certain cases to replace a defective indictment with a new one, even though the five-year statute of limitations — the time limit for filing most federal criminal charges — has passed.

But "we have found no reported federal decisions" that permit "filing a new indictment for a time-barred offense, separate and distinct from the one charge in the original indictment," Weinberger's lawyers said.

In the case, the statute of limitations was June 17, five years after Weinberger allegedly lied to Congress.

The Oct. 30 indictment — based on Weinberger's notes of meetings on the Reagan White House's Iran arms sales — says Bush attended a Jan. 7, 1986 meeting on the Iran initiative. Weinberger's notes say that President Reagan and his aides discussed trading five American hostages for 4,000 TOW anti-tank missiles, according to the indictment. Bush has always maintained that he didn't realize the United States was trading arms for hostages until mid-December 1986.

Fujimori indicates coup attempt more widespread than previously thought

By KEVIN GALVIN
Associated Press Writer

LIMA, Peru (AP) — More than 20 active and retired army officers were under arrest Saturday for allegedly plotting to assassinate President Alberto Fujimori in a failed coup.

New details of Friday's attempted coup given by Fujimori indicated the alleged conspiracy may have been broader than previously thought. Critics of Fujimori's one-man rule, however, questioned whether the arrests weren't a publicity stunt staged by the president.

The government announced the attempted coup after Fujimori took steps to assume greater control of the military. But the retired commanders charged with leading the revolt denied they tried to overthrow the government.

The government sought to portray the attempted coup as a threat to elections scheduled for Nov. 22 to replace Congress, which Fujimori shut down in April, saying corruption was blocking his war on drugs and terrorism.

The elections were called under international pressure, however, and are being boycotted by Peru's two largest political parties, which contend the assembly would only serve to legitimize Fujimori's dictatorial powers.

Speaking on a radio talk show Saturday, Fujimori identified more than a dozen officers and civilians allegedly involved in the plot and said three army generals were under house arrest.

The National Intelligence Service followed the conspirators' every step, Fujimori said, and were waiting for them to act Friday while he slipped out of the presidential palace to a safehouse.

"We let this sinister plan unfold just as this little group of seditious military men had planned ... in order to discover all of its repercussions," Fujimori said.

Gustavo Gorriti, a Peruvian journalist and a senior associate at the Carnegie Endowment for Peace, called Fujimori's detailed account of the plot "plain propaganda."

"I wonder to what extent ... this is a way of indicting and accusing potential leaders in the armed forces and sending a message of intimidation to the rest," Gorriti said in a telephone interview from Washington, where the foundation is based.

Critics' suspicions were raised Friday when the government identified only three retired generals and one active commander. No armored units moved to support the plotters, and the number of conspirators seemed small.

But the expanded list of conspirators Fujimori disclosed on Saturday included the second in command of security in the presidential palace, Maj. Hugo Ormeno, who allegedly was assigned to kill Fujimori about 3 a.m. Friday.

According to Fujimori's account, Ormeno and five confidants tried to lead 35 soldiers out of their barracks to replace the palace guard. But a colonel, apparently tipped off to the plan, prevented them from bringing the troops, he said.

A sergeant driving Ormeno's jeep abandoned the mission when he learned why the group was heading to the palace, armed with grenades, a lock pick and machine guns, Fujimori said.

He said Ormeno and his accomplices were detained about three blocks from the palace by a blockade of armored personnel carriers.

Meanwhile, the president said, other conspirators were gathering at a factory in the Miraflores district, where they allegedly planned to capture the head of the military, Joint Military Command Gen. Nicolas de Bari Hernoza.

They called off their mission after acting Gen. Manuel Obando telephoned the factory to tell them the plot had been foiled, Fujimori said. Security forces later detained Obando in his home.

Retired Gen. Jaime Salinas Sedo was arrested in a shootout as he fled the factory, and soldiers found a briefcase in his car outlining the plan to kill Fujimori and pronouncements that were to justify the coup, the president said.

Most of the retired generals involved in the plot had been respected commanders sent to early retirement since Fujimori took office in July 1990. Two of the three retired generals who allegedly led the plot held politically important military posts during the administration of former President Alan Garcia, now one of Fujimori's leading political enemies living in exile in Colombia.

Also arrested was Gen. Jose Valdivia, known as a trusted Fujimori associate.

Fujimori said Valdivia failed to appear for an emergency meeting of the Joint Military Command before dawn Friday, raising the suspicions of other commanders. He said he was sure there was an explanation for Valdivia's absence and that he still trusted the general.

Jury recommends death penalty for Wood

DALLAS (AP) — A jury recommended the death penalty Saturday for convicted capital murderer David Leonard Wood, who was accused of killing six women and girls and burying them in shallow graves in the West Texas desert.

Wood, 35, was convicted Tuesday, and jurors on Friday were asked to sentence the El Paso native to life in prison or death by injection.

The six-man, six-woman jury deliberated for 3 1/2 hours Friday before being sequestered for the night. On Saturday, jurors deliberated for another hour before returning with a sentence.

Wood stared straight ahead and had no reaction when the jury's recommendation was read. Formal sentencing by state District Judge Peter Peca Jr. is expected to take place in El Paso.

Prosecutor Debra Morgan called the jurors' decision "fair and just." Defense attorneys refused to comment. Any death sentence in Texas is automatically appealed.

Jurors also refused comment. The case had been moved to Dallas from the El Paso area because of extensive news coverage.

Wood's family on Friday had asked jurors to spare him from lethal injection. They related to jurors a tale of a frustrated youngster who did poorly in school and was twice placed in foster homes.

Four witnesses, including Wood's father and sister, testified on his behalf Friday.

Leo Wood, his father, said David Wood's childhood behavior was like "every other child, except for school. He couldn't sit still."

He added that discipline and medical attempts to control David Wood's hyperactivity failed.

Debbie Galvan, David Wood's older sister, told jurors that her brother "is somebody who can be loved."

Prosecutors are using for the first time a new serial killer provision under the state's capital murder law. Under the provision, a jury has only to find a defendant guilty of the slaying of the first victim listed in the indictment and at least one other of the victims to receive the death penalty.

Water

Overpumping of ground water is now lowering water tables to critical levels in parts of the Middle East, China, India, Mexico, Thailand, north Africa and the western United States, the book says.

Eleven African nations are among the 26 nations that now fall below the per-person level of 725 gallons a day, Ms. Postel said. South Africa, Sudan, Morocco and Malawi will join the list by the end of the 90s.

The book points to several conservation methods that have worked, including irrigation systems used in Texas that surge water down the furrows, laws that require more efficient plumbing fixtures, removal of government subsidies on inefficient crops, and the opening of water markets so farmers can profitably divert water to cities.

Ms. Postel said methods are available for farmers to cut water demand by 10-50 percent, industries by 40-90 percent and cities by about a third with "no sacrifice of economic output or quality of life."

Meeting water needs in some parts of the world will not be possible without reductions in population growth, Ms. Postel said. The populations of some of the water-scarce countries in Africa will double within 30 years, she said.

Vehicle roll over injures 2

Two Perryton residents involved in a one-car roll over were transported to Coronado Hospital following the 2:45 p.m. accident Saturday, said Trooper Jim Bishop with the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Kathy Green, the driver, and Chris Stroup, 12, were transported to the hospital by Miami volunteer ambulance service.

They were treated and released, a hospital spokesman said.

Also in the car was a 10-year-old male who did not report injuries.

The 1979 Mercury was traveling south on Texas 70, Bishop said. The driver advised she had looked over to the back seat and was distracted.

"She lost control and the car rolled one and a half times," said Dana Miller, chief deputy of Roberts County Sheriff's Office, who assisted with the accident.

The vehicle rolled off the road in a bar ditch, approximately 25 miles north of Pampa on Texas 70, Bishop said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveeting commandment.

Opinion

Coming weeks will be key for Clinton

Without question, there were three guaranteed losers going into Tuesday's general election: The two candidates who didn't win ... and the American public.

As it was, Gov. Bill Clinton's sweeping electoral victory will undoubtedly bring change to the way Washington works, and some of the changes may even be for the better. But the presidential returns hardly qualify as an endorsement of bigger government, which is what Dollar Bill — as dubbed by Chicago Tribune columnist Mike Royko — has all but promised.

Clinton's supporters will be busy in the next few weeks defining this "mandate." If they try to convince us that the election result was a clear vote for more spending, higher taxes and, from a free enterprise standpoint, a renewed regulatory war, we would all do well to keep in mind a few relevant facts about the Clinton victory.

Principally, statistics do not lie: The presidential vote was not so much a vote for Clinton as it was a vote against the incumbent. While Clinton dominated the electoral vote, he won a mere 43 percent of the popular vote. Forty-three percent. That means that 57 percent of Americans who voted wanted someone other than Bill Clinton — either President Bush or Ross Perot — to occupy the White House.

For their part, Curry County voters were content with Bush, at least stacked against the other candidates. Those numbers also were overwhelming: 7,630 votes were cast for Bush, 3,699 for Clinton and 2,055 for Perot.

For some perspective into the national percentages, consider that Michael Dukakis won 46 percent of the vote in 1988, even while losing in an electoral landslide to Bush. Even though turnout was higher this year than in 1988, Clinton only managed to win about 2 million more votes than Dukakis.

There is more. If Clinton does have a mandate, it is not the traditional Democratic economic platform of tax, spend and regulate. Clinton never tired of saying his was leading a movement of "new Democrats" who, while rejecting "trickle-down" economics, also strongly rejected the "tax and spend" ways of old.

Unlike previous Democratic nominees, Clinton supports the death penalty and at least sounds sympathetic to Americans concerned about crime. He preached economic growth and repeatedly stressed personal responsibility in contrast to dependence on welfare.

Even on health care, he focused far more on "controlling costs" than on subsidizing an expansion of care through higher taxes. In short, he did not campaign as a conventional liberal.

Still, it remains to be seen if Clinton will follow through on his plans to be a new-thinking Democrat. The next few weeks, when he selects the men and women to run his administration, will be the key.

If Clinton turns liberal — veering away from the few conservative-sounding themes of his campaign — he may just find himself in much the same political and economic trouble that consumed the last Democrat to occupy the Oval Office.

Our liberal inheritance

Led by political hustlers, civil rights organizations, poverty pimps and the ACLU, the nation's cities have degenerated into a state of Beirutness. And what's worse is that we have lost the will to protect ourselves from society's barbarians and parasites. "There you go again, Williams," you say, "blaming victims and letting Ronald Reagan off the hook." Let's look at it.

Washington, D.C., is the nation's murder capital. But it's leading the nation in a new scam where punks stick a gun into your ribs and steal your car. In one car-jacking incident, a mother got caught in her door and was deliberately dragged to her death. That's the bad news. But as if a higher being were letting us know there is some justice, a car jacker tried to do his number on an FBI agent and was shot to death and his accomplices arrested.

New York's barbarism is known worldwide and is getting worse. At Brooklyn's Jefferson High School, a 15-year-old gunned down two other students. Had the principal installed metal detection devices, he might have been dragged into court by the ACLU concerned with "unreasonable search." "Williams," you say, "don't be ridiculous; nobody supports criminals!" How about this? A New York Transit Authority guard shot and crippled a man who was in the act of mugging an old man. The mugger charged the guard with excessive use of force and sued the Authority. A New York court of appeals upheld a $4 million award to the mugger. If you think New York's legal scholars have a monopoly on idiocy, think again. In San Francisco, a cab driver ran down and pinned a mugger against a wall with his cab. In doing so, he broke the mugger's legs. The police arrested the cabbie; he was sued by the mugger, and a judge ordered the cabbie to pay the mugger $40,000.

It's simple. The police, courts and prisons cannot and will not protect law-abiding citizens from the barbarians. We must protect ourselves. You say, "Williams, are you advocating an armed citizenry? Shouldn't we do as the liberals say — fight crime by banning guns or at least have a federally mandated 15- or 30- day waiting period?" I say no to both.

Four years ago, Florida passed an amendment whereby no law-abiding citizen could be denied a concealed weapon permit. According to Major Reginald Shinn, of the American Pistol and Rifle Association, during those four years, while crime flourished in Florida, not one crime has been committed by a licensee.

During the Los Angeles riots, the police deliberately turned sections of the city over to barbarians. California law permits you to buy a gun; however, there's a 15-day waiting period before you can take delivery. Authorities refuse to protect citizens and then deny them the means to protect themselves. Then, adding insult to injury, Mayor Bradley suspended the sale of ammunition in case you had a gun and ran out of bullets. Once the police decided to do their job, they began confiscating weapons of citizens defending their property. L.A. criminals weren't bothered by the waiting period and ammunition law; they just looted gun stores.

We can thank liberals for the state of barbarism that exists in most of our large cities. What are the solutions? Law-abiding citizens must create uncertainty in the criminal mind. We must make a car jacker wonder whether the owner has a gun easily accessible. "Williams," you say, "are you advocating unlawfully carrying a concealed weapon?" Figure it out. Which do you look and feel best doing: explaining to a magistrate why you're carrying a concealed weapon without a permit or lying in a casket?

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Nov. 15, the 320th day of 1992. There are 46 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 15, 1777, the Continental Congress approved the Articles of Confederation, a precursor to the Constitution of the United States.

On this date:

In 1806, explorer Zebulon Pike sighted the mountaintop that later became known as Pikes Peak.

In 1889, Brazil's monarchy was overthrown. A republic was proclaimed following the ouster of Dom Pedro II, the country's second and last emperor.

In 1926, the National Broadcasting Company made its on-air debut with a radio network of 24 stations.

In 1939, President Franklin D. Roosevelt laid the cornerstone of the Jefferson Memorial in Washington, D.C.

In 1940, the first 75,000 men were called to armed forces duty under peacetime conscription.

In 1948, William Lyon Mackenzie King retired as prime minister of Canada after 21 years; he was succeeded by Louis St. Laurent.

"The cable company would like to apologize for any unseemly charges on their services in the past. ... They're inviting us to subscribe to the Apology Channel."

The world's largest crazy house

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — The universities of Georgia and Florida, both fine ones, need to make an immediate decision to move their annual football game out of this city's Gator Bowl before somebody gets killed.

Jacksonville can't handle this thing anymore. No city could. Putting an equal number of Florida and Georgia fans, who absolutely hate each other, together in an 82,000 seat stadium just invites disaster.

This isn't the World's Largest Cocktail Party anymore. It's the World's Largest Crazy House.

Get the picture. There are approximately 40,000 Georgia fans and a like number of Florida fans in the Gator Bowl on a Halloween Saturday night, and in many sections fans from the two schools sit near to each other. The taunting never stops. Some of it is in fun, but most of it is not. This rivalry has become so intense it's primed for a riot.

There already have been brawls. I remember a year when Florida students stormed the field after the game and tried to destroy it. A Georgia student also rushed onto the field and tackled a couple of shirtless guys carrying a part of one of the goal posts.

Five or six Florida students subsequently beat the kid from Georgia to a pulp.

It was just as ugly and just as mean here last Saturday night, maybe ever more so than in early years.

Lewis Grizzard

Kick off the football game at 3:30 and you've left a lot of drinking time. Neither teams fans wanted to lose because they knew how the winner always rubs it in.

I went to Georgia and I'm biased, but I witnessed behavior Saturday night in the Gator Bowl I'd never seen at a college football game before.

When it was over, and Florida had won 26-24, a few of the Florida players strutted arrogantly over in front of thousands of Georgia fans and began to make disgusting, obscene gestures.

One Gator pointed at the Georgia fans and gave a pelvic thrust.

Another Florida player grabbed his crotch in front of the Georgians, who hurled volleys of ice and cups.

The players left, but they hadn't had enough. They came back to rub it in further. A man

I presume to be a Florida coach finally had the decency to shove the players away.

I was frightened walking out of the Gator Bowl Saturday night. Florida fans barked directly into the faces of Georgia fans.

Georgia fans retaliated with explicit instructions what the Gator fans could do with their victory.

It was scary. And to think people used to wear coats and ties to college football games and shook hands and offered congratulations or condolences to one another at game's end.

I stood in front of my car with a group of fellow Georgia fans for an hour after the game. We were insulted by passing motorists or Gators strolling by about every two minutes.

It's out of hand. It's out of control. It's no longer fun to go to a Georgia-Florida game at the Gator Bowl.

Orlando wants the game, but Georgia doesn't want to play the Gators any deeper in Florida.

The best idea is to move the series to a home-and-home arrangement. The two schools must do that now.

At least the visiting team would be able to get only a small amount of tickets, so there wouldn't be this 40,000 versus 40,000 situation.

In other countries soccer fans riot and kill one another. Georgia-Florida in the Gator Bowl isn't that yet, but it's heading that way.

Modern values erode heroes of the past

Somewhere in this United States, somebody is preparing to trash Benjamin Franklin.

Ben Franklin? Printer, statesman, diplomat, author Ben Franklin? The kindly, corpulent old gentleman who invented bifocals, flew kites and preached about saving pennies? The universal man of letters who helped write the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution? That Ben Franklin?

That's the one. He's got a big birthday coming up in the year 2006. Number 300, to be exact. And as sure as I am pounding this keyboard, some revisionist historian is in the early stages of planning a literary assault on Big Ben's character.

The fledgling author will prow through the archives in search of scandal and scuttlebutt and publish a tome bearing a title something like "The Franklin Fallacy." It will surely dwell on Franklin's libido and his illegitimate son, and one chapter at least will be devoted to his efforts to bribe the British into granting land to himself and some American friends.

It's a new American industry, invented by the Politically Correct crowd. You take an icon, check to see when a birthday or the anniversary of a big event the icon is associated with is coming up, and you run the icon through the ideological filters of the present time. "Presentism," the traditional historians call it — judging the past by the standards of today.

Isn't that delicious? The Politically Correct crowd, the people who invented all those "isms" like "heightism" and "speciesism" and "scentism" now have an "ism" to call their own. They engage in the scurvy practice of "presentism."

Take Christopher Columbus, for example. When the 500th anniversary of his inaugural voyage rolled around this year, the PC crowd was waiting to turn the wayfarer weaver's son into a monster. He was personally responsible for the deaths of as many as 30 million indigenous people, they said. He was liable for the deaths of another 30 million Africans who perished in slave galleys. He imposed a militaristic European value system on peace-loving, environmentally up-right Native Americans.

Now the revisionists are doing a number on Thomas Jefferson, whose 250th birthday rolls around in April. For all his talk about people being born equal, the critics say, and despite his anti-slavery writings, he failed to free his own slaves. He probably sired children by a slave mistress, they say, and he firmly believed that the races could never be successfully integrated and that blacks should be emancipated and resettled as a discrete community.

This is a presentism run amuck. As historian Douglas Wilson puts it in the November issue of The Atlantic Monthly, the more appropriate question is this: "How did a man who was born into a slaveholding society, whose family and admired friends owned slaves, who inherited a fortune that was dependent on slaves and slave labor, decide at an early age that slavery was morally wrong and forcefully declare that it ought to be abolished?"

I do not know how Jefferson rationalized the reprehensible practice of holding slaves. Indeed, I cannot know because I have no way of comprehending the mores that impelled him or the motives that drove him. Was it a matter of crude economics? Was he convinced he was playing a protector's role?

What I do know is that he stood foursquare against tyranny. What I do know is that he believed in the sovereignty of people, not governments. What I do know is that he championed free speech and that without his genius, we might not even be blessed with the privilege of freely discussing anything of political nature today, including Jefferson's failings.

What I do know is that Thomas Jefferson is as true a hero as this nation has ever had, and that he will be revered as such when his critics are particles of dust, floating in the air with the detritus of the Mt. Pinatubos of tomorrow.

Presentist dust.

Letters to the editor

Think about education

To the editor:
There is a situation arising that I think your readers should be aware of. We Americans tend to take a great many things for granted. We go through life without ever realizing how fortunate we are. Privileges are thought of as rights. Higher education is one of those aspects of life that we tend to take for granted, but here in the state of Texas we may soon be reminded of the value of a college education.

When the state Legislature meets in general session on January 1, 1993, they will be considering cutting the budget for higher education. Originally, a 10 percent budget cut was expected, but more recent estimates show a figure closer to 15 percent. A 10 percent budget cut would severely hurt WTSU and a 15 percent cut would be devastating.

So far, there is no analysis of the effects of a 15 percent cut, but the impact of a 10 percent cut is disturbing enough. WTSU would lose 19 faculty members, 35 staff members, and all athletic programs would be discontinued. Enrollment would be capped at 5,400. One thousand students would be given pink slips. Less students mean less revenue from service fees, less revenue from residence halls, and less revenue from the dining hall.

Those estimates are for West Texas State University. Places like Frank Phillips College and Clarendon College could be even harder hit. In fact, some estimates show that Clarendon College would have to shut down completely.

The truly sad aspect of this impending situation lies in the fact that the proposed budget cuts are due, not to some disaster in state finances, but rather they are due simply to negligence. For years, Texas has been operating with an antiquated tax revenue system and the legislators are into heavy deficit spending — about $5 billion heavy.

Though Texas ranks high in quality of higher education, Texas spends less per student on higher education than 43 other states. In the past eight years, public safety and corrections has received 128 percent increase in funding, and health and human resources has received a 101 percent increase, while higher education has received only a 2 percent increase. Of these areas, only in higher education does the taxpayer see a return on their investment. Through higher education, society obtains a better-educated work force and university research pumps over $8 million into the Texas economy every year. Prisons, on the other hand, are nothing but a constant drain on state revenues. The national average operating cost for maintaining a prison inmate for one year is $25,000. That is more than the cost of two semesters at Harvard, Yale, or SMU.

Some of that money that the state legislators are squandering comes from Panhandle residents. Parents and grandparents of college students are having more of their tax money spent to take care of convicts than educating their children and grandchildren.

There is not a great deal that can be done overnight to remedy the situation. The measures needed will be complex and lengthy, but there are some steps that can be taken. A group composed of students and faculty has formed at WTSU, as well as all other TAMUS schools, to help insure that those steps are taken. The group is called the Speaker's Bureau.

The main objective of the Speaker's Bureau is to inform the public of the importance of higher education to the Texas economy and to the future of our state. The Speaker's Bureau also strives to inform the public of the impending cuts in funding for higher education, the consequences of those cuts, and how voters can minimize reductions in funding of higher education by contacting their legislators. The Speaker's Bureau will be speaking to community groups and organizations, free of charge, and contacting legislators. Persons interested in the upcoming legislative decisions concerning higher education and persons interested in having the Speaker's Bureau speak to their group or organization can contact the Speaker's Bureau at:

Where's the Golden Rule?

To the editor:
I am writing this letter to inform Pampa citizens of what kind of witless dolts are roaming the streets during the wee hours as Pampa slumbers. Early last Monday morning, Nov. 9, 1992, a thoughtless person, (or persons), bashed in the back window of my 1984 Chevy Chevette. There were others in my neighborhood and in other parts of Pampa to whom this also happened to Monday morning.

I would just like to say to person(s) who did this to our cars, not that I think that a person who would bash the windows out of our cars would actually care enough about the world to read the Sunday paper, but ... "You are very inconsiderate to damage another person's property."

"You may have been angry at me (although I have done nothing to make anyone angry enough to do this), or, most likely, you were just out running around at 1 a.m. and were looking for some fun. If the former was true, I'm sorry for whatever "I did," but you still had no right to do what you did.

If the latter is the case, is vandalizing someone else's property your idea of fun? It's not mine. I can understand the simple act of shoe-polishing a car's windows; they can be easily washed off. I cannot understand bashing someone's windows; they cannot easily be replaced. I contacted two different glass companies and the estimates were $191 and $214. If you and your friends bashed my window and the other four cars' windows that I was told about, that would have been about $1,000 worth of fun Monday morning. Could you not channel your energies in other directions?"

I really do not think that any citizens saw what happened, considering it happened when most of them were asleep. But if you do know who shattered my car window and the other citizens' car windows, the right and moral thing to do would be to contact the police at 669-1177. This type of vandalism costs everyone in Pampa through increased insurance premiums.

Has the Golden Rule lost all meaning?

Tripplehorn promoting self

To the editor:
I suppose people in Gray County should be thankful that John Tripplehorn has provided us with his resume and his thoughts as to the training our peace officers should have.

Evidently he is proud of his accomplishments while attending law officers school as he should be. But his "letter" appears to be the beginning of his run for office again. I wonder if he realizes that our sheriff-elect, Randy Stubblefield, hasn't even been sworn in yet. Never too early to start a campaign, huh.

I wonder, too, if any other sheriff's candidate might also be able to use our "letters" page to promote themselves? Randy Stubblefield and others could have saved themselves a lot of moolah — $5 if afforded the same opportunity.

I might even consider "running" for office if I can use this page to promote myself. But many of us "letter" writers know that writing doesn't guarantee publication. Don't we? It just depends. It just depends. Mainly, I believe who. Surely, our editor and publisher don't believe all of us are stupid. Or do they? Oh, before someone picks up a "hot" pen to answer — I'm not complaining for myself. Even though many-many of my "letters" have not been published. Hard for some of you to believe, I'll betcha.

Anyhow, I'll close this one and let you know that I got tangled up in my bed covers and fell out of bed. It might explain some of my grouchiness.

Equality, fairness and some consideration for all. Is that too much to ask?

FOOD FOR THOUGHT By Danny Bainum

Make your own butterscotch sauce in the microwave. Mix together 1/2 cup heavy cream, 1/2 cup brown sugar and 1 Tbs. corn syrup in a 4-cup measure. Zap 6 minutes until the sauce is just golden enough.

Super snack for after-school: a flour tortilla sprinkled with low-fat cheese and microwaved for about 45 seconds. Top with salsa and enjoy. It's so good, they'll never notice it's healthful, too.

Yes, you can make eggs Benedict for a crowd without having to delicately poach a zillion eggs at the last minute! The trick: undercook the eggs slightly and refrigerate in a bowl of water. Just before serving, simmer just a minute in almost-boiling water.

Instead of mashed potatoes, try polenta, the Italian cornmeal "mush." Enrich with a little heavy cream and a purée of herbs and oil.

What's new in the kitchen? Chefs are utilizing unlikely cooking "tools" — like blowtorches to caramelize sugar toppings, a hair dryer to dry duck skin and chain saws to make ice sculptures.

TAX FAX (AND OPINIONS)
E. E. Simmons, CPA
1313 N. Hobart, Rm. 117, Pampa

Almost four-score (that's 80) years ago, long before most of you who may be reading this were born, and even when this writer who is older than most anybody, while around in the Texas Panhandle but still not old enough to cast a ballot, the people of these United States of America were sold a proposition that permitted the Federal government to levy taxes on incomes. The pitch that the man would be so low and the assumptions so high that only the very rich, who everybody envied and hated anyhow, would pay any taxes, and so the seeds of destruction were sown that have been instrumental in destroying many once powerful and prosperous nations throughout history. By the Grace and Mercy of God this nation has survived thus far and evidently just about everyone has become rich, or at least rich enough to be taxed.

So, it is the opinion of this writer that the constitutional amendment that legalized the income tax is by far the very thing that has happened to these United States, including all of the natural disasters of earthquakes, floods, tornadoes, hail, drought and whatever. We might even include man-made disasters such as riots and wars, as well as those supposed disasters such as the destruction of the mall deer, the spotted owl, the hole in the ozone and the creation of acid rain.

But, be that as it may or may not be, we've got the thing and we've got to live with it, and while we can certainly hope that our next vote for a "cheese" will be for the better, we don't seem to be hearing much talk about lower taxes; the signals seem to point the other way, in fact. So what do we do?

The best suggestion that this writer knows how to make, based on more than 50 years of experience in tucking the Internal Revenue Service, is to COMPLY WITH THE LAW! Don't pass up anything that can be done LEGALLY to minimize your taxes, but don't be misled by the idea that you can get by with murder if you mop up the blood and bury the body deep enough! The IRS has some very sophisticated equipment and their people are not dumries by any means. Besides which the fellow who helped you bury the body will tell it all if he is questioned and thinks it will gain him a few brownie points with the IRS.

So, get your records in shape. Get help for whatever you need. Report that income. Don't mislead anybody as "independent contractor" when the relationship is actually that of a common law employee. (The IRS is presently on the prowl for this kind of thing).

The word is: "comply and relax."

Minding your own Business

Growing jobs

During the last weeks of the recent presidential election campaign there was a great deal of focus on the economy and creating jobs. All three front running candidates spoke of the actions they would take, if elected. "Yes, sir, we'll pass a bill, create a program, put together a plan, get our best people right on it, etc.," they said.

Unfortunately, the very last thing our nation needs is more bills, programs, plans and bureaucrats meddling in the free enterprise system. Left alone, American businesses can tackle the job of rebuilding the economy very well, thank you. The key words here are "left alone."

I urge you to demand that our newly elected representatives — from the president on down — keep the government out of the way of our entrepreneurs. You see, governments don't create jobs. Neither do government programs, tax give-aways, economic plans, legislative bills, regulations or job training. All productive, economy building, basic income jobs come from private sector businesses. Most of them come from small businesses. Perhaps, that is because most businesses are small businesses. Perhaps, that is because most businesses are small businesses or maybe it's because all businesses start small.

From small beginnings
Just like tall oaks from little acorns, big businesses grow from small businesses. Small businesses sprout from the seeds of ideas formed in the minds of bright men and women who desire profit, recognition and fulfillment. They nurture those seeds with sacrifice and long hours of hard work. They stimulate the roots with small amounts of capital and often fertilize the growth with debt.

With luck, they will survive and grow into stately giants of industry. It is likely that some of tomorrow's Fortune 500 leaders, are small businesses today.

Recent "acorns to oaks" would include Apple Computer Inc., Wal-Mart Stores Inc., Electronic Data Systems Inc., Micro-Soft Computer and Nike Shoes. In fact, there are several "little acorn" success stories worth sharing.

Success stories
The mighty IBM computer company had humble beginnings as a purveyor of meat scales and time clocks. This "little acorn" grew and changed to meet changing customer needs. IBM, is now known best for its state-of-the-art computers. The company employs more than 400,000 men and women throughout the world.

Apple Computer Inc., was founded in 1976, in a garage. It wasn't even the founder's garage. The garage belonged to the parents of Steve Jobs, who along with Steve Wozniak, built the company into a "tall oak" in the computer industry.

Harland Sanders, who founded Kentucky Fried Chicken, started his company out of his car. In the early days when sales were slow, Sanders, also slept in his car. Now the chain has more than 7,000 stores worldwide and is recognized as a "mighty oak" in the fast food industry.

J.C. Hall was an even smaller start. Hall started Hallmark Card Co. out of a shoe box. The company now has worldwide sales of nearly $3 billion. Recently, Hallmark introduced a series of cards, titled the "Shoe Box" series, in honor of their founder's humble beginnings.

Multi-level marketer Amway Inc., chocolate candy king Hershey Foods and tennis runner maker Nike Shoes, all started as home-based businesses. Electronics manufacturer, Hewlett-Packard, music industry giant, A&M Records, and La-Z-Boy Chair Co., were all founded in garages. These were small, seedlike companies with growth aspirations.

Now I hope you can see why I believe that our free enterprise system can create jobs. It works. Left alone, free from excessive government meddling, entrepreneurs will innovate, create and perpetuate the American dream.

Let's put entrepreneurs in charge of growing new jobs. Let's put the government in charge of ... uh ... on second thought, let's put entrepreneurs in charge of the government too!

Canadian shuts down Highland Park to advance in playoffs

Wildcats' defense limits Hornets to 41 yards total offense

By DAN FROMM
Sports Writer

About halfway into the first quarter in Friday night's bi-district championship between Highland Park and Canadian, the Wildcat defense was silencing Highland Park's offensive attack.

The Wildcats repeatedly pounded quarterback Kevin McGill and, on third and long, the Hornets opted for a quick kick that sent the ball into Canadian territory.

While the kick was a good one and it took Canadian by surprise, it sent a message to the Wildcat defense. Highland Park could be stopped — it read loud and clear. The game was scoreless and there was still more than 40 minutes left to play, but on third down, Canadian forced the Hornet offense to surrender this particular battle.

"Our defense has been tremendous all year," said Wildcat coach Paul Wilson after a game in which they held Highland Park to just 41 yards of total offense and seven first downs.

The Wildcat offense, on the other hand, has been less than overpowering this season... until Friday night...

that is, until the end of the second quarter Friday night. That's when quarterback Kevin Vanwinkle took over. With 2:01 remaining in the first half, he connected with Chris Lee on a pass from the 14-yard line. Martin Reyes' kick put Canadian ahead 7-0.

Highland Park then started with the ball on their own 32 and McGill was sacked on first down for a loss of five. On second and 15, McGill was sacked for an 11-yard loss and on third down, Canadian's Jeremy Shaw intercepted a pass up the middle and returned it for a touchdown, less than one minute after their first score of the game. Reyes' kick was wide and the Wildcats led 13-0 at the half.

After the game, Wilson said, "We're a first half team, but we're sure a second half team to go with it. If we're in the ballgame late, our offense is going to give 'em hell on every play and eventually we'll break a few or get lucky."

With over 300 yards of total offense, the Wildcats didn't need much luck. Late in the third quarter, Vanwinkle connected again with Lee, who made a diving catch in the end zone. After a failed two-point attempt, Canadian led 19-0.

Lee then intercepted a pass from Justin Proffitt, who came in after an injury to McGill, and ran it back to the Highland Park 26 yard line. Vanwinkle scored several plays later on a four-yard keeper around the end with 8:47 left to play in the game. Again, the two-point attempt failed and the Wildcats led 25-0.

"Chris has done that all year," Wilson said of the senior's outstanding effort on both offense and defense. "I thought Kevin (Vanwinkle) threw the ball real well to him and he made some great catches, but he's made great catches every game."

This wasn't just "every game" though. The Wildcats had never before won a playoff game, even though they've played in four since 1986. "We had an awful lot of pressure on us tonight," Wilson said. "I was afraid that might affect us, but we stood tall and did the job." The Wildcats scored two more touchdowns before it was all said and done. J.K. Hester ran one in from three yards out with 7:09 left and Jeremy Harper busted through the middle 51 yards with 4:47 left. Two extra points by Reyes made it 39-0.

For a team that scored just 40 total points in their last three games, Canadian's balanced offensive attack was awesome. Vanwinkle completed 7 of 11 passes, while Hester, Jeremy Harper, Kevin Flowers and Steven Flowers combined for 235 yards rushing.

Wilson was more than a little surprised by the Wildcats' offensive effort, but attributed their success to "persistence and blocking... We played very physical and stayed in their tough for four quarters."

As for the defense, Wilson said, "It has been tremendous all year." In fact, in those same last three games, the Wildcats have held their opponents to just 19 points. "I really don't know what to say... the real key was our being able to pressure the quarterback and still cover all the receivers."

Wilson took a look up at the scoreboard, shook his head and added, "Shuttin' them out is hard for me to believe, 'cause I thought they had too much offensive power."

Maybe the Wildcat cheerleaders knew something Wilson didn't when they held up a banner before the game that read, "You Gotta Believe."

Groom comes up short against Chillicothe in six-man bi-district thriller

By BEAR MILLS
Special to The Pampa News

CHILLICOTHE - Friday night's six-man bi-district loss by the Groom Tigers to the Chillicothe Eagles, 37-35, was pure "H": half-back, heroics and heartbreak.

The halfback was Eagles star Anthony Jackson, who collected 262 yards on the ground and led Chillicothe to a 25-7 margin with only 1:20 left in the first half.

Heroics came from a Groom squad that battled back to take the lead by the end of the third quarter, 29-25.

Heartbreak slapped the Tigers hard late in the game as they were driving down field to clinch the victory but had the ball stripped and recovered by Chillicothe. On the next play, the Eagles' Jackson juiced for a 29 touchdown run to put Chillicothe back on top 37-29.

Refusing to give up, Groom scored again on a Corkey Hickey plunge from the five with 46 seconds left in the game. A two-point conversion kick that would have tied the game was blocked and Chillicothe ran out the clock to claim victory, 37-35.

"This one hurt," said Groom coach Terry O'Dell, choking back emotion. "The kids played their guts out. We played tough and I'm proud of my kids."

Most of the night Groom led a charmed life in the fumble department, losing the handle on the ball four times. The first three, the pigskin leaped right back into the arms of a Tiger.

Fumble number four saw porky have a change of heart.

"We were going in for the winning drive," O'Dell said of the late muff. "We lost that ball and that's the way it goes. We will be back, though."

Jackson, a darling of the Wichita Falls media because of his on-field prowess, opened the scoring with 2:36 remaining in the first quarter on a 42-yard pass reception from Horace Tabor. The PAT was fumbled and Groom ran it back for a one-point score.

A Tiger special teams player misjudged the ensuing kickoff, touching the squib before it traveled the required 15 yards. Chillicothe players swarmed, recovering it on the Groom 35 on the 80-yard six-man field.

Four plays later, Jackson struck again, high-stepping into the end zone from 15 yards out and putting the Eagles up 13-1.

Midway through the second stanza, Groom made things interesting, combining two major penalties against Chillicothe with inspired defense.

Paul McLaughlin took an Eagles punt at his own 35 and running it to the Chillicothe 28. The next play, Hickey took a misdirection hand-off and turned on the jets for a 28-yard score, making it a six-point game.

Chillicothe wasted no time responding. Jason Marsh hit Chris Perez on a third-and-12 20-yard pass for the TD.

Five plays later the Eagles had the ball again and Jackson scored on a 42-yard sprint past four defenders. Chillicothe 25-7.

Refusing to let the Eagles claim the "mo'" and with only one second remaining in the half, Groom executed a Bo Burgin-to-Hickey-to-McLaughlin-to-Burgin 6-yard reverse flea flicker for the score. Going into the half, Chillicothe led 25-15.

When Groom retook the field for the second half, "mo'" was standing on their sidelines, watching the Tigers take the lead, only to lose it late in the game.

The loss brings an end to Groom's season at 8-2, while Chillicothe, now 9-1, prepares for Silverton,

Hereford, Randall lose
Both Hereford and Randall were eliminated in the Class 4A bi-district playoffs Friday night.

Hereford lost to Plainview, 19-7, while Randall fell to Lubbock Estacado, 74-14.

Hereford claimed the District 1-4A championship this season while Randall was the runnerup. Hereford finished with an 8-3 record while Randall closes out at 7-4.

Volleyball champions
Fort Elliott and Kelton placed first and second respectively in their volleyball district this season.

Fort Elliott posted a 17-4 record and advanced as far as the area round in the playoffs, losing to Miles, 15-3, 15-7.

Seniors on the Fort Elliott team were Mary Swigart, Dendra Dukas and Misty Shugart.

Kelton defeated Lefors in a playoff for second place, then lost to Harrold, 15-1, 15-9, in the bi-district round.

Red Raiders win
FORT WORTH (AP) - Jason Clemmons threw a 43-yard touchdown pass to Lloyd Hill with a three seconds left Saturday as Texas Tech rallied for a 31-28 victory over Texas Christian in a wild game that had four touchdowns in the final 2:34.

Freshman Max Knake came off the bench to throw two fourth-quarter scoring passes to Jimmy Oliver, including one with 49 seconds to play.

But it wasn't enough for the Horned Frogs, who dropped to 2-7-1 in the Southwest Conference and 1-5 overall. Texas Tech improved to 4-6 and 3-3.

Knake gave the Frogs a 21-17 lead at the 2:34 mark with a 7-yard scoring pass to Oliver.

Then Clemmons, who had been intercepted four times, flipped an 8-yard touchdown strike to Hill with 1:06 seconds left for a 24-21 Raider lead.

But Knake still had another bullet left. He whipped a long pass downfield and Oliver took the ball away from Tech safety Tracy Saul Randall to score and send the Amon Carter Stadium crowd into bedlam.

The last word, however, belonged to Clemmons, who took Tech 80 yards in five plays with the payoff coming on the long throw to Hill behind two TCU defenders.

The Frogs upset Texas 23-14 last week for their first victory over the Longhorns in 25 years. Tech tied the game at 14-14 early in the fourth quarter when Clemmons hit Derrell Mitchell on a 66-yard touchdown pass. Mitchell faked a short route, then beat safety Tony Rand deep.

TCU led 14-7 at halftime as linebacker Brad Smith ran back a Byron Morris fumble 39 yards to set up a 3-yard scoring pass from Leon Clay to tight end Greg Harris.

The Red Raiders resorted to trickery to tie the game at 7-7. On a fake punt, Saul hit Kirby Adams with a 37-yard pass that positioned Tech for Byron Morris' 14-yard touchdown run.

Clay struck again with 2:47 left in the half with a 26-yard touchdown pass to Stephen Shipley, who was left wide open when defender Donny Brooks fell.

Saul moved into fourth place on the NCAA all-time interception list by picking off a Clay pass in the second quarter. Saul has 25 career interceptions, five this season.

Basketball tickets
Tickets for the Pampa High School basketball season goes on sale at 11 a.m. Monday at the PHS athletic office.

The Lady Harvesters open the season Tuesday night at home against Amarillo Tascosa.

The Harvesters are also at home in their first game, hosting Amarillo High Friday night in McNeely Fieldhouse.

Cross country results
Luis Resendiz of Pampa failed to place among the top 10 at Saturday's Class 4A cross country state meet in Georgetown.

John Hull of A&M Consolidated ran a 15:57 to win the Class 4A boys' title. A&M Consolidated scored 30 points to win the team title.

In Class 2A, White Deer finished eighth in the boys' division while Duane Coffey was 10th in the individual standings.

Golf greats enshrined
THE WOODLANDS (AP) - The induction of Senior PGA Tour professional Bruce Crampton and retired professional Shelly Mayfield highlighted the grand opening of the new Texas Golf Hall of Fame.

The 6,000-square foot structure is located behind the 18th green at the Tournament Players Course at The Woodlands.

Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson, Babe Didrikson Zaharias, Jimmy Demaret, Lee Trevino, Jack Burke Jr., Ben Crenshaw and Tom Kite are among the 60 golf greats now enshrined.

The Texas Golf Hall of Fame has been in existence since 1978 and was moved to The Woodlands, 25 miles north of downtown Houston, in 1991.

McLean bows out in six-man playoffs

McLEAN - Valley made the big plays against McLean - the type of big plays that lead to points on the scoreboard.

Valley's blitzing defense and a steady ground attack earned the sixth-ranked Patriots a 78-30 win over McLean Friday night in a six-man bi-district tilt.

The Patriots upped their record to 10-1 in advancing to the area round. McLean, which won its fifth consecutive district championship this season, ended its season at 6-5.

Valley jumped out to a 14-0 lead and never trailed, ending the game with the 45-point rule with 4:36 left in the third quarter. The Patriots had built a 48-22 lead at half-time.

McLean quarterback Christian Looney threw for 280 yards and four touchdowns, but Valley's defensive rushes kept him on the run and off-balance most of the night. He had three passes intercepted and was caught three times behind the line of scrimmage for losses.

Valley's defense accounted for three touchdowns, including two on pass interceptions by Jason Smith.

Smith scored four touchdowns on the night while rushing for 74 yards on seven carries. Bradley Price contributed 89 yards on a dozen tries and one score.

The first quarter ended as if the game would be a battle right down to the wire with Valley leading by only eight, 24-16. But the Patriots had other plans, going on two long scoring marches that took up almost six minutes of the second quarter.

After Looney's 10-yard TD pass to David Chronister cut the deficit to 40-22, the Patriots struck again on their next possession with Smith going in from 14 yards out.

With Valley 42 points up, McLean's final score came with 7:14 remaining in the third quarter when Looney hooked up with Chronister again for an eight-yard TD.

Chronister had two TD catches and pulled in five passes for 101 yards to lead the receiving corps. Tom Pennington had three receptions for 83 yards and a touchdown while Jeremy Thomas snared nine passes for 31 yards.

McLean's defense did cause four Valley turnovers. Pennington recovered a pair of fumbles while Looney intercepted Valley quarterback Joe Valdez twice.

Georgia escapes with 14-10 victory over Auburn

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) - It was a thrilling game that ended in mass confusion.

When everything was sorted out, Auburn had the ball inside the 1 - but no more time - and No. 12 Georgia had escaped with a 14-10 victory on Saturday.

James Bostic was stopped at the goal line with about 15 seconds to go, and time ran out before the Tigers could get off another play.

"We planned to run the play for a touchdown," said Auburn coach Pat Dye. "If we didn't get it in, we wanted to stop the clock and run one more play. We were lined up and trying to get the ball snapped. It's unfortunate."

Garrison Hearst scored two touchdowns for Georgia (8-2 overall, 6-2 Southeastern Conference), but it was the final play that had everyone shaking their heads.

Auburn (5-4-1, 2-4-1) had second-and-goal inside the Georgia 1 with 19 seconds left. Bostic, who gained 75 yards on the day, dove into the line and fumbled short of the end zone.

The Tigers apparently recovered in the jumble of bodies, but both teams claimed they had the ball. As the officials tried to sort things out and the Tigers tried to line up for another play, time expired.

"Ray Goff (the Georgia coach) told me after the game that he regretted that it ended that way," Dye said. "I respect that."

Bowe wins heavyweight title with unanimous decision

Riddick Bowe delivers a blow to the head of Evander Holyfield.

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Boxing Writer

LAS VEGAS (AP)— Riddick Bowe, dismissed by some as a quitter despite his unbeaten record, won the heavyweight championship of the world with a unanimous decision over Evander Holyfield Friday night.

"Quit" was a word that entered no one's mind as both fighter's displayed guts from the opening bell to the final gong.

"I realized the person who can beat me is one with a lot of courage and a lot of tenacity," Holyfield said.

Bowe showed tenacity and courage, and Holyfield matched him, but the defending champion couldn't match Bowe's power.

Bowe had the previously unbeaten Holyfield almost out in the first minute of the 10th round and knocked him down in the 11th.

Both times, the 30-year-old Holyfield fought back with the heart of a champion. Judge Chuck Giampa scored it 115-112, while Jerry Roth and Dalby Shirley each scored it 117-110 for the new champion, who came up from the streets of Brooklyn just as did Mike Tyson.

The AP favored Bowe 116-111.

"Any more questions about the heart?" shouted Rock Newman, Bowe's manager, after this savage 12-round bout.

Some people questioned Bowe's heart after he was stopped by Lennox Lewis in the super heavyweight final of the 1988 Olympics. A tape of that match showed that Bowe didn't quit but that the referee had acted hastily in stopping it.

Nevertheless, the tag stuck to Bowe until this Friday the 13th.

"I told him you are going to live with that tag until you reach the throne room," said Eddie Futch, Bowe's 82-year-old trainer.

Bowe, 25, reached the throne room in his 32nd professional fight. It was simply a case of a good big man beating a good little man.

The 6-foot-5 Bowe weighed 235 pounds, 30 more than the 6-2 1/2

Holyfield, who lost for the first time in 29 professional fights.

The weight and power difference were obvious.

Both men wore the marks of the savage battle. Bowe's right eye was badly swollen. Holyfield's right eye was almost closed and he was cut over the left eye.

Early in the ninth round, Bowe landed two hard rights to the head that wobbled Holyfield. The champion escaped but was rocked again late in the round.

In the first minute of the 10th round, before a screaming crowd of about 18,000 at the Thomas & Mack Center, it seemed Holyfield must surely fall.

Bowe landed a right uppercut that badly wobbled Holyfield and then the challenger was all over the champion, raining blow after blow.

Holyfield reeled about the ring, but not only didn't he go down, he suddenly fought back with two right uppercuts that backed up Bowe. The men exchanged blows the rest of the round and kept punching after the bell.

Sneaky Saints march into Candlestick as underdogs

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

They sneak up on you, those New Orleans Saints.

They sneak up on the San Francisco 49ers, too.

The Saints go to Candlestick Park on Sunday tied with the 49ers in the NFC West at 7-2. Does anyone know it outside of New Orleans? The oddsmakers have blithely made the 49ers 6-point favorites.

That's a lot in this rivalry, perhaps too much.

The Niners won the first game 16-10, but the Saints were on the 3-yard-line in the final seconds before Eric Davis picked off a Bobby Hebert pass in the end zone. And the rivalry is studded with games like 13-12, 13-10, 24-22, 26-24 and 34-33 since New Orleans became competitive five years ago.

One reason is that the 49ers are the 49ers — flashy, as in 97 points in two wins over Atlanta.

And the Saints are the Saints — plodding, boring and winning. After they beat New England 31-14 last week, coach Jim Mora was complaining about the running game and the short-yardage offense, usually Saints' staples.

He has a point — the running game is 18th in the league.

The Saints also have given up 35 points on turnovers the last two weeks — they were lucky they were playing the Bucs and Patriots. Contrast that with the six turnovers the Niners forced in Atlanta.

At this point, San Francisco is the better team.

But the Saints always keep it close.

49ERS, 20-17

Pro picks

Buffalo (minus 1) at Miami (Monday night)

The Bills' slide began with a 37-10 thrashing by the Dolphins in Buffalo six weeks ago. Did it end last Sunday with a 28-20 win over the Steelers?

Not really — these still aren't the run-it-up Bills we've come to know the last two years. But they're probably good enough to extract revenge for the first game.

BILLS, 24-20.

Washington (pick 'em) at Kansas City

Two good defenses, two stagnant offenses.

When in doubt, pick an NFC East team.

REDSKINS, 13-12.

New York Giants (plus 3 1/2) at Denver

When in doubt, pick an NFC East team? The Broncos have been outscored 64-3 in games at Philadelphia and Washington but this is at Mile High.

Still, when in doubt ... Especially when it will be trying to win one for the Gipper, er, LT.

GIANTS, 20-17

Houston (plus 5) at Minnesota

The Oilers appear to be terminal. This isn't the place to recover.

VIKINGS, 24-10

Philadelphia (minus 8) at Green Bay

Randall will start. Will Jim relieve?

Most relevant may be: Will Brett survive?

EAGLES, 20-3

Rams (plus 13) at Dallas

When in doubt ...

That doesn't even come into play.

COWBOYS, 37-3

Detroit (minus 9 1/2) at Pittsburgh

Detroit has nothing but problems, which puts into perspective Pittsburgh's problem — Eric Green's drug suspension.

STEELERS, 20-6

San Diego (plus 2) at Cleveland

Probably two of the NFL's better defenses as AFC teams begin to play like the NFC.

CLEVELAND, 9-6

Chicago (plus 4) at Tampa Bay

At this rate, the Bears had better be ahead by 30 at halftime to avoid the second-half fade. The Bucs, meanwhile, are in the second half (of the season) fade.

BEARS, 31-26

New England (plus 7) at Indianapolis

This one was taken off the board because New England doesn't have a quarterback.

Or a coach. Or much else.

COLTS, 27-9

Seattle (plus 12 1/2) at Raiders

So now it's back to Jay Schroeder. Which is more than there is in Seattle, which has scored five touchdowns all year.

RAIDERS, 20-3

Cincinnati (plus 6) at New York Jets

The Jets have to get a break somewhere.

JETS, 28-16

Phoenix (plus 3 1/2) at Atlanta

When was the last time the Cards won three straight?

Even here, when in doubt, go with the NFC East.

CARDS, 20-14.

Last week: 6-8 (spread); 11-3 (straight up)

Season: 60-63-2 (spread); 84-40 (straight up)

Lady Bugs

The Lady Bugs won the 9 and under girls' soccer division title this fall. Team members are (front row) Jessica Venegas, Amber Evans and Danielle Martinez; (second row) Brandi Schakel, Misti Northcutt, Mollie Baker and Bridget Stephenson. Coaches are Lisa Bixler and Nancy Northcutt. The Lady Bugs finished with an 8-0-1 record.

Adams, Atwood win Pampa volleyball honors

Lara Adams and Candi Atwood were the top award winners at this year's Pampa High volleyball banquet.

Adams, a junior, was presented with the Hustling Harvester award while Atwood was named the Most Valuable Player.

Adams had the best serving percentage on the team with 95 of 101 serves (94.0%) and was also the top defensive player, averaging six digs a match.

The Hustling Harvester award is based on leadership and classroom ability.

"Lara is a hard worker, both on and off the court. She's a very good leader," said Pampa head coach Denise Reed.

Atwood, a sophomore, had a 91% successful service ratio and was rated the team's second most consistent passer. With a 3.0 rated as the highest, Atwood graded a 2.4 in sets. She averaged 16 assists a game and had an 80% attack ratio.

"Candi was asked to do a lot of different things and she responded very well," said Reed.

Players and the coaching staff took part in the award nominations.

"I want to thank the parents who helped with organizing the banquet. Those ladies did a super job and I really do appreciate it," said Reed.

Reed also thanked her assistant coaches, Susan Davis and Thel Shelby, for their work during the season.

"Without some good coaches you can't get anything done. They really did a good job," Reed said.

The banquet was held last week at the First Baptist Church.

Majors resigns at Tennessee

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Johnny Majors quit his job as Tennessee football coach the same way he played single-wing tailback for the Vols — combative, aggressive, unapologetic.

The 57-year-old Majors stepped down Friday night after negotiating a buyout of the two years remaining on his contract. The university had refused to keep him on past 1994.

"Since the early days of watching my dad, the late Shirley Majors, coach, I developed a very competitive spirit concerning football," Majors said.

"I played hard, I coached hard, and I demanded a lot of myself and those who surrounded me. Sometimes in the heat of battle, I've occasionally said things that, upon reflection, I wish I hadn't. But that's been my style and it has brought me more success than failure."

Majors has coached Tennessee, his alma mater, for 16 seasons and will stay on through the end of the season. Memphis State hosts the 23rd-ranked Vols today and Tennessee has two other regular-season games remaining.

University president Joe Johnson said Tennessee would pay between $500,000 and $600,000 to buy out the two years left on Majors' contract. Tennessee was obligated only for Majors' $96,000 a year base salary.

Athletics director Doug Dickey and Johnson both said no replacement has been selected, although the job is widely expected to be offensive coordinator Phillip Fulmer's if he wants it.

Tamposi says Clinton file search approved by superior

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the State Department's top six political appointees was told about the search of Bill Clinton's passport files and allowed it to proceed, a source close to an inquiry into the matter said Saturday.

John F.W. Rogers "basically said 'fine' and registered no objections" when a subordinate, Elizabeth M. Tamposi, briefed him about the Clinton file search as it was getting under way Sept. 30, said the source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Tamposi has relayed this information to the State Department inspector general's office, which is looking into the pre-election search of Clinton's files, as well as those of his mother and of presidential candidate Ross Perot, added the source, who is close to Tamposi.

One of Tamposi's assistants, Carmen DePlacido, embarked on the hunt for Clinton's passport file without consulting Tamposi, and then informed her, the source said. Tamposi talked to Rogers about it a few hours later, said the source.

Tamposi "felt obliged to tell Rogers exactly what she was doing and why she was doing it," said the source, adding that Rogers proposed no alternative and agreed with what was being done. The search was prompted by requests from the news media under the Freedom of Information Act. The State Department has said officials acted improperly by putting the requests for Clinton's records ahead of others.

Rogers is the under secretary of state for management. There was no answer at his home telephone Saturday. Tamposi was fired Tuesday as assistant secretary of state for consular affairs. Her lawyer, Thomas C. Green, said that his client "at all times acted properly."

The source also said that once the search at a National Archives warehouse turned up the passport records the evening of Sept. 30, Tamposi reviewed and kept the Clinton files overnight at her residence. She told the auditors she did so to keep the file secure after her aides expressed suspicions it had been tampered with.

Green would say only that his client had "the authority to possess and examine documents that were within the domain of her office."

The New York Times reported on Rogers' role in Saturday editions. The Washington Post said Saturday that Tamposi's overnight possession of the Clinton file at her home likely will be cited by the inspector general as one of several irregularities and violations of department regulations, not only of Clinton's records, but those of his mother and Ross Perot.

Rogers, who worked in the Reagan White House and served as assistant secretary of the Treasury under James A. Baker III, is one of four State Department under secretaries. Only the secretary of state and deputy secretary rank higher.

Tamposi was fired by President Bush after the disclosure that Perot's records at the State Department also had been combed. Perot called it a "gross abuse of federal power."

Green said Tamposi had known nothing about the search of Perot's records or of the records of Clinton's mother.

FDR's cup, Franklin Pierce's glass make up historical collection

By VICTORIA
For AP Special Features

Set Momjian can sip coffee from Franklin Delano Roosevelt's cup, dine from Teddy Roosevelt's Wedgwood plate or savor wine from a rare ruby-red Franklin Pierce glass — all part of his 2,000-piece collection of White House and historical china.

"Before dinner," Momjian said in an article by Claire Whitcomb in the current issue of Victoria, "my wife, Joan, and I decide who'll eat from which presidential plate."

He has been collecting historic china since 1950.

"When I first started to collect," he said, "I wrote President Truman — he'd retired to Missouri — asking if I could trade a Grant plate for a Truman plate."

Truman declined, Momjian said: "He wrote back saying that one Democratic plate was worth two Republican ones, notwithstanding the fact that Grant was a good general."

In those days, he said "hardly anyone was interested in White House china." Several first ladies — Caroline Scott Harrison, Edith Roosevelt and Mamie Eisenhower among them — tried to catalogue and preserve White House china, but it was not until the Kennedy administration that presidential furnishings were considered by law to be "inalienable and the property of the White House."

Prior to that, presidents lost china in poker bets, handed it out as souvenirs and sold it at lawn sales held in the 19th century to dispose of "decayed" furnishings.

"From the Taft to Coolidge administrations, broken and chipped china was put in a tub in the White House basement at the insistence of the housekeeper, Mrs. Elizabeth Jaffrey," Momjian said. "When the tub was full, it was carried to the Potomac and dumped."

He has researched the location of the kitchen doors at that time and has plotted the shortest route to the river.

With the purchase of a Madison plate last year, Momjian has gathered china from every administration that ordered it. He knows its history and the problems first ladies had, including the purple-bordered Lincoln plates.

"Mary Lincoln, like many of the first ladies, had trouble when she ordered china. People thought she was affecting royalty with that color," he said. "Eleanor Roosevelt was criticized because she edged her plates with the rose and three feathers from the family coat of arms. People said that a foreign coat of arms had no place on presidential china."

"Even Ludy Hayes, who had American artist Theodore Davis paint wildlife scenes for each plate, drew complaints. People said they didn't want to see the animal they just ate in its original habitat."

Asked if anyone escaped criticism, Momjian said: "Truman, he said, 'just have it match the state dining room walls,' which were celadon green. Everyone was happy."

It was Truman who noticed that the eagle, a favorite presidential china motif, sometimes faced the arrows of war, sometimes the olive branches of peace. He had a law passed mandating a peaceful posture.

Dear Abby

Abigail Van Buren

Man who won't tango gives woman cold feet

DEAR ABBY: I love to dance. Ever since I was a young girl, dancing has been something I enjoyed enormously. My problem is I'm engaged to a man who never learned to dance.

I really miss dancing, but I don't want to go out and dance with other men. I feel very sensual when I dance, and I don't want to share that feeling with anyone else but my fiancé.

I have tried to explain how important it is to me that we not only have the option of going out dancing once in a while, but also that I have always wanted to dance at my wedding. He doesn't seem to care how much it means to me, because he won't even try.

I offered to pay for dance lessons and asked him to try just 10 lessons, and then if he still didn't like it, I would drop the whole subject. He refused to go, saying it makes him uncomfortable and he's just not a dancer!

I'm having second thoughts about marrying a man who refuses to try something that is important to me. I think he's being selfish.

What do you think, Abby? Should I drop the subject — or drop him?

P.S. Please reply soon. We're supposed to be married in four months.

FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: If you would seriously consider dropping your fiancé because he's not a dancer and doesn't want to take lessons, I suggest you postpone your wedding date until your judgment matures.

DEAR ABBY: I recently had occasion to use some of your advice. I was a houseguest in a very fine home in Miami. While in the bathroom, I saw a large roach crawling up the wall. I tried to kill it, but it was a lot quicker than I was.

My hostess asked me why I was banging on the wall. I told her, quietly, that I tried to kill a roach. She was a bit upset and said, "We don't have roaches — that was just a palmetto bug!" Signed...

THE RICH DON'T HAVE ROACHES

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." To order send a long (business-size), self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. 'Dietetic,' 'diabetic' not synonymous

Don't be misled by a "dietetic" label on foods. "Dietetic" doesn't necessarily mean "diabetic." A "dietetic" food may have had one or more ingredients such as fat, sugar or salt changed, replaced or restricted. The product does have fewer calories than the regular product. In fact, many products labeled "dietetic," may be for persons on low sodium, low cholesterol, diabetic or other special diets and may not be lower in calories.

Calorie-wise, many dietetic foods don't differ much from regular foods. For example, one-half cup regular ice cream contains 175-230 calories, while the same portion of dietetic ice cream has 90-100 calories.

The main difference between them involves substituting nutritive sweeteners such as xylitol, sorbitol or mannitol for sugar in the dietetic product. Their use is advised on the grounds that they will produce less rise in plasma glucose than would sucrose or glucose.

Sorbitol, xylitol and mannitol - like sugar - are metabolized as carbohydrates in the body. People with diabetes should be advised to consume no more than 50 to 80 grams or more of sorbitol and 20 grams or more of mannitol since their use at these levels can cause osmotic diarrhea. They provide about the same number of calories as sugar, but are metabolized at a slower rate. This is important for diabetics, who can't metabolize sugar adequately.

For the above reasons, dietetic ice cream - which usually costs more and lacks the taste of regular ice cream - is intended for the diabetic who does not need to lose weight rather than the weight-conscious person with or without diabetes. In other words, these sweeteners will produce less of a rise in plasma glucose, but will provide about the same number of calories as sucrose.

Dieters or weight watchers will find that ice milk has lower fat content and fewer calories. Manufacturers of dietetic ice cream such as a protein derivative Simplese are now also reducing the fat content by adding fat substitutes or by merely changing the formulation of their products to contain less fat.

To find other foods low in calories, diabetics and weight watchers should read labels. Although some labels furnish the content's calorie count, the ingredient list also provides a key.

Ingredients are listed in order of weight. The ingredient with the greatest weight is listed first followed by the next heaviest ingredient and so on down the line. If sugar or another form of sweetener is listed first, second or third, or if several different types of sweeteners are listed on the label, think carefully before using the product.

Sugar comes in many disguises; on a label it is not always identified by the word "sugar." These are some common names for sugar and sweeteners: sucrose, fructose, levulose, lactose, molasses, maple syrup, glucose, dextrose, maltose, corn syrup, sorbitol, high fructose corn syrup, invert sugar, honey, dextrin, brown sugar and mannitol.

If the label on the ice cream makes a nutritional claim, then the manufacturer will probably have nutrition labeling which discloses the amount of carbohydrate, protein, fat and calories as well as the vitamins and minerals present in the product. This is especially useful for diabetics trying to decide whether to use the product or not.

Next week's column will focus on handling eating during the holidays.

Santa Fe District recognition dinner planned for Saturday

Scouters in the nine counties served by the Santa Fe district will recognize their service to youth at the annual district recognition dinner at 6:30 p.m. Saturday in Lively Hall at the First United Methodist Church of Pampa.

The potluck dinner will be followed by the presentation of the district award of merit to two of the area's most active leaders. The award of merit is the highest recognition presented in the district. It is for outstanding service to youth on the district level and the district is allowed to make only two awards each year.

Speaker for the evening will be Carl Johnson of Amarillo. He is a Pampa native and is active in the Golden Eagle District in Amarillo. He is involved in Toastmasters.

Other features of the evening include the introduction of the 1993 officers of the Santa Fe District. Phil Vanderpool who has served as chairman of the district for the past five years will preside over the dinner program.

All those interested in the Scouting program are invited, according to district executive Jack Crider. He may be contacted at 665-9228 for information.

Facts to know from National Geographic

For every hour between the 1780s and 1980s, the United States lost more than 60 acres (24.3 hectares) of wetlands in the 48 contiguous states, according to National Geographic.

U.S. wetlands provide critical habitat for 150 kinds of birds and 200 kinds of fish, and they harbor one-third of the country's endangered or threatened species of plants and animals.

Family gathering reunites siblings; parties and birthdays abound

Mother Nature spoke to us through wind, rain and sunshine to tell us winter could arrive at any time with a mixture of all kinds of weather. News of the past week are as varied as the weather.

For the first time in 50 years, seven members of the Conner family were together for a meal, visiting and lots of laughter. Bill and Jerry Ward-Hassell hosted a surprise birthday luncheon, honoring Jewel Conner Walls with the guest list limited to siblings only at Knite Lites Thursday at noon. Balloons and Happy Birthday signs marked the party area. Cake and gifts followed the meal. Attending in birth order were Jewel, Vesta Phillips, Frank Conner, Jerry, Freddie Seitz and Harold Conner. Raymond of Houston was unable to attend.

Jewel, who has been a Pampan since 1929, is the mother of two daughters, Katherine Helms of Pampa and Pat Goodwin of Desert Hot Springs, Calif., grandmother of six and great-grandmother of 12, seven of whom live in Pampa. At 82, Jewel bakes the often requested German chocolate cakes served at Knite Lites and keeps busy doing things for her family. It was a memorable family time, a time to remember and enjoy for a long time.

Mark and Kathy Ginn celebrated Kathy's birthday with a quiet dinner out.

Earl Leith hosted a birthday party for Alice with 15 guests for dinner. Black balloons and Over the Hill appointments made it seem like a a milestone birthday. Some of the gifts were unmentionables!

Dr. Frank and Trish Vincenti were seen having dinner with a couple of longtime out-of-town friends.

Maedell Lanehart hosted a party for El Progresso Club members at Knite Lites to celebrate three birthdays: Betty Bates, Edna Hickman and Mary Fain, but Mary was unable to attend her own party!

Other celebrants were Florence Radcliff, Mabel Ford, Virginia Presnell, Ruth Morrison, Eloise Lane, Jo Scoggin, Julia Dawkins and Maxine Hawkins. Belated birthday wishes to the honorees.

Phyllis Laramore, associate state coordinator for AARP for 25 counties, will conduct a mature refresher driving course for people 55 and older on Monday and Tuesday from 5-9 p.m. in the dining room of Coronado Hospital. It's a fun and educational course without grades that affords a 10 percent discount for each of three years on required insurance. Incentive enough, huh? This will be her 51st class with 1,000 grads already. Phyllis and Lloyd went to their cabin on Lake Kemp near Vernon to pick up cooking paraphernalia for preparing Thanksgiving dinner. Victor and Dee Dee will host the dinner for 20 family members and three to five close family friends.

Dee Dee serves as public education coordinator for Hospice. One activity to celebrate Hospice month will be a cookie campaign on Tuesday. Sally Springer is in charge of arranging tons (?) of homemade cookies to be delivered to special 1992 Hospice friends.

A few of the active Hospice volunteers are Marge Lemons, Mickie Clark, Betty Gage and Marise Haesle, who as a homebound volunteer makes phone calls and addresses envelopes for the Tree of Love project.

Pampa Senior Center was a beehive of activity early this week for the annual rummage and baked goods sale, a fund-raiser for the center. Joyce Puckett, director, and Nancy Looper, helped. Here are some samples of the food list. J.R. and Thelma Moore brought some fancy candy that sold in a flash. Hattie Hindman brought a delicious holiday cake. Carol Heinritz, who insists on personal perfection, brought a beautiful cake. Janice Carter brought her popular homemade chow chow. The senior center is the favorite spot of many of Pampa's senior citizens.

Belated birthday wishes to Loyd Wilson. While he was having a birthday lunch with Jerry Blodgett and his grandson Tracy Kotara, Rutley Chalk and Mike Conroy and the birthday celebrant sang Happy Birthday in the center of Furr's Cafeteria. Hmmm. Wonder if Rutley and Mike are for hire?

Dot and Emil Wilson, longtime Pampans now living in Paris, spent last weekend in Pampa visiting their aunt and uncle, Edith and Claude Wilson, and close friend Billie Bruner.

Did you know that Gerald Wright, county commissioner of Precinct 3, has done a lot of historical research and searching for artifacts in the Lake McClellan area? Gerald, Stan and Margie Anthony placed several artifacts they recovered in 1986 from the Battle of McClellan Creek of Nov. 8, 1874, in the White Deer Land Museum. In 1990 they recovered artifacts from the Red River survey camp established in 1876. Gerald and Walt West are working on a 1874 Red River War Camp and Battle Sites. All of their artifacts have been placed in the White Deer Land Museum in Pampa.

The Lake McClellan group, with the aid of the Forest Service, dream of having an amphitheater built at Lake McClellan to present a drama on the Battle of McClellan Creek as a tourist attraction. Sounds wonderful!

Ask any of Ruth McBride's sorority sisters if they can describe the look on Ruth's face when they honored her as their "Girl of the Year" with a surprise dinner at the Pampa Country Club, complete with balloons and flowers. Just happened to be her birthday, so the honor continued with cards, lottery ticket and group singing Happy Birthday. It was double the pleasure and double the fun for Nick and Carol Martin, Don and Terry Harrison, L.G. and Joyce Clifton, Retha and Ray Jordan, Gerry and Clint Caylor, Martin and Irvine Riphan, Charlene and Roy Morriss, Mary Baten and Helen Danner.

The Recycled Teenagers met at Highland Baptist Church on Oct. 6 Sarah Hernandez and Velma Garrison gave the program. Mike Ely gave a poem on "Keep on Praying." Fifteen were present and a covered dish luncheon was enjoyed by all.

Jennifer Scoggin of Pampa Middle School was accompanist for the Nov. 7 Texas Music Educators Association Region I choir concert held in Borger. She played for the sixth-grade honor choir. Thanks for the information, Steve Ross.

Bud and Alma Cumberledge spent Thursday night in Hereford with daughter, Paula, and husband. On Friday, they visited longtime friend, Ray Carruth, and wife Maxine. Ray is hospitalized in Amarillo.

Betty Clegg made a trip to Bossier City, La., for the wedding of her granddaughter, Shannon McDuff. Following the wedding, she stayed a week in Baton Rouge with her daughter and son-in-law, Sharon and Tom Dupuy. During her trip, Ruby, her mother, spent the time in Knox City with daughter and son-in-law, Evelyn and Carl Shelton.

J.C. and Mary Lantz Jackson of Elephant Butte, N.M., have returned home after spending a few days with family and friends in Lefors and Pampa.

Elizabeth Brown celebrated her 90th birthday on Nov. 7. The longtime Pampa resident always had her home open for family and friends. Mrs. Brown was honored with a "Book of Memories" with letters and pictures from her loved ones at a party attended by 75 people including her three grandchildren, Mike and Shirley Buck, and children Jeremy and Shanna; Becky Buck of Amarillo; and Mickey and Suzanne Oliver of Rifle Colo., and their children Corey and Bryan.

See you next week, Katie.

Flunking French? Adult fluency elusive

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Language learning is easier in childhood because the human brain is "primed" for it at that stage of development, says Elissa Newport, a psycholinguist at the University of Rochester.

Though children easily assimilate the language's building blocks of syntax and grammar, individuals past puberty rarely, if ever, achieve the same degree of fluency, she says.

Newport believes that the difficulty which people past their childhood have in mastering a new language is strong evidence that biological development influences learning in humans, just as it does in many non-human species.

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)— After she got married in 1969, Linda McCartney stopped photographing rock performers. But earlier in the '60s, she photographed lots of them.

"I made a living. I paid my rent with it. I remember selling five or six pictures for personality posters, $25 each. Boy was I happy," she said during an interview on a hotel room's small, sunny balcony. "And I was a free spirit. I could hang out, go on the road with them if I wanted to."

"After I married, I made a decision not to keep up with it. I would have loved to go to Jamaica and photograph (reggae musician) Bob Marley and taken a horse and a camera to the Southwest and photographed (painter) Georgia O'Keeffe. But photography became a family matter and projects to try to save the environment. It became more life than one subject."

Some of those photos are included in her new book, "Linda McCartney's Sixties, Portrait of an Era."

Among her favorite photos: Jimi Hendrix thrusting his arm forward at the end of a guitar phrase.

She also likes one of Otis Redding "just because it's Otis," adding: "There's one of John (Lennon) and Paul I like. It shows them smiling together. It shows their relationship that the press never got near. And the one of the four Beatles together, for the same reason."

Mary, tucked inside his jacket. He used it as the cover on his first solo album.

"Everybody kept saying I should do a book. Paul kept saying it. Even back when we got married he said, 'You should do a book on these photos.'"

McCartney, 50, said she put the book together because "I was finally ready to look back on that period. It is really just the vibes, I guess."

Most of the pictures are black and white because her color slides and negatives were stolen from their house while the McCartneys were vacationing shortly after their marriage.

"Fans had broken in. ... A lot of it has come back in dribs and drabs. Hundreds of color shots are gone. I guess I'll never see them."

"Also, I gave Jimi Hendrix, who loved my photography, prints in black and white. Color he would flip into his briefcase. Can you imagine Jimi Hendrix with a briefcase!"

McCartney, who looks lithe and fit and whose manner is candid and friendly, also wrote the text.

"I decided to write it unbossy," she said. "I wanted to show the wonderful thing that was going on. I was telling my little remembrances, really."

When she thinks about the '60s, she said, "Funny images come to my mind, like being inside another world while this world was going on. It was like a nucleus of young talent, nobody aware they were a nucleus."

"They were trying to change the norms, pointing out a generation gap, change being under parental thumbs, change the whole political right wing and bigoted prejudice."

"I think it was a period people were saying let's help life to be a wonderful thing rather than an oppressive thing. It is desperately needed again. It is youth that does it. We've got to break traditions but keep the good ones."

"I think the arts have always influenced the way things go. Picasso and Goya were trying to stop war. They opened people's eyes to it. A lot of music now is image and money. Change has to be from the heart if it is to be a meaningful change."

She has enough pictures for more volumes of '60s photos, McCartney said, but probably won't pursue that because she wants to do a retrospective from all her photos.

"That really excites me," she said. "These are familiar faces. That would be life. There might be a few from the '60s. I took a lot of other photographs alongside these, some art more than commerciality."

This is McCartney's fourth book of photos. For 18 years, her photos have been used in calendars and in 1989 she wrote a vegetarian cookbook, "Linda McCartney's Home Cooking."

Long a committed vegetarian, she injected into the interview that when you eat meat or fish, "Nobody knows the suffering and horror and fear that animal went through. We're eating a slab of fear."

"Linda McCartney's Sixties, Portrait of an Era" is published by Bulfinch Press.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might have to contend with an individual today who has an unyielding personality. Trying to convert this person to your opinions or methods could turn out to be an exercise in futility.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're presently straining to take care of old obligations, it's best not to assume any new indebtedness at this time. Don't add the straw that could break the camel's back.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Before accusing your mate of dragging feet, make sure you're doing everything that is required of you. There's a possibility you're not.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Occasionally, we all have to perform chores we find distasteful. This might be your lot in life today, so do what's required with a smile, not a frown.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try to steer clear of a controversial situation today that involves two friends. Your input could complicate matters rather than resolve them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Disagreements with family members or relatives should not be aired in public today. Instead of getting sympathy or support, this forum will make everyone look bad in the eyes of others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Strive today to be encouraging of associates who express their ideas to you, not critical. If you have any comments, make sure they're constructive.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Before taking on any long-term obligations at this time, review the situations from every angle. If you're impulsive, you could create hardships for yourself in the future.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be both patient and persevering today. If you're stymied by a lack of support from associates, with regard to something that affects your self-interest, don't fret; you can win them over.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not expect others to do for you today what you're capable of taking care of yourself. Individuals you'll be involved with will resent being manipulated or used.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you put your frivolous interests ahead of your duties today, you might find temporary pleasure — but it won't equal the guilt you'll collect from being unproductive.

'Moving Mountains': A book of general interest

WASHINGTON (AP) — William Pagonis has a new management book out that advises, like scores of others before it, how to run effective business meetings, manage limited resources and get the most out of your work force.

But Pagonis is no management guru writing from an ivory tower.

What sets his book apart from similar how-to books is the author himself — a three-star Army general who was in charge of feeding, housing, equipping and moving the 500,000 U.S. troops that served in Saudi Arabia during the Gulf War.

The book is called "Moving Mountains, Lessons in Leadership and Logistics from the Gulf War."

Remember all those television images of thousands of soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines lining up for hot food or mail call or showers during the war? Well, Lt. Gen. William G. Pagonis was the man behind the men and women who kept the trucks running, the supplies coming and the troops moving.

"Nobody could have done the job better," said Pagonis' former boss, Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, the commander of operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm.

During his 18 months in Saudi Arabia as chief of logistics, Pagonis' command planned, moved and served more than 122 million meals, a task equal to feeding everybody in the states of Wyoming and Vermont three meals a day for 40 days.

Supply units under Pagonis' command pumped 1.3 gallons of fuel, drove 52 million miles, erected 500 new traffic signs along Saudi Arabian highways and oversaw the movement of 31,800 tons of mail. "I remember at the time following this with immense interest and being very impressed by this guy," said Marvin Zonis, a leadership expert at the University of Chicago's graduate school of business.

The Gulf War was "a very impressive organizational achievement and it was done, I am sure, because of this guy's talents and the tremendous leadership exercised," Zonis said.

"He certainly had an awful lot to do with the way that the war went," said Lawrence J. Korb, a former assistant secretary of defense in the Reagan administration and now a fellow at the Brookings Institution. "I think the logistics of the war were as impressive as anything else."

Just moving the 500,000-plus troops who participated in the U.S.-led military operation against Iraq has been likened to transporting the entire population of Alaska, along with their personal belongings, halfway around the world.

During the war, supply trucks were heading to the front at such a rapid clip — 18 trucks a minute at one point — that Pagonis was unable to cross the main supply route to meet with another officer and had to climb into his helicopter and fly across the road.

But what does all that have to do with running a business? Plenty, says the 51-year-old Pagonis, now commander of the 21st Theater Army Area Command in Kaiserslautern, Germany.

"We're a customer service-oriented organization. Our product is the satisfaction of our customer, which is the combat arms people — the tankers, the infantrymen — that we support as logisticians, so we as logisticians provide a service," he said.

"If that service is not provided, and that's where the big difference is with the civilian world, the entire ground attack could have been halted and then you could have people killed," Pagonis said during a recent visit to Washington to promote the book, published by Harvard Business School Press.

"With the war, everybody kept asking me how in the world did we do everything so rapidly? A lot of it was through management and a leadership style that you incorporate, and everybody becomes part of a team."

Pagonis is famous throughout the military for his use of 3-by-5 cards as a communications tool. Anyone from a general to a private with a complaint, problem or suggestion can submit it to Pagonis' command, where it makes its way up the chain of command until someone in authority can respond. Then it heads back to the writer — all usually within 24 hours.

"It's amazing how all the information needed by a decision maker can be placed on a 3-by-5 card," Pagonis wrote in his book. "I normally tell my people that if it won't fit on a 3-by-5 card then they are telling me too much."

Pagonis developed the system as a young officer in Germany when he grew tired of waiting to see a superior officer and left his request on an index card. Instead of getting yelled at, he got results.

Pagonis also is a big believer in the "stand up" meeting. For 30 minutes every morning, Pagonis meets with his staff. He sits, they stand. Pagonis says it keeps the ball rolling. People speak their piece, then yield the floor.

When someone starts to get long-winded, "people shift from foot to foot, fidget, look at their watches — and pretty quickly, the conversation comes back into focus," said Pagonis.

In civilian clothes for a two-week book promotion tour on his own time, the short, dark Pagonis doesn't look like your typical Army general — and he isn't.

"It's really me," Pagonis joked when he showed up at a recent conference to discuss his book, "I look a lot taller on CNN."

First off, Pagonis isn't a West Pointer. He joined the Army in the mid-1960s after graduating from Penn State with an ROTC commission. He spent most of his career as a transportation officer, although he managed combat assignments during two tours of duty in Vietnam.

Born in western Pennsylvania, the son of a Greek immigrant father who jumped ship in New York harbor and swam to Ellis Island, Pagonis first honed his skills keeping track of supplies and pleasing customers at his parents' hotel-restaurant in Charleroi, Pa.

On Aug. 4, 1990, Pagonis, then a two-star general, was at Fort McPherson, Ga., helping his wife Cheryl unpack from the most recent of their 26 moves when he was summoned to a planning session for what would become Operation Desert Shield.

Four days later, he was at an air base in Saudi Arabia, ostensibly to organize the overall logistics of Desert Shield. But what he saw were thousands of arriving paratroopers piling up in the 140-degree heat with no shelter, transportation or destination.

Pagonis and his three aides began processing the troops themselves, using a commandeered four-door sedan as an office and sleeping quarters until the system got up and running a few days later.

Farmers' market in Somali town a sign of hope

By G.G. LABELLE
Associated Press Writer

MERCA, Somalia (AP) — On Merca's chaotic main street — among the centers for malnourished children, the donkeys hauling water and the charity kitchens — women carrying wood — there is a tiny sign of hope.

Farmers in this coastal corner of famine-ridden Somalia are selling a small crop of tomatoes, grapefruit, mangos and coconuts.

The local produce market is beginning to revive.

Marc Aubert, International Red

Cross representative in Merca, says small farmers are augmenting food donations in helping the region gain against hunger.

"We had help from the local harvest. It was limited but still quite good," he said.

The agencies realize the world cannot feed Somalia forever. They have been handing out seeds and tools to revive agriculture and keep aid from becoming an addiction.

"People have got to grow their own food," said Rhodri Wynn-Pope, team leader in Somalia for the international aid agency CARE.

Wynn-Pope and other relief officialists talk of the need for "aid infrastructure" if they are to overcome the famine that has killed more than 100,000 Somalis.

In Merca, 100 miles south of the capital Mogadishu, the aid setup works this way: Centers treat severely malnourished children; kitchens serve rice, beans and oil to the general population and the Red Cross and British agency Oxfam donate seeds and tools to farmers in the surrounding area.

The Red Cross alone has given out nearly 45 tons of seeds in the region. Nationwide it has handed out 430 tons of seeds, mainly sorghum, rice and high protein beans, along with 18,000 hoes, picks and shovels.

The problems are formidable. The area between the Shebele and Jubara rivers, once Somalia's breadbasket, was devastated in the clan warfare that has raged over the past two years. Marauding militiamen have looted the stored grain of farmers, driving them off their land to charity kitchens in towns and cities. Raiders have stolen farm equipment that would allow people to begin planting and harvesting again.

The most immediate problem is getting the farmers back to their fields. More important, they must stay there.

Farmers must get seeds and also food to sustain them while they till their land. Otherwise, they may flee back to the towns, or even eat the seeds instead of planting them.

In western Somalia, CARE gave 96 tons of sorghum seed to rural areas around Bardera and was trucking food to 186 villages. But then Bardera changed hands in a clan warfare. Relief workers were evacuated. Food aid was cut off to surrounding areas.

Three weeks later, CARE officials still do not know what happened in most of the villages.

Phoebe Fraser, who oversees the seed program, exulted when she saw "little green sprouts of sorghum" in some villages, but fears hungry farmers may eat the sprouts before they ripen into grain.

Damage inflicted on farms is a major problem in reviving food production.

Near Afgoi, 18 miles west of Mogadishu, Salah Ahmed Ali sat among grapefruit trees in an orchard owned and worked by several families.

The 52-year-old farmer complained he was having trouble watering the trees.

Looters took the pumps needed to bring the water from the canals.

Now, the tractor plowing irrigation furrows in Ali's orchard bore not only a driver but two guards with assault rifles.

Heather Danton, 34, of the American branch of Save the Children said the agency faces similar problems in the Koreoli district in trying to restore part of the vast canal system that irrigated farms southwest of Merca.

"All the sluice gates were destroyed or looted," she said. Her agency is digging out one of the region's 16 main canals, which have silted up from lack of care. It is about 8.5 miles long and nearly four miles have been opened.

Ms. Danton, from Mansfield, Mass., said the work was financed by a $5,000 U.S. government grant. But the agency is running low on money and suffers because so much equipment has been looted.

And she added, "I have fears if a great amount of food is produced, it will attract looters."

But looking at the cleared section of the canal makes potential troubles fade.

"You see people out working in the fields, and the maize is waist high," she said.

Storm systems brought very little rain to state

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Last week's winter storm systems benefited most North and West Texas cotton and pecan crops, although they failed to bring much-needed moisture to the areas, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

"The cold weather was sufficient enough to desiccate (kill) the leaves on the cotton plants," said Dr. Billy Warrick, Extension agronomist in San Angelo.

Warrick said the late cotton harvest should begin this week. West Central Texas producers were waiting for a freeze before beginning the harvest so they could get all they could out of the crop.

"The only detriment was that some areas had lint reduction in a number of fields," he said, primarily because of high winds.

Far West Texas producers also have some good things to report from last week's weather.

"Cold weather has encouraged pecan shuck split and harvesting has increased," said Charles Neeb, district Extension director in Ft. Stockton.

Neeb said Midland County producers report the freezing weather received should complement the cotton harvest. However, Crane County reports that protein levels in grasses will drop off considerably after their first freeze last week.

Panhandle producers are not reporting any ill effects from last week's weather.

"Corn is already harvested and sorghum is 75 percent harvested," said Brent Bean, Extension agronomist in Amarillo. "The weather front shouldn't have affected it."

Bean said two positive effects of the cold weather is that it probably speeded up the cotton and sugar beet harvests.

"The wheat crop isn't far enough along to hurt it," he said. "The main thing is that we need rain. We haven't received any significant amount of rain in two months."

Producers in the western half of the state looking for rain may be disappointed.

Dry weather is forecast for the first part of the week until the next system moves in.

The following specific livestock, crop and weather conditions were reported by district Extension directors:

PANHANDLE: Soil moisture short. Livestock good. Range grasses cured; some feeding taking place. Harvesting sugar beets. Rapidly harvesting milo; good yields. Cotton 25 percent harvested. Dryland wheat needs moisture.

How To Turn Six Numbers Into Six Figures.

Nowhere in the history of the world has there ever been any real significance to the number six.

There were never SIX Musketeers. There was never any movie entitled the Magnificent SIX. Nobody ever says, "Hey, homeboy, slap me SIX." There are no mentions of the big SIX automakers, and so on and so forth.

So, for the first time in the history of the world, lowly SIX is about to be elevated to a much higher level. Elevated, in fact, to millions, in a new type of game. Read on, it gets easier.

LOTTO Texas is a new game from the Texas Lottery. It's fun, it's exciting and it's easy to play. You pick six numbers from one to fifty, and should you happen to pick the same six numbers that come up during the drawings, then you could win millions of dollars.

Now, the long version on how to play LOTTO Texas:

Step number one.

Go to your LOTTO Texas retailer. You can only play where you see the red and yellow sign that says LOTTO Texas. It shouldn't be a big problem. There are thousands of LOTTO Texas retailers all over the state. Look at the lower right-hand part of this page. That is our new logo. (We're quite proud.) Wherever you see that sign, you know you can play LOTTO Texas.

Still with us? Great.

Step number two. While you are at the retailer, pick up a playslip. There's a picture of it on this page. You may find the playslip in a stand called a play station. If not, just ask for one.

Step number three. (My, we are moving right along now, aren't we?) Choose SIX of the numbers on the playslip from one to fifty. You can also play up to five times on each playslip. You must completely fill in the numbers you choose on the playslip with a BLACK OR BLUE BALLPOINT PEN OR A PENCIL ONLY. The pencil below is free, and it will work quite nicely. Also, do not erase any of the mistakes you make. Just fill in the VOID box on that play and you will not be charged for it.

Step number four. (Past the halfway mark.) Take a dollar (that's how much it costs to play LOTTO Texas) and give it and the playslip to the retailer. In just a few seconds, you will be handed a ticket that verifies which numbers you picked. Please remember: sign the back of your ticket so no one else can cash it in.

Step number five. You can tune in to the televised drawings on Wednesday and Saturday nights at 9:58 p.m. CST to see how well you did. If you picked all six of the numbers that are randomly chosen on the ball machine, then you could be a millionaire. If you miss the drawing, those numbers will be posted the next day at all LOTTO Texas retailers and in your local newspaper.

The jackpots are paid out to the winners in 20 annual installments. You can also win second and third prizes by matching five out of six numbers or four out of six numbers. Match three out of six and you'll win $3 automatically. If you win up to $599, you can collect your prize at any LOTTO Texas retailer. All winnings of $600 or more can be claimed at any of the Texas Lottery claim centers in any of the cities listed on the back of a How To Play brochure for LOTTO Texas. (That list is a little long for this ad.) You will also find the odds printed in that brochure. You can claim prizes through the mail, as well, by using a claim form that you pick up from any Texas Lottery retailer. Please make copies of the front and the back of your ticket before you send it in. The Texas Lottery is not responsible for tickets lost in the mail. All prizes must be claimed within 180 days of the drawing.

Finally, LOTTO Texas can be played up to 10 drawings (five weeks) in advance. If you want to play the same numbers for several drawings in a row, fill in the multi-draw box on your playslip with however many drawings you would like to play.

You must be 18 years or older to play. And when you are watching the televised drawings, your heart may pound a little. Your palms may sweat. Please do remember to have fun.

Tortured suitors: What makes them tick?

By KILEY ARMSTRONG
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It goes by many names. We'll call it love gone wrong — but with an obsessive and sometimes even fatal twist.

It's a respected judge, accused of threats and blackmail; a suburban girl, a gun and a wounded wife; a teacher convicted in a love-triangle murder. It's movie stars, or everyday folks, stalked by strangers; or ex-beloveds who can't take the hint.

What in the name of love is going on?

"One could reasonably infer this behavior is probably increasing," said Dr. Reid Meloy, a San Diego forensic psychologist who suspects American culture is experiencing "problems with attachment and bonding."

There are no reliable statistics on crimes spurred by rabid attraction.

But Susan Howley, a legislative analyst for the National Victims Center, senses "it's a big problem." At least 26 states passed laws this year that make stalking a specific category of crime, she said.

Jodie Foster, Michael J. Fox, Sharon Gless, David Letterman and skater Katarina Witt all have been targets of celebrity stalkers.

Irving Guller, a forensic psychologist at John Jay College of Criminal Justice, said people who harass strangers with letters, phone calls, photos, visits, slashed tires — or scarier stuff — may be schizophrenic or paranoid.

"Most people who get involved in stalking are losers," he said. "The rejection, or perceived rejection, by the person they are stalking is another major blow to an ego that is weak to start out with."

John Lennon's assassin, Mark David Chapman, was a fan who said the former Beatle had become a phony. He told investigators he shot Lennon 1980 to play out the role of Holden Caulfield, the troubled adolescent hero of J.D. Salinger's "The Catcher in the Rye."

That novel figured in the stalker-slaying of actress Rebecca Schaeffer in 1989. Robert John Bardo, an obsessed fan who wrote her a rambling love letter, told a psychiatrist he carried a copy of the book to emulate Lennon's killer when he shot her.

Guller said medication can trigger strange behavior. So can psychological coincidences: A person who was rejected by his or her mother at age 5 might lose control after being jilted by a lover for the first time.

But he said the obsessive is almost never a "focused, reality-oriented" person such as Sol Wachtler, who stepped down as New York state's chief judge this week after being arrested on charges he harassed and blackmailed his former lover. Authorities said the woman had broken off an affair with the married judge.

In other recent scandals, Carolyn Warmus, a young teacher in suburban Westchester County, was convicted in May of shooting to death the wife of her lover, then meeting him for drinks and sex. The case was likened to the movie "Fatal Attraction."

In September, 18-year-old Amy Fisher pleaded guilty on Long Island to shooting and wounding the wife of her alleged lover.

In Fort Lauderdale, Fla., a 66-year-old man was charged in July under the state's new stalking law. His 75-year-old former girlfriend said he called 20 times a day, watched her and even entered her home.

Meloy has become an expert in "erotomania," a psychological disorder that typically involves the pursuit of someone from a higher class or someone who's perceived as more successful. The erotomaniac deludes himself into thinking it's love.

But more common, said Meloy, is criminal behavior that stems from "abandonment rage." When spurned lovers don't properly mourn their loss, depression can escalate into revenge fantasies — or worse.

The question is, can the law keep victims safe?

Vivian Berger, vice dean of the Columbia Law School, questions how effective laws are when "stalkers and stalkees are intimately involved ... often in very embarrassing circumstances, for instance, adultery. The victim may be very reluctant to bring in authorities" until things get dangerous.

She also worries that some anti-stalking laws could trample constitutional protections of free speech and movement.

Cholesterol Discovery Passes Mom's Test

WASHINGTON -- The mother of a research scientist recently lowered her cholesterol more than 20% without changing her eating habits.

After a visit to her doctor, a Florida woman learned that her cholesterol level was an elevated 308 and she was encouraged to change her eating habits. When she returned 10 weeks later, the doctor was astounded that her cholesterol level had dropped to 243. Asked if she achieved the amazing results just by dieting she replied, "No I didn't diet at all, in fact I ate the things I shouldn't eat like bacon, sausage and ice cream. The only thing I did different was take some tablets my son gave me."

The woman's son is Dr. William Morris, director of research and development at National Dietary Research, an organization that seeks nutritional solutions to health problems. Dr. Morris admits that the tablets called Vancol 5000 were designed as a dietary supplement to be used with a low fat diet plan. "She just wanted to put the tablets to the test," says Dr. Morris. "Of course I was pleased with the results she achieved, but now were working on reducing some of the fat in her diet to lower her cholesterol even further."

Vancol 5000 is a chewable food tablet that contains extracts from foods known to lower cholesterol. According to the exclusive distributor for Vancol 5000, inquiries about the new discovery are being received from all over the country and has peaked the interest of doctors used to prescribing expensive cholesterol lowering drugs. A 30 day supply of the Vancol 5000 Cholesterol Lowering Plan is only $29.98.
