Chlorine leak at water plant capped quickly

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

A leak of chlorine at the Pampa Water Treatment Plant on Thursday released a cloud of chlorine gas about the size of a car window that forced the brief evacuation of 15 to 20 residents from that area, a city official said.

There were no injuries from the chlorine gas leak, which occurred at about 4:50 p.m., and the gas leak was capped about one hour after it began, said Lynn Thornton, public information officer for Pampa-Gray County Emergency Management and the safety and risk manager for the city of Pampa.

The water treatment plant is located along West Kentucky Avenue just outside the city limits and about one-half mile west of Price Road.

The evacuation of residents from about five homes along West Kentucky Avenue west of Price Road was done as a precautionary measure because chlorine gas is poisonous, Thornton noted. Deputies from the Gray County Sheriff's Office blocked a portion of West Kentucky Avenue near the water treatment plant for about one hour, he said.

A faulty gasket in the two-ton tank of chlorine apparently caused the leak, Thornton said, adding that Ken Hall, head of emergency management for the city, will conduct an investigation to officially determine the cause.

The gas leak occurred as employees for Operation Management Inc., which holds a contract with the city of Pampa, were attempting their monthly replacement of the chlorine tank for the city's water system, Thornton said.

The Sweetwater company that manufactures the chlorine used by the Pampa Water Treatment Plant is expected to visit Pampa either today or Saturday to remove the tank from the area, Thornton said.

Firefighters from the hazardous materials team of the Pampa Fire Department capped the chlorine tank cylinder about 5:45 p.m. Thursday, Thornton said. The hazardous materials team tested the air in the area about 6 p.m. and determined that there was no chlorine gas present in the atmosphere, he said.

Captain Malcolm Horton of the Pampa Fire Department led the response to the incident; in all, eight firefighters and three units from the Pampa Fire Department responded to the chlorine leak incident, the fire department reported. Ken Hall, emergency management coordinator for the city, was also at the scene, Thornton said.

"I think the city responded very well to it," Thornton said. "I feel like everyone did their job like they were trained to do, and it went real smooth."

Thornton added that sheriff's deputies were of "great assistance" in evacuating residents from the area and did a "good job" in keeping traffic out of the water treatment plant area.

The chlorine leak was the first that Thornton could recall in his three years as safety and risk manager for the city of Pampa. The deployment of the hazardous materials team of the Pampa Fire Department was the first since Nov. 21, 1992, when a truck carrying radiological pharmaceuticals was involved in an accident east of town on Texas 152, said Dan Rose, battalion chief for the Pampa Fire Department.

The evacuation of people from several homes in the Pampa area was the first that the Pampa Fire Department has ordered since Sept. 19, 1990, when a tank of propane turned over, leaking propane gas at the 500 block of Starkweather, Rose said.

Buy your way out of jail

By JOHN McMILLAN
Staff Writer

Those worried about spending time behind bars during the March 31 Jail-A-Thon need not despair. They have 11 more days in which to ensure their freedom.

"The best thing that people can do, if they think they're going to get arrested, is to purchase a 'Get out of jail free' card," said Janet Watts, executive director of the Tralee Crisis Center that is co-sponsoring the Jail-A-Thon.

Area residents who fail to purchase a "get out of jail free" card by the evening of March 30 will forfeit their chance to guarantee themselves immunity from Jail-A-Thon incarceration, Watts said.

This is the second year in Pampa of the Jail-A-Thon, which is a major fund-raising event for Pampa-Gray County Crime Stoppers as well as for the Tralee Crisis Center that assists victims of family violence and sexual assault.

"Last year it was new and a lot of people did not realize they could buy a 'Get out of jail free' card," said Dorla McAndrew, secretary on the board of directors of the Tralee Crisis Center and chairman of Tralee's fund-raising committee.

Last year, a total of $13,500 was raised from the event. Proceeds from the Jail-A-Thon will be divided evenly between the two non-profit organizations.

For the Jail-A-Thon, the general public is invited to purchase "arrest warrants" from participating merchants that enable the purchaser to have anyone in the city they designate picked up by uniformed off-duty Pampa police officers serving as volunteers for the event. The fee for obtaining the first arrest warrant is $25; the fee for each additional warrant is $10.

Each person arrested for the Jail-A-Thon will be given a comical arrest warrant and taken to the north end of Gray County Jail, at which each will be given a mock court hearing before a judge. Justices of the Peace Bob Muns and Margie Prestidge and Municipal Judge Pat Lee will preside over the mock court hearings.

The person arrested will then be detained for as long as one hour while he makes phone calls to ask people for contributions toward making his bail, sponsors of the event say.

"We try to make it as fun as possible," Watts said, noting that the "inmates" will be fed coffee, donuts and sandwiches at the jail.

The Jail-A-Thon arrests will be made from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on March 31.

Five businesses in Pampa — Pampa Office Supply; Hiland Pharmacy; Robert Knowles Oldsmobile, Cadillac, Dodge, Chrysler; Dunlaps; Superior RV Center — are selling the "get-out-of jail free" cards through March 30.

Paying $35 will earn the purchaser a green card that gives him exemption from one Jail-A-Thon arrest; paying $50 will entitle him to a gold card that assures him of freedom from such arrest throughout the day.

For those who want both freedom and the opportunity to put others in jail for the Jail-A-Thon, a platinum card can be purchased for $100 that grants the card-bearer freedom from a Jail-A-Thon arrest and two free arrest "warrants" providing for the arrest of anyone named by the card-bearer.

More information about the Jail-A-Thon can be obtained by calling the Tralee Crisis Center, 669-1131, or Crime Stoppers, 669-2222.

House passes Clinton economic package

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats delivered for President Clinton, passing his budget and his jobs bill in a single day. Now, it's up to the Senate, where it could be a tough couple of weeks.

"All eyes will be on whether they will give President Clinton a chance," said Rep. Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif.

"I think there will be a fight in the Senate, but the victory last night was an important first step," Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., said today of the late-night victory for Clinton's economic programs.

The House early this morning completed its version of Clinton's economic legislation by passing a $16.3 billion "emergency" jobs bill, including money for summer youth jobs, highway projects and other programs to put people to work.

Only a few hours earlier in the marathon session, the House passed Clinton's five-year, $500 billion deficit reduction plan — an amalgam of proposed energy and income tax increases, military cutbacks and a shift in domestic spending toward education, job training and construction.

The measures passed by nearly identical votes mostly along party lines, 243-183 on the budget and 235-190 on the spending bill.

"The great debate took place. The Republicans won the debate and the Democrats won the vote," Rep. Richard Army, R-Texas, said this morning.

The legislation passed just over a month after Clinton requested action in his economic speech to Congress, and party leaders based their appeals most stridently on the public support enjoyed by the new president.

"I think this is an example that gridlock is over and we're trying to move the country again," Synar said on "CBS This morning." "I think the American people support and want this president to succeed," he said.

But Army, appearing on the same program, said that "last night was not a victory for the American people or this president. ... This is the kind of change for which we will want no credit and will be happy to have the Democrats take all the credit."

"The one thing we need to do tonight is to say the Congress of the United States stands behind this young man," House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., told his colleagues earlier. "We want a new day for this country. Tonight we have that chance."

"Our party discipline, loyalty to the president. ... I think that's the significance of this vote," said Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M. "This is very needed psychological momentum" that will carry over to future tasks such as health care and trade.

Only 11 Democrats strayed from the party line on the budget and 22 voted against the jobs bill. Republicans voted against both — none supported the budget and only three the spending bill.

White says he'll retire from Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice Byron R. White today announced plans to retire after 31 years on the bench, giving President Clinton an early opportunity to make his first appointment to the nation's highest court.

White, in a statement released by the court's public information office, said he would step down at the end of the current term, in June or July. "After 31 years, Marion (Mrs. White) and I think someone else should be permitted to have a like experience," White said in the statement.

White, 75, is a centrist conservative who most often sides with the court's more politically conservative members on such divisive issues as abortion and church-state relations.

White informed President Clinton of his retirement plans in a letter delivered to the White House today.

Clinton said he had talked to White and thanked him for giving so much advance notice. The president told reporters "I will begin work on this tomorrow."

The president vowed to nominate an "outstanding person" who would be ready to serve by time the court convenes for its next term next October.

"I don't want to get into personalities now. This is Justice White's day," Clinton said.

During the presidential campaign, Clinton consistently said he would appoint justices who shared his support of abortion rights. He shied away from offering names, but did say during one MTV interview show that he thought New York Gov. Mario Cuomo would make a superb Supreme Court justice.

The last Democratic appointee confirmed to the court was Thurgood Marshall, who was named by Lyndon B. Johnson in 1967. There were no vacancies on the court during President Carter's 1977-1981 term.

White has generally voted on the "law and order" side in cases pitting societal protection against individual rights.

He wrote for the court in 1987 when it ruled that homosexuals' privacy rights do not protect them from state laws making sodomy a crime.

White would let states outlaw most abortions. He opposes broad use of affirmative action to remedy past bias in employment, and he favors greater government accommodation of religion in ways some consider a violation of church-state separation.

Among the most famous opinions are two White wrote dissenting from the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision that legalized abortion nationwide and the 1966 Miranda vs. Arizona landmark that required police to warn criminal suspects in custody about their right to remain silent before questioning them.

White said in his statement today that he and his wife plan to remain in Washington, and that he would move his office down Capitol Hill to the new Thurgood Marshall Federal Judiciary Building.

City fares well in latest sales tax receipts report

By RANDAL K. McGAVOCK
Staff Writer

The city of Pampa seems to be doing well when it comes to sales tax receipts compared to the same time last year, according to State Comptroller John Sharp.

This month, the city received a $161,970.31 check, which is a 67.09 percent increase over last year's March check of $96,938.30.

In addition, Pampa is ahead of last year's payments by 84.53 percent. The payments for last year at this time equaled $354,994.21. This year, the payments for the year equal $655,080.74.

The city of Lefors reported no payment for this month. One year earlier, Lefors received $919.15 for the month of March and year-to-date sales receipts are down 28.26 percent from last year at the same time.

The city of McLean received a check for $1,704.61 this month, a 31.27 percent increase from last March's check of 1,298.58. For the year-to-date, McLean is up 49.70 percent having received $7,787.44 in payments, compared to $5,201.98 last year at the same time.

This month's sales tax rebates include taxes collected on January sales and reported in February by businesses filing monthly tax returns.

Area merchants collect the state's sales tax and the two percent local sales taxes levied and send them to the Comptroller's Office with their tax returns. The state retains its share and returns to cities, counties and other taxing entities their local portion of the sales tax.

Last year, voters in Pampa voted to increase the area sales tax from one cent to two cents while at the same time reducing other taxes by the same amount in an effort to shift the tax base.

In Carson County, the cities of Groom, Panhandle, Skellytown and White Deer all posted gains in the monthly checks they received. As for the year-to-date payments, only Skellytown is making less this year compared to last year. The rest of the cities mentioned in the monthly report are receiving a least 10 percent more than last year in sales taxes receipts.

The city of Groom received a check for $2,274.32, an increase of 54.15 percent, compared to the check for $1,475.40 they received last year for the same time period.

In Panhandle, the city received an increase of 82.36 percent in this month's check which was $6,718.38 over last year's check of $3,684.12 for the same time period.

As for Skellytown, the city received a check for $1,524.83 an increase of 34.23 percent over last March's check of $1,135.96.

The city of White Deer received a check for $3459.85 which is 31.98 percent more than the check for $2,621.55 they received last year for the same time period.

In Hemphill County, the city of Canadian received a check for $11,918.49 this month. Last year, the city received a check for $11,408.84. The increase from this month's check compared to last year's check for the same time period is a modest 4.47 percent.

As for year-to-date payments, Canadian is down 4.6 percent this year compared to last. For 1993, the city has so far received $38,724.58 in sales taxes. For 1992 during the same time period, the city received $40,591.44.

In Wheeler County, the cities of Shamrock and Wheeler posted gains in this month's checks and in the year-to-date payments.

The city of Mobeetie did not receive a check this month. For year-to-date payments, however, the city has made 33.51 percent more this year than last. In 1993, the city has received $514.86 in sales taxes. In 1992, the city received $385.63 in sales taxes.

In Shamrock, the city's sales taxes increased 1.24 percent from $12,745.64 in 1992 to $12,903.85 in 1993. The year-to-date payments for this year was $49,371.64. Compared to last year's payment of $42,142.32 for the same time period, the 1993 total is a 17.15 percent increase.

The city of Wheeler is down less than one percent with its $3,864.24 payment this month but up 8.15 percent for the year to date, having received $14,692.90 so far this year.

Stocky Lamberson dies at 50

BORGER (AP) — Stocky Lamberson, who led high school football teams to the state playoffs in 11 of his 19 years as a head coach, was found dead in his home on Thursday, officials said.

Officials said they were investigating his death and would not release any details until an autopsy was performed.

Lamberson, 50, last year went 0-10 in his first season at Borger. He had a career record of 132-87-3.

Lamberson had a reputation for rebuilding programs in his 28 years on the sidelines at Gruver, Memphis, Panhandle, Canyon Randall and Borger.

His career highlights included being named District 1-4A coach of the year while at Canyon Randall and guiding his 1984 Panhandle squad to the Class 2A state championship game. They lost 38-7 to Groveton.

Lamberson began coaching in 1964 at Amarillo Travis Junior High, then became an assistant at Gruver and Levelland High Schools from 1966-72.

He got his first head coaching job at Gruver in 1973, taking over a team that had won twice in the three previous years. By 1976, he led them to a 7-3 record and a second-place finish in district play.

Lamberson went 8-3 with a district title in his only year at Memphis.

His Panhandle teams made the playoffs in nine of his 10 years, before he became Canyon Randall's first coach in 1988. He inherited one player with varsity experience and won 12 games in three years.

Lamberson, a Groom native who played football at Panhandle State, is survived by his wife, Aimee, and three children.

Funeral arrangements were pending Thursday night.

Committee considers new MS drug

ROCKVILLE, Md. (AP) — A proposed new multiple sclerosis drug shows evidence of protecting patients from attacks of the disease, according to studies presented today to a Food and Drug Administration advisory committee.

The drug, beta interferon, was given to patients during a three-year trial and results have prompted a pharmaceutical company to propose the drug as the first to promise slowing the crippling effects of MS.

An FDA advisory committee is considering the findings for making a recommendation to the agency for drug approval. The agency generally follows the recommendations of its advisory committees.

The study, involving 372 MS patients, showed that patients receiving high doses of the drug remained attack-free for up to 295 days compared with an average of 153 attack-free days for patients not taking the drug.

Additionally, attacks among patients at the high dose were graded as severe in 11 percent of the cases, while attacks on patients on placebos were regarded as severe 16 percent of the time.

Among patients hospitalized, high-dose patients spent 27 days in the hospital while placebo patients spent 45.

An FDA investigator, Jawahar Tiwari, said some of the data were affected because many of the MS attacks on the patients were not verified by clinical examination within three days. The rules of the study called for the patients to be examined within 72 hours, but this protocol was not followed for about 20 percent of the attacks.

The drug, a form of an immune system chemical, is thought to work by blocking the action of other immune system chemicals that are involved in MS attacks.

Multiple sclerosis is a disease of the central nervous system that scientists think is caused by a flaw that allows cells in the immune system to attack a tissue called myelin that covers nerve fibers.

When the myelin is destroyed, scars form within the nerve cell bundles and within the brain. That can lead to an impaired function.

MS patients can suffer loss of balance and muscle coordination, blurred vision and slurred speech, difficulties in walking and even paralysis in severe cases. The disease generally isn't fatal.

Women are twice as likely as men to have MS. It strikes most often between the ages of 20 and 40 and afflicts about 350,000 Americans, the National Multiple Sclerosis Society says.

Beta interferon is thought to act as a regulator of gamma interferon, another type of immune system chemical. The three-year study was to test the theory that beta interferon injections every other day would block the action of gamma interferon and, thus, moderate MS attacks.

Senate approves more women's restrooms

AUSTIN (AP) — Lawmakers once again are facing the issue of potty parity.

On Thursday, the state Senate approved a bill that would require new stadiums and other facilities to increase the number of women's restrooms.

After the Senate sent the bill to the House on a voice vote, Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, sponsor of the measure, said, "The women of Texas thank you."

Under the bill, stadiums, arenas, or any facility where "the public congregates" would have to have double the number of women's restrooms as men's. The requirement would apply only to facilities either built or overhauled after this year.

This 2-to-1 restroom ratio "is simply an effort to face reality and provide restroom facilities in proportion to the different needs of men and women," said Barrientos, D-Austin.

Barrientos had a similar bill two years ago, but it died in the final moments of the regular legislative session. Some House members then had wanted to reduce the ratio to 3-to-2. A compromise could not be reached before the session ended.

Potty parity gained national attention in 1990 when a Denise Wells of Houston was ticketed at a concert at The Summit after she used a men's restroom to avoid long lines for the women's rooms.

She was tried for allegedly violating a city ordinance that prevents a person from entering a public restroom for the opposite sex.

A jury quickly acquitted her after she testified she couldn't wait in line any longer.

Ms. Wells said Thursday she was glad the bill was being revived and hoped that this time it would become law.

"It really is a problem and needs to be addressed," she said. She recently went to a Houston Rockets game at The Summit and "even in the private club level there are women waiting in line," she said.

One Trade Center tower reopens

NEW YORK (AP) — Breaking two weeks of silence, a radical Muslim cleric whose name has surfaced repeatedly in the probe of the World Trade Center bombing denied any role in the attack and said he doesn't know the suspects under arrest.

Sheik Omar Abdel-Rahman preaches at a Jersey City, N.J., mosque where two of the suspects worshipped.

"I had no knowledge of this explosion and I'm not responsible for it," the blind Egyptian cleric said on ABC's "Primetime Live" Thursday, one of four back-to-back interviews. "I came to America as an immigrant in order to attack the Egyptian regime. It doesn't stand to reason that I would like for the place in which I live to be unsafe."

Also Thursday, one of the twin 110-story towers shut since the Feb. 26 blast was partially reopened, with Gov. Mario Cuomo the first tenant to return. After inspecting his 57th-floor office with a white handkerchief, he pronounced himself amazed by the speed and thoroughness of the cleanup.

"I will report to my people that they are free to come back and it will be safer than before," he said.

Egyptian authorities say Abdel-Rahman, 54, is the spiritual leader of a violent band of fundamentalists that wants to overthrow the Egyptian government and install an Islamic regime.

The sheik was on a U.S. list of suspected terrorists but was mistakenly allowed into the United States in 1990 and has preached at a mosque attended by two men of Palestinian descent who have been indicted in the bombing: Mohammed Salameh and Nidal Ayyad.

Asked about them during the interviews in Los Angeles, the sheik, speaking through an interpreter, denied knowing them or another suspect still at large, Mahmud Abouhalima, identified in news reports as his driver and assistant.

"I never had a car so he couldn't drive for me," Abdel-Rahman said on CNN.

Abdel-Rahman also said he didn't know Ibrahim Elgabrowni, charged with obstruction of justice in the bombing case, or El-Sayyid Nosair, now jailed on charges connected to the assassination of anti-Arab extremist Rabbi Meir Kahane.

"The FBI was asking me before about Nosair's case," Abdel-Rahman said. "I told them I don't know him. I'm not obligated to verify everyone's identity when they come pray behind me."

He also spoke with Al-Hayat, a London-based Arabic daily, and KCAL-TV in Los Angeles.

He accused the American media of being "controlled and racist."

"They showed my picture hundreds of times accusing me of being a terrorist and to reach, to accuse, Islam through that with terrorism," he said.

When asked "Why is it that everywhere you are people end up dead?" the sheik told ABC: "We can never call for violence. We call for love, forgiveness and tolerance. But if we are aggressed against, if our land is usurped, we must call for hitting the attacker and the aggressor to put an end to aggression."

Through his lawyer, Abdel-Rahman previously had denied involvement in the bombing. But he had not made any public comments since the blast that killed six people and injured more than 1,000.

On Wednesday, Abdel-Rahman was ordered deported by a U.S. immigration judge in Newark, N.J. The proceedings were not connected to the trade bombing.

But according to The Star-Ledger of Newark, U.S. Immigration Judge Daniel Meisner said in his sealed order, "There are reasonable grounds for deeming the applicant to be a danger to the security of the United States."

The judge said Abdel-Rahman's followers in Egypt were involved in the 1981 assassination of President Anwar Sadat and other "spectacular terrorist activities."

The Immigration and Naturalization Service sought the sheik's deportation because Abdel-Rahman did not disclose that he is a polygamist and that he was convicted of falsifying a check in Egypt. His lawyer said he will fight deportation.

Agents use blaring loudspeakers to make appeal for surrender

By CHIP BROWN
Associated Press Writer

WACO (AP) — After saying that details of negotiations may not be reaching some members of the barricaded Branch Davidian cult, federal agents turned to blaring loudspeakers to make a surrender appeal to doomsday leader David Koresh.

But a defiant reply could be heard from the cult's rural compound Thursday evening.

"I am not coming out until my message gets out," said a voice heard on a loudspeaker by reporters more than a mile away.

It could not immediately be determined if the voice was Koresh's.

Another voice was heard to say, "David, we are not here to hurt you. We are here to help you."

The same voice also tried to reassure people inside the compound that they would have "legal representation" upon their departure.

Law officers have been in a standoff with Koresh's Branch Davidian sect since a Feb. 28 gunfight that ended with four ATF agents and at least two cultists dead.

Much of the apparent exchange over the speakers, which lasted about an hour, could not be heard clearly because of wind and distance.

Use of police baton at issue in King case

By LINDA DEUTSCH
AP Special Correspondent

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Only hours before taking part in the Rodney King beating, Officer Laurence Powell was reprimanded for not striking hard enough with his baton, a police sergeant testified.

Sgt. Richard Di Stefano, who conducted roll call training at the Foothill Division station just before the March 3, 1991, beating of the black motorist, recalled Thursday that Powell "wasn't putting enough power into his blows."

"The angles of his blows were steep and glancing. He wasn't putting his body into it," Di Stefano said under questioning by Powell's lawyer, Michael Stone.

Stone was seeking to suggest that Powell, who struck the most blows against King, could not have caused extreme fractures of King's face. The defense claims King smashed his cheekbone and eye socket in a fall to the pavement.

Powell, Sgt. Stacey Koon and Officers Theodore Briseno and Timothy Wind are accused of violating King's civil rights. They could get 10 years in prison and $250,000 in fines.

In contrast to Powell, Di Stefano said, Wind, only a few months out of the Police Academy, performed such baton maneuvers as "the pool cue jab" and "the chop" with precision.

After more instruction, Di Stefano said, Powell managed to "put some more power into the blows."

Nevertheless, he said, when

A spokeswoman for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms said she could not confirm the use of the loudspeakers. A representative for the FBI could not immediately be reached.

Agents have acknowledged previously, however, that they set up loudspeakers around the cult's compound.

Negotiations to end a 19-day standoff between cult members and authorities had been confined to the telephone and one face-to-face meeting. FBI agent Bob Ricks said Thursday that authorities have become worried that Koresh isn't giving his 104 followers an accurate picture of the steps they are taking to end the siege.

"So we will be continuing to explore different ways to reach those people who are not receiving information that they should," Ricks said Thursday morning.

Agents said negotiations had slowed and some cult members challenged authorities to prove the doomsday messages of Koresh incorrect.

"To me it's like a dueling contest between various biblical scholars," Ricks said. "The challenge is, if you can prove David wrong, we will come out, which of course is an impossible task since he does his own interpretation of the Bible which is not consistent with any other scholar."

Earlier this week, authorities learned from Koresh's top deputy, Steven Schneider, that about 30 cult members would consider leaving the compound if treated fairly in court.

Twenty-five people, including 21 children, have left the cult since the siege began. The four adults have been held as material witnesses.

Federal magistrate Dennis Green ruled Thursday that one of them, Kathryn Schroeder, could be released from jail on a $10,000 bond. But prosecutors immediately asked for a federal judge to reconsider the decision, leaving Ms. Schroeder in jail at least until a hearing next Wednesday.

Ricks said authorities "feel no urgency" to forcefully end the standoff.

"We believe an effort to bring this thing down forcefully will result in many lives being lost," he said. "We believe that those lives will not be lost on our side."

Ricks also said: "We're very concerned that part of Koresh's grand scheme is he would like to see a large number of his people die, which would be justification for his pronouncements of the fulfillment of the scriptures."

Koon returned to the station after the King beating, he complained that Powell's blows were "weak and ineffective."

Earlier Thursday, Assistant U.S. Attorney Steven Clymer noted that the use-of-force report filed by Wind and Powell makes no mention of a two-hour detour they took in stopping at their station before taking King to a hospital.

The government contends Wind and Powell falsified reports to hide the fact that they delayed medical treatment for King while Powell returned to tell colleagues "war stories" about the beating.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

The Huntsville Item on the Anti-Stalker Bills:

You'll often hear people complaining about the legislative body of the state, composed too often of lawyers and creating too many laws, with laws enough already to serve virtually every purpose imaginable.

Such is specifically not the case with a bit of legislation we see the Texas legislators have chosen to tackle — we speak of the anti-stalking bill and it's being written not a session too soon.

Anyone who has had to deal with a spurned lover or unsolicited attention from another can appreciate what legislators are attempting to accomplish with the legislation.

The punishment appears sufficiently formidable — a first offense would be a misdemeanor punishable by up to a year in jail and a $3,000 fine; a repeat offense would be a felony with a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine — although we all know it's unlikely any Texas stalkers is going to see 10 years behind bars for the crime.

At least the legislation does call for victims of a stalker imprisoned on a felony would be notified at 30 days before the inmate's scheduled release.

The Galveston Daily News on Texas image following Branch Davidian siege:

Heard the latest joke? "Alcohol, tobacco and firearms — the recipe for a party in Texas."

Texans have long enjoyed promoting an image of being rough and tough independents, but that image of the shoot-'em-up Wild West may backfire on us.

The Branch Davidian stand-off in Waco has brought negative national media attention to a state that is becoming widely known for its violence. It's a reputation that could hurt the state economically and discourage growth.

A report on the "Today Show" ... about Texans and their guns may have been unbalanced, but it drove home a strong message.

News clips of the Branch Davidian cult violence, the massacre at the Luby's in Killeen two years ago and a dozen other Texas shootings were used to illustrate the point the reporter was making — that Texas is the most violent state in American.

He peppered his report with statistics such as these:
—In 1991, more people were killed with gunfire than in auto accidents in Texas;
—There are an estimated 68 million guns in Texas, four for every person in the state.

... This news report left the impression that Texas is just as it was in the Wild West when almost everyone was armed for protection and settled disputes with guns.
Come to think of it, maybe it's true.

Berry's World

"Since November, I've downplayed my being a Rhodes Scholar."

See it and weep

I like to think that I stand by ready to make large sacrifices for readers courteous enough to spend a minute or two perusing this space three times a week, but my commitment to full disclosure requires me to confess that an appeal signed by 100 million Americans would be insufficient to cause me to give 148 minutes of my time to viewing "The Un-Americans," a BBC production scheduled to be loosed on America starting March 26.

I watched more than one-third of it, and except that this is the Age of Greed and I wish to be uncontaminated, I would write to my editors and ask for a raise. It was the most boring 50 minutes I have ever spent in order to be excruciatingly mauled by pseudo-history, histrionically portrayed, the purpose of which is to acclaim everybody you ever heard of who was a member of the Communist Party during the '50s and '60s and to despise everybody who was an energetic anti-communist during the same period, from J. Edgar Hoover to Harry Truman.

The first warning to the listener is of a technical nature. The producer of "The Un-Americans," one Archie Baron, is a product of the Bela Lugosi School of Melodrama. Just about everybody in this anti-communist melodrama weeps. Weeps endlessly.

Why do they weep? Because of the un-Americans, who are, roughly speaking, everybody except the communists. We are told that 500 people lost jobs because they were judged to be security risks. All that most of them had done was to join the Communist Party! And what was the Communist Party, except a small group of idealists who wanted to end the Depression and to do something for human liberty and pride?

I didn't stopwatch it, but the longest weep was by a woman who, let me see, 38 years ago was harassed by the FBI because she had spent "a couple of hours" at a firing range in Moscow, and was thought to be a security risk, and she says she doesn't believe there is, but the girl should make up her mind on the subject when she is older.

The weeping in "The Un-American" is one of the three modes used by the director. The second mode is the Stentorian Voice, March-of-Time style. Every non-communist sounds like a militant funeral director, and of course what they said were such things as that the communists were a threat to humankind, that the communists made their way by subversion and deceit, and that communism was a threat to the United States.

The drumbeat voice is unrelieved: Everybody sounds as if he or she was addressing Congress asking for a declaration of war.

The third mode is the sound of a harmonica. If you are familiar with the word ululation, you will know exactly what the harmonica does: It ululates. Appropriately, it is played by Larry Adler, who had a little trouble back then as a result of his carefree association with some communist-front groups.

If you last that long, you can see the scene built around the execution of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg. The producer of "The Un-Americans" doesn't bother to tell you what they were executed for — there is a limit to what you can do in 148 minutes. What you do get is a long declamatory scene from one of the defense attorneys, half outrage, half indignation. He tells you how defense lawyers crowded around Judge Jerome Frank, hoping to abort the execution hours before it was scheduled. But Judge Frank, he reveals, said to them: If I were a younger man, I would understand your case and do something about it, but I am too old. You see, the lawyer tells us, he was afraid of being branded an un-American!

Great ululations from Mr. Adler. Then we get to someone who is describing the execution to the press. He tells us in a voice choked with horror that they gave Ethel as much juice as they gave Julius, who perished right away, but when the doctors examined her with their stethoscopes, steths-, stethscopes — "I guess I just can't pronounce the word right now, the way I feel" — their steth-o-scopes, they found she was still alive, so they had to strap her back into the chair and give her a final jolt. More ululation.

You would need to ask Nexis what it was that the Rosenbergs went to the chair for, which was for feeding into a communist spy network information about how to kill people not individually, but by the hundred of thousands through nuclear power, doing away with any need for stethoscopes, cooperate, or whatever, to make sure the un-communists on whom Ethel and Julius had designs were good and dead, first time out.

Well, the temptation is to say to those who want to believe that America during the Cold War was a nation panicked and prosecutorial and shameful: Have fun. Except that you won't have fun if you watch "The Un-Americans." You will go to sleep, though the ululator makes this tough to do.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, March 19, the 78th day of 1993. There are 287 days left in the year. This is the date the swallows traditionally return to the San Juan Capistrano Mission in California.

Today's Highlight in History: Forty years ago, on March 19, 1953, the Academy Awards ceremony was televised for the first time. "The Greatest Show on Earth" was named best picture of 1952.

On this date: In 1687, French explorer Robert Cavelier, sieur de La Salle — the first European to navigate the length of the Mississippi River — was murdered by mutineers in present-day Texas.

In 1859, the opera "Faust" by Charles Gounod premiered in Paris. In 1917, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld the eight-hour work day for railroads.

In 1918, Congress approved Daylight-Saving Time.

"Alright! Break it up! I'm sure you've all seen someone getting hired before."

If I were the devil ...

If I were the devil...
If I were the prince of darkness, I would want to engulf the whole world in darkness.
I'd have a third of its real estate and four-fifths of its population, but I would not be happy until I had seized the ripest apple on the tree — thee.
So I would set about however necessary to take over the United States. I'd subvert the churches first.

I would begin with a campaign of whispers.
With the wisdom of a serpent I would whisper to you as I whispered to Eve: "Do as you please."
To the young I would whisper that "the Bible is a myth." I would convince them that man created God instead of the other way around. I'd confide that "what's bad is good and what's good is 'square.'"
And the old I would teach to pray after me, "Our Father — which art in Washington."

Then I'd get organized. I'd educate authors in how to make lurid literature exciting so that anything else would appear dull, uninteresting. I'd threaten TV with dirtier movies and vice versa.

I'd peddle narcotics to whom I could. I'd sell alcohol to ladies and gentlemen of distinction. I'd tranquelize the rest with themselves, churches at war with themselves and nations at war with themselves. Until each, in turn, was consumed.

Paul Harvey

And with promises of higher ratings I'd have mesmerizing media fanning the flames.

If I were the devil, I would encourage schools to refine young intellects but neglect to discipline emotions; just let those run wild.

Until before you knew it you'd have to have drug-sniffing dogs and metal detectors at every schoolhouse door.

Within a decade I'd have prisons overflowing and judges promoting pornography.

Soon I could evict God from the courthouse and the schoolhouse and then from the houses of Congress.

In His own churches I would substitute psychology for religion and deity science.

I'd lure priests and pastors into misusing boys and girls and church money ...

If I were the devil, I'd make the symbol of Easter an egg and the symbol of Christmas a bottle.

If I were the devil, I'd take from those who have and give to those who wanted until I had killed the incentive of the ambitious.

What'll you bet I couldn't get whole states to promote gambling as the way to get rich?

I would caution against "extremes" in hard work, in patriotism, in moral conduct.

I'd convince the young that marriage is old-fashioned, that swinging is more fun; that what you see on TV is the way to be.

And thus I could undress you in public and lure you into bed with diseases for which there is no cure.

In other words, if I were the devil, I'd just keep right on doing what he's doing.

Two big military issues

WASHINGTON — On separate tracks but one timetable, two military bombshells — gays in the service and wholesale base closings — are up for simultaneous action by President Clinton in the summer.

The twin July 15 deadlines guarantee another round of defense controversy at midyear, even though Clinton's decisions are set in all but the details.

The president is committed to base closings that are not likely to be drastically different from the list of 31 major shutdowns just sent to a bipartisan commission for four months of study.

And the Pentagon is under his instructions to produce a draft executive order ending the 50-year ban on homosexuals in the armed forces; there is a review under way, but only on implementation and rules of conduct.

Those questions, plus a military pay freeze that is part of the budget-cutting plan, would be difficult to handle in the first year of any administration. For Clinton, who avoided the Vietnam-era draft and is the first president since World War II who is not a veteran, there's the extra burden of skepticism in the ranks.

"This is a constituency that at the moment I would say is adopting a wait-and-see attitude," said Defense Secretary Les Aspin. "I think this is an eminently winnable constituency for Bill Clinton."

"I think that in a couple of years, you will see a really strong support for the president of the men and women in uniform," Aspin said Sunday on the NBC interview program "Meet the Press."

Those are striking comments about a president

Walter Mears
AP Special Correspondent

who, after all, won command of that constituency when he won the White House. They were prompted by a Washington Post report of skepticism and criticism among men serving on the USS Theodore Roosevelt, the aircraft carrier Clinton visited Friday off Norfolk, Va.

Five of the men were quoted by name. Another told The Associated Press that his plans for a Navy career would be affected should Clinton finally rescind the ban on homosexuals.

The Post also quoted the ship's commanding officer, Capt. Stanley W. Bryant, as telling the crew before Clinton came aboard that "regardless of the president's politics, we need to show support for the president of the United States and the commander in chief of the armed forces."

White House Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers said Monday that Clinton felt his shipboard visit was very successful.

"I don't know that it was intended to change people's minds," she said. "People are certainly entitled to their own opinions and to vote as they see fit."

There's no doubt about rank-and-file opinion of the president's decision to rescind the ban on homosexuals, a campaign pledge he reaffirmed but delayed after it stirred a distracting dispute during his first days in office. A Los Angeles Times poll among 2,346 military enlistees last month showed 74 percent opposed lifting the ban.

But repeal is ordained unless Congress blocks it. Concern that it might have done so this winter is one reason for the current holding action.

On base closings, the delay is part of a system created to get around political stalemates that used to block action in Congress, where no member quietly surrenders the jobs and economic impact of a military base back home.

The military services drew up the list of 31 major base closings and 134 realignments or reductions sent to the commission, which began its review Monday.

The panel can change the list before sending a final version to Clinton by July 1. He then has until July 15 to decide whether to send it on to Congress for a take-it-or-leave-it vote, no amendments permitted.

There's no question that he will, and that Congress will accept it.

Clinton left the campaign impression in some key states that he'd help them keep bases and defense business now on the hit list. Now he says he was not involved in the choices and they weren't made politically.

They were too, Republicans insist. Just as the Democrats did two years ago, when George Bush was president. Indeed, even as he endorsed the need for base closings, Clinton said the list was in the works before he was president, so "it is true that this is a leftover from the Bush administration."

Two polar bears appear to get friendly while enjoying a morning swim in the sun recently at the Rio Grande Zoo in Albuquerque, N.M. Zoo officials speculate that the bears were excited by the prospect of moving into a new facility later this year.

Marquetry is signature of Silas Kopf

By BARBARA MAYER
For AP Special Features

In the wacky world of modern art, furniture is Silas Kopf's canvas.

Kopf, of Northampton, Mass., is a master of marquetry, an intricately decorative version of inlaid wood. With a variety of wood veneers as his palette, he creates borders, center motifs or overall designs on cabinetry.

There's a desk with a school of fish swimming across the top and one side, a sideboard crawling with ants. Both fish and ants are inlays. But Kopf's most sophisticated inlay — sort of like a ceramic tile mosaic without grout, a stained glass window without leading — is a portrait of his father inlaid with 500 pieces of wood in 20 varieties.

Kopf, 43, began teaching himself the medium in the mid-1970s. His work was exhibited mainly at galleries and not always received with understanding. Now, fashion has caught up to him with painted and other decorative pieces.

"In a search for emotional content, many furniture makers are using imagery and illusion rather than relying on wood, structure and design," says Edward S. Cooke, Jr., a professor of American decorative arts at Yale University.

"Most are working with techniques like inlaying or painting," Cooke says. "Silas is unique in making veneer pictures, which is a simple way of describing marquetry."

Marquetry was brought to its highest stage of development in French furniture of the 18th and 19th centuries. It involves cutting forms out of veneers thinner than a nail file and piecing them together in a single sheet to form an image. This sheet is glued onto plywood, which then becomes one of the panels used to build the furniture.

Kopf decided that marquetry could be his signature as a furniture maker. He learned through trial and error with the help of a book. Eventually, he adapted the modern jigsaw to make cutting the veneer faster than with a traditional hand saw.

Kopf started with jewelry boxes inlaid with no more than 20 pieces of wood. Today, he might work with as many as 1,000 pieces and 25 types of wood. The cabinet with his father's likeness, copied from a photograph, has about 500 pieces and about 20 woods.

"He was wearing a green tie, and I used some wood dyed in four different tones of green to make the tie," Kopf says.

Kopf selected eight or nine species of wood ranging from in color from white to tan for the skin, five tones of gray for the hair and another six or seven reddish browns for the jacket.

Although dying wood expands the color palette, it is possible to select enough natural wood colors to create a bouquet of red, yellow, pink and white flowers.

Kopf apprenticed with the well-known American furniture maker Wendell Castle. While he can make the furniture for the marquetry, he often leaves it to others. He says he and a helper finish one complex piece a month. Prices for his work, sold mainly through the Henoch Gallery in New York, range from $15,000 to $40,000. Collectors are the most likely buyers.

In the last 10 years, Kopf says, he has taught marquetry, using his jigsaw technique, to hundreds of people at workshops in crafts schools and universities around the country.

But he says more important than what he can teach is an ability to draw and a knowledge of how woods complement each other.

He says a high level of drawing skill is required to create an artful image and that knowledge of how woods complement one another is important in selecting the materials.

"Drawing is the key to success if you are making a realistic picture, not woodworking," he says.

Square dancing makes many a happy hooper

DEAR ABBY: In your reply to people wanting to meet someone of the opposite sex, how come you never mention square dancing?

It's a wholesome way to meet people. You will see no couch potatoes, no drinking is allowed, and it's great exercise.

This is a worldwide activity and is well-established in all 50 states. There are teen and singles clubs as well as couples only. Some clubs will welcome anyone from 16 to 90 who walks through the door.

If you're interested and don't know a dancer, look in the Yellow Pages under "Square Dance Apparatus" and call one of the shops for information. It opened up a whole new world for me.

ROBERT FITTS, EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR ROBERT: You must be a new reader. In June of 1989, I read the following ringing endorsement of square dancing:

DEAR ABBY: Once in a while I read a love story in your column, usually from a couple who met through Operation Dear Abby. Well, I also have a love story to tell.

Several years ago, following a painful divorce, I enrolled in a square dance class. The caller (teacher) said that every year there had been marriages as a result of people meeting there. I didn't find a husband, but I had a lot of fun and met some nice people. Then I dropped out.

Dear Abby

Last October, a neighbor encouraged me to enroll in another square dance class, and there I met Richard — an "angel" (that's what they call dancers who come to help beginners). I approached him, just to talk, and before the evening ended, he asked me for a date.

Richard turned out to be the love of my life! I'm no spring chicken (I'm 50 plus) and never expected to find love again, but did I ever! He's a few years younger than I am, but who's counting?

We're getting married next week, and I've never been happier. Abby, please tell your readers about square dancing. It's good exercise and a wonderful way to meet nice people.

DO-SI-DOLLY IN L.A.

DEAR DOLLY: Your letter is a do-si-dilly. Thanks for the tip. Take heed, all you lonesome polecats. Square dance clubs are listed in the telephone directory.

***

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column recently that a woman had attended a very posh party and never met the bride and groom because there was no receiving line. Well, this could have been my wedding.

When I was married, I was three months pregnant, which wasn't a problem for either of us or our parents, as we had gone together for nine years and had planned to marry a year later.

I confided in my priest, who knew me well because I had attended his church all my 24 years of life, and he refused to let us get married in the church until we had completed a Catholic seminar, and the first opening wasn't for four months — at which time I would have been seven months pregnant!

Anyway, getting back to the receiving line, my parents found a beautiful Christian church. The price for renting the church was $750 for the ceremony, but no receiving line, because they had scheduled three more weddings immediately after ours. We were told later that nobody missed the receiving line, and in my condition, I certainly didn't.

Hospice Association of the Golden Spread to be hosted by local agency

Hospice of the Panhandle, with offices in Pampa and Borger, plans to host the July 14 meeting of the recently-formed Hospice Association of the Golden Spread in Pampa, announced Sherry McCavit, executive director of the non-profit agency.

"The most exciting thing about this new organization is the chance it provides for area hospices to get together to share ideas, to tell what's worked for them and what has not worked," McCavit said. "So certainly it's an educational opportunity. But also it's a spiritual and emotional opportunity — a time to support each other in the very worthy work we are doing. You might call it "caregiver refueling."

The regional hospice organization was formed last February during an informal meeting in Plainview of hospice representatives from across the Panhandle and South Plains.

Primary purpose of Hospice Association of the Golden Spread is to share information and ideas concerning hospice care, a concept of care for the terminally ill which focuses on quality of life remaining and respect for personal dignity.

Nine organizations are presently included in the group: Hospice of Lubbock; Hospice of Canyon; St. Anthony's Hospice and Crown of Texas Hospice, both of Amarillo; Memorial Hospice, Dumas; Hansford Hospice, Spearman; Hospice of the Panhandle, Pampa-Borger; Hospice of Lea County, N.M.; and Helping Hands, Quayle, N.M.

Approximately 50 persons are expected to attend the July 14 meeting, McCavit said.

Treatment of endometriosis being met with success

By DR. LYLE BREITKOPF
New York University School of Medicine

Although endometriosis is a frustrating illness which can often go undetected for years, education and awareness are leading to greater success in treatment of the disease.

Endometriosis, believed to affect more than 10 million American women, is the result of menstrual tissue which implants itself outside of the uterus, forming adhesions or cysts in the abdominal cavity.

The symptoms of endometriosis, most prevalent in women 25 to 40, can range from minor backache to severe infertility. Warning signs of endometriosis include painful, heavy and skipped periods, pain during intercourse, irregular cycles, and cyclic rectal bleeding.

Treatment depends on a variety of factors, including the age and health of the patient, the severity of the condition, and the desire of the woman to have children.

The earlier the disease is discovered, the better the chance to avoid fertility problems. And the only sure diagnosis is through a visual inspection or biopsy with an instrument called a laparoscope.

With the ability to actually see the extent of the adhesions or cysts, physicians can make a more effective choice from the many treatments.

These options range from medication to laser surgery with a broad combination in between. Some cases are so mild they do not require any special treatment.

Scouts meet in joint awards program

Girl Scouts and Cub Scouts in Lefors met jointly at the Civic Center on March 12 for an awards program.

The program was opened with a flag ceremony and Molly Turpen welcomed visitors and opened the program.

Senior District Executive for the Golden Spread Council of Boy Scouts, Jack Crider, spoke on the need for parents and children to work together in Scouting for best results.

"Learning should always be fun" was his theme.

Brownies described their work in one of the five worlds of interest and were awarded try-it badges and membership stars.

Cub Scouts were awarded Bobcat awards.

Cadet Girl Scouts performed a skit and described their past year's activities. Shelly Davenport and Angie Turpen earned leadership pins and Challenge pins. They are working toward the Silver Award.

'Women Traveling Alone' topic of training

"Women Traveling Alone" will be a topic of the leader training at 10 a.m. Monday in the Gray County Annex. Donna Brauchi, County Extension Agent will conduct the training.

The leader training will focus on: (1) becoming aware of the potential dangers when women travel alone;

(2) personal responsibility in making traveling alone safer; and (3) personal safety knowledge related to traveling.

The training is specially designed for Extension Homemakers club program leaders. However, all interested persons are invited to attend.

"SING UNTO THE LORD!"

THE BOOK OF PSALMS RECORDS THE ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY HYMNS WHICH WERE SUNG IN THE TEMPLE IN JERUSALEM. THE MEN WHO SANG THEM WERE ALL LEVITES, AS WERE THE PRIESTS...

PRIMARYLY, THE CHORISTERS ARE LISTED AS SONS AND DESCENDANTS OF ASAPH, HEMAN, AND JEDUTHUN, CHARGED WITH THE RESPONSIBILITY OF CONDUCTING THE MUSIC AND SINGING DURING THE SERVICES HELD IN THE TEMPLE. HARPS, PSALTERIES, AND CYMBALS WERE THE INSTRUMENTS USED TO ACCOMPANY THE SINGERS AND, ALONG WITH HYMNS OF PRAISE, PRAYERS OF THANKSGIVING, AND PLEAS FOR DIVINE HELP AND FORGIVENESS, IT WAS EXPECTED THAT THE CHORISTERS WOULD ALSO PROPHESY IN SONG WHENEVER SUCH A NEED WAS DEEMED NECESSARY!

Mormon political dominion: A fact of life in Utah

By MIKE CARTER
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — In this most idiosyncratic of states, where nearly three-fourths of the residents are Mormon and church members predominate at every level of public life, it is almost impossible to separate the religion from the merely religious.

Virtually any issue the church deems a moral one is effectively decided at that point: Pari-mutuel betting (against). The MX missile (against). Tax deductions for religious contributions (for). The Equal Rights Amendment (against).

Nobody accuses Utah of being an full-fledged theocracy, a government ruled by a god.

"A theocracy suggests there is some kind of religious authority running the state," said Bud Scruggs, a Brigham Young University political scientist and former church lobbyist. "The fact is that there are religious people running the state. And there is a big difference there."

But if Utah is not the theocracy envisioned by pioneer leader Brigham Young and other early Mormons, neither has its government shed a perception that has endured since statehood — that the state's true seat of power is the Church Administration Building at the bottom of Capitol Hill.

"There is no state in the union that comes close to having the church being the dominant player whenever it chooses to be the dominant player on about any issue it chooses to speak on," said Edwin Firmage, a Mormon constitutional law professor at the University of Utah and co-author of a legal history of the church.

"Perception is reality, whether it's true or not," said Rob Bishop, speaker of the Utah House and himself a Mormon. "The perception out there is that the Mormon Church does control the state of Utah."

The suspicion is most pronounced among Utah's non-Mormon minority, many of whom feel excluded by the predominant culture and at a disadvantage socially, professionally and politically.

The closely knit, authoritarian faith has inspired similar feelings among its neighbors since its birth in 1830.

Interviews with political observers, historians, civil libertarians and leaders of other faiths show the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints to be overwhelmingly deemed Utah's single most influential political entity.

But is that influence just a reflection of demographics?

Almost 72 percent of Utah's 1.8 million residents are Mormon, and 90 percent of the state's religious adherents. In contrast, Catholics are the second-largest group, 3.8 percent of the state's total. No other religion comprises more than 1 percent.

Most Mormons say the Mormon leadership is meticulous about maintaining distance between church and state. They cite founder Joseph Smith's dictum: "I teach them correct principles and they govern themselves."

Jean Bickmore White, professor emerita of history at Weber State

That was the exception Faust used to counter the premise of a church-run state. He also noted that Catholics play an influential role in New England and that the Baptists hold sway in sections of the South.

"Mormons are not a monolith on social or political issues," said church spokesman Don LeFevre. "Other states have adopted tougher abortion laws than Utah's. There are

Mormon Church members "may individually go unto God in faith and prayer, and find out what should guide and direct their human judgement and wisdom ... I would rather that they should seek God for a counselor and guide, than to follow the wild harangues of political leaders."

— Church President Joseph F. Smith, 1912

University, put it more bluntly: "The elephant dances softly around the chickens."

Elder James E. Faust, the apostle who oversees his church's relationship with government, downplays the faith's impact on secular affairs.

"We restrain ourselves," Faust said. "If it is not a moral issue and we have not taken a position on it, we make no comment and we make no judgment and we do not get involved."

Only once has the state gone the other way on an issue the church has sided with: Sixty years ago, it ratified the 21st Amendment repealing prohibition.

states in the South where entire counties are dry, where no alcohol is sold. Not so in Utah. The country's toughest anti-smoking laws are not Utah's."

Still, the church's lobbyists barely have to break a sweat, for there is little need for arm-twisting in any conventional sense. Because the Legislature is so predominantly Mormon — about 90 percent — church leaders can afford to merely state their position, citing scriptural chapter and verse.

"It's because the church position on the high-profile legislation is the default position, so to speak," said

Scruggs, the BYU political scientist. "It is the natural predilection of most of the members of the Legislature."

Newly elected Gov. Mike Leavitt, a devout Mormon, vowed in his inaugural remarks that he would seek divine guidance on important issues.

And House and Senate leaders on both sides of the aisle routinely meet before general sessions with the church's Public Affairs Committee, composed of four members of the Council of the Twelve Apostles, the tier of leadership below the governing First Presidency.

That homogeneity of the Legislature also is found in counties, cities and towns across the state, and can lead to a sort of unintentional cultural blindness that non-Mormons find galling and theocratic.

"To a Mormon county commissioner, they can sit there and vote to close a park on Sunday and not give it a second thought," said White, the historian. "It isn't until the other side speaks up and says, 'Our Catholic league plays on Sunday, you can't do that.' And then they think about it and pretty soon usually they'll reach a compromise."

"I think that's the thing a lot of Mormons don't understand," she said. "Having it jammed down your throat every day."

That the Mormon Church doesn't involve itself institutionally in every issue doesn't mean its presence isn't felt — or its opinion sought.

Faust, in discussing the church's reluctance to intercede, made that very point. "If you don't believe us, ask the legislators," he said. "Because sometimes they wish we would do more than we do."

Scruggs said his biggest problem as chief of staff to former Gov. Norm Bangerter was lawmakers and lobbyists pretending to know the church's mind. "They'd say to me with a straight face, 'You know that the church is behind it' " when no church endorsement existed.

White said that although lawmakers don't always seek church support, they know its opposition is death.

"It has political veto power," she said. "They'll take their chances if the church will stay neutral."

Neutrality, Faust said, is exactly what the faith strives for in secular affairs, but he defended the church's sway in what it views as moral issues.

"The church is not trying to run the state of Utah," said Faust, a former one-term state representative. "That is not our calling."

"We've got a worldwide church to run, and we have competent people in the state of Utah who have been elected by the democratic process to run the state. On moral issues, we claim — as all churches do — not only the right but the duty to speak out."

The Bradys

(Special photo)

The Bradys, a gospel singing ministry, plan to appear at Bible Baptist Church, 500 E. Kingsmill, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday through Wednesday. They will sing at 11 a.m. Sunday. Speaking will be evangelist Chuck Brady. The family has been involved in full time ministry since 1968, traveling into 30 states, Mexico and Canada.

Life Action Team to lead at First Baptist

The Life Action Team of Buchanan, Mich., will be holding a series of evening services and seminars at the First Baptist Church of Pampa, 203 N. West St.

The Life Action Pampa Crusade will begin at 9:45 a.m. Sunday and continue each weekday evening at 7 p.m. Monday through Friday, ending April 4.

The Life Action team is led by Tim St. Clair. St. Clair has been preaching for 13 years and has been involved in more than 150 local church crusades.

The crusade features preaching, family seminars, music and children's programs which focus on the return to Biblical values and principles.

Nightly musical presentations are planned by the Life Action Singers. Each crusade includes family seminars, young adult seminars, an informal discussion time for teenagers, a two-day youth seminar called "Master Control," Dynamite Club for children in grades 2-6; and Happiness Club, for children age four through first grade.

Life Action Ministries was founded in 1971 by evangelist Del Fehsenfeld Jr.

Saturday Super Church to replace cartoons

Saturday Super Church, a ministry of the Pampa First Assembly of God, will begin March 27 in the Family Life Center of the church. Hours for Saturday Super Church are 10:30 a.m.-noon, and programming is planned for children in first through fifth grades. It will run for 10 weeks, dismissing for the summer on May 29.

"Excitement is building daily among our people," says Charles Shugart, senior pastor. "We are anticipating a great program that will reach out to the children of Pampa. Our express desire is to help unchurched children find that they have hope in today's world through a personal relationship with Christ."

"An alternative to the Saturday morning programs is needed for children today. Cartoons today frequently portray that answers to today's problems people face as being excessive force, violence and even occultic magic. We believe that Saturday Super Church will offer families quality time for their children that will promote not only the Christian perspective of personal relationship with God, but also strong family values. The family is under attack from many different directions, and one of the roles of the church is to help keep the American family as the unit God intended," he concluded.

Before implementing Saturday Super Church, the congregation researched a variety of children's programs around the country and in August conducted hands-on investigations at Tulsa Inner-City Ministries, Church on the Move and Camp Dry Gulch, all around Tulsa, Okla.

Director of the Super Church ministry, Damon Deaton reports that the format of Super Church will be similar to "Gospel Bill" as seen on Trinity Broadcasting Network, with local adaptations.

An action stage was constructed by First Assembly members John Holdaway and Charles Harrington, and reflects a western flavor with a store front motif, a "Country Store" where children may redeem "dink dollars" and a "CooCoo Clock" from which the "Memory Bird" appears with a weekly Bible verse.

Activities include Bible memory work, action songs led by Brenda Deaton, puppets shows, mime, and cheerleader Miss "J."

To pre-register or for more information call Rev. Deaton at 665-5941 or 665-4511, or come by the church office at 500 S. Cuyler.

Santa Clara stuns Arizona; Texas Tech ousted in first round

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Sports Writer

The NCAA tournament got off to the kind of start college basketball fans love Thursday night: Santa Clara, a 15th seed, shocked Pac-10 powerhouse Arizona 64-61 in the opening round of the West Regional.

It ranked among the biggest upsets in tournament history. Only once before, in 1991 when Richmond beat Syracuse, had a 15th seed knocked off a No. 2.

NCAA roundup

It also marked another fold in the first round for Arizona. The Wildcats, seeded third last year, lost 87-80 to East Tennessee State in the Southeast Regional last March.

What made Santa Clara's upset at Salt Lake City even more remarkable was the fact that Arizona scored 25 straight points bridging the first and second halves. The Wildcats (24-4) took their biggest lead, 46-33, on a basket by Chris Mills with 15:26 left.

It would be their last field goal until Mills hit a 3-pointer to make it 64-61 with 8.4 seconds remaining.

Santa Clara then missed four free throws, but Arizona was unable to capitalize. Damon Stoudamire's desperation 23-footer as time expired bounced off the back of the rim.

The Broncos (19-11), champions of the lightly regarded West Coast Conference, will face Temple in the second round.

In other games, St. John's beat Texas Tech 85-67, Arkansas crushed Holy Cross 94-64, Rhode Island beat Purdue 74-68 and North Carolina defeated East Carolina 85-65 in the East Regional; Kansas topped Ball State 94-72, Brigham Young got past Southern Methodist 80-71, Duke topped Southern Illinois 105-70 and California edged LSU 66-64 in the Midwest Regional; Florida State downed Evansville 82-70, Tulane edged Kansas State 55-53, Western Kentucky beat Memphis State 55-52 and Seton Hall downed Tennessee State 81-59 in the Southeast Regional, and Illinois edged Long Beach State 75-72, Vanderbilt ousted Boise State 92-72 and Temple defeated Missouri 75-61 in the West Regional.

EAST

Winston-Salem, N.C.
St. John's 85, Texas Tech 67
Guard David Cain had a triple-double — 12 points, 11 rebounds, 11 assists — and St. John's also got 17 points from Derek Brown and 12 from Shawnelle Scott. The fifth-seeded Redmen (19-10) used a 22-4 run in the second half to pull away. Twelfth-seeded Texas Tech (18-12), with no player taller than 6-foot-7, was outbounded 51-35.

Arkansas 94, Holy Cross 64
The fourth-seeded Razorbacks (21-8) used runs of 11-0 and 10-0 in the game's first 12 1/2 minutes to lead 29-10. Holy Cross (23-7) cut the deficit to nine early in the second half, but Arkansas then used a 15-2 burst to increase its lead to 22.

Rhode Island 74, Purdue 68
Big Ten scoring leader Glenn

Robinson had 36 points but got little help from his Purdue (18-10) teammates. The ninth-seeded Rams (19-10), a surprise choice for the tournament, won its first NCAA tournament game since it advanced to the round of 16 in 1988. Carlos Cofield had seven points in a 19-9 run that lifted Rhode Island from a 43-42 deficit to a 61-52 lead.

North Carolina 85, East Carolina 65
Eric Montross dominated down low and scored 17 points as North Carolina (29-4) gave Dean Smith a record 50th NCAA tournament victory. George Lynch had 15 points and Brian Reese added 11 for the Tar Heels, who played the Pirates (13-17) for the first time in more than 40 years. Point guard Derrick Phelps, injured in the ACC semifinals, played 15 minutes.

SOUTHEAST

Orlando, Fla.
Tulane 55, Kansas State 53
Tulane (22-8) went ahead 54-53 on a three-point play by Matt Greene. Anthony Beane drove the length of the floor looking to tie, but Pointer Williams reached in and stripped the ball with less than two seconds left. Kansas State finished the year 19-11.

Florida State 82, Evansville 70
Charlie Ward, taking advantage of Evansville's decision to let him shoot, scored 15 points to lead the third-seeded Seminoles (23-9). "Ward really did a great job of hitting some shots. We were gambling he wasn't going to hit those shots," said Evansville (23-7) coach Jim Crews. The Purple Aces' leading scorer, Parrish Casebier, was held to 7 points — 13 below his average.

Western Kentucky 55, Memphis State 52
Mark Bell, a 5-foot-8 guard, had 18 points and led his team with nine rebounds, as seventh-seeded Western Kentucky, the Sun Belt champ, beat Memphis State (20-12). The Tigers had two chances to force overtime in the closing seconds, but Anfernee Hardaway missed the front end of a 1-and-1 and Rodney Newsome tossed an airball from 24 feet with 1.5 seconds left.

Seton Hall 81, Tennessee State 59
Big East champion Seton Hall (28-6), the No. 2 seed, won its 12th straight overall and its fifth straight NCAA first-round game. Terry Dehere led the Pirates with 19 points, Arturas Karnishovas had 13 and Adrian Griffin a career-high 12. Tennessee State (19-10) made the journey just one year after going 4-24.

MIDWEST

Rosemont, Ill.
Kansas 94, Ball State 72
Rex Walters made all six of his 3-point shots and scored 23 points and the second-seeded Jayhawks (26-6) shot 56.3 percent. Ball State (26-8) was seeking to match its tournament success of 1990 when it upset Oregon State and Louisville before a 2-point loss to eventual champion UNLV.

Brigham Young 80, Southern Methodist 71
BYU led all the way but SMU managed to stay close. The Cougars (25-8) were led by Gary Trost's 26 points.

Brownfield bombed by Harvesters in Canyon Classic

CANYON — For the second game in a row, Pampa's bats came alive as the Harvesters blanked Brownfield, 18-0, in Thursday's opening round of the Canyon Independent School District Baseball Classic.

"Obviously, we've broken out of our hitting slump. All but one or two of our starters got hits. Brownfield was no slouch. They've been to the playoffs several times, but it was one of those days where we did everything right and they did everything wrong," said Pampa head coach Rod Porter.

The Harvesters were coming off a 14-4 win over Dalhart on Tuesday and evened their record at 5-5 with the win over Brownfield, now 5-4.

Pampa wasted little time in jumping on Brownfield pitcher Wally Rodriguez. Kyle Parnell got the Harvesters started with a bases-loaded triple, and by the time the inning was over eight runs had crossed the plate.

Pampa meets Randall at 2 p.m. today in the championship quarterfinals at the Randall High School field. Randall beat Perryton, 11-3, in a first-round game Thursday.

Pampa's Danny Frye yielded only one hit against Brownfield in five innings on the mound. The game was called in the fifth due to the 10-run rule.

"Frye did an outstanding job. He was in control the whole game. He was getting them out on groundballs and popups and we made only two errors behind him," Porter said.

Parnell, a junior, also had a single to go along with his triple. Matt Finney hit two homers and knocked in four runs while Matt Garvin delivered a pinch-hit round-tripper for the Harvesters.

Others with hits for Pampa were Tony Cavalier, double, one RBI; Brad Smilie, one hit, two RBI; Gregg Moore, one hit, one RBI; Kurt West, one hit, one RBI and Hank Gindorf, one hit, one RBI.

Should the Harvesters win today, they will play the Borger-Plainview winner at 11:30 a.m. Saturday in the championship semifinals. The finals are scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday at the Canyon High School field.

In other first-round games, Plainview edged River Road, 4-3; Hereford blasted Dalhart, 14-1; Dumas defeated Sanford-Fritch, 5-2; Canyon defeated Friona, 15-1, and Borger blanked Dimmitt, 11-0.

Youngsters impressive in spring training games

By The Associated Press

Several veterans are starting to worry just a little about their job security.

Catcher Tim Laker of Montreal and pitcher Tim Pugh of Cincinnati both had performances Thursday that went a long way toward helping them stay in the big leagues.

Laker, trying to win a job as Montreal's starting catcher, had two hits and drove in two runs as the Expos beat the Atlanta Braves 8-2 in a game shortened to 5 1/2 innings by rain at West Palm Beach, Fla.

Laker, who spent 28 games with the Expos last season, raised his spring-training average to .357.

"He really showed up at this camp like someone who wants the job," said Expos manager Felipe Alou, who still is uncertain about Laker's future. "If we agree he's ready for the major leagues, he's got to be the No. 1 catcher and the other two (Darrin Fletcher and Tim Spehr) the backups. "But he has to be playing almost every day — whether it's here or at Triple A."

The Cincinnati Reds got another solid performance from Pugh in a 5-4 victory over Detroit at Plant City, Fla.

Pugh (1-0) extended his scoreless-innings streak to nine and is now the leading candidate for the fifth starter's spot. Against the Tigers, he allowed two hits in five innings, lowering his ERA to 0.64.

Florida got another strong pitching performance from Jack Armstrong, who worked five innings for the first time this spring. He gave up four hits, struck out three and walked one against Houston.

Armstrong has allowed only one earned run, while striking out 11, in 16 innings this spring.

"Armstrong is pitching well," Florida manager Rene Lachemann said. "He's changing speeds. He's not out there just to overpower people. He's pitching as a pitcher."

Bo Jackson went 1 for 3 for the Chicago White Sox against the New York Yankees, diving head-first into second base for a seventh-inning double. He also caught his first fly balls in the outfield in more than two years.

Meanwhile, Butch Huskey's two-run triple in the seventh inning helped the New York Mets beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-3 in a game shortened to seven innings by rain at Port St. Lucie, Fla.

It was the rookie third baseman's third game-winning hit of the exhibition season. He beat Philadelphia with an RBI single in the bottom of the ninth on Tuesday and hit a two-run homer against Atlanta on March 8 in the bottom of the ninth.

Against Los Angeles, Huskey lined Kip Gross' breaking ball over right fielder Billy Ashley in the seventh to put the Mets ahead.

Referees soccer clinic begins tonight

The Pampa Soccer Association is sponsoring a referees clinic this weekend at the GPM offices, one mile west of town on highway 152.

The clinic will be held from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. tonight, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday (with lunch break) and Sunday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. A test fee of $25 will be charged Sunday.

Upon completion of the clinic, the participant will be certified by the United States Soccer Federation.

"You must be a referee for two years before officiating high school games," John Thaxton, PSA referees commissioner, pointed out. "This clinic would be a good starting place."

Thaxton said the association needs referees, both men and women, for the various youth leagues.

Call 669-2419 or 665-8015 for more information.

"I'm sure having fun," Huskey said. "It's fun to be successful. I'd much rather play baseball and work hard than work hard at a McDonald's."

As well as he has played, Huskey, 21, will not join the Mets when they return to Shea Stadium in two weeks. He most likely will be playing Class AAA in Norfolk, Va., or AA in Binghamton, N.Y.

"I won't be disappointed," Huskey said. "Right now, the way it looks, I wouldn't have anywhere to play (with the Mets). I want to be in the game everyday."

Redfish population makes biggest recovery since early 1980's

By LARRY MORGAN
Corpus Christi Caller-Times

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Three is enough.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has proposed allowing anglers to keep one more redfish. Four instead of three.

But anglers are saying three is enough.

The department says the redfish has made a significant recovery since the late 1970s and early '80s when recreational anglers and commercial netters competed for the same fish. The population is higher than at any time in the past 17 years, when Parks and Wildlife first started monitoring fish numbers.

One department official has noted, "The 'good ol' days' are well before 17 years ago."

But with the recovery to date, it means the state can increase the bag limit without jeopardizing the long-term health of the redfish, Karen Meador, TP&W coastal biologist, said at a public hearing last week at Rockport.

But the majority of anglers attending hearings at Corpus Christi, Rockport, Kingsville and Raymondville want the daily bag limit left at three.

Outdoors topic

"Tell Texas Parks and Wildlife not to be so nice to us. We love 'em. But tell them not to be so nice," Kenneth Callaway of Rockport said at the hearing at Rockport concluded.

Late February and early March is the time that Parks and Wildlife shops its proposals for changes in hunting and fishing regulations around the state. Department staff members propose the changes. Comments from the public hearings are being forwarded to the Parks and Wildlife Commission which ultimately decides the fate of the proposals. The commission is scheduled to meet March 25 and decide on this year's proposals, which would become effective Sept. 1.

At Rockport, 23 people attended the hearing and 11 commented on the redfish proposal, all in opposition. Five of those were professional guides, one of whom represented the Coastal Bend Guides Association and read a letter outlining the association's opposition.

The letter said the guides wanted to hold the daily limit at three but widen the range of legal-sized redfish to 18-30 inches from the current 20-28 inches.

The general sentiment against the more liberal four-fish bag limit has dealt with not altering something that is working well. Those opposing it said they detected no outcry from other anglers for a bigger limit. And three redfish 20-28 inches long is plenty of fish.

"I like the slot where it is," professional guide Gordon Janssen said. "I think we got where we are by having the slot limit like it is."

Gary Clouse, a professional guide at Rockport, said that he spoke with perhaps 150 anglers over the course of 20 days this past winter at various fishing shows in the state.

"There's a very small percentage who say they want four redfish," he said. "And there isn't anyone who's fished with me who wanted one more redfish."

Jerry Mickey owns a recreational vehicle park at Rockport and also guides anglers. He said non-resident anglers see no need for changing the bag limit.

"We have numerous out-of-state people staying at our park all winter. They're perfectly happy with three fish," Mickey said. "They don't want to rock the boat. They say, 'Leave it alone.'"

Changing the way the fishery is managed now would be too risky and may cost the state income, he said.

Referring to the anglers at his RV park, Mickey said: "They spend a lot of money for out-of-state licenses. And if we mess this up and somehow go to one fish (daily), then we're going to lose a lot of revenue."

Callaway, reading a personal statement in opposition to the four-fish limit, echoed an editorial from Tide, a magazine for members of the Gulf Coast Conservation Association which led the movement to restore the redfish population.

He said while some may believe the redfish has been saved, he thinks that is not the case. Regulations, stocking efforts and laws banning commercial fishing for redfish have bought redfish some time. But it still awaits an uncertain future, he said.

Threats from future freezes, stresses on the marine environment from industry and questions whether federal regulations will continue to protect redfish in the Gulf of Mexico in coming years combine to present a fragile existence for the species, he said.

Ironically, before the Tide magazine reached GCCA members, the conservation group's board of directors met with Parks and Wildlife biologists and then voted to support the four-fish limit.

"The Texas redfish is one of the only success stories in the history of marine fisheries conservation," GCCA Executive Director Kevin Daniels said in a statement released last week. "The scientific data from TP&W is encouraging and emboldening. At the same time, I can assure you that GCCA's vigorous protection of the redfish and other sport fishing species will remain steadfast."

Anglers who did not attend a hearing may comment by calling Parks and Wildlife in Austin, 1-800-792-1112, extension 4974, or writing to the department at 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, TX 78744.

Free agency deal could backfire on Redskins

By RICHARD KEIL
AP Sports Writer

ASHBURN, VA. (AP) — A month ago, the Washington Redskins were expecting something far different from the NFL's free agency derby.

Although no one at Redskin Park would say so publicly, Washington was so certain of signing Philadelphia Eagles defensive end Reggie White that they asked veteran Charles Mann to move from the right side to the left side to make room for the seven-time All-Pro.

And they dreamed of a defensive unit anchored by White and linebacker Wilber Marshall. Then coach Joe Gibbs retired, about the time that Marshall was making angry noises about how little money he might make in Washington after the Redskins designated him the team's franchise player.

Now, wary of a protracted contract standoff with Marshall, the Redskins are considering trading him. And because their payroll is already so high, they might not be able to afford White, after all.

"I really don't have a feel for how that one is going to go," general manager Charley Casserly said Thursday, a day after

White visited the team's training complex. "He seemed to enjoy the visit, and we enjoyed having him. We'll just have to negotiate down the line."

And that's where problems start. White is expected to ask for $3.5 million per season; the Redskins can go no higher than $3 million — given their current payroll.

"We probably have some limitations that other people don't have," Casserly admitted. "We'll do what we can do, but we can't go as high as other teams might."

White, who initially made no secret of his desire to play in the capital, said that Gibbs' retirement had at least initially cooled his ardor for the Redskins.

"When coach Gibbs resigned, I was very disappointed," White said. "I didn't know how much of a chance I'd want to give the organization. But in talking to coach Pettibone and (cornerback) Darrell Green and a lot of the players ... everyone feels they can still win."

Oddly enough, Marshall's departure might be the one move that could allow them to afford White, who may well be swayed by offers in the $3.5-million per year range antici-ated from the Green Bay Packers, New York Jets and Cleveland Browns.

Marshall, a free agent, wants something along the lines of a three-year deal at $3 million per year. The Redskins are unlikely to offer a three-year pact, and the salary would probably not exceed $2 million per year.

Marshall tried unsuccessfully to challenge his "franchise" designation in the Minneapolis federal court where the NFL's free agency lawsuit was tried.

The linebacker's name has since come up in trade discussions, and team officials speaking only on condition of anonymity say that the Redskins have not ruled out dealing Marshall.

For one thing, they would buy themselves some room to negotiate with White if Marshall were gone; they also are worried about the disruptive influence a Marshall holdout could become. A third option is to simply let Marshall sign with another team as a free agent, which would guarantee the Redskins a first-round draft choice.

"We're not looking to trade him," is all Casserly would say on the subject. "His contract status is not a problem for us."

Georgetown has successful NIT debut with win over Arizona State

By The Associated Press

Georgetown, a stranger in a strange land after 14 straight years in the NCAA tournament, joined the NIT successfully.

The Hoyas opened with a 78-68 victory over Arizona State in Tempe, Ariz., in the first round Thursday night. It was no work of art, but coach John Thompson is taking what he can get come this time of year.

"I told the team in the locker room at halftime that we played the best half of basketball we've played all year, and we played the worst half of basketball we've played all year," he said. "All in the same half."

The Hoyas were schizophrenic, all right. They led 38-34 at halftime even though the Sun Devils scored the last 15 points. By the time Arizona State completed its 29-5 run in the second half, the Sun Devils were up 48-43.

"We weren't concerned because we knew it was our fault we were turning the ball over," Georgetown freshman Othella Harrington said.

"We had to calm down, take care of the ball and score points."

The second half brought a little more consistency, and a lot of Harrington. The 6-foot-10 center, who finished with 18 rebounds, scored 21 of his 25 points to send the Hoyas (17-12) into the next round against Houston or Texas-El Paso.

"In the beginning, our outside shots were going in, and we had control of the game," Harrington said. "In the second half, we started pumping the ball inside to me and I was able to score down low."

Arizona State, which scored one basket in the last 6 1/2 minutes, was led by Lester Neal. The 6-foot-5 1/2 center, the Sun Devils' tallest starter, finished with 26 points.

"Georgetown played a hell of a game," Sun Devils guard Stevin Smith said. "They hit the big shots and we didn't. You have to give them credit."

In other first-round games, it was Old Dominion 74, Virginia Commonwealth 68; Boston College 87, Niagara 83; Providence 73, James Madison 61; Clemson 84, Auburn 72; Alabama-Birmingham 58, Alabama 56; and Southwest Missouri State 56, St. Joseph's 34.

The NIT, which opened with 32 teams, completes the first round with three games tonight: Jackson State at Connecticut, Houston at Texas-El Paso and Pepperdine at Santa Barbara.

Old Dominion 74, VCU 68

At Norfolk, Va., Keith Jackson scored 26 points and freshman Odell Hodge had 16 points and 10 rebounds to carry Old Dominion (21-7). VCU, down by 11 in the second half, pulled to 70-68 with 39 seconds left. Jackson then hit two free throws. Sherron Mills led VCU (20-10) with 24 points and 14 rebounds. Old Dominion next plays Miami of Ohio (21-8).

Boston College 87, Niagara 83

At Niagara Falls, N.Y., Gerrod Abram scored 22 points and Howard Easley had 20 in a tough test for Boston College (17-12). The Eagles trailed 42-36 at the half. Brian Clifford's 17 points paced Niagara (23-7). Boston College plays Rice (18-9) in the second round.

Providence 73, James Madison 61

At Providence, Franklin Western scored 20 points and the Friars (18-11) played gritty defense against the nation's most accurate shooting team. It was the fourth straight year James Madison lost in the NIT's first round. The Dukes, who shot 52.3 percent this season, were limited to 39.6 percent. Providence next plays West Virginia (17-11).

Clemson 84, Auburn 72

At Clemson, S.C., Devin Gray had 23 points and Andre Bovain added 21, helping Clemson overcome a second-half rally by Auburn. Clemson (17-12) led by 22 in the first half, but Auburn drew to 73-65 with about three minutes remaining. Wesley Person's 28 points led Auburn (15-12). Clemson goes against Alabama-Birmingham in the second round.

Alabama-Birmingham 58, Alabama 56

At Tuscaloosa, Ala., Stanley Jackson scored 17 points, including two free throws with nine seconds left, to help Alabama-Birmingham beat Alabama in the first meeting between the schools. Cedric Moore sparked Alabama (16-13) with 18 points.

SW Missouri St. 56, St. Joseph's 34

At Springfield, Mo., Southwest Missouri held St. Joseph's to 24 percent shooting in a defensive struggle.

The Bears limited St. Joseph's (18-11) to seven points in the first 12 minutes of the second half. Johnny Murdock's 10 points led SW Missouri (19-10), which hit just 35 percent of its shots. Up next for the Bears is Jackson State or Connecticut.

Rider critical of UNLV officials

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Former basketball star J.R. Rider says he was "hung out to dry" by UNLV officials when they suspended him for academic irregularities earlier this week.

Rider told a news conference Thursday that he was a scapegoat for university officials intent on saving their own jobs.

Rider and his attorney, Steve Stein, refused to identify the university officials, but Stein suggested the names would surface in the next few days. He did not elaborate.

"I've been hung out to dry publicly by a university administration that refuses to accept responsibility," Rider said in a statement read at him.

a crowded news conference in Stein's office. "University administrators turned their backs on me to protect their own jobs."

According to reports published this past week, an instructor was pressured into giving Rider a grade so he could become eligible to play last fall. The Las Vegas Review-Journal also published copies of two compositions written for Rider in different handwriting, and three papers on which his legal first name, Isaiah, was spelled wrong.

University officials first discounted the matter, then suspended Rider on Tuesday, saying they had learned that a tutor had done the work for him.

Windy weather results in high scores at Nestle Invitational

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — A combination of wind speed and direction produced record high scores in the opening round of the $1 million Nestle Invitational.

When compared with the massive storm that savaged Florida last weekend, Thursday's cold front was of relatively modest proportions. North winds of 30 mph, temperatures in the 40s, nothing even approaching a record.

It was enough to keep all but three men — John Cook, Rick Fehr and Mike Allen — from breaking 70. Their 3-under-par 69s were, by two strokes, the highest first-round lead in the 15-year history of the tournament.

"With the north wind, every hole played tough," Cook explained. "The short holes are downwind, and the long holes were all into the wind."

Two shots — one by Curtis Strange and the other by Allen — serve as illustrations.

The 481-yard, par-5 16th hole was playing downwind. Allen hit a 7-iron second shot to 30 feet and made the putt for an eagle for his share of the lead.

The 441-yard, par-4 18th at Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill Club was playing dead into the wind. Strange missed the green with a 3-wood second shot left of a grandstand and had to work hard to salvage a par and his position one shot off the lead.

"I hit a real good drive and I had a 3-wood left, and I've only got an area eight paces wide to get it between the bunker and the lake, and I can't play that shot," Strange said.

"In retrospect, the right shot would have been to lay up with a 2-iron," he said.

Strange, attempting a comeback from the slump that has extended since his 1989 U.S. Open victory, was tied at 2 under par with Dan Pohl, Jay Delsing, Brad Bryant, Vijay Singh of Fiji and Fulton Allem of South Africa.

The first hole, also 441 yards and also a par-4, was another that played dead into the wind. It, too, served as an example of the difficulties caused by the north winds.

Cook hit a driver and a 1-iron into the front bunker, then got up and down for a par.

"Usually, it's a driver and a 6- or 7-iron," said Cook, who added this tournament to his schedule only after a case of flu forced him out of the Los Angeles Open. He skipped the first two Florida tournaments.

"I hadn't played in almost a month and my wife was shoving me out the door saying, 'Isn't it about time for you to go play somewhere?'" Cook said.

He added this tournament to his schedule even though the California resident has a career-long, 14-year history of frustration in Florida.

"Surprised to be leading? Yeah, that's for sure," he said, and credited an outstanding putting effort with his share of the top spot.

He one-putted 10 times, including five of the last six holes.

Unseeded teams rise to the occasion at NAIA tournament

Defending champion OCU eliminated by Lenoir-Rhyne

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The last NAIA tournament to be played in Kansas City surely will go down as "The Tournament of Upsets."

Six more seeded teams were sent to the sidelines in the second round of the 56th annual tournament Thursday, leaving only three of the 16 seeded teams for today's quarterfinals.

No. 1 Oklahoma Baptist, No. 3 Hawaii Pacific and No. 4 David Lipscomb, Tenn., are the only seeded teams still remaining as the last two tournament champions bowed out at the hands of unseeded foes.

Two-time defending champion

Oklahoma City, a No. 6 seed, was ousted by Lenoir-Rhyne, N.C., 85-67, while 1990 champion Birmingham-Southern (Ala.) was eliminated by Georgetown, Ky., 77-72.

Sharpshooter Jeff Haddock scored 29 points from the outside and Tony Mallard and Larry Lentz pounded away inside for 20 and 17 points, respectively. Mallard and Lentz also combined for 16 rebounds as Lenoir-Rhyne, (25-6) won its eighth straight.

"You don't beat a team like Oklahoma City without playing well," Lenoir-Rhyne coach John Lentz said.

"I thought we did an excellent job in getting the ball inside, which opened it up for our outside shooters."

Jason Woodard scored 22 points, Russell Chadwell 21 and Mark Tandy 20 to power Georgetown (28-7) past Birmingham-Southern.

The Panthers (29-7) got within two points three times in the final four minutes, but Georgetown held on by making nine of 10 free throws.

"Our prime time players played well and we were fortunate to answer every call," Georgetown coach Jim Reid said.

Oklahoma Baptist (32-3) stretched its winning streak to 17 with an 84-74 victory over No. 16-seed Salem-Tenkyo, W. Va. Fabio Sant'Anna had 19 points as five Bison scored in double figures.

Lemar Young hit a tie-breaking 12-foot jump shot with 10 seconds left and then stole the ball and added a last-second field goal to lift Hawaii Pacific to an 83-79 victory over No. 14-seed Briar Cliff, Iowa.

"I was missing shots all game, so I knew one of them would fall," said Young, who also stripped Briar Cliff's Tom Stibbs as he attempted a game-tying shot.

David Smith had 24 points and Roger Huggins 22 for Hawaii Pacific (27-4). Leon Trimmingham had 25 points and a tournament-high 23 rebounds for Briar Cliff (27-6).

David Lipscomb, the 1986 champion, had to overcome a 44-24 first half deficit to defeat No. 13-seed Life College (Ga.), 94-89.

The Bisons hit 16 of 21 shots for 76.2 percent in the second half and broke the game open with a late 15-0 run. Ed Pierce had 27 points and Andy McQueen added 24 for Lipscomb (34-3). Jerry Jones scored 31 points for Life.

The game also featured 17 3-point field goals. Midwestern State (Texas) broke a 72-72 tie with six free throws in the final two minutes to upset No. 10-seed Central Washington, which got 29 points from Jason Pepper and 22 from Ryan Pepper.

Jerry Ligon had 29 points and Art James 23 as Urbana, Ohio shot 61.6 percent in running up the tourney's biggest score — a 126-104 drubbing of the Ozarks, Ark.

Jason Cordes scored 22 points, including three 3-pointers in the second half to lead Minnesota-Morris to a 66-59 win over Belmont, Tenn., in the final second-round game.

A downcast Mia Farrow steps to the microphones at Yale-New Haven Hospital Thursday to deliver a brief statement. (AP Photo)

Allen says he's exonerated of sexual abuse allegation

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Woody Allen says a team of child abuse experts confirmed what he's been saying all along: He never molested his 7-year-old adopted daughter.

The experts' conclusion strengthens his hand in his ugly custody battle with Mia Farrow, the filmmaker's former lover and leading lady for 12 years.

But the report didn't declare Allen a model parent, according to excerpts obtained by New York Newsday and published today.

It said Allen needs to "establish appropriate boundaries" between himself and his children and recommends that he seek psychotherapy to address his "disturbed relationships" with his two youngest children.

The report also recommended that Farrow seek psychiatric help, saying her relationship with those two children also was disturbed.

The report, which the pair had asked be kept secret, will be reviewed by State's Attorney Frank Maco for a final decision on whether to bring charges against Allen.

Allen, 57, and Farrow, 47, arrived separately Thursday at Yale-New Haven Hospital and were briefed together by the experts.

Farrow wouldn't comment after the briefing except to say, "I'll always stand by my children."

Allen emerged from the 2 1/2-hour meeting and told reporters that the report found "I never, ever used my daughter, that no sexual abuse took place."

He said the investigators indicated that a videotape in which the girl, Dylan, made abuse allegations may have been doctored. And, he said, "There's a strong recommendation that Mia herself seek psychiatric help."

He said of his daughter's allegations: "Her statements might have been the result of stress. Perhaps they were programmed into her." Allen said Farrow had "filled her with one horrible lie after another about me, pressuring the child to continue to repeat the molestation allegations by rote."

Farrow attorney Eleanor Alter said the actress felt the Yale team's findings were "incomplete and inaccurate."

"The Yale group, despite Ms. Farrow's request, declined to meet with people whose information would've been vitally important to their findings, including Ms. Farrow's older children and an eyewitness to part of the abuse," Alter said.

Allen said he will immediately seek custody of the couple's three children in light of the report. "I believe this will turn everything around," he said.

The report was compiled by Dr. John Leventhal, a pediatrician and director of the child sexual abuse clinic at Yale-New Haven Hospital, and two clinical social workers trained to detect child sexual abuse.

Farrow accused Allen of molesting the child in August at Farrow's Bridgewater home. The couple split that month when Allen disclosed that he was romantically involved with Farrow's 22-year-old adopted daughter, Soon-Yi Previn.

Farrow and Allen have one biological child, Satchel, 5, and two adopted children, Moses, 14, and Dylan.

Farrow has moved to void Allen's adoptions of Moses and Dylan on grounds of fraud because he failed to disclose his "virtually incestuous relationship with their sister."

Srebrenica under intense bombardment

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnian Serb forces launched an intense artillery barrage around besieged Srebrenica today, even as they promised to permit an aid convoy to reach thousands of desperate people in the region.

Officials of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees' office in Belgrade said the long-awaited convoy for Srebrenica was allowed to leave the Serbian town of Mali Zvornik but was stopped again by an armored personnel carrier after several miles. They said poor communications made it difficult to determine what was happening.

U.N. officials reported from Srebrenica that shells landed just northwest of the town at a rate of one per second during a 15-minute period before the shelling eased.

Murat Efendic, a Srebrenica official now based in Sarajevo, said the shells fell near where U.S. planes dropped aid parcels overnight.

The assault came as Bosnian Serb leaders were attending peace talks in New York and promising to let the convoy deliver food and medicine to tens of thousands of people in Srebrenica.

In a two-week offensive, Serb forces have taken a large swath of eastern Bosnia, sweeping refugees south toward Srebrenica.

The plight of more than 50,000 people in Srebrenica becomes more desperate by the day. Peter Kessler, UNHCR spokesman in Sarajevo, said water was contaminated and diarrhea was rampant.

"It's absolutely vital to get that convoy through," Kessler said. "And if that convoy gets through, we would need another one in there immediately."

The U.N. team with the convoy was blocked at the Yugoslav-Bosnian border for nine days. The trucks were allowed to proceed today, but in the wake of several broken promises during the past week, U.N. officials were skeptical they would be allowed to reach their destination today.

The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, Sadako Ogata, appealed to the United States to extend air drops of food and medicine over eastern Bosnia to the daytime, and start evacuating the wounded by helicopter.

Such operations would be much riskier than the high-altitude, nighttime flights so far. The Pentagon would not say whether the United States would consider the appeal.

Six C-130 transport planes dropped more than 30 tons of food and medical supplies overnight to the trapped people of Srebrenica, the U.S. military said today.

While Serb forces in eastern Bosnia focused their fire power on the Srebrenica area, those besieging the Bosnian capital, Sarajevo, eased their assault today.

Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic, in New York for the latest round of internationally-mediated peace talks, said he would not attend as long as Serb forces continued their offensive in eastern Bosnia.

Bosnia's U.N. ambassador said four Serbian planes bombed villages near Srebrenica on Wednesday night, even as the U.N. Security Council was condemning a bombing raid four days earlier. The ambassador, Muhamed Sacirbey, had no further details and there was no other confirmation.

The Security Council president, Ambassador Terence Christopher O'Brien of New Zealand, said the U.N. peacekeeping department was looking into the report.

The Serb air attacks have prompted the United States to push for enforcement of a U.N.-imposed no-fly zone over Bosnia, the State Department said Thursday.

Britain and France have been reluctant to go along with enforcement for fear the Serbs might retaliate by targeting British and French forces helping to deliver relief supplies in Bosnia.
