

Senate backs ethics committee's subpoena for Sen. Bob Packwood's diaries

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Tuesday night voted to back the ethics committee's enforcement of a subpoena for Sen. Bob Packwood's diaries, culminating a wrenching debate over how to police members' conduct.

The 94-6 vote authorized the Senate to file a lawsuit seeking an order to force a defiant Packwood to comply with the demand for wholesale access to his personal writings.

Summing up the arguments of senators who backed the committee, the Senate's senior Democrat, Robert C. Byrd, said, "I believe he (Packwood) has lost his grasp of what it means to be a U.S. senator." "None of us is without flaws," the West Virginia Democrat said. "But when those flaws damage the institution of the Senate, it is time to have the grace to go."

The vote came after the Senate rejected an attempt to narrow the scope of the subpoena by a vote of 77-23.

Senators turned down Sen. Alan K. Simpson's proposal and his emotional plea that the committee's request was so broad it was "frightening." Instead, they accepted the riveting argument of committee leaders that anything less than full compliance would let Packwood determine what is "relevant."

"The proposal suggests that there be two standards," one for the Senate and one for other Americans, said committee Chairman Richard H. Bryan.

Packwood spent much of the day parrying with leaders of the ethics committee in a wrenching floor debate over allegations that he sexually harassed women, intimidated would-be witnesses and then resisted Senate attempts to investigate him.

Packwood was not on the floor when Byrd called for his resignation, but his lawyers were present.

Byrd said Packwood has chosen to stay "in spite of the continuing damage he is doing to the body" by prolonging this matter and refusing to comply with the ethics committee's request.

Before Byrd made his dramatic speech, short-tempered senators clashed over Packwood's diaries, with one lawmaker calling the subpoena "frightening." Another countered that anything less than full compliance would be a cover-up of potential sexual misconduct and criminality.

Packwood himself disclosed that the original sexual misconduct controversy had been expanded to questions of whether he attempted to have lobbyists hire his wife in exchange for some senatorial "quid pro quo."

The Oregon senator, backed by some fellow Republicans on the subpoena issue, offered to give his diaries to a neutral third party. The independent examiner could then decide which issues were relevant and turn them over to the ethics committee.

The panel rejected the offer, saying no other American would have the right to bargain this way over the terms of a subpoena.

The first crack appeared in the previously unanimous ethics committee Tuesday night when Sen. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, backed a compromise for Packwood to turn over "relevant" portions of his diaries. The panel's chairman and vice chairman urged rejection, saying that it would allow Packwood and not the committee to determine "relevance."

On the second day of sometimes acrimonious debate on the Senate floor, senators struggled for hours to find a solution to competing interests: the committee's request for all Packwood's diaries and the Oregon Republican's right to privacy.

Senate Republican Whip Alan K. Simpson, answering those who said women are carefully watching the case, said, "What we have some trouble with here is political correctness. We probably don't get it, because political correctness or media pressure has nothing to do with justice or freedom or due process."

Flames threaten homes near the ocean in Malibu, Calif., early Tuesday evening as they roar out of the Santa Monica Mountains to engulf multi-million dollar homes. (AP photo)

More wildfires erupt as winds rake Southern California area

By MICHAEL WHITE
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fierce winds sent a wildfire barreling down mountain canyons into Malibu on Tuesday, destroying at least 30 homes and forcing thousands to flee. Nine people were injured, including a director who was badly burned while trying to save a cat.

Other new fires roared across thousands of acres of brittle brushland, just days after firefighters contained wildfires that burned out of control last week in Southern California.

The fire leaped from canyon to canyon in its 12-mile march southwest, producing a string of evacuations.

Tuesday's largest fire burned 13,000 acres from the wealthy Santa Monica Mountains to the beaches of Malibu. Thousands of residents jammed highways as they fled homes in Woodland Hills, Calabasas, and Malibu, about 20 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles. A Coast Guard cutter was stationed offshore in case evacuations were necessary.

Palm trees burst into flames on Malibu's famed beaches, and firefighters perched on lifeguard towers to get a better look at the approaching blaze.

Topanga Canyon resident Don Burnaby, 16, pleaded with his father from a pay phone.

"Dad, don't stay. Leave, please," he said with tears in his eyes.

The blaze in western Los Angeles County created a billowing cloud of reddish-brown smoke that was visible 60 miles east. It forced schools and Pepperdine University to cancel classes and move students to shelters. At least 30 homes were burned, Los Angeles County Fire Chief Michael Freeman said.

A 7,500-acre wind-whipped wildfire caused by an arcing power line chased more than 500 residents from communities in Riverside County, about 80 miles east of Los Angeles. The blaze destroyed several homes and injured three people, Riverside County fire spokeswoman Teresa Merrill said. She had no further details.

The fires erupted as hot, dry Santa Ana desert winds of up to 53 mph returned to Southern California, frustrating efforts to control 13 blazes that torched thousands of acres and hundreds of homes last week, in Altadena and Laguna Beach.

Those fires reached the outskirts of Malibu. Tuesday's fire was about 15 miles west and was compounded by flare ups in that earlier fire.

About 1,000 firefighters backed by air tankers and water-dropping helicopters battled the Santa Monica Mountains blaze, which threatened multi-million dollar homes.

Residents of Malibu Colony — a private beachfront enclave where homes are owned by such stars as Sting, Bob Newhart, Burgess

Meredith and Larry Hagman — were ordered to leave, said Deputy Benita Hinojos.

Chaos reigned at a roadblock on the Pacific Coast Highway as people desperate to get to their homes abandoned their cars, preventing fire equipment from reaching the fire zone. Streams of motorists, with mattresses strapped to car roofs and surfboards jammed into station wagons, lined canyon roads.

Two men were critically injured in Malibu's Topanga Canyon: British director Duncan Gibbins, 41, burned trying to save a cat in a guest house where he was staying; and Ron Maas, 40, a carpenter, said Larry Weinberg, a spokesman for Sherman Oaks Hospital and Health Center.

Gibbins' credits include the 1988 Home Box Office movie Third Degree Burn and the 1990 film Eve of Destruction.

Three firefighters, including a Los Angeles County fireman and a California Department of Forestry firefighter, were hospitalized in good condition with minor burns and smoke inhalation, Weinberg said.

Flames swept past two news photographers and a TV cameraman covering a house fire. Acorn Newspapers photographer Doug Olson was burned on both hands, said Kevork Djanezian, a photographer with The Associated Press.

Firefighters also battled a 750-acre wildfire that threatened expensive homes near Poway in northern San Diego County. In San Bernardino County, fire crews fought a 70-acre arson fire in Yucaipa, 60 miles east of Los Angeles. And a 100-acre fire was reported near the city of Riverside.

Winds shoved flames westward and bent trees as helicopters dipped water buckets into a manmade lake at Highland Springs Country Club. Black smoke obscured the San Bernardino Mountains on the northern horizon.

"It's right there on our golf course," said Frankie Philips of Highland Springs. "It's spectacular, but it's horrible."

Flames came too fast for one homeowner in Calabasas Highlands on Mulholland Drive. A woman who identified herself as Cynthia said half her house was gutted.

"I got my dog and I got pictures of my family" before the fire struck, she said. Smoke curled from under the eaves of her home.

Thirteen major wildfires erupted last week with the season's first Santa Ana winds. The fires from Ventura County to the Mexican border charred 175,000 acres and torched at least 830 buildings, including 700 homes, before they were surrounded by firefighters.

President Clinton ordered James Lee Witt, director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, to return to Southern California to assess damage and organize relief efforts. Witt visited the region following last week's blazes.

Watson pleads guilty to assault in beating of L.A. truck driver

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man who was cleared of most charges in the beating of truck driver Reginald Denny pleaded guilty Tuesday to felony assault, the one charge on which the jury had deadlocked. The plea agreement spared him a prison term.

Co-defendant Damian Williams, convicted of felony mayhem in Denny's beating, was denied lower bail. He returned to jail to await sentencing.

Henry Watson pleaded guilty to one count of assault with a deadly weapon or force likely to produce great bodily injury. His plea came in an attack on trucker Larry Tarvin, who like Denny was pulled from his rig and beaten at the flash-point of last year's riots.

"I'd just like to apologize to Mr. Tarvin and Mr. Denny ... and all the other victims that were there at the intersection on April 29, 1992," Watson said.

The jury convicted Watson on Oct. 20 of misdemeanor assault on Denny and acquitted him of all other charges. Like Williams, he had served 17 months in jail awaiting trial, more than his possible sentence for the Denny assault.

Watson was released pending sentencing Dec. 7. The plea agreement will place him on probation until January 1997 and require community service.

Watson's lawyer, Earl Broady, said prosecutors had told him they planned to retry the unresolved count. On Monday, they offered a deal that was too good to refuse.

"No time in custody? Of course it was in his best interest," Broady said. If convicted, Watson could have drawn seven years behind bars.

Williams, 20, was acquitted of the most serious charges in the attack on Denny but was convicted of felony mayhem and four misdemeanor assault counts. Prosecutors have said they will seek the maximum 10-year prison term.

Superior Court Judge John Ouderkirk refused to lower Williams' $580,000 to $35,000, saying he was a danger to society.

Williams was videotaped hurling a brick at Denny's head. The scene became a symbol of the riots that erupted after four white police officers were acquitted of most state charges in the videotaped beating of motorist Rodney King.

Williams issued a statement Tuesday afternoon calling Ouderkirk's decision unfair and noting that two police officers convicted of violating King's federal civil rights "were allowed to be with their families throughout their trial and pending sentence."

"I hope Judge Ouderkirk remembers what he told the jury when he said, 'This trial should not be used to even a score.'"

District Attorney Gil Garcetti told reporters that meetings with jurors and calls from public officials helped him decide to strike a deal with Watson, even though he felt it would not be popular.

"Given the political nature of the case ... realistically the chances of getting a conviction were not going to be great," he said.

He said Watson's age, 29, his status as a father of two and an honorable discharge from the Marines led him to believe that "we are not going to see Mr. Watson again in the criminal justice system."

Frank Sinatra releases album of duets from Tony to Bono

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Frank Sinatra on modern rock radio? Capitol Records' promotion of his first album in nine years apparently is aiming for it.

Duets, released Tuesday, includes 15 signature songs by the Chairman of the Board with help from Liza Minnelli, Barbra Streisand, Aretha Franklin, Tony Bennett, Natalie Cole, Anita Baker, Gloria Estefan, Carly Simon, Charles Aznavour, Julio Iglesias and saxophonist Kenny G.

The odd cut out, though, is the one Capitol is promoting in a special compact disc sent to those in the music industry: a duet with U2 rocker Bono on the Cole Porter standard "I've Got You Under My Skin."

"That's obviously the track with the hippest cachet in today's market," said Ken Barnes, editor of Radio and Records, an industry trade publication. "It's a sign of what they're aiming at — the alternative market."

Because of its diversity, the album was expected to sell well to many audiences.

Paul Herzman, assistant manager at the Tower Records store near Lincoln Center in Manhattan, said there had been advance interest by telephone and the store had ordered "a good number" of albums.

"It's a big one, certainly one of the five to 10 biggest of the year," he said.

Tammy Laub, store manager at the Tower outlet on Sunset Boulevard in Los Angeles, agreed. "There's a big demand for it from everybody and anybody," she said.

Despite its title, the recording was no celebrity jam session with O' Blue Eyes. Most of the tracks were assembled with a digital fiber-optics technique that provides compact disc quality sound over special telephone lines.

It allowed Sinatra, 77, to stay in Los Angeles, while Bennett phoned in his part from New York, Minnelli from Brazil, Franklin from Detroit, and so on.

Phil Collins turned down a chance for a duet because he wanted to do it his way — the old-fashioned way.

"If I could have sat across the mike from him I would have done it," Collins said in an interview Monday.

Sinatra spokeswoman Susan Reynolds said he was "pleased with the project." "He had been kicking this idea around for some time," she said.

A Los Angeles Times reviewer faulted the long-distance duets, saying: "Sometimes, as with Streisand, it doesn't matter, but in a few moments it's all too obvious the partners weren't in the same room."

Still, the review was generally favorable for Sinatra, whose voice has cracked on stage during recent performances, and who has sometimes forgotten lyrics despite using TelePrompTers to flash the words.

"His voice is not what it was 30 years ago. But Sinatra has always valued musical presence and truthfulness far more than sheer technical accuracy, and presence and truth are precisely what merge on many of these tracks," the Times reviewer said.

Tell white supremacist to be tried again in black man's murder

GALVESTON (AP) — Jury selection continued Tuesday in the organized crime and conspiracy trial of a teenage skinhead already convicted in the 1991 shotgun slaying of a black man.

Christopher William Brosky's first trial in Fort Worth earlier this year sparked outrage and street protests when he received probation despite his conviction in the death of 32-year-old Donald Thomas.

The reaction prompted Tarrant County District Attorney Tim Curry to seek a second set of charges against Brosky. Tarrant County state District Judge Bill Burdick is overseeing the trial in Galveston on a change of venue.

This time Brosky is accused of organized crime and conspiracy to commit murder. If convicted, he could receive up to life in prison on the organized crime charge and up to 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine for the conspiracy count.

Attorneys began questioning potential jurors on Tuesday afternoon after the jury pool was narrowed to 120 on Monday. Officials said testimony could begin as early as Wednesday.

Brosky, a 19-year-old north Dallas resident, was found guilty in March of being an accomplice in Thomas' 1991 murder.

Two of his skinhead companions, William George "Trey" Roberts III, 18, and Joshua Henry, 17, pleaded guilty and testified against Brosky. They said he was in the back seat of a car when they drove by and Thomas was shot to death because he was black.

One of the youths was sentenced to 15 years in prison and the other received 40, but Brosky received probation after his conviction in March. Some members of his all-white jury said they were confused by unclear sentencing instructions.

In reaction to the sentence, minority leaders organized a march through downtown Fort Worth. State lawmakers eventually passed a hate-crime law.

Any Order <small>Odds are 1 in 307</small>	345	345, 354, 435, 453, 534, 543	$1.00	$80

Pick any number from zero through nine. Do that three times. Congratulations. You've just learned the fundamentals of Pick 3.

You have two basic ways to play. Fill out the Exact Order box on your Pick 3 playslip. You win if your numbers match the winning numbers in TEXAS LOTTERY the exact order they are drawn. For example, if you choose 148, you win if 148 are drawn in that order. If you play Any Order, you win if your numbers match the winning numbers regardless of the order they are drawn. So if you choose 345, you win if 345, 354, 435, 453, 534 or 543 are drawn. And if you like to play favorites, feel free to play the same number more than once. Like 007. Or 555.

In Pick 3 you can make a 50C $1, $2, $3, $4 or $5 play on your numbers, and you can win up to $500 for each Exact Order $1 play. Remember, you can play Pick 3 at any Texas Lottery retailer where you play LOTTO Texas. Pick 3 drawings are held at 9:59 p.m., Monday through Saturday.

You can even ask for a Quick Pick, and the computer will pick your three numbers for you. If you need more information, just pick up a how-to-play brochure at any LOTTO Texas retailer, or call 1-800-37-LOTTO.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Consult others regarding important career decisions you have to make today, but don't underestimate your own thinking. Your assessments might be far more accurate than theirs.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) As of today, start to elevate your expectations where your work or career is concerned. If your objectives are clearly defined, they will be doable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Endeavors you either create or personally control have very strong chances for success today. Don't delegate to others things you should be doing yourself.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Some changes you've been contemplating which you feel would benefit your family can be brought off today if you'll try. They may not grasp what you're attempting, but they'll like the results.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Up until now you've been focusing on the wrong factors and this is why you've been unable to resolve a vexing problem. Actually you might discover several answers today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today if you're performing a special job or unique service for someone, don't be greedy, but ask for fair payment. You're worth quite a bit and you're employer knows it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In a collective endeavor today persons with whom you'll be involved might not know how to run it properly. If you see it foundering, and you think you can do better, take over.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Several situations that are presently hanging fire could be satisfactory finalized today if you're dedicated to do so. It behooves you to get on them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There is a strong possibility at this time you might receive good news from several sources simultaneously. The link that binds them together is rather frail, however.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You are still in a rather remarkable achievement cycle. Everything is set up for your success, it's up to you to execute matters effectively.
