Youth take stock, plan for the future

Stock show participants are stampeding to Clyde Carruth Pavilion this week to compete for top stock show honors. Pigs, sheep, rabbits and cattle made their home in the pavilion for the week beginning Sunday through the Top of Texas Stock Show Friday. The Top of Texas and Gray County Sale is set for 1 p.m. Saturday. Mud was knee deep outside the huge barn, but inside four legged creatures fought for first and second place.

Pampa Future Farmers of America displayed their top animals Wednesday. Thursday was the Gray County Stock show and the 4-H Clover Kids rabbit show. The Top of Texas stock show opened at 8 a.m. today and Saturday the buyers barbecue is scheduled. Animals surrounded on-lookers and participants. They were eating and sleeping, as well as getting all spruced up to look their best. Please see RESULTS, page 3

Police dispatcher recounts strip, body cavity searches

By BETH MILLER
News Editor

AMARILLO — A Pampa police dispatcher conducted strip and body cavity searches with the same pair of gloves on several women following a May 1991 drug raid, she testified Thursday.

Lisa Burden, a former Pampa Police Department dispatcher who is now otherwise employed with the police department, cried during her testimony in U.S. District Court, recounting the events of the early morning of May 11, 1991. She said she had no training to do cavity searches and it was the first time she had conducted such searches.

Following the raid, in which three of 12 people were charged with misdemeanor offenses, Oralia "Lolly" Hernandez filed a lawsuit against the city of Pampa alleging her constitutional rights were violated. Hernandez was not arrested, but was detained with the other people for several hours.

The city contends it violated no laws, but that the strip and cavity searches were not intended and came after poor communication.

Burden said she was called to the scene of 905 Twiford by Lt. Steve Chance. She said Chance gave her, "A pair of gloves ... latex, rubber gloves," upon her arrival and took her into the residence where she was approached by then Cpl. Dave Wilkinson, who no longer works for the police department.

"He (Wilkinson) told me he would like the search done ... He told me that he wanted a strip search and a cavity search done."

Wilkinson, in testimony Thursday, said he never gave anyone orders to do either strip or body cavity searches. He said he did tell her to "pay particular attention to the front area."

"What we were going to do that night was not what was done," he said. "All that was supposed to happen was people unzip their pants, shine a flashlight and if nothing was there, they could go."

He said he learned later from the police chief about the cavity searches.

Burden said she recalls searching four women individually in the bathroom where she asked them to "please disrobe."

"I checked the clothing, the seams, the buttons, those areas," she said.

She said she used no lubricant on the glove during the searches of the women, who were asked to put their hands up against the wall.

Burden testified she washed the gloves with soap and water and towel-dried her hands, with the gloves on, between each of the women. She said she did not wash the gloves between the cavity searches on each woman.

Following the searches, she said she threw the glove away.

Amarillo attorney Jeff Blackburn, representing Hernandez, asked, "What kind of condition was it in? It was pretty disgusting wasn't it?"

Burden said, "I don't remember. I just wanted to get rid of it."

She said she wrote up a report about the searches a few hours later and handed it to Chance.

Asked if there was any question in her mind if the searches were what she was told to do, she said, "After I got back to the station, I thought, 'What if I misunderstood him (Wilkinson)? In my mind, I thought that's what he told me, that's what I remember him saying."

She said she remembers one woman crying while the search was being conducted, but does not remember any of the women expressing pain.

Nothing was found as a result of her searches, Burden said.

That Friday evening on May 10, 1991, Pampa police officers, acting on information from a confidential informant, busted in the door of the residence with a search warrant and found 10 people, whom they detained, according to officers testimony.

Bush issues Saddam ultimatum

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush said today Iraq had denied air clearance to a plane bearing United Nations weapons inspectors, and brusquely gave Saddam Hussein less than four hours to allow the plane in or face the consequences.

Asked if he was prepared to bomb Iraq for non-compliance if the deadline were not met, Bush did not directly reply. But, he told reporters at the White House, "Sufficient warnings have been granted and they (the Iraqis) know what they must do."

Bush made his comments two days after a U.S.-led fleet of planes bombed air missile sites inside Iraq in retaliation for provocations that officials said breached the terms of the United Nations resolution that ended the 1991 Persian Gulf War.

"The United Nations has informed Saddam Hussein that if flight clearance is not granted by 4 p.m. Eastern Standard Time today, Iraq will be in non-compliance," the president said.

"The coalition partners are firm in demanding compliance with the United Nations resolutions," he said.

There were other signs of heightened tensions in an area of the world that has engaged Bush for much of his term in office, which ends next Wednesday.

The first batch of U.S. troop reinforcements arrived today in Kuwait as the United States threatened to launch another raid against Iraq if Saddam Hussein doesn't comply with allied demands.

Iraq claimed its anti-aircraft batteries near Basra "engaged an enemy target" at 4:30 p.m. (8:30 a.m. EST) in the south and forced the plane to flee.

Bush spoke with reporters as he left the White House for his final weekend as president at Camp David.

"We continue to monitor Iraq's behavior for compliance with the United Nations resolutions," Bush said.

"We continue to examine the residual aspects of that mission. In addition we continue to demand access by United Nations aircraft for inspections in Iraq."

The weapons inspectors "have the right to fly U.N. aircraft into that country at any time," said Bush.

"The flight scheduled for today did not receive clearance to enter Iraqi airspace," he said.

Asked if he would bomb Iraq again, Bush said, "I never say what we do or don't in terms of compelling compliance."

The United States has said repeatedly that Saddam Hussein would get no further warnings to obey the U.N. cease-fire rules.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said earlier today it was "entirely possible" the United States would strike Iraq again if Saddam Hussein doesn't fully comply with allied demands.

Adolescent nutrition and diet is weighty problem

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

Carlos Grissom, a sixth grader at Pampa Middle School, knows his limits when it comes to candy bars. "Mom doesn't let me have a lot of it," confided the 11-year-old. "I get like a candy bar a week."

Grissom, who is the son of Joe and Hilda Grissom of Pampa, said his mother has imposed the one-candy-bar-per-week limit on him for several years.

The boy noted that he is also committed to proper nutrition and weight control. Upon discovering one year ago that he was about 15 pounds overweight, the boy said, he sought guidance from the school nurse at Woodrow Wilson Elementary School. The nurse, Vicky Venal, offered him suggestions on proper nutrition, Grissom recalled.

After shedding 17 pounds, the Grissom boy now weighs 98 pounds, he said.

"For the ones that seem to have a problem, we offer dietary guidance and counseling," said Chris Kirkpatrick, coordinator of health services for Pampa Independent School District. Proper daily exercise is encouraged, she noted.

The topic of weight gain is a timely one after the Christmas holiday season, because many students indulged on snacks during the vacation.

"... Our counseling is most effective when the girl or boy perceives that she or he has a problem and asks for help with trying to lose weight," Kirkpatrick noted.

Although the nurses of PISD cannot prescribe a diet plan for a student, Kirkpatrick said, "we try to work with the parents and the family physician ... If we feel any medical intervention is necessary, then we contact the parents and recommend that they take the child to a physician."

Kirkpatrick, a registered nurse, supervises a staff of three full-time nurses and two full-time health aides in the school district. In addition to Kirkpatrick, the other school nurses assisting students with dietary or weight problems are Brenda Dunn (Austin, Mann, and Lamar elementary schools); Venal (Wilson, Baker, and Travis elementary schools); and Karen Weeks (Pampa High School).

Kirkpatrick noted that students in all of the public schools in Pampa are encouraged to consult a nurse or a physical education instructor if they are concerned about their eating habits or about their weight being excessive. High school students are also encouraged to consult a health education teacher, she said.

Kirkpatrick, who is in her fourth year as coordinator of health services for the school district, said she has spoken to parents at events such as the 6th grade parents' orientation night in the fall to emphasize the value of proper nutrition. Kirkpatrick advised parents to make sure that their children get a nutritional breakfast before attending school.

The nursing staff of Pampa schools conducts an annual health screening for vision, hearing, height, and weight on pre-kindergarten through fifth grade students, Kirkpatrick noted. After fifth grade, health screenings are conducted every other year, she said.

Obesity is defined as weight at least 20 percent more than the average for a person's age, gender, and height, Kirkpatrick said. Although she declined to estimate how many of the students at Pampa Middle School are overweight, Kirkpatrick said she assisted eight students at Pampa Middle School last semester who had weight problems. Seven of the students were overweight, she said.

The need for such assistance increases during children's adolescent years, partly because they feel more social pressure during those years to be slender, Kirkpatrick noted. Failure to be slim in those years can damage a student's self-image, she said.

Kirkpatrick noted that one of the most common nutritional mistakes made by students in Pampa schools consists of "ingesting too many empty calories" — calories from food that has minimal nutritional value. She cited potato chips, ice cream, and candy bars as examples of such junk food.

As healthier snack food alternatives, Kirkpatrick recommends apples, raisins, and oranges.

Another common mistake made by PISD students involves skipping breakfast, Kirkpatrick said. She estimated that 30 to 40 percent of the middle and high school students in PISD regularly skip breakfast.

The skipping of breakfast generally occurs because children got up late that morning or because they want to hold down their weight, she said. The skipping of breakfast by students can also reflect parental ignorance about nutrition, Kirkpatrick said.

"The middle of the morning they'll (the students) have a headache and a stomachache, often times," the school district official observed.

Kirkpatrick emphasized that a well-balanced diet requires eating from all four of the major food groups — meats; dairy products; fruits and vegetables; and breads and cereals.

"We encourage them not to try to take it (weight) off too quickly," the school district health official said. "We strongly discourage fad dieting."

Kirkpatrick recalled that one middle school girl a few years ago went on a diet in which she ate nothing but baby food at home. "She thought it would taste so bad that it wouldn't tempt her ... That's kind of the weirdest one I've ever heard of."

The baby food diet was short-lived, Kirkpatrick noted. "She got real tired of that baby food real quick."

Members of the 1st Cavalry Division board buses at Fort Hood Thursday that will take them to waiting jets for their trips to the Middle East.

Texas troops head to Kuwait

By MIKE DRAGO
 Associated Press Writer

FORT HOOD (AP) — Staff Sgt. John Crosby didn't have to tell his 2-year-old son, Marcellius, that he was leaving again. All he had to do was get dressed.

The sight of Crosby's now-familiar desert camouflage uniform meant another trip to the Middle East — the third in two years — for the 40-year-old. He is one of 1,000 1st Cavalry Division troops being deployed to Kuwait in the wake of U.S. and allied air strikes against Iraq.

Crosby's wife, Tracy, said Marcellius knows nothing about Iraq, but he knows he'll miss his father.

"He was in the bathtub and he saw the different uniform," said Crosby's wife, Tracy. "His eyes kind of welled up. He said, 'Daddy's going bye-bye.'"

The scene was one of hundreds in the Fort Hood gymnasium Thursday as the troops said goodbye to their families and friends and prepared to board commercial jumbo jets for Kuwait, with two flights Thursday and a third today.

"This is our third trip over. I'm apprehensive," said Mrs. Crosby, 29. "I'm just hoping he'll come back safe."

Officially, troops from the sprawling Central Texas post are on a training mission, but Fort Hood commander Lt. Gen. H.G. "Pete" Taylor said, "We are prepared to do anything."

Major Gen. Wes Clark, commander of the 1st Cavalry, greeted those who left Thursday morning, and addressed a second group of about 400 at mid-afternoon.

Clark told the soldiers and their friends and family that he was not pleased at having to send them back to Kuwait so soon. Many of the soldiers returned in late December from a training exercise in Kuwait; others had participated in an earlier exercise there as well as in Operation Desert Storm.

But he said the 1st Cavalry was chosen because "you are trained, because you are ready, because you are the first team of the first team."

"That's why you're the right people to go back when your country needs you," he said. "This is a great group. I know you're ready."

Clark said he didn't know when the troops would return, but promised "to work very hard to get you out of there as soon as the mission is accomplished."

Many of the soldiers were resigned, if unexcited, about the assignment.

"When you're in the Army, you do what you've got to do," said Pfc. David Roberts, 20, who is taking his third trip to the region after returning home just three weeks ago. "You signed up. If you're called upon, you've got to go."

"I don't really want to go, but it's my job so I'm dealing with it," said Eric Johnson as he sat on the gym's bleachers, cuddling his four-month-old son.

And despite the description as a training mission, one soldier had a warning for his friends who were going.

"They're calling this an exercise," said Spc. James Simpson, 20. "This is not an exercise. This is war. You might as well face it. When you're dropping bombs and people are dying, that's not an exercise. These people have got a right to know that."

At the post airfield, there was a poignant scene earlier Thursday as the first jumbo jet was preparing to leave.

Teresa Smith had rushed from Houston to see her brother off, but she arrived after the plane already was boarded and she burst into tears when she thought she could not see him.

Moments later, officials brought Steven Ringel off the plane where he embraced his sister, before returning to the plane.

Members of the 1st Cavalry Division were involved in retaking Kuwait from Iraq in Desert Storm and some returned last summer and fall for Intrinsic Action training maneuvers.

Oklahoma City man sentenced to maximum 10 years in prison

SHAMROCK — A 28-year-old man accused in the death of Ted Eugene Vinson, 44, of Rogers, Ark., pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter Wednesday, said 31st District Attorney John Mann.

Ricky Wayne Lewis, Oklahoma City, Okla., was sentenced to the maximum 10 years in the state penitentiary, he said.

Charges of involuntary manslaughter against Steven Paul Bogard, 39, Hot Springs, Ark., were dropped in connection with Vinson's death.

"The mere presence at the scene of the crime isn't enough to involve someone in a crime," Mann said.

"As far as my office is concerned, it is a closed case."

The two men were arrested Jan. 5 by Shamrock authorities. Earlier in the day the vehicle containing the three men was believed to have caused a traffic accident near the Texas-Oklahoma border.

Transient hitchhikers Lewis and Bogard were arrested on suspicion of alcohol-related crimes, but later it was discovered that Vinson was dead in the front seat of the car.

Department of Public Safety Trooper Kevin King stopped the Chevrolet Nova for a reported case of driving while intoxicated approximately one mile east of Shamrock on Interstate 40.

The case was investigated by Constable Jerry Bob Jernigan of Shamrock, investigator Bill McMinn of the district attorney's office and Texas Ranger Gary Henderson. Wheeler County Sheriff's Office did forensic evidence-gathering.

"Everybody who had anything to investigate with this case dealt well with each other," Mann said.

The investigation was completed quickly and efficiently, he said. "I don't know if that is typical, but that shows you what cooperation can do."

Burglars look for prescription cures

Three related burglaries occurred in the city early Thursday night, reported police officials in a news release today.

An unknown person or persons is believed to have broken into Northcrest Pharmacy, 916 N. Crest; The Medicine Shoppe, 1827 N. Hobart; and Keyes Pharmacy, 928 N. Hobart, and taken prepared prescriptions, stated Sgt. Jesse Wallace.

"Pampa Central Dispatch received an alarm call from Northcrest Pharmacy between 7 and 8 p.m.," he said.

Police arrived to find an unknown suspect had broken a window and entered the building, officials stated. While responding to the call, an alarm at Keyes Pharmacy was reported.

Police discovered a window had been broken at Keyes Pharmacy. Later it was reported the front door of The Medicine Shoppe had been broken and prescriptions were missing.

Police are investigating the burglaries.

Letterman's mouth earns millions

NEW YORK (AP) — Sure, flinging toast, mocking guests and crushing a Mr. Coffee in a machine press works at 12:30 a.m. But will it go over with the 9-to-5 set?

David Letterman thinks so, and CBS is betting megabucks — a reported 14 to 16 million of them a year — on the idea. After months of negotiations, the "Late Night" comic has accepted a CBS offer to leave NBC and go into head-to-head competition against NBC "Tonight" host Jay Leno at 11:30 p.m.

At a news conference Thursday with his new bosses, Letterman sidestepped questions about money, wisecracking: "I got enough for gum."

His last "Late Night" will be June 25. Then in August, he enters the ring an hour earlier to face plenty of new rivals, including the syndicated "Arsenio Hall Show" and a new Fox show with comedian Chevy Chase.

The real showdown will be with his old friend Leno on "Tonight," the show Letterman currently follows on NBC and wanted for himself.

The matchup between the gap-toothed wisenheimer and the lantern-jawed lunk is shaping up as TV's first real rivalry of late-night network talk shows.

For a few weeks in 1969, the three major networks each broadcast a talk show at 11:30: NBC's Johnny Carson faced Joey Bishop on ABC and Merv Griffin on CBS. But four months later Bishop, never a contender, walked off the show. Two years after that, Griffin's show was canceled because of low ratings.

Carson rolled on for two more decades and retired undefeated.

Now Leno is going up against what could be the first tough foe CBS has ever put forward.

"I think our goal is to be competitive," Letterman said. "I know that it's going to be difficult."

At an NBC briefing in Santa Monica, Calif., Leno said: "I am looking forward to the competition. It will be great fun. This is what makes you better."

Letterman bandleader Paul Shaffer, as well as the show's executive producers and writing staff, will follow the host to CBS.

Letterman said no decision had been made on whether the new show will remain in New York City or originate from Los Angeles.

Earlier in the day, Letterman beat CBS to the punch by announcing the deal during his "Late Night" taping.

Clinton already having trouble keeping his word

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — In the heat of the presidential campaign, it often seemed as if Bill Clinton had a promise for everybody.

He pledged to rescue the "forgotten middle class," expand Head Start to cover all eligible children, make health care and college available to all, "reverse" the Bush administration's Haiti policy, chop the deficit in half in four years and cut the White House staff by 25 percent.

That was just for starters. But now, with his inauguration just five days away, the president-elect is retreating from some campaign pledges and finding out that others will be difficult to keep because of budget constraints.

The latest shift came on Thursday, when Clinton said he would continue "for the time being" Bush's policy of forcibly returning Haitian refugees to their homeland, this despite an adamant campaign declaration that, "This policy must not stand."

Clinton insisted he was not going back on his word.

"I still believe the policy should be changed ... but I don't think we can do it on a dime on January the 20th," Clinton said, hoping to head off a mass migration of Haitians on the risky trip to Florida.

Clinton and senior aides protest when it is suggested Clinton is abandoning campaign promises. Most will be kept, they say, and those that are being ditched or refined are under review because of changing economic conditions and a bigger-than-expected federal deficit.

"Before you declare that he is not meeting his promises, let him govern for a day," said Al From, Clinton's top transition domestic policy adviser. "His promise to the American people was to bring fundamental change and economic growth. Let's give him a chance. He is going to keep most of them."

Many regional experts said Clinton had little choice but to make the policy shift on Haiti. Still, it stood in marked contrast to his campaign rhetoric and unequivocal pledge in his campaign book to "reverse Bush administration policy and oppose repatriation."

"He needed to keep his word," Rolande Dorancy, director of the Haitian Refugee Center, said after Thursday's announcement.

In the 10 weeks since winning the election, Clinton also has hedged his promises to halve the deficit, reduce the White House staff and give the middle class a tax cut.

Clinton himself appeared half defensive and half indignant when pressed Thursday to explain his apparent retreat from several major campaign promises.

"I think the American people voted for me because they ... supported the big things that we were running on," Clinton said. "I think that it would be irresponsible for any president of the United States not to respond to changing circumstances."

As he comes under criticism, Clinton is in many ways a victim of his campaign insistence on specificity. From his announcement speech to acceptance speech at the Democratic convention, Clinton insisted on including detailed policy proposals in virtually every major address, leaving a lengthy list of promises that then were compiled in his campaign book, "Putting People First."

Clinton political advisers say the public is far less concerned than the media with reversals or shifts on any specific promise.

"I don't think people are out there with a scorecard having counted up his 102 commitments and scoring him," said Clinton pollster Stanley Greenberg.

Still, Clinton, the man dubbed "pander bear" by one primary rival, repeatedly has found himself defending policy shifts.

"I think I have to revisit it in light of the bigger deficit," Clinton said Wednesday in explaining why his once solid pledge of a middle class tax cut was now a goal. "I have to put everything back on the table because of the size of the deficit."

Other "goals" now are Clinton's promised 25 percent White House staff cut and 50 percent deficit reduction over four years.

Aides say Clinton eventually will meet his White House staff cut goal and blame the retreat on the deficit pledge to the Bush administration's recent announcement that the federal debt was much worse than projected just a few months ago.

"Reality sometimes governs rather than politics," said Greenberg. "And the reality is that over time things can change. You have to think through the budget situation and address that regardless of what you promised as a candidate."

Courthouse shooting case conjures up eerie parallel

AMARILLO (AP) — An eerie parallel is playing out in a nondescript courtroom on Potter County Courthouse's fourth floor.

A Tarrant County man, charged with capital murder, faces trial after a shooting barrage left two dead.

In 1977, that was millionaire Cullen Davis.

In 1993, it's attorney George Lott. In the Davis case, it took lawyers more than six weeks to seat a jury. Three months' testimony ended with Davis' acquittal in the shooting death of his 12-year-old stepdaughter.

Lott is accused of opening fire July 1 in the Tarrant County Courthouse, killing Dallas defense lawyer

John Edwards, 33, and assistant district attorney Chris Marshall, 41. Three others were injured.

Lott is representing himself in the case moved from Fort Worth. He and prosecutors were expected today to continue questioning potential jurors.

The Lott case stirred a media frenzy Monday when jury selection began, county liaison officer Bob Lolley said. But by Thursday Lott seemed to be drawing little attention. "The bailiffs in charge have been so precise on the whole thing the employees and Potter County constituents don't know it's going on," Lolley said.

Police

Two other people arrived later, and they, too, were detained.

Former police officer Tracy Norwood, who described himself as the one who was "supposed" to be in charge of the raid, said he was expecting a "felony" amount of marijuana to be found at the residence, although only misdemeanor amounts were discovered.

Norwood said he was unaware cavity searches were conducted until the following Monday morning when Chance told him.

Pampa police officer Bryan Hedrick testified that he saw Norwood the night of the raid at the police department and questioned Norwood as to why he had not been called on the raid.

Hedrick said he was under the impression that Norwood had already been to the residence to execute the search warrant. Norwood testified he never left the residence during the raid.

Hedrick later was called to videotape the residence and photograph the suspects, he said.

Wilkinson testified Thursday that the informant never told them people might be concealing drugs in their crotches. Norwood testified he had been informed the drugs might be hidden.

Wilkinson said the first he learned of the topic of drugs being hidden in the crotch area was about two weeks after the raid when Norwood told him he "had information" that the drugs "might be hidden in their britches."

Both Wilkinson and Norwood said Chance was in charge of the initial entry and then the scene was turned over to Norwood, who worked in the narcotics division with Wilkinson.

"When Lieutenant Chance started giving orders the scene rotated back to him," Wilkinson said.

Chance, in testimony Thursday, said he was never in charge of the operation, except for one time when he thought male officers were about to search female suspects and he ordered that stopped and called Burden.

Following the entry into the residence, Wilkinson said everyone was in the living room except for a couple in bed in one of the bedrooms.

Asked if he watched them get dressed and searched their clothing, Wilkinson responded, "Yes, sir."

Wilkinson testified he called then Chief of Police James Laramore around midnight to notify him they had made entry into the residence and found narcotics.

"I told him we were going to search the people and cut them loose if they didn't have any narcotics on them," Wilkinson said.

In Chance's testimony, he said he called Laramore within 20 minutes of entry into the residence. He said he did not recall Wilkinson calling the chief.

Regarding Hernandez, Wilkinson said she was "upset" at the scene. "She was scared. She was visibly shaken," Wilkinson said, adding that she looked "no different" after returning from the bathroom.

Sgt. Ken Hopson testified Thursday that he worked as security in the raid. He said Smith kicked in the door and he could not remember "one way or the other" whether he smelled marijuana.

He said two people later came up to the residence. "I told them to come on in and join the party."

He said he remembers one woman saying, "This was humiliating," after she returned from the bathroom. He said he learned the following Tuesday from Chance about the cavity searches.

Lt. Allan Smith, who was a sergeant at the time of the raid, said that when officers were approaching the residence he saw a curtain pull back and notified the others that they had been seen.

He said he knocked on the door, yelled "police" and then kicked in the door.

He said he saw a haze of smoke and smelled marijuana and saw a couple of people who looked like they were sticking something in their mouths.

He said Norwood instructed him to search the men. "He told me to search for drugs and pay specific attention to the crotch area," Smith said.

Smith said he searched the men, individually, and checked their shoes and pockets. He had them "drop their pants" and "lower the shorts" and "when nothing fell out" he told them to return to the living room.

Smith said the men were not strip searched, but simply "searched." He said the search was somewhere between a "pat down" and a strip search.

Smith said Chance was in charge of security and Norwood and Wilkinson were in charge of the narcotics search.

He said he heard an outcry from the bathroom at one point. "They sent a young girl back there and all of a sudden she cried out. The boyfriend of the girl stood up and asked, 'What's going on? They're hurting her.'"

Smith said he told the boyfriend to sit down and told him the girl was not being hurt.

He said another woman was crying and sobbing when she left the room and was crying and sobbing when she came back.

"I figured she was unhappy about being there," he said.

He said neither of the women was Hernandez.

He said some days later he was asked by another officer if he knew that strip searches were done. He said he asked Chance and Chance said he didn't know and went toward Laramore's office. After that, he said Chance came back and said "Don't talk to anybody about it."

Chance, whose testimony was scheduled to continue today, testified he was asked by Laramore to find out "if what happened, happened."

"I did no official investigation. I talked to two people and gave a verbal report to the chief," he said.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Pecos Enterprise on Chelsea Clinton's schooling:

Much ado about nothing is being made of the decision by President-elect Bill Clinton and his wife, Hillary, to enroll their daughter, Chelsea, in a private school in Washington, D.C.

Critics claim this is a slap in the face of public school for which the Clintons have expressed support. Some have said the Clinton's choice is a vote of no-confidence in urban education.

In plain English, this criticism is a bunch of hogwash! Because of security problems alone the decision by a president to have their child or children attend private school is justified. ...

In addition, this is a private decision and many people in our country seem to forget that our elected officials are still entitled to some privacy without having their personal decisions second guessed.

Let's save our remarks about Clinton on how he performs as president.

The Brazosport Facts on Mauro and environment:

Texas General Land Office Commissioner Garry Mauro's announcement to conduct a series of inspections at chemical plants, oil drilling platforms and refineries will have a twofold impact.

It will allow companies that consistently operate under a high set of standards a chance to prove their preparedness, and it will allow those that have averted the rules a chance to get caught, or fix their violations. ...

Companies that fail the tests run the risk of losing state certification to handle raw petroleum or byproducts. ...

It seems logical that a tragedy like the Valdez crash would be more than enough to ensure that other petroleum companies do not confront that same problem. Ensuing lawsuits should scare any corporate board room into action.

But the reality of business is that too often stringent safety precautions are not taken until they are required by the state, with the threat of sanctions looming against the company. ...

San Antonio Light on open meetings:

Here's a philosophical question: If an open meeting is held deep in a forest and nobody from the public attends it, is it really an open meeting?

Sounds a little obscure? OK, try this one: If the Texas attorney general's office holds a conference to explain how the state's open meetings law works, but closes the conference to the public, can it safely be presumed that the AG's officials don't quite get it? ...

Of course, once the closed-to-the-public aspect of these conferences was publicized, officials suddenly saw the light and said everybody was welcome.

That's nice. Maybe they realized the irony of the situation. More likely, it was the bad publicity. ...

Perhaps now, these AG's officials have a deeper understanding of the laws they will be explaining to other officials at these conferences. Let's have no more closed meetings to explain the need for open meetings.

The pardons

A fortnight after the pardons issued by President Bush gives a measure of the public reaction. It is not volatile.

There are those who believe that the difficulties trace to lines of authority that have not constitutionally crystallized, and from that body of the public there is total sympathy with the pardon. Critics tend to stress that a lie is a lie is a lie, and that if lies were uttered under oath, then the person who is detected having done so should be punished.

But of course there is the difficulty in defining a lie. If Mr. Jones tells Mrs. Jones that yes, he thinks even at 80 she is the most beautiful woman in the world, that isn't the kind of lie we'd want to send Mr. Jones to prison for saying, even if he said it under oath. And when a witness answers literally a question put to him by a congressional investigator and in doing so shields information the transmission of which would in his judgment betray his obligations to the executive, then we need at least to ponder the point.

George Bush has done so, and has concluded that in respect of six people, the prosecution should end.

The harshest critic, as might have been expected, is the hapless Lawrence Walsh, who has been sitting there for years and years at the front row staring at the guillotine, and has seen only two persons executed. He was volubly indignant over the pardons, and contributed the criticism that Bush kept a diary beginning in 1986, which diary he only now advertises the existence of.

The insinuation is that Bush should have stepped forward earlier with the diary or the journal. Bush seems to be saying that there is nothing in the journal that was not included in the extensive testimony he gave in 1988, and that it is all therefore irrelevant.

William F. Buckley Jr.

Now one suggestion that has been made, and we can't yet know whether Walsh will act on it, has to do with the technical nature of the pardon. What happens next is that Lawrence Walsh will file a report. Depending on what the report says, we can gauge the temperature of Congress when it asks itself the question whether to renew Walsh's mandate.

It is widely expected that the whole enterprise will go to sleep. But if Walsh make representations that he insists can be backed up, there will be a lobby that will want to move in on this technicality: that the pardon is for acts done before the pardon was issued.

Here is a hypothetical situation. Mr. A, who has been pardoned by President Bush, is called up again by the special prosecutor, put under oath, and asked a question to which the answer is known based on previous testimony from the same witness. Then another witness is called, who stands by the story he gave five years ago, which contradicts the story of Mr. A. The special investigator can then call in a grand jury and advise the jury that the investigator believes that Mr. A is lying. The jury agrees, and an indictment is issued.

Jurisprudence informs us that such a procedure does not violate the constitutional authority of the president to grant pardons: It is a fresh offense for which perjury is being charged, and the effect of it could be to undo that pardon.

The question was put to a prominent constitutional lawyer whose specialty many years ago was a study of the Fifth Amendment. He reports that in anticipation of such an ambush in would be legal for Mr. A to plead the Fifth Amendment. Theoretically, having been pardoned, Mr. A has no reason to plead the Fifth because he is not in danger of incrimination. But if there is the possibility that the evidence will be reiterated on the basis of which the perjury can be charged, then Mr. A could decline to answer the question.

It would be an ignoble punctuation of Mr. A's career. Normally the Fifth Amendment is used by people who have something to hide. We know, however, that in this case Mr. A and a few of his colleagues did indeed have something to hide, but what they had to hide was the result of instructions given by a superior officer in pursuit of executive goals judged to be constitutional.

It is unlikely that anyone is going to charge that there is a Nuremberg precedent mixed up in all of this. Whatever Gen. Richard Secord did, or Thomas Clines (and he is in jail), it is hardly contended that they were guilty of war crimes. To have sold arms to a profit to Iran in order to accumulate money to send to freedom fighters in Nicaragua isn't the kind of thing that gets you hanged, save possibly in the editorial columns of The Washington Post.

The likelihood is that President Clinton is going to have the critical voice here, and it is not irrelevant that he and George Bush have in recent days got on like fraternity brothers. He is unlikely to undertake a prosecution that would strike most Americans as a gesture in retroactive vindictiveness.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, Jan. 15, the 15th day of 1993. There are 350 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

Fifty years ago, on Jan. 15, 1943, work was completed on the Pentagon, headquarters of the United States Department of Defense. The Pentagon, located just outside Washington D.C. in Arlington, Va., was built in 16 months at a cost of $83 million.

On this date:

In 1777, the people of New Connecticut declared their independence. (The tiny republic later became the state of Vermont.)

In 1870, the Democratic party was represented as a donkey for the first time in a cartoon by Thomas Nast in "Harper's Weekly."

In 1892, the rules of basketball were published for the first time, in Springfield, Mass., where the game originated.

In 1919, pianist and statesman Ignace Paderewski became the first premier of the newly created republic of Poland.

Perot - in case

President-elect Clinton is being pressured to renege on his most solemn promise to you.

Clinton, campaigning, promised "a change."

Clinton, campaigning, promised first and foremost to remedy our problems at home.

Yet, President Bush in Somalia publicly promised our troops that Clinton would be "a good commander in chief." He promised Yeltsin that Clinton would be "a 100 percent partner" with Russia. He promised other foreign leaders that they can "count on Clinton as a solid ally."

Now, U.S. News & World Report says there's further pressure from Clinton's own advisers.

Some of those advisers, whose personal clout will require foreign entanglements, are telling the next President that he "must not neglect world affairs."

And they cite ferment in Somalia and Iraq, in Bosnia and the Ukraine and Haiti ...

Clinton, half a dozen times since his election, has been on the phone or trading letters with Yeltsin.

The President-elect, who promised to stay home and mind the store, is being led into the same dead-end maze that destroyed his predecessor.

Paul Harvey

So — Perot.

Ross Perot's United We Stand America organization is back in high gear as of this week.

Perot has not given up on Clinton but Perot is under continuing pressure from a legion of Americans who share his priorities.

An upcoming avalanche of TV tapes, books, ads, periodicals and town-hall-type meetings will focus on the issues that Perot still considers paramount:

- Expand the American economy to create more jobs.

- Balance the federal budget.
- Pay off the $4-trillion national debt.

Perot recognized the pitiful plight of much of the rest of the world; he has visited more of it than most.

But right now the enemy is at the Mississippi River!

Right now all Americans west of the Mississippi River are "enslaved" because all of their taxes are being used just to pay interest on our national debt.

That's the overload that threatens to break our back, rendering us — U.S. — incapable of helping anybody else.

"Clinton's intentions may be good," says Perot. "Hopefully, United We Stand America can help to create an environment in which Clinton can get proper laws passed."

"If Clinton wants to do what we want him to do we'll help him do it bigger and better."

"But if his good intentions get diverted or distorted or thwarted by dialectical internationalists, then the American people will still have a voice."

Will Clinton be on time?

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Bill Clinton is notorious for getting behind schedule. And with all that's left to be done, one might be tempted to wonder whether he will make it to the Capitol on time for his noon inauguration a week from today.

If it weren't for the moving vans outside the Governor's Mansion, it might be hard to tell that only seven days remain before Clinton is sworn in as the nation's 42nd president.

Even though Clinton was reported near an announcement on a variety of White House appointments — perhaps as early as today — nearly 200 top-level government slots in his administration remain unfilled.

And many policy initiatives — which had been expected to help him hit the ground running — are being delayed.

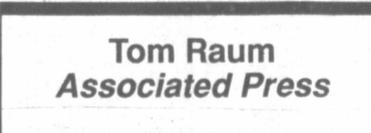

Chief among these, of course, is the centerpiece economic package — which Clinton had vowed to produce the day after his inauguration but which aides now say will be delayed, perhaps until March, because of worsening deficit projections.

Then there's Clinton's campaign pledge to cut the White House staff by 25 percent. Aides now suggest it's just a goal.

And many major decisions must be made by Clinton on the universal health care package he trumpeted throughout his campaign.

And many of the specific promises made in Clinton's campaign book, "Putting People First," seem to be heading toward the back burner.

"We're trying to hold to the spirit of that document," transition communications director George Stephanopoulos said Tuesday.

"Obviously, there will be some transition bumps as you go along and you can't get fully up to speed on day one with full staffing in every department," Stephanopoulos said. "But you can make good progress and have the key positions in place and I expect that we will."

At one point, Clinton was expected to announce White House staff jobs last Friday. With many transition staffers biting their nails, not sure whether they'll have jobs in Washington or not, the announcements kept getting delayed. And delayed.

Clinton has an opportunity to fill about 4,000 political-appointment posts in the federal government. So far, he has done little beyond naming basic Cabinet posts and a handful of other high-level appointments.

Is Clinton falling behind on both personnel and policy?

"It's a little disconcerting that we're this close to the inauguration and we still don't know what he's going to do," said University of Texas political scientist Bruce Buchanan.

But Buchanan noted that "Clinton's strategy in the past, the way he governs as opposed to campaigns, is to govern cautiously and to arrange a consensus before he moves. Some of these early signs of temporizing are consistent with that background."

Clinton has been holding meetings with his advisers over the past week on both economic and health policy, but as yet no concrete decisions have emerged.

But the failure of Clinton to appear to get his act together a week before his inauguration isn't exactly a disaster, said Erwin Hargrove, a political scientist at Vanderbilt University. "It's a disaster when it happens six months into an administration. That's what happened to Jimmy Carter."

"Still, he's facing a moment of truth," especially on his economic program, Hargrove said.

As budget director-designate Leon Panetta made clear at his confirmation hearing in Washington earlier this week, coming up with an economic program that reduces the bulging deficit will require huge sacrifices.

And Clinton is in a real dilemma in coming forth with a package that will carry out his campaign vows to "invest" in job-producing programs while also paring back the deficit.

In that context, Clinton's slowness in naming people to run the government "can cut two ways," said the University of Minnesota's Paul Light.

"It's not necessarily a bad thing to delay on your sub-Cabinet appointments. This way, if he wants to pursue an aggressive deficit reduction program, there won't be that many people (within the administration) to put up a fuss."

Parts is parts to health techs

DEAR ABBY: In response to the radiology technician who was offended because someone referred to her work as "disgusting" — I have no objections to the work they do. They are performing a good service. However, I think it is extremely immoral for a woman technician to X-ray the intimate parts of a man's anatomy and it is equally immoral for a man to X-ray the intimate parts of a woman's anatomy. There are both women and men technicians in every hospital, so why can't the male technicians take care of the male patients, and the female technicians take care of the females?

Please publish this. I would like to know if other people feel as I do. I am signing my real name, but if you print this, please don't use my name. It is all right to identify me as a woman. Thank you.

A (FEMALE) READER
IN LOUISIANA

DEAR (FEMALE) READER: Where health and human life are concerned, professionals in the health care field do not have the slightest interest in whether the patient is male or female. Trust me.

Furthermore, patients should be concerned only with getting the best possible treatment, and it matters not if the health care professional is male or female.

DEAR ABBY: I was amazed that you did not suggest that the teen-aged identical twins, who were constantly mistaken for one another, wear name tags.

If the relatives have a problem telling them apart, help them out. If engraved identification pins make them feel like hotel desk clerks, how about having some made from gold wire? I'm sure they could find a jeweler willing to solve their identity mix-ups in a beautifully creative way.

FRIEND OF A TWIN, DALLAS

DEAR FRIEND: Name tags? I would much rather be called "Twin" or "Twinny," which is what Jean Fitzgerald and Bill Gleeson kiddingly called both of us back in our high school days in Sioux City.

DEAR ABBY: I have a neighbor I have known since our girlhood days. We are both in our 60s now. I lost my husband two years ago, but she still has hers. She has a large family. I have nobody.

She called me up the day after Thanksgiving and said, "How would you like to come over for leftovers tonight?" It did not occur to her to invite me for Thanksgiving dinner. She had a houseful of relatives.

HURT

DEAR HURT: Don't dwell on it. You don't know what the circumstances were. She may not have thought of it with all the commotion of preparing for her houseful of relatives.

DEAR ABBY: Why do young women come on to older men? I don't consider myself any glamour puss — I am 80 years old — but I have had more young women come on to me in the last few years than I can count. Many are young enough to be my granddaughters. Are they inadvertently searching for a father (or grandfather) figure?

I must mention that I am a widower. I have never been popular with the opposite sex, even when I was a very young man. And I never was considered good-looking.

Can you explain this?
D.C. IN DULUTH

DEAR D.C.: You may be more appealing than you think. On the other hand, please send me your financial statement, and perhaps I can provide you with a better answer.

Auditions set for 'TEXAS'

Neil Hess, director of the musical drama "TEXAS" is looking for actors, singers, dancers and technicians to fill 140 salaried positions for the show's 28th season during auditions scheduled for January and February in six major cities in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Anyone 18 years or older, may try out for "TEXAS." In addition to singers, actors, dancers and technical crew, positions also are available on the hospitality staff.

The first audition will be held on Jan. 23, in Albuquerque, N.M., on the stage in Keller Hall at the University of New Mexico from noon until 3:30 p.m. Dancers will begin at 2:30 p.m.

The second audition is scheduled in San Antonio, Texas, on Jan. 30. It will be held in Treadway Auditorium on the campus of St. Mary's University from 1 to 5 p.m. Dancers should report at 4 p.m.

On Jan. 31, auditions will be held in Dallas in Room 1180 of the Owens Fine Arts Center at Southern Methodist University from noon to 4 p.m., dancers at 3 p.m.

Lubbock will be the site of auditions on Feb. 7. Performers should report to the M.O. No. 1 (Choir Room) in the Music Building on the campus of Texas Tech University between 1 and 4 p.m. Dancers are scheduled for 3 p.m.

Director Neil Hess will journey to Norman, Okla. on Feb. 14, to hold auditions in Room 305 of the Rubel Jones Theatre Building at the University of Oklahoma's Fine Arts Center. Tryouts will begin at 1 p.m. and continue until 5 p.m., with dancers at 3:30 p.m.

The last auditions will be held in Canyon on Feb. 21, from 10 a.m. until 5 p.m. with dancers at 4 p.m., in Mary Moody Northern Recital Hall on the campus of West Texas State University.

Individuals interested in auditioning for "TEXAS" must bring a picture and references.

All voice ranges are required in chorus, solos and men's quartets. Singers should prepare one number of their choice. No "pop" or "rock" hits will be accepted. An accompanist will be furnished or a singer may bring his own.

Since singers also fill minor speaking roles, each should also prepare a short, one to two minute, memorized scene or monologue that will accentuate outdoor voice and presence.

The script calls for four men and four women in leading roles. In addition, there are six male supporting roles. Actors will present a memorized scene, not to exceed three minutes, that also accentuates outdoor voice and presence. Actors often double as members of the chorus and should also prepare a vocal number.

Men and women with ballet or modern dance training are auditioned in a group. Dancers should wear appropriate workout clothing.

Musicians must be experienced in string bass, acoustic guitar, banjo, accordion, or violin.

Hospitality crew members are the show's first and last contact with patrons. This group of 40 sells tickets and programs, works concessions and the barbecue, conducts tours, entertains on the patio and seats visitors.

Club News

Twentieth Century Club met Jan. 12 in the home of Mrs. R.W. Stowers. The nominating committee presented the slate of officers for 1993-1994 to be elected at the next meeting. Mrs. L.T. Johnston gave a program on "Discovering New Mexico." The next meeting will be Jan. 26 at the White Deer Lands Museum. Members are to meet at the museum at 1:30 p.m.

El Progresso Club met Jan. 12 in the home of Edna Hickman. Vice-president Maxine Hawkins chaired the meeting. Carolyn Smith was introduced as a new member. Thirteen members and two guests were present.

Josephine Lawson presented the program, "An Anniversary Party" in observance of El Progresso's 70th anniversary. It is the oldest club in Pampa, organized Jan. 23, 1923 and it became a member of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs on Feb. 5, 1923. El Progresso assisted in starting the Twentieth Century Club, A Parent Education Club and the Varietas Study Club. In 1927, El Progresso sponsored the city library that was housed in the Methodist Church basement with members serving as voluntary librarians. The library was moved to the city hall in 1930. The program concluded with each member sharing something about the club.

The meeting was hosted by a special committee, Dot Allen, Leona Allen, Edna Hickman, and Maedell Lanehart.

The next meeting is "All That Glitters" by Ruth Riehart in her home at 2 p.m. Jan. 26.

The Heritage Art Club met Jan. 4 with Ruth Barrett presiding. Twelve members were present with hostesses Mary Cook and Dorothy Howard. Door prize was won by Christine Fennell.

Mary Cook, program chairman, led the group in painting a snow scene using oils.

The next meeting will be Feb. 1.

Pampa Art Club met Jan. 5 in the home of Tommie Grant. Work on the Outdoor Sculpture Wall is planned to begin on alternating Tuesdays beginning at 9:30 a.m. Jan. 12.

Members were reminded to work on projects to be displayed at the annual tea and show in May.

The next meeting is set for 10:30 a.m. Jan. 19 at the Pampa Community Building.

Why does high-pitched music shatter glass?

By 3-2-1 CONTACT Magazine
For AP Special Features

Tap a glass with a pencil. The sound you hear is made by the glass vibrating. These vibrations make the air move, too. And that means there are sound waves. Sound waves can also make objects vibrate. That's why a loud truck can make your windows rattle.

A singer sends out a certain number of sound waves per second.

That number is called the "frequency." If the singer hits a note that is a certain frequency, the glass will start to vibrate. It may vibrate so strongly that it actually shatters.

Now that's one way to "break" into show business!

Campaign stresses need for kid's immunizations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The American Nurses Association has joined with the "Every Child by Two" campaign to encourage immunization of children against childhood diseases.

"Every Child by Two" tries to inform parents of the importance of early immunization, encourages states to increase access to immunization services and seeks policy changes that will ensure full vaccination for children by age 2.

"We will aggressively encourage America's nurses to remind parents that their children need a full immunization schedule by age 2," said Virginia Trotter Betts, ANA president. The ANA said the national immunization level among preschool children is about 40 to 60 percent; in some inner cities and rural areas, the rate is about 50 percent.

"Every Child by Two" and the ANA recommend the following vaccination schedule: birth: hepatitis B (HBV); 2 months old: diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis (DTP), polio, HBV and Haemophilus Influenzae (Hib); 4 months old: DTP, polio, Hib and HBV; 6 months old: DTP, Hib and HBV; 12 months old: Hib; 15 months old: DTP, polio, measles, mumps, rubella, Hib; 5 years old: DTP, polio, measles, mumps, rubella; 15 years old: tetanus, diphtheria.

The American Nurses Association is a full-service professional organization representing two million registered nurses in the United States.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

IF YOU WANTED BREAD, YOU HAD TO MAKE IT—FROM START TO FINISH!

IN BIBLICAL TIMES, THE MISTRESS OF THE HOUSE, FIRST THING ON ARISING, WOULD ATTEND HER FAMILY'S DAILY NEED FOR BREAD. FIRST, THE GRAIN (USUALLY BARLEY OR RYE) HAD TO BE GROUND INTO MEAL, SIFTED TO FLOUR, THEN MIXED INTO A PASTE WITH WATER. NOW IT WAS KNEADED INTO DOUGH AND LEAVEN ADDED, LEFT STANDING LONG ENOUGH FOR IT TO RISE, THEN THE DOUGH WAS DIVIDED AND SHAPED INTO CAKES FOR BAKING. A FAMILY HAD ITS OWN PORTABLE OVEN OF STONE, WHICH STOOD ABOUT THREE FEET HIGH AND WAS HEATED ON THE INSIDE BY WOOD OR DRY GRASS FIRE, THE CAKES OF DOUGH BEING PLASTERED ON THE OUTSIDE TO BE BAKED....

...USUALLY, IT WAS ONE OF THE YOUNGER DAUGHTERS OF THE HOUSEHOLD WHO SUPERVISED THE BAKING OF THE CAKES, FOR THEY HAD TO BE CAREFULLY TURNED DURING THE PROCESS LEST ONE SIDE BE BURNT.

BREAD OVER 3,500 YEARS OLD
EGYPTIAN LOAVES LIKE THIS ARE ON DISPLAY AT THE METROPOLITAN MUSEUM OF ART, NEW YORK CITY, HAVING BEEN FOUND IN ANCIENT TOMBS AT THEBES, EXACTLY AS THEY WERE BAKED!

Sex scandal involves four ministers

By CINDY ROBERTS
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — A sex scandal that has grown to include four ministers from one family has halved membership and donations at a church that was one of President Bush's "1,000 Points of Light."

The Cathedral of the Holy Spirit, an independent charismatic congregation led by Bishop Earl Paulk in suburban DeKalb County, had grown to be one of the largest in the Atlanta area.

It boasts a multiracial ministry of social services, a 7,700-seat neo-Gothic cathedral and a television ministry that takes its message to most states, much of Central America and South Africa. At its peak, it claimed 12,000 members, 24 pastors and $1 million annual contributions.

Because of its community ministries, Bush designated the rich one of his "Points of Light."

Then the allegations began. Paulk's former biographer, Tricia Weeks, alleges he had a two-year extramarital affair with her ending in September 1988. Paulk has denied it.

Two former church employees say they had affairs with the Rev. Don Paulk, the bishop's brother and church co-founder. Don Paulk, whose wife is the church's music director, admitted to one of the affairs in May and stepped down from the pulpit for three weeks.

Two former church members say they were involved with the Rev. Duane Swilley, the Paulks' married nephew. Swilley was disciplined early last year after admitting he fondled a woman several years ago when he headed the church's youth program.

And a member of a sister church in nearby Cobb County says she was seduced by her pastor, the Rev. Alan Mushegan, another Paulk nephew.

The women charge that the ministers pressed them into having sex, saying they were serving God. They are lobbying for a state law that would make it a felony, punishable by one to three years in prison, for clergy to have sex with members of their congregations.

Don Paulk and Swilley have declined to discuss the latest allegations, which surfaced in The Atlanta Journal-Constitution in December. The bishop has said they are part of a conspiracy to destroy the ministry he has spent 30 years building. Mushegan did not return telephone messages for comment.

At last Sunday's sermon, the bishop called 1992 "the most valuable" time of his life because God was testing him.

"In the midst of the battle, learn how to rejoice," he exhorted the congregation.

The church has dropped a $24 million libel lawsuit filed against seven former church members, including two of the women who made the sex complaints.

The lawsuit, which said the defendants had cost the church half its members and about $90,000 a week in offerings by circulating rumors, was dismissed at the church's request in December after a judge imposed a gag order and ordered negotiations.

The Rev. Kirby Clements, an associate pastor, said the lawsuit was to head off potential litigation. John Shaw Jr., an attorney for three of the defendants, said they plan no legal action against the church.

By soliciting tithes of at least 10 percent of its members' income, the church has been able to build a Bible college, a school and a $12 million sanctuary the size of a fortress.

But those expansions have left it with $20 million of debt. Making payment on that debt is a "significant challenge," Clements said.

The church has had to cut its staff from 200 to 50 and reduce its monthly budget in half to $80,000, he said. Worse, it has cut out local television, one of its main methods of attracting new members.

But he said the church will overcome.

"The church is surviving and it will continue on. I have to believe once things are settled, there will be people who will return."

Highland plans one-night rally

Evangelist Richard Coss and singer Tim Langley are scheduled to present a one-night rally at 7 p.m. Wednesday at Highland Baptist Church, 1301 N. Banks.

Coss grew up in Minneapolis, Minn. He hit the detention center at age nine. By age 12 he was in the state reformatory in Waukesha, Wis.

Between the ages of 15 and 25 he was confined in city jails, county jails, county prison farms, and had made three trips to prison. Before he knew it his anger and hatred became irrelevant. What counselors, psychologist, sociologist, correction officers, special schools, threats and prisons could not do in 16 years was accomplished in one day.

While serving his third prison sentence, Coss became a Christian on March 16, 1969. He was paroled Nov. 12, 1970. Nine years later he was ordained as a Southern Baptist minister. He was pardoned by Gerald R. Ford on Dec. 23, 1975. Coss wrote his life story "Wanted" in 1976 and during the same year he began a full-time jail and prison ministry. His most recent accomplishment is a book titled "Full Pardon" written in 1984.

Coss has appeared on Christian television shows including TBN and the 700 Club with Pat Robertson. He lectures at schools, colleges and civic clubs across America. Topics he speaks about include his personal life, prison reforms, prisoner reform, death penalty, vic-

Coss tim rights, gun control and drug problems.

Langley has served as minister of music for 15 years.

He and his wife, Lynna, have two children, Beth and Landon. They have been married for 16 years and reside in Aurora, Colo. The couple was saved in 1977 at Trinity Baptist in Ada, Okla.

Langley was licensed to the ministry at First Baptist Church, Idabel, Okla., in 1979 and was ordained in 1985 at First Southern Baptist Church in Del City, Okla.

He has also led music for youth camps, retreats, Fellowship of Christian Athletes events and hosted several concert artists.

Churches find sanction in unusual places; anywhere from hotels to shopping centers

By JEFF D. OPDYKE
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

EULESS, (AP) — For the Calvary Chapel Assembly of God congregation, the stairway to heaven begins in a Holiday Inn.

For it is there, in a $75 meeting room alongside Airport Freeway in the Fort Worth-Dallas area, that this congregation of 12 Hispanic families has gathered every Sunday for the past three years to worship.

But soon no more. Calvary Chapel is relocating to a long-empty Pizza Hut on Euleless Boulevard.

"One day we hope to build our own church, but until then the Pizza Hut will be a permanent home," says its pastor, Joel Menchaca.

It wasn't long ago that a Sunday at church meant steeples and stained-glass images of epiphanies and prophets. But nowadays, as numerous small congregation compete for attention, religious services more and more frequently occur in borrowed sanctuaries, strip malls, hotels...even movie theaters.

Take, for example, Vineyard Christian Fellowship. Before relocating in September to an abandoned music store in a small Euleless strip mall, its flock of 70 congregated for a year at the same Holiday Inn as does Calvary Chapel.

Or take Sabit Baptist Church: For nine years, the Korean congregation of 45 worshipers has celebrated in the sanctuary at Bellevue Baptist Church on West Pipeline Road. Next spring, Sabit will relocate to a new chapel that the congregation is financing atop land where a grocery once stood.

"It is more convenient location near the Korean community in Irving," said Sabit Baptist minister Hyo Young Kim. "We've been looking for nine years; we just never had the money."

And cost-consciousness is key, for the manna that nourishes these compact congregations typically comes from followers' pocketbooks.

"With the economy the way it is, and the fact that land is still costly, the non-prime sites such as old Pizza Huts and empty shopping centers are becoming the locations that fit the price range a small church can afford," said City Planner Rod Tyler of Euleless, a suburban city near Fort Worth.

Where a traditional church building can cost several hundred thousands dollars to design and build, idle mini-malls can be bought for 25 cents on the dollar, said Joyce Parchman, publication director for the National Association of Church Business Administration in North Richland Hills.

Earlier this year, for instance, NEWCHURCH administrators went looking for a new home after spending about $5,000 a month for a year and a half to rent space in a Hurst business park from a Seventh-day Adventist congregation. "We found land prices were far too expensive for us," said its pastor, Gary Kirksey.

Instead, NEWCHURCH in May bought the abandoned Coventry Shopping Center in North Richland Hills from the Resolution Trust Corp. for what Kirksey said "was a quarter of the cost of building." The church renovated part of the 40,000-square-foot facility and opened for services in November. Kirksey expects that the move will ultimately save the congregation at least $500 a month.

Said Euleless' Tyler, "There are a lot of empty strip malls out there that, financially, give a church a chance to get out of someone's living room and into a place of its own."

Or, in the case of Northwood Church for Communities, the abundance of vacant shopping centers offers the opportunity to wriggle out from beneath the burden of rapid growth and the expense of a customary church building.

Northwood, a nontraditional Southern Baptist church, began seven years ago in Keller with 43 congregants "meeting in a standard, stained-glass kind of church," said the Rev. Bob Roberts. But in April, with more than 800 followers, the church picked up roots and moved into the Coventry center. The relocation, Roberts said, saved the church $5,000 a year in maintenance costs alone.

Northwood also sponsors two missions, which one day will grow into independent churches — and which, like Northwood, gather in unorthodox locales. Bear Creek Valley worships in a movie theater at North East Mall; Metroport Life Community Church gathers in the ballroom of the Marriott Solana hotel in Westlake.

Parchman contends that, along with cost-awareness, this religion-gone-mini-mall rage results from one other trend: the apprehension Americans feel toward the dogma of traditional faiths. Studies suggest that as much as 55 percent of the U.S. population does not attend church.

"People are threatened by stained-glass windows, big furniture and a huge organ," Parchman says. "It's a feeling that an authority figure is telling them what to do."

"But in a strip mall, the feeling is much more open. Much more approachable. And strip malls offer visibility — marquee signs — along major roadways."

That visibility, says Vineyard Christian minister Mark McKinney, is one of the foundations upon which small denominations such as his are built. "The people God has called small churches to reach are not your typical pew-sitters. They're the burnouts disillusioned with the church of their youth," he said.

"Strip-mall religion is not imposing; it's inviting. It's basically like going to the mall. We don't have any semblance of what people know as a 'church building.'"

Religion roundup

WAKE FOREST, N.C. (AP) — The Rev. Paige Paterson, new president of Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary, says he'll ride out the storm over the school's continuing probation.

"Look, when you're in a rodeo, trying to stay on the bucking back of several hundred pounds of irritated bull, which sports a healthy disdain for all human fellowship, and the pick-up men don't arrive on time, you don't just fall off and then shoot the animal. You hang on for dear life, pray God's intervention, and ride the critter until he becomes your personal buddy. That's what we'll do here."

The Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, which had put the school on probation because of questionable procedures under trustees now dominated by biblical fundamentalists, said it has made progress in correcting problems, but would remain on probation another year to complete the process.

WASHINGTON (AP) — More men but fewer women are entering Roman Catholic orders, according to a new study by the Center for Applied Research in the Apostolate.

The study found an average of 9.8 men were in initial formation in men's orders in 1992, compared to 8.9 men in 1989. In women's orders, an average 4 women were in initial formation in 1992, compared to 5.6 in 1989.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Michael Whitehead, general counsel of the Southern Baptist Christian Life Commission, resigned from the American Bar Association in protest of its support for abortion rights. Since it took that stand, about 3,500 of its 368,500 members had resigned as of Dec. 1.

NEW YORK (AP) — Declaring black-Jewish relations have fallen to their lowest point in history, Reform Judaism urges "healing the wounds that have been opened by the sad events of the recent past."

Black-Jewish tensions have smoldered for months over incidents in the Crown Heights section of Brooklyn.

In a resolution by its policy-making board, the Union of American Hebrew Congregations urged both blacks and Jews to "condemn extremists in their midst" and undertake "additional programs of dialogue and conciliation."

The Rev. Jesse Jackson encouraged the action, telling the Jewish group: "We have common enemies and we are vulnerable when divided. But we are a powerful force for good when we work together toward the goals we share."

The resolution said "Jews and African-Americans are indispensable partners in the struggle for social justice in America. Blacks and Jews need each other...."

Macedonia Church plans breakfast

Macedonia Baptist Church, 441 Elm St., will have their fellowship breakfast at 8 a.m. Saturday.

The public is invited and donations will be accepted.

The menu will include pancakes, toast, eggs, bacon or sausage, juice and coffee, according to Pastor I.L. Patrick.

Pampa hosts Dumas in district opener

Lady Harvesters looking for first league victory

By L.D. STRATE
Sports Writer

Although Dumas hasn't had a winning basketball program for several seasons, head coach Robert Hale and his Pampa Harvesters won't make the mistake of looking past the Demons.

"Right now Dumas has a winning record," Hale pointed out. "It's the first one they've had in a long time. They're doing better than they have in the past."

Pampa, 14-4, and Dumas, 9-8, meet in a District 1-4A opener at 7:30 p.m. tonight in McNeely Fieldhouse.

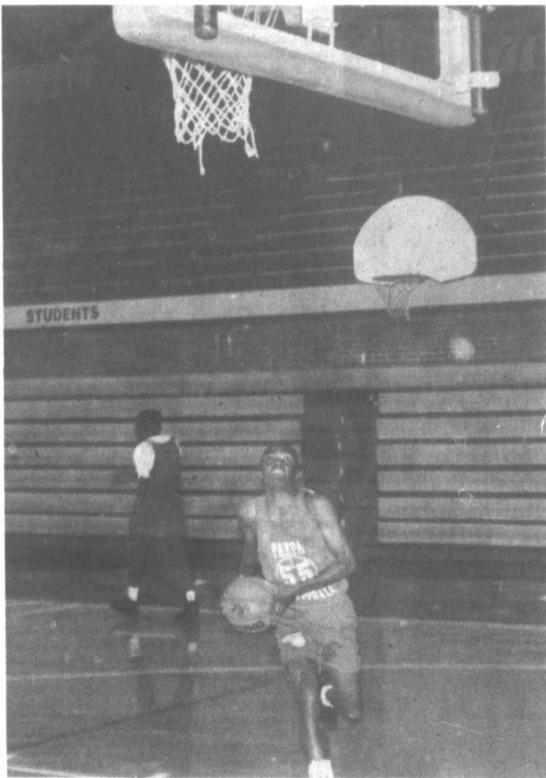

Craig Dunham, a 6-4 senior, is averaging 16 points a game to lead Dumas in scoring. Matt Nystuen, a 6-0 senior, is averaging 13 points a game. He scored 19 points in Dumas' 72-54 loss to Class 5A Palo Duro Tuesday night.

"Both of these guys are doing a good job for Dumas. The district, overall, is going to be much tougher than it has been. Caprock, Randall and Borger are going to loom big. You just can't count anybody out," Hale said.

Dumas has a new head coach in Norman Reuther, who played college basketball at Texas Tech.

"The program here has been down for a long time. Dumas has won only six games in the past two years. We're struggling right now, but we're going just keep working," Reuther said. "We're years away from where we need to be."

The Harvesters under Hale are going for their fifth straight district championship and another trip to the state tournament's final four for the third time in a row. The Harvesters have suffered overtime losses in the state semifinals the last two seasons while compiling a sparkling 67-7 overall record.

Dwight Nickelberry, a 6-1 senior, averages 25 points a game to pace the Harvesters' scoring attack. Lamsenior) are also scoring threats. Laury is joined by 5-8 Rayford Young as the two freshman on the varsity squad. Young has seen lots of playing time and Matt Finney (6-2 senior) has looked good in limited action.

"We're excited about getting district started," Hale said. "The players are looking forward to it."

Pampa has climbed from No. 9 to No. 6 in the latest Texas Association of Basketball Coaches (TABC) poll.

In the girls' contest, which tips off at 6 p.m. in McNeely, the Pampa Lady Harvesters will be looking for their first district win after two losses.

Dumas lost to Caprock, 56-42, Tuesday, after opening the district season with a one-point win over Borger last week.

"Dumas has a 6-1 post player that gives them some height and they've got a good point guard who penetrates and makes things happen," Nichols said. "We'll put Christy Jones on her and see if we can make her dish the ball off before she wants to."

Alana Ryan (5-9 senior) averages 16 points a game to lead the Lady Harvesters in scoring.

Summer Giffin (5-4 senior) averages 10 a game to lead Dumas.

Overall, Pampa has a 6-10 record while Dumas is 6-11 for the season.

Notes: Pampa boys' coach Robert Hale and senior player Dwight Nickelberry journeyed to Amarillo Thursday to attend the Sports Committee Amarillo Chamber of Commerce awards dinner at the Holiday Inn. Nickelberry was one of five high school basketball players honored by the Amarillo Chamber. The others were Highland Park's Joe Thompson, Amarillo High's Stefani Andrus, Randall's Sandy Parker and River Road's Lachelle Rollins.

Turning an afternoon into treasured memories

My Favorite Winter Project
Saving money (for important items like new lures) and working with kids can make a great project on a cold winter's day! Add some hot chocolate, several good fishing stories, and watch an afternoon turn into a treasured memory for old and young alike.

Most experienced anglers know that using marker buoys to identify lake structure or locate active fish can really improve your fishing, but marker buoys can retail for $5 each. Gather up the kids, the grand kids, or some neighborhood munchkins and make some homemade marker buoys that will save about four dollars and can make great gifts.

Assemble the following items: an old cheap styrofoam ice chest (even new they only cost a couple of dollars), some old tire weights from a full service gas station, and some 50 lb. nylon fishing line or nylon twine from the surplus store.

Using your buddy's file knife or a safety razorblade, cut the ice chest into 4 x 6 inch rectangles. Insert some small tire-balancing weights, so one side of the rectangle will ride low in the water (This keeps the wave action from unwinding your buoy). The length of line to be tied to the buoy is determined by the depth of structure in your favorite lake. I have found that about 50 feet of line covers most fishing conditions. Tie on a large tire weight, and the job is complete except for an optional paint job. Give the kids some waterproof felt pens and watch them apply some original art work.

MEXICO FISHING RESULTS I am pleased to report that my new Team Daiwa TD-1 reels performed better than expected. These high speed (6.3) reels have the power to horse big bass out of any cover. For my money, no other baitcasting reel comes close to the TD-1, the new standard against which other reels must now compete.

Special thanks to DICK APPLE of Dick's Pro Style Lures (1 800 262-6634) for my personalized graphite rod featuring the outstanding G-Loomis IM6 blank and Dick's unique hand-tied Thunderbird custom wrap. This four-powered, six foot rod combines both a super sensitive tip with enough backbone to get the undivided attention for any lunker bass.

OUTDOOR WORLD 93, the largest sportsman expo between Dallas and Denver, will be held on February 12, 13, and 14 at the Amarillo Civic Center. The best RV's, the newest boats, the finest outdoor products, and the most interesting fishing and hunting seminars are just a taste of the fun that awaits you on Valentine's weekend.

Despite problems with 49ers, Haley made big impact for 'Pokes

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — In the transient world of the NFL, players change teams all the time and end up playing big games against old teammates.

But there's never quite been anything like the brouhaha that surrounds Charles Haley of Dallas, who in Sunday's NFC title game will be playing against the San Francisco 49ers for the first time since they traded him to the Cowboys last Aug. 26.

The collective word from the 49ers: "Good riddance."

The general word from the Cowboys: "Thanks."

Haley, a three-time Pro Bowler and one of the NFL's best pass rushers over the last half-dozen years, left the 49ers after a series of incidents that alienated many of his teammates as well as coach George Seifert and the team's front office.

The most publicized incident came in 1991, when Haley got so upset with the offense after a loss to the Raiders in Los Angeles that ex-49er Ronnie Lott, who had left for the Raiders prior to the season, had to be brought into the San Francisco locker room to calm him.

Then came a variety of incidents — from throwing toilet paper in a defensive line meeting to reportedly urinating on teammate Tim Harris' car and then getting into a fist fight with Harris, with whom he was sharing playing time.

That finally convinced Seifert to trade him to Dallas. The return: a second-round draft pick this year and a third-rounder next year.

Haley became an immediate factor in Dallas, helping the defense upgrade from 17th in the NFL last season to No. 1 this year. While he registered only four sacks in the regular season (Harris led San Francisco with 17), he had a team-high 42 hurries on the quarterback and the team's sack output increased from 25 to 44, in part because double-teaming on Haley left other players free.

"He's really done a good job for us," says coach Jimmy Johnson.

"I heard all the stories prior to making the trade and it did give us some concern. But the thing I did hear was that he was a very hard worker on the field and he was a tremendous competitor. He has come in and really fit in well with our players."

Haley has talked little this week, giving only one in-depth interview — to the New York Times. In it, he claimed he never had a problem when Bill Walsh coached the 49ers, only when Seifert took over in 1989.

"So finally, I'm projected as a lunatic, a crazy, raging animal and I'm traded," he said of his reputation with the 49ers. "I guess it will never change as long as we live in a society where negativism is a plus. You're popular in this league if you're a good old boy and don't speak up about what's wrong, about racism or anything else ..."

By all accounts, he's fired up this week about facing the 49ers. And the Niners are realistically assuming that he'll be at his best.

"Any guy that goes to another team really wants to come back and play well against the team he came from," says Pro Bowl tackle Steve Wallace, who will have the primary job of blocking him. "If he's human for this game, then we're going to have a decent shot at stopping him. You never know. The guy may show up and play unreal."

Asked if Wallace was quick enough to handle him, Haley smiled and replied: "We'll see."

Haley is not universally popular in Dallas either — some players resent the credit he's received for the turnaround in the defense. But Johnson says he's fit in well in the locker room.

What about the 49ers?

When Seifert was asked about the trade this week, he replied, "It's one of those good trades that's helped both teams."

How, he was asked, has it helped the 49ers since they have yet to get a player in return?

"It's improved team chemistry," he said.

Tex offers advice

IRVING (AP) — Tex Schramm, from his sunny outpost in Key West, Fla., has some advice for the Dallas Cowboys: Don't get all hyper about the weather and the condition of the grass at Candlestick Park.

"On a bad field anything can happen, just like it did to us 11 years ago," said Schramm, the NFL Hall of Famer who was club president until Jerry Jones bought the team. "It's important that a young team doesn't get psyched out. And it can happen to a young team. Don't worry about it but handle it."

The Cowboys and San Francisco 49ers played on a sloppy field in the NFC title game of January 1982. The 49ers won 28-27 on Joe Montana's late-game touchdown pass to Dwight Clark.

"Montana had trouble with the footing and threw three interceptions that day, but most people forget about it," Schramm said. "The Cowboys this time need to try to play under control as much as they can and let the 49ers make the mistakes."

"If I recall, that Candlestick turf is like trying to play on a rug which keeps trying to slip out from under you."

Cowboys' wide receiver Michael Irvin exhibits special jackets he purchased Thursday for the offensive linemen. Dallas faces San Francisco Sunday in the NFC title game.

Record-breaking Marino still searching for first Super Bowl title

MIAMI (AP) — Rather than devote every moment to beating the Buffalo Bills, Dan Marino found time this week for golf, charity work and an evening of TV with his family.

"If you thought about your job 24 hours a day, you'd go crazy, right?" Marino said.

But while the Miami Dolphins' quarterback may try to treat this week like any other, he knows it's different.

On Sunday, when the Bills visit Joe Robbie Stadium, Miami will play in an AFC championship game for the first time since 1986. That means it's been seven years since Marino has had a shot at his first Super Bowl title.

As the Dolphins draw closer to their goal of an NFL championship, Marino tries to downplay the personal significance of the mission. Yet, at 31, he admits to a certain sense of urgency.

"Only in the fact that you don't know what the future holds," he said. "After 10 years, I feel healthy and I think I can play a lot longer, but who knows?"

This season, Marino made the Pro Bowl, led the NFL in passing yards and brought the Dolphins from behind to win in the closing minutes six times. Just another ho-hum year.

He breaks records and performs fourth-quarter heroics with almost numbing regularity. Such accomplishments make more glaring his one shortcoming — no Super Bowl title.

"If he can get there and win the game, that's the coup de grace for him," said close friend Don Strock, Marino's backup in 1983-87.

Marino could well break the NFL career passing records for yardage and touchdowns by 1994; he already holds the one-season mark in both categories.

Perhaps more remarkable is Marino's durability playing the game's most vulnerable position. A chronically sore left knee hasn't prevented him from making an NFL-record 140 consecutive starts in regular-season non-strike games.

Kansas comes close to school scoring record in lopsided win over Oral Roberts University

By The Associated Press

The men's and women's basketball teams at Oral Roberts faced the same situation. Overmatched on the road by top opponents, they almost got the same result.

The Titans lost by 68 points to No. 4 Kansas, 140-72, Thursday night. The Lady Titans lost by 66 to No. 1 Vanderbilt, 124-58, earlier in the evening.

College basketball roundup

Kansas rolled to its second-highest total ever, and its second-biggest winning margin. The Jayhawks have won 1,499 games in their 95-year history.

"They're just too strong and physical. They have too many players. There is nothing we can do. I'm not unhappy about anything," Oral Roberts coach Ken Trickey said.

The Titans (3-10) lost their fifth straight game and are 0-9 on the road. They are playing a tough schedule that includes only 10 home games as they prepare to move from NAAIA status back to NCAA Division I.

Meanwhile, the Lady Titans (1-13) saw Vanderbilt set a school record for points. Oral Roberts scored the first basket of the game, and never again led.

In other men's games, No. 10 Oklahoma beat Nebraska 102-89, No. 12 Arizona defeated Washington 93-76, No. 15 UCLA topped Oregon 99-87, No. 18 UNLV beat Pacific 88-71 and No. 25 Utah downed Air Force 61-47.

Only on Dec. 9, 1989, when Kansas trounced Kentucky 150-95, had the Jayhawks scored more than they did against Oral Roberts. The point spread was two points short of their school record, a 70-point thrashing of Brown on Jan. 3, 1989.

Kansas coach Roy Williams substituted early and often, and the lead got bigger and bigger. A run of 21 straight points made it 48-9, and it became 70-20 later in the first half.

"There were some players I wanted to see get a lot of minutes," said Williams, whose starters combined to play only 72 minutes. "I was pleased with our focus and I thought we were extremely unselfish."

Kansas (13-1) won its 14th straight home game. Patrick Richey scored 23 points to lead three Kansas reserves with career highs.

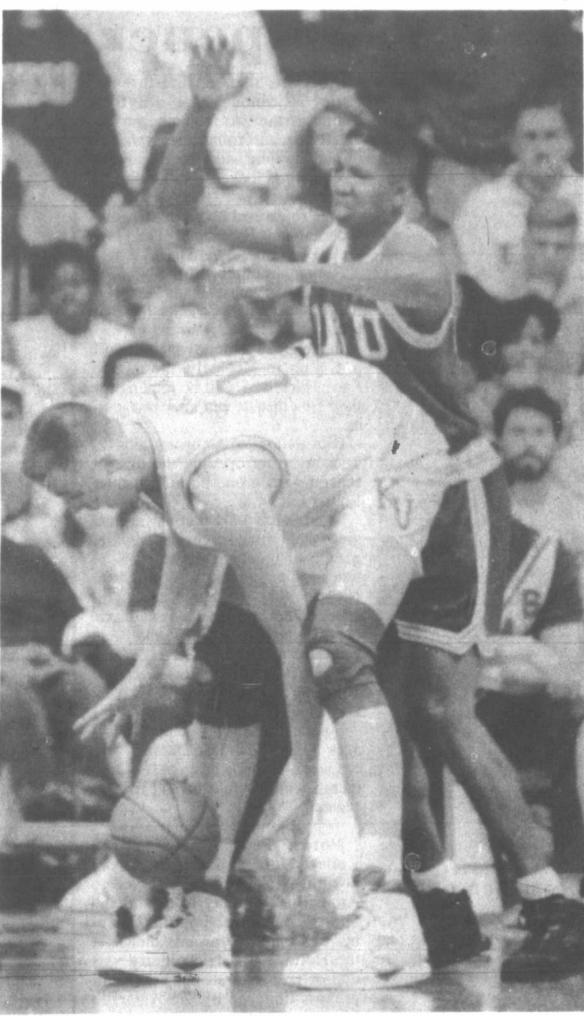

"It was fun to play someone that doesn't know our offense," he said. "It seemed like I was getting some easy shots and a lot of good passes."

No. 10 Oklahoma 102, Nebraska 89

Terry Evans scored 29 points and sparked big runs in each half that led Oklahoma over Nebraska.

Oklahoma coach Billy Tubbs tried a new strategy for him, replacing all five of his starters at once early in the game. The move did not work as Nebraska outscored the Sooners 16-2.

But after falling behind by 12 points, Oklahoma went on a 21-4 spurt as Evans scored nine points. Evans led a 12-0 burst in the second half.

Public demands college football playoff, Delany says

By DOUG TUCKER
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Forget the money. Never mind the politics. Jim Delany knows what will bring forth a national collegiate football playoff.

"The American people seem to have an unending appetite to see who's No. 1," the Big Ten commissioner said. "No matter what anybody thinks about any side of the question, the public demand is there."

Delany was one of 2,000 delegates caught off guard when executive director Dick Schultz raised the idea of a one-game football playoff in remarks opening this week's NCAA convention. He's also in the majority who apparently remain cool to the idea, despite widespread fears that everybody will soon be in need of a big infusion of cash.

Even a one-game playoff would be worth an estimated $30 million-$50 million.

"We have gender equity coming in. Television revenues are going down," said Schultz, who says he is not pushing the idea. "They may not like it (the playoff) now, but they need to think about it so if something comes up they're prepared to act."

NCAA Convention

The deadline for submitting legislation for the 1994 convention is July 1.

"I would be shocked if there is anything on the ballot for next year," Schultz said. "There has to be a huge change in thinking before we see anything on the ballot."

A playoff would seem to be in conflict with the direction the Presidents Commission has been taking the NCAA, emphasizing academics and cutting back on playing seasons and coaching staffs.

Football has taken more hits than any other sport, which gives all this renewed playoff talk an ironic ring for football people

"I think there's more sensitivity toward the idea of some type of football championship. But when you come in here supporting football and you continue to get knocked back, when everything has been 'reduce football, reduce football, reduce football,' you start to wonder," said Chuck Neinas, executive director of the College Football Association. "Now all of a sudden, it's, 'Let's have another football game and generate lots of revenue.'"

"That doesn't sit well with people involved with football."

Football has always been college athletics' chief money-maker, and a national playoff producing a $50 million windfall might be the easiest way for schools to afford next year's expected sharp increase in financing of women's sports.

It irks football people that the reform-minded Presidents Commission has reduced scholarships, coaching staffs and practice time. Yet a playoff producing a financial windfall — as well as a national champion — might serve to ease pressure on the sport.

Neinas said CFA schools, all the major powers minus the Big Ten and Pac-10, are girding up for possible renewed assaults on their game.

"Scholarships (limits) have gone from 95 to 85. We will lose between 20 and 25 percent of the pool of talent when the 2.00 (high school minimum grade point) goes to 2.5," Neinas said. "The pros are going to continue to take the best juniors."

"I find it ironic that people are now talking about a football playoff to help pay for things."

Schultz said a playoff could be worth $30 million to $50 million, with some estimates ranging to $100 million.

"Everyone's looking at it as a revenue source," Oklahoma athletic director Donnie Duncan said. "Well, $63 million is already there: the bowls. And this other is a projected amount."

Hawaii running back seeks individual respect in Hula Bowl

By BEN DIPIETRO
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — If the Hula Bowl is more important to some players than others, it's most important to players like running back Travis Sims.

Sims rushed for 1,498 yards to lead Hawaii to a 10-2 regular season record, then rushed for 113 more yards in the 27-17 Holiday Bowl victory over Illinois that capped the best season in Rainbow history.

Still, if he hadn't been voted in by local fans in a newspaper contest to pick two Hawaii players for the West team, he probably wouldn't even be playing Saturday at Aloha Stadium.

Sims says it's disappointing not to be recognized, but he sees the game as a chance to turn some heads and earn the individual respect that belatedly came to him and his teammates.

"It hurts to have 1,500 yards and nobody even takes a look at you," Sims said. "The whole year has been like that. The team shocked everybody, and hopefully I can shock somebody out there."

Sims says pro scouts have made courtesy calls to him, as they have to all the Hula Bowl players, but he knows he needs a strong performance to get their attention and possibly earn an invitation to the all-important scouting combine.

"They're waiting to see how I play against all-stars before they decide to get serious," Sims said.

There are several players like Sims who played for small schools, or schools ignored by the national media. How they play in an all-star game can make the difference between a possible shot at the NFL or no shot.

Among the players in this group are Pittsburg (Kan.) State running back Ronald Moore, the Division II player of the year; defensive back Greg Lewis of New Hampshire; quarterback Jamie Martin of Weber State, and Hawaii defensive lineman Maa Tanuvasa.

Tanuvasa anchored the Rainbow defense this season, but may have been passed over if the local fans hadn't voted him into the game. One of five Hawaii players on the West roster, Tanuvasa already has an invitation to the scouting combine, but knows a strong performance will get him some extra consideration.

"The scouts that have talked to me told me to go out and have a good game, and then go from there," Tanuvasa said. "Now that I have an opportunity, I'll just go out and try my hardest."

While lesser-known players have everything to gain and nothing to lose, big-time college stars know a strong game and good combine can improve their draft status.

Even a slight change of a few places upward can mean hundreds of thousands or even millions of dollars at contract time.

Notre Dame quarterback Rick Mirer has been mentioned as high as the number one or number two pick in the upcoming draft. Mirer isn't taking the talk seriously.

"It's another chance for everybody to showcase their talents," he said. "I'd like to be number one — everybody would say that — but I have between now and draft day to work as hard as I can and show them what I can do."

One player who doesn't feel his play in the Hula

Bowl will affect his draft position is Kansas defensive lineman Dana Stubblefield.

"My goal is to have a decent game, not an exciting, breathtaking game," Stubblefield said. "Just make a couple of tackles so they know I'm here."

Stubblefield hadn't planned on playing in the Hula Bowl, but changed his mind after Kansas beat Brigham Young at the Aloha Bowl.

"I was going to the Senior Bowl, but at the Aloha Bowl I said I'm not going to the Senior Bowl," he said. "I was getting interviewed on television and I said, 'Hey, whoever's running the Hula Bowl, get me in there.' They saw the interview and called me the morning after the game."

ORDINANCE NO. 1220 AN ORDINANCE ADOPTING THE SOUTHERN STANDARD MECHANICAL CODE, 1991 EDITION, INCLUDING THE APPENDICES THERETO; PROVIDING FOR PENALTIES; PROVIDING FOR A SAVINGS CLAUSE; AND REPEALING ALL ORDINANCES IN CONFLICT HEREWITH.

WHEREAS, it is the desire of the City Commission of the City of Pampa, Texas, to adopt the Southern Standard Mechanical Code, 1991 Edition, including the appendices thereto, with certain deletions and additions to said Code, relating to mechanical standards and inspections; and WHEREAS, the adoption of said Code is to facilitate proper inspection activities by said City relating to construction and to maintenance of buildings within the corporate limits of said City and relating to public safety, health and general welfare; NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY OF PAMPA, TEXAS:

SECTION 1. The Southern Standard Mechanical Code, 1991 Edition, published by the Southern Building Code Congress International, a copy of which is attached hereto and made a part hereof as if set forth in full herein, is adopted in its entirety except, however, for the following deletions and additions:

(a) Where the word "asbestos" appears in said Code, all such words and references are deleted.
(b) Paragraph 503.3.2 is hereby amended to read as follows: "Flexible and Rigid Class 0 and Class 1 duct materials may be used for entire duct systems including plenums serving listed automatic-fired heating equipment having a 250° F temperature limit control when installed in accordance with the conditions of their listing. Listed air duct material is not limited in length."
(c) Chapter 1, Administration, is hereby amended by adding a section to read as follows:

"SECTION 108. ENFORCEMENT OF TEXAS STATE LAW
(a) No person, corporation, firm, or contractor shall engage in the design, installation, construction, maintenance, service, repair, alteration or modification of a product or of equipment in environmental air conditioning, commercial refrigeration, or process cooling or heating systems or ventilation, without first obtaining an air conditioning and refrigeration contractor's license, as issued by the State of Texas, and be registered with the City of Pampa.
(b) To register with the City of Pampa as an air conditioning and refrigeration contractor, an application shall be made in writing on forms furnished for the purpose and filed with the department of building inspection. This application shall be made in person and shall contain a copy of the person's state air conditioning and refrigeration license and copy of their certificate of insurance made out to the Texas Department of Licensing and Regulation with coverage as set forth in article 8861 Vernon's Texas Civil Statutes, as amended."
SECTION 2. Any matters in said Southern Standard Mechanical Code which are contrary to existing ordinances of the said City of Pampa shall prevail and any existing ordinance to the extent of such conflict are hereby repealed in that respect only.

SECTION 3. In said Code, when reference is made to the duties of certain officials named therein, that designated official of the said City of Pampa who has duties corresponding to those of the named official in said Code shall be deemed to be the responsible official insofar as enforcing the provisions of said Code are concerned.

SECTION 4. The provisions in said Code creating a Board of Adjustments and Appeals are hereby amended to refer and be applicable to the established Plumbing and Mechanical Board of Adjustments and Appeals of said City.

SECTION 5. Any person violating any of the provisions of said Code herein adopted shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and, upon conviction, shall be fined any sum not exceeding Two Hundred Dollars ($200.00), and each day and every day that the provision of said Code is violated shall constitute a separate and distinct offense. As an additional remedy, the said City may seek any injunctive relief to which it may be entitled in law or in equity to enforce any of the provisions of said Code.

SECTION 6. This ordinance shall become effective ten (10) days after its publication as provided by law. PASSED AND APPROVED on its first reading this 8th day of December, 1992. PASSED AND APPROVED on second and final reading this 12th day of January, 1993.

East Texas woman wins $7 million Lotto jackpot

ATHENS (AP) — Laura Minter, a 30-year-old mother who tried to support herself and her three children with her salary as a school cleaning lady, has become the latest Texas Lotto millionaire.

"It's a blessing from the Lord," she told the Athens Review on Thursday after having won the $7 million first prize by picking all six numbers drawn Wednesday night. The jackpot had grown because no winning ticket was sold the previous two drawings.

Ms. Minter sat down in front of her television set in her rundown five-room frame house in northeast Athens Wednesday night when the numbers were being picked.

"I got the first three numbers, so I figured I was going to win three dollars. Then I got the fourth number and said, 'Oh my Lord, I'm going to win all this money.'"

She's been on an emotional roller-coaster and hasn't slept since she learned she was going from poverty to riches, she said.

"I've been shouting and praising the Lord. I've been glad and sad," she told the Athens Review.

Athens is a town of 9,000 about 60 miles southeast of Dallas.

Texas lottery officials said earlier Thursday that one ticket matched the six numbers drawn: 45-41-26-13-21-5. But lottery spokeswoman Shannon McCann said the ticket was sold in Central Texas. She said no one had claimed the $7 million prize.

Lottery officials said 183 tickets were sold that matched five out of the six numbers drawn. Each of those winners gets $900. About 9,300 tickets matched four of six numbers. Those ticket holders will receive $64 apiece.

Total lotto sales, since the game began in November, have topped $120 million, officials said.

Ms. Minter said she bought her winning million ticket at Kidd Jones Chevron Station in Athens, which stands to receive 1 percent of $7 million, or $70,000, for selling it. Station officials said Thursday night they had not been notified by the state.

Ms. Minter will receive the money in installments over 20 years.

She said she plans to use the money to buy a four-bedroom brick house and to buy a new Buick automobile.

However, she said she would report again today to her job as a cleaning lady at Athens High School.

"I don't want to sit around the house, and it's too cold to go fishing. Besides, I'm used to working," she said.

Her supervisor at the high school said when Ms. Minter left work at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, about 90 minutes before the drawing, she had only $4 in her purse. She said she was going to put $3 worth of gas in her tank and spend her last dollar on a lotto ticket.

Instead, she told the Athens newspaper, she bought three $1 Lotto tickets with different combinations.

Thursday morning, she was back at school. She clocked in at 11:46 a.m., removed her mop and broom from the closet and went to work as usual, co-workers said. But something was different about her. She was excited about something and wanted to talk.

"She said she thought she'd won the lottery," high school principal Tom Whitman said.

"You did what?" superintendent Wayne Martin said Ms. Minter was asked.

"Where's the ticket?" school officials asked.

Ms. Minter told them the ticket was in a safe place away from school, because she didn't want to risk losing it. It was in her family Bible.

Assistant principal Tony Harrison gave the woman immediate permission to take the rest of the day off, and she clocked out and headed to Tyler to have the ticket confirmed.

No one could be more deserving to win the lottery, Martin told the Tyler Morning Telegraph.

"She is a good person and a very hard worker," he said.

Whitman said she is dedicated, to say the least: "I can't believe she came to work today."

Meanwhile, a New Mexico woman was announced as the winner of Texas' latest million-dollar scratch-off drawing. She is Rosemary Larsson, 59, of Las Cruces, N.M., who owns and operates a tax and bridal shop. She told lottery officials she used her toy poodle, Cricket, as her good luck charm.

Student objects to religion in public school

MIDLOTHIAN (AP) — An attorney for a Midlothian High School student filed a lawsuit Thursday accusing school officials of permitting prayer and other religious practices during mandatory school functions.

The lawsuit filed in state District Court in Waxahachie contends that Bartholomew A. Hundt, 18, objected to school assemblies such as the "White Christmas" program where local ministers prayed in the name of God and Jesus Christ.

Students were not given the option of leaving the assembly, the lawsuit said.

Hundt, according to the suit, objected to frequent on-campus visits by non-school personnel who handed out Bibles to students. Students also are required to attend drug awareness programs where speakers often shifted the focus away from drug abuse to religious testimony and "witnessing," the lawsuit said.
