Guard answers call to battle blizzard

By ANGELA LEGGETT
Staff Writer

The role played by members of the Texas National Guard during the blizzard in Pampa this week was above and beyond the call of duty.

They worked endless hours without sleep, in bone-chilling temperatures without a break for hours.

"We were called in at 6 p.m. last night," said Sgt. Val Stone Wednesday morning. "I plan to be home by my anniversary, Dec. 2."

Most members had been at the office since early Tuesday and by late Wednesday they weren't complaining, but they appeared a little sleepy when they came back to the office from an assignment.

By 10 a.m. Wednesday, only five of the seven Armored Personnel Carrier (APC) vehicles were up and running. The other two were stuck.

"Our number one priority is to rescue stranded people by the order of the Department of Public Safety (DPS) and to assist with medical emergencies," Stone said. "Second is shift changes at work and then others on a case-by-case basis. The shots are called by the DPS."

Second in charge and required to stay in the office with Stone was Pampa Recruiter Sgt. Stevon Rainey who had been through the blizzard in Pampa in 1987.

"These usually last 2 to 3 days," he said.

He said in 1987 the National Guard worked constantly for nearly 30 hours assisting in the storm.

Stone, who is from Skellytown, had been through the Lake Meredith fire in 1990. He said he didn't know how long the Guard would be needed.

Fifteen men formed the rescue crew of the National Guard in Pampa.

Stone said he tried to rotate the men going out to let them rest, eat and get warm before they headed out again.

Stone and his crew did what they could to make the overnight guests comfortable, but the Hilton Hotel, it was not.

"What people we have here we have given blankets, sleeping bags and coffee," Stone said. "They have to get their own way home."

Approximately 17 people resided and tried to sleep in the armory Wednesday morning.

Richard and Elisa Thomas arrived at the armory because the Mazda RX7 they drove from Oklahoma City landed in drifts on the road.

"It really wasn't bad, just windy and drifting," he said. "We were out there from midnight Tuesday until 7:30 a.m. when they picked us up."

He and his wife slept in the car with the heater on.

"I brought an extra five gallons of gas," he said. "It was on empty when they found us and I was going to have to put in gas."

The Thomases were 25 miles east of Pampa near Wheeler when they were brought to the armory.

"It was an experience to ride in their vehicle (APC)," he said. "I did it once and hope never to do it again."

Jo Uptergrove, a Fritch resident, was headed to Fritch from Oklahoma when she got stranded.

"It was raining when I left," she said. "I was 10 miles out of town when I went off the road. Thank God for them (National Guard)."

She planned to get home as soon as possible.

"I'd like to go back and get my car, otherwise I'd like to get home," Uptergrove said.

Two men traveling from Amarillo made it all but five miles outside of Pampa when the truck load of food they were trying to deliver to Pampa got stuck.

"At 10:30 last night there were just too many cars," said Howard Poskoa. "It's warm here and we have coffee."

Another vehicle full of Pampa residents didn't appear happy they had been stranded at the armory.

"I am a little disappointed," said Robert Lawrence. "The roads were fine until we got four miles outside of Pampa."

Lawrence was the first vehicle behind a snowplow around 9 p.m. Tuesday when he was unable to travel any further. He said a lot of vehicles piled up behind him.

"This is the worst one (snowstorm) I've ever encountered," he said. "I am just ready to go home," his daughter, Tricia, said.

Lawrence said he hadn't seen anyone come into the armory that was badly hurt.

"Some were close to hypothermia and the National Guard brought in a nurse to give someone an IV who was a diabetic," he said.

They were thankful for the help, the warmth and hot coffee, but they were ready to go home.

All of those brought to the armory were reportedly safely home by Wednesday evening.

Some aid workers say U.S. troop proposal in Somalia risky

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — The country's main warlord today welcomed Washington's offer to send 30,000 troops to Somalia, saying he believed they would help him consolidate control over the country.

Gen. Mohamed Farrah Aidid has opposed foreign intervention to safeguard aid to the starving. In an hour-long news conference today, he expressed optimism that the U.S. troops would aid his efforts to govern through his Somali National Alliance.

The United States offered the troops only as part of a neutral U.N. peacekeeping force in the war- and famine-ravaged country.

U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali has made no decision on acting Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger's offer, which reportedly will be among the items considered by the Security Council next week when it deliberates an expanded role in Somalia.

The Los Angeles Times and CBS Radio reported today that U.S. ships carrying 2,000 Marines were sailing in the Indian Ocean toward Somalia.

The Pentagon today said three Marine amphibious ships were headed to the Persian Gulf region. But there's been no order to divert them to Somalia, said a Pentagon official.

"We have had a Marine presence in that area ever since the end of the Gulf War, but that doesn't preclude" switching the ships to a different mission off Somalia, said the Pentagon official, speaking on condition of anonymity from Washington.

The USS Tripoli, Juneau and the Rushmore are in the Indian Ocean off India and moving toward the central command area of operations, which includes the Persian Gulf, as well as Somalia, the Pentagon official added.

Aidid, who controls the country's south and most of Mogadishu, the capital, has been strongly opposed to U.N. intervention. The world body has authorized a 3,500-member peacekeeping force, but Aidid so far has only grudgingly allowed 500 to come, and even few to take up guard duties.

Aidid today repeatedly criticized U.N. efforts and said "we believe that the new initiative announced by the government of the United States, together with the political platform developed by the SNA, can put Somalia on solid ground from which to prosper economically, politically and socially."

Some relief officials are enthusiastic about the prospect of having U.S. soldiers guarding food convoys, but others fear an influx of armed Americans could turn Somalis against all outsiders, including aid workers.

Security is a major concern for relief agencies in Somalia, where food convoys have been repeatedly attacked by bandits and aid is stolen regularly from Mogadishu's port.

Some aid workers say at least half the food sent to the country has been stolen.

If the U.S. offer is accepted, it would mark largest deployment of U.S. troops in a U.N. operation since the Korean War. Only small groups of American soldiers have been involved in U.N. operations since then.

News staffers see rescue efforts up close and personal

By ANGELA LEGGETT
Staff Writer

The ride I am about to take you on is not for the faint of heart or feeble.

Staff photographer Dan Wiegert and I were invited to go out on a rescue mission with the Texas National Guard early Wednesday.

We accepted, but I had no idea what I was in for.

It wasn't long before I realized the challenge set forth to those trained at guard camps could only be experienced by getting out and doing what had to be done in a snow blizzard.

Less demanding, but none the less important than rescuing stranded motorists was the task of picking up doctors and prison guards and delivering them to the work to relieve those who had worked their shifts. Some medical personnel had been at the hospital for 24 hours or more.

Our mission began when the five of us set out in a 1968 M113 Armored Personnel Carrier (APC) that had been overhauled in 1982.

"When the vehicles are used in combat they hold 12 men," said Brad Love, Pampa Guard member. "The duffel bags go on top with the supplies. Four of the men stand up in the back with one in charge of air security with an automatic machine gun and one watching the back. With personal gear, a much-needed water tank and equipment, it is very cramped."

National Guard member Love was the driver, Dwayne Kimbrell was the track commander (he sat in the middle of the APC and looked out small windows watching the path around the vehicle) and Department of Public Safety Trooper Hector Dominguez of Pampa was along to assist.

Destination — 20 miles north of Pampa — ground no one dared travel since the storm hit early Tuesday. Mission — to rescue two men who got stuck in the storm around 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Early Wednesday morning they made it to a sheltered building with a telephone and called for help.

I quickly noticed after climbing in the back of the 11-ton vehicle that everything around me was painted green. There were no seat belts, but a strap hung every 18 inches from the ceiling. Doors were everywhere, but there were no windows. Central heat was not a comfort in this vehicle. It did not come equipped with rearview mirrors.

As we headed out of town

(Staff photo by Daniel Wiegert) Members of the Texas National Guard prepare to load into two Armored Personnel Carriers 20 miles north of Pampa Wednesday afternoon.

Dominguez was trying to sleep with a blanket over his lap and his head down. It looked uncomfortable, but there was nothing else to do. You could not talk because the noise of the tracks moving the vehicle were so loud. I noticed a caution sign suggesting something about hearing protection.

We were traveling along at about 25 mph. Suddenly Kimbrell turned around and said, "Hang on."

At that point a loud band was heard and the vehicle was jolted.

Guard members jumped out to check the rig and I soon discovered a grader with a huge blade backed into us when we were at a near standstill. After surveying the minor dent in the APC, we were off and rolling again.

The loud, cold, uncomfortable ride to rescue the snowed-in victims lasted about 45 minutes and sometimes felt like a roller coaster or Scrambler ride at a local amusement park.

I took a peek out the six, 2-inch-by-6-inch windows Kimbrell was using to keep on eye on things and all I saw was snow in every direction.

Suddenly, to our amazement the vehicle stopped in its tracks.

"Do you want me to drive?" Kimbrell asked.

Love said he didn't know why the APC stopped. He didn't do anything to kill the engine.

"Is that where we are headed?" Love asked as he pointed to the shelter three-fourths of a mile away.

Dominguez said that it had to be because it was the only thing out here.

Kimbrell and Dominguez headed to the shelter to call for help leaving the rest of us with the vehicle.

Love said there was fluid on the ground from the engine. It appeared something happened to the radiator and the gauges had not registered the problem, Love said.

"These things are durable," he said. "They can be driven for hours on end in twice the snowdrifts we've gone through and nothing ever happens. I would have expected us to have trouble with one of the tracks before I would have thought this would happen."

We sat in the vehicle with all of the doors closed watching to see what would happen.

"It was doing good, going along great," Love said.

I could feel the temperature of my toes decreasing as time passed.

I took this opportunity to ask Love why he decided to be in the National Guard.

"I certainly don't do this for the pay," he said. "My dad was in the Guard 15 years ago and he hated it."

Love has served nearly eight years.

"I've had training in the snow," said Love who is also an officer with Pampa Police Department. "Last night in patrol cars we couldn't get out and do anything. In one of these it's a lot easier."

Finally Dominguez returned to the vehicle to say two APCs would come and get us, but it would be two hours because they were all out rescuing people.

After several turns of the ignition switch the vehicle did not start and we headed to the shelter up the hill, through the snowdrifts with coffee and cups.

It was warm inside! Much warmer than the APC will ever be.

Everyone rested, our victims welcomed the company.

Casey Vetter and Shawn Hernandez had been trying to return to their home in Amarillo from Garden City, Kan. They headed out at 9 a.m. Monday.

Study: Genes influence risk of divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Genes may play a substantial role in the risk of divorce, apparently in large part by influencing personality, a new study suggests.

A survey of 1,516 sets of twins found that identical twins, who are more alike genetically than are fraternal twins, were also more alike in their rate of divorce.

The genetic effect would not come from any single "divorce gene," nor would it doom people to divorce, said study co-author David Lykken.

Environmental factors like cultural influences would still play a big role in divorce risk, the researchers said.

Lykken and Matt McGue, psychology professors at the University of Minnesota, present their study in the November issue of the journal Psychological Science. McGue said another research team has found similar results in another study of American twins.

In interviews, some scientists agreed with the conclusion of Lykken and McGue's study, but others said the identical twins' similarity may have resulted from their growing up together. Lykken said other studies have shown that identical twins reared apart are just as similar on many measures as are those who grew up together.

The study involved 722 pairs of identical twins and 794 pairs of same-sex fraternal twins, ages 34 to 53. They answered a questionnaire in 1989 about marriage and divorce. About one-fifth of the participants had been divorced.

If genes influence divorce risk, researchers said, identical twins should show more similarity in divorce history because they are identical genetically. Fraternal twins share only half their genes on average.

Researchers asked: if one twin in a pair had been divorced, what was the likelihood that the second twin had been divorced too? The answer was 45 percent for identical twins and 30 percent for fraternal twins.

The study "makes perfect sense," although the strength of the genetic influence vs. that of environment is unclear, said psychologist Mavis Hetherington of the University of Virginia.

She also said that, although the study contributes to understanding divorce, she could not think of a practical way to use the information in preventing divorces.

Richard Rose, a behavioral geneticist at Indiana University in Bloomington, said a large Finnish study in 1975 found no difference in divorce between identical and fraternal twins. That may mean the Minnesota study does not apply universally, although the Finnish divorce rate was low in 1975 and another twin study there now might yield results like those from Minnesota, he said.

Rose said other research has consistently found identical twins to be more alike in behavior, life choices and life outcomes than fraternal twins.

The new evidence of a genetic influence in divorce is "neither surprising nor disturbing," he said.

But Neil Kalter, a University of Michigan psychologist, said genes are not the only explanation for the findings, because identical twins, unlike fraternal twins, often grow up expecting to be similar and face enormous psychological pressure from adults to be similar.

Holiday retail sales outlook appears good

By The Associated Press

Buoyed by months of steadily rising sales, the retail industry appears on the verge of its best holiday shopping season since 1988.

Several signs pointed to a better Christmas season as retailers awaited today's traditional start — the day after Thanksgiving, when stores and malls are mobbed.

Most important is the fact that "sales have been steadily moving up since last spring," said Daniel Barry, a retail industry analyst with Merrill Lynch & Co.

Surveys, including one released Tuesday by the Conference Board, have shown consumer confidence improving. The business research organization also found U.S. households will increase their spending of Christmas gifts to an average of $400 from $377 last year.

With sales faring better, retailers are generally optimistic, according to The Taubman Co., a big shopping center developer and manager that surveyed 50 large retailers across the country.

However, consultant Walter Loeb said, "The retailer remains wary." After being burned by three straight disappointing Christmas seasons, they've learned a conservative approach is the safest.

Loeb predicted an industrywide increase of between 6 percent and 6.5 percent.

It kept snowing and snowing ...

Residents coped with the holiday blizzard in many ways. Top left, Loel Box shovels snow on Kingsmill Wednesday. Top right, plowed snow mounts up at the railroad overpass on Cuyler Street. At right, National Guard member Dewayne Kimbrell and Department of Public Safety Trooper Hector Dominguez stop to see how a trucker is doing in the cold temperatures as they went out of town to rescue two stranded motorists 20 miles north of Pampa on Wednesday.

Rescue

Hernandez said, "We slid off the road in Kansas, hit a car in Oklahoma and now we are stranded in Texas. We thought we could at least make it to Pampa."

Hernandez was driving the 1963 Chevrolet Bel Air when it hit a snowdrift that they did not see, he said.

"My folks had the DPS looking for us in all three states," said Vetter who was on crutches.

Hernandez said he had ridden in a APC, but Vetter never had.

The warmed coffee seemed to alleviate the hunger pangs. Many had not eaten for nearly 12 hours.

Our rescue team of five men and two vehicles arrived on schedule. After stopping to survey the condition of the dead vehicle they headed up the road into the heated building to get warm.

We all loaded up and headed out. As we approached town we stopped numerous times and Guardsmen insisted drivers heading north return to town. A short time later we made it to the armory.

They don't do this for fun, I thought to myself as I was being driven through town. Never once did I feel that my safety was threatened or that the challenge that lay ahead would be too great to overcome with the assistance of the National Guard.

Dominguez said, "We might have broken down, but I guarantee they did a great job."

The weary crew ate dinner at a cafe on U.S. 60, east of Pampa. They would later be sent out U.S. 60 to rescue the drivers of four trucks before trying to close up shop for the night.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Texas Editorials

Port Arthur News on Clinton transition:

The American system of choosing presidents has its share of flaws, but the smooth transfer of power between President Bush and President-elect Clinton is a tribute to both men.

With such a nasty campaign leading up to Election Day, many observers feared that the all-important presidential transition wouldn't be handled so well.

But for a change, both Bush and Clinton seem to realize they're dealing with something bigger and more important than either individual and are acting accordingly.

For a relatively young country, the heritage of trouble-free transition between leaders is one of our best traditions.

San Angelo Standard-Times on school audits:

Few would disagree that periodic audits of Texas school districts are proper and a useful check on how taxpayers' money is being spent.

But release of information on audits of 55 districts, and promises by Gov. Ann Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and House Speaker Gib Lewis to audit all districts, raised questions about the timing and purpose behind the announcements.

It seems likely the three state leaders were less interested in guarding tax dollars than in deflecting criticism and sending a warning shot across the bow of the state's public school administrators and school board officials.

If they believe in their "Fair Share" plan, the governor, lieutenant governor and speaker ought to make it clear why and challenge the education lobby to offer something better.

In the meantime, let's proceed with the school audits — but without politicizing them and raising Texans' cynicism about the way government functions.

The El Paso Times on "mainstreaming":

The Texas education system is in enough trouble already, trying to fund schools fairly, without having to deal with more anxieties.

Now the state Board of Education is being asked to change special education from separate-but-equal to a program of mainstreaming children with disabilities.

The goal is to prepare children with learning disabilities for the real world by having them study with their peers. But not all parents and teachers agree inclusion is the solution. Before the board approves, it should think carefully about the effects on the learning potential of every child.

But even more important, what is the real purpose of the proposal? If it's to cut costs by eliminating some special education programs, the move may be counterproductive. Nearly every teacher will have to be retrained and every classroom will have to be adapted to the disabled student.

Every child has a right to a good education, but learning differences are real, and we must accept them.

Four million victims of a czar

The facts, so far as we know them, must be stated with brutal candor. Alzheimer's disease is an incurable disease. From this devastating illness, no man or woman recovers. Death comes slowly, pitifully, inexorably. As many as 4 million victims of Alzheimer's are suffering the progressive deterioration of mental and bodily functions that marks the disease.

These millions of human beings are victims not only of Alzheimer's but also of Dr. David Kessler, commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration. He is the all-powerful czar whose decrees finally govern the availability of new drugs.

The commissioner has it in his power to give Alzheimer's patients access to a drug, tacrine, that may be of soon benefit to some patients. He will not act. Within the past month, two separate studies have come to the same conclusion: The drug will not benefit all patients — no one ever thought it would — but it will benefit some and it will not significantly harm any.

Who owns our bodies, anyhow? How is it consistent with the ideals of a free society for one man, a bureaucrat, to dictate to all physicians what they may and may not prescribe? I rarely use the word "outrageous," but I find something deeply, wildly outrageous in the power exercised by Commissioner Kessler.

The first of the two studies appeared in the New England Journal of Medicine on Oct. 29. In some ways it was discouraging. Headline in The New York Times: "Alzheimer's Drug Disappoints." The researchers concluded that some patients showed some improvement, but not many and not much.

A much more encouraging study appeared on Nov. 11 in the Journal of the American Medical Association. This reported a controlled trial of tacrine over a period of 12 weeks. In a test of the drug's efficacy, 468 patients at 23 medical centers were divided into two groups. One group received tacrine in controlled dosages; the other group received placebo — imitation tablets of no pharmacological value.

The double-blind study found that 51 percent of the patients receiving tacrine at 80 milligrams a day showed "significant improvement." The researchers, led by Dr. Martin Farlow of Indiana University, say the results "confirm the efficacy and safety of tacrine in some patients with Alzheimer's disease."

One control group received 20 milligrams of tacrine a day, another group received 40, and a third received 80. The patients steadily were assessed according to standardized measures of Alzheimer's progression. Researchers "paired" subjects for comparative purposes.

This was the good news: The comparisons were significant "for word recall, naming objects and fingers, language and word finding." Improvement was most marked within the 80-milligram group, but at least some mild and temporary improvement turned up at every dosage.

The cognitive improvement shown by the standardized tests also was recognized in subjective evaluations by the physician and the caregiver. These results, said Dr. Farlow, suggest important quality-of-life improvements for a substantial proportion of patients and their families.

Both studies found the same adverse side effects. Neither study regarded these as serious. About one-fourth of those taking tacrine developed some increase in levels of liver enzymes, but the condition was easily reversible. No signs appeared of hepatitis or jaundice. Other side effects included nausea (7.5 percent), diarrhea (5.2), abdominal pain (3.9), dyspepsia (3.1) and rash (2.8).

Will these findings impress Czar Kessler? Nothing in the field has impressed him so far. He has authorized a much larger study in which 4,200 Alzheimer's patients are participating, but results will not be available for many months to come.

In the meantime, victims who might benefit from tacrine cannot legally get it. Kessler adamantly refuses to accord them even a chance to see if the drug would help. Not a chance! Anyone who attempts to smuggle the drug into the United States is subject to criminal prosecution.

How can this be justified? Enough evidence is now at hand to permit the families of terminally ill patients to make their own judgments about tacrine. We are talking about a possible improvement in the quality of life for those facing certain death. Only Commissioner Kessler stands in the way. Once more I ask, out of compassion for his victims, whoever elected him God?

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Nov. 27, the 332nd day of 1992. There are 34 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

Fifty years ago, on Nov. 27, 1942, during World War II, the French navy at Toulon scuttled its ships and submarines to prevent them from falling into the hands of the Nazis.

On this date:

In 1839, the American Statistical Association was founded in Boston.

In 1901, Army War College was established in Washington D.C.

In 1910, New York's Pennsylvania Station opened.

In 1939, the play "Key Largo," by Maxwell Anderson, opened at the Ethel Barrymore Theater in New York.

In 1945, Gen. George C. Marshall was named special U.S. envoy to China to try to end hostilities between the Nationalists and the Communists.

Hopefully Clinton has some fortitude

Given George Bush's affinity for constitutional amendments, I thought he would go for it three years ago when I suggested yet another one:

"In the course of conducting International Affairs, the President shall be compelled from time to time to cast aside the narrow interests of Commerce and Politics, and occasionally even Strategy, and act out of Moral Imperative."

Looking back on it, I can now see why the president didn't buy the idea. If he were forced to consider morality in the conduct of foreign affairs, he would've had to tell the Chinese tyrants who murdered pro-democracy demonstrators in Tiananmen Square to kiss off. He would've had to break relations with Peruvian putschist Alberto Fujimoria until democracy is restored in that country. And he would've had to do something about the Serbian ultra-nationalists who have butchered countless thousands of men, women and children in Bosnia-Herzegovina.

That would have been out of character for our pragmatic president and his utilitarian secretary of state cum chief of staff, James Baker, the most devout practitioners of realpolitik to steer the ship of state since Richard Nixon and Henry Kissinger abetted despots because their governments were stable.

It totally befores the brain to contemplate how the leader of the free world could effectively ignore the unspeakable horrors that are being perpetrated upon the people of Bosnia. Reports that conjure up Hitlerian nightmares began trickling into the State

Joseph Spear

Department nearly a year ago. Serbian nationalists in Bosnia, aided by the Serbian government, were massacring Slavic Muslims by the thousands.

In the town of Breko, 2,000 to 3,000 Muslims were executed last spring at a brick factory and a pig farm. In July, a hundred women in Biscani were shot in the back and their bodies left in the road for days. In August, 200 men and boys were shot on a mountain road and dumped into a canyon. Thousands more have been tossed into putrid concentration camps. Women are often raped, men beaten to death at the slightest provocation.

The reports stirred outrage among many politicians in the United States. "You can't allow the mass extermination of people, and just sit by and watch it happen," said Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton. "Why didn't we respond to this aggression 12 months ago?" asked Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan. Sen. Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., suggested war crimes trials. "You can get yourself hung for running a concentration camp," he said. "We should see to it that in time some people get hung."

And where was Bush? When press reports about the atrocities began appearing in August, he held news conferences on three successive days to denounce the "vile policy of ethnic cleansing" and to urge the American people to understand there was not a lot he could do about it. He would push for passage of a U.N. resolution authorizing "all necessary measures" to bring an end to the fighting, but that was basically it.

That was basically it, as well, for Bush's effort to stop the slaughter. No passionate protest that a sovereign nation was under siege — just as Kuwait had been. No "line in the sand." No "this will not stand." No rallying of our pusillanimous European allies, who should have been wreaking unremitting diplomatic, if not military grief upon Serbia for months.

It is not necessary to get involved in a land war in the Balkans. Why not air attacks? What if we leveled the playing field by supplying the helpless Bosnians with arms and let them at least defend themselves? What if our leader simply stood tall, day in and day out, and denounced the barbarities and condemned the Serbs as murderous scoundrels?

Will Bill Clinton's manual of diplomacy include a chapter on moral considerations? For the sake of besieged peoples everywhere, and for the sake of American pride, I pray so.

Celebrating cellular

On Nov. 23, the 10-millionth American will be enrolled as a subscriber to a cellular telephone system. That is only nine years after the inception of the industry, and about 30 years ahead of schedule.

There are some lessons and observations to be gleaned from the rapid growth of cellular:

Beware of experts. AT&T invented cellular and engaged McKinsey, a respected management firm, to forecast the likely growth path for cellular phones. McKinsey's estimate was not 10 million in 1992 — but 900,000 by the year 2000. Not enough, said AT&T, and didn't proceed on certain cellular lines. Last week, recognizing their error, AT&T bought a one-third interest in McCaw Cellular Communications. The cost was $3.8 billion, which, as these things are denominated, is more than one Perot.

Consumers know best. Cellular was originally envisioned as mostly a car phone for businesses. It can indeed form new enterprises and increase the productivity of old ones. Cellular can make a cab driver into an on-call limo service. A real estate broker with a cellular-modem-fax-laptop in the car doesn't waste much time in the office. A farmer on a tractor deals with his accountant.

But now it turns out that most cellular phone sales are neither for cars nor for businesses. Parents give a cellular phone to a daughter out on a date, lessening worry ("Dear, it's past curfew. Where are you, dear?") Mothers on the way home from work pick up kids at soccer practice while calling the supermarket for a delivery. Cellular companies did not start the evil practice of car-jacking, but they benefit from it.

Ben Wattenberg

(Press auto-dial to get a cop, quick.)

Beware of governments trying to be experts. There is some talk in Clintonland about "industrial policy," the belief that the U.S. government should engage in economic planning to bolster certain classes of products. But if experts can't pick winners because they can't predict consumer behavior, what chance does government have?

How bad was that recession? About 7 million new cellular customers came on line during the last three years, purchasing a not-inexpensive service, when the economy was allegedly in the pits.

American businesses can still do it. The American cellular industry has created 100,000 new jobs, and leads the world. Prices for the phones are way down. (As opposed to the phone service charges, which are only inching down.) Quality is way up. A portable phone used to be called "a brick" or a "bag phone." Motorola, the world's biggest cellular company, produces the lightest unit, 5.9 ounces. The Dick Tracy wristwatch/phone is on its way.

Americans are working in Russia, Eastern Europe, China, Brazil and India to build new cellular systems, bypassing the huge costs involved in copper-wiring.

There are ways to regulate wisely. The Federal Communications Commission was a little slow to act, but then set up two competitors in each of 734 markets — and was smart enough to mostly get out of the way. Now new technologies are coming. The FCC will license more competitors, and will try to stay even more out of the way.

Great inventions are liberating. New technology was supposed to be regimenting. But that's not what happened. Technology yields personal freedom, an American specialty. It is not an accident that most of the remarkable modern inventions come from America.

Air conditioning lets people live most anywhere in America. Airplanes let people go most anywhere. Television and VCRs let people be informed and entertained, most anywhere, most anytime. Home office equipment — PC's with modems and faxes — let people work most anywhere they choose to live. Telephones let people talk to most anyone, most anywhere a wire comes out of a wall. Cellular lets people talk to people, even without a wall, or a wire.

The inventions expand, enhance and export the American way of life. Americans are properly worried about "values" these days. But liberation, and the "individualism" that comes with it, is a key American value. Pushed by technology, liberation is sweeping the world. It's fostering democracy. That's becoming our foreign policy. And we are in for lots more of it.

New gateway cities open way to old Soviet Union

By NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC For AP Special Features

New gateway cities are prying open the defunct Soviet empire, once known for its near-paranoid obsession with heavily guarded borders, to a flood of ideas, goods and people.

In the process, Moscow, once called the "Third Rome" as the center of the Byzantine world and later of the communist state, has been downgraded as a port of call.

"Lights are blinking on cities once controlled by Moscow and captured in the Soviet system," says geographer George J. Demko, a Russian-affairs specialist at Dartmouth College. "New connections are being established beyond the old Soviet borders, and new internal and external regional 'geographies' are being created."

International airlines, carrying hordes of businessmen and diplomats, have been among the first to bypass Moscow, long the nucleus of a Soviet empire that stretched 11 time zones across one-sixth of Earth.

By all accounts, the Turks have led the way.

Turkish Airlines, which previously flew only from Istanbul to Moscow, has opened routes to the capital cities of Alma Ata in Kazakhstan, Tashkent in Uzbekistan and Baku in Azerbaijan on the Caspian Sea, a spokesman says.

Turkish businessmen are flooding the markets with goods as disparate as cheap clothing, hard-to-get pharmaceuticals and building supplies. Russians and Central Asians are frequent fliers the other way, too. They find Istanbul a seller's Mecca for their handicrafts and religious icons, which fetch precious U.S. dollars.

More than 50 hours of Turkish television news and entertainment are broadcast every week to the five former Soviet Central Asian republics. Four of these now independent states speak languages closely related to Turkish.

Germany's Lufthansa has recently inaugurated nonstop flights from Frankfurt to Alma Ata. The mountainous capital of Kazakhstan is well on its way to becoming gateway to the vast region of "Turkistan," which was split in 1924 into the five Central Asian republics united by Islam.

Among the first passengers on the new service were expected to be diplomats who staff a host of new embassies in the Kazakh capital, and oilmen from the United States, Britain and France, representing companies that have signed lucrative deals with the Alma Ata government in recent months.

On the Baltic Sea, Estonia's capital of Tallinn and Latvia's capital of Riga are joining Helsinki, Finland, in expanding their avenues into Russia itself. "The Baltics are bound to benefit from the diminishing centralization," Demko says.

Traditional gateway cities such as Helsinki, across the Gulf of Finland from St. Petersburg on Russia's edge, are geographically well-situated entry points, with political, economic, cultural, tourist and transportation advantages.

On the Pacific, Vladivostok once was seen only from U.S. spy satellites or through submarine periscopes, but no more. The headquarters of the Russian Pacific fleet has become a leading Pacific Rim trading center and gateway, especially handy for such economic giants as South Korea, Japan and Taiwan.

An American consulate has reopened in Vladivostok after being closed for more than four decades. Alaska Airlines plans flights from Anchorage next spring.

"There are probably more Americans in Vladivostok now," says a U.S. State Department official, "than at any time since the American intervention at the end of World War I." The last U.S. Marines, part of an allied expeditionary force that included British and Japanese (National Geographic photo) The Suleiman Mosque dominates this view of Istanbul. Turkey is opening new gateways to the former Soviet Union. Flights from Istanbul now service the capital cities of Alma Ata in Kazakhstan and Tashkent in Uzbekistan in Central Asia.

Widow has news for beaus: Keep your hands to yourself

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell me why most men think that just because a woman is a widow, she's sex-starved and ready to jump into bed with the first man who asks her?

I have dated several eligible bachelors and I enjoy going to dinner and lunch, but the minute they get me alone, they have six hands — and I have to defend myself.

They say, "All women like to be fondled and petted." Abby, I am an older widow — still attractive — and I enjoy conversing with men. Why don't they realize that two people should get acquainted, and if they enjoy each other's company, perhaps in time the sparks will fly. If not, back off! Why spoil a good friendship by being an octopus?

I am neither sex-starved nor lonely. I enjoy good company and a man's point of view on various subjects. I have tried to tell them that, but they think I'm kidding.

The one man I could really go for has done nothing but give me a hug and an occasional kiss. I'll choose a gentleman anytime. Please print this, Abby. I have four men in mind who need to learn this.

TIRED OF FIGHTING

DEAR TIRED: Here's your letter. Clip this, make copies, and mail them to the four octopuses you have in mind.

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, I was in a large drugstore with my infant son. There was a woman in the store with two boys who looked to be about 3 to 6 years old.

The older boy took a couple of steps away from his mother and, in a small voice, asked a clerk, "Do you have any toys?" His mother yanked him to her and shook him roughly by his neck, yelling at him and using a lot of filthy language. The other boy just stood by quietly, while his brother cried. This made

Dear Abby

the mother angrier, so she continued to shake him.

I was stunned. My heart ached and I wanted to cry. There were other people who saw this, but nobody did anything.

If that woman could do that in public, it made me wonder how she treats her children at home. I regret not having said something. Was there anything I could have done?

SORRY NOW

DEAR SORRY: I have received letters such as yours many times over the years. This was my reply:

DEAR MOTHER: The scene you witnessed involved a person out of control. You could have very gently and quietly attempted to calm the woman by saying, "I know exactly how you feel. Sometimes taking a child that age shopping is more than we can handle." Without being judgmental, in a soft and sympathetic tone, you would have intervened and brought an out-of-control woman back to reality.

This sometimes takes more courage than most people have in today's "mind-your-own-business" society, but to do nothing while witnessing child abuse is indefensible.

Readers, there is now a toll-free National Child Abuse Hotline (in the U.S.A.) for adults to call when they feel they are losing control. Dial 1-800-422-4453.

For everyone — teens to seniors — "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal with It." To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Knowles named to board

Robert Knowles of Pampa was elected to the executive board of the Golden Spread Council, Boy Scouts of America, on Nov. 19.

Paul Harpole, Amarillo, was elected president of the council. He has been chairman of Golden Eagle District and was recognized as an award of merit recipient and has served two years as council vice president.

Other officers elected were vice presidents Mark White, Doyle Moore, Bill Quackenbush, Ron Langley and Scott Carlberg; treasurer, Bob Lee; assistant treasurer, Coyt Webb; and commissioner, Bob Russell.

Lake Meredith Museum plans bazaar

Lake Meredith Aquatic and Wildlife Museum plans to present its annual Christmas bazaar on Dec. 5 and 6.

The museum is requesting donations of hand crafted items, baked goods and cash for the bazaar. There will be an area set aside for the adults to shop and the annex room of the museum will be set up for children's shopping. Elf helpers will be available to assist children.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

HER NAME HAS BECOME PART OF OUR LANGUAGE—JEZEBEL!

IT HAS BEEN A CUSTOM, IN MODERN TIMES, WHEN A WOMAN ATTRACTS AND SEEMS TO EXERT UNDUE INFLUENCE OVER A MAN, OR MANY MEN, FOR PEOPLE TO CALL HER A JEZEBEL. HOWEVER, NO MODERN COUNTERPART COULD EVER COMPETE WITH THE ORIGINAL JEZEBEL FOR DOWNRIGHT EVIL AND MURDEROUS ACTS! BORN A PHOENICIAN PRINCESS, DAUGHTER OF KING ETHBAAL, SHE MARRIED KING AHAB OF ISRAEL (CIRCA 865 B.C.) AND, IN SHORT ORDER, COMPLETELY DOMINATED THIS WEAK-WILLED RULER. ONCE AHAB WAS UNDER HER CONTROL, JEZEBEL IMMEDIATELY SET ABOUT DESTROYING ISRAEL'S RELIGION AND REPLACING IT WITH THE WORSHIP OF BAAL AND ASTARTE, PHOENICIAN DIETIES OF HER HOMETLAND....

...SHE INSTALLED, IN THE PALACE, AND SUPPORTED, NINE HUNDRED PRIESTS OF THIS HEATHEN RELIGION AND, IN TURN, HUNTED DOWN THE PRIESTS OF ISRAEL AND SLAUGHTERED THEM WHERE EVER SHE COULD! LOUNGING IN ORIENTAL LUXURY IN THE PALACE, SHE DIRECTED THE POLICIES OF THE KINGDOM, WHILE AHAB SAT WEEKLY BY HER SIDE, NEVER DARING TO DISPUTE HER. HER SCHEMINGS, HER CRUELITIES, AND HER PASSION FOR BLOOD-SPILLING ARE RECORDED IN THE BOOK OF 1 KINGS. ONLY ELIJAH, THE GREAT PROPHET, STOOD UP AGAINST THIS WICKED QUEEN AND FOUGHT HER EVIL INFLUENCE AT EVERY TURN. HER OWN DEATH AND DESTRUCTION WAS PREDICTED BY THE PROPHET AND TOOK PLACE EXACTLY AS HE PROPHESED IT WOULD! (1 KINGS 9:30-37)

Central Baptist plans performance of Christmas pageant 'That Night'

By ANGELA LEGGETT
Staff Writer

For the fourth season in a row, the music ministry of Central Baptist Church will perform a pageant presentation of "That Night".

"We are trying to achieve a majestic pageantry that moves and spellbounds the audience," said Zan Walker, minister of youth and music at the church. "Each year we add and change things so it will be fresh. We do it so people will want to come back."

In the production this year, new scenes will include Jesus on trial before Pilot, resurrection from the tomb and Satan's temptation to Jesus during the 40 days in the wilderness.

"The character of Satan is going to be introduced for the first time," he said. "Satan wears an elaborate flowing black cape. By introducing his presence the performance has an artistic flair."

"At the end there will be a family cast call. A finale."

The show is scheduled to last approximately an hour and a half.

"There are 114 members in the cast and they range from a 3-month-old baby Jesus to choir members in their 60s," said Walker.

It will be presented by the sanctuary choir at 7 p.m. Dec. 5, 6 and 7. Handbells will begin at 6:45 p.m.

Those wanting to attend the free production need to contact the church office for tickets. Approximately 800 tickets will be available each night.

"The whole purpose of the tickets is to control the crowd," he said. "No one will be turned away."

Overflow seating can be arranged to see that everyone is able to view the performance, he said. Only the first year were there reports of less than the maximum number of seats filled each night.

The expense to put the pageant together is minimal because of the time, labor and materials that are donated, Walker said.

Ten to 15 costumes were added to the 1992 performance. They are retained from last year and part of them are from the theatrical department of West Texas.

Lou Ann Seabourn, an instructor at West Texas State University, is helping with the theatrics of with show, Walker said.

Also assisting with the production is Jim Elliot, a lighting professional with the Amarillo Civic Center.

"He will be doing the lighting and special effects which will add a complete and new dimension," he said.

The scenery is also updated to add a new look to the production.

"This year one of the big scenes is the 9-by-11 foot tomb used for the resurrection of Jesus," Walker said.

Walker compiled the script from a number of different sources.

"Music pieces have been added so the performance can be new and different for those who have previously seen the production," he said.

Members will partake in a full week of rehearsals, he said.

"All scenes are practiced individually and then put together," Walker said. "It has been under way since August because it is a major presentation."

Graham's crusade reaps response in Moscow's Stadium

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

March 17-21 to be telecast via satellite throughout Europe.

Billy Graham, once criticized as being used by the former Soviet Union, seems now to have instead swung many of its people his way — toward Christianity.

Back from his first public crusade in the ideologically shaken, economically struggling land hardened by decades of atheist indoctrination, Graham said he was pleased by his reception.

"I didn't think many people would respond at all. But boy, how they came."

He drew crowds that broke records at Moscow's Olympic Stadium, and he said a bigger percentage of them indicated decisions for Christ than had ever done so in his half century of ministry around the world.

The unusual impact seemed to justify the evangelist's past trips there, including his speaking at a Soviet peace conference in 1982 despite U.S. State Department objections.

"If we hadn't gone in '82, I don't think we would have been going now," he said in an interview. "It was a sort of pioneering that opened the door. A lot of people in the West criticized. But I felt God wanted me to go."

"We have to give all the credit for that to the Lord. I put it in God's hands and I believe he led all the way. I knew from the beginning, he was saying in my heart, you go. It will open doors for you to preach the Gospel. That's exactly what happened."

Graham, 74, returned to his home near Montreat, N.C., last week from two months in Russia and in Germany where he's planning a "pro-Christ '93" crusade to conduct a school of evangelism and is to be the main speaker at the annual congressional "prayer breakfast" Feb. 3 in Washington.

In Graham's Moscow crusade Oct. 23-25, he said an average of 45,000 people overflowed the stadium each night, exceeding the 38,000 record at the Goodwill Games in 1988. An average 14,000, about 27 percent, made commitments each night.

That was the highest percentage ever in Graham's long career, he said, compared to about 5 percent or 6 percent at crusades in the United States.

"They're searching for something," he said. "They don't know man is made for fellowship with God. They've done without him all these years and feel a big emptiness. What they're searching for is God, but don't know it. They hear the simple Gospel message and they respond to it."

"I tried to tell them how hard it is to be a Christian. I didn't want them to think it was easy. I told them it would be tough, that they may be disowned by family, disowned by people they work with. Atheism is still strong."

In the services, he said "there were no gimmicks, no literature, no music during the invitation," simply the shuffling of thousands of feet coming forward. "It was like the Holy Spirit came down in mighty power."

At the final service, 50,000 people jammed the stadium, he said. "The people broke doors down. The police couldn't hold the people back. Some doors just shattered, and the people just surged in."

by bernice bede osol

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your sales' resistance might be at a very low ebb today. You must be careful that a smooth peddler doesn't coerce you into parting with funds you shouldn't lose. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Partnership arrangements might not work out too well for you today, so instead of teaming up with someone to accomplish a purpose, try to do it unaided.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you think of it first you're likely to be willing to assist others today. Conversely, when people make demands, you're apt to become resentful and resistant.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You may not be too comfortable in activities today where you feel you must comply to social dictates. You'll have more fun doing things that aren't too structured.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be more effective today if you are less assertive or aggressive. Trying to bully your way through a situation could evoke a hostile response.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you might have to deal with a person whose basic ideas will conflict with yours. This could turn into an ugly development if either party tries to impose their views on the other.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Trying to cut a business deal that's too one-sided isn't apt to work today. If you want to get a lot, you're going to have to give a lot.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Try to avoid situations today where you feel impelled to take a position diametrically opposed to your mate's way of thinking. Be flexible.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're not likely to perform as competently as you should if you feel self-imposed pressure to get a job done. Don't add any straws to the camel's back.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Go along with the group today instead of attempting to delegate assignments to your peers. If you do, they'll vote you out of the office.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you attempt to do something and fail today, don't start looking around for scapegoats. Instead, review your mistakes so you won't repeat them next time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Generally speaking, most friends welcomed your advice or criticism yesterday, but today the opposite could be true. Try to keep your comments to yourself.

IRVING (AP) — Emmitt Smith changed shoes then he changed the New York Giants' attitude.

"I changed shoes at halftime because I was slipping around," Smith said. "In the second half, I think I showed what I could do. They had me stopped pretty good for awhile."

Indeed, Smith caught a touchdown pass and ran 68-yards for another score as the Dallas Cowboys rolled to a 30-3 victory over the Giants Thanksgiving Day.

"I was impressed with Emmitt," said Giants defensive end Leonard Marshall. "I think he could be the best running back of all time, better than Walter Payton."

Smith, the NFL's 1991 leading rusher, ran 17 times for 120 yards and caught six passes for 41 yards. He turned a short pass from Troy Aikman into a 23-yard touchdown as he scored two passes in a period of 2:50 in the third quarter.

Dallas is now 10-2 with 10 days off before its next game in Denver while the Giants dropped to 5-7.

"We're 10-2 and I think we would have been excited to have that before the season began," said quarterback Troy Aikman. "We've had a hard schedule and we've handled it. Now we have a tough test of three-straight road games coming up."

Dallas, which earned its 300th club victory, can clinch a playoff spot on Sunday if Tampa Bay ties or defeats the Green Bay Packers.

Lin Elliott kicked three field goals including a career-long 53-yarder as the Cowboys put the Giants in jeopardy of making the playoffs.

"I had to hit the 53-yarder but I did hit it perfect," said Elliott, who now has a club record of 12-consecutive field goals.

Marshall said the way the Cowboys did it by blitzing rookie quarterback Kent Graham late in the game was "unprofessional."

He added, "We didn't do that when they (the Cowboys) were struggling a couple of years ago. It's like kicking a dog while it's down, but that's OK. We'll remember it next year."

Giants coach Ray Handley said Smith is "one of the best, if not the best back in the league. On the swing pass for a touchdown we gave him too much room and he made a couple of other people miss. We are not the first people he has made miss."

"On the long run, we made a mistake on alignment. He got through and we wouldn't catch him."

Dallas guard Nate Newton said it's a pleasure just to watch Smith run.

"It was a picture-perfect trap play," Newton said. "They should show it to high schools as the way a trap play should be run. It was sweet to watch Emmitt go."

Smith said, "It's been a long time since I've seen an open field like that. It was just like we practiced it."

After the 68-yard run, Smith called himself off the Giants.

"I saw no need to go back in," Smith said. "Rushing titles, personal stats, stuff like that, you have to put that stuff aside sometimes to take care of what you need to," he said. "I sprained my hand and had it taped up but it was OK."

It was the Giants worst loss since they fell to San Diego 44-7 in October of 1980.

Giants rookie quarterback Graham had a tough day of it, hitting 12 of 28 passes for 151 yards.

"It was a hard way to break into professional football as a starter," he said. "I gave it everything I could but it wasn't enough."

Dallas is now 14-7-1 on Thanksgiving.

Aggies overpower Longhorns, 34-13

Undefeated A&M sets sights on national title

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

AUSTIN (AP) — The No. 4 Texas A&M Aggies have done their job. Now they're hoping Miami, Alabama or Florida State don't do theirs.

The Aggies capped their undefeated season Thursday night by beating the archrival Texas Longhorns 34-13, but need losses by two of the three teams ahead of them in the poll for a shot at the national championship.

Those hurdles aren't a pleasant topic of conversation for the Aggies, who have the nation's best record at 12-0.

"We deserve to play for the national championship, point blank," Aggies running back Greg Hill said. "We have nothing else to prove. If we aren't playing for the national championship on New Year's Day, then something is wrong."

Right or wrong, the Aggies need either No. 1 Miami or No. 2 Alabama — the nation's only other unbeaten, untied teams — to stumble for a shot at the national title.

Top-ranked Miami, which plays San Diego State on Saturday, would play the next highest-ranked team for the national championship. That would be No. 2 Alabama, unless it loses the Southeastern Conference championship game on Dec. 5.

Since No. 3 Florida State also is ahead of the Aggies, the Seminoles also have next dibs at the Hurricanes. A&M, the Southwest Conference champions, will be the host team of the Cotton Bowl for the second consecutive year.

But Thursday night, all that mattered to A&M was winning the annual grudge match with the Longhorns.

Hill was one of several offensive stars in the Aggies' 21st straight regular-season win as they pounded Texas with a relentless ground game and the improved passing of freshman quarterback Corey Pullig.

"It's a crazy place out there," Pullig said, pointing to the Memorial Stadium field. "I've never played in a louder stadium in my life. It's different and it's difficult."

Rodney Thomas rushed for three touchdowns and Hill gained 100 yards on 23 carries, his eighth 100-yard performance of the season. Pullig completed 10 of 21 passes for 193 yards, fueling several scoring drives with his passes.

"I kept telling our offensive line that if we won the game up front we'd win the game," Hill said. "Basically, that's what we did. We made the first downs we needed and we made the big runs when we needed them and the passing game really came out great."

The Aggies have won eight of the last nine games against the Longhorns, but trail 64-30-5 in the series. A&M wrapped up its second straight SWC title last weekend.

Texas (6-5, 4-3) ended its first season under coach John Mackovic, the school's 100th playing football. The Longhorns needed a victory over A&M for a berth in the Hancock Bowl on New Year's Eve.

"The opportunities were there, we just didn't capitalize," Texas quarterback Peter Gardere said. "They played well and made the key plays."

Scott Szeredy kicked a 52-yard field goal to start the scoring for Texas in the first quarter, but the Aggies erupted for 17 points in the second on two 6-yard scoring runs by Thomas and a 42-yard field goal by Terry Venetoulis.

Texas shocked the Aggies in the third quarter with a 56-yard kickoff return by Mike Adams and a tricky 18-yard touchdown catch by quarterback Peter Gardere, who lateraled to wide receiver Darrick Duke and then took the return pass down the right sideline.

On A&M's next possession, Texas' Van Malone recovered a fumble that led to a 42-yard field goal by Szeredy with 11:01 left in the period.

But the Aggies cut off the Texas rally with a 28-yard field goal by Venetoulis and Thomas' 2-yard dive.

Texas made one more attempt, driving to the Aggie 12-yard line late in the game. But cornerback Aaron Glenn put the final touches on the victory with a 95-yard interception return for a touchdown with 3:04 to play.

"All week we were told that Texas would run the slant inside the 20," Glenn said. "When the pass came my way it was just like the coaches told me it would be."

Alabama stifles Auburn; Florida teams collide in weekend action

By PAUL NEWBERRY
AP Sports Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Alabama's quest for a national championship took backstage to Pat Dye's final game. Now the No. 2 Crimson Tide can reclaim the spotlight.

Alabama (11-0) wrapped up his first unbeaten regular season since 1979 with a 17-0 victory over Auburn, which came on the field Thursday less than 24 hours after learning Dye was quitting as the Tigers coach.

All eyes were on Dye as he paced the sidelines for the final time, then bid farewell to the game that has been his life for 40 years at an emotional post-game press conference.

Somewhat overshadowed was another typical performance by the Tide: dominating defense, just enough offense. That formula has worked perfectly this season, but the most important games lie ahead.

"We're 11-0 and we have won anything yet," said Alabama coach Gene Stallings, whose team has 21 straight victories overall.

Under the new divisional alignment in the Southeastern Conference, Alabama won the Western title with an 8-0 league record and advances to play Eastern champ Florida on Dec. 5 in the first SEC championship game.

College Roundup

"We knew from the beginning that we were going to play 12 games," said safety Chris Donnelly. "We never said we were going to play 11 games and see what happens."

"Florida was the last team to beat us (35-0 in 1991), so we kind of owe them something."

The SEC champion earns an automatic bid to the Sugar Bowl, where No. 1 Miami most likely will be waiting if Alabama is the opponent. Those prospects took some of the luster off Thursday's game for the Tide players.

"Granted, it's Alabama-Auburn, but we were playing for a bit more, like the SEC and the national championship," Donnelly said.

Auburn (5-5-1 overall, 2-5-1 SEC) also was playing for a bit more, learning Wednesday evening that Dye was stepping down after being marred the last two years by an NCAA investigation of alleged rules violations.

"This is not exactly the way I would have preferred to go out," said Dye, who also has been troubled by health problems in recent years. "The competitive spirit in me ... is to stay and fight."

But he decided not to follow his instincts.

"The destruction would far outweigh the other," he said. "I did not want to split the Auburn family. I didn't want to leave Auburn on any kind of bad terms. It's my family."

The Tigers walked — not ran — onto the field, each player holding his helmet defiantly in the air in a show of support for Dye and perhaps protest at his fate.

"We all really wanted to win," defensive tackle Ricky Sutton said. "I think Coach Dye's announcement made us play harder. We're all going to miss Coach Dye. We all love him."

It could have been a Hollywood-type ending — the underdog team gives their coach his 100th victory in his last game — except that Alabama didn't follow the script.

Antonio Langham returned an interception 61 yards for a touchdown to break a scoreless tie in the third period. It was part of another dominating performance by the Alabama defense, which leads the nation in all categories and held a team that had not been shutout since 1980 to 20 yards rushing and 139 yards overall.

"Coach Dye's announcement yesterday motivated us," offensive tackle Chris Gray said. "But Alabama's just a great team."

When Michael Proctor added a 47-yard field goal to make it 10-0 heading to the fourth quarter, Dye sensed that his team was finished.

"10-0 is not a very big lead," he said, "unless you've got a defense like Alabama's got. ... They are a great football team. If I had to vote for someone No. 1 in the nation, they would get my vote."

Dye will have to be content with a 99-39-4 record in 12 years at Auburn and an overall mark of 153-63-5 in 19 seasons.

After a scoreless first half, Auburn took the second-half kickoff and drove to the Alabama 39. Quarterback Stan White then threw a quick pass along the left sideline, but Langham tipped the ball and it came down right in his hands. He ran untouched to the end zone for the only points that would be necessary.

"I saw it coming," Langham said. "I reached out and tipped it, and all I saw was green."

Seton Hall to battle Indiana in NIT finals

NEW YORK (AP) — P.J. Carlesimo knows how to hurt a fellow coach.

The man who has turned around the fortunes of the Seton Hall basketball program recounted how he remembered coming to Madison Square Garden as a high school player and watching the Army teams under coach Bob Knight. Carlesimo said it was one of the things that convinced him he wanted to join the profession he eventually did.

On Friday night, Carlesimo's sixth-ranked Pirates will meet No. 4 Indiana, coached by Knight, who's had three national championships but is not quite ready for a walk just yet, in the championship game of the preseason NIT.

Carlesimo was asked if it would be special for Knight to be in front of the other bench in the same building where he watched him 20-some years ago.

"I'm not being smart, but when you coach against John Thompson, Lou Carnesecca, Jim Boehm, no, it won't," Carlesimo said Wednesday night after his Pirates beat UCLA 73-64 in the semifinals. "I've always felt coaching is underrated. I do feel he is one of if not the best coach of all time. If coaching decides the game, we're in trouble, but it's usually the players who decide the game. If our kids play well, we're going to be OK."

The Pirates (3-0) waited awhile to play well against UCLA, scoring 11 of the game's final 13 points over the final 2:49.

Fourth-ranked Indiana (3-0) needed an extra five minutes to beat No. 7 Florida State 81-78, but the Hoosiers lost junior swingman Pat Graham indefinitely when he broke the fifth metatarsal bone in his left foot with 20 seconds to play in overtime. Graham, who scored all 14 of his points in the final 10 minutes of regulation, broke the same bone in preseason practice last year and missed the entire season.

The Hoosiers still have Calbert Cheaney, the senior forward who scored a career-high 34 points against the Seminoles.

"I coached him two years ago in the World University Games and he is one of the best players in the country and a great individual," Carlesimo said. "He's the real thing."

Knight, ever the taskmaster, wasn't nearly as effusive in his praise of Cheaney.

"You want me to list the block-outs and screens he missed?" Knight asked. "Cheaney scored a lot of points but didn't play basketball very well."

Seton Hall hadn't played very well in any of its three wins in the tournament.

"We've found a way to win the last two. I'm surprised we're 3-0," Carlesimo said. "We have to play better against Indiana."

The Hoosiers had been using a seven-man rotation for the quality minutes in the easy wins over Murray State and Tulane, and that will have to change with the loss of Graham.

He had a cast placed on his foot and the break — not in the same place as last year's — and his second surgery in six months also remains an option.

"The doctors said the break is totally different than last year, it's farther back in the bone, a more common break," Indiana's basketball sports information director Gregg Elkin said Thursday.

Third-string tailback Sherman Williams iced the victory on a 15-yard touchdown run in the final quarter, which was marred by an injury to White. He suffered a separated shoulder near the end of the game and will undergo surgery.

When it was over, Dye was mobbed by the media as he fought his way to the middle of the field to congratulate Stallings. Along the way, several Tide players shook hands with the man who helped bring parity to a rivalry that had been dominated for years by Bear Bryant-coached Alabama teams.

"He has meant a great deal to this conference," Stallings said, "a whole lot more than I have."

Though Alabama has won three in a row in the series, Dye can take some pride in posting a 6-6 mark against the Tide.

"We've had some great times at Auburn," he said, fighting back tears, "and I wouldn't trade them for the world."

Record-setting Florida passer Shane Matthews may do well Saturday simply by not being noticed, because numbers involving quarterbacks who face Florida State generally do not reflect the positive.

That's because the third-ranked Seminoles are continuing their tradition of outstanding cornerbacks. And, to say the least, they figure to be bothersome to the sixth-ranked Gators.

Gone are the like of Deion Sanders, LeRoy Butler and Terrell Buckley. But sing no sad songs for the Seminoles. On Saturday, Florida State puts on display what may yet be its best tandem of pass stoppers — sophomores Clifton Abraham and Corey Sawyer.

"I don't know if we'd had a better pair," coach Bobby Bowden said. "We've had some good corners, but I don't know if these two aren't playing better than any pair we've had."

Elsewhere on Saturday, it will be No. 1 Miami (10-0) at San Diego State (5-4-1), No. 5 Notre Dame (8-1-1) at No. 19 Southern Cal (6-3-1), Georgia Tech (5-5) at No. 9 Georgia (8-2), No. 16 Mississippi State (7-3) at No. 24 Mississippi (7-3), and No. 18 Tennessee (7-3) at Vanderbilt (4-6).

Today, it's No. 12 Nebraska (7-2) at Oklahoma (5-3-2).

Houston edges Detroit, 24-21

By HARRY ATKINS
AP Sports Writer

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — The Houston Oilers had much to be thankful for.

They kept their AFC playoff hopes alive Thursday by overcoming their own sluggishness and the emotion of Mike Utley's return to Detroit for a 24-21 victory over the Lions.

"This was a big win on Thanksgiving Day, on national television, and all the people of Houston should be very proud of the Oilers today," said Haywood Jeffries, who caught four passes for 54 yards, including a 4-yard touchdown toss. "This couldn't have come at a better time for this team."

Indeed, the Oilers (7-5) were playing their third road game in a span of 12 days. They had lost three of their previous four games, including a last-second heart-breaker in Miami last Sunday.

"If we hadn't won today, it would have been tough for us to get into the playoffs," said Cody Carlson, starting his second consecutive game in place of the injured Warren Moon. "It would have still been possible, but this win helps us out. The fact we're 7-5 instead of 6-6 gives us a better attitude and definitely good (playoff) implications."

"We got the breaks today, and this puts us into a better frame of mind going into the last games of the season."

For the Lions (3-9), it was another in a long string of bitter and puzzling defeats. Detroit, which won all of its home games en route to the NFC Central title a year ago, has lost its last five in the Silverdome in 1992.

And they did it in a now-familiar way. The Lions, who have been outscored 99-66 in the fourth quarter, have led fourth-quarter leads slip away in three of their nine defeats.

"We had it, and we just let it slip out of our hands," said Barry Sanders, who ran for 54 yards and one touchdown and caught a pass for another score. "We just haven't played well on both sides of the ball for 60 minutes. Good teams do that."

The Lions got an early lift from Utley, who was named honorary captain and took part in the pregame coin toss.

"He wasn't here to pump up the team," coach Wayne Fontes said. "He was just here to see a good game."

The lead changed hands five times. Sanders scored on a 1-yard run on the first play of the second quarter. The Oilers answered with a 30-yard field goal by Al Del Greco and took a 10-7 lead on William Fuller's 10-yard fumble return in the third quarter.

Erik Kramer and Herman Moore hooked up on a 77-yard touchdown pass for a 14-10 Detroit lead, but the Oilers went back on top 17-14 on a 4-yard pass from Carlson to Jeffries early in the fourth quarter.

The Oilers appeared to have iced the game 21-17 on an 8-yard pass from Kramer to Sanders with 2:57 remaining. Houston, however, had other ideas.

With Carlson completing four straight passes for 75 yards, the Oilers moved quickly from their own 17 to the Detroit 8. On the fifth snap of the drive, Lorenzo White, who rushed for 68 yards, went up the middle on a draw play for the winning touchdown.

"We had a really good tip-off for the draw," defensive back Melvin Jenkins said. "Based on the films we've seen, it was almost an automatic. Bennie (Blades) yelled, 'Watch for the draw,' but the defensive line didn't hear him."

Carlson completed 24 of 33 passes for 338 yards with two interceptions. The Oilers are 5-3 in regular season games he's started over the years. Kramer completed 12 of 21 for 163 yards with two interceptions.

"It was a tough loss, but that's the story of our season," Fontes said. "We just couldn't get it done. We can't sustain an offensive possession when we need one. And we can't score when we need to."

The Oilers now get a rest until Monday, Dec. 7, when they play host to the Chicago Bears. The Lions are off until Dec. 6, when they play the Green Bay Packers at Milwaukee.

Schott controversy continues

By RONALD BLUM
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A former Oakland Athletics employee claims Cincinnati Reds owner Marge Schott said during an owners' conference call, "I'd rather have a trained monkey working for me than a nigger."

Sharon Jones said she believed Schott made the remark in 1988, according to a story in Thursday's New York Times.

Jones, the executive director of college relations at Mills College in Oakland, Calif., said she was on the phone during the roll call in her capacity as executive assistant to Roy Eisenhardt, then the A's executive vice president. The conference call was convened by Peter Ueberroth, commissioner at the time.

"I wonder what the commissioner wants this time," Jones quoted Schott as saying. "Is it this race thing? I'm sick and tired of talking about this race thing. I once had a nigger work for me. He couldn't do the job. I had to put him in the mail room and he couldn't even handle that. I later found out the nigger couldn't read or write. ... I would never hire another nigger. I'd rather have a trained monkey working for me than a nigger."

According to The Times story, Jones later encountered Schott and reminded her she had heard the remarks during the conference call.

"She said, 'OK, honey. Nice seeing you,'" Jones quoted Schott as saying.

Jones, who is black and worked for the A's for 12 years, couldn't be contacted Thursday. Only one of the Reds' 45 front-office employees is black.

Cincinnati mayor Dwight Tilley, who is black, said if allegations are true, "I would have great problems with her continuing on as the owner."

"If she in fact made that statement, then it is absolutely unconscionable and very, very racist," Tilley said Thursday.

Deputy commissioner Steve Greenberg, emphasizing he was speaking for himself and not for the executive council or baseball, condemned the statements attributed to Schott.

"Short of any official action, people in baseball publicly and privately should stand up and say that what has been printed is absolutely contrary to baseball policy and what baseball believes in," he said. "Everyone has been saying that privately and they should be saying that publicly."

Baseball's decision-makers continued their silence, and other officials in the sport said they were mystified at the executive council's failure to make any statement.

Milwaukee Brewers owner Bud Selig, the executive council chairman, said Thursday "it would be inappropriate to comment at this time." National League president Bill White hung up on a reporter who reached him at his home in Pennsylvania. Schott did not respond to a message left on her telephone answering machine.

The executive council, which is scheduled to meet Dec. 7 at Louisville, Ky., has the power to suspend Schott or fine her up to $250,000. The council assumed the power of the commissioner following Fay Vincent's forced resignation on Sept. 7.

"Part of the problem is that we have an executive council with 11 members spread all over the country in three different time zones in a holiday period," Greenberg said.

"It's just not feasible to get the group together every day."

Greenberg appeared to be increasingly frustrated with the council's inaction.

"I have the same reaction that I've had from the beginning, which is that whether any of this is true or accurate or not, the statements that have been attributed should be absolutely repudiated," he said. "If nothing else, in recent years, at least, baseball has stood for the principle that equal opportunity and affirmative action are things we support. There is absolutely no place for bigotry in baseball or, I might add, in America."

Frank Allison, president of the Cincinnati chapter of the NAACP, said, "If these allegations are true, then there is a need for some help, some more sensitivity training."

"We're primarily concerned with her hiring practices," said Allison, who emphasized Jones' claims were not yet proven. "If she says she refuses to hire blacks because she had a bad experience with one black folk, then that explains her hiring practices."

Sheila Wilson, president of the Urban League in Cincinnati, said, "At this day and time, that anyone would have that kind of mentality surprises me."

Wilson didn't call for Schott to get out of baseball.

"You cannot change people inside," she said, "and I think we have to work with what our needs as a community are."

Tilley continued to criticize Schott's hiring record.

"She only has one African-American in the front office, and that is absolutely unacceptable," the mayor said. "With that kind of hiring record, it does tend to make her suspect."

Queen's decision to pay income tax fails to silence critics

LONDON (AP) — Defenders of Queen Elizabeth II say her decision to pay income tax has saved the monarchy. But critics went right on carping today.

The liberal London newspaper The Guardian wrote in an editorial today that the furor over taxes was a symptom, rather than a cause, of the royal family's unpopularity.

The queen is among the best-liked royals, but the public's patience with her family seems to be wearing thin after a year in which her daughter Anne was divorced; her second son Andrew separated from his wife, who later was photographed topless with another man; and the marriage of her heir, Prince Charles, was the object of constant speculation.

Harold Brooks-Baker, publishing director of Burke's Peerage, an aristocratic who's who, said her voluntary decision announced by Prime Minister John Major in the House of Commons Thursday had saved the monarchy.

"The public's animosity toward the royal family has grown out of all proportion, to the extent where I believe it would have been only a matter of time before we faced a referendum on whether to have a republic," Brooks-Baker said.

But former Labor Cabinet minister Tony Benn, a longtime opponent of the monarchy, said the queen's decision "just shows what public pressure can do. This may not be the end of the monarchy but perhaps now people are beginning to question its existence."

The tabloid The Sun, an enthusiastic chronicler of royal woes, hailed the queen's decision as "a victory for people power."

The Daily Star wrote: "At long last she has listened ... But ... the people ... overwhelmingly want a royal family they can love and respect. Not a bunch of yuppies who think they can ride roughshod over everyone."

Britain's struggling economy has sharpened questions about what the queen, widely rumored to be one of the world's richest women, contributes to the treasury.

Ten percent of the British workforce — 2.86 million people — is out of work. The rate is the highest since May 1987.

In addition to demands that she pay taxes, there have been calls for Elizabeth to contribute more to repairing Windsor Castle. A fire did extensive damage to the queen's weekend retreat last week.

Heritage Secretary Peter Brooke told Parliament on Monday that the government would pay for structural repairs — expected to run into the tens of millions of dollars — and the queen would restore the damaged contents.

Major said the queen will begin paying on her annual private income in the tax year beginning April 6. The prime minister said Charles, who already pays 25 percent tax on income from his Duchy of Cornwall estates, had also indicated he wished to pay taxes on the same basis as his mother.

The queen will be subject to the top 40 percent tax rate. The Independent said Friday her annual private income is estimated at about $7.6 million.

The queen's secret fortune is variously estimated at between $135 million to $9.8 billion. Her youngest child, Prince Edward, 28, on Tuesday dismissed the high estimate as "absolute crap."

Queen Victoria paid income tax when it was introduced in the 19th century. But the Elizabeth's grandfather, George V, negotiated an exemption in 1910. The monarch stopped paying tax on personal investment income during the reign of her father, George VI, Buckingham Palace said.

Christmas tree glut hurts business in New England

By DAVID SHARP
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Maine (AP) — A glut of Christmas trees, more competition and the popularity of artificial trees have industry insiders worried that this may be a tough holiday season for growers and sellers.

"There aren't enough people for all the trees," said Albert Gondeck, executive director of the Maine Christmas Tree Growers Association, which represents 250 growers.

Christmas tree growers are expected to harvest about 850,000 trees across northern New England this season — 500,000 in Vermont, 100,000 in New Hampshire and 250,000 in Maine.

The root of this season's tree glut dates back to the early 1980s, when many growers began planting more and more trees.

Now there's a surplus nationwide, particularly in the Northwest and Midwest, said Marshall Patmos, a Christmas tree specialist with the University of New Hampshire cooperative extension service.

The popularity of artificial Christmas trees adds to the growers' woes. Nationwide, 46 percent of homes that display a tree use an artificial one, Patmos said.

Because of the glut, some live trees are starting to appear in the Boston and northern New England markets at ultra-cheap prices — $5 apiece, Patmos said.

In northern New England, Christmas trees typically cost $18 to $30.

The sour economy has also prompted more people to sell trees on the side — but without enough knowledge to do it profitably, others say.

Chuck Masalin, owner of the Sunrise Christmas Tree Farm in Lincolnville, said he warns first-time retailers to be cautious when buying their stocks.

"There are always the optimists," Masalin said. "If you've been in business for a while, then you have to be doing something right. But the person who says, 'I'm going to make a killing this year,' I just don't think that's true."

To beat the doldrums, some growers are turning to new markets or marketing techniques.

Growers in Tennessee are thinking about expanding their market farther south — south of the border, said Jerry Blankenship, agriculture marketing specialist with the Tennessee Department of Agriculture.

"We have talked about shipping some trees to Mexico," he said. "It's just in the planning stages."

Diane Holmes in Kennebunk, Maine, like many choose-and-cut operators, is keeping her business close to home, but transforming it from a mundane tree farm into a holiday experience.

She invites customers inside the house to warm up in front of a wood stove, and offers them hot cider, carols, wreath-making and other seasonal crafts.

"It's almost like a party. Everybody's in a festive mood," she said.

Such an operation already has a built-in advantage over those that sell already-cut trees, she said.

"The beauty of a choose-and-cut operation is if they don't buy it this year, they'll buy it next year."
